Rescuers continue search for bodies

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Dozens of search teams, bolstered by airmen from nearby Sheppard Air Force Base, combed the city's tornado-ravaged area today for more victims of Tuesday's storm. They found one more body, boosting the total to 43 so far in Wichita Falls.

Mayor Kenneth Hill said power had been restored to about 50 percent of the city's 100,000 residents but water pressure was still too low to fight fires.

He said the number of persons killed by the storm could rise to 100.

As many as 8,000 residents were homeless, the mayor estimated. He said there was no estimate yet as to how many were missing. Hundreds of persons were injured, and power and water throughout the city were knocked out for 24 hours.

"Maybe I'm speaking more from a standpoint of fear than knowledge. I just don't see how we can keep from having more (deaths). It's a huge area," Hill said. "We'd been in terrible shape if we had had a fire. We'd just have to let it burn," he said. An emergency curfew to prevent looting was in effect in the city Wednesday night. Hill said three persons — two adults and one juvenile —

Carter declares disaster area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today declared Texas a major disaster area as a result of the tornadoes and other severe storms that hit the state Tuesday and Wednesday.

Carter's declaration, issued by the White House shortly after the president left for an Easter vacation in Georgia, will make federal funds available for relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the state.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements estimated the cost of rebuilding at up to $300 million.

were arrested and charged with looting.

Some signs of renewed life were evident in the downtown area this morning. Traffic signals were operating and some gas stations and retail businesses were open.

Reports of looting and price gouging sparked adoption by the city council Wednesday night of ordinances setting a city-wide curfew and freezing the costs on all essential items.

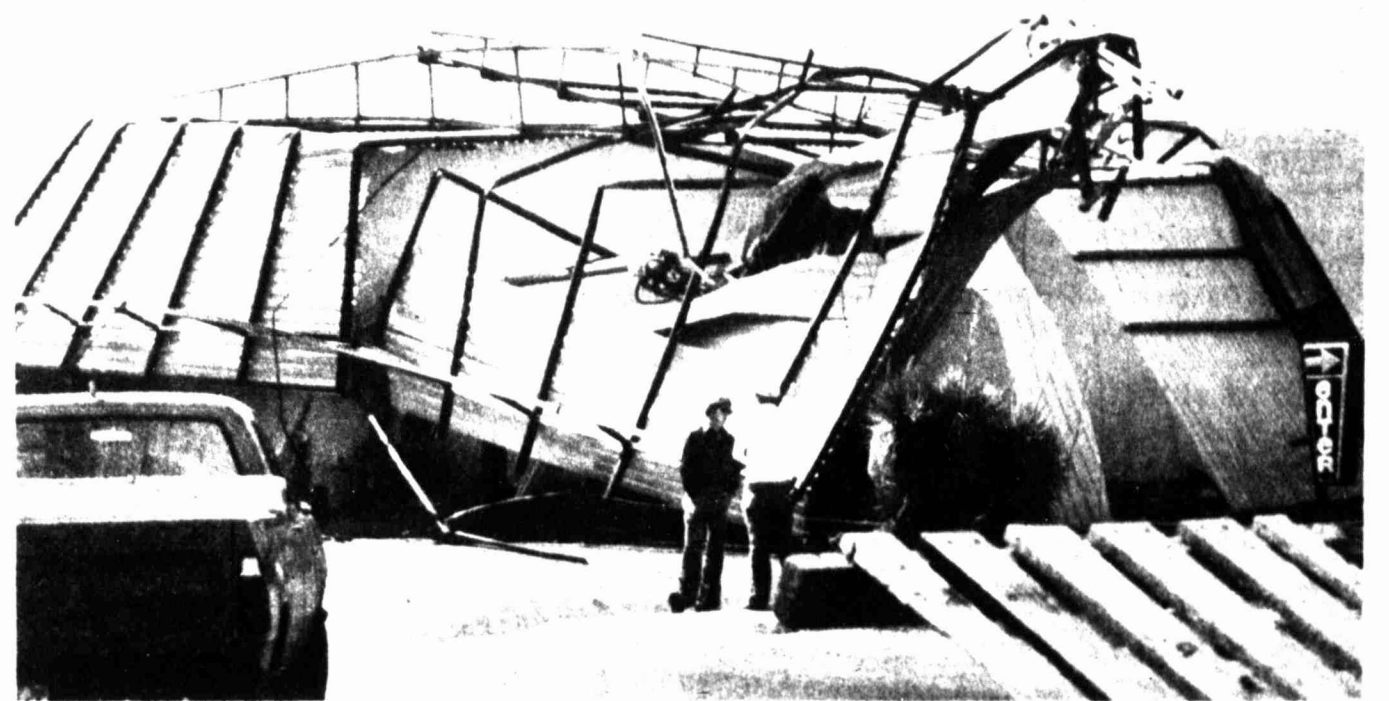

Hill said he had heard reports of some merchants selling gasoline for $1.50 a gallon.

Meanwhile, as tornado-whipped dust settled on both sides of the Texas-Oklahoma border, residents of three other devastated communities got a clear view of what happened when the tornadoes raked the area and left the two-state death toll at 57 dead.

Eleven persons were killed in near-by Vernon, one in Harrold and three in Lawton, Okla., across the Red River.

As the stricken areas sought to recover, a new swarm of tornadoes struck Arkansas, Alabama, Missouri and Kentucky on Wednesday. There were no reports of deaths, but Missouri officials reported 16 persons injured while Arkansas officials said 44 were injured.

Gusts that ripped off a portion of the roof of the Strike It Rich store at 1720 E. 8th St. in Odessa about 3 p.m. Wednesday also provided the power for a homemade sail-board for a Midland youngster. Winds threw a roof section of the Odessa building into a power line pole — knocking out a transformer and dropping several live wires. In Midland, meanwhile, 12-year-old Charlie Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.V. Cook of 4608 Princeton Ave., took advantage of gusts up to 69 mph to glide along on his skateboard with a homemade parachute. ## Carter backing down on curbs

No legislative proposals or regulatory actions in the works

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is backing away from President Carter's threat of federal curbs on the use of new oil profits, and officials concede they have no clear idea how such restrictions would even be fashioned.

No legislative proposals or regulatory actions are in the works, say officials at the White House and the Energy and Treasury departments. Some concede it would be difficult to come up with workable ideas.

Carter, in a nationally televised speech last week, pledged to "demand that they (the oil companies) use their new income to develop energy for America, and not to buy such things as department stores and hotels, as some have done in the past."

But that line, a White House official, requesting anonymity, said, was inserted without fully exploring how Carter could enforce investment curbs.

Then, at Tuesday's news conference, the president added circuses and timber lands to the list of oil company investments of which he disapproves. "I would favor," he added, "any constraints placed on the oil companies by the Congress or administratively within my own sphere of influence to encourage that use of increased revenues for oil and gas production."

Carter said oil companies will net $6 billion over the next three years from his decision to lift oil price controls, even if Congress enacts his proposed "windfall profits tax" on the new income.

But White House press secretary Jody Powell Wednesday backed away from the threat of government investment curbs.

"Our hope and our belief is that such action will not be necessary, that these companies will in fact act in a responsible manner," he said.

Powell refused to discuss how restraints on oil company profits would work. "Thought has been given to that," he said. "There are various ways I'm not going to get into that now. I don't consider it to be productive."

But other officials said little attention had been given to the idea of profit curbs. Energy Department spokesman Jim Bishop said "nothing solid" was in the works.

A White House official, asking not to be named, said "the administration hasn't fully explored" the idea. "We killed ourselves to get the program out on time."

The reference to demands that profits be plowed back had been added almost as an afterthought, he said.

Powell suggested cryptically that tax legislation might be drafted to encourage plowing back profits. "The history of taxation in this country is very much a history of structuring taxes to encourage or discourage certain types of spending and behavior," he told a reporter.

But a Treasury Department official, who is drafting Carter's windfall profits tax proposal, was astounded at the suggestion.

"You've got me," he said. "I'm not aware of any plans to do it through the tax system."

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the only way he could think of accomplishing investment curbs through taxation would be to tax away every cent of the profits from decontrolled domestic oil, then give back some of the money in tax credits for specifically approved investments. Such an approach is far from the 50 percent tax Carter proposes.

Meanwhile, oil industry officials said that some of Carter's investment criticism was off the mark.

The president's reference to circus purchases was aimed at Gulf Oil Co., which says it held only a single discussion in early 1974 about buying Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey for its Florida land holdings. Gulf, which at that time had heavily invested in real estate, has since sold its land in favor of energy investments.

Carter also referred to timber lands and hotels. Exxon, however, has sold off its European hotel holdings and Sobio unloaded its interest in the Hospitality Inns chain, according to Nicholas Gal, a financial analyst for the American Petroleum Institute.

West Texas winds gust through Midland area

By RICHARD MASON and SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writers

West Texas winds — gusting to 69 mph — blew with a vengeance Wednesday, scattering dust and pushing their way into Midland conversations.

Confused neckties went in opposite directions around necks and dresses fluttered wildly. Hats, too, developed "lives" of their own, vaulting from heads as they sought freedom in winds which ranged from 35 to 50 mph most of the afternoon.

Building glass groaned from the pressure downtown and city workers blocked Wall Avenue between Colorado and Big Spring streets about 5 p.m. Wednesday because of the threat of glass falling from The First National Bank Building renovations.

While the barricades were supposed to come down by 8 p.m., an apparent oversight left them in place for the downtown morning rush hour today.

Only the wind whistled in Midland Wednesday.

Reactions to the breath-taking wind were varied.

An older woman glanced through the glass doors of The First National Bank Building downtown and shook her head with stoic resignation.

"It hasn't let up yet," she said. Ominously, the glass rattled back.

At the Midland Inn, two mechanics wrestled with the glass doors as they

County to begin rental subsidies

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

After more than a year of indecision and false starts, the Midland County Commissioners Court Wednesday made a commitment to begin a rental subsidy program in the unincorporated portions of Midland County.

The commissioners Monday had voted to apply for funding from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for rental subsidy, but still had a lot of questions Wednesday for Mary Teemley, HUD representative from Dallas.

That Monday vote was 2-0, with Commissioner Durward Wright abstaining and Republican Commissioner Win Brown, most vocal opponent on the court to the program, absent.

Wright complained that the county had begun action once before to start the program, but changes in HUD policy forced them to stop and start over.

"It seems like every time we get in a position to go, the rules change," said Wright.

Wednesday, the commissioners voted 3-0 (with Brown still absent) to contract with the Midland Housing Association to administer the 20 units for which the county will apply.

Ms. Teemley said once the rental subsidy application is received, the county's application for $230,000 in 1977 unallocated Community Development funds will be approved. That money is to be used for paying in low-income areas.

Under the rental subsidy program, said Ms. Teemley, the first step will be to approve an application by an individual to participate.

The basic requirement will be that the family income be no more than 80 percent of the median income level for the county. Other considerations include how many persons make up the household and such things as extra medical expenses.

Then, she said, the family will have to find a rental unit which qualifies for the program by meeting HUD standards for housing — to include having a rent not above that determined as the "fair market rent" for the area.

"You're not involved in finding the units for them," she explained to commissioners.

When the family moves in, HUD will pay the difference between the rent and 25 percent of the family income, she said.

Ms. Teemley claimed that HUD housing standards are less stringent than many city building codes, but are enough to assure "safe, decent, sanitary housing."

HUD will provide money to administer the program, but the exact amount, as well as what the "fair market rents" are, is subject to complicated computations by HUD.

If the program is started and not enough renters or units qualify to fill even the initial 20 units, the program likely will be canceled for Midland County, said Ms. Teemley, but "you will have met your obligation" for purposes of getting the Community Development funds.

Triskaidekaphobes beware

Friggaphobiacs also warned that first of 1979's double whammy is upon us

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans are superstitious about $2 bills. But some might even shun a $1 bill because it has 13 stars above the eagle's head, 13 arrows in one talon and an olive branch with 13 leaves in the other.

Such types are extreme triskaidekaphobes, people who fear the number 13. And they face a double whammy this year with Friday the 13th tomorrow and a second jar coming in July.

Friday fridies? They're friggaphobiacs, after the Norse goddess Frigge. On Friday, Eve tempted Adam, the great Biblical flood started, the Temple of Solomon fell and Christ was crucified, to name origins.

On Friday the 13th, triskaidekaphobia and friggaphobia combine to create the worst problem. The economy slows as businessmen shun deals, restaurant dining declines and even shopping and marrying are affected.

Operators of ocean liners hold ships until at least 12:01 a.m. Saturday following a Friday the 13th. That's to calm the superstitious, not because the H.M.S. Friday, whose construction was started on Friday, set off on its maiden voyage on a Friday and was never heard of again.

For fear of plain 13, airlines omit Chair No. 13 and real estate men the 13th floor in hotels and skyscrapers. House numbers in France skip from 12 to 14.

Back in the 1950s, the town of French Lick Springs, Ind., tried to help the cause by ruling that all black cats had to wear bells on Friday the 13th.

The day has some historic credits, including: Friday, June 13, 1498 — Columbus first set foot on the North American continent; Friday, Oct. 13, 1792 — construction began on the White House; Friday, Sept. 13, 1814 — "The Star Spangled Banner" was written.

And on a timely note, on Friday, Aug. 13, 1943, gasoline rationing was cut from four to three gallons a coupon.

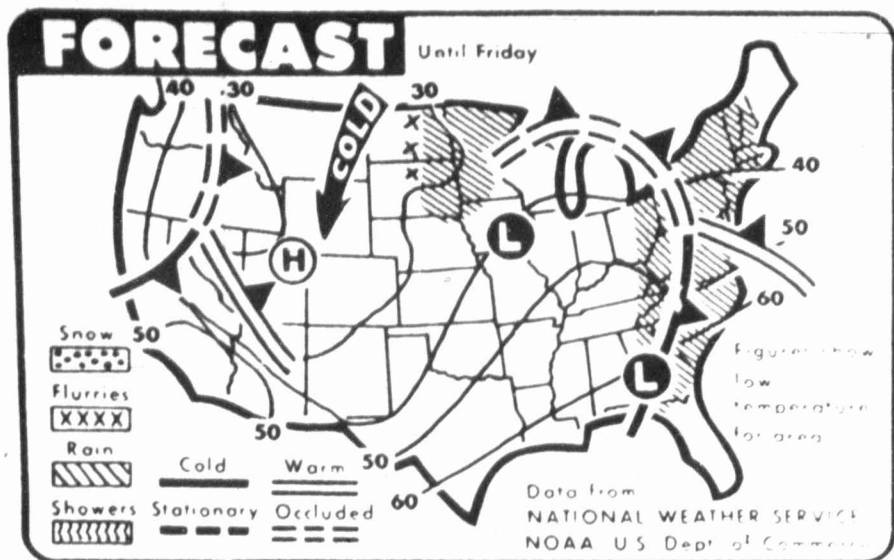

How to foil the whammy? Some methods used through the ages: Leave your hat on in elevators. Wink at white horses. Whistle while passing a graveyard. Don't stir coffee with your knife. Don't open an umbrella indoors and don't pick up safety pins on the street.

Babe Ruth always touched first base for luck while heading for the outfield on a Friday the 13th game. But voluminous sports statistics include no record of the Babe's batting average for those days.

Foes of superstition have organized to fight fear of 13. A group in London called the Thirteen Club made international news years ago with dinners at which thirteen were always present. Between courses, members smashed mirrors and spilled salt.

sought entry to the lobby. "Think we'll make it?" one asked as the other pulled against the door. "Only if it don't kill us first," his companion replied.

The day was not without its "refinements." At the colonnade under the Commercial Bank and Trust Building on Wall Street, a man with pointed boots and a dandy's hat strode without expression past other walkers who were struggling with the fitful gusts.

It seemed a sure bet his hat would go as he approached a corner that turned into the wind. But he was a man of experience. Without breaking stride, he rolled his head sideways into the wind and never lifted an arm to touch his hat. The pressure kept it in place.

Others had less luck. Midland city officials had reports of windows blown out and roofs torn off in some sections of the city, and a department store in Odessa lost a part of its roof.

The weather at midday today belied all the furor of Wednesday. Clear skies and moderate winds comprised the general area report.

And Friday should be even calmer still. Official forecast for Friday calls for clear skies and a high in the low 70s, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Today's "gusty" winds are expected to decrease to 10 to 15 mph by tonight.

In addition to the winds, Wednesday had slightly cooler temperatures with the recorded high only 66 degrees. Overnight low was 44. Record temperatures for the date are 95 degrees set in 1972 and 30 degrees set in 1957.

No rain is mentioned in the Friday forecast, so the monthly .01 total and annual 1.24 accumulation of rainfall seems likely to stand unchanged.

area by helicopter and estimated property damage at between $200 million and $300 million. He said he expects federal disaster aid for the storm-raked area.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, returned to his hometown of Wichita Falls and said, "I've seen the damage of hurricanes, a tornado, of American bombers over Japan, but I never have seen one equal to this in terms of damage."

More than 800 persons were injured by the twisters that hit "Tornado Alley," most of them in Wichita Falls.

Hospitals were filled to capacity as they treated about 500 persons. An additional 200 persons were treated for minor injuries at emergency aid stations.

An estimated 60 persons were hurt in each of the Vernon and Lawton, Okla., twisters.

Either they don't build 'em like they used to or Wednesday's wind gusts of nearly 70 mph caught this Midland car at exactly the wrong angle. The closed hood was wrenched back as high winds poured over Midland for most of the day. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos)

Teamsters officials lash out at inflation adviser Alfred Kahn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry Teamsters officials say President Carter's inflation adviser is encouraging a rank-and-file contract rejection by hailing the union's tentative agreement with the trucking industry as a victory for the president's elastic wage guidelines.

"This idiot out there is trying to shoot down our contract with his idiotic statements," union spokesman Bernard Henderson charged Wednesday after inflation adviser Alfred Kahn declared that the settlement meets Carter's 7 percent pay raise standard even though the union and industry estimated wage and benefit increases totaled more than 9 percent a year.

Kahn also said the increase in wages and fringe benefits in the new contract is "substantially less" on a percentage basis than in the last contract negotiated by the union.

That comment in particular three Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons after inflation adviser Alfred Kahn's statements, fearing a rank-and-file backlash that would send negotiators to the bargaining table once more in search of a settlement that, the next time around, would break the guidelines.

"It's as if he (Kahn) is deliberately trying to sabotage ratification," said Henderson, who called Kahn's comparisons between the new and old contracts "absolutely, totally incorrect."

A Kahn aide later acknowledged the new contract might provide more new money than the old pact. Henderson said it will take about four to six weeks to complete a ratification vote.

Meanwhile, the union and major trucking firms prepared to resume normal operations today for the first time since April 1, when the two sides became locked in a nationwide work stoppage over the contract dispute.

The two sides agreed to end an industry lockout of striking Teamsters after reaching tentative agreement on a new three-year contract late Tuesday, but did not complete details of a back-to-work agreement until Wednesday. About 500 major trucking companies and 235,000 Teamsters were affected by the dispute.

The 11-day shutdown, the longest in U.S. trucking history, had little impact on the economy except for the auto industry, forced to cut production and furlough nearly 100,000 workers due to shortages of parts normally delivered by truck.

Auto industry officials said they did not expect to be back to normal production until next week.

The administration, which has made the Teamsters negotiations a key test of Carter's wage increase guidelines, hailed the settlement Wednesday even as it admitted it had once again loosened the standard to accommodate the giant union, but hadn't told anybody.

The latest change, the administration disclosed, exempts contract increases that improve union retirees' pensions.

Both the Teamsters and the industry estimated that increases in wages, cost-of-living adjustments and fringe benefits under the new pact total about 30 percent over three years — or slightly more than 9 percent a year plus compounding.

But the administration, using a lower projected inflation rate to estimate future cost-of-living adjustments, says it calculates total increases at 27 percent — 8.3 percent a year.

After deducting 4.5 percent worth of contract costs that are exempt from the guidelines — such as increased payments to maintain the value of pension and health insurance benefits — the contract increases total 22.5 percent, or 7 percent a year, the administration explained.

Big Spring's city manager resigning to enter business

BIG SPRING — Harry Nagel, Big Spring's city manager for the past 7 1/2 years, is resigning his job to join his wife, Ruby, in a two-store business operation here.

"I'm tired of city management," Nagel said from his office this morning.

Nagel, 48, said his decision to leave the high-pressure job is "like losing a 10,000-pound load."

Nagel said he will be helping his wife operate two convenience stores.

The city manager said he will stay on the job until after the city run-off election April 28.

Nagel formally announced his intent to resign in a news conference Wednesday.

He said he had planned to make the move two years ago, but Webb Air Force Base here was under threat to close, which it later did, "and I was nervous about business falling off."

But Big Spring's economy picked up even after the base, a jet pilot training facility, was closed.

Nagel said he was so relaxed over his move that he came to work today without his coat and was considering "shucking" his tie.

Nagel moved to Big Spring in 1971 from Sulphur Springs, where he was city manager.

The Big Spring City Council already has discussed seeking a replacement, he said.

Nagel said his wife got into the convenience-store business in 1975 and opened a second store earlier this year. He said the business venture was planned to get him out of city management work.

Officials seek information on possible rabid dog case

Officials at the City-County Health Department today were trying to get in touch with two boys who shot a possibly rabid dog about one-half mile south of the city Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a county woman says her calls for help in the situation went unanswered.

"We're trying to contact them now," Jewell Smith, chief sanitarian for the health unit, said today.

Smith said the animal's head was retrieved and that the city was preparing to ship it to Austin today for examination.

While surrounding counties have experienced problems with rabies, Midland County has been free from rabies cases so far this year, Smith said last week.

A witness to the event Wednesday told sheriff's deputies that the dog "was foaming at the mouth and acting crazy."

Mrs. Estes Wilson of County Road 116S, about one-half mile south of Interstate 20 on Cotton Flat Road, said she returned home Wednesday afternoon with her granddaughter to find the dog, which had been in the neighborhood for about a week, foaming at the mouth and acting listless on her porch.

"It's possible the dog was choking on food, but who knows," she said.

Mrs. Wilson claimed no one would retrieve the animal despite calls to the Humane Society, the city of Midland's Animal Control Department and the City-County Health Department.

"We could not get anyone to come out," she said.

Finally, renters who live in back of her residence took the dog into a field and shot it, she said. Afterwards, Mrs. Wilson said she was called by the city's animal control office and asked to bring the animal into town for examination.

"No one wanted to take care of that dog," she said.

County commissioners are considering an ordinance that would require vaccination of animals outside the city limits. Currently the county does not have the power to enforce animal control.

Communication lines remain congested

As Wichita Falls and Vernon began struggling to establish normalcy Wednesday night and today after being struck by tornadoes Tuesday, word began filtering back to concerned relatives and friends in Midland.

As more telephone lines were opened, some Midlanders managed to get through to those areas, but others still found an open line an illusive goal.

"It's very congested. We're still asking customers not to try over and over and over to call unless it is a real emergency," said a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. spokesman today, adding "definite progress is being made."

As for people checking on safety of relatives, "I'd consider that an emergency," she said.

Ham radio operators coordinating with the Red Cross worked until the early hours of today passing along some 144 requests from Midlanders anxious about the safety of relatives in the tornado-devastated north Texas area, said Ray Trumbull, Midland Red Cross chapter manager.

Answers to the request were coming in slowly today, he said.

adding that the dusk-to-dawn curfew in Wichita Falls kept ham operators there from going to check on individuals during the night.

Trumbull said the Red Cross this afternoon would begin again to accept requests to check on relatives in the affected areas, for anyone who had not been able to get word through regular communications channels.

Meanwhile, said Trumbull, "everything is under control" in the damaged areas, with sufficient food and medical supplies (including blood for transfusions) being provided from areas closer than Midland.

"At this stage, the only thing we can do in Midland is send financial aid," he said.

Midland Salvation Army Capt. Robert Vincent is in Wichita Falls with the agency's disaster van.

"We're still waiting to hear from him, so we don't know what he needs," said a spokesman for the Midland office today.

Midland Memorial Hospital officials, as well as officials from the Midland Department of Public Safety office, said they had received no requests for aid, but were willing to respond if asked.

Talmadge admits several rules violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge has admitted several violations of Senate rules in an agreement worked out with the Senate ethics committee, but he will continue to fight major allegations of financial misconduct "still hotly in dispute," his attorney says.

James Hamilton, Talmadge's lawyer, revealed the agreement — though no details — Wednesday, 12 days before the Georgia Democrat is to face a committee "trial" on allegations of breaking Senate rules governing financial dealings.

Hamilton did not say which of the five committee accusations Talmadge was admitting, but The Atlanta Constitution, quoting unnamed committee sources, listed these three:

—That false claims were made about campaign expenditures and receipts.

—That taxes on gifts of stock to Talmadge's former wife Betty were not reported.

—That gifts and property were not reported to the secretary of the Senate.

No agreement was reached on allegations that campaign contributions were converted to Talmadge's own use and that expense vouchers were submitted to the Senate for money not actually spent by Talmadge, the newspaper said.

The accusations concern possible violations of Senate rules, not federal laws.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, the committee chairman, said he hoped for a vote in about a week on two Talmadge motions which could have a big impact on the way the committee conducts its hearing.

One motion seeks to exclude evidence taken by Talmadge's chief accuser, former administrative assistant Daniel Minchew, when he left Talmadge's office. If granted, it could leave Minchew without documentation to back up his version of why he opened a secret bank account that was the repository for unreported campaign contributions and for improperly obtained Senate expense accounts.

The other motion seeks to require the committee to adopt a strong burden-of-proof standard, a move designed to make it harder for the committee to find the Georgia senator guilty of any wrongdoing.

Comments made during oral arguments Wednesday indicated at least three of the six committee members have doubts that the motions should be granted.

Those comments came after Talmadge lawyer Hamilton said that to allow use of evidence Minchew took without Talmadge's consent "would condone rummaging through senators' files and disrupt the Senate's business."

He noted that federal rules of evidence prohibit the introduction of stolen documents.

But Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said he found it hard to "see how theft could be applied to retention of records... that had been received by that person."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., agreed with Talmadge's attorneys that Minchew's conduct in taking the documents was questionable. But he asked why the committee should exclude evidence taken from Talmadge's office when it could use the

Odessa man listed as stable after 'family feud' shooting

ODESSA — An Odessa man was listed as being in stable condition early today after being shot four times on a downtown street here about 8:40 a.m. Wednesday, police officials said.

The wounded man, Leroy Flores Alaniz, 20, drove himself to the police station after the shooting, police said.

From there, he was taken to Medical Center Hospital.

Raul N. Franco, 21, of Odessa, the brother-in-law of Alaniz, was arrested at his home about 20 minutes later.

He was charged with attempted murder before Peace Justice Manuel Valles.

Franco remained in Odessa City Jail this morning in lieu of $5,000 bond, officials noted.

Police said the incident was the result of a "longtime family feud."

The shooting reportedly came after Alaniz's car was rammed by another car.

Alaniz was shot in the abdomen, right leg, groin and right shoulder with a .22-caliber pistol, according to police reports.

Police said they had confiscated a gun.

Ship lost two days

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Coast Guard has been unable to find the missing Pride of Baltimore, a 129-foot sailing ship two days overdue with 12 persons aboard on a trip from Wilmington, N.C., to Norfolk, Va.

Two C130 Coast Guard planes Wednesday searched an area about 300 miles from Cape Henry to Wilmington and about 30 miles wide for the ship, said Fred Maldonado, a Coast Guard spokesman.

The Coast Guard resumed the aerial search today.

Maldonado noted that Baltimore officials didn't seem concerned that the vessel, the city's goodwill ambassador built for the Bicentennial, was overdue, but he said the search and efforts to raise the Pride by radio would continue.

"We have to satisfy ourselves, and the decision has been made that we're going to make further attempts to locate the vessel," Maldonado said.

He said the ship, a replica of the old Baltimore clippers built during the 1700s, has only an 85-horsepower engine. "It's completely governed by the winds," Maldonado said.

Boy clings to life in river ordeal

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — For 12 hours, eight-year-old Willie Jenkins clung to a cushion in the alligator-infested Waccissa River and struggled to remember his grandfather's advice.

"His Poppy had told him before that if anything ever happened, to always hold on to a life preserver until help came," said Willie's uncle, Claude Watson.

Willie and his grandfather, Robert "Poppy" Watson tumbled into the water Monday night when their fishing boat overturned. The 56-year-old Watson drowned in the accident.

Jefferson County Sheriff James Scott said Watson and his wife, Eloise, and their grandson camped Monday night near the Waccissa River, where Watson and Willie went fishing for catfish.

Mrs. Watson reported the two missing Tuesday morning, police said and Willie was rescued about 30 minutes later, ending a 12-hour ordeal.

Kenneth D. Pyle

Services for Kenneth D. Pyle, 30, of 713 W. Dormand Ave. will be held 10 a.m. Saturday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home, with Betty Mendizola of the Church of Religious Science officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Pyle died Tuesday from injuries received in a car accident north of Midland.

He was born Dec. 8, 1948, in Houston and raised in Denver, Colo. An air traffic controller for the U.S. Air Force, he received his discharge in 1971. He attended Sterling Junior College in Sterling, Colo., and received a degree in accounting in 1976 from Angelo State University. Pyle was employed as an accountant with Elmer Fox, Westheimer and Co., in Midland.

Survivors include his wife, Tanya; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Pyle of Denver, Colo.; three sisters, Mrs. Evie Whitted, Patti Roberts and Mrs. Tracy Allen, all of Denver, Colo., and a brother, Bob Norwood of Abilene.

A pending change in ownership of stations KMOM TV, Channel 9, and KWAB TV, Channel 4, was announced Wednesday.

An agreement for the sale of the two stations has been reached between Grayson Enterprises Inc., present owner of the facilities, and Silver Star Communications.

Principal owners of Silver Star Communications include John Robert Lee, Larry Reed, Wayne Embrey, Daniel Neviasser and Robert Dudley.

The actual application for transfer of ownership will be filed within the next 60 days, and approval of the Federal Communications Commission for the sale to Silver Star Communications is expected shortly thereafter, said W.F. deTournillon, executive vice president of Grayson Enterprises, Inc.

Absolutely no change in personnel is planned by Silver Star Communications, spokesmen announced.

"Silver Star Communications feels privileged to acquire KMOM TV,

Voters had their say

Congratulations and all best wishes are in order for the victorious candidates in last Saturday's city council, school board and hospital district elections.

The voter turnout was exceptionally heavy, something for which all Midlanders will be proud. Several of the races waxed very warm, almost to the point of boiling, but the campaigning was conducted on a high level, something else for which citizens may be proud.

Carroll M. Thomas and Doris Howbert were the victors in their respective city council campaigns, and Gordon Marcum II was unopposed in his re-election bid. So, the council membership continues unchanged for the coming year.

In the Midland Independent School District balloting, Joyce Sherrod and Parker Humes were the winners in their respective races, while incumbent Ed Runyan faces a runoff for his Place 6 post against Alice M. Greer. Humes and Sherrod are new members of the board.

Ed Magruder, Dr. Henrie Mast and Scott Shelton were elected directors of the Midland County Hospital District. Mast and Shelton are new members of the board.

Midlanders also owe a vote of thanks to the non-victorious candidates for offering themselves for public service on the city council and on the school and hospital boards. The show of interest in government at the local level is appreciated and encouraging. It is the American way.

The item on the school ballot which attracted unusual voter interest was the non-binding referendum on Plan O, the controversial proposal to consolidate the city's two high schools.

The voters expressed themselves clearly on the subject, defeating the proposal 5,243 to 1,041.

That's the way the balloting went overall, and, following the April 28 runoff election, the city, school and hospital units once again can, and hopefully will, settle down to their respective duties in serving the community and its citizens to the very best of their abilities.

Forward, Midland!

Deliberate juggling

Published reports that President Carter's top campaign aides deliberately juggled financial statements to conceal operating deficits during the 1976 presidential primaries raise three serious questions.

First, one is bound to wonder how the presumed watchdogs at the Federal Elections Commission can justify their interpretation that the Carter campaign's consistently false interim reports did not violate federal law simply because the financial statements were amended en masse six days after Mr. Carter was elected. The law in question makes allowances for the hurried, incomplete compilations necessitated by monthly campaign reporting. But deliberate and systematic falsification is, and ought to be, prohibited.

Second, one wonders how this questionable bookkeeping and the artificially rosy political perceptions it was apparently meant to portray square with the lofty, even self-righteous, moral tone candidate Carter sought to project.

Finally, does not the role of Robert J. Lipshultz, Mr. Carter's campaign treasurer and now counsel to the president, in maintaining what appears to have been a dual set of books cast serious doubt on his fitness to serve in the White House?

Notwithstanding the timidity of the Federal Elections Commission, it would appear that the Department of Justice should review the Carter campaign's accounting procedures.

It seems also that Mr. Lipshultz and the president himself are obliged to offer explanations more credible than the sweeping disclaimers issued of late by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell in response to other questions about the financing of Mr. Carter's presidential quest.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Judge Pratt's pro-FBI bias told

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Federal judges are appointed for life to guarantee their independence. For this reason, it is essential that they be both honest and unbiased.

We have seen disturbing evidence that U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt of Washington, D.C., tried to cover up an impropriety on the bench, then apparently lied to FBI agents about the incident, and finally tried to get the investigation called off by reminding the G-men that as a judge he has been "very pro-government and especially pro-FBI."

If Judge Pratt was exaggerating his boasted bias to influence the agents, it would be bad enough. Attempting to block an FBI investigation constitutes obstruction of justice.

But if Pratt told the truth about his pro-government attitude on the bench, the implications are even more serious. It would mean that anyone who has appeared before Pratt since his appointment in 1968 was at a crippling disadvantage if the case involved a federal agency.

Our sources tell us Pratt wasn't kidding about his pro-government prejudice. This may explain the Justice Department's reluctance to pursue the investigation of Pratt.

By coincidence, we were involved in the original indiscretion that led to Pratt's more serious misconduct. Crack Washington private detective Richard Bast appeared in Pratt's courtroom on Jan. 30, 1978, and the judge remarked that "there's a rumor" Bast's Information Acquisition Corp. was "the creature of Mr. Jack Anderson."

Bast truthfully denied the rumor, and Pratt, belatedly realizing the impropriety of spreading gossip from the bench, ordered the entire colloquy deleted from the court record. He did this without consulting the attorneys in the case, as is required by law.

Not long afterward, Pratt's secretary and office manager, Kathleen McTiernan, allegedly ordered court reporter Dennis Bossard to destroy his stenographic tape of the judge's improper remarks. A conspiracy to destroy court records is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Bossard indignantly refused McTiernan's order; instead, he wrote a memo about the incident minutes after she left. "She told me to tear up my notes," the memo stated. "When I told her I wouldn't do that, she told me to lie and say I didn't take it down."

Informed of the situation by Bast, the FBI decided to investigate the judge and his secretary. Justice Department officials — evidently leery of setting the FBI loose on a federal judge and one of their favorites, at that — stalled the investigation for several days.

The FBI agents persisted. Because of the clear possibility of a criminal violation, the Justice Department finally gave a reluctant go-ahead. On Feb. 14, 1978, two agents — ac-

ART BUCHWALD Art insists his tennis comes first, regardless

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — In Margaret Trudeau's discreet book, "Beyond Reason," she reveals that she fell in love with another man when she visited New York with her husband, Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, to attend the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Without naming the person, she describes him as a Southern gentleman, who was tremendously handsome, charming, a terrific dancer and a passionate person.

Since I was at the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis party that year, I feel I owe it to the people of Canada to issue an unequivocal denial that I was the chap who played a role in breaking up the Trudeau marriage.

It's true that Margaret and I did dance that evening and, while she may have been smitten with my savoir-faire, I did nothing to encourage her to think there was the slightest chance of our having a more intimate relationship. Friends who know about my personal indiscretions will testify that I have never made a pass at the wife of a head of state in all the years I have been playing tennis.

There are many reasons for this. One is that I know how easy it is for a woman who has to attend one official function after another to fall hopelessly in love with somebody like myself. But I am also aware that she is not falling in love with me but with my tremendous serve and my defensive lob.

It's hard for many women to believe that off the court I am just like anybody else, and while they fantasize about my vicious backhand and unbelievable drop shots, I still put on my sneakers one foot at a time.

It's true that while we tangoed Margaret did reveal to me that all was not going well in Ottawa between her and Pierre. But I thought she was talking about tennis. Many women who play tennis find their husbands are not up to the game, and they tend to look for happiness in someone with a faultless overhead.

A smart player will not be taken in by this flirtation. The stakes are too high. If I ever decided to have a fling with the wife of a head of state, it could be so time-consuming that I might easily let my volley shots go to pot.

Many people have asked me, "Well, if you weren't the person at the RFK party, then who was it?"

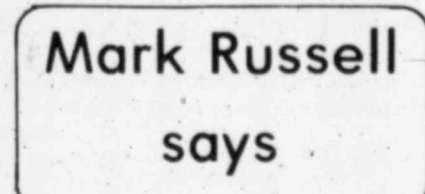

It's hard for me to say. There were at least 200 people at the party, 50 of whom could fit the description. The Southern gentleman part of it is a red herring, because most Canadians think anything below the Canadian border is south. Also, Margaret could be disguising the man with whom she fell so madly in love. For all I know it might have been Buddy Hackett or Rosie Grier or Howard Cosell.

I do recall that during one fox trot Margaret asked me, "Who is that beautiful senator sitting with Ethel Kennedy?"

"That's Jack Javits of New York," I told her. Yet when I think back on it, I don't believe Jack and Margaret said two words to each other all night.

The revelations in Mrs. Trudeau's book came as a surprise to all of us who have had anything to do with the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Because the party precedes the tournament and is held on a Friday evening, Ethel Kennedy has a strict rule that anyone playing in her tournament has to be in bed with lights out by midnight.

I can understand why many people would suspect that I was the great love in Margaret's life, as it seems likely that she would fall for the top-seeded celebrity in the tournament. But anyone who knows how much I love tennis will tell you that if I have the choice of a romance with the wife of the Prime Minister of Canada or being in top physical shape to play the next day, I will always be asleep by 11 o'clock.

Mark Russell says

Time magazine reported that psychiatry itself is suffering from depression. This reminded me of a dentist I knew who couldn't eat corn on the cob.

More people are getting into quickie, trendy therapies instead of established psychiatry. It's difficult for a doctor charging $60 an hour to compete with an ad that says, "Kick that annoying homicidal maniac habit on your lunch break."

Pop-therapy is all around us. Psychiatry's days were numbered the moment somebody invented the smile button.

Drugs for every mood are being discovered daily. Eventually, everyone's behavior in America will be perfectly regulated. By then we all will have the personalities of TV game show hosts.

So pity the psychiatrist. He might have to close up shop because depression is getting harder to come by. And you know why? Too many of us are having a nice day.

BIBLE VERSE

"He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." — Luke 11:23.

NICK THIMMESCH

Time to get facts on accident and blame the guilty

WASHINGTON — It is time to analyze what happened at the nuclear plant on Three Mile Island, question those responsible, and frame new rules to prevent such accidents in the future. The nation needs nuclear power, but wants more confidence in it. A thorough investigation is the best deterrent to that gathering claque of demagogues yelling hysterically on the nuclear issue.

Nick Thimmesch

Several elements in the Three Mile Island picture deserve intense scrutiny. The first has to do with bucks. Did Metropolitan Edison Co. rush the nuclear plant into operation in the last hours of 1978 to save $40 million in taxes and also to qualify for an increase in electricity rates?

If it did, certainly the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) was running alongside this sprint, and had not only the duty but ample opportunity to blow the whistle, if indeed it deserved blowing. The plant didn't have the best record in 1978. It was shut down 71 percent of the time, and experienced problems similar to those which led to the worst accident in the history of commercial nuclear operations.

Next is the matter of Metropolitan Edison closing three auxiliary cooling pumps for maintenance for two weeks or longer before the accident — a clear violation of NRC regulations. "There would have been an entirely different outcome if they had been operational, as they should have been," observed Harold R. Denton, NRC's director of nuclear reactor regulation.

Once the cooling pumps story is verified by testimony, hell should be raised and severe penalties administered. But what to do about the subsequent series of fouled operating procedures?

They are: failing to react correctly to a stuck relief valve, shutting off pumps driving the emergency cooling system, misreading gauges, pumping contaminated water into an auxiliary building not designed to hold it, thus spewing gases into the atmosphere.

So there's plenty to dig into, and we must hear the entire story from: Walter M. Creitz, president of Metropolitan Edison; G.P. Miller, superintendent of the Three Mile Island station; Dr. Joseph M. Hendrie, NRC's chairman; Harold R. Denton; and Boyce H. Grier, director of the King of Prussia NRC regional office which monitors the Three Mile Island facility.

Many others should also be summoned by the NRC for its investigation, scheduled to be conducted privately, but with its findings made public.

At least two senators are also probing the nuclear question: Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.), chairman of the subcommittee on nuclear regulation, is holding hearings, and Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) is taking elements of his subcommittee on health and scientific research to Utah to study effects of radiation caused by atomic testing by the military a generation ago.

No industry in the Republic deserves closer regulation than nuclear energy, and no industry should be called on for stricter accounting and penalties than nuclear.

The present civil law provides for fines of $5,000 on nuclear plants which violate NRC regulations, with no more than $25,000 in fines allowed in one month. The NRC asked Congress last month to legislate a $100,000 fine for each single-violation penalty, and to put no limit on the amount of fines levied in one month.

There is also a criminal penalty of $5,000 and/or two years in prison for any willful violation of an NRC order, but it is difficult to get a conviction on a criminal count.

President Carter has asked that NRC inspectors be permanently assigned to each nuclear plant — an expense he justifies even at a time when budget trimming is in order. Meat packing houses have federal inspectors on the premises, and one constant challenge is to keep the foremen from getting too cozy with the inspectors.

Anyway, despite all the howls on television and radio about Three Mile Island, rationality will have its day. There was no meltdown or explosion. No one was killed or injured in this accident. There was no radioactive cloud of dust over the area — as Jack Anderson reported.

The milk, water and food in the area do not contain dangerous levels of radiation as a consequence of the accident. The latest NRC reading is that people living in the area received an accumulation of 80 millirems of radiation from the accident, less than half what they would get in a so-called normal year.

Before Jimmy Carter took his wife to the plant during the worst of it, NRC officials double- and triple-checked the radiation levels to make sure we wouldn't wind up with a President who glowed in the dark. He doesn't and won't. He was exposed to six-tenths of one millirem going in and 1.3 millirems per hour going out, so altogether he got about one millirem — an infinitesimal amount.

In his prepared message on energy, Carter was sensible enough to list "improved, safe, advanced nuclear technologies, including breeders," as one of "three major candidates for the production of electricity." He also urged that "the nation respond with care and reason to this accident, recognizing that 13 percent of our nation's electricity comes from nuclear power."

We are fortunate that the President is rational and not demagogic about nuclear power.

Downburst: Avalanche of air 'deadly'

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly documented dangers may be lurking for aircraft with the arrival of summer.

These are deadly avalanches of air that roar straight down at 50 to 60 mph, according to a well-known atmospheric scientist.

Termed "downbursts" by Dr. T. Theodore Fujita of the University of Chicago, these descending air waves have leveled cornfields, damaged forests, caused a controversy among meteorologists and may have led to major airplane crashes.

While vertical drafts and wind shears have been documented for many years, Fujita reports he has recorded them in greater numbers than had been known previously. He developed the term downburst for the most intense of these air flows, defining this as wind moving downward at least 12 feet per second.

Fujita, in a National Science Foundation research project, detected 10 downbursts in the Chicago area in a 40-day period last summer.

Downbursts are small, he said, three to five miles in diameter, and last only 10 to 15 minutes. But flying into one can spell disaster.

"In my view the season for downbursts is summer. Early summer through September seem to be the downburst months. The storms are not as big as tornadoes, and some pilots may think they can fly through safely, so I just want to say, 'beware,'" Fujita commented.

Playboy sued for libel

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Playboy Enterprises, Inc., publishers of Playboy magazine, is being sued for $350,000 by a former U.S. customs agent along the Texas-Mexico border.

The libel suit claims the magazine's February issue said Thelma Meyers Torres was convicted of planting marijuana in cars crossing the border.

Although the article does not name the woman, the suit states, Mrs. Torres was the only female ever to be employed as an agent there.

Fujita developed his theory of downbursts several years ago and has appeared as a witness in National Transportation Safety Board investigations of aircraft accidents. His work is praised by some meteorologists and other experts but questioned by others.

Ed Slattery, a spokesman for the transportation safety board, said of Fujita: "He first proposed this theory at a hearing in the investigation of a Braniff plane that had its tail torn off at the edge of a thunderstorm. The theory behind it seems quite sound."

Slattery noted that he doubted a downburst played a part in the sudden dive of a TWA New York-Minneapolis jetliner over the Midwest last week because there were no storms in the area. The craft pulled out of the dive at the last minute.

Fujita says downbursts develop in a thunderstorm on a summer day when warm air begins to rise through a cloud. Because of momentum, this air overshoots the top of the cloud, creating a dome in the upper air.

It is very cold at this level and the cooled air then begins to drop, collapsing the dome of the cloud and rushing back to the ground, where the stream of air bursts outward, Fujita says.

"This (research) is one of the few big, exciting new things that's happened in severe weather. His work is very convincing," said Vince Oliver of the National Environmental Satellite Service.

"It's a beautiful example of putting together the evidence and coming up with a conclusion different from what we had thought before. I am still unsure about what produces the downburst, but I am 100 percent with him on what is actually happening," Oliver added.

"In my view the season for downbursts is summer. Early summer through September seem to be the downburst months. The storms are not as big as tornadoes, and some pilots may think they can fly through safely, so I just want to say, 'beware.'"

Allen Pearson of the National Severe Storm Forecast Center in Kansas City said he believes Fujita has "demonstrated one of the hazards of turbulent air around a thunderstorm, and in an average year we get more wind damage from a thunderstorm than we do tornadoes."

Less impressed, however, was Edwin Kessler, director of the National Severe Storms Laboratory in Norman, Okla.

"Dr. Fujita has done some good work, but there are some areas here where I definitely disagree with him. One point I know I disagree with... is that the downburst originates at the top of the cloud and that the air from the top goes all the way down to the ground," Kessler said.

Dr. John McCarthy of the University of Oklahoma said he has found little evidence of downbursts. "That is not to say these don't exist, but we have not been particularly successful in finding them here."

McCarthy said he and others have been analyzing Fujita's theories for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and feel the crashes he studied could have been caused by horizontal as easily as vertical winds. But Fujita noted that besides the downward winds, wind rushing from the center of the burst turn into cross, head or tail winds that could be hazardous to aircraft.

Fujita's study focused on crashes in New York City and Denver in 1975 and Philadelphia in 1976.

In the Denver crash,

Fujita said, a strong tailwind caused a loss of airspeed and the plane lost its lifting ability and simply sank to the ground. In New York, the plane lost speed suddenly, then flew into the downburst's center, which Fujita said caused a wing to strike landing lights on the ground. The Philadelphia plane also flew into the center of the burst and crashed on the runway, he said.

Because of the small size and short duration of these bursts they are rarely noted on radar and most aircraft miss them, he said. In addition, most aircraft avoid taking off and landing — the most vulnerable maneuvers — during thunderstorms.

"Very often there is a close interaction between tornadoes and downbursts, and a downburst can even change the path of a tornado," Fujita said. "It's even possible for a strong downburst to wipe out a tornado or to add intensity to one."

Westview Estates' country life becoming increasingly urbanized

WESTVIEW ESTATES — The telephone rang. It was a long-distance call from an old friend now living in Massachusetts.

"Nothing's changed down here," Elaine Crawford said from the comfort of her upright chair across the counter. "It's all the same." A Western novel, "Six Guns South," was still propped in front of her. She reads a lot between rings of the cash register and telephone.

"People do change, Mary," Mrs. Crawford told her friend, Mary Brown, who returned to the Northeast after her marriage went awry about two years ago.

THE CHAT was cozy and loving, but not overly sentimental.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Crawford were chatting chums out in this community, where Mrs. Crawford runs the country store. The place is about five miles north of Midland Regional Airport and 11 miles northwest of downtown Midland.

"It's been dry," Mrs. Crawford said, as the chat turned to the weather, which interested Mrs. Brown. She lived in this niche of West Texas for a couple of years.

"We need some rain. If it did rain, the flowers would break out in blooms."

"The community has changed," Mrs. Crawford said. "...People are moving in."

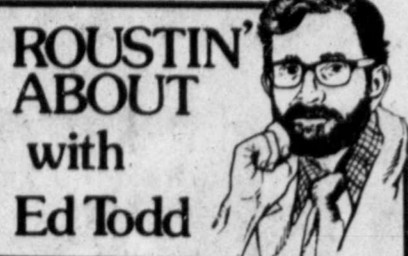

Instead of 35 households, maybe 50 live out here now.

INCREASINGLY, families are leaving the city — both Midland and Odessa — and are driving stakes in this country setting which, more and more, is taking on urban qualities.

Neighbors are next door and across the road, rather than a hoot and a holler away. The simple life takes on complexity.

Conversation drifted from gardening to fuel prices to the wind, sand and dust and, finally, to shooting rattlesnakes.

"I was more scared of the gun than

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

I was of the rattler," Mrs. Crawford said.

Gasoline was selling at 80 cents a gallon or more in the Northeast, Mrs. Brown told her.

"We pay 64.9," Mrs. Crawford said. (But, it's gone up a nickel in a week's time.)

The chat was ending.

"I appreciate your calling," Mrs. Crawford told her friend, "and you take care of yourself."

She hung up the phone and continued with her business of sitting.

Mrs. Crawford was wearing a copper bracelet, made from twisted wire, on her right wrist.

FOLKLORE SAYS wearing copper rid the body of pain surer than aspirin.

"John Wayne believes in it, so why shouldn't we?" she asked.

A friend gave the copper bracelet to her, so she could sample its healing powers.

"My arm would go to sleep at night and ache, ache, ache," Mrs. Crawford said.

"I don't know if it does any good or not, but I haven't had any trouble since," she said.

Gerald Morris, 14, rode up on his noisy dirt motorbike, cut the engine just outside the store and came in to get a few items.

He has pretty well recovered from burns to the arm and leg he suffered last winter when gasoline he was pouring into the bike's tank ignited.

"I'm careful now" he said.

He hung around the store a while longer.

PRESENTLY, Mrs. Crawford's spouse, Bill, drove up. He had driven into town to pick up some stock for the store.

Crawford, a electronics technician at the downtown Midland post office, has wide interests — from history to flying to history. He'll talk — and ramble — about anything he has an inkling of knowledge about, and make it interesting.

He spoke of Horsehead Crossing on the Pecos River and of Maximilian's gold. He dwelt on a bivouac area, south of Texas, where cavalrymen riding from Fort Concho to Fort Stockton and other points west in the late 1880s would make camp.

"A lot of people are terribly surprised that there's so much history out here," Crawford said.

HE SETTLED down in his rocking chair just across the counter from the wife. A shelf of used paperback books was to his right. They're 15 cents each or two for a quarter. The Crawfords do a lot of reading out here.

"It's kind of everybody for himself," he figured.

"It's country living, really. You can see how quiet it. It's so much quieter than town. You don't have what you call 'through traffic.'"

Outside the store, up the dusty road and past a dog-leg turn are some mobile homes and spaces for many more.

The country is becoming somewhat urbanized.

"I was raised in the country," said Jimmy Parker, a truck driver, who fled the city — Odessa, in his case — and moved out here with his family.

"And this is as close to country living as you can get without being on the farm. I feel like I can breathe easier."

Elaine Crawford, top, runs Mrs. Crawford's Country Store in Westview Estates' country setting, which is getting "urbanized" with city folks.

Carter names panel to study nuke accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, noting that the world will be watching its work, has appointed an 11-member commission to study the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor.

Appointing members who include a resident of Middletown, Pa. — site of the stricken nuclear power plant — a college president, an environmentalist and several scientists, Carter said Wednesday:

"It is essential that we learn the causes of this accident and make sure that the safety of our citizens is never again endangered in this way.

"The eyes of the nation, and indeed of the entire world, will be on this commission."

The panel's work is expected to cost the government $1 million, according to Jack Watson, Carter's assistant who headed an administration task force on the accident, considered the worst in the history of commercial nuclear energy. Radiation — apparently in small amounts — was leaked over a period of several days, and officials feared more would be released before the reactor was cooled down.

Carter instructed the new commission to "find out what happened at Three Mile Island ... assess how the accident could have been prevented ... review how the government and others responded and ... make recommendations to enable us to prevent any future nuclear accidents."

John G. Kemeny, president of Dartmouth College and a mathematician who worked on the nation's first atomic bomb, was named chairman.

Another member is Ann Trunk, a Middletown woman who stayed home with her six children during the problems at Three Mile Island.

She said she felt she was picked for the panel because "they thought I could represent Middletown and people's feelings."

"I want to hear the facts; I'm going there to learn," she said. "I'll make up my mind later on."

Named to the panel, in addition to Kemeny and Mrs. Trunk, were: Gov. Bruce E. Babbitt of Arizona; Patrick E. Haggerty, retired president of Texas Instruments Inc.; Paul A. Marks, a Columbia University biochemist and physician; Cora B. Marrett, a University of Wisconsin sociology professor and Lloyd McBride, president of the United Steelworkers union.

Also, Harry C. McPherson Jr., who was an aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson; Russell Peterson, former chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality; Thomas Pigford, chairman of the University of California's nuclear engineering department, and Theodore B. Taylor, a Princeton University professor of aerospace and mechanical science.

Safety rules slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, spurred by the lessons of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident, is issuing new safety directives to similar plants throughout the nation.

The NRC said Wednesday that the directives were expected today. But it did not say what they would entail or how many plants would be directly affected.

Under new scrutiny, it was known, are nearly half the nation's nuclear plants, as well as some that were given new orders earlier.

The NRC did say it "is not contemplating recommending any new reactor shutdown at this time."

Shortly after last month's Pennsylvania accident, directives were sent to operators of eight "pressurized water reactors" similar to the stricken Three Mile Island plant and built by the same firm, Babcock & Wilcox.

On Wednesday, NRC staff members met with representatives of Westinghouse Corp. and Combustion Engineering Corp., designers of the 34 other pressurized water reactors in the United States, to discuss the significance of the accident for their plants.

The NRC staff, in a "preliminary notification" to the five-member commission, said the talks were held "so that further appropriate short-term corrective actions can be developed and implemented."

The notification said the staff was still reviewing these issues, but "it has been concluded that further actions should be considered on a priority basis for all light water power reactor facilities."

That phrase seemed to forecast new safety action for all but one of the nation's 72 licensed nuclear power plants.

But NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said later that the statement was meant to refer to only the 43 pressurized water reactors.

The 28 other "light water facilities" are boiling water reactors, which do not have the high-pressure cooling system in use at Three Mile Island.

One commercially licensed nuclear power plant, the Fort Saint Vrain plant at Platteville, Colo., is cooled by gas, not water.

The NRC notification pointed out that some Westinghouse plants have instruments that could, in some circumstances, fail to start an emergency cooling system automatically as they should, or could mislead plant operators into taking the wrong actions, as may have happened at Three Mile Island.

The NRC noted that Westinghouse itself advised operators of its plants not to rely on the automatic operation of these instruments and to start the emergency cooling system manually if pressure in the main cooling system drops too low.

John Taylor, Westinghouse vice president for the water reactor division, said in an interview that the instructions have been standard operating procedure for a long time.

But he added that Westinghouse was calling the operators' attention to the instructions because of the Three Mile Island accident.

Taylor said he did not know how many plants had the instrument arrangement, but he believed the warning applied to all, or almost all, the Westinghouse-designed pressurized water reactors.

A plant operator, watching the pressure indicator, should have about 20 minutes to realize a problem might be developing and to start the emergency cooling system manually to prevent damage to the reactor core, he said.

When the Three Mile Island Unit 2 suffered equipment failures March 28, the reactor shut itself down and the emergency cooling system came on automatically.

Art of China on exhibition in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH — Paintings and calligraphy by two dozen outstanding Chinese artists make up a new exhibition opening April 17 at the Kimbell Art Museum of Fort Worth.

The paintings from the Arthur M. Sackler collection, will remain at the Kimbell through June 3, to be on view to the public weekdays and Sundays. Admission is free.

The nucleus of the exhibition is a group of important paintings and calligraphy by Tao-chi, one of the leading painters of the early Ch'ing dynasty.

The works by Tao-chi to be exhibited here comprise the largest body of authenticated works by that 17th Century master. There are seven important handscrolls and hanging scrolls, along with eight albums, ranging from an early album dated 1677-78 to a major album of 12 landscapes dated 1707.

The 15 Tao-chi works in the show demonstrate the full stylistic range of the artist's landscape, figure, flower and fruit painting, as well as the range of his calligraphy.

Subtleties of connoisseurship in Chinese painting are illustrated in the exhibition by the pairing of Tao-chi originals with different kinds of copies.

A part of a painter's training in China was the time-honored practice of copying or imitating earlier masterworks, and there is a traditional reverence for past masters.

This has resulted in the many copies made of works by master painters. Tracings and freehand copies of works by Tao-chi, as well as identified forgeries, were purposefully acquired for the Sackler collection.

These enable the serious viewer to define the personal quality of the master and his coloristic style. The problems of attribution and authentication facing scholars and connoisseurs of Chinese painting are also made clear.

Dr. Arthur M. Sackler of New York began his remarkable collection of Chinese paintings and calligraphy in the 1960s, and most of the works were acquired under the guidance of Dr. Wen Fong, chairman of the art and archaeology department of Princeton University.

Dr. Fong also has served as a special consultant for far Eastern affairs at the Metropolitan Museum in New York City.

'Real People' doesn't fit molds

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the popular complaints about commercial television is that so many TV shows look alike, as if produced on a videotape assembly line and stamped "ABC," "NBC" and "CBS" for billing purposes.

Producer George Schlatter has, and has given the matter some thought. "One of the reasons television programming comes out so similar, so homogenized," he says, "is because to get a show on the air, you have to be able to describe it in one sentence."

George Schlatter, though, is partial to television that requires two or three sentences by way of explanation. Sometimes a paragraph. Until he commits some really spectacular crime or runs for president, Schlatter will be remembered as the creator-producer of "Laugh In." Can you describe "Laugh In" in a sentence?

Now comes a new Schlatter production, one that defies simple description. It's called "Real People," a sort of variety show using real folks in

Vegas still a bush town

By GUS STEVENS
Copley News Service

Las Vegas — You realize this still is a bush town when you hear the residents brag about how big it is. Mature cities in America no longer do that.

"We have 350,000 and more coming in every day," the car driver gasps in the choking fumes as you roll a strip from the airport. "Three times as big as Reno."

It is true. Vegas is big. When you gaze from your 28th floor hotel window (sealed shut) in the night, lights stretch to the horizon. The city spreads more than 15 miles across the once empty Las Vegas plain.

There is nonstop jet service from New York, and you can't get much more important than that.

The town was started about 125 years ago as a last watering hole before California-bound immigrants faced the ordeal of crossing Death Valley. For some today, Death Valley would be a relief.

Winter or summer, spring or fall, the troops roll in from all over the country.

Even from as far away as Canada and the East Coast they offer all kinds of freebies — air fare, drinks, hotels — if people will come to town with money in their pockets.

The big hook: Visitors must agree to purchase a certain amount of casino chips which may be spent only at the tables.

There is one way of beating this, dedicated freebie collectors say. If you don't want to gamble away your chips, you usually can sell them to others in your group who have lost theirs and who have caught the fever.

Certainly there are plenty of losers around, and the casinos don't care who loses those chips. Just so somebody does.

You can't even take a chance on distances here. Everything is bigger than life.

As you gaze out of your window at the Las Vegas Hilton, the MGM Grand looks to be two or three blocks away. But if you start walking toward it it doesn't get any bigger.

It's several miles from one hotel to the other and the strip — Las Vegas Boulevard — stretches across the desert farther than a pioneer wagon train could travel in a full day.

Vegas is geared for bigness. Its convention center seems to reach to the horizon. Its largest room must cover 10 acres or more — nobody seems to know. The square footage is measured in the hundreds of thousands.

The main casinos of places like the Hilton and the Grand have their own weather, they are so high and so vast.

The huge hotels, you might expect, would run fast, efficient and frequent bus and limousine service from their front doors to the airport and back.

One thing. Cab rates are low and it's a fast and easy ride to the airport. But don't despair. You can still find slots to play while you're waiting in line at the airport metal detecting machine.

Just make sure you've already paid for your round-trip ticket.

Bantam issues war books

By DOROTHY ALLSHOUSE
Copley News Service

For the history buffs who are primarily interested in World War II, Bantam is producing a bonanza for you.

They are publishing 15 new titles that include best sellers, some that have been out of print or have never been published in this country. Every theater of operation is presented and views from both sides of the line are given.

"As Eagles Scream" is the combat diary of a 19-year-old paratrooper who was initiated at the Invasion of Normandy.

Space doesn't permit naming all 15 titles, but your bookstore will be displaying them.

Those familiar with the TV series "The Ascent of Man" can continue to enjoy the profundity of Jacob Bronowski, the great educator, and those who missed the series can become acquainted by reading "The Sense of the Future" (MIT). It is a collection of essays written by Bronowski and taken from scholarly journals, radio lectures and anthologies.

Fulton Oursler made two extensive tours of the Holy Land and in 1935 started a biblical trilogy. He wrote "The Greatest Story Ever Told," "The Greatest Faith Ever Known," the latter being completed by his daughter after Oursler's death. Now all three volumes are available in one paperback, "Fulton Oursler's Greatest" (Doubleday-Galilee).

You may recognize the name Malcolm Muggeridge as a famous writer, but he is also a convert to Christianity.

From a young socialist and atheist, Muggeridge in later years made some adjustments of the mind and heart and came to believe the only solution for man's problems was in the rediscovery of Christ.

Muggeridge's book "Jesus Rediscovered" (Doubleday-Galilee) might be considered a spiritual biography.

When a publishing house orders a million copies for the first printing of a book, they must have a good idea of its overwhelming appeal.

"The Guinness Book of World Records" was first printed by Bantam in 1963 and past sales is the basis for such confidence. The updated 1979 copy is now available.

How many fabrics can you name that come from wool? It's a safe guess that you won't be able to name all of them, but you could get help from "The Fabric Catalog" (Wallaby) B V Martin Hardingham.

Tailors and seamstresses, among others, can learn a great deal about the fabrics they handle every day. In addition to the extensive listing of materials, a thumbnail history is given about the cloth. For instance, did you know that denim, that cotton cloth so popular today, got its name from Nimes, in France, where it was originally made?

Vandals destroy 18 months' work

CALIMESA, Calif. (AP) — It was past dusk when Ted Conibear finished 18 months of work repairing damage vandals did to his lifelike sand sculpture of "The Last Supper."

His joy was shortlived. By early Monday — a day after he finished the painstaking repair and three days before Holy Thursday, the day associated with Christ's Last Supper — the heads of Jesus and 12 disciples had been bashed in again with a hammer.

Singer warbles telegrams

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The sleepy newlyweds answered the rap at the door of their honeymoon haven and found a bearded young man in a blue-striped shirt, sleeve garters and old-fashioned conductor's cap, strumming "Ain't Misbehavin'" on a guitar.

Mike Fredrickson, delivering a singing telegram from the groom's mother, suggested the couple "Start Misbehavin'". The newlyweds were speechless, Fredrickson recalls.

That visit was all in a day's work for Fredrickson; 34, the brains and lungs behind Sing-A-Gram, a thriving business run out of a roomy, high-ceilinged old apartment in Minneapolis.

His credentials are what you might call impeccable: Magna cum laude grad in English from Macalester College, two years on a Rhodes scholarship at Oxford, a master's degree in medieval literature from the University of Toronto.

Fredrickson started singing telegrams as a lark two years ago. Now he has a fulltime business, grossing several thousand dollars a month. His brother Steven, a Redwood Falls businessman, is a partner in the enterprise, and another brother, Mark, is one of three performers he hires to help out.

Fredrickson charges $25 to deliver a singing telegram in person in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area a little more in the suburbs. A message delivered by phone costs $10.

He and his colleagues are doing 30 or 40 telegrams a week, mostly in person, in the Twin Cities area, and he recently hired three performers and opened a branch in Detroit. He also tapes copies of his performance for $3.50 apiece.

Others have gotten into the singing telegram business in the area, but Fredrickson seems to have the lead, in terms of volume and expertise.

His lyrics, delivered in a mellow baritone, often go beyond mere doggerel.

"I am, after all, an English professor," he points out with a grin. As a sometime entertainer in Twin Cities nightspots, he often is able to write musical messages with a professional ring to them.

Fredrickson says the results have been more profitable than running a 30-acre subsistence farm on New Brunswick's Bay of Fundy, which he did for five years before returning to Minnesota two years ago. And a lot more intriguing than teaching Chaucer at a small New Brunswick college, which he did for two years before that.

Panda movie to film in China

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Lady and the Panda" will be the first American-produced movie to be made in the Peoples Republic of China, according to a joint announcement by independent film producer Terry Corley and Fu Chi, general manager of the Great Wall Movie Enterprises Ltd., the government's film division.

The contract was signed on March 26 in Hong Kong following months of negotiations. It specifies no other foreign film company may enter the country until completion of "Lady and the Panda," which begins production in September, the announcement said.

The movie will be based on the experiences of Ruth Harkness.

Unpretentious film has charm

By BOB THOMAS

"A LITTLE ROMANCE" is well-titled, an unpretentious movie filled with small delights and uncommon charm. The romance is youthful and innocent: a French boy and an American girl living in Paris meet by chance and fall in love. They run off on a sentimental trip to Venice, aided by a boulevardier of aging charm.

A Review

Director George Roy Hill deftly avoids stickiness, drawing inspired performances from the attractive youngsters, Diane Lane and Thelonus Bernard. Laurence Olivier is ideal as their companion, and solid support comes from Sally Kellerman, Arthur Hill and Broderick Crawford.

The latter portrays Broderick Crawford, a role he does to perfection. The rating is PG, but there seems to be little to preclude an enjoyable outing for the entire family.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G — General audiences. All ages admitted.
PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
X — No one under 17 admitted. Some states may have higher age limits.

Sen. Tower says damage worse than hurricanes

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who has seen the damage inflicted by three hurricanes, the Lubbock tornado of 1970 and American bombers in Japan, returned to his tornado-ravaged hometown Wednesday and said the devastation was the worst he had seen since World War II.

Tower said he was a member of the American Occupation Force in September 1945 that took over Aomori, Japan, a city of 100,000 that was heavily damaged by American bombers.

Wichita Falls, also a city of 100,000, was slashed by a tornado Tuesday.

"This is reminiscent of what our bombers did to that town," Tower said after reviewing the city. "I've seen the damage from Hurricanes Carla, Beulah and Celia, and the tornado in Lubbock.

"But I've never seen one to equal this — including the hurricanes — in terms of wind damage. Of course there was water damage with the hurricane," he said.

Tower a former professor at Midwestern State University near the devastated southern section of Wichita Falls, no longer owns any property in his hometown. He has been a senator since 1961.

Three huge tractor-trailer rigs and an automobile lie on their sides as evidence of the force of the tornado that swept them off of U.S. 287 on the southwest edge of Wichita Falls Tuesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Mortuary garage serves as morgue

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Jerry Van Loh's voice cracked with emotion and weariness as he surveyed what had once been the garage of his funeral home. It was now a blood-spattered morgue, lined with shrouded bodies.

"We had no other place to put them. I never thought the garage would be used for this. I hope it won't be again," said the owner of Owens-Brunley Funeral Home, one of two local funeral homes where the dozens of victims of Tuesday's deadly tornado were taken. He cast another look at the 17 bodies on the concrete floor, some swaddled in blood-spattered sheets, others zipped up in plastic body bags. The floor was marred by blood stains where other bodies had been.

"It's so overwhelming. These are just people. People like you and me. People you meet on the streets every day. When they died, especially those in the shopping centers, they were doing the things we do every day."

His voice choked. "All of a sudden...they can't, they aren't allowed to do them any more," he said as his voice trailed off.

He hadn't slept for 38 hours.

The first victim arrived at 7 p.m. Tuesday, a mere 45 minutes after the twister cut through the heavily populated southern section of this North Texas city of 96,000.

Twenty-four others arrived, and Van Loh and his staff worked on the embalming tables for the next 20 hours. Electricity and water had been knocked out by the tornado, so their lights were powered by the generator from a borrowed camper and their water came from a borrowed tank truck.

"We would go for a long time. We were working, just like always. But then we would get to thinking about all those people. All of a sudden, the realization hit and there was no way to keep from crying about this."

Some of his staff members, Van Loh said, were embalming friends and neighbors.

On Wednesday, he watched numb families come to his garage throughout the day, visiting there as a last resort in their search for missing relatives.

"I can't imagine what it would be like to search through a city for someone you love. That's something none of us should have to go through. They came here only as a last resort. They didn't want to, but they came," he said.

The staff at the Hampton-Vaughn Funeral Home only a block away helped run the ambulances that transported the hundreds of people injured by the tornado. They then turned to the job of preparing the victims brought to them, leaving almost 24 hours later. Those victims were placed in that funeral home's garage.

List of known tornado victims

Tornado fifth worst ever

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A tornado specialist at the University of Kansas says the twister which hit Wichita Falls this week is the fifth worst on record in terms of damage.

"From what I've heard so far, this ranks behind the tornadoes that hit Topeka in 1966, Lubbock in 1970, Omaha in 1975 and Xenia, Ohio, in 1975," said Joe R. Eagleman, a professor of meteorology.

"It's only the fifth tornado to cause more than $100 million in damage in history," Eagleman said Wednesday night, in an interview with the Kansas City Times.

Controlling candy sale in schools contemplated by government

By PETER MILIUS

WASHINGTON — The federal government for years has had the power to bar the sale of foods it finds to be contaminated or falsely labeled. Now it is venturing uncertainly one step farther:

In a limited but systematic way, it is contemplating controlling the sale of certain foods for dietary or nutritional reasons.

The homely vehicle for this is a regulation on which the Department of Agriculture is now at work, to control the sale of competitive foods in school lunchrooms. Competitive foods are those that come from vendors for being low in vitamins A and C," he said.

Then Knebel went after raisins and the apple. Raisins, he said, though "commonly featured in the school lunch," have fewer nutrients and "considerably more" carbohydrates and sugars than many M & M-Mars products, while "the apple, a well established sentimental favorite . . . has recently been found to be more cariogenic (cause more cavities) than the Milky Way bar," for that he cited a study published in 1978 in the British Dental Journal.

"Do you want kids to eat a candy bar and Coke for lunch or do you want them to eat fruits, vegetables and milk? The basic argument is really that."

—Lynn Parker, Food Research and Action Center.

ing machines or so-called a la carte lunch lines and compete with the "Type A" lunches the department subsidizes.

Little money is directly at stake in this regulation. Sales of competitive foods in schools are not that large.

But the regulation — which Congress authorized the department to include in a bill it passed in 1977 — has taken on great symbolic importance, and some food companies fear it could have serious precedent-setting value as well.

And so, in one of the rituals of regulatory politics, the companies have turned to this city's famous law firms.

Hershey Food Corp., fearing with cause that candy is one product likely to be affected, has turned to Covington & Burling, in the person of Peter Barton Hutt, former chief counsel of the Food and Drug Administration.

M & M-Mars has turned to Baker & McKenzie and John A. Knebel, Earl Butz' successor as secretary of agriculture in the final weeks of the Ford administration.

Their basic argument — smoothly made in copious submissions they have made to the department in response to its call for comments — is that no scientific basis exists for singling out candy as an offending product. Candy in recent years has come under attack as too sugary, and over the last 15 or 20 years it has lost ground in the expanding between-meals food market. Yet the companies and their lawyers say candies contain as many nutrients as many other foods whose sale probably would not be controlled in school lunchrooms.

"On a 100-calorie basis, Mr. Goodbar is superior to DelMonte canned pears in protein, thiamine, niacin and calcium content," Covington & Burling's Hutt wrote at one point, and elsewhere pointed out that most other basic ingredients in Hershey products are wholesome beyond dispute.

"We purchase in excess of one million pounds of milk per day and thousands of tons of peanuts and almonds per year," he reminded the department. "In fact, Hershey is one of the five largest purchasers of peanuts in the United States and the largest single purchaser of almonds."

From Knebel came similar flourishes. "It is not reasonable to condemn milk for having no niacin or iron; the pear for having no significant amount of any nutrient; white bread for having no vitamins A and C; or M & M's peanut chocolate candies for being low in vitamins A and C," he said.

Then Knebel went after raisins and the apple. Raisins, he said, though "commonly featured in the school lunch," have fewer nutrients and "considerably more" carbohydrates and sugars than many M & M-Mars products, while "the apple, a well established sentimental favorite . . . has recently been found to be more cariogenic (cause more cavities) than the Milky Way bar," for that he cited a study published in 1978 in the British Dental Journal.

The candy industry has not been alone in its apprehension. The soft drink industry, the vending machine industry and assorted others also have called on the department not to shut them out.

Voluntary withdrawal urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cosmetic industry is being urged to remove any ingredient in its products that could combine with other chemicals to form potentially cancer-causing nitrosamines.

The Food and Drug Administration called on the cosmetics industry to voluntarily withdraw the ingredients because it said it has evidence that some cosmetics may be contaminated with nitrosamines.

Home Furnishing News

By Terry Hodges

SMALL BEDROOMS can often seem a problem to furnish...but they need not be. For one thing, don't limit your decorating by any hard-and-fast rules about size, or choosing only small-scale furnishings for small rooms.

The bold, dramatic trend in today's decorating includes such strokes as choosing a big, eye-filling, well-filling bed that will dominate the small bedroom...and let you (or the kids, if it's their room) sleep better. After all, that's what the room is for...and emphasizing the one big bed will unify the whole room.

There are other ways to use the remaining space economically. For instance, a pair of bedside chests for storage, instead of smaller nightstands, eliminates the need for a separate large dresser. In the child's room, chests, desk space and storage can all be combined in a continuous wall unit, even making use of corners and under-window space.

The point is, don't be afraid to do things in a big way, even in a small room. Sometimes thinking big can give better results. You'll find many ways to solve your furnishing problems imaginatively and beautifully when you browse among our displays, including a wide range of bedroom suites and pieces for every decorating need...and for your budget, too.

Nuclear housewife to join commission

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Ann Trunk, who stayed home while the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor simmered nearby, will be traveling to Washington as part of a White House commission investigating the worst nuclear accident in the nation's history.

President Carter named the 43-year-old mother of six to the 11-member panel on Wednesday.

"I stayed in Middletown. I wasn't panicked, and I have children. They thought I could represent Middletown and people's feelings," Mrs. Trunk said, explaining why she was chosen.

She said many of her neighbors fled after Gov. Dick Thornburgh advised pregnant women and preschoolers to stay at least five miles away from Three Mile Island.

The Trunks live within 2½ miles of the crippled power plant. Their children range from 3 to 14.

But they decided to wait out the crisis at home on the basis of radiation monitoring at the Penn State campus in Middletown, where Edward Trunk teaches mechanical engineering.

"They took readings out there and nothing registered," said Mrs. Trunk. "We felt we were in no danger."

Mrs. Trunk said she is not a nuclear expert and does not yet have a position on the future of Three Mile Island or nuclear power.

"I want to hear the facts," she said. "I'm going there to learn. I'll make up my mind later on."

The commission will make a six-month, $1 million investigation of the Three Mile Island accident. It has also been asked to come up with recommendations to improve communications during nuclear emergencies.

The chairman of the group is Dartmouth College President John Kemeny, a protege of Albert Einstein.

Add a touch of spring to your Easter ham

Glaze provides a Gala Easter Ham

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—Here's a clever idea for glazing and decorating a Gala Easter Ham that will make it as colorful and attractive as a spring bouquet of flowers. The zesty glaze of pineapple juice, prepared yellow mustard, and brown sugar is made in minutes, yet also doubles as a sauce to serve with the ham.

Just bake the ham as usual and brush on the glaze toward the end of the cooking period. Then, using these suggestions from home economists in Rochester, New York, simply cut pineapple slices into daisy shapes and garnish the ham. In a jiffy you can combine the remaining glaze with a sprinkling of coconut, for a tropical-style sauce to spoon over the slices of ham. This variation of the traditional pineapple sauce will add a surprising touch to the meal. Fresh tender asparagus with lemon butter and a Mushroom Potato Casserole are ideal accompaniments to this ham dinner. The potato casserole can be prepared in minutes by using packaged scalloped potatoes and canned mushrooms. This potato dish bakes in the oven along with the ham, leaving you free to tend to last minute details or to spend time with your guests. To complete your holiday dinner, serve a spinach salad with sliced egg garnish, crusty rolls, and a glass of rose wine. Strawberry shortcake served for dessert is a delightful treat this time of year.

GALA EASTER HAM

- 1 boneless ham, 8 to 10 pounds
- 1 can (20-oz.) sliced pineapple
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
- 1 can (4-oz.) sliced whole cloves
- 1/4 cup flaked coconut

brush with glaze. Bake 30 minutes longer, until glazed. (If desired, turn oven to 400 degrees during last 10 minutes to brown more.) Using 3 slices pineapple, trim to make petal shapes. Arrange on ham. Cut remaining pineapple into thin wedges; add to remaining glaze along with coconut. Serve over sliced ham.

POTATO MUSHROOM CASSEROLE

- 2 packages (5%-oz. each) scalloped potatoes
- 4 cups boiling water
- 1 1/3 cups milk
- 1 can (4-oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes

Combine potato slices, seasoning mix, water, milk, mushrooms, and parsley flakes in 2 or 2 1/2-quart casserole. Bake in 350 degree oven 1 hour, or until potatoes are tender. 10 servings.

Incredible edible egg is easy Easter eating

PARK RIDGE, ILL.—Egg salads are a good solution to the problem of what to do with any leftover decorated Easter eggs. They're easy to prepare, economical, nutritious, versatile and just about everybody likes them.

The only essential ingredient in egg salad is the egg. Everything else can be selected to suit your taste, pocket book or pantry. Try, for example, this intriguing combination with a festive South-of-the-Border flavor. Hard-cooked eggs are mixed with three Mexican favorites: sour cream, green chilies and taco sauce. Don't worry, the salad's not too hot, but if you're nervous about that, taste it as you add the peppers and taco sauce.

This salad is delicious spread simply between two slices of bread, but is super when served open face over a tomato slice and whole wheat toast. Add a sprinkle of shredded Cheddar cheese and zip it under the broiler just until the cheese melts.

MEXICAN EGG SALAD SANDWICHES

- 6 servings
- 1/3 cup dairy sour cream
- 3 tablespoons chopped drained green chilies
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 to 2 teaspoons bottled taco sauce
- 9 hard-cooked eggs chopped
- 6 slices tomato
- 6 slices bread, toasted
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Blend together sour cream, chilies, lemon juice, salt and taco sauce to taste. Stir chopped eggs into sour cream mixture until moistened throughout.

For each sandwich, place 1 tomato slice on each toast slice. Spread about 1/2 cup egg salad over tomato and sprinkle with 1 rounded tablespoon cheese. Broil about 4 inches from heat just until cheese melts, 2 to 3 minutes.

HARD-COOKED EGGS

Pierce eggs with an egg piercer or punch, if desired. Put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

THE BUTCHER

Save money with a gooseneck

Forgive me if, from time to time, I lament the passing of the old-fashioned butcher. It's just that I've learned to love the smell of fresh sawdust on the floor in a cooler lined with carcasses of beef. You understand. Obsolescence comes painfully to people; ask any buggy whip maker. But the fact of the matter is that beef doesn't come into most markets in carcass form much anymore and sawdust on the floor has been all but banned. It's a whole new ballgame, the meat game, and lamenting that fact won't help us win. We have to learn to play by some new rules. Boxed beef is one of the new rules.

These days, beef comes into the market in boxes, as a rule, of what we call "sub-primals" in the trade. The carcass is divided into boneless or nearly boneless cuts at the packing house; those are vacuum sealed in plastic wrap, boxed and shipped to the market for cutting into steaks and roasts.

We've talked before of how you, the consumer, can take advantage of the boxed beef rule to save money by buying a whole sub-primal cut and cutting your own steaks and roasts. We've discussed the simpler sub-primals, the top round, the rib eye, the sirloin tip, those that are almost as easy to cut up as a loaf of bread.

Today we graduate to a more complicated cut, but one that is well worth learning to work with, the "gooseneck round." It is one of the less expensive sub-primals and one that offers a gold mine of goodies for anyone with a bit of freezer space and the determination to learn.

Don't ask me why it's called the gooseneck. In the meat business, there are a lot of rather strange terms, the origin of which I have not been able to pin down. Gooseneck is one. There will be one or two others before we're through.

The gooseneck is the full bottom round portion of the hind leg of the beef. It includes those cuts that are normally sold as rump, bottom round, eye of round and heel. The whole gooseneck, as comes from the box, will weigh between 18 and 25 pounds, which makes one of the largest of the boneless sub-primals. But don't let its size deter you. It comes apart quite easily and can yield a lot of meat for your freezer at considerable savings over those individual cuts, had you bought them separately.

The gooseneck is made up of three separate muscle groups and the trick is to separate each of those, one from the other, so that each can be cut and cooked according to its degree of natural tenderness.

First separate out the "rat tail." (I told you there would be some strange terms.) It is the heel portion of the gooseneck and can easily be removed by cutting along the natural seam connecting it to the bottom round. In many markets, this whole piece would be ground for ground beef, but there are far better uses for it. After you have separated the whole rat tail from the rest of the gooseneck, notice that it contains two very different looking muscles.

One on the outside is quite fine grained, while the center is coarse with a lot of connective tissue running through it. Separate the two, again following the natural seam.

Trim all of the fat and gristle from the top muscle of the rat tail and you have what is called a velvet steak, tender enough to make stir-fry or stroganoff. You can even broil it and carve it as you would a flank steak for London Broil. The central core of the rat tail is tough but has a great flavor. You can either use it for grinding or cut it up for stew or chili. Next, following the natural seam, separate the eye of round from the bottom round. The eye is a cut that brings a premium in most markets when cut into thin breakfast steaks or sandwich steaks.

It is not the most tender cut of the round and I prefer cooking it with moist heat for Swiss steak or pot roast. However you cook it, you will save a fortune buying it as one of the component parts of a gooseneck rather than paying the premium the butcher charges for eye of round.

The rest of the gooseneck, after the rat tail and the eye have been removed, is the bottom round, also called the silverside. The reason for that term will be obvious since one side has a layer of heavy connective tissue that gives it a silvery appearance.

DEAR ABBY

Can two live in, keep love out?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter who will be 20 soon. Her boyfriend, with whom she has grown up, is in the Air Force and is stationed in Florida. He's asked her to marry him in June of 1980, but he wants her to come to Florida and share a two-bedroom apartment with him for two months.

Our daughter was taught that premarital sex was wrong. She says she honestly thinks she can live with this guy for two months without having sex with him. She insists she would never give in to him, and says she's made that clear to him.

I still maintain that when two people are in love, plan to marry and are thrown into a situation of that kind, they will find it impossible to resist the temptation of sex.

We've always been a church-going family and I can't understand her reasoning. She wants my blessing, but says if I don't give it to her, she'll go anyway and I can't stop her.

Am I old-fashioned? Or do you honestly believe they can live together for two months and not have sex? — DOUBTING MOTHER

DEAR DOUBTING: If they exercise the strictest kind of self-discipline, it's possible. However, a person who's opposed to premarital sex should not go in for premarital living together.

DEAR ABBY: A lady I knew (not well) passed away, leaving a husband and two children. I want to express my sympathy to the husband and let him know that I'm available to do whatever I can to help him through his time of sorrow.

I know him only to say "hi" to. He is very well fixed financially. Attractive, too, so I'm sure there will be a lot of women after him.

I'm a divorcee, new in town, and I don't want to appear too forward or he might get the wrong idea.

I would like to write him a sympathy note that will be out of the ordinary. Something witty or eloquent. Any suggestions along that line? — VIRGO LADY

DEAR VIRGO: If you didn't know the lady well, and know her husband only to say "hi" to, write a brief condolence note. Don't try for wit or eloquence. And please restrain your eagerness to help him through his time of sorrow, or it won't be the "wrong" idea but the right one that might cause him to think you're after him, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 46 years. We live modestly and have never been big spenders. We have a comfortable income and bank account and my husband is an honest and decent man, but here is my problem:

He hides money all over the house. I find it when housecleaning.

Last month I found a surprising amount in the cellar. I asked him why. He never answered. I tried to get him to put that money in the bank because the bills were getting moldy, but he wouldn't do it. He just took it to hide somewhere else.

Today I found some more money under the sofa cushions, and I am feeling very depressed.

Please don't write me a personal letter as my husband gets the mail first since he is now retired. Thank you. — WORRIED SICK WORRIED SICK: Get your husband to a doctor for a "routine" checkup as soon as possible. And be sure to tell the doctor (quietly in advance) what you have told me. Your husband needs help.

You can grow roses easily

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

Roses are among the most interesting, useful and attractive garden plants and it is possible to grow them with very little effort. Now is a good time to plant roses, which can be purchased at many large garden centers.

Paradise, one of the 1979 All-America award winners, is said by the judges to be one of the most distinctive and novel hybrid tea roses ever produced, developing an unusual color combination and presenting a flower of striking beauty.

The blooms hold their color to maturity and as the petals fall there are bursts of new ruby buds ready and waiting to take their place.

As the ruby buds open to full double four-inch blooms, many shades of lavender, purple, bright pink and rich ruby red come and go. As the bud unfolds, its center becomes silvery-lavender, with each petal edged in vivid, bright pink, presenting a rose with an entirely new unique color combination.

For the first time in the 38-year history of All-America Rose Selections awards, the entire jury of judges elected it an award winner by acclamation.

Friendship, another of the 1979 award winners, is a rugged, strong-growing, bushy hybrid tea rose, and produces a profusion of very large blooms through the season. This is unusual since rose varieties bearing such large flowers generally bloom rather sparingly. The blossoms are held on long stems most suitable for cutting, and have a spicy fragrance.

A fresh-cut bouquet of Friendship will fill a room with perfume.

The buds, long-ovoid and deep coral in color, deepen to a rich coral pink as the petals roll back and open into large, full, double flowers. The blooms last for a long time, both in the garden and when cut. The flowers seem to stand heat well and do not noticeably discolor even on the hottest summer days. The flowers are usually borne one to a stem but occasionally two or three will appear. The blooms have a strong, sweet fragrance.

Sundowner, another award winner, is a very tall growing grandiflora with beautiful, very fragrant gleaming orange flowers. To keep the plant at a lower height, cut the blooms with very long stems. The flowers lend themselves to outstanding arrangements, and the vigorous plant will soon produce more blossoms to replace those taken. The foliage is thick, lustrous, moss-green with coppery tints.

Roses do best planted in full sun but will do fairly well with light shade 3 or 4 hours of the day. The soil where they are planted should have good drainage. Watering too frequently, poor drainage, or use of too much manure, peat or other water-holding materials under the plant may prevent normal aeration of the soil. Even sloping ground may be poorly drained because of a tight clay subsoil. They have their feeder roots near the surface of the soil and cultivation can cause severe damage to the plants.

Margaret Stevens of Odessa presented a program on copper enameling for the Midland Palette Club.

Mrs. Stevens gave a brief history of the craft, pointing out that it is an ancient form of art, going back to the Celts and Egyptians in the 3rd century before Christ.

One of the most famous examples of the art is cloisonne. Copper enameling was used by some of the early Greeks to decorate the draperies on some of their sculptures, Mrs. Stevens said.

Colors used in the process are from crushed rock, with red being the most expensive color because that pigment contains some gold.

During a business session, final plans were made for the annual spring display and sale to be held in San Miguel Square May 5.

The May program will be a sketching session at the Golladay farm May 8.

The Painting of the Month award was won by Eleanor Leeper for her watercolor, "Spring Rain." The painting is on display during April in The Midland National Bank.

Hostesses were Geneva Merrifield, Evelyn Turpin and Gail Nuessle.

TWENTIETH CENTURY STUDY CLUB

The Twentieth Century Study Club met in the Midland Woman's Club for a business session and program.

Mrs. Vance Hendricks reported on the district convention held at Monahans. The club received first place awards in Hands Up, over-all public affairs and Texas Federation of Women's Clubs finance divisions, and second places in program and project.

Plans were made for the Husbands' Night to be held April 24.

Mrs. H. S. Collings introduced the program given by Marian Fisher on "Preparation for Retirement." Mrs. Fisher, director of senior services at the First Christian Church, said the key words to retirement are philosophy, resources, encouragement, participation and planning, aging, relativity, action, time, inflation, outside interests and non-negativism.

House nixes military aid

WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 29 through April 4.

HOUSE
PANAMA The House adopted 272 for and 117 against, an amendment eliminating $2.5 million in military aid to Panama. The vote came during debate on HR 3173, a foreign military-aid bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., sponsor of the amendment, said that under the new Panama Canal Treaty the Panamanian government next year would receive at least $65 million in canal tolls. Partly because of this "new direct income" it no longer needs U.S. military aid, he said.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wisc., an opponent, said the amendment would harm U.S. security, because loss of U.S. military aid would make it difficult for

ROLL CALL REPORT

Panama "to fulfill its obligation in the joint defense of the canal."

Most of those voting "yea" were either conservatives who disliked the new treaty or members who objected to the repression of human rights by the Panamanian military dictatorship.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-18, Tom Loeffler, R-22, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kasen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8, James Wright, D-12, Mickey Leland, D-18, and Henry Gonzalez, D-20, voted "nay."
 Rep. Jack Brooks, D-9, did not vote.

OCS COMMITTEE The House voted, 194 for and 172 against, to extend the life of the Select Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf through June 30, 1980. The annual budget not counting staff salaries is about $300,000. Originally the panel was created on a temporary basis, to write a law governing the development of offshore oil and gas resources. In its extended life, it will conduct oversight in an effort to see the law fully implemented.

Rep. Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., a supporter, said that "if we are going to have an accelerated program to insure development of any energy potential from the Outer Continental Shelf...we need the OCS committee...to make sure that those processes are not foiled by th. bureaucracy."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz, an opponent, noted that other House committees already perform the proposed OCS committee mission. He added: "If members want to save the taxpayers some money and put an end to a committee that has done its job...they will vote against the select committee."

Members voting "nay" were opposed to continuing the select committee.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Wright, Wyatt, de la Garza, White, Hance, Gonzalez and Loeffler voted "yea."
 Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Pickle, Hightower, Stenholm, Leland, Paul, Kasen and Frost voted "nay."

OPEC AID The House rejected, 175 for and 22 against, an amendment to eliminate foreign aid to members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). The amendment was proposed to HR 3324, the fiscal 1981 foreign aid bill, which was headed toward final passage. OPEC nations, which recently increased the price of their oil by at least nine percent, would get $100 million in direct and indirect non-military aid from the bill.

Rep. Gerry Studd, D-Mass., an opponent, said: "We have members...weep tears about the gouging of the American people. I suspect the same members are fervently in favor of decontrolling the price of U.S. crude oil and gasoline, which would, of course, further gouge the American people."

Members voting "yea" favored eliminating U.S. foreign aid to OPEC countries.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Gramm, Archer, Leath, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul and Kasen voted "yea."
 Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Leland, Gonzalez and Frost voted "nay."
 Hightower, Wyatt and de la Garza did not vote.

SENATE

RENEGOTIATION BOARD The Senate failed, 28 for and 56 against, to keep alive the Renegotiation Board. The agency, which went out of business a few days before this vote, for the past 25 years has captured what it judged to be excess profits earned by defense companies on government contracts. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2283 (see vote below).

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., a supporter of the agency, said it brings in ten dollars for every dollar it costs. He termed it "ironic" that congressmen "who want to see the federal budget balanced are also going along with the movement to abolish" the board.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said: "Two of the best days this country has had this year were the two days it snowed (in Washington). Nobody could get in here to do anything...It is about time we start...reducing bureaucracy, balancing the budget..."

Senators voting "nay" were opposed to keeping the Renegotiation Board in existence.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D, and John Tower, R, voted "nay."

WAGE COUNCIL The Senate passed, 62 for and 22 against, a bill (HR 2283) extending the life of the Council on Wage and Price Stability for another year. The bill, which increases the council staff from 39 to 233 and sets an annual budget level of $8.48 million, was sent back to the House for final congressional action. The council, an arm of the White House, oversees President Carter's wage and price guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., a supporter, said "we should not kill the only agency we have...to fight inflation."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent, said: "an enlarged role for the council will bring even more changes, rules, regulations and reports...when the business community is already reeling" from previous council actions.

Senators voting "yea" favored extending the life of the council.

Bentsen voted "yea."
 Tower voted "nay."

Award 'really for veterans,' actor in 'Coming Home' says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lou Carello, a wheelchair-bound veteran of Vietnam who appeared in the film "Coming Home," says Academy Awards given to that movie and "The Deer Hunter" were "like people really recognizing Vietnam, and the real awards were to the Vietnam vets and the handicapped of this country."

Lou Carello was best actor winner Jon Voight's technical advisor in "Coming Home," and one of 80 paraplegics employed as actors in the movie. The bearded Carello was Voight's guest at Monday's awards ceremony.

Mrs. Stevenson fights loneliness by staying busy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Senior citizens lead diverse lives, with a few common problems but many differences in the way they live. This is the fifth of a seven-part series on Midland's elderly, using portraits of individuals to indicate a range of responses to growing older.

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

Though she seldom sees people except her neighbors and her son and his family, Helen Stevenson stays busy and proclaims that she is happy with her life.

Mrs. Stevenson, at 72, is retired after 22 years running the central supply room at an El Paso hospital. She moved to Midland from El Paso to be close to her son, Jimmy Pruett.

"I'm making a fence," she explained to a visitor who had noticed and commented on some 4-by-4's stuck in the ground.

Mrs. Stevenson likes carpentry work and has a wide selection of tools. She learned to work with wood from her father, an El Paso physician who had a woodworking shop at home.

She's also done the painting and carpet laying in her comfortable home. In fact, she even does minor home repairs for her son, whom she said isn't handy with tools.

She resists her son's efforts to "get out and meet growing older in Midland part five of a seven-part series people...I know what's happening in my block. I'm the nosy one," she said with a grin.

The only time Mrs. Stevenson has ever joined in senior citizens activities was when she accompanied a neighbor to American Association of Retired Persons meetings. When the neighbor stopped going, so did she, she said.

"People say, 'Don't you get lonesome?' I don't because I'm busy all the time."

She doesn't worry about living alone: "I have my little .38 (caliber) pistol, and if anybody tries to break in, it's going to be too bad." (Incidentally, Mrs. Stevenson was on her high school's first girls' rifle team.)

"I've lived alone so many years," she explained, adding that two marriages lasted only a total of 9 1/2 years.

A small rental house sits in back of Mrs. Stevenson's house. Part of the deal with her renters is that they help her with heavy tasks she can't manage alone.

A more sedentary hobby than the carpentry is her knitting and crocheting. A two-foot high stack of crocheted bedroom slippers sits by her chair, and more slippers share with other assorted handwork a box in the bedroom.

She said she gives a lot of the items away, and sells some.

"I've just got to do something," she said. While she does the hand work, she often watches television soap operas — "dumb shows," she calls them.

Mrs. Stevenson has not been visited yet by the traditional infirmities of old age, although she finds she can't get on top of the house any more to work on the roof.

"I get tired a little easier," though, she acknowledged.

One reason she doesn't get lonely is her pets — three dogs and about 100 turtles.

Her interest in reptiles dates back to girlhood, when she kept snakes in El Paso. The turtles inhabit a strip along the fence in her yards. The number is an estimate, since they're only now coming out of hibernation.

Her dogs, particularly the older two, are extremely important to her. She said she's told her son to have them put to sleep if she dies before them. "He wouldn't want them anyway."

The subject of dying is not one Mrs. Stevenson seeks to avoid.

"I've been in a medical family...Nothing fazes me that way...I might stomp my toe and break my neck," she said.

She's even purchased her casket and tombstone. "I wouldn't want Jimmy to be because, you know, they might talk him into a fancy one."

Mrs. Stevenson isn't particularly interested in traveling, since she did a lot of that when she was younger.

She said she misses her friends in El Paso, but there are no other relatives left except her niece. And, she said, she would be about as happy there as in Midland, except that her son is here.

"In a way, I'm a loner because I'm content by myself."

Chances good for vasectomy reversal

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know you advise careful consideration before a person decides on being sterilized, but it's too late for me to worry about that now. I'm a 36-year-old man who had a vasectomy four years ago. At that time I was convinced I would not want to have more children. Last year my wife died and I'm thinking of marrying again. What are the chances of having the vasectomy reversed?—E.K.

Dear Mr. K.: It is true that a man should not submit to a vasectomy thinking it can be reversed if he changes his mind; but just as one's life situation changes, vasectomy, too, is sometimes reversible. This possibility has been enhanced by the development of a new microsurgical technique. According to a recent study, when the reoperation is done within 10 years of the original surgery, more than 90 percent of all patients have a normal sperm count within six months. Where the vasectomy was done more than 10 years previously, however, normal sperm counts are obtained by only 35 percent.

As you can see, the chances of your being able to become a father again are good.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have reached my desired weight loss. What type of maintenance program should I follow?—A.M.

Dear A.M.: You are indeed fortunate you have reached your ideal weight. What you really have done is learned good eating habits. Here are some pointers I suggest to my patients trying to maintain their weight loss that can apply to you. You should eat slowly and chew your food thoroughly. You should drink a glass of water before each meal, you can also, slightly, increase the amount of food you eat every day. Weigh yourself the following morning, if you have gained weight, cut back the next day. If you haven't then you can continue eating the increased amounts. In addition you should continue the exercise. therapeutic doses, and is can result in relatively less toxic, psychological and Excessive use, however, physical dependence.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am on a minor tranquilizer called Meprbamate. What's the story with it?—P.K.

Dear P.K.: Meprbamate, first synthesized in 1950, introduced the era of mild or "minor" tranquilizers. In the United States today more than 250 tons of meprbamate are distributed yearly under its generic name as well as under brand names such as Miltown, Equanil, Kesso-Bamate, and S.K.-Bamate. Meprbamate is prescribed primarily for the relief of anxiety, tension, and associated muscle spasms.

Its onset and duration of action are like those of the intermediate-acting barbiturates; it differs from them in that it is a muscle relaxant, does not produce sleep at

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE MIDLAND COUNTY TAX PAYERS

The following is based on statistics that have recently become available to the Midland County Hospital District Board of Directors. I feel obligated to inform the people of Midland County of the following conditions. It cost 25% to 30% more per patient to operate Midland Memorial Hospital than the average Texas hospital of the same size. Over a year's time this adds up to over two million dollars in excess costs. This is a larger amount than the entire yearly tax bill for the hospital district.

Hospital	Average costs per patient per day-Sept., Oct., Nov. 1978	Number of patient days per year at average 68% occupancy, 175 beds	Total cost per year
Midland	$217.16
Other Texas hospitals same size (medium)	$170.39
Difference	$46.77	43,435	$2,031,454.90

SOURCE: H.A.S. STATISTICS from Midland Memorial Hospital

Midland Memorial Hospital has advantages over most other Texas hospitals. It has received large private contributions for needed equipment; and the tax payers pay for the building, furnishings, and indigent care. In spite of this the hospital operates in the red, and the tax payer expected to pay for it. Midland Memorial Hospital needs sound professional management so that it can bring its cost of operation back to more realistic levels. It is mismanagement which gives strength to the federal effort to impose a cost control bill and ultimately socialization of the industry. In the past six months there has been a 78% turn over in nursing personnel at Midland Memorial Hospital. This is excessive and unusual. It is not unusual to have high personnel turn over in Midland Memorial Hospital, however. This is a long standing problem as is the problem of excess costs. There are no special circumstances which make these excess costs necessary, it is simply a management problem. Even before the recent growth spurt, Midland County had a seriously inadequate health system. Little has changed in numbers of available doctors and beds since the following study was done by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission last year.

County	Population per primary care doctors	Total in patient surgeries	X-Rays	Physical therapy	Inhalation therapy
Andrews	2,260	1,841	24,541	30,613	53,326
Ector	2,530	10,266	50,271	24,674	74,489
Howard	2,363	6,233	64,895	40,387	49,000
Midland	3,400	4,899	18,212 11.5% of total 65% below average	16,566 14.7% of total 55% below average	21,587 10.8% of total 67% below average

It is obvious that we are not now capable of caring for our own population.

My questioning and openness have not made me popular with those in Midland who seek the status quo. In fact, although several people connected with hospital are involved in business ventures that I feel definitely could represent a conflict of interest, I alone have been so maligned. Personal attacks on me will not, however, change statistics.

None of the problems faced by Midland Memorial Hospital are without solution. Let's quit subsidizing the medical communities of the surrounding areas and start taking care of our own. Together we can have a self-supporting hospital which provides the best of medical services for its patients.

Checking the morning mail at the Main U.S. Post Office at 100 E. Wall Ave. has gotten to be an extremely popular activity in the Tall City. "We've got 1,879 boxes now, and we're adding 400 new boxes, which will be finished in two or three weeks," said

David Holster, Midland postmaster. Holster said when the post office and federal building were built in 1974, it was thought the number of boxes would be sufficient for 10 years. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Counselor urges registration for testing

Reservations for the Aptitude Inventory Measurement Testing Service (AIMS) test battery to be given at Midland College April 26-28 should be made immediately, according to Dr. Elizabeth Robinett, Midland College counselor.

Testing involves three half-day sessions, usually a total of 11 hours, at a cost of $300 per person. The college can accommodate 12 students this session and reservations may be made by calling Dr. Robinett at 684-7851, extension 123.

AIMS is a Dallas-based non-profit foundation. It was formed to further the understanding of the nature of aptitudes and aptitude-patterns of specific individuals.

A recent bulletin issued by the foundation stressed the necessity for an individual to be willing to take the test. "If a youngster is forced to take the test, he usually will not do his best nor follow the recommendations he is given," noted Irvin C. Shambaugh, president of the foundation.

In addition to testing youngsters, AIMS gives the test battery to older people who feel the need of a career change or re-evaluation.

"But people over 35 often have an unrealistic idea of just what the tests will accomplish," Shambaugh pointed out. "While testing is valuable to many adults, it is not a panacea for all the problems peculiar to individuals between the ages of 35 and 65." Midland College is the site of the AIMS testing battery on a regular basis. "If a person is interested in taking the tests, or in having his younger take them, we can set up a satisfactory testing date if we are contacted in advance,"

Dr. Robinett noted. "We have brochures and other information available on request."

Masters tees off in search of new star

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — They teed off today in the 43rd Masters Golf Tournament with many people wondering if the game is ready to produce another star figure.

One is needed desperately. Television ratings are plummeting — down 25 percent in some instances. The winter tour, which whets the appetite for the long summer pursuit of the sun, has spawned a collection of John Doe winners, many of whom wouldn't be recognized in their own neighborhoods.

Whatever happened to Jack Nicklaus? He hasn't won a tournament all year and is 79th in the money standings. And Tom Watson, the freckled Huckleberry Finn out of Kansas City — he's back on top of the money list but not setting the grass on fire. He has one tournament victory in 1979.

Arnold Palmer — remember Arnie's Army? — will be 50 in September. He hasn't won a tour event since 1973. South African Gary Player, leather-tough, is 43 and rated no better than a 12-1 shot in the tournament he won so sensationally a year ago.

SAN FRANCISCO'S Johnny Miller, who used to pull birdies out of a hat like a magician and who once loomed as golf's "Golden Boy," has lost his groove. He hasn't been higher than 26th in a tournament this year.

Remember Lee Trevino, old Super Mex, the feisty Latin with the hustler's heart and a carnival barker's tongue? He's still battling to overcome his encounters with a lightning bolt in 1975, and it's all uphill.

Bigtime golf appears at a crucial crossroads. Is the game, after two glamorous and prosperous decades dominated first by Palmer and then Nicklaus, headed for an inevitable period of blandness?

Many observers think so. History dictates as much. Such things run in cycles. The TV ratings are a depressing barometer. Even the most dedicated of fairway buffs are finding the tour one gigantic yawn.

Such a slump followed the glorious era of Bob Jones and Walter Hagen in the 1920s and 1930s. Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and Sam Snead revived interest in the sport after World War II only to see another lull until Palmer and his Army went on the rampage in the late 1950s. Nicklaus picked up the cudgel in the early 1960s and proceeded to sweep to 15 major professional championships — a mark that appears beyond mortal reach.

GOLF, AS other professional sports, needs to ride the tail of a meteor — a superstar.

Muhammad Ali brought boxing from the edge of the grave. Pro football has soared on the magic arms of Johnny Unitas, Joe Namath and Terry Bradshaw. Women's golf was in the doldrums until Nancy Lopez came along. Billie Jean King and later Chris Evert turned women's tennis into a gold mine.

Golf has been on a celestial voyage since Palmer started squinting into the sun and sinking putts from here to eternity in the mid-1950s and Nicklaus began his phenomenal pro career in 1962.

Watson, 29, emerged as a possible heir apparent when he beat Nicklaus in those great birdie duels in 1977, but he has failed to grab the game by the throat and dominate it.

Meanwhile, Jack, at age 39, insists — in the vein of Mark Twain — that reports of his golfing demise have been grossly exaggerated.

"I still feel like I'm a kid," says the Golden Bear. "I assure you I am not ready to drop dead yet. I love the game. I intend to play as long as I feel I can be competitive — and that's a few years yet."

Cubs to try again Mack goes against Schrom

After first checking to see whether Cubs Stadium had held its Hogan Park ground and not been blown to suburban Stanton by two days of winds in the 80-90 kilometer-an-hour range, Midland Cubs General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., rescheduled the Texas League opener against El Paso Diablos for 7:30 p.m. today in Cubs Stadium.

The game will be preceded by the traditional Opening ceremonies and then Henry Mack, the aspirin server from Winchester, Ky., the rookie acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies organization in the Manny Trillo trade last winter, will match serves with the Diablos' Ken Schrom.

Mack, a 6-2, 185-pounder, will be starting his fourth season of pro ball and his progress has been spectacular. At Auburn in 1976, Mack was 2-9 with a 7.33 earned-run-average and failed to complete a game in 13 starts. He whiffed 44, but walked 67. Then, in 1977, he was 5-10 for Spartanburg,

S.C., with a 5.23 ERA and one complete game in 24 trips to the mound following the playing of the National Anthem. Mack was still having control problems with 87 strikeouts and 112 walks.

THEN, LAST year Mack put it together with a 15-4 record and a 2.79 ERA. He completed nine of 23 starts and for the first time fanned more batters than he walked, 158 to 118. He was the reason it took so long to complete the Trillo trade. Chicago wanted him and Philadelphia was reluctant to surrender him and his 95 mph fastball.

Although Mack spent most of the spring with Wichita, the Cubs returned him to Midland rather than rush him from A to AAA in one season.

Schrom is considered good enough to pitch for California's AAA affiliate in Salt Lake City, but was shuffled back to El Paso when the Angels cut their roster and left SLC with a surplus of good pitchers. Schrom had five complete games in 19 starts and also picked up a couple of saves in relief roles. Against Midland, Schrom was 3-2 last year. His ERA was 4.68 in 165 1/3 innings.

Both Midland's Randy Hundley and El Paso's Moose Stubing are counting on their pitching to win for them this year and the first series should give each some hint as to what to expect.

SPEED IS another ingredient that both teams seem to possess in abundance. Midland's Jared Martin swiped 45 bases at Bakersfield, Calif., last year while outfielder Eric Grandy stole 26 for Midland. Mike Turgeon had 15 swipes at Geneva and Dan Rohn led Pompano Beach with 28.

Grandy is back with Midland, despite a .311 average last year, but was plagued most of the spring by a sore arm.

Midland and El Paso resume hostilities with a 7:30 p.m. Two-Bit Beer Night game Friday. The series runs through Monday with a 6:30 p.m. game scheduled for Sunday.

Louganis triumphs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Greg Louganis, defending champion in the men's 1-meter springboard, held onto his title Wednesday by taking the title with a score of 851.37 in the 1979 U.S. Indoor Diving Championships.

Carrie Finneran of Columbus, Ohio, overcame a wide lead by Denise Christensen of Austin to win the finals in the women's 3-meter springboard.

Rebs, Pack embark on 2nd half race

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

The first half of the District 5-4A baseball race had to be disappointing for both the Midland Bulldogs and Midland Lee Rebels.

Midland took a 5-0 record into the final two games only to lose to Cooper and Lee in the seventh inning by scores of 6-5 and 6-4.

Lee, meanwhile, the defending district champion and pre-season favorite to represent the league in the playoffs again this year, wound up 3-4, but did manage to win its 13th straight over the Bulldogs Tuesday.

Anyway, all of that is behind them with Cooper's Cougars the outright first half champion with a 6-1 record. Midland and Abilene finished tied for second with 5-2 readings and Odessa Permian next with a 4-3 record.

The second half of the race opens today with at least five of the league's teams with a chance to win the second half and force a playoff with the Cougars for the bi-district playoff slot. Of course, if Cooper either wins or ties for the second half, then the Key City crew will gain the playoffs for the first time since 1976 when they faced Wichita Falls in the playoffs.

Midland entertains Permian today at 4 p.m. at the Memorial Stadium diamond and the Panthers will remember that 13-2 licking that Coach Larry Peel's Purple Pack put on Mojo in Odessa in the first round. The Panthers were the only team to defeat Cooper in the first half, winning 4-1.

While Midland and Permian square off in the Tall City, Midland Lee faces the Odessa High Bronchos at Fly Field in Odessa at the same time. Abilene Cooper faces San Angelo Central Saturday while Big Spring, which broke loose for a 23-2 victory over the Bobcats Tuesday, battles Abilene Saturday to open the second half of the race.

The games between the two Midland and Odessa schools were moved up to today in order to give them an Easter break this weekend.

MIDLAND MOST likely will call upon Archie Booth to face Permian today. Booth was the loser in relief of sophomore Mark Hewitt Tuesday against Lee and takes a 4-2 mound record against Permian. He was the winner in the first meeting, besting Panther ace Conley Crawford who is 6-1 on the year.

Leading the hit parade for the Bulldogs are Jimmy Zachry and Tommy Munoz with 474 and 458 averages, respectively. Next comes Sam Driskill with a .364 average and Tracy Gann with a .345 average. Gann ripped a two-run homer off Lee ace Terry Willis Tuesday and has five homers on the year and 14 runs-batted-in. Zachry, meanwhile, has six doubles, two triples and six homers and has 28 RBIs to his credit so far this season.

David Brigham and Booth are hitting above the .300 mark. Booth is hitting at a .303 clip and Brigham .302 for the Pack.

Permian's attack is led by shortstop Vic Vines, Roger Lightfoot and Doak Huddleston. Lightfoot plays first base and Huddleston handles the catching chores as Mojo brings a 13-6 season record into the game compared to Midland's 11-5 mark.

MIDLAND LEE'S attack is led by centerfielder John White and catcher Clay Calhoun. White is pounding the ball at a .391 clip and Calhoun owns a .350 average. They are the only regulars hitting above .300 and that has been one of the reasons for the 14-9 season record for Coach Ernie Johnson's outfit. Wade Cartwright is near the .300 mark with a .297 average while Willis is hitting .281 and Steve Pitts .279.

Either Alan Koonce (4-3) or Cartwright (2-0) will pitch against Odessa's Brian Cantrell or Billy Rumbaugh. Catcher Mario Alvarado hit a homer against Permian Tuesday as the Bronchos lost 4-3. OHS had a 1-6 loop record in the first half of the race and stands 6-15 going into today's game, but played some very close ball games in the first half of the race.

Lee took an 11-3 win in the first half against the Red Hosses at the Lee diamond and now both the Rebels and Bulldogs are looking forward to making a run for the second half title.

Remember Moose? Well, he's back in town

It was hoped that he'd been exiled to Salt Lake City or California or, maybe, the managers' union would have lifted his membership card during the winter, but Moose Stubing, draft it, is back at manager of the El Paso Diablos.

We didn't always feel that way about the Moose. The native New Yorker, who now calls El Paso his permanent home, always seemed like a nice enough sort, good for a readable before or after game quote.

It wasn't until last August that we began to regard him in the way a hometown fan might regard a basketball referee, which he is in the offseason, who had just blown one against his favorites.

At the time, it seemed like a harmless enough after-the-race is over pep talk, given by a manager just to keep the morale of his troops up. And it wasn't until several days later that the seeds of irritation took root.

The Diablos had won the first half West Division pennant and the redhot Midland Cubs were in the process of wrapping up the second half flag, even though the Diablos won the first game of the six-game series. They were still 5 1/2 games back and laboring. It was a meaningless victory at best and the writer dropped by the Diablos' dugout to record his statement of surrender and the expected assurance that "we'll get you guys in the playoff."

MOOSE MAINTAINED the facade of hope, declaring El Paso had Midland just where it wanted them. "All we have to do is win four of the next five and go home three and a half games out of first place to play San Antonio. Then, the race will go down to the wire and whoever sweeps Amarillo will win it."

TED BATTLES BATTLE SCENE

Perhaps it would have made sense if Midland was the only team ahead of El Paso, but Moose still had to catch San Antonio, only a game and a half behind Midland, before he could catch the Cubs.

However, you couldn't blame the guy for deluding himself, and his team. After all, the Northwestern coach tells his Wildcats that the other team puts its pants on one leg at a time before he sends them out to face Notre Dame.

And Jim Marshall undoubtedly assures his Oakland A's that the game isn't over until the last out and there's always pennant hope until mathematical elimination.

It sounded so absurd that out of courtesy it was necessary to turn the head to hide the smirk. The temptation to tell Moose to take off his cap and talk into it like it was a microphone was suppressed. There's an old adage that you never kick a guy when he's down by telling him to talk through his hat.

MERCY, AFTER all, is a luxury winners, like the Cubs were soon to be, can afford. And really, you couldn't blame Moose for trying to maintain the illusion of a pennant race.

That night, the Cubs whipped up on the Diablos to stretch their lead to 6 1/2 games and Stubing was purposely avoided the next night. Who likes to see grown men cry? It was just hoped he didn't do anything drastic back at the hotel room.

Baseball managers, like sportswriters, are notorious for the unreliability of their predictions. When one asserts that under no circumstances will Bobby Bonds be traded, you can make book that Bobby will be gone within the week.

When one predicts his team isn't out of the pennant race, you can be sure he is whistling past the graveyard, not really believing in miracles.

Stubing violated all the established codes for stiff-upper lip showmanship. He not only believed his Diablos were still alive in the pennant race, but proved it. El Paso not only won the next four games in Midland, but streaked to the wire with 11 straight wins to take the second half outright, a feat that enabled Midlanders to feel more than casual sympathy for the folks in Boston last summer.

It's little wonder that the Moose is persona non grata in the Tall City and it is only hoped that he will mend his ways this summer and regain the respect he lost as a managerial prognosticator last year. After all, if he's gonna talk, what does he think they gave him a hat for?

BYU signs pair

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Two avidly sought high school basketball players signed letters of intent to play at Brigham Young University Wednesday.

Greg Kite, a 6-11, 255 pound center who averaged 17.6 points and 15 rebounds per game in his senior year at Madison High School in Houston, Texas, said he would attend BYU.

BYU also received a commitment from Pete Aguilar.

Schmidt wrecks walk strategy

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

National League pitchers are not likely to walk Greg Luzinski intentionally to get to Mike Schmidt much more this season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates tried it twice Wednesday night — and both times the strategy backfired.

The Philadelphia Phillies' captain singled home a run in the first inning. Then Schmidt delivered another run with a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

And to cap his big game, Schmidt — batting with the bases empty in the seventh — drove a Bert Blyleven fast ball over the 371-foot sign in left-centerfield for a tie-breaking homer that gave the Phillies a 5-4 victory.

For Schmidt, who was criticized last season for ineffectiveness at bat after four consecutive productive years, the starring role against the Pirates was quite significant. But he was not ready to concede he had completely shaken the slump that plagued him in 1978, when he hit only 21 homers and drove in 78 runs after home run seasons of 36, 38, 38 and 38 and RBI totals of 116, 95, 107 and 101.

"If I'm still shining and glittering Oct. 1, then I'll take the compliments," he said after accepting congratulations in the Phillies' locker room.

"I think the challenge is there," said Manager Danny Ozark, who has moved Schmidt from third to fifth in the lineup this year, behind the slugger Luzinski. "Both times they pitched around Greg, he (Schmidt) is swinging well; he has been all spring."

Another player swinging well for the Phillies is Garry Maddox. He stroked three hits, giving him six in seven at-bats, drove in a run and scored one.

The Chicago at St. Louis game was rained out.

Steve Carlton pitched a complete game for the Phils, scattering nine hits, including Phil Garner's two-run homer, for his eighth victory in nine decisions over Pittsburgh since 1977.

"Carlton's tough, an outstanding pitcher," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. "When you go 0-for-4 against him, that's no disgrace."

Reds 9, Braves 5

Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, weakened by chicken pox shortly before the end of spring training, apparently has regained his strength. Concepcion unleashed his power against Atlanta, connecting for a grand slam homer, a 380-foot drive over the centerfield fence in the fifth inning as the Reds handed the Braves their fifth loss in six games.

"I'm OK now, but I probably came back too soon and was very weak," said Concepcion. "I had been struggling just to get one hit a game."

Ray Knight, who had three hits, and George Foster each had two RBI for the Reds, while Barry Bonnell and Dale Murphy homered for the Braves.

Padres 4, Giants 1

Randy Jones, shelled in his 1979 debut last week, and Rolfe Fingers combined on a five-hitter, pitching the Padres past the Giants.

Dave Winfield stroked three hits for San Diego, and Fernando Gonzalez drove in two runs with a single and a double.

Expos 3, Mets 2

Tony Perez' 11th inning homer off Skip Lockwood gave the Expos their third extra-inning victory in three games. Montreal has played five games, all of which have been decided by one run, and won four.

The game was enlivened by a bench-clearing brawl in the ninth inning. The fistuffs started when Montreal's Gary Carter tried to score from first on pitcher Pete Falcone's wild throw to first on a grounder.

Carter crashed into Mets catcher John Stearns, and Stearns — a former University of Colorado football player — hit Carter with solid right hand punches. Both benches cleared, but no other major fights erupted. Carter and Stearns then were ejected.

"I didn't understand why the umpire threw me out of the game," said Carter. "I was just trying to do my job, trying to touch the plate. I thought John was out of line for initiating a fight."

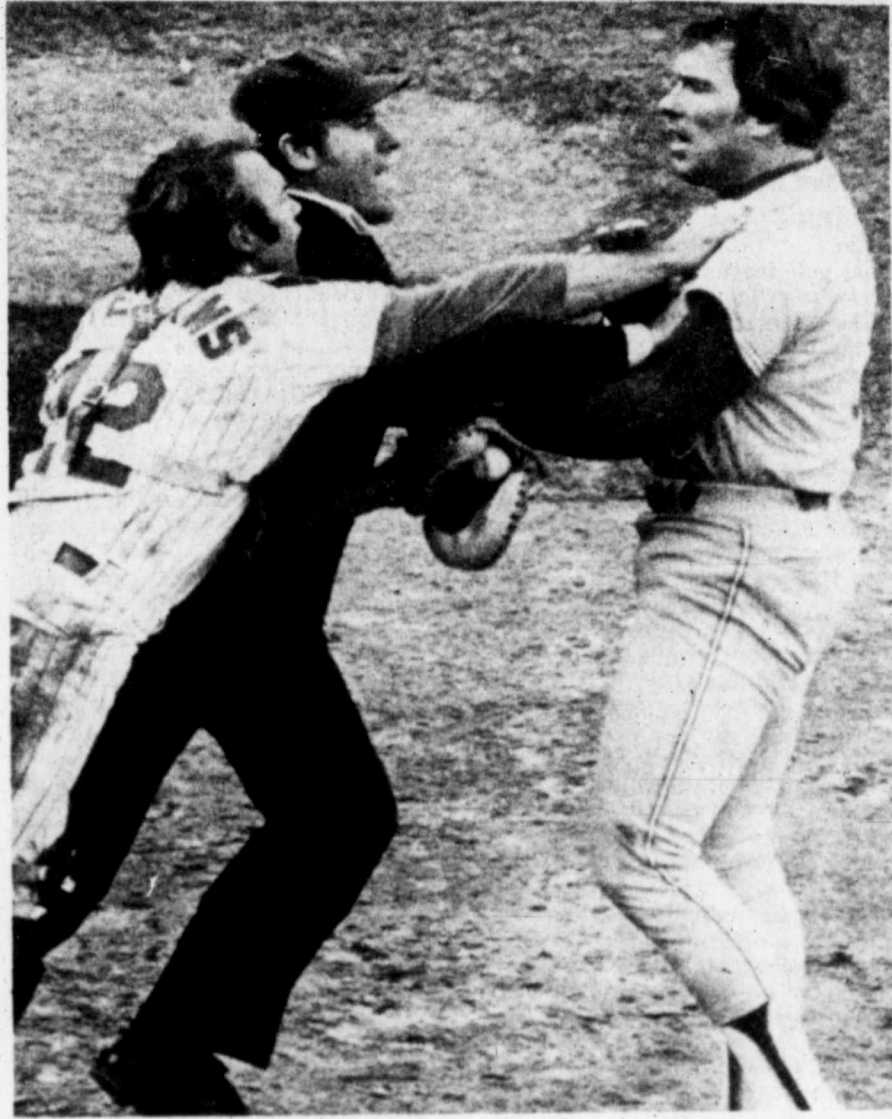

"Nobody got hurt," said Stearns.

Forsch yields 10 hits, but tops Dodgers, 10-3

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Ken Forsch had little time to worry about becoming only the second major league pitcher ever to throw two consecutive no-hitters.

"I wasn't thinking at all about another no-hitter," said Forsch, who lost his bid for his second gem of the young season on the third pitch of the Astros' 10-3 victory over Los Angeles Wednesday night.

"It was just thinking about trying to keep the lead off runner off base," Forsch added. "I had just as good stuff tonight as I did in the no-hitter, but I gave up 10 hits. I can't explain it."

Forsch, 2-0, surrendered a lead off single to Davey Lopes in the first inning. The veteran right hander went the distance as Houston roled up its fifth victory in six starts, the club's best start since 1968.

Cesar Cedeno's three-run homer broke a fifth inning tie against losing pitcher Don Sutton, 1-1, and helped Houston to its most productive offensive performance of the year.

Los Angeles took a 2-0 second inning lead on rbi singles by Sutton and Bill Russell, but Houston came back to tie the score in the bottom of the inning on run-producing base hits by Eric Cabell and Bob Watson.

Cabell's throwing error following Dusty Baker's single allowed Steve Garvey to score from third on the same play in the third inning as the Dodgers went ahead 3-2.

Watson's sacrifice fly tied the score again in the fourth before Cedeno put the Astros ahead to stay with his first home run of the season one inning later.

A two-run single by Alan Ashby highlighted a four-run Astros outburst in the eighth inning against reliever Charlie Hough, as Houston sent nine men to the plate in its biggest inning of the season.

"You can't get too excited about winning like this or get too down in the dumps about losing early in the season," Houston Manager Bill Virdon said. "But if we can continue playing like this, it could turn out to be one of those years."

Indy war reaches showdown

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The two sides in championship auto racing's biggest high-stakes poker game, reluctant but ready for a showdown, have tightened their belts, put their chips on the table and dared the other to call.

The battle lines are drawn, and with three days left before the entry deadline for the $1 million Indianapolis 500, neither side seemed likely to back down.

The U.S. Auto Club and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway are adamant they won't give in to Championship Auto Racing Teams. And CART, which numbers most of the sport's top drivers in its ranks, has threatened to boycott the Indy 500 and stage its own million-dollar race the same day unless it is given more control.

"There is no consideration being given to extending the date" past Sunday's deadline for entering the 500, USAC

President Dick King said Wednesday.

CART, A breakaway group of championship car owners and drivers, has run one race of its own already this season. Basically, CART is seeking an increase in manifold pressure settings, which would raise speeds, and an equal voice with USAC in inspection of the race cars at the Speedway.

King said, however, "The feeling of the USAC executive committee, is to provide a safe and competitive race for the fans."

The CART drivers include former Indy winners Al and Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock, plus defending USAC national champion Tom Sneva.

Only 28 of the usual 90 or so entries for the 500 had been received by late Wednesday. Many of those 28, however, are

Griffey says he's better than Pete; Bulls talk to McGuire

BASEBALL—Outfielder Kirk Gibson, the Tigers' No. 1 draft choice last June, will miss up to four weeks due to complications from a spring training knee injury.

Ken Griffey believes he can be a better leadoff hitter than Pete Rose was for Cincinnati. "I think I'm better than Pete. I can do more things. I can steal bases and beat out infield hits, that's two things right there," said the 28-year-old rightfielder, who stepped into the top spot in the Reds lineup after Rose left for Philadelphia. Griffey previously batted second behind Rose. "I feel freer at the plate. I don't have to sacrifice myself unless the situation comes up. Batting behind Pete, I used to have to move him over, hit to the right side a lot."

The New York Mets announced a pact with Cablevision Program Services Co. to telecast most of the regular season games not included in the current local commercial broadcast schedule. # Mota's hit pay beats Pete's

True or false: the highest-paid singles hitter in baseball today is Pete Rose? False. Pete gets about $1 million a year. But, if he gets 200 hits this year, that comes to a lousy $5,000 a hit.

Many Mota gets $10,000 a hit. No one has ever got that kind of money for hitting, throwing or catching a baseball — or maybe, any other kind of ball. Reggie Jackson barely gets that per home run.

Hitting is all Manny Mota does. Rose has to field grounders, tag runners and eat dirt for nine innings every day for his money. One uniform laundering would last Manny a season.

Of course, the hits he gets are almost always game-winners or even pennant-winners. The Dodgers don't like to squander Mota's hits. Manny never comes to bat in the first inning and almost never in a game where the team is way ahead or way behind. Manny's hits are gill-edged. You can borrow money on them. Manny's hits never come in the bottom of the eighth of a game the Dodgers are losing 12-0. They are more apt to be in the bottom of the 12th of a playoff game with the winning run on third and the score tied.

MANNY WENT to bat 33 times last year. That's not a good week at the plate for Pete Rose.

That meant that Manny got to sit out more games than a season-ticket holder — 130. The club trainer was on the field more than he was. Pinch hitters are a lonely breed, anyway. They don't make the Hall of Fame, win MVPs or get picked for the All-Star teams. They are even an endangered species. In the other league, the designated hitter has all but phased them out and the National League is probably within a vote or two of ratifying their demise.

Designated hitter win MVP awards and can even win batting championships, or Triple Crowns. All that's required is 502 plate appearances. Manny Mota barely rolled up 502 plate appearances in the last nine years.

Even relief pitchers can win Cy Young Awards. Pinch hitters, on the other hand, have their own little pantheon. Pete Rose may be on the spur of Stan Musial, or Ty Cobb, or Tris Speaker, or Willie Mays or Henry Aaron or the other 3,000-hits-a-career men. But Manny is stalking such household names as Frenchy Bordagaray, Frankie Baumholtz, Fatty Fothergill, Dave Philley, Tommy Davis, Ted Easterly or Harvey Hendrick. In case you haven't been paying attention or following your Sporting News, these are pinch hitters who pinch hit .300 or more. Manny is ninth on this list with a .293 lifetime pinch-hitting average but he is .315 since joining the Dodgers in 1963.

The guy Manny is really chasing is a fat catcher from the old Chicago White Sox who used to sleep on the rubbing table in the locker room between plate appearances. Smokey Burgess got baseball's high of 144 pinch hits. Manny needs 12 to tie him.

MANNY DOESN'T sleep between appearances. Manny realizes you don't hit a pitch, you hit a pitcher. Manny is as wide awake during a game as the shortstop. He watches pitchers warming up the way a riverboat gambler might watch this sucker shuffle cards.

If you asked Manny in the middle of a game what to look for at the plate, Manny would say, "The pitcher on the mound throws his slider with the count two-and-oh and goes to the fast ball with men on, and has quit on his curve because it's bounding on him. The guy in the bullpen warming up is practicing spitballs because his curve is hanging. And the shortstop is cheating a step towards second and you can pull the ball through the hole there. The center fielder is playing too deep. If you get one over the heart of the plate you can stop it in front of him by 40 feet. And don't swing at the first pitch. Ninety percent of the time with this guy, it's a ball. If he drops his right shoulder, look for the fastball. Lay off the changeup. You'll pop it up."

If Manny Mota gets 12 hits, he joins Smokey Burgess. If he gets 13, he's all alone at the top. If he gets 10, he looks for the Dodgers to get in the World Series again. Even at $10,000 per hit, they're a baseball bargain. And, he may not get in the Hall of Fame, but there are guys in there he'd probably hit for in a pinch.

Whitaker in comeback

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The Masters is an invitational golf tournament, and for five years Jack Whitaker wasn't invited. "As far as I can figure out, I said something Mr. Roberts didn't like, so he told my bosses I wasn't wanted at the Masters anymore," said Whitaker, whose bright, sophisticated commentaries for CBS have earned him the label of "the Eric Sevareid of sports."

Clifford Roberts was the tournament chairman who ruled the Masters with an iron hand until he committed suicide in 1977. He was the one man who could never be accused of kowtowing to television.

Whitaker recalled that the 1966 Masters wound up in a three-way playoff between Tommy Jacobs, Gay Brewer and Jack Nicklaus. Housewives, not golfers, are normally home on Monday afternoons, which was just one of the problems of covering the play-off.

while the network of Edward R. Murrow and "60 Minutes" meekly surrendered to Roberts.

"I didn't feel too good about it," Whitaker said. In 1972, an executive at CBS asked Whitaker if he wanted to go down to Augusta, Ga. and just enjoy the Masters as a golf fan.

"I jumped at the chance because one of the charms of the Masters is that it is a reunion and I could be there with no worries," he said. But his holiday was interrupted when the late British broadcaster Henry Longhurst became ill and had to be hospitalized.

A meeting was arranged with Roberts, who told Whitaker: "Young man, we're delighted you'll be able to work with us."

"I don't think he even remembered the previous incident," Whitaker said. "The whole thing smacked of a 'B' movie."

MANY OF Roberts' edicts were good, Whitaker says, particularly limiting the number of TV commercials and moving concession stands and all the CBS equipment out of sight. He even made sure the CBS towers were painted Masters green.

Leafs, Flames ready for 2nd game rumble

By The Associated Press
There was no talk of animosity among the Toronto Maple Leafs and Atlanta Flames going into Game 2 tonight of their first-round National Hockey League playoff series. But the first-game rumble was on each coach's mind.

Nine players were ejected and a record game-total 219 penalty minutes were assessed after a second-period brawl in Tuesday's game. The Leafs, playing with only three defenders in the third period, won 2-1.

Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton was taking a conservative approach, saying his team should be wary of the penalty box.

"With our backs to the wall, we may not be able to be as aggressive Thursday night. You don't have much choice when you can be out of business in 60 minutes," he said.

Toronto Coach Roger Neilson took the philosophic approach. "When you play it tough, sometimes these things break out."

ACTION ALSO resumes tonight in each of the other best-of-three series.

The Canucks, who won 3-2 Tuesday night in Philadelphia, take on the Flyers in Vancouver; the New York Rangers, who pounded the Los Angeles Kings 7-1, go to the West Coast, and the Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-3 winners over Buffalo in Game 1, host the Sabres.

Awaiting the winners of the four series are the New York Islanders, Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and defending NHL champion Montreal Canadiens, all division winners.

The Maple Leafs, who finished the season with 81 points, third worst among the postseason contenders, have said continually that the playoffs are a whole new season. And they were saying it with more certainty after Tuesday.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Having a nose for the news doesn't always mean sniffing out a big story. Only one reporter was among 20 men and women whose noses made news on the "Ten Best Noses" list compiled by a cosmetic surgeon.

Dr. Brent Joseph's list of "Ten Best Noses," among the women, included Princess Grace of Monaco, actresses Jane Fonda, Candice Bergen, Catherine Deneuve, Cheryl Tiegs and Cheryl Ladd, singers Olivia Newton-John, Leslie Uggams and Nancy Wilson and television reporter Sandy Hill, who co-anchors ABC's "Good Morning, America" show.

The men on Joseph's list were actors Warren Beatty, Dirk Benedict, Kris Kristofferson, Michael Landon, Ryan O'Neal, Jan-Michael Vincent and Billy Dee Williams, baseball star Steve Garvey, Olympic decathlete winner Bruce Jenner and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

"Size had absolutely nothing to do with the ratings," said Joseph, a head and neck surgeon specializing in facial cosmetic surgery. He emphasized he judged noses on the basis of which were proportionate to the faces they were attached to, and not on the basis of beauty.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sounding more like a foreign diplomat than a singer, Pearl Bailey says not one American in 10 understands what is happening in the Middle East.

"They don't know that you can stand on the bank of the Jordan River and look up into the mouths of Israeli guns ... The American people are in trouble if they don't know about the world and try to do something about it," the 61-year-old good-will ambassador said at a Washington Press Club luncheon Wednesday.

"We are 49,000 years behind the times. How can we build a peace bridge if we still can't get all children into school? There is a nervous laughter all over the world; people are listening, but they aren't hearing. The American people are so confused — they don't know whom to believe."

CHICAGO (AP) — Actor Henry Fonda, hospitalized for an arthritic hip condition Sunday, may be discharged in a few days, hospital officials say.

A spokeswoman at Michael Reese Hospital said Wednesday that Fonda, 74, was resting comfortably. The actor's physician, Dr. Edward Newman, described his condition as "markedly improved."

Performances of "First Monday in October" that Fonda was appearing in were canceled for the remainder of the week.

DETROIT (AP) — A coalition of Polish-American leaders in the Detroit area is trying to raise at least $5,000 to help the widow of executed Army Pvt. Eddie Slovik with medical bills and living expenses until Congress approves benefits for her from her husband's insurance.

Slovik was the only American GI shot for desertion in World War II.

Antoinette Slovik, who was recently released from a hospital after undergoing treatment for a series of crippling ailments, is "at the end of her resources," said Roman Ulman, head of the coalition.

"A country that is great enough to be the arsenal of democracy ... to come to the aid of countries that were our enemies during the war, should be a nation just enough to help one of the victims of that war," Ulman said.

Slovik, from Detroit, died in front of a firing squad Jan. 31, 1945, in France. In 1977, the Army Board for the Correction of Military Records upheld the execution's legality, thereby denying Mrs. Slovik's request for the face value of her husband's $10,000 GI life insurance policy plus interest amounting to nearly $70,000.

President Carter has asked Congress to give Mrs. Slovik the money, and a bill to give her $76,000 in GI insurance is now before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Chaos prevails in Ugandan capital

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Men, women and children ransacked house after house in Kampala today, and the invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles occupying the Ugandan capital made no attempt to check the looting.

"There's nobody trying to stop them any more," said a European resident. "I can see them from my window carrying out everything — chairs, curtains, everything. I can't leave my home."

In the Tanzanian capital of Dar es Salaam, informants said officials of the new provisional government announced Wednesday might fly to Kampala today to try to restore order.

The Uganda National Liberation Front, a coalition of Ugandan exile groups in Tanzania, announced creation of the new government after Kampala fell to the invasion force that fought its way up through southwest Uganda. Yussufu K. Lule, the former head of Makerere University in Kampala and one of Africa's most respected educators, was named provisional president, defense minister and armed forces chief.

Meanwhile, President Idi Amin was broadcasting from a Radio Uganda transmitter in eastern Uganda, repeating in English and Swahili a long tirade against the invaders.

Alternately plaintive, bitter and defiant, he declared:

"I, Idi Amin Dada, would like to denounce the announcement that my government has been overthrown....

"I am speaking as the president of the republic and the commander-in-chief of the armed forces. I am in full control of the Ugandan armed forces."

Province by province, he listed areas in the east, north and northeast he said he still controlled. He recited long lists of damage allegedly done by invaders and looters to farms, factories, homes, hospitals, utilities and "innocent people."

"Kampala is in flames because of enemy artillery given by Zionists and imperialists," he asserted. "They're taking property built up by people's sweat."

The invaders made no move to pursue the remnants of Amin's army. But it was generally assumed they would have to clear the vital supply routes from Kenya by taking Jinja, where Amin was reported to have established a headquarters 50 miles east of Kampala, and Tororo, 80 miles farther east near the border.

Theoretically, Amin still controls two-thirds of Uganda, including his tribal homeland in the northwest and the eastern provinces adjoining Kenya and Sudan. He still can probably count on the loyalty of his Kakwa tribesmen and Nubian mercenaries.

Kampala had only a few scattered gunshots through the night, probably fired by scattered bands of Ugandan soldiers trying to flee the city. Some stragglers from Amin's army were beaten to death Wednesday by groups of long-repressed citizens as the invaders entered the city.

President Lule addressed the Ugandan people by radio Wednesday. He pledged to re-establish a "rule of law" and said "there must be no revenge" against Amin's officials and soldiers. But observers doubted the new government could avoid a wave of vengeance killings after eight years of murderous purges by Amin and his supporters in which estimates of the dead run as high as 300,000.

Lule said free elections, last held in 1962, would be held "as soon as conditions permit."

Woolworth rejects Brascan takeover bid

NEW YORK (AP) — F.W. Woolworth Co. has rung up a no sale on its corporate cash register, rejecting a $1.13 billion takeover bid by Brascan Ltd. as "grossly inadequate."

Woolworth management issued a scathing attack Wednesday on the Canadian company's $35 a share offer, questioning not only the economics but also the ethics and the legality of various aspects of Brascan's proposal.

Woolworth Chairman Edward F. Gibbons, in a statement issued after a lengthy meeting of the directors, said he considered Brascan's offer "grossly inadequate" in light of Woolworth's earnings and financial future.

Sealed bids will be received until 3:00 P.M. April 27, 1979 to be opened at 3:00 P.M. April 27, 1979 in the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's firing squads executed eight more of the shah's men in the provinces today, raising the confirmed total to 109 in two months of Islamic power.

Tehran's Kayhan newspaper reported that revolutionary gunmen rounded up 141 persons in Tehran and elsewhere over the past three days, including an ex-deputy prime minister, two senators, university professors and a Moslem clergyman.

More than 4,000 persons are believed held in a central Tehran prison on various charges leveled by Khomeini's revolutionary government, but the exact number here and in other jails around the country is not known.

The state radio said Mahmoud Moini, former chief of the SAVAK secret police in the holy city of Qom, was executed at 1 a.m. on charges of "corruption to the core, fighting against clergymen and warring with God and his emissaries."

The radio said a new revolutionary court in the northwestern city of Zanjan found army officer Abbas Kamali, 53, guilty at 4:28 a.m. of being "corrupt to the core" and had him executed immediately.

In the southwestern oil center of Ahwaz, four others were executed at 4:25 a.m. on the same charge, the radio said.

The Iranian public generally appeared to approve the death sentences handed down so far.

The leftist Fedayeen guerrilla organization called the execution Saturday of former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida a "service to humanity," the state radio said Wednesday.

And Khomeini, the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution, said the Islamic regime is "respected by all those who have concern for humanity and human rights."

But U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, Amnesty International and a number of foreign governments have called for an end to the executions and secret trials in Iran.

The West German government added its voice Wednesday, appealing to Iran's revolutionary leaders to respect the rights of those on trial for supporting the shah.

It said that preservation of human rights was a declared goal of the Iranian revolution.

Oil decontrol backlash looming

By J. P. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter's proposals to conserve energy may be headed for defeat in Congress, in part because of backlash against his decision to lift price controls on crude oil.

Members of the House and Senate committees handling the conservation measures say that three of Carter's four main proposals are in trouble.

"They had real problems on the merits, and now the people who are likely to support them are irritated by decontrol," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., an outspoken opponent of Carter's decontrol plan.

Moffett and others on Capitol Hill agreed that Congress is likely to approve mandatory thermostat settings, but may kill standby gasoline rationing, as well as bans on weekend gasoline sales and decorative lighting.

The mandatory thermostat settings — 65 degrees for commercial buildings in winter and 80 degrees in summer — would save the most oil, about 350,000 barrels a day.

Energy Department officials Wednesday conceded that they faced problems winning approval for the other standby meaasures, especially weekend service station closings, although a DOE spokesman said, "We still hope to get them all. We're fighting like hell."

There has been no formal vote on the standby conservation plans in the House, but according to Moffett an informal vote in the Commerce subcommittee two weeks ago indicated little support for Carter's proposals.

Earlier this week the Senate Energy Committee agreed to support mandatory thermostat settings, but rejected bans on outdoor lighting — a measure DOE estimates would save 4,000 of the 19.5 million barrels the nation consumes daily. The committee also deferred action on rationing and on weekend gasoline sales.

"There is little enthusiasm anywhere on Capitol Hill for the ban on lighting, even as a symbol," says Frank Potter, a member of the House Commerce subcommittee staff.

On the Senate Energy Committee, Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has also expressed reservations about the change for passage.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas is one of a number in the Senate who have staked out objections to the standby rationing plan which some argue has a bias against rural and agricultural states.

Rep. Al Gore, D-Tenn., said, "The prevailing opinion here is that rationing is in a lot of trouble." Gore said, however, that it can be saved if the administration sets aside blocks of rationing coupons for states to allocate.

By far the most controversial measure, short of rationing, is weekend service station closings, which DOE has estimated would save 240,000 barrels a day. Under stiff opposition from the tourism industry and officials of rural states, both the House and Senate energy panels have been reluctant to indicate any moves toward approval.

One House Commerce Committee aide, however, said that the panel may approve the measure on April 24 when it comes before the committee so the full House will have an opportunity to vote on the issue.

Still another factor, according to Gore, is that "the savings appear to be disputed by DOE's own studies." Gore and others also point out that weekend station closings may not pass because there is growing support for Carter's alternate proposal that states set their own conservation goals, and work out their own plans to meet them.

Question ignites huge battle on Capitol Hill

By J. P. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Can the American oil refining industry enjoy price decontrol and also be allowed to keep hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies, too?

That question has ignited a political battle on Capitol Hill certain to engulf the oil industry and the Carter administration.

As one Washington oil lobbyist sardonically observed: "We simply must protect the American consumer from cheap foreign oil products."

Such protection is already afforded the domestic refining industry by a sheltering network of Department of Energy regulations. This shelter would be stripped away under the decontrol plan by putting U.S. and foreign refiners on the same price footing.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., a friend of the refiners and a forceful member of the Senate Energy Committee, thinks that the domestic refiners need help from Congress "so they don't have a competitive disadvantage." He is preparing legislation that would make up what he estimates to be a $2-a-barrel loss to the U.S. refiners if they are forced to compete openly with their foreign counterparts.

Johnston and the major domestic refiners such as Ashland Oil, Sun Oil and Standard of Indiana as well as well as most of the "small" refiners make this argument: Because of stiff environmental laws, the Jones Act requirement to use higher-cost American tankers and other rules and regulations the domestic refiners need protective relief from the effects of decontrol.

Larry Goldstein of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation agrees. "The current advantage they have over foreign refiners will be eliminated under decontrol," he said. Northeast Petroleum's Vice President John Buckley offers a stronger view: "The combination of removing (import tariff) fees and ending the entitlements program (DOE's regulatory subsidy) will leave the U.S. refiner naked — some capacity will be shut down."

Out of 19.5 million barrels of oil consumed daily in the United States, 17 million barrels are refined domestically.

Johnston says that he will soon introduce legislation calling for about a $1.50-a-barrel import tariff on refined oil products such as heating or fuel oil to shelter domestic refiners. "You need a pot of money from somewhere," he said.

At the center of the battle is the DOE's complex entitlements program which Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., calls, "The largest transfer system we have outside of welfare," and last week President Carter assailed as an outright subsidy to import oil.

DOE's entitlements program equalizes the cost refiners pay for oil by, in effect, averaging the costs they pay for domestic oil — selling for as low as $5.90 a barrel — with foreign oil that sells for $16.50 a barrel or more.

A recent DOE refining study concludes that under the entitlements program domestic refiners now enjoy a $1.36- to $3.36-a-barrel subsidy, with the largest subsidy going to small refiners with less than 10,000 barrels a day capacity.

As Carter phases out domestic oil price controls beginning this June, the entitlements subsidy the refiners receive will be reduced and eventually ended.

Ironically, the domestic refiners' pleas came at a time when Carter has awarded the oil companies — at least in part — their longest held goal: oil price decontrol. Meanwhile, Carter has also eliminated a 63-cent-a-barrel tariff on imported refined products, which produces domestic refiners' competitiveness with foreign sellers.

The administration is sharply opposed to tariff or other schemes to protect domestic refiners en masse.

Stuart Eisenstadt, Carter's domestic policy advisor, has told oil producers in recent weeks that the administration expects the refiners to absorb up to 33 percent of the added oil costs simply resulting from decontrol by cutting their profit margins on refining operations.

One senior DOE official says: "We're waiting for the refiners to come in crying," and goes on to say any added protection for refiners "is going to be more inflationary." Asked which companies are pressing hardest to preserve their advantage, the official said, "Amoco (Standard Oil Co. of Indiana), Sun and Ashland are the most concerned about it, along with the little guys."

Under a 1978 request from Johnston and Dingell, DOE has undertaken a comprehensive study of the domestic refining industry.

One senior DOE policymaker summarized the findings of the study saying, "We tried to look at the national security, competition and balance of payment issues and we just couldn't find any justification for relief."

Beyond that, in the words of one senior administration official, "How can Jimmy Carter politically call for trade protection for domestic refiners after decontrolling oil?"

The refiners disagree.

"There absolutely is a national security argument, it's dangerous... it acts as a signal to foreign countries and in particular the Arab OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries), to develop their own petrochemical and refining capacity rather than exporting crude oil," says Urvan Sternfels, of the National Petroleum Refiners Association.

Sternfels adds that ending the entitlements subsidy "will under cut the ability of domestic refiners to recapture profits."

DOE counters, saying that since the United States is already importing oil, what difference does it make to import products, particularly when the oil product imported is likely to come from oil refineries operated by some of the U.S. majors overseas.

Some of the refiners hope that Johnston will be able to hammer together a coalition with Sen. Edward

Play deceptive king to mislead declarer

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

If Heaven drops a date, open your mouth, says the Chinese proverb. But it's wise to keep your eyes open too so that you can see both the date and whose mouth it's falling into.

West led the deuce of spades, declarer played low from dummy, East put up the ten and South won with the ace.

South drew trumps, ran the clubs to discard a spade from dummy and tried a finesse with the queen of diamonds. When the finesse succeeded South scored 1530 points.

Who had his eyes and mouth closed?

SHOULD PLAY HIGH

If East has his eyes open he plays a deceptive king or queen of spades at the first trick.

South would not risk the diamond finesse. He would discard dummy's queen of diamonds and lead spades to develop a "sure" second spade trick. But that second spade trick is an illusion—a false date that won't really drop into South's mouth.

ANSWER: Bid two spades. If you had another king or even if one of your clubs were changed to a low spade you would jump to four spades. The actual hand is too horrible for anything more than a single raise.

New York's 'Trib' had offers for Panax funds

NEW YORK (AP) — The short-lived New York newspaper, The Trib, was offered secret South African financial backing through Michigan newspaper owner John McGoff, according to a report in the April 14 edition of The Nation.

The magazine quoted former Trib publisher Leonard Saffir as saying that McGoff, who has been linked with several covert operations of the South African Department of Information, had discussions with him about the backing.

The Trib ceased publications a year ago.

Saffir said nothing came of the discussions, possibly because he was unwilling to relinquish control of the paper which McGoff indicated would be a condition of the support, according to The Nation.

McGoff is president of the Panax newspaper chain and owns several newspapers "whose financing is shrouded in mystery," said the magazine. No direct link has been shown between him and financing from a secret fund maintained by the Information Department as alleged in the South African press, The Nation noted. Saffir told the magazine that he met with McGoff and two Panax officials on Nov. 15, 1977, at the suggestion of Richard Mellon Scaife, a member of the Mellon family who had expressed interest in becoming a Trib investor.

The former publisher said he subsequently received the first of several telephone calls from Gerald Zoffer who said he was a writer and investment banker, said the Nation.

According to the magazine, Zoffer asked how much money the paper needed and said the South African government could back it and McGoff would make the investment in order to keep it secret.

Lester Wolser, The Trib's chief financial advisor, then met in Detroit with three Panax officials who said "there would be no problem" in supplying $5 million to $10 million but later was told McGoff was not interested, the magazine said.

The magazine said McGoff and Scaife did not return calls to their offices. Zoffer termed the account "total nonsense" and official South African sources denied any knowledge of the affair.

Laboratory workers to be honored throughout week

Medical laboratory professionals are receiving special attention in Midland this week during National Medical Laboratory Week.

The week is being observed here with a proclamation-signing by Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.

While those medical lab professionals who stick fingers and draw blood get lots of attention from their clients, many work behind the scenes doing critical tests to help keep Midlanders healthy.

The laboratories where these professionals work may be found in hospitals, clinics, research centers, universities or doctors' offices. They may also be private, independent laboratories that bring better health care to rural communities, according to Margaret Kepple, supervisor of the medical laboratory at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Professional personnel in the laboratory include pathologists, medical technologists, medical laboratory technicians and laboratory assistants.

Training within the field varies from one to six years. Preparatory education requirements run the scale from a high school diploma to a medical school degree, Mrs. Kepple said.

While most medical technologists have college degrees plus internships in the field of medical technology, personnel may also have completed specialized and approved education in junior colleges, military programs, technical schools and hospital schools, she noted.

Midland Memorial Hospital operates a school of medical technology in the hospital laboratory, Mrs. Kepple said. The hospital works with The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, San Angelo State University and Texas Tech University to recruit students.

Each of the eight students enrolled now either has a four-year degree or is in his senior year, she noted.

In the laboratory, medical technologists analyze blood, body fluids and tissue samples for evidence of disease or infection. In small laboratories the same individual can do all the different categories of tests.

In larger labs, some personnel may specialize in areas such as hematology, chemistry, nuclear medicine, microbiology or histology, Mrs. Kepple said.

The field is open to people with all levels of education, interests and talents, Mrs. Kepple noted, and National Medical Laboratory Week is designed to let more people know the field is here.

Nine objectives approved for Aging Services Plan

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Nine objectives for an Aging Services Plan received the approval Wednesday of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission board of directors during a regular session.

One proposal calls for consolidating the Area Agency on Aging, which is set up through the PBRPC, and the Title VII nutrition projects into a single unit to better serve needs of older persons.

It also would provide a course on gerontology at Midland College and make scholarships available to professionals working in the field of aging.

Other points include improving quality of medical services, improving senior citizen facilities, providing volunteer and paid job opportunities and developing a society for professionals on aging which would provide training programs.

William E. Smith, director of the Area Aging Agency, said a study shows there are 29,889 persons in the Permian Basin area who are potential candidates for the program. Currently, only about 25 percent of these people are being reached, he said.

Programs for senior citizens will include nutritional meals, transportation, information and referral and shopping assistance, Smith said.

A resolution opposing a federal regulation on the CETA program was passed by the board.

Willie Taylor with Manpower explained the government would require contracts be made for those persons working in a non-profit agency.

"This is impossible because we don't have the administrative staff," Taylor said.

Pre-applications for Community Development Block Grant funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development received favorable comments from the board. HUD now will advise each applicant if he or she should go ahead with a full application.

Receiving the board's approval were proposals from Monahans for 24 housing units, Fort Stockton for rehabilitating some homes and demolishing others, Iraan for a gas transmission line, Lamesa to pave streets and provide storm drainage, Rankin to replace a main gas line, Seagraves for rehabilitating 30 homes, Stanton for a new water tower and to Terrell County for rehabilitating homes and providing a drainage system.

Quarterly report on the Human Resources Advisory Committee was accepted by the board.

Executive Director Ernie Crawford was authorized to submit a grant application to HUD for an annual planning grant.

Trial of Jesus a mockery, speaker says

The trial of Christ was a mockery of justice, Mark Withrow, attorney, told members of the Downtown Lions Club at their Wednesday noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

Speaking on the subject, "The Trial of Christ — from a Lawyer's Viewpoint," Withrow said there was nothing fair about the trial, the proceedings of which "reeked of injustice."

The speaker, who is a member of the club, was presented by Duke Jimerson, program chairman.

Withrow reviewed briefly the historical background, leading up to conditions as they existed at the time of the trial of Jesus.

He discussed the Hebrew law as it applied to capital punishment cases, and told of rules of procedure practiced in the Sanhedrin, the highest Jewish court. The many protective measures made available to the defendant also were noted by the speaker, who said that not one of them was offered in Jesus' behalf.

Withrow cited 25 violations of the strict Hebrew penal code in the "pre-planned" arrest, conviction and crucifixion of Jesus Christ, "all in one day."

He explained that the Sanhedrin, at the time of Jesus' trial, had a large number of dishonorable, corrupt men among its 71 members.

The speaker also mentioned the actions and conversations which took place in Jesus' appearances before Pilate.

Withrow urged his listeners to review the incident as recorded in the Scriptures in order to gain a more thorough understanding of his remarks.

Passover services crowded in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Nearly 1,000 Jews, the largest crowd in recent years, packed into Moscow's Central Synagogue for an officially sanctioned religious service at the start of the Passover holiday.

Jewish sources said that this year, many of the younger and more activist leaders of the community chose to attend the service, and the crowd consisted of young families as well as old men.

"We are showing our solidarity," one Jew said Wednesday evening.

There were no reports of any incidents outside the temple.

More than a dozen American tourists joined the Moscow Jews inside the synagogue, where only 500 gathered in 1978.

Pope opens Easter fete

VATICAN CITY (AP) — More than 2,500 priests, bishops and cardinals renewed their vows of celibacy with Pope John Paul II today as he opened four days of Easter celebrations in the largest concelebrated Mass in Vatican history.

A crowd of 10,000 watched as the pontiff, 22 cardinals, 40 bishops and 2,500 priests — half of Rome's diocesan clerics — celebrated Mass and renewed their vows before the huge main altar of Saint Peter's Basilica.

The concelebration, a Mass celebrated in unison by a group of priests, came three days after John Paul II upheld mandatory celibacy for Roman Catholic priests in one of the strongest pronouncements in his six-month old pontificate.
