Wants out

Johnny Carson determined to exit despite $2.5 million-a-year salary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson wants to quit "The Tonight Show," but his attorney denies reports the entertainer is determined to leave NBC's popular late night program sometime this fall.

The New York Times said Friday that Carson — whose $2.5 million a year contract almost certainly makes him the highest paid entertainer on television — would leave the talk show Sept. 30, his 17th anniversary as "Tonight" host.

But Carson's attorney, Henry I. Bushkin, who reportedly returned here from Las Vegas, Nev., with the entertainer Thursday, told the Los Angeles Times his client had not set a firm departure date.

"After 17 years, Johnny feels he's given it his best shot," Bushkin said, acknowledging Carson had talked with NBC about leaving the program before his contract expires in the spring of 1981.

Carson's departure would be another serious blow for NBC, which has endured a disastrous season in the ratings. The network has been last in the weekly prime time ratings all but five times since September, and though Carson's program is outside of prime time, shock waves most certainly would be felt at the affiliate level.

Carson was unavailable for comment on the reports. A source connected with the "Tonight" show who asked not to be identified said, however, that Carson's request followed an ultimatum from NBC President Fred Silverman, who reportedly was upset by Carson's frequent absences from the show.

Bushkin denied that, and also took issue with reports from New York that Silverman had tried unsuccessfully to dissuade Carson from leaving. "That's not what happened," he told the Los Angeles Times.

One missing on tanker set afire by lightning

NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) — One of 33 crew members of a Liberian oil tanker was missing and presumed dead today after lightning touched off explosions on the ship in the Neches River, the Coast Guard said.

Of the other 32 men, the Coast Guard said 15 were hospitalized with cuts and burns and another 15 were treated and released. The Coast Guard said the two other men apparently escaped injury altogether.

In addition, authorities said, two dockworkers standing near the ship when the lightning struck were hospitalized with injuries.

The ship, the Sea Tiger, was leaking oil into the river and was in danger of sinking, the Coast Guard said.

Widespread street flooding caused by torrential rains in this coastal port near Houston hampered rescue efforts.

Authorities said lightning during a thunderstorm late Thursday touched off a series of explosions on the vessel and set it afire at a Sun Oil Co. dock.

Coast Guard spokesman Dave Galgay said survivors reported seeing the one man die in the explosions. His body had not been recovered. John Shaw, a Sun Oil vice president, said the lightning and explosion left most of the midsection a mass of twisted and torn metal.

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Robert Brown said it was not known how much of the 24,500 barrels of oil — more than 1 million gallons — still on board could be contained. Galgay said the ship's capacity was about 250,000 barrels.

Crews from five Coast Guard vessels pumped foam into a 30 foot hole on the ship's starboard side trying to contain the blaze.

Shaw said the ship was manned by an Italian crew and had been leased to Gulf Oil Co.

Ambulance driver Pat Riley, one of the first to arrive on the scene, said, "I could see the men running down (the anchor rope). Some were running down and some were falling off. Men were just running off the ship."

Galgay said a Japanese tanker, the Fukuyama Maru, was moved from a neighboring dock to avoid the threat of further explosions.

Hospital airs cash woes

Director says inefficiencies add to problem

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital's current financial condition surfaced again Thursday during a lengthy meeting of the Midland County Hospital District board of directors.

While directors learned that the hospital showed a net gain in revenues of $53,422 for the month of March, the figure was more than $87,000 under projected revenues.

As of March, the hospital showed a deficit of more than $180,000 for this year, according to a financial statement presented to the board.

However, hospital administrator Wayne Ulrich and board president F.H. Magruder Jr. after the meeting said they predict the hospital will be operating in the black within a year to 24 months.

Following a statement that unpaid bills had increased by 7.8 percent over the same billing period last year, board member Dr. Michael Burleson began probing Ulrich about what the hospital was doing to bring these accounts receivable more in line with what he said was the state average.

BURLESON HAS CHARGED that it costs 25 to 30 percent more per patient to operate Midland Memorial Hospital than other hospitals of a similar size in Texas. He has cited figures contained in a Permian Basin Health Systems Agency report.

"The last time I checked into it, we were 60 to 90 days behind in filing claims," Burleson said.

Ulrich said the hospital has been filing insurance claims within seven to 10 days after dismissal and that a new data processing system being installed at the hospital would alleviate the situation.

The financial statement for March showed more than $2.9 million in outstanding accounts.

Of that total, more than $1.1 million was less than 30 days old. However, more than $1 million was more than three months due.

"If we're that up on filing claims, why are we still behind in accounts receivable?" Burleson asked. "We ought to be making a lot of hay."

Nonetheless, other board members expressed opposition to a proposal Burleson made to bring in an outside management firm to streamline the hospital's financial operation.

Magruder said he "leans away" from the employment of hospital management companies because of what he called potential conflicts of interest between those firms and supply companies, and because the district would lose control over the purchasing and subcontracting process.

Burleson countered that the idea should not be dismissed out of hand.

"They all have systems that work," he added.

Newly elected board member Dr. Henrie Mast said he also was opposed to hiring a hospital management team.

Other hospital board members expressed opposition to a proposal Dr. Michael Burleson made to bring in an outside management firm.

"WE CAN HANDLE our own deal ourselves. I'm not ready to hire an outside firm," he said.

Mast later said if the hospital did not make improvements in its financial condition, "we ought to look for outside help."

In an interview following Thursday's meeting, Ulrich said the installation of a data processing package by McAuto Hospital Services, which will cost $30,000, will reduce the backlog in accounts receivable.

He added that completion of the $10 million construction and renovation of Midland Memorial Hospital will reduce excessive per patient costs for treatment.

The data processing system should be in operation by the beginning of the hospital's fiscal year, October 1.

The administrator contended the hospital could operate without a deficit.

"Not only do I foresee it, but up until this year, we have shown gains. In 19 to 24 months, the hospital will be in the black again," he said.

Ulrich said that much of the hospital's higher than average per patient costs were related to the "outmoded" physical plant.

"So much of the difficulty in operating this hospital is directly related to the physical plant," he said.

"We do not have the ability under our present physical structure to staff the hospital with the same degree of accuracy and flexibility that other hospitals more modern in design can do."

THE RENOVATION should reduce labor costs for patient care, Ulrich said. He then denied Dr. Burleson's charge that the facility is experiencing a 78 percent turnover in nursing personnel.

"It's not accurate," he said, adding that the turnover for the last six months on recruited nurses was 26 percent.

In a separate interview, Magruder said that, although the hospital is in a "transition period," the financial problems are being solved.

"By and large we'll conclude the first full fiscal year without having to appropriate more money than we budgeted," he said.

Magruder traced the hospital's financial problems to uncollected debts and indigent care. He said when the hospital became a hospital district, it inherited a backlog of between $1.1 million and $1.5 million in unpaid debts.

These things varied from 30 days to over a year old," Magruder said. Currently, the hospital is charging off some of those debts. The board voted Thursday to write off $83,000 in debts.

"Hopefully, if the hospital were able to run at a profit all the time, we would only have to devote money to indigent care," he said.

"I DON'T SEE any reason why it can't operate in the black," Magruder said.

In other action, newly elected directors Scott Shelton and Dr. Henrie Mast were sworn into office, as was Magruder, who was re-elected April 7.

Shelton and Mast replace retiring board members L. Decker Dawson and Bob Pendleton. Neither sought re-election to the board.

The board met for more than 90 minutes behind closed doors to discuss property purchase and personnel matters before voting to purchase the lot directly east of Midland Memorial for expanded parking.

The board also learned of the possibility of a large financial gift.

Board members also authorized the transfer of $119,000 from the tax fund to the operation budget to meet bills. That total brings the amount transferred out of the fund to date to $369,000, about 65 percent of the anticipated transfer budgeted for this year.

Ike wanted bomb test confusion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Southern Utah residents were uncertain about what dangers were posed by nuclear tests in neighboring Nevada during the 1950s, and newly declassified documents show the confusion was what then President Dwight D. Eisenhower wanted.

At a time when pressure was mounting to move open-air testing elsewhere, Eisenhower told the Atomic Energy Commission in 1953 to keep the public "confused" so research could go on, according to materials declassified for a joint congressional committee.

The committee held a one-day hearing Thursday to study a possible link between the tests and cancer.

The federal agency frequently told southern Utah residents they were in no danger from the reddish clouds that drifted over their homes after the nuclear tests, the documents show.

Gordon Dean, then chairman of the commission, appeared reluctant to ask Eisenhower for permission to conduct a test because an outcry lingered over a previous blast, according to a diary written by Dean.

Eisenhower gave his permission on May 27, 1953, and "expressed some concern, not too serious, but made the suggestion that we leave 'thermonuclear' out of press releases and speeches. Also 'fusion' and 'hydrogen,' according to the diary.

Dean, writing in his diary, continued, "The President says, 'keep them confused as to 'fission' and 'fusion.'"

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., read the document into the record of the hearing, which he co-chaired.

Kennedy also called for declassification of more records from the testing era and related health data amassed since then.

Kennedy read an excerpt from the transcript of a 1955 AEC meeting that he said typified what he called a pattern of deception. Then Commissioner W.F. Libby was quoted as saying, "People have got to learn to live with the facts of life, and part of the facts of life are fallout."

Another commissioner, Thomas E. Murray, was quoted as saying, "We must not let anything interfere with this series of tests — nothing."

Other documents showed the commission was careful not to detonate bombs on days when winds blew toward Las Vegas or Los Angeles, but did nothing to protect Utah and Arizona residents from fallout.

Although there is no proof linking radioactive fallout to cancer, residents from southern Utah told the panel about dozens of cancer deaths among relatives and friends.

The hearing lasted only one day, but Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, Kennedy's co-chairman, said a similar hearing would be held Monday in Las Vegas. The panel is trying to determine if allegedly affected residents should be compensated by the government.

Elbert Pickett testified that he lost 10 members of his immediate family to cancer in 10 years.

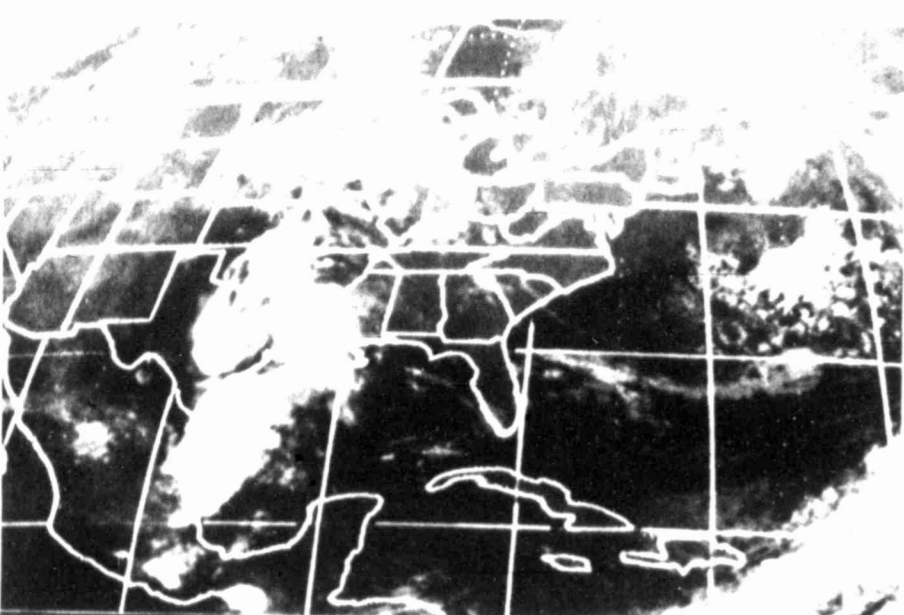

"It was quite a sight," he said of the blasts. "These red-colored clouds would come over our area. We were told there was no danger."

"No one warned us," said Utah Gov. Scott Matheson, who lived in southern Utah 25 years ago. "I personally went outside the house and watched the mushroom cloud."

Shots fired in high-speed auto chase

At least three shots were fired Thursday night at the climax of a high speed chase involving Department of Public Safety troopers and a 30-year-old man, now in custody, witnesses said.

Officers from Midland Police Department and a trooper from the Department of Public Safety were involved in the chase, which ended at the corner of South Garfield Street and Front Avenue.

Police intercepted a car being pursued by the DPS at the intersection of Front Avenue and Fairgrounds Road about 11:29 p. m., police said.

Speeds up to 110 mph were reached as four police units and a DPS vehicle chased the fleeing car, police said today.

The chase came to a close when officers blocked Front Avenue at its intersection with South Garfield Street with patrol cars, officials said.

According to reports, the man being chased attempted a turn north on to Garfield although a patrol car was being used to block him.

The driver of the car tried to push the patrol car out of the way, officers said, and when that attempt failed, the driver turned the car southward.

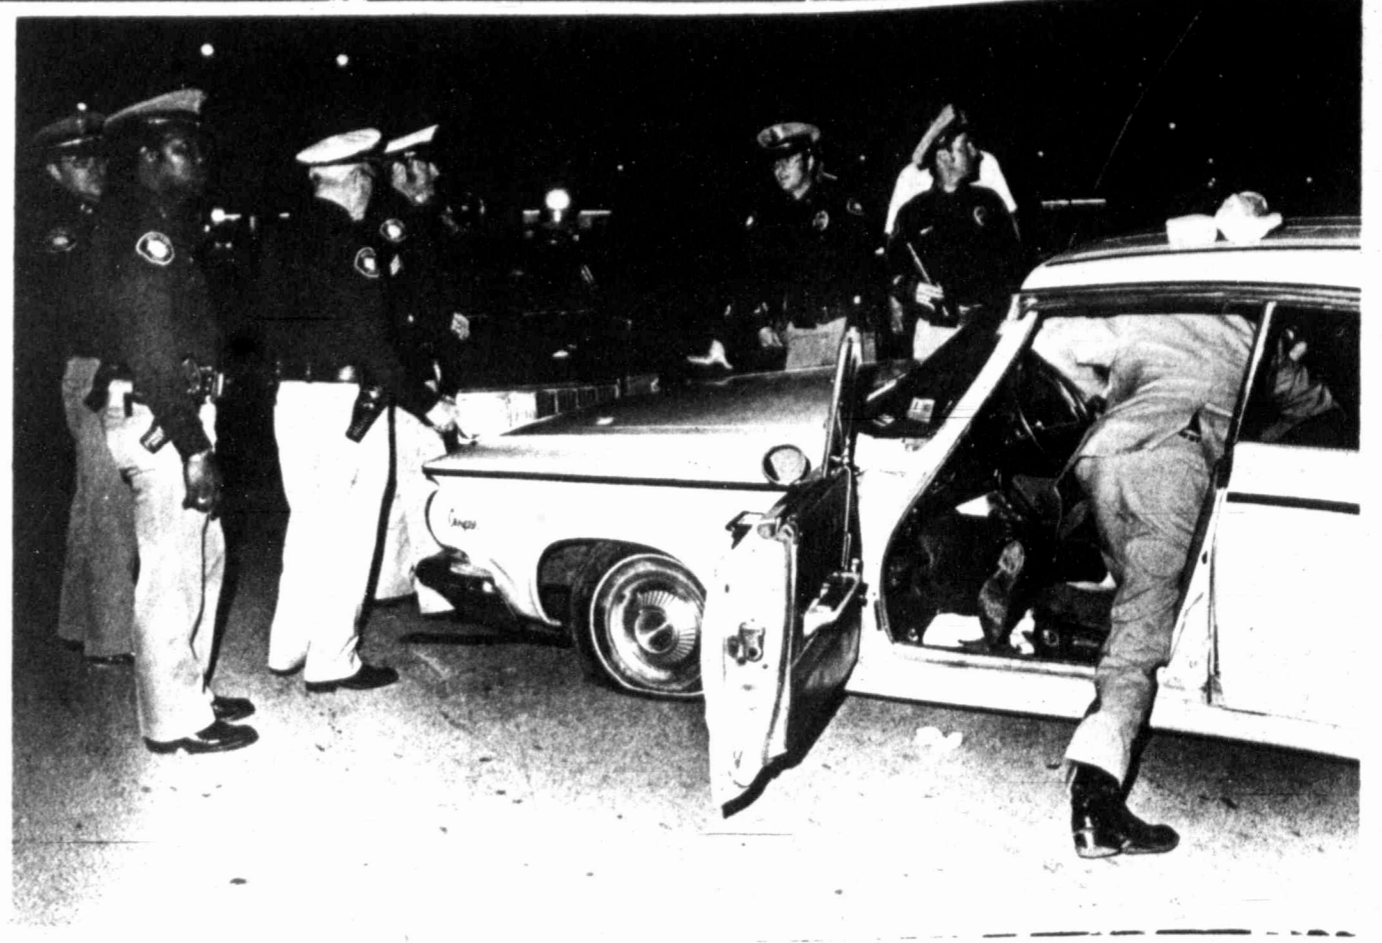

A second patrol car was hit when it tried to block the car's travel in that direction, police said.

According to witnesses on the scene, a Midland Police Department officer at one point fired several shots at the tires of the vehicle.

The man was arrested and was being held at Midland County Jail early today, police said.

DPS officials said information as to why the man was being pursued was not available early today.

Officers from the Midland Police Department examine the scene at the end of a high-speed chase Thursday night.

Priscilla awarded $3,340,818 in settlement of Davis divorce

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state district judge awarded Priscilla Davis $3,340,818 today in a settlement of her almost five-year-old divorce spat with industrialist Cullen Davis.

Judge Clyde Ashworth, the third presiding judge in the high-stakes divorce, ruled Mrs. Davis could keep her luxury car, horse and personal belongings but must move out of the mansion within a month.

Division of property was the only issue in the bitter proceeding delayed by Davis' 1977 Amarillo murder trial and his Houston murder-solicitation trial.

"I'm just happy to get it over with... I thought it was a fair decision," said Davis. "I am not pleased she got so much money."

Ashworth said the majority of Davis' fortune was made before the couple married. He said Davis made only about $7 million during the couple's stormy 10-year marriage.

Mrs. Davis' lawyers had argued Davis amassed about $100 million during the marriage and contended she was due $50 million, the mansion, her personal belongings and her car in any settlement.

Attorneys for Davis said she should receive $100,000 and her personal belongings. And they argued her attorney should receive the length of a helicopter blade.

However, Ashworth awarded Mrs. Davis' lawyers $1.25 million, ordered Davis to pay half and ruled Mrs. Davis must pay the remainder.

Her attorneys had requested between $2.5 million and $3 million in legal fees.

Priscilla awarded $3,340,818 in settlement of Davis divorce

"I think he (Ashworth) went through what he felt was the facts and ruled on those," said Mrs. Davis.

"It was a little bit too legal for me," said Mrs. Davis. She added she was perplexed by the 13 separate rulings and would have to confer with her attorneys before sizing up the award.

When asked where she was going to live when she left the mansion, Mrs. Davis said, "I really don't know right now. I'll kick it around and come up with something."

Mrs. Davis also said her third divorce did not sour her views on marriage.

"I think it is marvelous (marriage). I still believe in it. It is like the U.S. government — it is still the best in the world."

The Fort Worth industrialist was acquitted by an Amarillo jury in August 1977 of charges he killed his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Three persons died and 15 were injured in the crash, which occurred shortly after the helicopter took off Wednesday.

This preliminary examination disclosed a fatigue crack through approximately 90 percent of the leading edge spar.

NTSB spokesman Brad Dunbar said Thursday. A spar is a rod-like device running the length of a helicopter blade.

It is the first time the board, in its 12-year existence, has recommended grounding a scheduled passenger-carrying commercial aircraft.

In Stratford, Conn., an official of Sikorsky Aircraft said the firm will cooperate with agencies investigating the fatal crash, but added that "we have not seen the safety board's recommendation yet."

Alan Wayne, a spokesman for the company, a division of United Technologies Corp., said the S-61 is "one of the most successful helicopters anywhere."

The helicopter "has flown more passengers than all other helicopters combined," he said.

Sikorsky still builds S-61s and expects to produce nine this year at its Stratford plant, Wayne said.

The S-61 is a civilian version of the Marine One helicopter that President Carter uses, but a White House spokesman said the presidential craft has a shorter body and a completely different tail rotor system.

"We have no plans to ground it," spokesman Jim Purks said after conferring with the White House military office.

Warmer weather being predicted through weekend

Patches of gossamer-like clouds over Midland this morning were supposed to drift away tonight and leave a blue sky devoid of any threat of rain.

With the clearness was to come a promise of warm weather stretching into the weekend, according to the weatherman.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts a low tonight in the low 50s.

The high Saturday is expected to be near 80.

Southerly winds at 10 to 15 mph were to become variable, mostly northerly, at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

High reading for Thursday was 83 degrees, which missed the record high for an April 19 of 94 degrees, set in 1964.

Today's morning low of 57 degrees was 30 degrees above the record low for April 20 of 27 degrees, set in 1933.

Much of the Permian Basin this morning reported some partly cloudy skies and clearing.

Andrews reported some fog. Lamesa was clear and cool. Stanton was partly cloudy. Rankin was taking in some sunshine. Big Lake was somewhat cloudy, and Big Spring was partly cloudy.

South Texas: High flood water in the Rio Grande through Saturday. Severe to heavy winds and rain through Saturday.

Partly to heavy rain through Saturday. Light to moderate rain through Saturday.

North Texas: Fair to partly cloudy with scattered showers and light rain through Saturday.

West Texas: Fair to partly cloudy with scattered showers and light rain through Saturday.

Floodwaters force evacuation in Houston

He predicted hours of more than 1,000 residents will have to be evacuated in Harris County before the week is over.

Some evacuations were under way Thursday in the Beaumont area near the Pine Island Bayou and Sour Lake and other areas near swollen river tributaries, the National Weather Service reported.

Both cities received six or more inches of rain Thursday, and Bevil Oaks north of Beaumont recorded 11.5 inches.

"All stores and businesses in downtown Beaumont were being flooded by running water up to two feet," the NWS reported just before midnight Thursday. The Red Cross set up seven shelters in Beaumont for flood refugees.

The NWS said 75 to 100 persons were stranded by deep water at Beaumont's Parkdale Mall. They were rescued early today.

The new rainstorms came one day after 800 to 1,000 residents in Conroe, 35 miles north of Houston, were evacuated from their homes after a nine-hour downpour filled streets and homes with water.

Caswell said current flooding in the Houston area would exceed that of 1973 when a record 49.8 feet of water crested the Lake Houston spillway.

"That was about five feet higher than the spillway," Caswell said. "This is going to be about six feet higher than the spillway and the extra 12 inches of water is going to affect a much larger area."

Forecasters said the crest was expected tonight.

Russ Luedke, a visitor from Neeah, Wis., was en route to see a play in Houston when the car he was riding in flooded out.

"We were just sitting there and a guy in a canoe came along and gave us a ride" to a nearby church, Luedke said.

"I don't know if I'll ever come back to Texas again."

Water was reported over the tops of cars in the Alabama Theater parking lot in Houston. Police and firemen throughout the city were called out to assist stranded motorists.

A North American Soccer League game between Houston and New England went on as scheduled in the Astrodome despite waist-deep water in some areas outside the facility.

A crowd of 650 watched the game while others stalled on feeder roads leading to the Astrodome.

The floods also hampered rescue efforts at Nederland where a tanker exploded and burned when it was struck by lightning while unloading oil.

A four-inch downpour caused streets and underpasses to flood during rush hour traffic at Fort Worth Thursday afternoon.

Water strands rush hour traffic

HOUSTON (AP) — The streets and freeways of Houston, usually packed with cars, became a giant parking lot as torrential rains ground the Bayou City to a halt.

Motorists on their way home during the rush hour Thursday were stranded for hours on some city freeways because of flooding under overpasses and because motorists could not exit onto flooded service roads.

Water rose to the windows of hundreds of cars caught in the bowl-like underpasses, which filled up quickly from the water running off the streets above.

Men in suits and women in skirts and high heels trudged through waist-deep water in a futile search for help, and many just abandoned their vehicles for local taverns.

"One man just came in here bleary-eyed," said Chris Dye of the New York Deli near the Galleria shopping mall. "He said he was on the highway for four hours and can't talk, eat or anything. He's just sitting here, staring."

He said three non-English-speaking patrons arrived there at 4 p. m. and stayed late into the night, unable to get out because the water had risen to their car window in the parking lot.

The Mug, a coffee shop in the Montrose area, one of the hardest hit in Houston, was full most of the night. Manager Raoul Benaim said he was wearing a bathing suit most of the evening because the water "was up to our knees."

The overpass on Highway 59 just west of downtown found many bewildered people standing on the concrete abutments beneath the overpasses, having abandoned their cars when the water reached the seats.

Dance school reports burglary

Police received reports of a burglary Thursday at the Audrey Walker School of Dance at 3320 N. Big Spring St. The report, made at 10:25 a. m., indicated a total of $619 in cash, checks and merchandise were taken in the burglary, police said.

A box of stainless steel fittings and tools with a total estimated value of $467 were taken Thursday from a car belonging to Benton Guinn of the 4000 block of Pasadena Drive, police said.

Robert Rollins of the 200 block of Loraine Street reported to police Thursday the theft of tools valued at $550.

Flood waters advancing steadily on Columbia

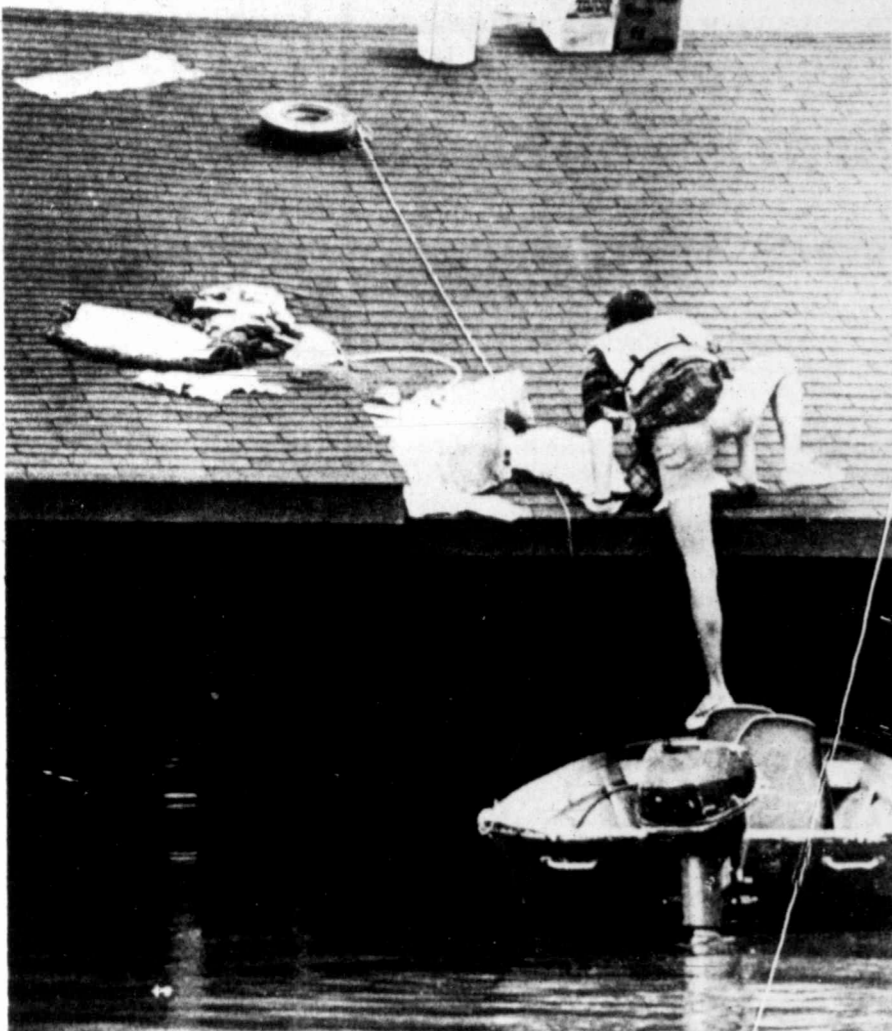

By The Associated Press

Flood waters churned deeper into the heart of south Mississippi today, advancing steadily on the sandbagged fortress of Columbia. Spring floods also caused problems in Alabama, North Dakota, Minnesota and Texas. "It's coming and it keeps coming," Mississippi Civil Defense spokesman Jim Thornhill said at Columbia where his staff worked over ringing telephones and blaring two-way radios. "I've seen what it has done in the Morgantown area to the north so I know what's heading our way," he said. Columbia lies directly in the path of the muddy Pearl River floodwater — the same water that covered hundreds of homes and businesses in Jackson, 80 miles to the north. The floodwater also covered small highways and farmland as it twisted south past Georgetown and Monticello, Miss. In Jackson, waters receded from previously closed downtown streets. Stained flood marks were visible at least 2 feet above the water line on fashionable homes in the northeast section of the city. More than 17,000 persons were forced to abandon their homes in the Jackson metropolitan area and hundreds of persons inundated two federal disaster centers that opened Thursday at city parks. "We need help," said Peggy Simoncaux, who said she had been waiting at one of the centers for five hours with her 4-year-old daughter. "We've got to find a place to stay." Officials estimated 3,000 persons at Columbia and in towns upriver — Georgetown, Morgantown and Monticello — already had fled their homes. Thornhill said the weather service was considering raising its forecasted crest at Columbia, now expected Monday, by at least a foot. "The river is forecast to crest at 27 1/2 feet on Monday, give or take a foot" and flood stage is 17 feet, he said. The current prediction would send water into dozens of homes and businesses and any revision upward "will put water everywhere down here and we'll be talking about 5,000 evacuations instead of 1,500 or more," he said.

In Alabama, state officials expect the delta area around Mobile to act as a sponge and soak up floodwaters from the bulging Tombigbee and Alabama rivers when they reach the area early next week. Some 1,000 persons remain homeless in Marengo, Greene, Hale and Sumter counties. They were forced to evacuate when the Tombigbee River, swollen by torrential rains, crested at 72.4 feet Wednesday, 24 feet above flood stage — the highest water on record since the area was settled in 1818. Evacuations also were predicted for southeast Texas where some 1,000 Harris County residents near Houston prepared to flee from their homes along the San Jacinto River.

With his boat anchored to the roof, Duncan Mansel jumps onto the roof of his flooded Jackson, Miss., home Thursday to load up the last of the items he moved to his roof ahead of the flood waters. Teamsters strike brings layoffs of steel workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week-long strike by steel-hauling Teamsters has prompted a number of steel mills to begin laying off workers. The strike, touched off by demands for improved contract terms, has affected steel shipments hauled along routes as far east as Pittsburgh and west to Chicago, according to Teamsters for a Democratic Union, a dissident union group promoting the strike. Although union leaders here first said the strike was a wildcat action and ordered steel haulers back to work, the union leadership indicated Wednesday it would sanction the walkout. Union spokesman Bernard Henderson said it could take several days to approve the strike formally under the union bylaws. Republic Steel Corp. furloughed an undetermined number of workers at its northeast Ohio finishing mills Thursday and said it soon would have to shut the plants if the strike by thousands of dissident Teamsters continues. National Steel Corp., based in Pittsburgh, said it would have to cut production and furlough several thousand workers by Sunday. Teamster leaders, faced with a large revolt within the union, apparently decided to endorse the strike as a bargaining chip in talks with the industry on new contract terms for the 10,000 steel-hauling Teamsters. "This is a big victory for us," said a spokesman for the Detroit-based dissident group. "I believe the union officers are under more political pressure from members than ever before." The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said union President Frank Fitzsimmons "is afraid if he forces local officers to take back a contract the members don't want, he will wind up with a group of super-mavericks." The strike is over a supplement to the union's national freight contract with the trucking industry. The supplement covers pay scales and working conditions specifically for steel haulers, most of whom own their trucks. Dissident Teamsters say the steel haulers' main demands are for a return to a pre-1976 system of per-load hauling fees, back pay for sick days allegedly owed the haulers under the expired three-year pact and a separate ratification vote on the steel-hauling supplement. The wildcat began April 11 when the steel haulers refused to go back to work after union and industry reached tentative agreement on a new national contract and called off a 10-day nationwide work stoppage. That contract calls for a 30 percent hike in wages and fringe benefits over three years, according to union and industry estimates. Meanwhile, the Labor Department said Thursday that 10-day work stoppage earlier this month forced companies to furlough 485,000 workers for at least one day because of interruptions in truck deliveries. In the first week of the work stoppage, beginning April 1, the department said, 295,000 workers were laid off. These did not include the 235,000 Teamsters involved in the strike and subsequent lockout by nearly 500 major trucking firms. About 60,000 of those furloughed were auto workers.

Hard hat workers rally against wage changes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Apprentice ironworker Joseph Landry lost a day's pay to join thousands of other union members Thursday in a rally at the Capitol. The Galveston man said he had a choice between losing a little money now or a lot later. Landry and other construction union members claim that attempts to repeal the state's prevailing wage law could reduce their earnings to the federal minimum wage of $2.90 instead of $10 an hour and upwards. "Rat contractors will be able to control union wages," said Landry, wearing a green hard hat, tee shirt and jeans. The wage law requires contractors to pay workers the local prevailing rate on public construction projects. Hard hats of all colors dotted the throng that converged on the Capitol to protest the bill by Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan. But the rally did not stop the Senate Economic Development Committee from approving Moore's bill, 6-0. Following the vote, a union leader told the crowd which senators favored the bill. "Boo!" the masses shouted after each name. "You ought to remember what their faces look like," said Tom Upchurch, lawyer for the Texas Building Trades Council, AFL-CIO. He testified against the bill in committee. The Associated Building Contractors of Texas support the bill and say that the prevailing wage law increases construction costs and discriminates against non-union contractors. They claim local governments are forced to adopt union pay levels that are above the actual prevailing wage. "Contractors who have to pay union wage cannot afford to hire unskilled workers and train them," said Jerry Arterburn of the Associated Building Contractors of Houston. "This law discriminates against minorities and women." The House tabled similar legislation last week. But Cecil Rusk of the Associated General Contractors of Texas said many representatives are having second thoughts and want to reconsider the bill. Organized labor drew busloads from El Paso, Amarillo, Port Arthur, San Antonio and points in between for the rally. "If you want to talk about cutting costs, cut your pay and then talk about cutting ours," proclaimed one sign outside the Capitol.

Fighter-bombers crash

RAMSTEIN AIR FORCE BASE, West Germany (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force F-111 fighter-bombers plowed into the North Sea today after an apparent mid-air collision, the Air Force said. The four crewmen parachuted safely and were rescued by Royal Air Force helicopters, a statement said. Air Force officials said the crewmen, from the 48th Tactical Fighter Wing based at Lakenheath, England, were in good condition. They were identified as Capt. Stephen Ruttman, 28, of Norman, Okla., Capt. Timothy Schlitt, 28, of Afton, Mo., Capt. Roger Webb, 28, of Staunton, Va., and Capt. Joseph Peluso.

Principle is sound

The least controversial provision in any of the national health insurance schemes under discussion in Washington is coverage for the cost of catastrophic illnesses, the kind which can bankrupt a family in a matter of months.

There is no mystery to the broad, bipartisan political support for the catastrophic coverage concept. The federal government's Medicare program provides subsidized health care services for the elderly from the threat of financial ruin posed by prolonged illness.

But the majority of Americans are neither poor nor old, and millions of middle-class families are vulnerable to the economic ravages of long-term illness.

Granted, most middle-income Americans have some medical insurance coverage in the form of independently purchased policies or group insurance provided by their employers. Yet, 24 million Americans have no health insurance at all and another 74 million are considered to be inadequately protected against overwhelming medical costs.

Thus catastrophic coverage would bridge a yawning gap in the nation's fabric of private insurance and publicly subsidized health-care systems. And because it would answer a real need for millions of families, catastrophic coverage has a built-in constituency, a fact not overlooked on Capitol Hill or in the White House.

Why, then, hasn't such legislation been enacted? The answer undoubtedly lies in the complex politics which surround the decade-long debate over a comprehensive national health insurance program. National health advocates, notably Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and the United Auto Workers Union, have insisted for years on what might be called an all-or-nothing approach.

To these partisans, enactment of catastrophic coverage legislation would only weaken the drive for a national health system. Thus, the very real drawbacks of a full-scale national health program, including budget-busting costs of approximately $100 billion a year, so far have forestalled progress toward a more affordable program providing only catastrophic coverage.

Fortunately, there now are signs that this logjam may be dislodged, possibly in time for passage of a catastrophic coverage bill during the 1979-80 congressional session.

Senator Kennedy and his supporters are said to be moving toward compromise positions which would allow them to support catastrophic coverage in exchange for some improvements in Medicaid and Medicare coverage.

The Massachusetts senator and the UAW have also reportedly softened their opposition to reliance on private insurance carriers to provide the actual coverage, although premiums would be paid by the federal government.

The mechanics of any catastrophic insurance legislation will, of course, be hotly debated.

And even the most forceful of its advocates recognize that poorly conceived legislation easily could be worse than no bill at all.

But the principle seemingly is sound and potentially affordable, and the need is evident. Because of what has gone on before in federal health and welfare programs, and the manner in which they have been administered in some cases, one almost is hesitant to favor any new program having to do with health care. But again, the need certainly is evident.

Should reasonableness prevail in Congress and within the Carter administration, there is yet hope for enactment of a catastrophic health insurance program, which would be so very helpful to many persons really in need of assistance.

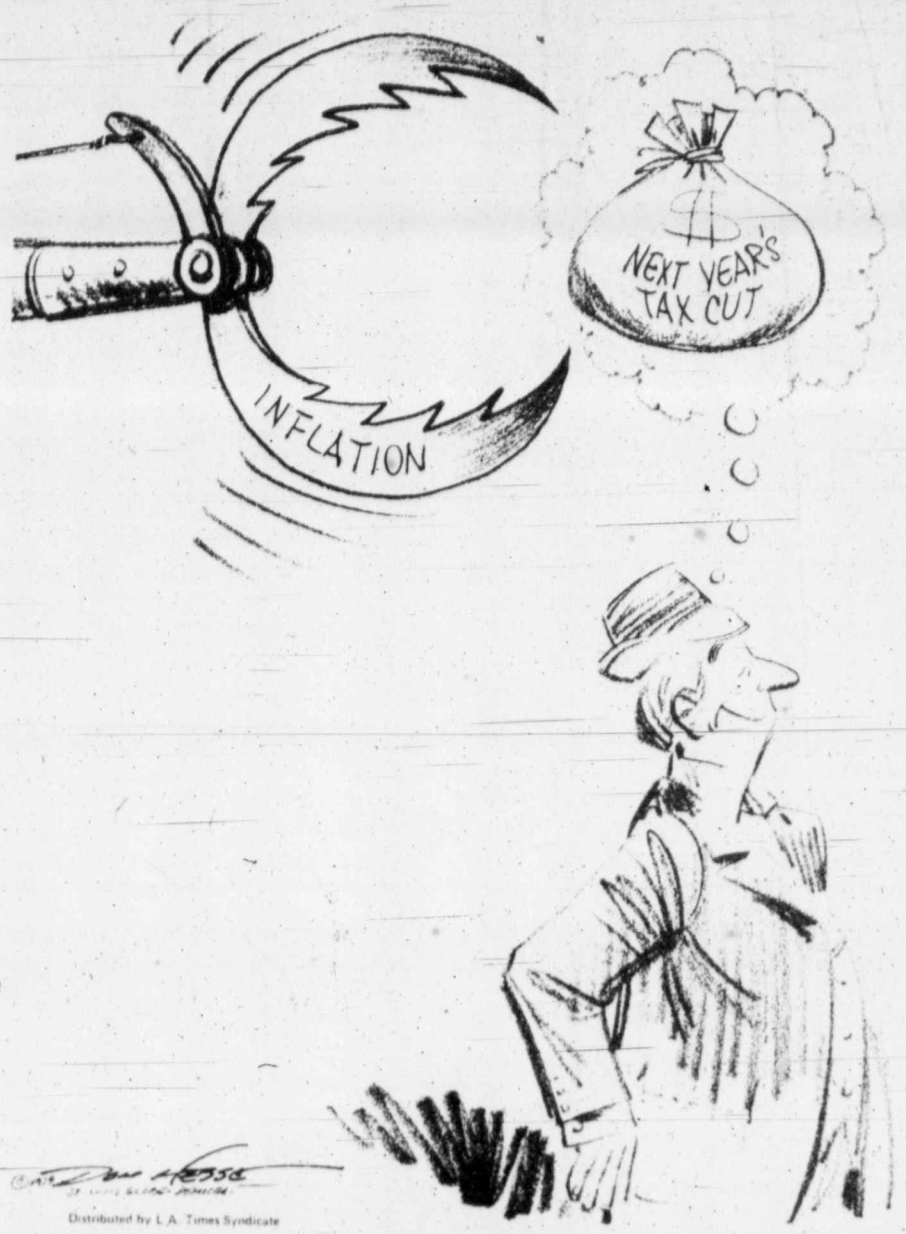

The program seemingly is worth a try.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Schlesinger in more hot water

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Energy czar James Schlesinger, who has already offended many members of Congress by his overbearing personality and his pro-oil policies, is now in more hot water for the way his department has bungled the strategic petroleum reserve program.

The need for a stockpile of oil in the United States was dramatically illustrated in recent months, when the temporary stoppage of Iranian oil production and planned cutbacks by Arab producers showed how dangerously dependent the United States is on foreign oil.

In 1975, Congress ordered establishment of a petroleum reserve to protect us from the whims of the oil-exporting nations in time of emergency. The Department of Energy was supposed to store 500 million barrels of oil in underground salt domes by 1980. The ultimate goal was to have up to a billion barrels set aside.

end of last year. The stockpile currently stands at about 70 million barrels. And incredibly, even this woefully small reserve is not available for immediate use because the pumps are not yet in place.

The 250-million-barrel goal is not expected to be reached until sometime next year; the 500-million-barrel stockpile won't be attained until 1982, and maybe not before 1985.

The reserves are stored in underground salt domes in Louisiana and Texas. Serious questions have been raised about the safety of the storage procedures, particularly in light of an explosion and fire at the West Hackberry, La., cavern last fall. One man died and 30,000 barrels of crude were lost in the fire.

The GAO report concludes that the fire was at least partially the result of poor management and inadequate safety precautions. Though salt-cavern storage is a feasible system, the report says, "the potential exists for serious problems" if the DOE can't maintain higher standards of operation.

Oil was pumped into two caverns at Bryan Mound, Texas, without first testing an adjacent cavern. The GAO investigators believe the DOE "took an unnecessary risk in view of the structural damages and financial loss that could have occurred."

will result," the report predicts.

GIGOURMETS: With skyrocketing food prices punishing everyone's pocketbook these days, taxpayers may be incensed to learn that our troops overseas are feasting on lobster tails and filet mignon. An internal Army audit found that mess halls in Europe alone were spending $3.5 million more than necessary, much of it for luxury items.

Because of a loophole in the meal-financing system, the auditors found, Army cooks are spending as much as $6.30 per person for some dinners. This is more than $5 above the authorized amount.

Defense nutrition experts figure that it should cost $3.15 per day to give each GI three balanced meals. But often a soldier eschews the prescribed three squares in favor of a cup of coffee for breakfast or a soft drink and hamburger for lunch. This tendency is taken into account in the mess halls' purchasing, and the money saved from the allotted $3.15 is put aside for extravagant menus more appropriate to a fine restaurant than an Army mess hall.

The auditors found that $3.5 million of this surplus was improperly spent, $2 million of it on such lucculent repasts as the "super supper" at one Frankfurt mess hall — lobster tails, filet mignon, stuffed pork tenderloin and Cornish game hens. Another facility's "family night" featured lobster tails and grilled steaks.

Army investigators are also looking into the possibility that one mess hall was diverting food to the local economy.

WONDER WHEELS — In February, 1974, we reported that a single company, Everest and Jennings, dominated the $100 million-a-year wheelchair business. The Justice Department filed anti-trust action against the firm, and won a consent decree last February that will allow more sale of competitive wheelchairs.

Even stiffer competition may be on the way, in the form of a revolutionary four-wheel-drive chair developed by Ralf Hotchkiss, head of the Ralph Nader-founded Center for Concerned Engineering.

Our associate Les Whitten gave the Hotchkiss wheelchair an exhausting personal test, piloting the manually powered prototype through mud and deep ruts that are impassable to conventional models. Hotchkiss himself successfully tested his chair during Washington's worst snowstorm in more than 50 years.

Hotchkiss plans to offer production rights to manufacturers on a non-exclusive basis, to prevent the new wheelchair from being monopolized by a single company.

INSIDE REPORT: President continues his weekend pleasure trips

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When President Carter summoned his White House helicopter for another routine weekend trip to Camp David, the very day after his energetic speech to the nation, at least one top Carter aide was incredulous. This sub-cabinet-level official told us the president could have scored high political and didactic points if he had foregone his weekend trip just that once, with an announcement explaining that he was practicing what he had preached the night before: conserve energy.

Instead, Carter apparently gave the idea no thought at all and proceeded with business as usual. Likewise, on his Easter weekend trip to Georgia the president could have taken an energy-saving train to make a symbolic point. Instead, he flew in Air Force One.

The disdainful attitude toward his own appeals to reduce energy consumption raises this question: If the president himself does not cut down on energy consumption, why would he expect anyone else to do so? The White House response — that a solar heating system is being installed for part of the west wing — is ridiculed as causing Jimmy Carter not the slightest personal discomfort.

WHERE WILL IT BE?

The struggle between the White House and the Kremlin over where Jimmy Carter will meet Leonid Brezhnev in the much-debated summit conference is heating up, every day, with no quick solution in sight. Holding the whip hand is Brezhnev. He can genuinely plead poor health as a bar to travel. Soviet diplomats here have bluntly informed the White House that the ailing Soviet president, although only 72 years old, is under doctor's orders not to fly. That means a summit that can fairly easily be reached by train: read Geneva or Vienna.

But the freedom of Brezhnev's whip hand is restricted by the fact that it is the Russian's turn to come to the U.S., in return for Richard Nixon's summit trip to see Brezhnev in 1974, and Gerald Ford's to Valdivostok also in 1974. Carter's top political aides and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski have warned him that an agreement to meet Brezhnev on Soviet soil would be exceedingly politically damaging to Carter. Indeed, they warn it might even hurt in the Senate SALT debate.

But there's another reason Carter won't go to Moscow: the juicy prospect of a pre-election summit there in 1980. If Carter met Brezhnev on Soviet soil in 1979, a repeat in 1980 would be out of the question.

With a Brezhnev flight to Washington or Alaska now out, the likeliest prospect seems to be Vienna, much easier to get to than Geneva. But it's not decided and some Carter advisers have been talking up Warsaw, Poland, homeland of Brzezinski's family. The problem with Warsaw is twofold: for Carter, its position as capital city of the Warsaw Pact would make it embarrassing; for Brezhnev, it would be unthinkable to meet Carter in a Soviet satellite after Carter had refused to go to Moscow.

TEDDY'S DIET

It may not qualify as a "crash" diet, but Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's new, abstemious eating habits have reduced his build from 222 to 210 pounds in the last three weeks. That is not enough, say Kennedy staffers who are pushing him to get down to at least 200 pounds. The senator's breakfast is now half a grapefruit and a cup of coffee without cream or sugar; lunch, a cup of consommé, lettuce and lean meat, without dessert; dinner, lean meat, vegetables and no dessert. Stricken from the Kennedy diet are bread, butter and potatoes.

One political expert to whom Kennedy confided details of what he called a "crash" diet is convinced the effort to slim down is dictated by presidential politics. Others don't agree. They think the driving force behind the fleshing down process is vanity, pure and simple.

BOOSTING HAIG

The first Haig for president office has been quietly opened in Chicago by a successful composer-conductor who stresses that his "Citizens for Haig" has been launched without the approval of Gen. Alexander M. Haig, the outgoing NATO commander.

Indeed, Mark D. Camphouse, who told us he had never met Haig, said he had carefully not informed the general about his new committee. Some Republican politicians have shown interest, responding both with letters and an occasional unsolicited check to Camphouse's first letter thanking Haig. Camphouse sent it to members of Congress, governors and other leading Republicans. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota, for example, is encouraging Camphouse's effort. Boschwitz has not endorsed Haig, but he told us he places Haig in first or second spot today in terms of his own choice for the 1980 presidential nominee. Actually, the general, who will retire as supreme commander of NATO and from the army on June 30, is at best a very dark horse in the crowded Republican presidential stable.

But Figueredo, who was never seen in other than dark glasses prior to becoming president, takes a brighter view of things now.

And most of his 115 million compatriots are optimistic, their hopes bolstered by what they have seen of their new president.

Obviously, after more than 15 years of authoritarian military rule, that task won't be easy. But Figueredo, who was never seen in other than dark glasses prior to becoming president, takes a brighter view of things now.

Hotchkiss plans to offer production rights to manufacturers on a non-exclusive basis, to prevent the new wheelchair from being monopolized by a single company.

Despite some setbacks, terrorism on increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some setbacks to specific organizations, international terrorism increased last year and may find ways to get around improved protective measures in the months ahead, the Central Intelligence Agency says in a report on terrorism.

In its annual summation of the subject, the CIA said terrorism is expected to remain at about the same level this year.

The report said Western Europe, Latin America and the Middle East are expected to remain the major trouble areas and that officials and prominent persons in affluent countries will be primary targets.

The "vast majority" of terrorist acts will continue to be bombings and incendiary attacks which pose only limited risk to the terrorist, the agency said. It added that while various new security measures may deter terror "spectaculars," they cannot protect all potential targets from "simple hit-and-run operations."

It predicted that terrorists will attempt to "adapt their tactical repertoire" to circumvent protective measures being applied by governments and private organizations.

"These adaptations probably will include changes in target selection, improvements in terrorist planning and...possibly an overall increase in technological sophistication — for example, use of more compact conventional explosives," it said.

The report said the Palestinian terrorist movement was dealt a blow through the death of Wadi Haddad, widely seen as a chief architect of terrorist actions involving people from various countries.

It noted further that while Italy's Red Brigades gained much publicity through the kidnap-murder of former Prime Minister Aldo Moro, the West German terrorist faction known as the Baader-Meinhof gang was seriously crippled by the arrest of several of its members in five countries.

The CIA listed 353 terrorist incidents — ranging from kidnappings, bombings, hijackings and assassination to burglary and theft — in 1978, compared to 279 the previous year.

Terrorist hijackings dropped from eight in 1978 to only two last year, the lowest number for any year since 1968. The agency said this figure did not include other hijackings which were "nonterrorist" in nature.

The CIA said the "most notable development" in international cooperation in 1978 was the first international hijacking agreement with "potentially effective" enforcement provisions.

The pact, approved by seven nations, would cut off air traffic to nations refusing to extradite or prosecute hijackers.

The CIA said such of the overall increase in terrorism in 1978 could be traced to "the export of Middle Eastern conflicts to Europe." These incidents included warfare between Iraqi and Palestinian factions and the discovery of poisoned oranges from Israel in a dozen European cities.

National Guard aids security in New York's prison strike

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Security forces at some of New York's strike-bound state prisons were boosted with National Guard troops as the state and its striking prison guards prepared to meet mediators.

Gov. Hugh Carey ordered mobilization of about 7,700 guardsmen Thursday as the state's 33-unit, 20,000-inmate prison system struggled to operate despite severe staff shortages.

One clash was reported upstate, where the Elmira Star-Gazette said picketing guards pounded on vehicles, threw bottles and shouted obscenities as the first Guard convoy rolled into the Elmira Correctional Facility.

Troops successfully entered the maximum-security prison, as well as one at Auburn, the medium-security Mid-Orange prison and the Central New York Psychiatric Center in Marcy, which houses the criminally insane, a guard spokesman said. Troops were immediately assigned to "non-security" tasks such as cooking and maintenance.

Since the start of the strike Wednesday, prison officials say conditions inside the prisons have been "calm." Most inmates have remained locked in their cells without showers.

Since only one-third the usual guard staff is on duty, supervisors and non-striking guards have worked around the clock.

The governor's representatives and the guards' union agreed to meet today with the Public Employment Relations Board.

Smith resigns at ABC

WASHINGTON (AP) — ABC News said the resignation of veteran newsman Howard K. Smith "comes as a sorry surprise to us" and "we are sorry to see him go."

But Smith says he is leaving the network, effective June 1, at least in part because of proposed handling of his commentaries. In a bulletin board note to his colleagues, Smith said executives "made it clear that my commentary on the evening news would not be part of the (contract) offer."

Smith said he was told his commentary would be phased out "to lighten the show."

The network spokesman said Smith had been offered a five-year contract that included "occasional commentary. We are sorry to see him go."

Smith, a 17-year ABC News veteran, said of the offer: "It sounds increasingly like a job without a function."

Smith, who will be 65 next month, added: "With time so short, I must try now to find another professional outlet; I hope I will succeed."

Attorneys appeal for clemency

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Bob Graham has been given a 20-page clemency appeal from attorneys for condemned murderer John Spenkelink, who is running out of ways to avoid death in Florida's electric chair.

Graham and the Cabinet, sitting as the Board of Executive Clemency, were to hear oral arguments today from Spenkelink's attorneys, David Kendall and Andrew Graham, in what could be the last legal appeal that could save the 30-year-old Spenkelink from the electric chair.

Sometime after the 30-minute arguments from defense attorneys and prosecutors, Graham will recommend whether the inmate should be spared, an aide said. The decision could come in a matter of days.

Kendall and Graham asked the governor Thursday in a lengthy memorandum to recommend Spenkelink's death sentence be commuted to life in prison.

The attorneys also gave Graham a sample of petitions signed by more than 2,000 people urging clemency for Spenkelink, convicted of murdering his traveling companion, Joseph Szymankiewicz, 43, of Detroit, in a Oallahassee motel.

Court reduces police fine

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A state appeals court has reduced to $500 the $600,000 fine levied against the New Orleans police union for ignoring an order to end its 16-day strike during Mardi Gras, but the city will ask for a rehearing.

A three-judge panel of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that the contempt citation was legal. However, the panel said $500 is the maximum fine allowed for contempt under Louisiana law.

Civil District Judge Richard Garvey had figured the fine on the basis of $500 for each member of the 1,200-member union, which he held in contempt for ignoring a back-to-work order during the strike, which collapsed March 3.

"We are very happy," said Mitch Ledet, state secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 253, with which the Police Association of Louisiana was affiliated.

City Attorney Donald Hoffman, who prosecuted the case, said the city was pleased that the ruling upheld the contempt citation but that "we disagree with the amount of the fine." He said the city would ask the appeals court to review the decision to cut the fine.

Hot charges fly in Austin over presidential primary

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A controversial bill setting up a presidential primary in Texas elicited heated charges and countercharges Thursday between the chief supporter and opponent of the bill.

The validity of information dealing with primary dates in other states distributed by the bill's sponsor, Sen. Jack Ogg, came under fire from Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland.

Ogg, D-Houston, countered the barrage, claiming Clower's contentions were inaccurate.

Each spoke at separate news conferences Thursday.

Clower called Ogg's information "desperation tactics" and "lies."

Ogg's measure calls for presidential primaries to be held in March 1980. The regular state primaries are in May.

Texas could vote for a Republican presidential candidate in March and participate in the regular Democratic primary in May — or vice versa.

Questioning the motives of the bill's supporters, Clower accused backers of distributing "outright falsehoods" after "earlier claims didn't hold water."

"The people are tired of being force-fed rigged election bills," he said.

Ogg termed Clower's contentions "a smokescreen" and accused the detractors of wanting "to force out those Democrats who have supported the concept of a strong all-embracing party in Texas."

Clower took aim at Ogg's claim that two-thirds of the states holding presidential primaries conduct them on different dates from their regular primaries.

Citing a Library of Congress study, Clower said 20 of 31 states conducting presidential primaries in 1980 will hold them on the same day.

But Ogg said Clower's claim was based on a 1976 study while his information was based on a recent Library of Congress study prepared for the 1980 elections.

Ogg's study also showed twice as many North Carolina voters participated in the 1976 general primary than in the state's presidential primary. Clower claimed the director of elections in North Carolina said the turnout was lower.

A check with North Carolina election officials showed legislators "were so disappointed at the added cost and the turnout problems of the separate primaries that they voted in January 1977 to return to the same-day primary," Clower added.

He also said "self-styled independents are least likely to vote" and added that separate primaries would carry a total price tag of more than $4.7 million.

Ogg said support from Gov. Bill Clements will be the "bottom line" of the proposal's future. Ogg added he hoped to discuss the bill next week with Clements.

Saying he polls fellow senators daily, Clower claimed, "If the vote were taken today, 20 (of 31 senators) would have voted against suspending the rules (to have the bill considered)."

Ogg said the number of senators committed to approving the bill varied recently — from as few as "16 to 17" to as many as "22 to 23."

He could need as many as 21 votes to get the bill before the Senate.

End of debate near on state spending proposal which now amounts to fully $20.2 billion

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State policemen, the Texas prison system, old persons and young jazz artists were big winners in House debate of the $20.2 billion 1980-81 state budget bill Thursday.

Debate went into its third day this morning, with Speaker Bill Clayton predicting a final vote either tonight or Saturday morning.

"I still think we can finish Friday ... Our plans at this time are to try to finish this week," Clayton told reporters as the House adjourned Thursday night.

While the House Appropriations Committee couldn't hold off every attempt at changing its product, the net change in state revenue spending after two days of debate was about $18 million.

That would mean about $350 million left "on the table" for tax cuts or other spending — a far cry from Gov. Bill Clements' insistence on almost $1 billion for property tax relief.

Biggest change made Thursday was $6 million to increase Texas Department of Public Safety salaries even more than the appropriations committee had recommended, plus $2 million for state policemen's overtime.

A highway patrolman who has just completed probation would get $15,000 on Sept. 1, compared with $13,692 now and $14,880 recommended by the committee. A Texas Ranger sergeant's base pay would jump from $17,244 now to $22,200.

Rep. Tip Hall, D-Denton, said that while the additional pay raises would cost $3 million a year, the DPS' annual cost of $6 million for training patrolmen to replace those who have quit.

Appropriations committee members opposed Hall's amendment, but the House refused to table it, 13-124, and approved it on a voice vote.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, tried several times to eliminate $42 million for the first phase of constructing a new $83 million state prison but was beaten each time.

"If you kill these amendments, you are going to be telling the taxpayers we are robbing them of $42 million," said Washington.

He contended ongoing construction at the prison system would provide some 8,000 beds to handle the overcrowding that has 800 to 1,000 inmates sleeping on mattresses on the floors of cells.

But appropriations committee members won a 75-62 vote against Washington's final attempt.

Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, was more successful, securing a 123-16 vote to add $1.3 million in state funds for meals for the elderly. She said the federal government now requires state matching funds as a condition for receiving about $23 million for such programs as Meals on Wheels.

"We'll lose it. We'll lose the whole thing" without the matching money, Mrs. Denton said.

The House voted 106-29 to remove a rider that told the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities it could spend no money on jazz festivals.

Rep. Lance Lalor, D-Houston, protested that while the commission has never funded a jazz festival, the rider probably would end its support for summer jazz workshops.

He said more than half the commission's jazz grants "go to black community groups" and the rider would "cut off any effort to train new, young black musicians in this state."

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said it was "absurd" to spend money on jazz when teachers and state employees are getting pay raises that do not equal the inflation rate.

"The Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities is nothing more than a rich man's club that we are financing," Hollowell said. He said he was against the whole grant program but singled out jazz grants because they were "the most ridiculous."

Cattle fed for slaughter numbers decreasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A quarterly report shows the number of cattle being fed for slaughter — the major source of most cuts of supermarket beef — is down substantially from a year ago.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the April 1 feedlot inventory totaled 11.1 million cattle, down 6 percent from more than 11.7 million a year ago.

But officials said that, with the exception of last year, the April 1 feedlot cattle inventory was the largest since 1974.

One reason for the 6 percent drop from year-earlier inventories is that severe winter weather reduced new placements of lightweight cattle in feedlots in the first quarter of this year.

Another factor has been the high prices of feeder cattle themselves, which have tended to make many farmers and feedlot operators think hard about placing new stock on feed.

The nation's total cattle inventory is down sharply from a few years ago because producers have trimmed herds, sending them to market by the millions because of depressed prices.

In the last year, however, the reduced cattle inventory has triggered a steady rise in market prices — now at record levels — and producers are gradually beginning to rebuild their breeding herds.

Thus, with fewer cows and other "nonfed" cattle going to market, there will be less lower-grade beef for hamburger and processed foods.

More feedlot beef is coming along, but not enough to offset the decline in nonfed cattle for slaughter. That means the total U.S. beef supply this year will be down about percent this spring and summer from a year ago.

Also, much more pork and poultry will be produced this year, which will help consumers, but not enough to take the steam out of record-high cattle and beef prices, according to USDA experts.

Retail beef prices are expected to rise by more than 20 percent, on the average, this year, according to the department.

In a related report, the department said the outlook for consumers in May is that the beef supply will be "adequate," which means — according to USDA definition — there will be "enough to meet normal needs" of shoppers.

But it also said beef production next month will be down 8 percent to 10 percent from a year ago and 12 percent less than the May average in 1976-78.

On the other hand, the report said pork and broilers will be "plentiful" next month. By definition, that means "more than enough for requirements."

The quarterly feedlot report covered operations in 23 major cattle-feeding states, which produce about 95 percent of the nation's beef.

Placements of new cattle in feedlots in the first quarter of the year totaled 5.88 million head, down 9 percent from 6.49 million in January-March of last year, the report said.

Even so, those placements were up 5 percent from the same period in 1977 — when cattle herds were still being liquidated at a steady pace.

Tuition bill passes Senate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Pro-labor Sen. Carl Parker — perhaps trying to impress a gallery full of union workers — had this argument for higher tuition for foreign students:

In Houston service stations and other stores, "you can hardly buy anything if you can't speak Iranian."

Hundreds of workers applauded and cheered so loudly Gov. Bill Hobby pounded his gavel for order in the Senate gallery.

"It's fine to play to the galleries," said Sen. Tati Santiesteban, "but—" "You don't recommend cutting out show business, do you?" quipped Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The Senate voted 23-2 to raise state college tuition for foreign students from $14 to $40 per semester hour, with Parker and other senators arguing Texas students should come first.

The bill goes to the House.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said his bill would require foreign students to pay the same tuition as students from other states.

"I am not against foreign students but I am against subsidizing every foreign student who can get a visa to this country," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston.

"We need to take care of our kids before we ask Texas taxpayers to shoulder another burden," added Parker.

Santiesteban, D-El Paso, tried to attach an amendment authorizing lower tuition for foreign students if they could show they had financial need.

"You going to go to India and determine if a student is in need? You've got lots of kids in Texas that need to be educated and they should come first," objected Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg.

The amendment was rejected, 18-8.

Another Santiesteban amendment — to allow foreign students already enrolled in Texas colleges to avoid higher tuition — was defeated, 15-10.

Schwartz argued Texas already has 4,000 Iranian students in Texas, about 19 percent of the number in the United States. "We've got 1,180 Nigerian students compared to only 1,494 from Mexico," he said, "and we've got 1,127 from Taiwan and 924 from Hong Kong."

"It cost $2,475 to educate a state college student a year and Texas taxpayers are paying for a lot of this foreign student education," he said.

Terror rocks Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bloodied and battered by nearly 10 years of guerrilla warfare, Northern Ireland is reeling under a new wave of IRA terror that has killed 12 members of the security forces in two weeks.

The spring offensive of the outlawed Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing began in London with the bomb assassination of Airey Neave, the Conservative Party's spokesman on Northern Ireland, on March 30, the day after Prime Minister James Callaghan scheduled a general election for May 3.

The new guerrilla campaign opened in Northern Ireland six days later with an ambush outside a British army base in which two soldiers were killed. The IRA's 10 other victims since then have included three more soldiers, four policemen blown up Tuesday as their Land-Rover passed a parked, booby-trapped van, a part-time member of the Ulster Defense Regiment, a prison officer shot as he left his sister's wedding with his 3-year-old daughter and a woman prison officer and an army cadet killed Thursday.

The situation stirred up a storm today between U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill and British political leaders after O'Neill accused Britain of using Northern Ireland as a "political football." O'Neill made the remark in Dublin and then flew here with a congressional delegation.

In London, Shirley Williams, education minister and a leading member of Britain's Labor Party, said Irish-Americans had "very little idea of the truth of the situation in Northern Ireland."

Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher, hoping to become Britain's first woman prime minister, said the events in Northern Ireland "are too deeply tragic" to be used politically.

The spate of killings has hardened the British government's resolve that IRA terrorism would not force it to hand over the province to the neighboring Irish Republic.

Roy Mason, the cabinet member for Northern Ireland, has called for a "relentless drive" by the province's 1.5 million people against the guerrillas.

"They will not and must not succeed," he said. "Each incidence of violence creates a greater and growing determination on the part of the government and people to resist the imposition of a state of anarchy in which the gunman and the bomber hold sway. I am determined that they shall not achieve such a state."

Prime Minister James Callaghan said that if his Labor Party was returned to office in the election, he would try and try again to find a political solution which would bring peace to the province's two bitterly opposed communities, the million Protestants and the half-million Roman Catholics.

But he had no new proposals to end the centuries of enmity that erupted in the summer of 1969. Callaghan is heckled at every campaign meeting by a small group of demonstrators waving banners, shouting "Troops out of Ireland!" and accusing the army and the police of torture.

O'Neill asks British to aid Irish peace

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill called on Britain's next government "to get serious negotiations moving quickly toward a just, realistic and workable solution" in Northern Ireland.

Speaking Thursday at a banquet given by Prime Minister Jack Lynch, O'Neill said he felt Britain was not treating the problem of the guerrilla war in the six Ulster counties with sufficient urgency.

"We have been concerned that the problem has been treated as a political football in London, or has otherwise been given a low priority," he said.

"So far as I am concerned, there is no more serious problem on the agenda of British politics."

Uganda slates plans for first local elections

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's new provisional government announced its first local elections today and broadcast fresh appeals for troops backing deposed President Idi Amin to surrender.

Radio Kampala said residents of town in the area of the Kampala, the capital, would go to the polls to elect local parish leaders Saturday, eight days after the new government took office pledging to restore democracy after eight years of Amin's dictatorship.

Two of Amin's officers went on the radio, appealing to soldiers to stop fighting and back the new administration.

"I appeal to all soldiers to renounce

Amin, because they will be well treated," said Maj. Joseph Adeke, senior Anglican chaplain to Amin's forces. "There should be no more bloodshed. Put down your weapons and come forward." A similar appeal was broadcast by Lt. Col. Are Kizza.

Tanzanian and provisional government forces continued their drive east and north in a campaign they hoped would conquer remaining Amin forces in about one month.

Although Kampala was taken April 10, its lifeline east to neighboring Kenya has remained unsafe because of resistance by remnants of Amin's army. Widespread looting, murders and massacres have been reported in the area.

Bomb damages Rome's City Hall

ROME (AP) — A bomb blew off the portal of Rome's City Hall on the famed Capitoline Hill early today and a right-wing extremist organization claimed responsibility. Experts said the blast partly destroyed the marble arcades, cracked stonework and shattered windows on the Palazzo Senatorio, which was designed by Michelangelo. The building is one of three historic structures of the Piazza del Campidoglio.

SALT negotiations move slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a major issue has been resolved, the United States and the Soviet Union are still a few steps away from wrapping up negotiations on a new treaty limiting nuclear missiles and bombers.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin talked for an hour Thursday evening and agreed to meet again this afternoon for their 19th meeting of the year. Nearly all have dealt with the treaty.

They were said to be moving slowly and, according to State Department spokesman Tom Reston, have not reached the point where formal discussions can begin about the time and place for a summit meeting at which President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev can sign the treaty.

American officials, speaking privately, have said that in a formal sense, some points will be left for the two national leaders to resolve at the summit. The Soviets are not considered likely, however, to leave any substantive negotiations in the hands of the aging Brezhnev and will want the treaty all but written before agreeing to a summit.

An indication that Vance and Dobrynin have switched the topic of their negotiations from the treaty itself to the summit arrangements is probably as close as the two governments will come to announcing that they have reached agreement in principle on the treaty.

The two sides have been informally negotiating on a summit site, primarily by making statements to the press. At this point, it appears likely the meeting will be held in a neutral European city to spare Brezhnev a long flight.

The American sources said Thursday that an agreement has been reached on what has been considered the major remaining issue in the treaty talks, the definition of new missile types.

The treaty limits each side to introducing one new missile. The United States wanted a tight definition that would prevent the Soviets from modifying existing missiles and then claiming the changes did not amount to a new model.

Voting slows in Rhodesia elections

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Voting slowed to a trickle today in Rhodesia's first universal-suffrage election, but officials hoped for a last-minute surge to bring the turnout over the 60 percent mark.

Officials said by noon today, nearly 52 percent of the estimated 2.9 million voters had cast ballots. They expected a big turnout during the afternoon, a half holiday, and on the last day of polling Saturday.

Since the voting started Tuesday, black nationalist guerrillas have killed an election official, burned at least one village, mined a truckload of voters and intimidated many other blacks to keep them from the polls. But the widespread attacks that were feared have not materialized.

The turnout among the 2.8 million black voters was reported strongest in urban areas, ranging up to 70 percent in and around Salisbury, the capital, and in northeastern Rhodesia. The response was much lower in some of the rural tribal areas, which are heavily infiltrated by guerrillas.

"People in some areas don't want anything to do with the terrorists or the army," said Ian Matheson, district commissioner of the guerrilla-plagued Tjolotjo tribal reserve. "They don't want to vote. They just want to be left alone."

He said none of the 8,000 voters in the North Natal tribal reserve voted.

The heaviest casualties reported from guerrilla action since the voting started Tuesday occurred when a truck carrying blacks home from a polling station set off a land mine 28 miles north of Karoi.

Guerrilla threats get out votes in Rhodesia hamlet

CHIBUWE, Rhodesia (AP) — A barrage of guerrilla threats, backed by sporadic violence, have kept some of Rhodesia's blacks from the polls as this nation's elects its first black-majority government. But the threats apparently helped to swell the vote in this protected hamlet only 20 miles from Mozambique and the bases of Robert Mugabe's rebels.

Chibuwe, in southeastern Rhodesia, is one of 26 "protected" villages in the area in which the homes and farm lands of blacks are ringed by fences and patrolled by government troops.

Chibuwe has more than 8,000 residents, of which 3,206 adults were eligible to vote, said white district commissioner Dirk Du Plooy.

By Thursday, he told reporters, 3,450 votes — more than 100 percent — had been recorded here.

Du Plooy said this didn't mean someone was stuffing the ballot boxes.

"The population of these protected villages is rapidly expanding as people who escaped the war now come back, knowing that they are safe here, and many relatives have arrived to visit their families over Easter. So they voted here."

Three years ago the guerrilla war had critically disrupted life in the region, Du Plooy said.

Then the government moved in with troops and restored social services.

Hance predicts more conservative Congress

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

"We're going to see a more conservative Congress than you've seen in the past 30 years," U.S. Rep. Kent Hance predicted Thursday while addressing the Central Basin Chapter of Texas Association of Business in the Midland Hilton.

The 19th District congressman, who represents Midland, outlined upcoming bills in Congress, adding his own thoughts on their possible outcome.

Three practices by Congress have led to the runaway inflation rate today, he said, and these are deficit spending, deficit trade and no control of regulatory agencies.

In a move to correct the deficit budget, an amendment requiring a balanced budget narrowly was defeated by Congress this year. But Hance foresees the amendment coming up again and passing.

"Congress won't face up to the realities of a balanced budget if they're not required to," Hance said.

President Carter has submitted a budget with a $29 billion deficit — the smallest amount in years, according to Hance. By the time Congress gets through with its trimming shears, the deficit may be down to $25 to $27 billion, he said.

Only area of significant increase is in the Defense Department, and the freshman congressman said this hike is necessary. Since 1972, Russia has been gaining rapidly in its defense arms, while the U.S. has remained stationary concerning its arms, he claimed.

Taxes — the money on which government bases its income — are not in for a severe cut any time soon, ac-ording to Hance. There may be a cutback in the Social Security tax, but that will come this year.

Before he could support a proposed "value-added" tax, Hance said, income taxes or corporate taxes would have to be cut first.

"This value-added tax would put even more into the government's income,"

He predicted failure for the Kemp-Roth Bill, which proposes cutting income taxes by a third over a period of time, but not government spending.

Another bill submitted by Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia could see success because it has added a similar cut in spending by Congress.

Regulatory agencies — those bodies which distribute the government's money — need to be brought under control, Hance said Thursday.

"They add to the inflationary spiral and the consumer winds up paying for it," he added.

One bill already introduced would give Congress more control over those agencies through a legislative veto.

The U.S. had a $34 billion balance of trade deficit in 1978, and this causes the American dollar to weaken on the world market, Hance said.

And the more the U.S. imports crude oil, the bigger the deficit gets, he contended.

Decontrol would cause higher automobile gasoline prices, but Hance said the additional money would be plowed back into exploration and production in the U.S.

One bill which Hance will be leading the Democratic floor fight to defeat would provide between $60,000 and $90,000 matching funds for federal campaigns.

Carter changes stand on shah

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has changed its stand on the Shah of Iran settling in the United States, and is now saying privately that he can live here when U.S. relations with Iran are more stable.

But it was learned that the administration is not putting any time estimate on when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would be able to come to the United States.

The shah, his wife and children have been living in the Bahamas since March 30, but Bahamian officials said at the time of his arrival that they considered his stay a "brief visit."

Since being forced from Iran on Jan. 22, the shah and an entourage that includes 30 aides, have been living in exile — stopping briefly in Egypt and Morocco before going to the Bahamas.

While the shah was in Egypt, President Carter said at a Jan. 17 press conference that it was expected he would come to the United States.

But when the forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini took power in Iran a few weeks later, administration officials said they were worried about mob violence against Americans living in Iran if the shah was allowed to enter the United States. They also voiced concerns about providing security for the shah.

By the time the shah arrived in the Bahamas three weeks ago, administration officials were saying that while he had not been barred from the United States, he had been strongly urged not to come here for security reasons.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the Carter administration dispatched an unidentified American — a private citizen — to Morocco in late March to tell the shah he was not welcome in the United States for the time being because of the delicacy of Iranian-American relations.

Before getting the private citizen to carry the message, the newspaper said, the administration asked both former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and banker David Rockefeller to carry the same message. Both men, who are friends of the shah, angrily refused, The Times said.

The newspaper said Kissinger, Rockefeller and attorney John J. McCloy had been exerting strong behind-the-scenes pressure on the White House to reverse its decision barring the shah from this country.

The newspaper also reported today that the administration intends to nominate Walter L. Cutler to replace William H. Sullivan as ambassador to Iran. Cutler is currently U.S. ambassador in Zaire.

A State Department spokesman refused to confirm The Times' report on Kissinger and Rockefeller being sought as emissaries or that Cutler was being considered as ambassador to Iran.

Florida police recall radar units 'to check accuracy'

MIAMI (AP) — As public defenders finished presenting their case against radar speed checking units, Dade County police pulled their units off the road to "double-check their accuracy."

The nine units — sold under the brand name Speed Gun Eight — were returned to CMI Inc. of Minturn, Colo., police spokesman Sgt. T. Piper said on Thursday.

The move — disclosed as testimony resumed in a Dade County Court hearing where several experts have challenged radar speed readings — brought criticism from Douglas R. Vogel, vice president and director of engineering for CMI.

"I'm surprised that in the middle of a trial, before the prosecution has had an opportunity to state its case, that something of this nature would be done," said Vogel, here observing the court hearing.

He added that he had confidence his company's products are accurate. The Speed Gun Eight, a model in wide use around the country, can be used in a moving vehicle or hand-held by a trooper at the roadside, Vogel said.

"I was told by Maj. Harvey Singer of the uniform division that they were sent to double-check their accuracy," Piper said. "The major said that in view of the present trial and the statements being made, we don't want our Speed Guns attacked as inaccurate."

Singer could not be reached for comment.

The Speed Gun and other radar devices have been the subject of testimony this week by expert witnesses called by public defenders representing 27 drivers accused of speeding.

The lawyers are asking county Judge Alfred Nesbitt to suppress use of radar evidence against the drivers.

As word of the police action filtered through the courtroom, the final defense witness was on the stand, describing use of radar when he was a patrolman in San Diego and later when he was a researcher.

Rod Dornisfe said police on the night shift in San Diego often napped with the radar guns on, awaking when the unit "beeped" as it "locked onto" a speeding car.

He also said he tested various units, including the Speed Gun, and found several could produce erroneous readings.

Dornisfe is author of "The Ticket Book," which advises drivers how to avoid getting traffic tickets. A chapter is devoted to radar speed-detection devices and radar detectors.

San Antonio's fiesta begins today

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of celebrants began readying today for the 88th Fiesta, San Antonio's giant city-wide, 10-day festival.

The first of the celebration's 125 events gets under way today. The traditional St. Mary's Oyster Bake is planned for Saturday at St. Mary's University, while the installation of the 57th King Antonio, the royal head of the celebration, will take place Saturday night in front of the Alamo.

The first of the parades, the floating River Parade, winds its way through downtown Monday night.

The 84th Battle of Flowers Parade, around which the Fiesta grew up, is scheduled for the afternoon of April 27 and the Fiesta Flambeau parade is scheduled the night of April 28. More than 300,000 spectators crowded into the downtown area last year to view each of those parades.

Night in Old San Antonio, a festival of food and drink in the historic La Villita complex downtown, will be held four nights, beginning Tuesday.

Foster care for abused children not provided in certain cases

More than 40 Texas counties do not provide foster care for child abuse victims from non-poverty level families, according to the Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR).

Without the availability of foster care, abused or neglected children from families not under income guidelines in the 41 counties often are forced to remain with their abusive parents unless a relative or neighbor is willing to care for the child.

Bernardo Lopez, regional director for DHR social services in West Texas, says the state currently provides protective foster care only to children from poverty-level families eligible for the AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) program.

Foster care for children from non-AFDC families is the responsibility of county governments.

Some 117 Texas counties have a contract with DHR to provide protective foster care for children not eligible for state funded AFDC foster care, according to Lopez.

An additional 96 counties provide some limited funding on a case by case basis. Forty-one counties provide no funding.

Even in counties providing non-AFDC foster care, funds do not meet the need for specialized care for mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed children, Lopez said.

By law, DHR is responsible for assuring protection of all children in the state, regardless of a family's economic status.

When protective foster care is unavailable to non-AFDC children, DHR officials say sometimes their only alternative is to love the child with their abusive parents with DHR guidance.

"All children in Texas—not just half of them—should be assured of foster care when needed," Lopez told the Ector County Foster Parents Association in Odessa recently.

"For this to be accomplished the state must assume responsibility for non-AFDC as well as AFDC foster care."

Lopez believes a state appropriation for protective foster care for all children is essential to assure equal protection of Texas children.

Legislation to provide non-AFDC foster care has been introduced in the current session of the legislature by Senator Chet Brooks of Pasadena and Representative Lynn Nabers of Brownwood.

Organize your fall wardrobe around the occasions in your life

DALLAS—Do you regard shopping for clothes as a pleasant way to pass time, or do you shop with a specific purpose in mind?

More and more women (with less and less time to spend) cluster their clothing purchases around specific occasions and find that it saves time and cuts down on impulse purchases that never seem to fit into their wardrobes.

At the recent Early Fall Market at the Dallas Apparel Mart, clothes focused on four important occasions—working, stepping out, weekend living, and disco dancing—that will dominate wardrobes in fall '79. Here are the new looks for the occasions in your life.

For work, fall suits, slimmer at the bottom and wider at the top with belted and shorter jackets are the uniform. Skirts are shorter, barely reaching below the knee, with slits up the back or sides. Chanel suits and Chesterfield suits in gabardine, tweeds, basket weaves, nubby knits, tweeds, basket weaves, nubby knits, loopy boucles and brushed-surface plaids appear mostly in shades of navy, beige, gray, red and black. The city neutrals are accented with bright blouses, belts and gloves.

Clothes for stepping out after five include dinner suits, chemise dresses, brocade blazers, sheath dresses, skintight pants and evening sweaters with shiny, subtle beading and shots of lurex. Fabrics for stepping out are feminine laces, satins, velvets and brocades. Glamour accessories complete the look. Tiny hats, three-quarter length gloves, textured stockings, small structured bags and heavy jewelry combine to create the perfect mood for elegant dressing after five.

Weekends are for relaxing, and women will relax in style this fall. Autumn weekend-wear will include bulky outdoor knits, fitted skirts, kilts, longer fitted blazers, and pants that are tapered, stovepipe and stirruped. Fall leisure fabrics will provide comfort and fashion with soft flannels, soft leathers and suedes, color-flecked tweeds and natural yarns. Argyle socks, colored loafers, leather belts, wool gloves and wrapped headscarves complete the weekend wardrobe.

The fourth occasion for today's woman is disco dancing, and apparel designers presented fashions for a separate disco wardrobe for fall. Two-piece maillots, either strapless or scoop necked, and tiorador tights are a popular look for the more daring dancer.

Hike-Bike Saturday

Get those walking shoes primed, for once again it's time to join the annual Midland Hike-Bike.

Sponsored by the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, the fund-raising event begins at 8 a.m. at the Opportunity Center, 2701 N. "A" St.

The Hike-Bike has been held here for the past six years and has topped the nation every year in raising the most amount of money. This year, however, challenges have been received from the Arlington and El Paso ARC groups who have notified the Midland group that "they are going all out to beat us this year," according to Paul Sueltenfuss, MARC executive director.

Participants have pledge forms and will receive donations of money for each mile walked. Monies collected will go toward the local programs, with less than ten percent leaving the community, explained Sueltenfuss.

The route will be a 20-mile hike, in the area of Wadley St., Hogan Park and the Cub Stadium. Lunch will be provided for all hikers. Also, cars will be placed at various points along the route to assist hikers who tire or need help.

Last year's hike attracted approximately 160 volunteers and Sueltenfuss hopes for as good a turnout this year. "We encourage hikers, bikers, horseback riders, runners, unicyclists, all of whom have joined us in the past," he said.

Suggestions for hikers are to eat a good breakfast Saturday, wear good walking boots or comfortable shoes (do not wear sandals or walk barefooted); and wear a long sleeved shirt to avoid sunburn (and use a sun screen or tanning lotion).

Irish dish suits springtime

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I understand that you have given recipes for Colcannon. Would you be so good as to print one again for those of us who have missed them? — VEGETABLE BUFF?

DEAR VEGETABLE BUFF: I'm happy you asked about Colcannon — that homey combination of potatoes, cabbage, onion, butter, milk and seasoning. It's a simple country dish from Ireland that, in my opinion, is as delicious as any so-called gourmet offering. This is an especially good time to try Colcannon because in springtime truckloads of attractive green heads of cabbage are brought to markets from many parts of the United States. The vegetable is in peak supply all over.

Like many traditional dishes, there are various versions of Colcannon. There's also a little controversy surrounding its name. When the dish is called Colcannon should it be made with cabbage or kale? Theodora Fitzgibbon in her cookbook, "A Taste of Ireland," says, "Colcannon should correctly be made with kale, but is more often made with cabbage."

And the late Maura Laverty, known both for her novels and cookbooks, wrote that the potato-cabbage combination should be called Thump; only when potatoes and kale are combined should the dish be named Colcannon.

On the other hand, Frances Mayville Budin, author of "Recipes from Ireland," brings up the derivation of the name: "Cal ceannann is the Irish for Colcannon, cal means cabbage and ceannann means white-headed." Who wins out? Mrs. Budin? — C.B.

1 1/2 cups tightly packed, coarsely grated (short lengths) green cabbage
Butter
1 small onion, chopped fine (about 1/4 cup)
Milk
Salt and Pepper

According to the manufacturer's directions for your particular steamer, cook the potatoes in a bottom part of it until they are tender; at the same time cook the cabbage in an insert in the upper part of the steamer, just until the cabbage is tender-crisp. The potatoes, unless cut very small, will take longer than the cabbage to cook.

Meanwhile in a small skillet, in a couple of tablespoons of hot butter, gently cook the onion until golden.

Drain the potatoes and rice or mash until smooth. Drain the cabbage well. With a spoon, mix potatoes, cabbage and onion; stir in enough milk to make a consistency you like and season well with salt and pepper. Reheat and serve very hot with a pat of butter melting in a well in the center of each portion.

Makes 4 delicious servings.

The chapter met in the home of Mrs. Goode, with Betty Jones as a guest.

Other officers named were Jackie Duncan, vice president; Lorraine Miles, recording secretary; Frances Luccous, corresponding secretary; Betty Banks, treasurer, and Thelma Barker, program moderator.

The outgoing president, Christine Broxson, will serve as scrapbook chairman and president of the Permian Basin Area Assembly of Phi Sigma Alpha.

Members of the Eta Epsilon Zeta chapter of Zeta Phi Beta sorority prepare for a benefit tea Sunday at the Midland Federation of Black Women's Clubhouse. From the left are Mrs. James A. Johnson, president; Velta Baker, Bertha Starks and Johnnie Shelton. The event will be held at from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. The public is invited to attend. (Staff Photo)

Officers selected

Officers were introduced at this week's meeting of the Permian AIMEES who met at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Leading the group will be Jo Wornat, president; Rowena Galerston, first vice president; Kathy Freeman, second vice president; Phala Smith, secretary; Anita Lintzen, treasurer; Fena Berry and Betty Scott, directors.

Philanthropic chairman Shirley Brooks presented the two scholarship recipients to the group. They were Xan Phiffer and Jane Bishop, who attended the luncheon along with their mothers.

The AIMEES will adjourn for the summer and gather again at the membership coffee in September.

AFTER MASTECTOMY

Finally, a natural prosthesis for the woman who has undergone surgery for removal of the breast. Wear your transparent bras again...no special pocket is necessary, go strapless, even see-through. Tennis, swimming, or jogging is no longer a problem; the prosthesis will not slip, ride up, or absorb water. The NaturForm Prosthesis has the same form, color and texture of the natural breast, including the nipple and areola! It is not filled with liquid or silicone, so there is no danger of leakage or shrinkage; it even absorbs and maintains the body's temperature. FOUR YEAR GUARANTEE. Covered by most insurance.

This prosthesis is now available to residents of the Permian Basin area. Be professionally fitted in our private showing Saturday April 21, from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. at 1909 McDonald.

DEAR ABBY

He's hopping mad

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I met this good-looking girl who waits on tables in a place near where I work. She came on like a sweet country kid who worked hard for a living and wouldn't let a guy get to first base with her, which I liked.

Well, I took her home from work a couple of times, and all she'd give me was a goodnight kiss at her door.

I asked her what she wanted for Easter and she gave me a list of clothes to buy and where to buy them. I went around and bought all the things she wanted, which set me back $400.

After I gave her these gifts, I asked her how about driving to Palm Springs for the weekend. She said nothing doing — she wasn't "that kind" of a girl.

She already wore the clothes I gave her, so what do I do now? $400 bucks ain't hay. — DENNY IN PASADENA

DEAR DENNY: If it were, you'd have enough to eat all winter. Call it a $400 lesson.

DEAR ABBY: Greg and I have been married for seven years and have two children. I noticed he was rather nervous and jumpy lately, but I thought maybe he'd been putting in too much overtime at work. He finally broke down and confessed that he had been carrying on with a friend of mine. (She's also married.) I was in shock!

He claims she threw herself at him and he was only human, so I should try to forgive and forget because it's all over now. I've honestly tried, but do you think I should be expected to socialize with this woman and her husband as though nothing had ever happened between her and my husband?

I told Greg I didn't care to socialize with this couple anymore and he became angry with me. In order to avoid arguments we've been going out as a foursome, but it bothers me to even look at her.

I know that Christians should forgive, and I have prayed to the Lord for my feelings to change, but I still feel the same toward her. What should I do? — UNFORGIVING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Keep praying, but to thine own self be true. And unless you feel completely comfortable with this woman, tell Greg that you, too are "only human," and you'd rather not be in her company. The Lord will understand.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend's mother lets her kids call her "Yetta." Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

I tried calling my mother "Sheila" and nearly got hit in the head. My Mom said when kids call their parents by their first names it shows a lack of respect, and there would be none of that in our house.

I wonder how you feel about that, Abby. — SONIA

DEAR SONIA: I think your mother's wishes should be respected.

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined moderately today, continuing its recent pullback after a broad early-spring rally.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 3.03 at 852.22.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Overseas Shipholding Group led the active list, up 1/4 at 25 1/4. A 353,800-share block traded at 24 1/4.

General Public Utilities dropped 3/4 to 11 1/4 in active trading. The company, which owns the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania where an accident occurred last month, said a postponed meeting of its board to consider dividend action and other matters would be held next Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .18 to 56.91. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .04 to 180.40.

Students win in literary events

Lee and Midland high schools carried home honors from the District 5-4A University Interscholastic League literary competitions held earlier this month at Big Spring.

Lee High participants won sweepstakes in all literary events with a combined total of 179 points, while Midland High students qualified to go on to regional competition in informative speaking, persuasive speaking, spelling, editorial writing and literary writing.

UIL regional competition will be held Saturday at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Lee High's 15-member cast of "The Madwoman of Chaillot," directed by Horace Griffin, won a first place, while Lee High student Mike Shaunessy placed first in informative speaking.

Pete Marshall placed first in headline writing, and Midland High's Dirk Beveridge placed first in editorial writing.

Second place awards went to Lee High's James Bynum for prose, Robert Warfield for science, Kelley Osborne for editorial writing, Carol Matthews for feature writing and Osborne for headline writing.

Second place ratings received by MHS students included one to Valerie Van Pelt for informative speaking, one to Jane Forsyth for persuasive speaking and one to George Jackson for spelling.

Lee High debate teams picked up a second and third place on the topic of Energy. Marvin Moore and Mike Cummins were on the team that won second place and Eric Fryar and John Kimberly received the third-place rating.

Other third place winners included Lee High's Sandra Craig for spelling, Graciela Gonzales for shorthand and Carol Matthews for editorial writing.

Midland High's Dirk Beveridge took third for headline writing. Placing fourth was Lee's Deane Durfee for informative speaking.

Services scheduled for Rogers Morton

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Services for former U.S. Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, described by one colleague as a "courageous Republican and a national leader," are scheduled for Saturday at this community on Morton's beloved Eastern Shore of Chesapeake Bay.

Morton, who represented the Eastern Shore in Congress from 1962 until 1970, died at his waterfront home near here Thursday, where he had been confined following a long illness. He was 64.

Morton, who served as commerce secretary under President Gerald Ford, also was President Richard Nixon's interior secretary, and a head of the Republican Party.

Morton was especially proud of his long association with environmental issues, particularly those that helped to improve the Chesapeake Bay.

U.S. Interior Cecil D. Andrus paid tribute to Morton's efforts on behalf of environmental issues, saying, "Rogers Morton was a fine man and committed conservationist who resisted many adverse pressures and supported many good causes during his more than four years at the Interior."

Former CIA director George Bush called Morton, who was 6-foot-7, "a friendly giant of a man who felt as comfortable in the presence of presidents as he did with the working men and women of the Eastern Shore of Maryland."

Morton was a member of a well-to-do family that owned Ballard and Ballard, a flour milling business famous for its biscuits. It merged with Pillsbury in 1951.

Cartier proposing major overhaul of prescription drugs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration asked Congress Thursday to speed marketing approval for drugs that represent major breakthroughs and to encourage the sale of relatively inexpensive generic drugs.

The requests are included in a bill proposing a major overhaul of the nation's prescription drug law. Virtually identical administration legislation failed to reach the floor in the last Congress, largely due to major drug manufacturers' opposition.

The prospects in this Congress also are uncertain, and some observers believe the measure was doomed when one of its principal advocates, Food and Drug Commissioner Donald Kennedy, announced his resignation Tuesday.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who is vacationing while Congress is in recess this week, sent the bill to Capitol Hill with a message invoking Carter's support of the measure and saying he looks forward "to working with the Congress again this year as it considers this major consumer legislation."

The measure is designed to speed up a now-lengthy administrative process that the industry and many experts claim impedes the marketing of new life-saving drugs.

At the same time, it would permit the Food and Drug Administration to order existing drugs off the market if they are found to present an unacceptably high risk of adverse effects.

Services scheduled for Rogers Morton

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Services for former U.S. Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, described by one colleague as a "courageous Republican and a national leader," are scheduled for Saturday at this community on Morton's beloved Eastern Shore of Chesapeake Bay.

Morton, who represented the Eastern Shore in Congress from 1962 until 1970, died at his waterfront home near here Thursday, where he had been confined following a long illness. He was 64.

Morton, who served as commerce secretary under President Gerald Ford, also was President Richard Nixon's interior secretary, and a head of the Republican Party.

Morton was especially proud of his long association with environmental issues, particularly those that helped to improve the Chesapeake Bay.

U.S. Interior Cecil D. Andrus paid tribute to Morton's efforts on behalf of environmental issues, saying, "Rogers Morton was a fine man and committed conservationist who resisted many adverse pressures and supported many good causes during his more than four years at the Interior."

Former CIA director George Bush called Morton, who was 6-foot-7, "a friendly giant of a man who felt as comfortable in the presence of presidents as he did with the working men and women of the Eastern Shore of Maryland."

Morton was a member of a well-to-do family that owned Ballard and Ballard, a flour milling business famous for its biscuits. It merged with Pillsbury in 1951.

Cartier proposing major overhaul of prescription drugs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration asked Congress Thursday to speed marketing approval for drugs that represent major breakthroughs and to encourage the sale of relatively inexpensive generic drugs.

The requests are included in a bill proposing a major overhaul of the nation's prescription drug law. Virtually identical administration legislation failed to reach the floor in the last Congress, largely due to major drug manufacturers' opposition.

The prospects in this Congress also are uncertain, and some observers believe the measure was doomed when one of its principal advocates, Food and Drug Commissioner Donald Kennedy, announced his resignation Tuesday.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who is vacationing while Congress is in recess this week, sent the bill to Capitol Hill with a message invoking Carter's support of the measure and saying he looks forward "to working with the Congress again this year as it considers this major consumer legislation."

The measure is designed to speed up a now-lengthy administrative process that the industry and many experts claim impedes the marketing of new life-saving drugs.

At the same time, it would permit the Food and Drug Administration to order existing drugs off the market if they are found to present an unacceptably high risk of adverse effects.

Carter administration wants Americans eating less beef, more pork, chicken

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Carter administration has its way, Americans will be eating less beef and more chicken and pork.

In an effort to slow rapidly rising beef prices, the administration announced Thursday it is sharply reducing government purchases of beef, including hamburger for the school lunch program.

Purchases of raisins also will come to a virtual halt, while buying of other high-priced fruits and vegetables will be curtailed.

Rising meat and other food prices are threatening to undermine the anti-inflation program, the administration said.

Beef and veal prices increased by 35.7 percent at the wholesale level during the 12-month period ending in March. Food prices generally have increased 13 percent at the retail level.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said Thursday that to reduce upward pressure on beef prices, the government's three largest food-buying agencies will cut their beef purchases by 25 percent during the next 18 months, turning instead to poultry, pork and cheese.

The agencies are the Veterans Administration, the Defense Department and the Agriculture Department, which purchased 81 million pounds of ground beef for the school lunch program at a cost of $93 million last year. The announcement urged consumers to follow the government's example.

"We encourage consumers to increase their purchases of lower-priced meat, such as pork and chicken, as well as lower-priced substitutes for high-priced fruits and vegetables, so that inflationary pressures on scarce items are moderated but the market for them is not disrupted," said a statement.

The statement, issued jointly by Carter inflation adviser Alfred E. Kahn and Esther Peterson, Carter's consumer affairs adviser, came after the government announced that economic growth slowed sharply in the first three months of the year, which should help in slowing all price increases.

The Commerce Department said the nation's gross national product increased at an 0.7 percent annual rate in the January-through-March period, down sharply from a 6.9 percent rate of increase in the final three months of 1978.

The administration and Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board said the slower growth showed government economic policies are working. However, Miller said that if the economy should speed up rapidly again in the second quarter, additional slowdown measures might have to be taken.

Should the second quarter GNP exceed a 2.5 percent annual rate, Miller said, "We will have to seriously consider a more restrictive monetary action." That would undoubtedly mean higher interest rates.

Miller also said fighting inflation must be the government's top priority, even if it risks a serious recession. However, he said, "the odds are" that a recession will be avoided this year.

Chairman Charles L. Schultze of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said he expects significant improvement in inflation in the second half of the year.

The actions to slash beef purchases are unlikely to reduce prices, but the administration clearly hopes it will slow the rate of increase. The Agriculture Department has estimated retail beef prices will rise 20 percent this year, and that overall food prices will increase between 8.5 percent and 10 percent.

"These price increases threaten the success of our entire effort to slow inflation," the joint announcement said.

The Agriculture Department announced separately that the number of cattle being fed for slaughter totaled 11.1 million on April 1, a drop of 6 percent from a year ago, although it otherwise was the largest number since 1974.

A shortage of slaughter cattle has been blamed for rapidly rising beef prices.

The government's cutback will make an additional 57 million pounds of beef available for purchase by American consumers, the council estimated.

In their statement, Kahn and Mrs. Peterson ruled out price controls on beef, saying they would be counterproductive. However, they urged "prudent" shopping by consumers, without saying exactly what they meant.

According to the council's figures, the three federal agencies had planned to purchase 228 million pounds of beef in the next 18 months.

The decision by the Defense Department means more pork and chicken will also be fed U.S. troops on military installations.

Don't bank on refund from Tesco — not yet

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Customers of three electric companies should not bank on getting hefty refunds from the utilities — not yet.

The three-member Public Utility Commission decides today whether to agree with its staff and order $20 million be returned to customers of Texas Electric Service Co., Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light, including those in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring.

The commission could reduce the $20 million figure or decide no refunds are needed. If large rebates are ordered, the case likely would be taken to court.

The companies are subsidiaries in the Texas Utilities system, headquartered in Fort Worth. They serve cities in East Texas, West Texas, Central Texas and North Texas, including Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and Wichita Falls.

Commission staff conducted a six-month investigation of energy transactions among the three utilities, especially concerning the Martin Lake lignite power plant near Henderson.

Texas Utilities is building the plant and each operating company owns an interest.

TP&L sold some of its interest in the plant to both TESCO and DP&L. However, TESCO agreed to furnish TP&L with electricity generated from its cheapest natural gas supply.

Company officials say none of the sales increased corporate profits and were made only to hold down future fuel costs.

Government will try again giving flu shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is going to try again next winter to set up a nationwide program of flu shots for elderly and chronically ill people.

In announcing the plan Thursday, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. acknowledged that last winter's program was "beset by several difficulties, including public skepticism carried over from the swine flu experience, delayed congressional funding and uncertainty among manufacturers of the vaccine about demand for it."

But Califano warned that "flu often takes a serious toll on the health of our nation's people" and said, "It is clear that the general medical opinion and practice in the United States is that flu vaccination for high-risk individuals is desirable."

GI hospital suite for president not used five years

WASHINGTON (AP) — A suite of rooms at a California military hospital has stood empty for five years, reserved for a VIP patient who did not know it exists, a congressional report says.

The prospective patient: the president of the United States.

Neither the Pentagon nor the White House knew the Naval Regional Medical Center at Camp Pendleton was reserving the four-room suite exclusively for presidential use, according to the report by the General Accounting Office.

It said the 1,064-square-foot suite consists of a bedroom, a meeting room, a Secret Service bedroom and a kitchen. Among the furnishings are three color television sets.

GAO also criticized the Defense Department for building a presidential suite at Walter Reed Army Medical Hospital in Washington when a large presidential suite already was available at the Naval Medical Center in nearby Bethesda, Md.

Once the Walter Reed facility was completed, the Pentagon changed plans and earmarked the 2,800-square-foot suite for VIPs other than the president, the report said.

Even so, the GAO recommended that the suite be converted for use by other patients since Walter Reed already has a 7,200-square-foot VIP facility.

The report said the Camp Pendleton suite was first established in 1969 — at a cost of nearly $42,000 — to provide medical care for then-President Richard M. Nixon when he visited nearby San Clemente.

The Navy said the suite would be converted to other patient rooms after Nixon resigned in 1974, according to GAO. Instead, the furnishings from the old suite were moved into the new one and restrictions on who could use it were tightened, the report said.

The old suite was available to senior military officers, returning prisoners of war, the commandant of the Marine Corps and other VIPs, the report said. It said the new suite "is reserved solely for the president's use and has never been used."

The Pentagon had no comment on the report.

The GAO, which recommended closing the suite, quoted a White House official as saying the Carter administration "was not aware of the continued existence of this facility" and "does not deem it necessary for there to be a presidential suite in the state of California."

According to the report, Navy headquarters officials "do not consider Camp Pendleton a presidential suite because it is not maintained in a state of readiness for presidential occupancy."

Navy officials said that "because of the hospital's low occupancy rate, the suite had not been needed for other patients and was not converted to other patient uses." GAO said.

The agency also said some Navy hospitals continue to separate officer and enlisted patients despite a 1974 Pentagon directive to discontinue the practice.

What make Bob Wright, shown in this 1977 photo, of Columbus, Ga., unusual is that he's a black Republican in a state which claims a Democratic president as its native son. And he's trying to convince more blacks to enter politics under the GOP banner. (AP Laserphoto)

Black Republican trying to sell GOP to minorities

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A black Republican in Jimmy Carter's home state is quietly attempting to persuade the nation's minorities that the Grand Old Party is not just for the wealthy and the white.

Bob Wright, a tall, soft-spoken city councilman in this west Georgia city, is part of Wright, McNeil and Associates, a consulting firm that emphasizes increased involvement of black and white politicians in the black community.

The firm is under contract to the Republican National Committee to rejuvenate the GOP and its image with minorities across the nation.

"Republicans have a negative image," said Wright, 42, who until 1970 was a registered Democrat. "They are perceived as a party that is insensitive to blacks, poor and minorities."

Wright's firm, with a staff of 11 operating offices here and in Washington, encourages Republican lawmakers, black and white, to support legislation that will have an impact on black and poor communities.

But the problem is not only legislation, Wright said in an interview. It also is the concept that Republicans represent the wealthy and Democrats the poor.

"Republicans have introduced some meaningful programs in the past, but either through lack of communication or lack of something, many are not perceived or believed to be Republican programs," he said, citing as an example the federal Office of Minority Business Enterprise, created during the Nixon administration.

Wright's firm also works with Republican candidates, defining minority issues and designing campaigns to address those issues.

This is the third time Wright and McNeil has contracted with the RNC. Although Wright declined to discuss monetary aspects, previous contracts were reported to be for $250,000 and $500,000.

This year, Wright and the Republicans are looking toward the 1980 presidential election and a chance to unseat Carter.

Wright said the GOP is working on the local, state and national levels to improve its percentage of black votes in 1980.

In 1976, the GOP presidential candidate, Gerald Ford, received only 7 percent of the black vote nationwide. Carter's percentage of black votes was said by some observers to have insured his election.

But Wright said 1978 election results show the trend is reversible.

"What we've seen since 1976, particularly with Jimmy Carter promising everything to everybody and delivering nothing to the minorities, is that black Americans are taking a different look at the political spectrum," he said.

"In 1978, Republicans got 15 percent of the black vote nationally," he said. "If that trend continues to 1980 and if the Republican presidential nominee adopts issues that are important to blacks," then there's a chance Republicans can improve that percentage. Currently, there are 15 blacks in Congress. All of them are Democratic House members.

The percentage of black voters, as well as other polling and demographic information, are considered before an area is selected to be targeted for minority concentration, Wright said.

Although he declined to "give our trade secrets away," Wright said his firm tries to "see how well the incumbent addresses the needs of blacks and to take a look at the image of our guy. Then we work from there."

Increased involvement of blacks is not the only new direction in which Republicans are turning for support, he said. While his firm deals with the black issue, other consultants concentrate on involving more women, blue collar workers and other traditional Democratic voting blocks in the GOP.

Love Canal residents feel trapped

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — From her living-room window, Marie Pozniak gazes out at rows of abandoned houses just a stone's throw away. For her and hundreds of others, the sight is a daily and haunting reminder of the grim reality nearby — the chemical disaster known as Love Canal.

Mrs. Pozniak and some 500 others were left behind in the modest neighborhood when the state evacuated their neighbors nearest the dump after it was decided their health was endangered by the chemicals. She and many of the others feel cheated and trapped.

Cheated, because they believe Gov. Hugh Carey's evacuation of 239 residents last summer was simply a campaign gesture — one that left them behind and their own and their loved ones' lives endangered.

Trapped, because no one will buy their homes — houses that have potentially dangerous chemicals leaking through basement walls.

"State officials warned us not to grow a garden," Mrs. Pozniak remarked recently. "We can grow our children here but we can't grow a garden here. That absolutely blows my mind. It's horrible."

For more than 10 years, the Hooker Plastics & Chemical Corp. dumped a total of more than 80 different chemicals into the site of the never-opened canal. The state's evacuation of the immediate area was prompted by studies that showed a high rate of miscarriage and birth defects in the area possibly linked to the leaching chemicals.

Mrs. Pozniak's family is one of many in the periphery area with serious medical problems. And she, like many of the others, feels the chemicals are the cause.

Although the state is currently offering limited financial assistance to perhaps as many as 130 families in the periphery area to help them temporarily relocate (only those with children under 2 or pregnant women are eligible), the state's current stance is that studies thus far have not justified further evacuations.

But the homeowners say their own informal study shows a much higher rate of disease. A cancer researcher from stream beds (or swales). I put forth the hypothesis that chemicals were migrating along paths of the old streambeds and getting into houses," she said in an interview.

"We found increased rates of miscarriages, increased risks of birth defects, increased urinary tract problems, and a striking effect on the central nervous system," she said.

The state, in offering temporary relocation to certain families in the area, agreed that the chemicals posed a potential health threat to fetuses and children under 2.

It also agreed that there have been higher rates of miscarriages and birth defects in the swale areas, but it said studies thus far indicate no threat to the general population.

Dr. David Axelrod, the state health commissioner, said the department understands the concern of the residents left behind. But he adds that he will recommend no further evacuations unless studies link the chemicals to certain diseases.

"We have to make certain that there is a scientific basis for our recommendations to the governor."

He 'dropped out' from corporation to house in woods

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A year ago he gave up counting money to take up counting birds.

At the age of 52, Stanley Cecil stepped down as senior vice president of First National Bank in Cincinnati, packed his belongings and chucked the trappings of corporate power for a house in the woods half a continent away.

He said he enjoyed his job, but wanted to enjoy another side of life.

Now, Cecil says he wouldn't trade his blue jeans and gardening tools for boardrooms and pinstripe suits.

It took a year to make up his mind to pack up and go, Cecil says, after 25 years in banking. Although co-workers were somewhat amazed with his decision, he believes many people ponder quitting work to enjoy the good life.

"I think they envied my decision," Cecil says. "All the pieces had come together in my life and I didn't want to put the same puzzle back together again."

Cecil and his wife, Ann, live in a posh home nestled in the woods. They aren't living a pioneer lifestyle. What they are doing, Cecil says, is taking life easy and doing some of the things they've wanted to do for a long time.

Part of the decision to kick the 9-to-5 routine came from looking at the way the younger generation lives, Mrs. Cecil says.

"Looking at the changed lifestyle our children and their generation live, which is freer and easier, made me ask myself why I had to stay in the same pattern," she says.

"I think it's hard to be bored out here," says Cecil, after coming in from his garden in the back yard.

Cecil teaches a part-time course in economics at Olympia Vocational Technical College — for his own enjoyment, but not for the money.

In his spare time, which is most of the time, Cecil goes day-hiking on Mount Rainier, travels around the western part of the state, and watches birds. Quite a change from a banker's itinerary, he says.

He also concerns himself with local zoning issues. The Cecil home is four miles from the nearest city limit, but he feels good city zoning is crucial to protecting the aspects of Olympia which made it an appealing new home.

He chose this region, he says, because of fond memories from his military service.

Ann Cecil has been dabbling in women's studies and writing courses at The Evergreen State College.

The couple gets to lot more time together, Cecil says.

"And it's worked out rather well," Mrs. Cecil adds.

The Cecils had one advantage over many families — the wherewithal to make their dream a reality. Although Cecil wouldn't say how much he earned as an executive, he says his financial investments made the move possible.

Black, white horses principle may work

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Which eat more—black horses or white horses? In your cradle you probably learned that black horses eat more—because there are more black horses. Apply that principle in today's hand.

East took the ace of clubs and shrewdly returned the eight of diamonds.

West took the ace of diamonds and returned a diamond. East got the ace of spades, but South easily took the rest.

had another couple of points you would jump to three spades. Partner

SHOULD DEFEAT GAME

West should defeat the game by refusing the first diamond. Declarer leads a trump at once, but East steps up with the ace of trumps and leads his other diamond. Now West takes the ace of diamonds and leads a third diamond, whereupon East ruffs to defeat the contract.

How could West tell that East had a doubleton rather than a singleton in diamond? Simply because there are more doubletons than singletons. When you aren't sure what to do, go with the odds.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S K Q J 5 2; H 10 8 5; D 10 5 4; C J 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. If you will probably pass you at two spades, but if he has 17 or 18 points with the fine spade support he will raise to three spades; and you will accept the invitation to game.

The government's in the clouds

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

OVER ATLANTA (AP) — Sen. Jim Sasser, a Democrat from Tennessee who would like to cut half a billion dollars from the Carter administration's request for $7.9 billion in travel expenses, says at any given time an average 22,000 federal bureaucrats are in the air.

Well, I never would have guessed the figure, but I knew there were a lot of them up here.

Why, right now this wide-bodied jumbo flying down to Atlanta from New York is more than half full of Carter civil servants heading some place, although not all of them can be blamed on his administration. Some have been flying around since the invention of the prop jet and the no-fault expense account back in Franklin D. Roosevelt's second administration.

You can always tell the male of the species. They all wear the standard three-piece business suit with an American flag in the label, carry an imitation cowhide attache case with pop-out accordion file compartments and use their swizzle sticks to follow the fine print on whatever government publications they have spread out on the pull-down food tray.

The Ms. version comes in a slit-skirt two piece business suit, favors long yellow legal pads, drums her teeth with the swizzle stick while fingering a pocket calculator and wears her rhinestone rimmed tri-focals on a slender black cord.

Flying feds from the Surgeon General's Office and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare tend to monopolize the non-smoking section. Those from the Federal Bureau of Investigation are often handcuffed to another passenger and it is not always easy to tell which is which.

There was a hassle this morning at the check in counter when travelers from the Federal Railroad Administration, the Department of Transportation and AMTRAK all insisted on having window seats. They said they wanted to get the overall view of roadbed conditions in the northeast corridor. But the window seats were all occupied by representatives from the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service all doing an in depth survey of development potential in the New Jersey pine barrens.

Two fellows across the aisle from me right now have an interesting job. They're from the Federal Aviation Administration and they tell me they're in the air almost all the time now. Part of a new project to have inspectors on board when a plane crashes instead of hurrying to get there after it happens. "No luck so far," sighed Burstand Haskins, the senior of the two, "but we've seen a lot of the country."

The lady in the window seat next to me is a research coordinator for the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration. She is en route to the New Orleans opera house to study the incidence of Dutch Elm Disease and Fungus Wort in the wooden legs of handicapped viola da gamba players. During the in-flight movie, she changed seats and played scrabble with a lawyer from the Office of Inspection and Enforcement, Region One, of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, who had a radium-treated set that glowed in the dark. From the coy conversation they carried on about the reproductive cycle of the snail darter, I got the impression those two managed to get their agendas together pretty often.

It was no fun at cocktail time listening to the horn-rimmed type from the Food and Drug Administration discuss the frequency of botulism in frozen shrimp puffs at over 40,000 feet, but it was better than contemplating the look of eagerness that came into the eyes of the FAA kamikaze team when we encountered line squalls and warm air turbulence over the Carolinas.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

New drug helps treat glaucoma

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been undergoing treatment for glaucoma for several years, and the side effects, such as blurred vision, are extremely bothersome. Now I understand there's a new drug available that is more effective. I don't like to get my hopes too high because I've been disappointed before. Is there really something new on the market?—Mr. L.S.

Dear Mr. S.: In this case, your excitement is justified. A new drug, which has minimal side effects, is being produced for the control of glaucoma. It has the added advantage of requiring application only once or twice a day.

Ordinarily I'd be cautious about a new drug, but this one has been tested on more than a thousand patients throughout the country. However, patients with severe asthma and certain heart conditions should be monitored carefully.

Check with your ophthalmologist (eye doctor). The drug won't cure glaucoma, but it will make living with it a lot easier.

Dear Dr. Solomon: As a diabetic, I'm approaching the birth of my first child with some apprehension. I realize that things are different now than they were 50 years ago before insulin became available, but I find myself becoming more and more anxious as the time for delivery nears. What are the chances of my having a healthy baby?—Mrs. A.W.

Dear Mrs. W.: Your concern is understandable, but probably everything will work out well. Even within the past five years, tremendous strides have been made in the safe delivery of babies to diabetic women. As recently as 1973, diabetic women were losing 20 of every 100 babies; today, in specialized maternity programs, the loss is about seven in 100. This figure compares with a national rate for loss of babies from all causes before and just after birth of 2.6 per 100 live births.

The greater safety in delivery that you can look forward to is the result of the development of several tests which enable physicians to monitor the health of the mother and fetus throughout the pregnancy. The tests show how well the diabetes is being controlled, and how the baby is tolerating it.

For example, the mother's urine will not only be tested for sugar to check on the diabetes, but for hormones that can indicate whether the fetus is healthy. Amniocentesis—the removal of some of the fluid surrounding the fetus—can show whether the baby's lungs are maturing. Still another test is the fetal heart monitor that measure's the baby's response to stress.

The important thing is to put yourself in the hands of a competent obstetrician and to follow his advice religiously. He may want to see you as often as every two weeks and possibly have you spend the last few weeks of your pregnancy in the hospital. Strict adherence to diet is, of course, a must.

If you take the necessary precautions, chances are all in your favor of carrying your pregnancy to a successful conclusion.

Turkey ruled by violence

By DENNIS REDMONT

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Despite four months of martial law, violence continues to wrack Turkey. Murders, arson and bombings carried out by rival rightist and leftist political groups are daily happenings.

On Thursday, April 12, one U.S. serviceman was killed and another seriously wounded by masked gunmen in Izmir in the first attack on American personnel since Premier Bulent Ecevit clamped martial law on this NATO nation.

While the killings had reached three a day, none had yet affected foreigners until this month. But only three weeks ago a bomb was thrown into the garden of the U.S. Embassy in Ankara, Turkey's capital. Some diplomats expressed fear the bombing was a harbinger of a new confrontation between right and left over the presence of allied troops in Turkey as happened in 1972.

The bloodiest incident took place seven years ago when 10 members of the Turkish People's Liberation Army and three British NATO technicians they had kidnapped were killed in a shootout with security forces in eastern Turkey.

SUBSEQUENTLY, during another martial-law period, three members of the Liberation Army were hanged "for attempting to change the constitution by forceful means" and the violence gradually dwindled.

While both right- and left-wing parties in Turkey's democracy have alternately blamed the Soviet Union, neighboring Greece, the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, Neo-Nazi organizations in West Germany and Kurdish minorities as the driving forces behind terrorism, only recently has research into the problem showed much of the roots are domestic.

"The new wave has not been a passing phenomenon as has been the case in earlier manifestations, but is sustained and ever escalating," says Ihter Turan, a U.S.-educated Turkish political scientist who has completed the first major study on violence. "It includes not only students but elements from all walks of life."

Turan says new converts to violence-prone radical movements are small-business men and craftsmen losing their battle with mass-produced goods, peasants crowding the cities and slums, workers among Turkey's 20 percent unemployed and low-level civil servants.

Public buildings frequently are used for printing leaflets or manufacturing explosives, recent court cases have shown.

THE POLITICAL origin of the violence stemmed from inaction in the 1960s and 1970s of Turkish governments which failed to adopt measures to respond to student requests, according to Turan. "They failed to train and equip the law enforcement agencies to deal effectively with mass and individual cases of violence. Support was even given to the development of a right-wing organization to counterbalance the left."

Right-wing radicals trace their birth to the late 1960s in the "Association for Fighting Against Communists." They were supported by religious groups, nationalists and conservative, middle-class and small-business men, based on the premise that Turkey "for centuries has battled with the Russians" and a communist government would be gobbled up by the communist giant across the Black Sea.

These groups were tacitly backed by the conservative Justice Party to brake the emerging leftist wave in Istanbul, Ankara and Izmir. Alpaslan Turkes, an association leader and the head of the National Action Party, had been acquitted in 1944 of charges of plotting a pro-Nazi, Pan-Turkish coup. In 1967-68, Turkes organized youth camps to train young sympathizers in martial sports, styled on the old Hitler youth. The camps flourished after leftists staged violent attacks on personnel of the U.S. 6th Fleet. Paramilitary camp leaders were taught to call Turkes "Fuehrer" and adopted the slogan "God Save the Turks."

Turkes' party, favoring a strong state, has grown from one deputy in Parliament to 16 since 1969.

SINCE ECEVIT'S Republican Peoples Party, which follows social-democratic principles, holds 214 seats and has had to enlist minority-party support to command a majority in the 450-seat Parliament, Turkes' group remains a potential problem.

Observers say they note at the same time increasing activity among the splintered Maoist pro-Cuban and pro-Moscow groups.

Several activists on trial admitted receiving training in Palestinian camps in Syria, Jordan and Lebanon. And many Turks fear that their predominantly Moslem country's refusal to break relations with Israel might ignite a new wave of terrorism. Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Elrom was kidnapped and killed in 1970 by leftist groups.

"Political terrorism in our age is a universal phenomenon," Premier Ecevit said in a recent interview. "It recognizes no boundaries. It is certain that the current terrorism has some foreign

Tornado victims beware

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White is warning residents of the tornado-ravaged Wichita Falls-Vernon area to be on guard against fly-by-night builders and contractors.

"It is unfortunate that this type of warning must be given," White said. "But our experience is that a small element of our society will use unlawful and deceptive practices to take unfair advantage of the victims of disaster."

White suggested that area residents deal only with reputable contractors and builders. Other suggestions include obtaining written estimates from contractors; putting any agreement for construction work in writing; and setting beginning and finishing dates for any construction projects.

White also warned homeowners to be on guard against builders and contractors who insist on work being fully paid in advance.

Nugent believes Texans 'captives'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas electric consumers are "captive" to coal-hauling railroads, which are using their monopoly power to finance other traffic and generate a "bonanza" for their own stockholders, says a member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Jim Nugent, one of three commissioners who regulate oil, natural gas and railroads in Texas, told a congressional subcommittee here Tuesday that Texas utilities might not be able to continue their conversion from more scarce natural gas to coal if railroads continue to increase their rates for hauling western coal.

The U.S. House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, chaired by U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston, conducted hearings Monday in Houston and Tuesday in San Antonio.

Nugent displayed a graph for the committee that showed Texas supplies 48 percent of the natural gas used by American utilities to generate electricity.

Because of this, he added, the state will have a "pivotal role" in the nation's efforts to convert to coal as a prime energy source.

The Interstate Commerce Commission recently raised the rate Burlington Northern Railroad charges for hauling coal from Wyoming to San Antonio from $7.78 per ton to $17.01 per ton. That increase will cost San Antonio consumers an estimated $11 million this year, officials have said.

Eckhardt pointed to that increase in opening the hearing and said the freight rates have soared because "captive markets permit a monopoly of transportation. "I do not believe anyone will displace the nation's need for a healthy rail system. However, we must ask which railroads are financially depressed and which are profitable," he said.

But Frank H. Coyne, Burlington Northern's chief financial officer, told the subcommittee that the coal-hauling rates must reflect railroad expenses.

Because of the coal-hauling business, Coyne said Burlington Northern made approximately $326 million in roadway capital improvements from 1974 to 1978. During that same period, he said, the railroad acquired $339.2 million worth of rolling stock for coal service.

To handle maximum projected coal traffic for the five-year period from 1979 through 1983, the railroad estimates it will have roadway expenditures of $807.6 million and will acquire another $728.6 million in additional rolling stock.

"Cost of capital is an unavoidable cost as wages or fuel costs. If a company fails to pay labor, nobody will work for it," said Coyne. "If a company fails to pay capital, the market will not provide the funds necessary for replacement, maintenance and improvements of plant and equipment."

Coyne said Burlington Northern's return on its railway investment in 1978 was only 1.58 percent, while its after-tax cost of capital was 12 to 13 percent.

Potential reported

The official potential test has been filed by Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. on its No. 3 Barstow Unit, recently completed Ellenburger gas discovery in the Barstow multiphase field of Ward County.

The RRC filing shows the discovery was completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 70,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 19,690 to 19,717.5 feet after a 10,000-gallon acid treatment and a 100,000-gallon fracture job.

Carter expects windfall tax to pass in Congress

By DON IRWIN
The Los Angeles Times

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. — An aide said Thursday that President Carter expects Congress to grant his request for a tax on "windfall" oil company profits stemming from price decontrol and will forward his plan to Capitol Hill after he returns to Washington next week.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said that Carter will reaffirm the request for a 50 percent "windfall" tax he made in his April 5 energy message and will ignore oil companies' request for "plowback" tax credits.

Talking to reporters covering Carter's Easter visit to Sapelo Island near near, Powell outlined the procedures designed to get Carter's tax play before Congress, where he said the White House had uncovered "increasing support for this measure."

"It's our belief we will have the tax," Powell said. His approach suggested that the administration is gearing for a major public-relations battle to enact the measure by which Carter hopes to balance the effects of steep energy price increases.

Powell said the administration would forward to key committees next week detailed specifications for a tax equal to half the estimated $12 billion in extra profits the oil companies are expected to make in the first three years of decontrol.

By presidential order, prices of domestic crude will start June 1 on a phased increase to world levels that will be complete by Oct. 1, 1981. World prices are now about 50 percent above the prices allowed for newly discovered U.S. oil and about three times the $6 a barrel now allowed for "old" oil from wells in production before 1973.

Specifications, rather than draft legislation, will be submitted, Powell said, because of requests from Capitol Hill that the highly technical business of drafting a new tax bill be left to staff specialists with expertise in the field. This is not an unusual procedure in drafting tax legislation.

The starting place for tax bills is the House Ways and Means Committee, whose chairman Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Wednesday in Salem, Ore., that he expected the windfall tax to pass Congress this year.

At the same news conference, however, Ullman avoided saying how closely he expects the final bill to follow through on Carter's request for a 50 percent levy.

Oil producers have protested that the tax rate proposed by Carter would reduce incentives for the intensive exploration they say will be required to develop significant new oil finds. The industry has urged some form of "plowback" provision that would give oil companies tax credit for their development expenses.

Powell noted that Carter's plan envisions funneling the yield of the windfall tax into a new "energy security fund" which would be dedicated to three politically persuasive activities: To aid mass transit; to speed development of new energy sources, and to help low-income families offset the higher energy costs that will result from decontrol.

Powell refused to say flatly that Carter would not accept some form of plowback provision. The administration tax proposals have been under development by a White House task force headed by Stuart E. Eizenstat, the president's assistant for domestic affairs.

Eizenstat reported to the president by telephone over the weekend, Powell said, and again on Wednesday.

day, on the progress of consultations the task force has been holding daily for the past week with the members and staffs of congressional committees with jurisdiction in the field. In addition to Ways and Means, he said, they included the Senate Finance Committee, the Energy committees of both Houses and the Joint Committee on Taxation.

The technical staffs that will handle the bill drafting process have had considerable experience in the area of windfall taxes. They have been asked to draft such bills three times since the 1973 Arab embargo sent oil prices — and oil-company profits — soaring. However, none of the measures has come near to winning approval.

One reason has been the strong resistance to the tax from influential members of the Senate Finance Committee, including its chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-Ga., Carter's decision to go along with price decontrol is expected to moderate Long's opposition somewhat this year, but Long is not expected to clear the way for a bill until or unless it includes "plowback" credits.

Bid action reversed

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. District Court has reversed an action by Secretary of Interior Cecil D. Andrus that deprived a high bidder of an oil and gas drilling lease in the Baltimore Canyon off New Jersey.

The decision issued Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Milton Pollack mandated that the lease at issue be given to Stewart Capital Corp., of New York City, which submitted the high bid of $213,000 last February.

The Stewart Capital bid was rejected by Andrus as legally "deficient" because of omission of what is called attestation on bid authorization papers signed by the corporation president, Alexander S. Bowers.

Last March 29, Andrus awarded the tract lease to Ocean Production Co., of New Orleans, and Murphy Oil Corp. of El Dorado, Ark., which had entered a joint bid of $212,000.

Pollack, who conducted hearings after Stewart Capital filed a court challenge in Manhattan, ruled the Andrus action "erroneous in fact and law." The judge also said it was "legally unsupported and thus arbitrary and capricious even if not grounded on bad faith."

A's Big League only when they are on road

By ERIC PREWITT

OAKLAND (AP) — In the attendance game, the Oakland A's are a big league ball club only on the road. At home, they've become accustomed to playing before crowds so small most major league franchises would throw them back.

There were 653 paying customers, an all-time Oakland low, at Tuesday night's game against Seattle, and that attendance figure may be a good estimate of the number of diehard A's fans.

"I'm disappointed that more people than that didn't show up," said A's Manager Jim Marshall. "But there was no mention at all in the dugout about the crowd."

WHAT THE A's had to say before and after the game, a 6-5 victory, was in a joking tone. There were complaints about low attendance a year ago, when the team was leading the American League's Western Division.

Cooper Cougs rally to beat Odessa, 2-1

ABILENE — The Abilene Cooper Cougars did it again.

Thursday afternoon here, Cooper came from behind for umpteenth time this season and grabbed a 2-1 District 5-4A baseball victory over Odessa High.

The triumph leaves Cooper 2-0 in district and 15-2 overall while the Red Hossees dropped to 0-2 and 6-17. And Cooper remains in a first place tie with Midland High and Midland Lee.

Cooper put both their runs up in the sixth. Tracy Thomas opened the inning with a single and came home on Mark Reedy's double. Then Claude Brown, pinchrunning for Reedy, scooted in two outs later on Eddie Jacques' base hit.

Kyle Stuard recorded the win while Billy Rumbaugh took the loss. The game had been scheduled for Tuesday but was rained out.

Score by innings:
Odessa High 000 010-1 3 5
Abilene Cooper 000 002-2 2 3
Billy Rumbaugh and Mario Alvarado; Kyle Stuard and Bobby Mizc. 2B-Mark Reedy. WP-Stuard (1-1). LP-Rumbaugh.

but the A's took a 2-9 record into Tuesday night's game.

Catcher Jeff Newman stopped two baseball writers as they headed for the pressbox and pleaded, "Do me a favor, will you? Sit in the stands tonight."

Dave Heaverlo, the winning pitcher, recalled that Red Schoendienst, an A's coach last year, used to look at the attendance totals some nights and claim he had more hits as a big league player.

"If he'd seen that 653 on the scoreboard, he probably would have told us he scored more runs than that," Heaverlo said. But he added that the fans who showed up on the chilly night were enthusiastic ones.

"I dedicate this win to them. They sure stuck with us," said Heaverlo who, with a $95,000 salary, won through arbitration, is one of the highest paid players on Charles O. Finley's player payroll.

FINLEY HAS the lowest front-office payroll as well as the lowest player payroll in the major leagues.

Midland hosts boxing tourney

The Midland Invitational Boxing Tournament begins a two-day run at the Midland County Exhibit Building on East Highway 80 today at 7:30 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the Midland Jaycees, Midland Boxing Club and the Midland Boys Club. Tickets purchased at the door tonight will be $2. Tickets for Saturday's 2 p.m. matinee is also $2 while the finals Saturday at 7:30 p.m. will be $3.

The tournament will feature nine amateur boxing clubs from Texas and New Mexico. Trophies will be given for team winners and individual winners.

Amarillo levels M-Cubs, 14-5

AMARILLO—Tim Derryberry and Gary Ashby collected seven hits between them to spearhead the Amarillo Gold Sox' 15-hit attack that levelled Midland's Cubs, 14-5, here Thursday night in a Texas League baseball game. The win moved the Sox back into a tie for first place with Midland, both at 5-4.

Derryberry collected four hits and knocked in two runs, while Ashby, a former Lubbock Monterey and Texas Tech luminary, batted in four runs with two doubles and a single as the Sox took a 2-1 lead in the series which resumes at 7:30 p.m. today.

Ashby, in his first Texas League season after batting .309 and knocking in 112 runs at Reno, California League, last year, raised his average to .451 with the outburst.

Jeff Albert took the loss while Joe Carroll garnered his second win for Amarillo without a loss. Carroll was rocked for five hits in the third as Midland took a 4-2 lead, but then settled down to allow just two hits the rest of the way.

Jesus Alfaro, Eric Grandy, and Carlos Lezcano each had two hits to account for six of Midland's nine hits. Grandy also knocked in two Midland runs as the Cubs committed three errors on defense and uncorked five wild pitches.

Blonde Debbie Meisterlin fires six-under-par to take the early lead in the Lady Citrus LPGA at Orlando, Fla. (AP Laserphoto)

Meisterlin tops Citrus golf field

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Debbie Meisterlin birdied her first hole and was 3 under par by the fifth as she coasted to a 6-under-par 67 and the first-round lead in the Lady Citrus Golf Classic.

"I told myself, 'Gee, that's a good start,'" said Meisterlin, who's never won a tournament in three years on the Ladies Professional Golf Tour.

Her 32-35 on Thursday was "really a commercial 67 because it looked so easy," she said. "It was the easiest 6-under I ever shot."

FOUR STROKES back at 71 on the 6,209-yard, par-73 Rio Pinar course were Connie Chillemi and 1977 LPGA rookie of the year Debbie Massey.

Twelve players were bunched at 72, including Sally Little, Sandra Palmer, Hollis Stacy and rookie Beth Daniel.

At 73 were JoAnne Carner, winner of three tour events this year, pre-tourney favorite Sandra Post, winner of the last LPGA event, Dot Germain, Marlene Häge and Kathy Cornelius.

MEISTERLIN claims severe back problems inhibit her putting stance. But she had seven birdies, including a 40-footer on the 355-yard, par-4 third hole, and a 20-footer on the par-4 sixth.

"I made some real good putts, but I also hit some lousy ones," said the 26-year-old pro. "I could have shot 10 under if I had been putting good."

Her lone bogey came on the second hole of the back nine.

Chillemi fired six birdies, two bogeys and a double bogey in her round of 34-37-71.

"I only needed 27 putts and I'm pleased with that," said the third-year pro.

Massey, who has a victory in Japan to her credit, also had 34-37 for her 71.

Thirteen golfers were bunched at 1-over-par 74 and 11 were at 75.

Umps seek backing

BOSTON (AP) — Striking major league umpires have asked labor leaders in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Michigan to bat for their side in their wage dispute against the American and National leagues.

Led by Philadelphia attorney Richard Phillips, the umpires won a vote of support Thursday from the Massachusetts State Labor Council, which called on its 600,000 members to boycott Red Sox games until the dispute with the American and National Leagues is settled.

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — The deep, deep rough and small greens demand the most accurate drives, Tom Watson said after establishing the first-round lead in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions.

The course demands good iron shots," Watson said after firing a 3-under-par 69 Thursday, "but driving is paramount. Because of the rough, you absolutely have to drive it in the fairway.

"If you don't, you can find some lies out there that only Tarzan and Jane can play out of."

The rough is up higher than usual on the tough, 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course and, Watson said, the greens have been reduced in size and are extremely hard.

"They're the hardest greens in the world to chip to," said the man who has won Player of the Year honors the last two seasons.

"You've got a collar around the greens that the ball sits down into and is very hard to chip from," he said. "Beyond that, you've got the deepest rough on the golf course around the greens. That makes it really tough."

"But, in my opinion, you've got to drive it in the fairway to have any chance to win the golf tournament."

He missed 4 fairways "and it cost me 2 bogeys," said Watson, who came into this exclusive, winners-only event as the leading money-winner on the pro golf tour this year.

One shot off his lead with a 70 was surprising Ron Streck, 24, who got into the elite, 28-man field off his only pro victory in the San Antonio-Texas Open last fall.

Streck broke up with his girlfriend shortly after that triumph and has been in a deep slump ever since. He pulled out of it with birdies on his first 3 holes here.

Tied at 71, and the only others under par, were defending champion Gary

Lee keeps state golf hopes alive

LUBBOCK — Defending champion Amarillo High took the first day lead here at Meadowbrook golf course Thursday in the Region I AAAA girls golf tournament with a team score of 364.

Midland Lee is still in shooting distance of a state berth with a 378, but El Paso Coronado owns a 377 for second place after the first round. The top two teams earn a state berth for Austin the first week in May. Lee needs to pick up at least a stroke on Coronado today.

Temple stands fourth with a 397 while District 5-4A champion Midland High is fifth with a 398, needing to pick up 21 strokes today for a state berth.

Odessa Permian's Jackie Daiss is leading the medalist chase with a first day 76 and Temple's Jackie Harlan is next with a 78. Amarillo Tascosa's Jill Prince owns an 81 while Lee's Michele Marburger owns an 83.

Other Lee players include Penny Sutcliffe, 90; Brenda Heath, 100; Christi Orwig, 105; and Roxi Barrett, 117.

Nancy Spough led MHS with a 97 while Ann Coombs and Kim Hopkins each fired a 98. Lori Blackwell managed a 105 and Patty O'Neill had a 110.

In Odessa's AAA-A girls golf tour-namment, action was completed Thursday as Fort Stockton and Memphis captured team crowns. Fort Stockton's Letisia Granado won medalist honors with a two-day 159 to pace the winning team score of 717 for the Panthers. Borger was second with a 747 and the other state berth.

In the Class A run, Memphis won the title with a 761 score while Farwell was second with a 769. However, McCamey and Rankin will have players going to state as Beth Compton won medalist honors with a 176 for McCamey and Rankin's Kim Rose was second with a 181.

McCamey was third overall behind Compton, Diana Pauley, 204; Melanie Langford, 217; Nancy Jones, 196; and Cindy Watson, 200. They had a 776 team score.

Rankin was fourth with a 782. Team members included Rose, Kim Ratliff, 197; Karrie Ratliff, 210; Leri Fitzhugh, 196; and LaVonda Garner, 208, 117.

Stanton placed 12th with a 923 score.

Chap girls finish 4th in golf tourney

NORMAN, Okla. — The Midland College women's golf team finished fourth here Wednesday in the University of Oklahoma Invitational.

Oklahoma won the event followed in order by Texas Tech, Temple Junior College and the Chaparrals.

The Chaps fired a final round team total of 370 paced by Wendy Goodwin with 88, Jamie Gossett with 90, Maria Haasch with 95, Diane Robinson with 97 and Cheryl Guthrie with 101.

Mills takes first in Hogan golf tourney

Mary Mills shot a 197 to take first place in the Hogan Park Women's Golf Association Handicap Tournament Thursday. Chatta Hec took second with 204 while Dorothy Melzer shot a 212 for third.

Florence Mailey took fourth with 213 while Jane Wagner, 215, and Wilma Cox, 216, followed. Janis Long won the long drive with 205 yards and also was closest to the pin, 35 feet, and Wilma Cox had low putts, 30.

Watson stays in fairway, claims TC lead

Player of South Africa, Ray Floyd, Mexican Victor Regalado and Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won a record five times in this event that brings together the winners of regular PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months, topped a strong group at par 72.

Also at that figure were Lee Trevino, Australian Jack Newton, Canadian Open champ Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder and Jerry Pate, who scored the only eagle of the cool, windy day.

U.S. Open champ Andy North shot 75 and Fuzzy Zoeller, who beat Watson in a playoff for the Masters crown last week, struggled to a 77 that left him far back. PGA titleholder John Mahaffey was unable to compete because of an injured hand.

Watson, who came into this event with finishes of second, first and second in his last three starts, said he still didn't feel comfortable with his putting and missed once from about 2 1/2 feet to save par. He retained sole control of the lead, however, with a four-footer to save par on the final hole after he'd driven into the rough.

The key to his round was a string of three birdies beginning with a sand wedge shot to eight feet on the second hole. He hit a 4-iron only two feet from the flag on the third and scored from six feet on the next.

A.J. Foyt issues warning to CART

HOUSTON (AP) — Four-time Indianapolis winner A.J. Foyt never has been shy about speaking his mind, and that trait extends to the newly formed Championship Auto Racing Team that recently broke away from the U.S. Auto Club.

"Those CART guys are just a bunch of people trying to take over racing.

They're hot at me because if I think something's wrong, I say it and go on my way. I don't run with a pack," said Foyt.

In response to a question about possible blocking tactics by teams of cars during next month's Indianapolis 500, Foyt said:

"If they try that block on me some of us are going into the wall. I won't stand for it, and they know it. I've spent some time in Houston hospitals and I'll spend some more if I have to."

Blocking tactics on raceways involve two cars on a team driving in front of and beside an opposing team's car.

76ers to forget Gervin

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven playoff series against the San Antonio Spurs, have decided to stop worrying about George Gervin and start concentrating on Larry Kenon.

The Sixers will assign Bobby Jones, their 6-foot-9 defensive ace, to stop Kenon when the teams meet at the Spectrum in Philadelphia tonight in the third game of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

"We have to put our best defensive player on Kenon," explained Jack McMahon, assistant coach of the Sixers. "He's playing best basketball of his life. The next two games depend on the Jones-Kenon matchup."

The three other NBA second-round playoff series also resume tonight with the Washington Bullets at Atlanta, Phoenix Suns at Kansas City and Seattle SuperSonics at Los Angeles.

The Sixers expect Gervin, the NBA scoring champion the last two years, to get his points — and he has, scoring 60 in the two games played thus far and making 25 of 37 shots. But Kenon has scored 57 points, and that is something the Sixers feel they can't allow.

So they're switching Jones, who played against Gervin for much of the second game, onto the 6-9 Kenon.

"Kenon is moving the ball, rebounding, bringing the ball up on the break and shooting well," said McMahon. "We can't let Kenon run wild or we're going to lose."

Philadelphia has also had its problems offensively. In the closing minutes of Tuesday night's 121-120 loss at San Antonio, the Sixers' star forward, Julius Erving, rarely saw the ball.

"Erving has to get at least 25 shots a game," said McMahon. "We can't win with Erving getting six or seven shots. We've got to get the ball to Julius and Darryl (Dawkins) in areas where they can work."

Washington and Atlanta split the first two games of their series at Landover, Md., and now the Hawks are back on their home court, where they have won their last 17 outings. Atlanta's 34-7 home record was the best in the NBA during the regular season, but Washington's 23-18 road mark was also the best in the league.

Bullets forward Bobby Dandridge has scored 66 points in the two games while his counterpart on the Hawks, John Drew, has had just 22. That is the matchup that most worries Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown.

"Drew has to do as good a job as possible, and we have to help out whenever possible," said Brown. "We're dealing with the premier player at his position."

Kansas City's rookie star, Phil Ford, had a woeful 3-for-17 shooting night as the Kings lost the opener to Phoenix 102-99, but Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons is confident he'll bounce back.

"Yes, Phil wasn't sharp, but that happens," said Fitzsimmons. "You know pressure doesn't bother Phil Ford or we wouldn't be where we are today. He just had a miserable night. He couldn't shoot the ball and he didn't handle it well."

Asked the key to a Kansas City victory, Fitzsimmons replied, "I really don't think there is one. I think I'm disappointing a lot of journalists. Everybody wants to talk matchups, everybody wants to talk key, and I don't see it. I don't see it at all."

"I think defense and rebounding are the key, whether I be in the playoffs or on opening night. That's where it's got to be done."

It's back to Rags for Doyle

BASEBALL—Brian Doyle, the Yankees' rags-to-riches World Series second base hero with a .438 average, is confined to the New York dugout by regular Willie Randolph. "I realize what my role will be and I try to make the most of it," says Doyle, who failed to get an at-bat in the Yanks' first 11 games this season. "An athlete wants to play everyday. But he tries to mentally prepare himself for whatever his role is. If you aren't going to start, or play every day, then you might as well have the benefits of being on a contender. Being with the Yankees makes sitting easier to take. But I don't plan to sit all my career, just fill in when someone gets hurt or is in a slump or is tired. I know I can play every day, if not here then with another club. I do my job on defense and I hit OK, although I won't ever hit .438, like in the Series."

BASKETBALL—The Los Angeles Lakers won Thursday's coin flip and will select first in the NBA's 1979 college draft. The Lakers have not said whom they would take with the first pick but in a recent interview GM Bill Sharman said he rated Arkansas guard Sidney Moncreif and UCLA forward David Greenwood among the top college prospects.

Oklahoma's Dave Bliss, Mississippi's Bob Weltlick and Northern Illinois' Bob Donewald, all former assistants to Indiana coach Bobby Knight, are helping their old boss in the Pan American basketball tryouts this week. "We're the only ones who can run his drills," quipped Bliss, whose team lost to top-ranked Indiana State in the NCAA regionals last month.

RACING—General Assembly drew the tough outside post Thursday against 12 rivals for the $125,000-added Wood Memorial Stakes at Aqueduct but was installed as the 5-2 early-line favorite for Saturday's final Eastern prep for the May 5 Kentucky Derby. The son of Secretariat, who won his last start in the Gotham April 7 after five straight setbacks, is owned by Bert Firestone, trained by LeRoy Jolley and will be ridden by Jacinto Vasquez in the 1-1/8 mile 3-year-old test, an eight of a mile short of the Derby distance. Ryehill Farm's Smarten, who will go from the No. 1 post and posted victories in the City of Miami Handicap and Senatorial last year, was listed at 4-1. He is among the four non-Derby eligibles in the field. The others are John Murrell's Belle's Gold, winner of the Bay Shore, 8-1; Barry Schwartz's Breezing On, 20-1

DAVE WINFIELD is convinced his early season .429 batting average is because he's more relaxed and is no longer trying to live up to the image of a home run hitter. "It took me three years to figure that out," the muscular 6-foot-6, 225-pound San Diego right fielder said Thursday. "When people around the league see me, they figure I should be hitting 40 homers a season. But not in this park. The Ricca, Fosters, Luzinski run out of here crying. They say they hit the ball hard and it doesn't go anywhere. I figure I'm going to hit 20 to 25 homers a year, and I'm not going to ask myself to hit much more than that." The stadium in San Diego is 330 feet down the foul lines and 420 to dead center with a 17 foot high wall all around — highest in the league.

HOCKEY—Two goals by Vladimir Petrov led the Soviet Union to a 5-2 victory over Team Canada for Russia's fourth straight victory in the World Championship Tournament. The Soviets' fourth victory — only two count in the final round playoffs of the tournament — kept them atop the standings with four points. Czechoslovakia is second with three points, Sweden third with one point and Canada's team, made up of National Hockey League players not involved in the current playoffs, is last with no points. Ladislav Svobiz and Milan Figala scored in the third period as Czechoslovakia came from behind to tie the Swedes 3-3 in the other final round game Thursday.

GOLF—Japanese pro Fujio Kobayashi fired a 4-under-par 68 Thursday and took a 1-stroke lead over countryman Masashi Ozaki in a $100,000 international tournament in Tokyo. Ozaki, a World Cup player who had six birdies and three bogies, was second at 69 and was followed by Mario Siodina of The Philippines and eight Japanese, including Ozaki's younger brother Tateo, at 2-under 70. Tied with 71s were Americans Lance Tenbroeck and Michael Soli, Australian Noel Ratcliff, Burmese Mya Aye, Taiwanese Lu Liang-huan and five Japanese.

Sparky returns to 'zoo'

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Today's the big day for Sparky Lyle, who returns with the Texas Rangers to Yankee Stadium, also known to the relief pitcher's readers as "The Bronx Zoo."

Lyle has been waiting for this chance to show Yankee owner George Steinbrenner a thing or two. He and George did not part company on the best of terms and in his book, Sparky pledges, "When I come back to Yankee Stadium, I'm going to break that man's heart like he broke mine. That's a promise."

There are two reasons that Steinbrenner is not exactly trembling in fear over that threat.

One is because if he's read the book, he knows that Sparky is hardly the paragon of accuracy. An example is the routine mugging of quotes like Billy Martin's famous liar line. And after all the years they spent together, you'd think Sparky would know Gene Michael spells his name without an "s" at the end.

The other reason George isn't too worried is that he reads box scores. He knows from that literary pursuit that Lyle had his clock cleaned by Detroit with two out in the ninth inning over the weekend, effectively snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. Then Lyle came back by feeding a three-run homer to Gary Alexander in Cleveland Wednesday.

Can it be that the famous fireman is turning into an arsonist?

THE GOOD news in Oakland is that attendance nearly doubled overnight this week. The bad news is that it was starting from 653 fans Tuesday night so Wednesday's 1,215 looked great by comparison.

It's traditional to blame that grand old whipping boy, Charley Finley, for the Oakland fiasco. Finley is an easy target because he doesn't promote his product very energetically anymore and as a result, the A's play in near privacy.

Baseball men will tell you that the best promotion is a winning team. But when Finley's A's were winning three straight world championships, they barely drew 1 million fans. The fault, it would seem, lies not with Finley but with a rather apathetic Oakland public. Still, the Coliseum Stadium Authority refuses to let the A's budge out of their ironclad lease. So, it seems, baseball is locked in at Oakland, fans or no fans.

It was Sparky Anderson, who, when he got his first look at the Coliseum in the 1972 World Series, said it reminded him of a mausoleum. He ought to see the place now.

ONLY IN AMERICA department: The San Diego Padres are owned by Ray Kroc, who parlayed America's passion for fast foods into the MacDonald's Hamburger empire.

The Padres, a civic-minded organization, are naturally supporting Major League Baseball's official youth program, Pitch, Hit and Run. Know who's underwriting PH&R this year? Burger King, that's who.

MHS, Lee capture wins

Midland High and Midland Lee both advanced to the second round of the Midland junior varsity baseball tournament with victories in Thursday's first round.

Tournament action continues today with two games. At the Lee diamond, the Crane varsity and Hobbs will tangle at 2 p.m. while at Memorial Stadium field, Big Spring will battle Lubbock Coronado at 2 p.m.

In Thursday's action, at Lee, the Rebels whipped Hobbs, 7-0, as Jeff Hicks twirled a two-hitter and whiffed six. The offense was provided by Barry Corley, who slammed a two run homer, Cliff Collyer, who had a pair of hits including a double, Ricky Wright, who had a double, and Randy Velarde, who knocked in Lee's first two runs with a screaming line drive single in the third.

Also at Lee, Odessa High scuttled the Crane varsity, 13-9.

At Memorial Stadium field, Midland High trimmed Big Spring, 9-4. Perry Bolger and Jerry Zachery each had a single and double for the Bulldog yearlings as Doug McClean picked up the pitching triumph. For the junior Steers, Steve Wrightsel cracked a fourth inning homer.

The other fray at Memorial saw Odessa Permian shade Coronado, 7-6, as the Panther youngsters exploded for six runs in the sixth to insure the victory. Hansel, with a single and two doubles paced the Mojo offense as Moore secured the pitching win. Jackson had three singles to lead Coronado.

Four games are set for Saturday at Memorial, with Lee and Odessa High meeting at 10 a.m. followed by Midland High and Permian at noon. The other tilts are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Four Midlanders make Texas State Amateur

Four Midlanders and an Odessa qualified Thursday at the Midland Country Club for a spot in the annual Texas State Amateur golf tournament, which is scheduled for June 7-10 at the Wichita Falls Country Club.

Fourteen players tried to qualify for the five berths available from this area.

Terry Lester, Kelly Eng and Richard Minnix, all of Midland, shot 75 while Midland's Randy Geiselman and Odessa's Lelan Chiles posted 76 to earn the five berths.

Giants rip Padres; Lamp tames Redbirds

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

It was to have been a classic pitching duel. Two Cy Young award winners ... the kind of matchup usually reserved for opening day or Game 1 of the World Series.

Gaylord Perry vs. Vida Blue. The situation began to deteriorate quickly, however.

The 40-year-old Perry came up with a bad back minutes before game time, and the San Diego Padres' 1978 Cy Young winner checked out of the starting lineup.

Blue, who won the Cy Young in 1971 with Oakland, didn't come up with a bad back, but then he didn't come up with much of a performance, either. He yielded 11 hits, nine earned runs and left after the eighth for a pinch hitter. Still, he was credited with the win as San Francisco defeated the Padres 14-10 Thursday afternoon.

"My overall performance was awful," Blue said. "It's really hard when you get a big lead so early, but I have to give the Padres credit for coming back."

"I made a lot of bad pitches. I just threw a lot of them down the middle. I'm sure I've given up 10 runs before, but I don't think I ever gave up 10 and won," Blue said.

CY YOUNG'S name also came up in a different context. Mickey Lolich, who replaced Perry on the mound, tied Young with 2,818 career strikeouts when he fanned Dave Winfield in the third. That mark is fifth on the all-time list.

There was little consolation in that strikeout, however. Lolich left in the third inning, when San Francisco scored five runs, capped by catcher Marc Hill's three-run homer. Hill had four RBI in the game, as did the Giants' Terry Whitfield, who extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Padres public relations man Bob Chandler said Perry wanted to pitch, "but his back was hurting too much. It's a day-to-day thing. He may be ready as soon as tomorrow or it may be several days." Despite yielding a three-run homer to Fernando Gonzalez and Gene Richard's three-run double, Blue came within one inning of his fourth consecutive complete game. The left-hander is now 4-0.

Cubs 3, Cards 2

A couple of former Midland Cubs combined to check the St. Louis Cardinals for the Chicago Cubs as Chicago right-hander Dennis Lamp scattered six hits over seven innings in his first start of the season — yielding St. Louis' runs on Lou Brock's RBI single and a fielder's choice grounder. Relief ace Bruce Sutter worked the final two innings for his second save.

Ivan DeJesus homered for the Cubs, and Chicago scored two more runs on an error by Brock in left field in the second inning and third baseman Ken Reitz' throwing error in the fourth. The fourth-inning run became earned when Cards right-hander Bob Forsch, 0-2, followed with a wild pitch.

Reds 2, Braves 0

Tom Seaver tossed his 48th career shutout, allowing just two hits, and Ken Griffey and George Foster smacked solo homers to help Seaver even his season record at 2-2.

Griffey broke a scoreless pitchers duel between Seaver and Atlanta starter Phil Niekro, 1-3, with his first homer of the season to lead off the fourth inning. Foster smacked his fourth homer, a booming shot off the facade of the third-level seats at Riverfront Stadium, in the seventh.

After yielding a third-inning double to Pepe Frias, Seaver retired 14 straight until walking pinch-hitter Bob Beall with one out in the eighth. One out later, Jerry Royster got the only other hit off Seaver, a single.

Seaver struck out five and walked three, and the only jam he was in came in the eighth after Royster singled. That put men on first and third with two out, but he got out of it by getting Glenn Hubbard to line to left.

Longhorn team adds sponsors

Midland's Bobby Hillin, owner of Longhorn Racing, has acquired another major sponsorship for the 1979 Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART) Indy-car series.

International Dairy Queen, Inc. now joins Kent Oil and Trading Company of Houston as a major co-sponsor of the 1979 Longhorn attack. The sponsorship help put Hillin's Longhorn Racing program on firm footing. This is the first year Hillin has made an effort to compete in the entire Indy-car circuit.

Longhorn will be racing Sunday in CART's second tour stop in Atlanta in the Twin Gould race. The event is scheduled to be televised by ABC-TV.

"We are delighted to be once again associated with racing. The Longhorn Racing Team, with Tom Bagley as driver, is first rate. Their thorough preparation reflects the same philosophy we like to incorporate in our business," said Harris Cooper, President of International Dairy Queen.

Currently, Longhorn Racing has a pair of Penske PC-6 race cars, powered by a stable of Cosworth race engines. Hillin also has already started the process of building a new SK-1 racer, which may be on the track late this year.

"We are pleased to welcome International Dairy Queen to our racing family. We look forward to a successful season of good racing," Hillin said. International Dairy Queen develops, licenses and services a system of over 4,800 "Dairy Queen" and "Dairy Queen-Brazier" stores in the United States, Canada and eight foreign countries.

Angels stretch streak to eight

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Brian Downing, a player the Chicago White Sox didn't want two years ago, and Carney Lansford, a player Minnesota wanted desperately this winter, put the whammy on Mike Marshall and the Twins.

Downing stroked a two-run single off the former Cy Young winner in the eighth inning and Lansford added a solo home run in the ninth as the California Angels overcame the Twins 6-4 Thursday and extended their winning streak to eight games.

In other American League games, Boston clipped Milwaukee 5-3 and Baltimore defeated the New York Yankees 6-3.

"I hate to say this, but last year I only faced Marshall once and I hit a home run to center field here," said Downing, whose single erased a 4-3 deficit. "That was a fastball up high. I hadn't even seen his screwball until I hit it today."

The 28-year-old catcher was obtained by California in the Bobby Bonds deal with the White Sox before last season. He said he received criticism from the media in Chicago and felt rejuvenated once he got to the West Coast.

"Since midseason of last year, I felt that I've started to put it together to some degree," Downing said. "When I was traded here, I finally actually felt like a big league ballplayer. Out here it was like I was reborn."

The man who had faith was Jim Fregosi, who made Downing his regular catcher when he became the Angel's manager in June.

"He's just a fine player," Fregosi said. "He can catch and throw and he swings the bat with authority. That's the reason I'm playing him."

The Twins tried to avert a three-game sweep by the Angels, but it was not to be. A two-run home run by Glenn Adams capped a three-run outburst by Minnesota in the first inning, and Adam's RBI single in the fifth snapped a 3-3 tie.

IN BETWEEN, the Angels blasted three solo homers against Paul Hartzell. Joe Rudi and Willie Aikens connected consec

Soviet 'in' crowd looks for Blue Bird

By SETH MYDANS

MOSCOW (AP) — A rap on the tiny window and a secret password get you through the door of Moscow's newest in-spot, the Blue Bird cafe — the city's only real discotheque.

Red, yellow, blue and green lights flash, a tape plays the Bee Gees, four girls in blue jeans dance an improvised disco routine and a young man with Bob Dylan curls pops mysterious little white pills.

It's a disco all right, but something's missing — it's Saturday night without fever. Maybe it's because you don't find "the decor of a whorehouse and the odor of cocaine" that so disturbed a Soviet journalist recently at New York's Studio 54 disco.

Whatever it is, the imagination, the fantasy, the energy that lit up the lives of John Travolta and his friends in the movie "Saturday Night Fever" are missing at this subdued nightclub, where closing time is a strict 10 p.m.

Youngsters in their late teens and early 20s sit at small tables eating tough steak-and-eggs and fried pork rinds and drinking vodka cocktails with maraschino cherries. They're dressed for the most part in jeans and old sweaters, sometimes in jackets and ties.

Throughout the evening, though, there is a mob of the unfortunate around the basement doorway, trying to get in.

Elbow your way through them, rap on a playing-card-sized window and shout, "Irina Nikolayevna sent me."

When the door opens a crack, all the others try to push through with you, but Irina Nikolayevna, a stout little woman with a bun, shoves them back.

"They line up from 3 p.m. to get in," she says, "but we have only 80 seats."

"You must give money," says Bobik. "The first time, the second time, the third time. Then they know you and you can get in."

"I used to come here all the time. Here you can make contacts for selling jeans. I have to make a living so I sell jeans. Now I don't come here so often and I have trouble getting in." Says Irina Nikolayevna, "I have a good memory for faces." Inside, the visitors find a tightly packed, low-ceilinged room filled with smoke and loud music, with a bar-window shaped like a large mouth filled with foreign liquor bottles. The Blue Bird serves only Russian vodka and champagne.

"This is the most popular place for young people," Bobik says. "You can dance here, everybody is here."

Six piano matinee concerts to highlight Newport festival

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Six late afternoon solo piano concerts, something new this year, will "whet the appetite" for evening events at the 1979 Newport Jazz Festival, scheduled for June 22-July 1, festival impresario George Wein says.

Pianists for the hour-long concerts at 5 p.m. in Carnegie Recital Hall will be Al Haig, Roland Hanna, Muhai Richard Abrams, Barry Harris, Patti Brown and Barbara Carroll, Wein said Wednesday at a news conference.

He said this year's festival will have an "umbrella" concept, to include all kinds of jazz. Opening night will be a Dizzy Gillespie concert, entitled "Unity with Diversity," in Carnegie Hall.

"The Stardust Road" on June 27 at Carnegie Hall will be a tribute to Hoagy Carmichael by some two dozen musicians. A couple of unpublished Carmichael works will be played and the composer, who lives in Palm Springs, Calif., has been invited to play the piano.

"Getting enough new music on the festival has always been a serious problem," Wein said. This year, on June 22 and 29, concerts by Cecil Taylor and Sun Ra and by the Art Ensemble of Chicago and the World Saxophone Quartet will be held at Symphony Space, Broadway and 95th St. Anthony Braxton, Leroy Jenkins and Oliver Lake will be at Alice Tully Hall in Lincoln Center on June 27.

Other Carnegie Hall concerts feature artists Betty Carter, Sonny Rollins and Gato Barbieri, Count Basie, a Billie Holiday tribute with Carmen McRae, Dave Brubeck and Woody Herman, and a tribute to the pop song.

Avery Fisher Hall will host Pat Metheny; "Black Broadway, 1900-1945," with Adelaide Hall coming from London; Earl Klugh and Michael Franks; Maynard Ferguson and Ronnie Laws; Freddie Hubbard and Woody Shaw; Lionel Hampton, and "Jazz Latino."

This year's only midnight concert, to be held at Radio City Music Hall, will be a tribute to bluesman Muddy Waters.

Russians have caviar black market

By SETH MYDANS

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian caviar, rarer and more expensive than ever before, has become a black-market item in its native land. Caviar poaching has become a bigtime crime.

Pollution, over-fishing and the government's hunger for foreign currency have made the delicacy virtually impossible to find in stores. Its price, when it briefly appears (and immediately disappears), is up to $70 a kilogram (2.2 pounds). In New York, top-grade Russian caviar is around $240 a 14-ounce can.

More and more reports are appearing in the Soviet press about large-scale caviar black marketeering, with unspecified "long sentences" given to the criminals. For those who get away with it, though, caviar can bring big money.

Early this month, a newspaper reported the sentencing of two men who had sold two tons of black market caviar in 1977 and 1978, earning 35,000 rubles, or about $53,000.

The newspaper, Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya, referred to a popular movie, "You Help Me and I'll Help You," in which caviar poachers start out with a happy hijinx but come to a bad end.

Another report a few months ago described the arrest of three men, including a game inspector, who bought 11 caviar-filled sturgeon from poachers for the equivalent of $350, expecting to make about $2,000 profit.

So far as can be determined, most of the poaching takes place in the Caspian Sea, where the sturgeon, whose roe is caviar, are caught either by government fishing enterprises or individual but illegal fishermen. In addition, the caviar is siphoned off into the black market at various stages of processing and shipment.

The popularity and scarcity of caviar are an invitation to shady dealing in this society where people have come to expect the most desirable commodities to be available only under the counter or through friends — "blat" in the Russian term.

For the ordinary Russian, an expensive restaurant meal can include a spoonful of caviar. A hard-to-get ticket to the Bolshoi Theater entitles a gourmet to stand in line at the buffet for a 50-cent open sandwich sprinkled with a few grains of black or red caviar.

But caviar rarely reaches the counter even of Moscow's most extensive fish store, the Okean on Prospect Mira. Somewhere along the line from the busy hatcheries of the Caspian Sea, it disappears.

"Caviar is no longer a part of Russian life," one Muscovite said gloomily. But Russians still seek it out for special occasions, or to treat ailing relatives, for whom doctors say it is the best nourishment.

They go to "friends," which often means restaurant waiters, who will sell half-kilo tins for a hefty tip that sometimes raises the cost to double the official price.

A series of giant hydroelectrical dams along the Volga River, which feeds into the Caspian, along with pollution of the river and the sea, have caused a steady drop in caviar production since the postwar days, when many Russians remember eating thick caviar sandwiches for breakfast.

Spawning grounds have been drying up and the sturgeon are becoming rare in their natural waters.

Soviet officials say they are combatting pollution and raising production in new hatcheries where the fish are injected with hormones to make them produce roe.

But much of the production goes into foreign sales, which bring the Russians coveted foreign currency, causing private complaints among local customers.

Meanwhile the poachers are hard at work, cutting into the harvest on its way to the stores and restaurants.

One recent account described an intricate network in the Caspian, complete with code words. The ring Schooling doesn't make lawyer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — David Pitchford went looking for a state where he could take a bar examination without "wasting time" on law school, and discovered Arkansas.

After poring over scores of state codes, he ran across Title 25-101 of the Arkansas state law. He's also run up against the Arkansas Supreme Court.

"It was like an act of God," the Virginia native, who has done undergraduate work toward an English degree at William & Mary, said Tuesday of his find. "There it was in black and white, just what I was looking for."

The Arkansas law says every citizen at least 21 years old with good moral character and possessing the requisite qualification of learning and ability, may, upon application, take the bar exam.

"It doesn't mention law school anywhere," said Pitchford, 26.

But the Arkansas Supreme Court sees things differently. The state's highest court says a person must have a degree from an accredited law school to be qualified to take the bar exam.

It's that rule Pitchford will challenge Monday when he goes before the Arkansas jurists.

"They're saying a rule of court can supersede a law," he said. "I don't buy any part of that."

Pitchford moved from Virginia to Memphis in January so he could be closer to "the grounds of the war." He is working in the office of Southaven, Miss., lawyer Robert G. Gilder while he spars with the Arkansas court.

Pitchford said he has no doubts he can pass the bar exam, and he's even in favor of making the exams more difficult.

Jail escapee caught napping

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — An escapee from the Comanche County Jail was arrested Thursday after he was found sleeping in a motel room he had broken into, authorities said.

Lawson Moore, 58, was a trusty serving a grand larceny sentence when he walked away from the jail March 31.

The manager of the Arrow Motel here, Paul Stamper, found Moore asleep in a motel room at about 2:15 a.m., officers said. Police were then summoned to the motel.

A former Comanche County jail nurse was pulled off disaster team work Wednesday in Wichita Falls, Texas, to be returned here to face felony charges of harboring a fugitive in connection with Moore's escape.

Jimmie Allie, 38, is accused of harboring Moore.

Comanche County investigator Bill Banks said Ms. Allie, a licensed vocational nurse, was employed several months ago to work part-time at the county jail, but she left April 1, the day after Moore escaped, saying she was going to see a relative in Texas.

Witnesses placed Ms. Allie and Moore at a Vernon, Texas motel the next weekend, Banks said.

She was working Wednesday in Wichita Falls when arrested. She waived extradition and was to be arraigned today, authorities said.

Court upholds Muniz disbarment

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ramsey Muniz, twice a losing candidate for governor on the Raza Unida ticket, lost his law license Wednesday as the Texas Supreme Court upheld his disbarment.

Muniz, a former Baylor football player, is serving a five-year federal prison sentence on marijuana and bail jumping charges.

Without writing a new opinion, the Supreme Court said it could find "no reversible error" in a decision of the 13th Court of Civil Appeals at Corpus Christi affirming Muniz' disbarment.

Muniz received 214,118 votes for governor in 1972 and 93,295 votes in 1974 as the Raza Unida candidate against Dolph Briscoe.

He pleaded guilty in March 1977 to federal charges of conspiring to smuggle 1,100 pounds of marijuana into the United States with intent to distribute. He also pleaded guilty to bail jumping charges.

The appeals court said that under Texas law, a district judge has no choice but to disbar a lawyer convicted of a felony involving moral turpitude.

The issue in Muniz' case, the court said, was whether the crimes to which he pleaded guilty involved moral turpitude, and the court found they did.

Committee report favors two bills regarding mining

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The Texas Railroad Commission would be able to regulate surface coal and uranium mining, and the reclamation of topsoil disturbed by the excavations, under two bills recommended favorably by the Senate Natural Resources Committee Wednesday.

The bills, co-authored by Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, already have passed the House. The legislation was sponsored before the Senate committee by Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene.

Jones successfully opposed attempts to amend the bills to define "prime farmland" that would be reclaimed after mining as land "that historically has been used for intensive agricultural purposes or that has the potential for intensive agricultural purposes." The committee vote was 7 to 3 against amending the House bills.

Joe Cook of Lockhart, who said he represents Texans for Protection of Prime Farmlands, made a lengthy presentation in favor of the amendments "to preserve the valuable topsoils upon which the farmers, ranchers and timbermen depend for their livelihood."

"The Railroad Commission definition of prime farmland is too restrictive, since it requires that not only the soil be a first-class type, but that it has to have been in cultivation five out of the past 10 years," said Cook.

Sen. Jones said Congress, in 1977, enacted the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act providing for the establishment of a nationwide program to regulate surface mining and reclamation.

Congress, he added, concluded that states should assume exclusive control over the regulation of surface coal mining and regulation.

Jones said he opposed amending the legislation because he believed the bills, in their present forms, complied with the federal act.

WAURIKA, Okla. (AP) — Larry Matt Armstrong, 31, of Pampa, Texas, was killed when the tractor-trailer truck he was driving overturned after going out of control on U.S. 70 near here at about 5:30 a.m. Thursday, Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol said Armstrong apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Turkish tycoon claims economic cure

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's newest industrial tycoon, a man who started his career at age 13 in a flour factory, says Turkish ingenuity combined with foreign technology can bail this nation out of its difficult economic straits.

Sakip Sabanci, chairman and managing director of the Sabanci Holding Co., says Turkey "accomplished a great deal in the past 40 years — from manufacturing burial shrouds for our loved ones to exporting textile fabrics to major fashion centers in Europe."

"Let's put it clearly," the 45-year-old industrialist said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "It is a not actually foreign currency that Turkish industry needs. It is a radical change in our thinking."

He questioned government attempts to boost and diversify Turkey's exports while at the same time "impeding the private sector with heavy bureaucracy in Ankara," the Turkish capital.

Sabanci is said to have surpassed the business volume and assets of the country's big industrial group, the holding firm of KOC.

The Sabanci company's reported emergence as the No. 1 private enterprise here was spearheaded by a commercial bank founded by Sabanci's father, Haci Omer Sabanci, an almost illiterate mountain villager who started out as a cotton-bale carrier.

Haci Omer, founder of Akbank T.A.S., which is trying to capture first place in commercial banking, was born in a 300-house village in Anatolia. At the age of 5 he lost his father and at 14 he walked 270 miles south to Adana to work as a cotton-bale carrier.
