West Germans Burn Gasoline At Fast Clip

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germans barrel down the country's autobahns as fast as their fast cars will carry them, burning gasoline with an abandon that would dazzle fuel-starved Californians.

The irony is obvious. America produces about half its oil needs. West Germany imports every drop.

West German motorists, who rival their American counterparts in their love of the open road and big, fast cars, can buy all the gasoline they want at prices ranging between $1.85 and $2 a gallon. Further increases are expected later this year. American prices, for the most part, still have not crossed the $1-a-gallon mark.

Nevertheless, West German highways are jammed, especially on weekends, and Germans seem more eager than ever to invest heavily in large, high-powered cars.

Daimler-Benz, manufacturer of Mercedes autos, predicts its sales this year will rise by 10 percent over 1978. Customers frequently wait more than a year for delivery of the most expensive models.

West German automakers pledged this month to increase fuel efficiency by 10 percent to 12 percent by 1985. The voluntary agreement would increase gas mileage from the current West German average of 21 miles a gallon.

"The present oil situation is not rosy but not dramatic either," said Hans-Joachim Burchard, chairman of the National Oil Dealers Association.

Speaking at a news conference in Hamburg, Burchard said his association saw no danger that the country would have to resort to a rationing plan similar to one enacted in California.

Economics Minister Otto Lambdorff and other top government officials have also ruled out rationing or other compulsory fuel-saving measures for the time being in favor of appeals for conservation.

Industry spokesmen say that since West Germans are willing to pay steep prices for fuel, they are guaranteed a good supply, at least for the next few months.

But the Bonn government and German subsidiaries of the major international oil companies are urging consumers to practice conservation in case unexpected developments upset fuel supply plans.

"Every consumer must buy what is necessary and no more," said Burchard.

The strong showing of the West German currency has helped maintain supplies as well.

Oil-producing nations bill their customers in dollars, which have declined in value against the West German mark, helping West Germany hold gas prices well below those charged by service stations in France, Italy, Belgium and other Western European countries.

According to Burchard, West Germany increased its imports of crude oil by 17.5 percent during the first three months of this year. Imports from Iran fell off by 88 percent, but the Germans offset the loss in part by boosting purchases from Britain, Nigeria and Saudi Arabia.

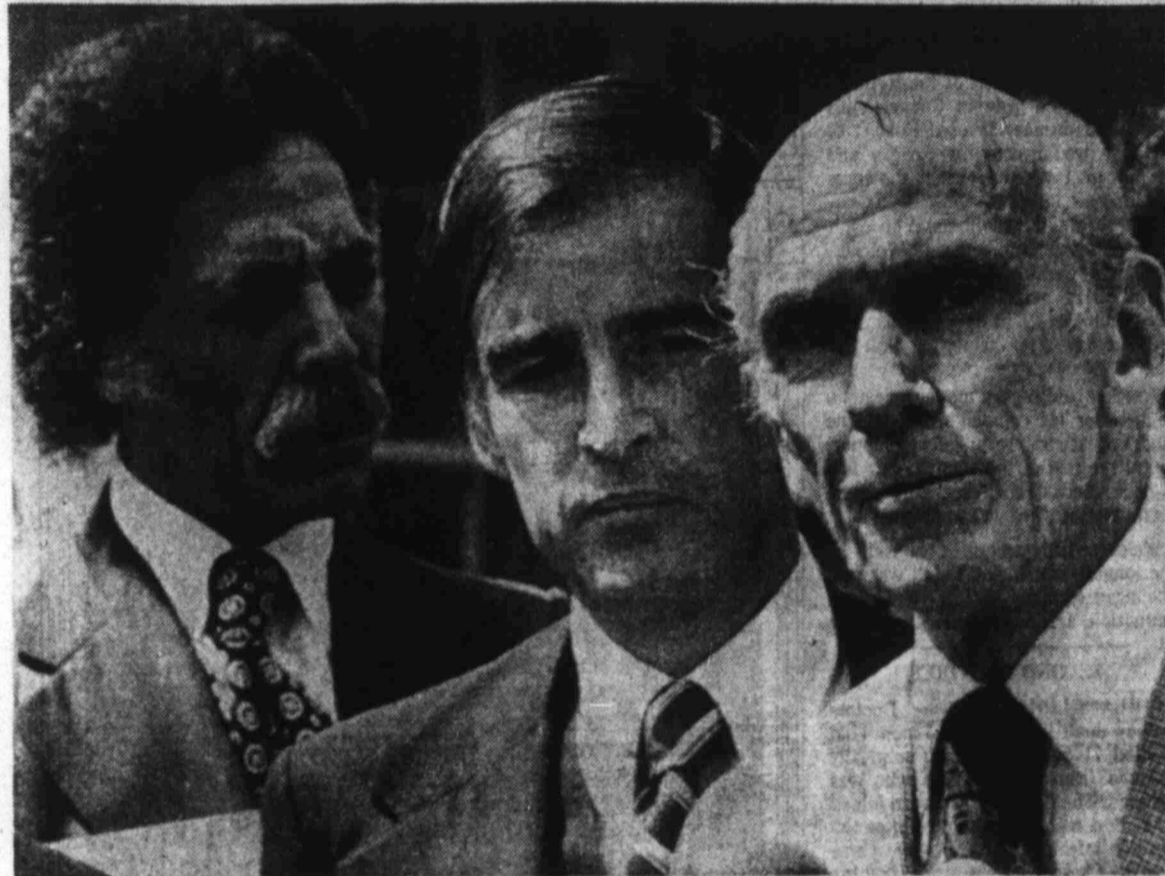

Martin Gruener, a state secretary in the Economics Ministry, told members of the Bundestag, or lower house of Parliament, on Wednesday that supplies of heating oil and gasoline were "so secure that there is no reason for panic.

But efforts to hold down prices are coming under increasing pressure. Recent increases in fuel costs on the Rotterdam spot market, source of about 30 percent of West Germany's needs, will soon be passed along to consumers.

Industry sources say increased American purchases on the Rotterdam market will also help force up the price Europeans must pay.

The spot market ignores the official price for oil set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries charging whatever the market will bear — usually well above the official OPEC figure.

Home Interest Hike Passed By Senate

Patman Ends 17-Hour Filibuster

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bill Patman gave 30 minutes' notice then halted his filibuster Wednesday against a proposal that would raise the legal maximum interest on home loans from 10 percent to 12 percent.

Patman, D-Ganado, appeared tired when he sat down at 6:30 p.m. after stalling the proposal for 17 hours and 20 minutes — the longest filibuster of the legislative session.

The Senate then passed the bill, 21-10, and returned it to the House for consideration of changes made by senators.

Patman told the sponsor, Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eulesa, at 6:30 p.m. he would quit in approximately 60 minutes.

Meier, a filibuster champion who once talked for 43 hours, seemed surprised but delighted.

After Patman quit, it took 18 minutes to round up senators for a vote. Most had deserted the Senate chamber as soon as Patman began talking at 1:30 a.m.

Patman insisted that although he was stopping his filibuster, "I'm ready to go" if another unfavorable bill comes up.

"Yours was one of the finest stands I've seen on the Senate floor," said Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland. "You weren't trying to set any records, you were trying to draw attention."

Patman, rocking on his feet to ease the weariness in his legs, had indicated as early as 3:45 p.m. he might quit in a few hours.

Talking at times to spell Patman were Clower, D-Garland, and several others, including Sens. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, and Bob Vale, D-San Antonio.

Within minutes after the final vote on the loan interest bill, the Senate reconvened in a new legislative day and concurred 23-8 with House amendments to changes in the state's law against deceptive trade practices. The bill goes to the governor.

"It is sterile... but the House cleaned it up a bit," said Doggett who earlier filibustered 15 hours against the measure.

Doggett had agreed earlier he would not filibuster the bill after the House changes. The House passed the bill 80-40.

The principal House change was to mandate tripling of the first $1,000 in actual damages in all cases. If the defendant was knowingly deceptive, judges and juries could triple damages past the first $1,000.

The only rest Patman got, however, was when he was allowed to sit in his chair as a messenger from the House read brief reports of legislation approved by representatives. He also got a brief respite when a class from Snook High School was introduced.

Patman's talk brought Senate action to a virtual standstill as "cancelled" notices were posted on committee room doors.

"They (lenders) don't want only 12 percent — they want much more, 12 percent plus 'points'," said Patman.

He switched from blue and white jogging shoes to black leather shoes, then went back to the jogging shoes as the filibuster went on.

His desk was littered with papers and folders, although he occasionally tidied his desk for aides, who carried off paper

Lubbock Man Injured During Shootout With Slaton Officer

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A SEARCH for an attempted murder suspect Wednesday resulted in a shootout between a Slaton policeman and another man living in the suspect's trailer house.

The gunfire ended about 3:25 p.m. after Slaton Police Lt. Jerry Eaton shot a 52-year-old Lubbock man in each hand.

Eaton and two other lawmen had gone to a trailer house near the intersection of Tahoka Highway and FM 1585 to serve a warrant to Doyle S. Suttle, 52.

The trailer house is located behind J.C. Roberts Package Store, where police said Suttle was an employee.

Suttle was charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting incident earlier Wednesday in Slaton.

While Sheriff's Deputy Don Rackler and Slaton Police Sgt. Mike Savage waited in front of the store, Eaton said he approached the trailer house alone.

Eaton said a man outside the trailer house confronted him and pulled out a pistol.

Eaton said he also pulled out his gun, and shots were exchanged.

"I don't know how many shots I fired, but I hit him in both hands," Eaton said. Seven or eight shots were fired by the two men, said one official.

After the shooting stopped, the wounded man said he also lived in the trailer house, Eaton said.

The wounded man, Harrell Edward Qualls, 49, of Rt. 6, Box 744, was charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer in connection with the incident.

Bond for Qualls was recommended at $50,000 by Criminal District Attorney John Montford.

Qualls was listed in satisfactory condition late Wednesday in Methodist Hospital.

Shortly after the shooting, Suttle, the man Eaton originally was looking for, surrendered to deputies at the county jail.

Suttle was charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting incident at the apartment of Carolyn Lewis, 24, of Slaton.

Mrs. Lewis reported to Slaton police that a man riddled her apartment with bullets after she refused him entrance.

Mrs. Lewis, along with her two daughters and a man and a woman, both 21, were inside the apartment at the time the shots were fired, said Savage.

No one was injured, however.

Savage said shots were fired through the front window, a bedroom window and into the front door. When Mrs. Lewis called Slaton police for help, the police dispatcher heard what sounded like gunshots in the background.

Bullet holes in the apartment indicated the man used a .38-caliber pistol and a .22-caliber rifle, Savage said.

Recovered after the shooting Wednesday was a .38-caliber revolver.

Airport Plans Need Only FAA Approval

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MORE THAN a million dollars in federal funds will be available to the Lubbock International Airport if the Federal Aviation Administration approves safety projects submitted earlier this year by airport officials, the airport board learned Wednesday.

Lubbock Aviation Director Marvin Coffee said $1.028 million would be available through the FAA's Airport Development and Assistance Program, which grants funds to airports who undertake FAA projects for safety and maintenance.

The grant was awarded on the basis of the airport's 1978 boardings figures, said Coffee.

Safety improvement projects submitted earlier this year to the FAA by the Lubbock airport included plans to improve the facility's runways and lighting.

The board also approved a request by Airborne Air Freight Inc. to operate its franchise at the airport. Airborne, the second largest air freight forwarding company in the world, currently is represented in Lubbock by Sexton Enterprises.

Under the approved proposal, Airborne would place its own equipment and employees in Lubbock. The company would move its freight through commercial airlines already serving Lubbock for about a year, and then would begin to operate its own aircraft in and out of

RANDOLPH DIES
WASHINGTON (AP) — A. Philip Randolph, grand old man of the modern civil rights movement, died Wednesday in New York, an AFL-CIO spokesman said. Randolph was 90. Al Zack, spokesman for the AFL-CIO, said he was informed of Randolph's death Wednesday evening, but had no details.

Legal Attack Jousts Wage-Price Guides

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government urged a federal judge Wednesday to reject the first direct challenge to President Carter's wage-price guidelines, saying the administration needs powerful tools to fight inflation.

But an unusual coalition of labor leaders and Republican congressmen argued that Carter is wielding a club in violation of the law to enforce his anti-inflation effort.

The two sides squared off at a hearing before U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker, who must decide whether the president has overstepped his authority in threatening to deny large federal contracts to companies found in violation of his guidelines.

A ruling in favor of the AFL-CIO, nine member unions and 24 GOP congressmen who are challenging Carter, would not overturn the anti-inflation program. But such a ruling would strip the administration of a principal weapon of enforcement.

Parker, acknowledging the "importance and urgency" of the suit, promised a swift ruling on what government attorneys argue is a question of whether Carter is acting unconstitutionally.

AFL-CIO attorney Laurence Gold argued that Carter's threat to deny contracts worth $5 million or more to companies that exceed his guidelines turns his so-called "voluntary" program into mandatory controls, which can only be invoked by an act of Congress.

But the government countered that the program is purely voluntary despite the possibility that a company could lose a federal contract.

Assistant Attorney General Barbara Babcock said that under a mandatory program, the government tells a company "I'll hit you with a stick" if it doesn't comply, but under Carter's program, the government is saying, "I may not give you a carrot."

"Even a rabbit knows the difference," she said.

But the judge responded by asking whether the only difference is, "I'll hit you with a steel rod or I'll hit you with a two-by-four."

Altogether, the government estimates that between $40 billion and $56 billion a year in federal contracts are at stake under Carter's wage-price guidelines.

The wage standard calls for a 7 percent annual ceiling on wage and fringe benefit increases, although the guideline has been stretched to accommodate larger settlements, such as the estimated 9 percent to 10 percent annual increases the Teamsters union claims it won last month.

The price standard is less specific, but generally seeks to slow the rate of inflation, currently running well above

$6 Million Hobbs School Issue Fails

By A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N.M. — For the first time in the history of the Hobbs Independent School District, voters Tuesday turned down by a 61-vote margin a $6 million bond issue to build a new elementary school and finance renovation and remodeling on other schools.

The second issue on the ballot, a two-mill levy, was approved by only three votes.

About 2,500 persons turned out for the vote, which saw the bond issue defeated by 1,282 against to 1,221 for.

The two-mill levy was approved by 1,218 votes for and 1,215 against.

Approximately $1.02 million collected from the levy will be used for new roofing and insulation at many schools, with about $800,000 going for instructional and maintenance equipment at all schools.

Election officials said that the votes cast represented less than one-fourth of the district's eligible voters.

Superintendent Ellis B. Scott said if the school board determines a need for a future bond issue, that body may call for another bond election within two years.

Electric Co-Op Backed As Power Source

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SOUTH PLAINS Electric Cooperative — not Southwestern Public Service or Lubbock Power and Light — should serve an annexed area in Southwest Lubbock, a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner has concluded.

Examiner Carolyn Shellman has recommended that the commission deny Southwestern Public Service Co.'s 1977 application to serve the 960-acre Meadows Addition roughly located west of Slide Road between 98th and 104th Streets and the western portion of the LakeRidge Country Club Addition at 84th Street and Vicksburg Avenue.

The three-member PUC is expected to act on the examiner's recommendations on May 29.

The City of Lubbock, made a party to the SPS application, was denied permission to serve the annexed area because city officials never applied for a certificate to serve the area.

City officials say they are puzzled by the examiner's recommendation because there is litigation now pending before the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo to determine whether LP&L or the cooperative should serve the Meadows Addition area.

After the co-op filed suit last year, District Judge William R. Shaver enjoined LP&L from serving the annexed area and the city appealed that decision.

Two weeks ago the co-op filed a similar suit, this time over service to the 160-acre High Country Addition located between 98th and 107th Streets and between Indians and Memphis Avenues. No action has been taken on that lawsuit.

The PUC examiner's report says SPS had asked the commission to find it is "without jurisdiction to certify any utility to serve this area, jurisdiction over rates and services now being vested in the City of Lubbock."

"Southwestern's position was that the City has exclusive original jurisdiction over all rates, operations, and services provided by a utility within its boundaries and consequently the Commission has no jurisdiction to require Southwestern to obtain a certificate to operate within the City," the report says.

Because South Plains Electric Cooperative already was certificated to serve the 960 acres, the co-op contended the annexation of the area should not affect that service right.

Also, the co-op's position was that the SPS franchise from the City of Lubbock "does not give it a legal right to serve the new area" and the co-op "was willing and able to provide adequate service to the new area."

Although the city did not apply for a certificate to serve the new developments, it contended "the Commission could issue a certificate even though no application was filed" and asked that it be allowed to serve the area alone, or with SPS.

Since the co-op is not franchised by the city to serve the area, the city asked that the co-op be allowed only to serve "those connections in the area it was serving at the time of annexation."

In finding that "the public convenience and necessity will not be served"

House Okays Alaska Land Bill, 100 Million Acres Involved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Wednesday passed the conservationist-backed Alaska land bill, setting aside more than 100 million acres for wildlife refuges and wilderness.

House passage came on a 360-65 vote shortly after members had thrown out a rival measure backed by industry.

The bill now goes to the Senate. A similar measure, which would have set aside about one-third of Alaska for national parks, wilderness areas and refuges, died in the Senate last year.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, voted in favor of a proposal backed by oil, timber and mining companies, and voted against final passage of the conservationist-backed measure.

House approval of the bill, sponsored by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., marked a significant victory for President Carter and for a wide coalition of environmental groups. Carter had called the measure his top environmental priority.

After the vote, Carter said in a statement he was "pleased and gratified" and he urged the Senate to take similar action promptly.

"Members of the House should feel justifiably proud of their historic vote for a truly superior bill," the president said.

The National Wildlife Federation issued a statement calling the vote "courageous and far-sighted" and said all conservationists should support it or a similar bill in the Senate.

The measure sets aside 110 million acres of Alaska land for national parks, preserves, wild river areas and wilderness. It would roughly double the size of the national park system.

Shortly before approving the Udall measure, the House threw out a rival bill sponsored by Reps. John Breaux, D-

Area Thundershowers Expected

South Plains farmers may get some much needed rainfall today as an upper level low pressure system that sparked thundershowers Wednesday in far West Texas and Eastern New Mexico is expected to maintain its grip on the region through Friday.

While today's high temperature should match Lubbock's 82-degree reading Wednesday, National Weather Service forecasters say the heat may be tempered by scattered thundershowers and set the area's chance of precipitation at 30 percent tonight.

The showers, however, are expected to produce generally less than a quarter-inch of moisture. But even that slight amount should help boost May's minimal precipitation total of only .67 of an inch.

The rest of today's weather should duplicate Wednesday's pattern, with the low tonight expected to dip near 60 and southeasterly winds again gusting to near 30 mph.

Wednesday's winds that stirred up South Plains dust were prompted by the same weather pattern that spawned the late-afternoon showers west and southwest of Lubbock.

As the low pressure system developed over the southwestern portion of the nation Wednesday, minor upper air disturbances moving northeastward across the area sparked the wind and rains.

By 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, a line of thundershowers stretched from Clovis and Roswell, N.M., into the Big Bend National Park. The storms were moving slowly to the northeast.

Across the rest of the state Wednesday, fair and partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the upper 70s and low 80s dominated the weather scene.

La., and John Dingell, D-Mich. That bill was strongly supported by the oil and mineral industry, but Carter had said he would veto it.

The House turned down the Breaux and Dingell measure on a vote of 268-157.

Supporters of the failed bill had argued that in view of the nation's energy problems it would be foolish to lock up the Arctic National Wildlife range, which oilmen think represents the best chance for striking a major oil bonanza in this country.

Under the Breaux and Dingell bill, the oil industry would have been allowed to sink test wells beneath the wilderness area. Backers of the measure said the test drilling could have been done without damaging the land or its wildlife.

But the Udall measure makes the area off limits to any development.

In arguing for his bill, Udall said oil companies should explore all other federal lands before drilling on the Alaska range, which contains waterfowl nesting areas and range for 120,000 caribou.

Breaux said his bill would have set aside more land than the Udall measure for wildlife refuges, wild river corridors, parks and preserves. His measure would have set aside 128 million acres of land, including 54 million as wilderness.

But conservationist complained that the bill would have opened wildlife refuge land to mining, while the Udall bill would bar mining.

In debate before final passage, Udall pleaded with House members to save "the Yosemite and Grand Canyons of Alaska, the scenic treasures" belonging to 200 million Americans.

But Alaska Republican Don Young, in an emotional speech, said Udall's bill would mean that federal agents would tell Alaskans how they could use their own land.

And Breaux told his colleagues that "Midwest sheiks would laugh at what some of us are doing" in turning potential energy sources into parks and wilderness areas.

Connecticut Senator Bows Out Of Presidential Race

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Sen. Lowell Weicker, saying Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan were running ahead of him, even in his own state, abandoned his 2-month-old bid for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination Wednesday.

"I have always called the shots as I see them. I see the numbers for Lowell Weicker not being there," the two-term senator said, adding that his popularity in Connecticut has dropped since he announced his candidacy March 12.

SEN. LOWELL WEICKER

The decision by Weicker, the first major GOP candidate to drop out of the 1980 race, leaves six announced candidates: former Texas Gov. John Connally; former CIA director George Bush of Texas; Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois; Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas; former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez. Unannounced candidates include former President Ford, former Calif. Gov. Reagan, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Rep. John Anderson of Illinois.

Weicker, who turned 48 Wednesday, did not endorse any of the other contenders.

He said his decision was based on a poll of all Connecticut voters. The poll showed that, given the names of eight candidates, 23.6 percent of the Republicans who would vote in Connecticut's presidential primary favored Ford, 20.6 said they would vote for Reagan and 13.9 percent favored Weicker, the senator said.

"Those are the numbers. You can't buck against them," said Weicker, whose wife Camille was with him at a hastily called news conference at the state Capitol. He said he made his decision Tuesday after reviewing poll results.

Weicker said raising money was not a problem for his campaign. He said he could not accurately judge his support around the rest of the country, but said he had received an "excellent" reception in the states he had campaigned in.

Weicker had described himself as "the longest shot in the field" when he announced formally for the Republican nomination, acknowledging lack of strong party support. But his decision to drop out of the race so soon caught most people by surprise.

Weicker had contended that his record of appealing to Democratic and unaffiliated voters and his independent stance in 1973 during the Senate Watergate hearings would make him a winner in a 1980 presidential election.

The Paris-born Weicker, a lawyer, served in the Connecticut General Assembly before being elected to Congress in 1969 and the Senate in 1971. He gained national recognition during the Watergate hearings when he expressed outrage over political activities at the Nixon White House.

Weicker, an heir to the Squibb drug fortune, said his biggest concern about his campaign was that his polling of Connecticut voters showed that his overall rating had begun slipping after his announcement for the White House.

"Running for president of the United States is a monumental task. Connecticut voters may correctly assume that such a campaign exerts a distracting effect on a senator, no matter how dedicated he is to his senatorial responsibilities," Weicker said.

He said no one else was responsible for his poor showing.

"Whatever fault is there is obviously my fault."

China Card Deal Off Bottom

ALTHOUGH THE lure of the China Market and the current focus on East-West trade have precipitated steps toward extending most-favored-nation (MFN) status to the People's Republic of China, this reversal of existing U.S. trade policy offers no guarantee of either political or economic benefits for the United States.

Commerce Sec. Juanita Kreps initiated this week a complex trade agreement which she said marks "a major step on the way to full normalization of our economic relations," subject to approval by Congress.

C.L. Haslam, general counsel of the Commerce Dept., said the administration's compromise ultimately resulted in an 85 percent redrafting of the original U.S. text. Some compromise.

FURTHERMORE, no evidence available to date substantiates claims that the Chinese have free emigration policies or have eased prosecuting human rights violations.

"If one attempts to piece together the scant information (on China's economy) and views this in connection with recent foreign policy actions (particularly the Chinese invasion of Vietnam), it is difficult to advocate that the U.S. should, in effect, reward these actions by granting MFN," observed economist Susan Woodward, a Heritage Foundation policy analyst.

Since the resumption of relations between the U.S. and the PRC, the administration has been urged to lift MFN restrictions—contained in the Jackson-Vanik Amendment of the Trade Act of 1974. Jackson-Vanik, originally aimed exclusively at the Soviet Union, prohibits the President from extending MFN status to any non-market economy which practices discriminatory emigration policies.

ONE HAS TO look no further than the administration's recent reversal of U.S. sales of computers to Tass (originally blocked in 1978 as a protest against the trials of the dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg), to find an example of the inconsistency in the administration's "cornerstone" human rights policy.

In assessing economic considerations, it is first necessary to determine the economic solvency of the parties involved. Historically, Western industrialized nations have experienced difficulty ascertaining the economic capabilities of centrally planned economies.

As for the Chinese, estimates of that country's reserve assets prior to the recent months of heavy contract purchases, was $2 to $3 billion, with no hint of gold stockpiles.

After a sudden spurt in commercial deals with the PRC, contract offers from the Chinese declined as the total of newly incurred obligations became apparent.

Even the most simplistic definition of international trade assumes that the two nations engaging in it expect to benefit mutually. But Mrs. Kreps' "breakthrough" trade agreement neglects to assure any benefits for us.

Roots Traced Back To Brown

PERHAPS NO other single act by any branch of government in modern times has had such a profound and continuing impact upon the nation as did the unanimous Supreme Court decision in Brown versus Board of Education handed down 25 years ago this May 17th.

In delivering its judgment that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal," the court precipitated a chain-reaction restructuring of American society of which the end may never be seen.

Brown, while socially revolutionary, appeared at the time deceptively simple. It reversed the 1896 "separate but equal" Supreme Court decision justifying racially based school facilities on grounds that in principle blacks were being deprived of their 14th Amendment rights to equal protection under the laws.

THE IMMEDIATE effect was limited to 21 states and the District of Columbia where school segregation was institutionalized on either a compulsory or permissive basis.

But that was only the beginning.

It led to federal troops at Little Rock, George Wallace blocking the door at the University of Alabama, decades in which race and rights were the dominant issues in national politics, and a quarter century of continuing litigation that has given rise to new issues of a far-greater complexity.

M. STANTON EVANS:

If We're Smart, We'll Avoid British Pitfalls

WASHINGTON—The victory of Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives in England provides new hope of sanity in government, not only for the United Kingdom, but for the United States.

As previously noted by dispatches in this space, the parallels between the British situation and our own are striking. England has blazed a path before us, committing itself to policies of heavy spending, wide-ranging welfare benefits, rampant unionism, excessive taxation, etc.

We have tagged along behind, doing similar things about a decade later, and reaping similar misery from the exercise.

Having emulated the British in creating problems, perhaps we can also emulate them in setting about to find a solution. The British Conservatives have learned a lot in recent years, and put the lessons to use in these elections.

IF WE STUDY their example, we may be able to learn some lessons, also. In which event, the change that has happened in British politics could happen in our own as well. Five points of reference that suggest themselves:

1—The objective political situation which brought the Conservative victory in England is very similar to our own. Like problems beget like responses from the public—and the British electorate is clearly fed up with crushing taxes, steep inflation, and runaway unions.

The costs of the welfare state have simply become too large, creating a political climate in which the Tory message could get through.

That a kindred climate exists in the U.S. was manifest in the "tax revolt" that surfaced a year ago, and is acknowledged by all observers.

2—THE CONSERVATIVE victory was preceded by a steady build-up of intellectual resources—as in the work of Ralph Harris and Antony Fisher at the Institute for Economic Affairs, Sir Keith Joseph at the Center for Policy Studies, and the work of younger groups such as the University Conservative Association, the Adam Smith Institute, the National Association for Freedom, and so on.

3—Here, however, an obvious difference arises. The British Conservatives were willing to draw on the resources available to them, and to use the material thus provided to make a convincing case to the public.

4—The British Conservatives achieved their triumph only after they ousted the "moderate" leadership of Edward Heath, which managed to lose two previous elections in a fog of philosophical confusion.

The GOP, by and large, has adopted an accommodationist posture via the Republican National Committee, a considerable chunk of the House and Senate leadership, and other ganglia of the party organization.

It seems unlikely that leadership of this type will be able to capitalize on the current conservative mood of the country.

5—AMONG THE most notable elements of strength for the British Conservatives has been the support they derive from major media—including the Daily Telegraph, the Express, and the Daily Mail.

Even the London Times, under William Rees-Mogg, has assumed a strong free-market orientation. American conservatives, by way of contrast, are almost totally shut out of the major New York and Washington media, although the Wall Street Journal and a number of papers around the country do take a generally conservative stance.

So, the parallels are there—as are the differences. With some degree of improvement in the party and media situations, the U.S. may ultimately follow the British toward more conservative government.

ROLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Nixon Rates Carter

WASHINGTON—Richard M. Nixon recently had some charitable things to say about Jimmy Carter, telling one visitor that the President is doing much better than the press gives him credit for but badly needs to tighten his control of the federal bureaucracy.

In an expansive mood during a long, rambling political chat with a well-known Washington lawyer, Nixon offered his usual list of helpful hints.

To start with, he said, Robert Strauss, Carter's inside jack-of-all-trades, should be made director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB)—one of the truly powerful jobs in any administration.

Nixon's message: control of the bureaucracy.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Care For A Carat?

THE CHAOS created by the "Esmeraldas" gangs in Colombia is backing up on Colombia's $300 million emerald exports.

Colombia is larger than Texas and California combined. Poachers and thieves have always been a problem, but today you find mine shipments hijacked, officials killed.

The "Esmeraldas" have made a no-man's land out of the mountains around the mines.

They are well armed. They fight running battles with the Colombian government police or raid emerald convoys. When the "Esmeraldas" are not fighting the police, they go after each other.

As one result, today emeralds are about five times more valuable than an equal-carats diamond, the hardest substance known to man. Even a normal fine emerald, flaws and all, is worth more than an equal-sized diamond.

EMERALDS GO back to about 2000 B.C. Egypt's Sukayt-Zabarah region near the Red Sea supplied them in Alexander the Great's time.

Later emerald mines showered their gems on Cleopatra.

In 1830 the Russians located emeralds in the Ural Mountains near Ekaterinburg, now Sverdlovsk. Also, emeralds have been found in Austria, Brazil, India's state of Rajasthan, New South Wales, the Transvaal, Western Australia and Rhodesia.

Our earth's melting pot concocts emeralds. They consist of beryllium silicate, aluminum, iron, chromium and oxygen. The green is made by traces of chromium.

The finest emeralds—the richest, brightest green—are those the trade calls "Kelly." Without the chromium, emeralds are comparatively worthless, merely an aquamarine.

THEY ARE mined by hand, nature distributing them unpredictably. The mining is on horizontal terraces, like giant steps up the faces of the slopes.

You find emeralds in pockets of veiny clusters, shale deposits, sandstones and even on ocean beds. But today Colombia is the overwhelming source of emeralds.

Spain ruled Colombia for 300 years. When the Spaniards invaded South America they found that the Incas possessed vast quantities of fine emeralds. They seized them.

For 300 years Spanish galleons groped to the Colombian coast. On their return trip, the captain's safe held emeralds consigned to the king of Spain. Europe avidly bought the emeralds.

I HAVE SEEN in Teheran five emeralds weighing more than 300 carats that grace Iran's crown jewels. They are displayed in a subterranean vault in a downtown Teheran bank.

Colombia's emerald mines are at Cosquez, Gachala and Penas Blancas, but the main digging is at Chivor and Muzo. They are within 200 miles of Bogota.

A full 95 percent of all the world's emeralds are found within this area.

Natives call emeralds "la materia verde"—the "green stuff." But you simply cannot tell whether the "green stuff" came from the Chivor or Muzo mines.

The Colombian mines produce about a million carats of gem-quality stones each year. The country exports all but a few of its emeralds.

JAY HARRIS: A No-Win Policy...

THE MOMENT of Truth is at hand for President Carter over another foreign policy issue almost as controversial as SALT II.

The implications may be almost as far-reaching, and indeed may affect SALT II.

The issue is what to do about Rhodesia's new coalition, black-white government and the lifting of economic sanctions against the mineral-rich African nation.

Involved is not only the box into which the President painted himself, with help from UN Amb. Andrew Young, but whether the President has the intestinal fortitude to stand up to the threats of an oil-rich black nation. The final decision not only will affect U.S. policy, but the fate of Southern Africa for the foreseeable future.

IN ORDER to understand Mr. Carter's dilemma over Rhodesia, and indirectly the Republic of South Africa and Namibia, a little background is in order.

From the day the President named his "good friend," Andy Young, as the nation's chief UN black spokesman, the official U.S. stance has been one of pushing black majority rule in all of Africa, even if it meant getting in bed with Russian and Cuban Communists, risking the area's vital minerals and endangering the West's oil supply route around Africa.

As pressure mounted for Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia to turn over power to the blacks, Amb. Young and British Foreign Sec. Owen sought to include Marxist-backed guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe in any settlement.

Both men balked at elections they knew they couldn't win. So, Prime Minister Smith worked out a transition plan with three internal black leaders, conducted elections in which a large majority of both whites and blacks participated, gave his blessings to the naming of black Bishop Abel Muzorewa to succeed him, and tossed the ball back to the West.

THE PRESIDENT had said that if the Rhodesian elections were free and fairly conducted, then the U.S. would lift the strangling economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

And although the U.S. officially did not send observers, selected newsmen and others, including A-J syndicated columnist M. Stanton Evans, did observe the elections and reported they found them to be open and above board.

Even before this, there was a move afoot in the U.S. Senate to remove the curbs on trade with Rhodesia, a nation which supplies the West with large amounts of crucial chrome, as well as other vital minerals. The only other major source of chrome, it should be noted, is Communist controlled.

While the President and Sec. of State Cyrus Vance vacillate over the Rhodesian issue, and Amb. Young pops off on the same subject, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Senate conservatives of both parties have in effect called Mr. Carter's hand. If he doesn't act to lift the sanctions, they will.

THE ADMINISTRATION argument is typical of its gutless position in most foreign affairs where a really hot potato is involved.

Sec. Vance pleads that it would be "premature" to judge the fairness of Rhodesia's election. Amb. Young mouths that of course they weren't fair and besides the Marxist guerrillas weren't included as he had urged all along.

The President's close aides worry about the reaction in the rest of black Africa if the sanctions are lifted, a move tantamount to U.S. recognition of the new government.

The Carter people argue that such a step would anger Nigeria, one of this nation's chief suppliers of high grade crude oil. What if the black-ruled African nation were to cut off U.S. supplies? Too, administration insiders link any major shift in U.S. policy in Africa to a loss of black voter support in the U.S. in the crucial 1980 Presidential race.

IN BRIEF, the Carter people have thought of all the reasons not to go along with the new setup in Rhodesia, rather than seek ways of making the best of the current internal situation.

Some argue U.S. "recognition" of the new Rhodesian regime would invite stepped-up attacks by the Nkomo-Mugabe guerrillas and more direct Cuban-Russian intervention. This, it is feared, would further erode already shaky support for SALT II.

The whole scenario is typical of the wishy-washy stance of the administration in key foreign "crunches" from Iran to Cuba to Cambodia to South Africa. Abandon your friends, cave in to your enemies...

Today, no one has to go further than the nearest gas pump to find out the results of such a policy. Today, no gas. Tomorrow, no chrome. Eventually, no guts...

ACTUALLY, THE problem for Mr. Carter may be compounded by the fact that Britain's Mrs. Margaret Thatcher during her recent campaign indicated support for the new Rhodesian coalition.

Sen. Helms says the issue is clear: "On one hand we have Marxist terrorists supported by Communist guns and money... On the other, we have a Methodist bishop elected by the majority of the voters..."

But, for Mr. Carter and Amb. Young, the issue is not so simple. It's too bad both can't be candid enough with themselves and with U.S. blacks to admit that the black problem, even black goals in Africa, and those in the U.S. are not one and the same.

The truth of the matter is that the American black, as well as whites, browns and all in between, have a definite stake in opposing Communism and far-out fanatics anywhere. If an example is needed, take another look at Mr. Carter's "human rights" policy, his weak support for Iran, not to mention at the neighborhood gas pump.

Q. WHAT'S THE purpose of epaulets on a military uniform?

A. Can only tell you their original purpose: to protect shoulders from sword cuts.

The divorce rate in the United States between 1965 and 1975 almost doubled.

In the literary footnotes is the claim that Lewis Carroll, the creator of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," wrote an average of more than 90 letters a week during the last 37 years of his life.

Some Texas Solons Financial Disclosures Vague

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wife of U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, earned $1,744.71 last year as the organist for the First Baptist Church in their hometown of Vernon, but not all of the state's congressmen were quite so specific in financial disclosure statements released Wednesday.

The reports required income, asset and liability listings by classification instead of precise figures in most categories.

U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts, for example, showed that he sold a boat last May for a price between $15,000 and $50,000.

Roberts listed at least $141,500 in outside income. The McKinney Democrat also drew a $7,844 pension from the navy and received $1,700 for two speaking engagements.

The most substantial property Roberts listed, was an interest worth between $50,000 and $100,000 in Roberts Bros. of McKinney. His liabilities included at least $30,000 to two McKinney banks and at least $50,000 to a Sherman bank.

Hightower received $1,000 in honorariums from the Celanese Corp. and the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board.

The state's top honorarium-earner was U.S. Rep. Jim Wright, the House majority leader, who listed $24,750 ranging from $100 from Texas Wesleyan College to $2,000 from Touche Ross and Co. of Los Angeles.

For outside income Wright listed at least $5,000 in rents from property in his hometown of Fort Worth, at least $200 in dividends and $2,500 in capital gains from the sale of Gearhart Owens stock.

Wright's stock holdings included at least $10,000 in the Tandy Corp. and the Western Co.

U.S. Rep. Jim Collins's report showed at least $304,600 earned last year from dividends, interest, capital gains and farm income. The Dallas Republican has more than $250,000 placed in cash deposits.

He owns farms in Dallas County, Wilmer, Collins County and Irving. Collins also listed pine tree timberland in Georgia worth at least $115,000. Companies in his stock portfolio included American Brands, Bell & Howell, Bulova, Franklin Mint, Polaroid, Republic Steel and F.W. Woolworth.

U.S. Rep. Richard White of El Paso said he suffered a net loss on rental property he valued at more than $200,000. His only honorarium last year was $500 from the American Podiatrists Association.

The sale of livestock contributed $10,897.01 to the income of U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler last year. The freshman Republican from Hunt also listed $2,289 earned for legal services and $550 from sale of his partnership.

He said his livestock operation was worth between $15,000 and $50,000.

U.S. Rep. Bill Archer of Houston listed at least $27,500 in outside income last year. His property included a 104-acre farm in Washington County, Tex., worth at least $18,000. His home on 184 acres in Loudon County, Va., was valued at a $100,000 minimum.

A freshman congressman from Marlin said he received a $9,395 salary from Wilson Building Material Co. in Clifton last year. U.S. Rep. Marvin Leath listed at least $12,000 in interest from three Waco banks and one in Marlin.

Leath also said his owned at least $15,000 of Marlin Mills Inc.

U.S. Rep. Ron Paul of Lake Jackson returned to the House this year from his medical practice, which brought him $105,900 in professional fees in 1978.

The Republican said his property included a 40-acre farm and his home worth at least $100,000 each and 10 acres at Oyster Creek carrying at least a $50,000 value.

The only honorarium listed by U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle of Austin was $1,000 from the Bowling Proprietors Association. The group also picked up the round trip expenses for Pickle to deliver his address at its annual convention in Las Vegas.

Pickle's property included 37 shares of Aluminum Co. of America, 50 shares of Texas Eastern Inc. and 50 shares of Union Carbide worth at least $3,000.

The Democrat said he owned a half interest in 92 acres of grazing land worth at least $15,000 and a one-third interest in 95.8 acres of grazing land worth at least $100,000. The tracts were in Travis County.

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm's property included 840 acres of farmland, building and equipment worth at least $250,000. He took a $4,025 salary from his Double S Farms Inc. in Stamford last year.

Another asset Stenholm listed in his statement was at least $50,000 in the First National Bank of Stamford, where he received a $5,000 fee as a bank director.

The University of Texas Medical Branch in U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks's district provided the Beaumont Democrat with his only honorarium last year, a $1-000 fee. He placed a value of at least $200,000 on the stock he owns.

Stenholm said he received a $20,000 director's fee from the First Bank and Trust Co. of Dallas and a similar $20,000 fee from First National Bank of Dallas.

U.S. Rep. East House, another freshman Democrat, showed a $20,000 loss from salary from last year and $10,000 from Hays and Hays Cattle. The former state senator from Lubbock received $7,340 in 1978 as his Texas Senate salary.

Among the assets listed was at least $100,000 in Deaf Smith County land.

State House Approves Extending Four Boards

AUSTIN (UPI) — The House Wednesday tentatively approved legislation prolonging the existence of four state boards and consolidating two others under sunset provisions.

Under sunset guidelines, the Board of Barber Examiners, the Structural Pest Control Board, the Texas Turnpike Authority, the Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators, the Texas Board of Architectural Examiners and the Texas State Board of Landscape Architects would have automatically been terminated unless the Legislature voted to extend them for 12 years.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, tried to amend the Board of Barber Examiners bill to include the Board of Cosmetologists, saying the two bills were almost identical.

"I defy them (board members) to show me what is different between a barber and a cosmetologist," Ceverha said before his amendment was tabled 105-32.

The bill modifies the six-member board to include two public members, two barbers, one shop owner and one barber school operator.

The bill to continue the Texas Turnpike Authority drew the ire of Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, who said the authority was needed as much as "a fifth leg on a cow."

"If you believe in free schools and free roads, you'll kill this bill," he told colleagues.

But Lance Lalor, D-Houston and sponsor of the bill, said toll roads are only built to accommodate public demand.

"We need a bridge over the Houston Ship Channel. People will be able to drive the two-mile bridge and save 40 miles round trip," he said.

Lalor also said the authority does not spend any state money and operates solely from revenue from tolls.

Lalor also sponsored a bill consolidating the Texas Board of Architectural Examiners with the Texas State Board of Landscape Architects. He said the landscape architects board was ineffective and its duties could easily be covered by the architectural examiners board.

The Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators was changed so that it will not be administratively attached to the Texas Department of Health.

Ceverha, the bill's sponsor, said three public members would be added to the board and the ex-officio members from the Departments of Health and Human Resources would no longer have voting privileges. The board's funds would be placed in the state treasury and made subject to appropriations.

Area May Get Water From Arkansas

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill governing plans to bring Arkansas water to the Texas High Plains was approved Wednesday by the House.

The measure creating the Ogallala Water Import Authority was sent to the Senate on a 112-28 vote.

Land covering the Ogallala aquifer would be included under the authority's jurisdiction, except for Crosby, Dickens and Garza counties. The underground reservoir stretches under more than 40 counties, from Midland north to the Panhandle border with Oklahoma.

Supporters say the water authority is needed because the vast agriculture lands of the High Plains will face a critical water shortage within the next 10 to 20 years.

Arkansas has more than enough water to meet needs of the Panhandle, proponents contend. The bill does not specify where the water would come from.

If approved by the High Plains voters, the district would have authority to tax property and sell bonds.

CIGARETTE BUTTS COSTLY

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Spitting or throwing a cigarette butt on the street may bring offenders a jail term of up to 29 days. Home Ministry officials said South Korean streets are clean by Asian standards, but that is not good enough, and a nationwide clean up campaign is under way.

Lubbock Man Jailed In Gun Incidents

A 22-year-old Lubbock man Wednesday was jailed on criminal mischief and aggravated assault charges in shooting incidents at two Lubbock businesses in February.

The criminal district attorney's office recommended a total of $10,000 in bonds for Charles Randall Pollock of 2009-C Vicksburg St., but Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith set bonds at $1,000 on the criminal mischief charge and $2,500 on the aggravated assault charge.

A story in Wednesday morning's Avalanche-Journal incorrectly stated that Pollock was jailed Tuesday and that bond had been set at $10,000.

Pollock is accused in the criminal mischief charge of shooting the front door of a 1001 Station Highway diesel service company Feb. 7 and firing several shots from a .357 magnum pistol into a desk and a computer, causing $1,200 in damages.

The business owner told police that Pollock, a computer programmer, had been fired after demanding to be put in charge of the computer the previous day.

He is accused in the aggravated assault charge of firing several shots with the pistol through the front window of a 6901 Sliding Road store where a woman was standing after being told the store was closed for the day.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A number of problems can appear before you today that require a quick solution. Look at them objectively and do not do what is rash and impulsive but what is constructive and sensible. Misunderstandings can occur unless you use self-control.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you really understand what friends mean when they talk to them today. Being forceful with them could lead to trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care you do not irk a higher-up and lose favor with this person. Analyze credit position and improve it in some way. Don't take risks where health is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to run out to new outlets, but take it easy for best results. Be sure of what you are doing. Use good judgment; your hunches are not good now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't renege on a debt you have to pay. Mate may be annoyed with you, but he or she is under pressure of some sort.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a better understanding with others and forget mundane duties that can be postponed for awhile. Take time to handle a civic matter and derive benefits from it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to handle routine work efficiently now, so get an early start. Have more harmony with associates by being cooperative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Set up appointments early with friends for the recreation you want to have later. Get into work that will bring you fine benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle fundamental matters efficiently and get the results you want. Find the right way to make conditions at home better. Invite a dear friend to dinner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The right day to go after the information you may need to better your position in life. Make visits you have in mind, but use diplomacy in dealing with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can easily gain the goodwill of a bigwig who can help you to advance more quickly in your career today. Improve property by making needed repairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are busy and need to get things done, but don't be too short and sharp with others. Take a little time to be with friends or you may lose them.

Ira Biggers

PETERSBURG (Special) — Services for Ira Swain Biggers, 67, of Petersburg were held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the First United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Lee Crouch of Vernon officiated, assisted by the Rev. Charles Dunam, pastor.

Burial was in the Petersburg Cemetery under the direction of Moore-Rose Funeral Home of Floydada.

Biggers was found dead in his Petersburg home about 8 a.m. Tuesday. Justice of the Peace Jean Marr of Abernathy is withholding a ruling in the death.

The Reno native married the former Faye Bailey Feb. 2, 1941, in Bonham. He moved to Hale County in 1946 from Paris.

Man Succumbs To Gunshot

Steven Lacy Parrish's two-day battle for life ended Wednesday when he died at Health Sciences Center Hospital from a gunshot wound he suffered in the eye.

Police said Parrish, 21, of 1303 65th St., was shot Monday night while he was playing with a pistol.

Parrish was pronounced dead at 6:25 p.m. Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy. LeCroy said he would not make a ruling on the cause of death until he completed his investigation of the incident.

Parrish was shot about 9 p.m. Monday while he was riding in a station wagon on Loop 289 near the South Plains Mall.

The victim's 17-year-old wife told police her husband was playing with a .38-caliber pistol in the front seat while she drove. She said the man was holding the weapon with both hands with the barrel pointed at his face when the weapon discharged.

When Parrish was pulled from the station wagon at the hospital, the fired weapon fell from the victim's lap. Another loaded pistol was found in the front seat of the station wagon, police said.

Funeral services for Parrish are pending at Rix Funeral Directors.

Knife-Wielding Lubbockite Stabs Woman

Armed with a butcher knife and "talking about the devil," a Lubbock youth stabbed a 62-year-old woman Wednesday, according to police reports.

Essie Mae Young of 241 E. 28th St. told police a 17-year-old youth confronted her with a knife inside her house about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The woman suffered lacerations to the back of the head and neck. She was treated at Community Hospital, held briefly for observation and later released.

The victim told police she knew the youth who attacked her. Police learned from the subject's grandmother that he previously had been a mental patient in a Big Spring hospital.

In other criminal activity Wednesday, a landlord reported to police the destruction of the inside of an apartment by an angry tenant.

Truman Godwin, 46, of Abernathy told police he entered the apartment at 1512 28th St. and found the apartment flooded, the walls kicked in and the furniture ripped apart.

The apartment was flooded when someone pulled the drain pipe from under the bathroom sink and left the faucet running, police said. Damage to the apartment was estimated at $3,874.

The landlord told police the tenant left a note with the apartment key that said "not to contact his parents or his brother for money or to (complain) because it wouldn't work."

A 36-year-old woman told police she was sexually abused at her home about 11 p.m. Tuesday by a man who allegedly had raped her on Dec. 13, 1977.

Police, answering a prowler report at the 39th Street residence, looked through a window and saw the woman lying face down on the floor.

When officers yelled "police," the victim crawled to the front door and let them in. She said she heard a noise outside and began to call police when she saw the man entering through the front door.

However, when police questioned the woman at Methodist Hospital, her story changed somewhat, according to reports. There, she said she was in bed when she heard a noise, walked into her kitchen and saw the intruder standing at the end of a table.

The woman said she had enough time to dial the operator and yell, "Help, help," before the man jerked the telephone off the wall. The man allegedly grabbed the woman, placed a knife to her neck and said, "We've been through this before."

The victim said the man knuckled her to the kitchen floor and sexually assaulted her. However, reports state the woman's clothes were not removed.

The intruder reportedly fled after telling the woman he could not stay long because he knew police were on their way.

The woman said the man who confronted her Tuesday night was the same person who raped her Dec. 13, 1977. The suspect was described as a blond white man, 6 feet tall, and about 28 years old. He reportedly was clad in a plaid coat, dark blue pants and was wearing a diamond ring on the right hand.

The man drove off in a late-model dark blue or black Continental, according to reports.

Police today also were investigating a reported aggravated robbery of a 40-year-old Lubbock woman.

JoAnn Rickers of 1913 Ave. N. said she was walking in the 1,000-block of Avenue N. Shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday when two Mexican men jumped her, beat her and made off with her purse, containing cosmetics and other items, but no cash.

The pair, described to be in their late teens, allegedly ran up behind the complainant, knocked her to the ground and began kicking her. She said one of the assailants began tugging at her belt, while his companion snatched her purse.

Reports indicate the men were scared off when the woman screamed and a man walked out of a nearby house. The bandits were last seen running south on Avenue N with the victim's purse.

A 75-year-old man said he was beaten and robbed about 11 a.m. Tuesday by a black man, who made off with $50 and the victim's keys.

J.D. Fawcett said he had returned to his 2402 E. Eighth Street home when he

Henry R. Plyler

CLOVIS (Special) — Henry R. Plyler, 76, of Clovis, N.M., died Tuesday morning in Clovis High Plains Hospital.

Services are slated at 3 p.m. CST Friday in the Calvary Baptist Church of Clovis. Rev. James Sain, pastor, will officiate.

Burial will be in Mission Gardens Cemetery at Clovis under the direction of Steed-Todd Funeral Home of Clovis.

A Mount Ida, Ark., native, he married Grace E. Burk in August, 1923, in Athens, Ark. He moved to Texas in 1942 and had lived in Clovis since 1960. A retired carpenter, he was a member of the Cal-

Stanton Man Dies In Car Wreck

MIDLAND (Special) — Robert Keith "Bobby" Sale of Stanton was killed early Wednesday when his truck struck two cement overpass pillars east of here.

Sale, 35, was pronounced dead at the scene of the 12:45 a.m. accident by Justice of the Peace John Biggs.

The accident occurred on the north service road of Interstate 20 near FM 1208. Department of Public Safety officials said Sale was traveling east on the service road when he apparently fell asleep and lost control of his 1978 Chevrolet Bronco.

Sale's vehicle then crossed over into the westbound lane, straddled 92 feet of guardrail, and then struck two cement pillars of the FM 1208 overpass, officials said.

Sale was thrown from his truck. He was the only occupant.

Services for the Lamesa native will be at 10 a.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church of Stanton with the Rev. W.H. Uhlman officiating, assisted by the Rev. Ed Carson.

Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Sale was a lifelong Martin County resident and owner of the V-Bar Ranch. He married Mary Martha Wall June 10, 1966, in Dallas.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Monica and Crysti, both of the home; his mother, Mrs. J.C. Sale of Stanton; and a sister, Mrs. Tommy Newman Jr. of Stanton.

Opry Star Leaves Estate To Relations

GALLATIN, Tenn. (UPI) — The late Grand Ole Opry star Lester Flatt, divorced and childless, left his $350,000 estate to a niece and her two children but made sure her husband, described in a suit as a "leech and free-loader" never gets a penny.

Flatt, a soft-spoken guitar player who teamed with banjo picker Earl Scruggs to form one of the nation's most famous bluegrass teams, died of heart failure last Friday at the age of 64.

His will, rewritten last September following a family squabble and filed Wednesday in Sumner County Probate Court, left one fourth of the estate to the niece he reared from infancy and called his "daughter" and the remainder to her two children.

Attorney Grant Smith confirmed that Flatt rewrote the will following problems with his family but declined to elaborate.

"He could have been two times a millionaire," Smith said. "He made a lot of money picking and singing."

Survivors include his wife; four sons, L.D. of Port Archer, Wash., H.L. of Clovis, J.C. of Abilene, and Frank of Weatherford; two daughters, Mrs. Buster (Wanda) Kittrell of Muleshoe and Mrs. Clifford (Delma) Whitley of Clovis; a sister, Mrs. Retta Townsend of San Antonio; 20 grandchildren; and 15 great-grandchildren.

Harvey Pyburn

TAHOKA (Special) — Services for Harvey Leonard "Slim" Pyburn, 59, of Tahoka will be at 2:30 p.m. Friday in Tahoka Church of Christ with Jim Pyburn, minister, officiating.

Burial will be in Tahoka Cemetery under direction of White Funeral Home.

Pyburn died at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in Lynn County Hospital after a sudden illness.

The Estancia, N.M., native married Dorothy Lee Huffman on Aug. 23, 1941, in Goldthwaite. He was an Army veteran of World War II and moved to Tahoka from Albuquerque, N.M., in 1948.

Pyburn was employed in the maintenance division of the Texas Highway Department and was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Harvey J., of Sandwich, Ill., and Ronnie C. of Lubbock; two sisters, Mrs. Cecil DeVaney of Willard, N.M., and Lucille Steiner of Graham; and three grandchildren.

Accident Victim Critical

A Hobbs, N.M. man remained in critical condition Wednesday at Methodist Hospital after suffering massive head injuries in a one-car accident late Tuesday in Lovington, N.M.

Jackie White, 18, was riding in a car that skidded out of control over an embankment and overturned. Police said the driver was traveling at a high rate of speed when he apparently failed to negotiate a turn and lost control of his vehicle.

The driver, a 23-year-old Hobbs man, was treated and released at Lovington's Lea Regional Hospital. He was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving, a police spokesman said.

White was transferred to Methodist from the Lovington hospital.

Tech Regent Honored As Man Of Year

The staff of Texas Tech University's yearbook, "La Ventana," has chosen Regent Clint Formby of Hereford its "Man of the Year" for 1979. His picture will be on the cover of the "Texas Business Magazine" section of the yearbook.

Formby is the 21st person to receive the honor and the first regent and non-member of the university faculty or staff to receive the recognition.

Formby was presented the original art work of the cover at last week's meeting of the Texas Tech Board of Regents. Presentation of the framed portrait was made by co-editors Beverly Jones of Dallas and Elizabeth Edwin of El Paso.

Campus student organizations nominate men or women for the distinction and the honoree is selected by the yearbook staff of approximately 20 persons.

Selection is based on "outstanding contributions to Texas Tech and its students" and the honor is bestowed on a "person who has had unusually good relations with students." Formby was nominated by the Mass Communications Student Advisory Committee.

The 1979 yearbook will be distributed in August.

Serving his second six-year term as a regent, Formby is a past board chairman. He is a 1949 graduate of Texas Tech with a major in government and minor in speech-journalism.

He is partner and managing director of radio stations KPAN-AM and FM. Hereford; KLV, Levelland; KTEM-AM and KPFE-FM, Temple; and KTBB, Tyler.

He is a member of the boards of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, National Associated Press and National Broadcast Education Association.

City Meat Store Owner Recites Robbery Details

A Lubbock meat market owner told a 140th District Court jury Wednesday that he thought was going to be killed when his store was held up Feb. 15.

Gary Newburn of Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. identified the defendant in the aggravated robbery trial, Ralph Eugene Evans Jr., 19, of 3314 E. Cornell St., as one of the two men who robbed the store.

The second man, Ricky Don Thornton, 20, of 2207 E. Cornell St., has yet to be tried for aggravated robbery in the case.

Newburn said he especially was afraid when the two men found a pistol in his pocket and when they repeatedly asked for more money than the $50 they had found.

"I thought they were going to shoot me when they found the gun and after I told them for the second or third time that I didn't have any more money," he said.

Newburn said Evans had been in the store a number of times before the robbery. He told the jury he identified Evans from police photos the week after the hold-up.

Evans is being prosecuted by Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride and is being defended by Lubbock attorney Bob Jones.

Russia May Try To Capitalize On Poor U.S.-Saudi Relations

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union will make every effort to exploit the rift between the United States and Saudi Arabia, Western analysts here say.

According to diplomatic sources, the Soviets — who have no diplomatic relations with Saudi Arabia — have been in contact with the Saudis recently through third parties, said to be Morocco and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Direct contacts reportedly have been made by the two nations in European capitals, but the exact nature of these contacts is not known.

Middle East rumors that Soviet-Saudi relations might be resumed seemed more substantial recently following strong Saudi opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace pact and controversial U.S. intelligence reports describing a supposed split inside the Arabian kingdom's ruling family.

Saudi Arabian Crown Prince Fahd gave an upbeat assessment of the Soviet Union in an interview this week in Paris with the newspaper, Le Monde.

"We are aware of the important role played by the Soviet Union in international politics and we appreciate that its role sustains the just demands of the Arabs," Fahd said.

"I don't think that it is necessarily correct to interpret the absence of the diplomatic relations between two countries as a sign of hostility," Fahd said. Regarding the re-establishment of diplomatic relations, that is a question which will be settled in view of subsequent events."

Fahd, half brother of the ailing King Khalid, has maintained a significant power base in the monarchy and has run the kingdom's day-to-day affairs. But he is one of about 40 princes with varying degrees of power who must consult with one another on crucial decisions affecting the nation of 7 million.

Fahd canceled a meeting with President Carter earlier this year and has not rescheduled it. That was widely viewed as an indication of Saudi displeasure.

Wealthy Italian Kidnap Victim Finally Freed

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Kidnappers freed Evelina Cattaneo before dawn Wednesday, nearly 3½ months after she was abducted and her mother had refused to pay a ransom.

Police said her family had paid an undisclosed ransom that officials estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

It was not known if Miss Cattaneo had yet been reunited with her mother, who had said shortly after the abduction that she did not love her daughter and that "I am not going to pay a single lira for Evelina. Kidnappers can hold her."

The 46-year-old businesswoman, who walked unharmed but exhausted into a country club on Milan's outskirts before dawn Wednesday, told police she had feared being murdered because of her mother's attitude toward ransom negotiations.

"I am alive for a miracle," the wealthy auto dealer told police.

She was abducted from in front of her downtown home Feb. 5, one of 21 Italian kidnapping victims so far this year.

Miss Cattaneo's mother, Giovanna, also a successful businesswoman, reportedly had been in Paris the past few weeks while her son and other family members negotiated Evelina's release. Italian courts, enforcing a strict policy against giving in to kidnappers, had seized $2.2 million family members raised to pay the ransom.

Evelina Cattaneo is a popular figure in Milan, noted for singing and guitar-playing appearances in the city's cafes.

Cosat Lowers Rates To Global Customers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission permitted a 15 percent rate reduction in satellite channel rates of the Communications Satellite Corp., known as Comsat, to become effective Wednesday.

It is anticipated that the reduction will result in a decrease of $16 million in Comsat's annual revenues. The commission noted that before the rate-paying public can benefit from the reduced rates, the international carriers who are its customers will have to pass on their savings by filing new rates.

with the U.S. peace initiative in the Middle East.

Moscow diplomats see little chance of full-scale Saudi-Soviet ties at least until 1981. But lesser links could be initiated.

There have been persistent rumors here that the Soviet Union plans to open up a bank branch in Saudi Arabia. And the usual small contingent of Soviet Moslems allowed to make the pilgrimage to Mecca every year will be bolstered by an additional Islamic delegation soon.

Just this past week, the Soviet Union hosted an Islamic Conference in Moscow, believed to be the first ever held here.

The Saudis' traditional close relationship with the United States is three-fold: as America's chief oil supplier in the Middle East, as a major arms buyer from Washington, and as a moderating force at price-setting meetings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which wins it U.S. gratitude.

This has always prevented any Soviet influence from taking hold, especially since the conservative kingdom is vigorously anti-Communist and resentful of the repression of Soviet Islamics.

But while U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told the House Foreign Affairs Committee on May 8 that while Saudi Arabia remains "a good friend and ally," he acknowledged that the Egyptian-Israeli peace accord had damaged U.S. relations with the oil-rich monarchy.

The Soviet press is closely following the latest sensitizing of U.S.-Saudi relations.

"Certainly the Soviets will do whatever they can to encourage the widening of those cracks," a Western diplomat said.

The news agency Tass even carried the report that the Carter administration was recalling the CIA station chief attached to the U.S. Embassy in Jiddah because of intelligence leaks that American officials feared Crown Prince Fahd was losing power.

Recent articles all support what they describe as the "principled stand" of the Saudis concerning the Middle East.

When the Saudi monarchy was established in 1926, Moscow quickly recognized it and moved to establish diplomatic links. During World War II, an exchange of envoys was suspended and Saudi Arabia has not wanted to renew relations since then.

In January of this year, the Soviets kicked off an apparent campaign to woo back the Saudis in a major political piece in the prestigious weekly newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta.

It said that Saudi Arabia is not as "anti-Soviet" as the Western press depicts and may be ready for a resumption of diplomatic ties with Moscow.

"The Soviet Union and Saudi Arabia have never fought each other and have never had any insoluble conflicts," wrote Igor Belyayev, who has written several books on the Arab world.

"Their social systems are different. But can that really be a basis for mutual hostility?" he asked.

Silkwood Jury Continuing Deliberations

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Attorneys for both sides in the Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination lawsuit said Wednesday prolonged deliberation by the jury would indicate diminished chances for a verdict favoring the defense.

The federal court jury deliberated for a second day Wednesday after hearing nearly 10 weeks of testimony in the $71.5 million lawsuit that Miss Silkwood's family filed against her employer, the Kerr-McGee Corp., and its subsidiary, Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp.

In final instructions, U.S. District Judge Frank Theis told jurors the first question they must answer was whether Kerr-McGee proved Miss Silkwood removed plutonium from the company's nuclear fuel processing plant herself. Theis said if the three-man, three-woman jury decided she did remove the plutonium, it must return a verdict for Kerr-McGee. He said if the panel did not accept the Kerr-McGee defense, it must assess damages for negligence by the multibillion dollar energy corporation.

Kerr-McGee attorney Bill Paul said, "The chance of getting a defense verdict on the first question as time goes by has to diminish."

But, Paul said, "It takes quite a long time to talk about 10 weeks of testimony."

Silkwood attorney Dan Sheehan voiced optimism at the length of the deliberations.

"It's clear that they are just not going to say she did it," Sheehan said. "They would have come to that conclusion quickly if they were persuaded that were true."

The suit alleges Kerr-McGee negligence caused the plutonium contamination of Miss Silkwood and her apartment in November 1974, a week before she died in a traffic crash.

Testimony in the lengthy and controversial trial indicated Miss Silkwood was on her way to deliver evidence of Kerr-McGee's alleged negligence to a New York Times reporter the night she died. Authorities said no documents were recovered from the wrecked auto.

Kerr-McGee, the first nuclear firm involved in a lawsuit concerning a radiation contamination outside its facility, alleged Miss Silkwood took plutonium from the plant to embarrass the company during union negotiations.

Census Figures Indicate Blacks Have More Babies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Census Bureau figures show the nation's black population grew more than twice as fast as the white population between 1970 and 1978.

Figures show that the total number of blacks grew by 12.6 percent during this period while the number of whites grew by 5.5 percent.

The estimates shows there were 188.9 million whites in 1978 and 25.6 million blacks. This compares to 179.1 million whites in 1970 and 22.7 million blacks.

The report shows also that the median age of the nation rose to 29.7 in 1978 from 27.9 in 1970.

Because of the aging of the post World War II baby boom generation, the number of persons ages 25 to 34 grew from 25 million in 1970 to 34 million in 1978, figures show.

Other figures show that the number of persons 65 and older totaled about 24 million in 1978, twice the number as there were in 1950.

"Programs designed to meet the financial and medical needs of the elderly have already begun to experience strain because of this increase," the report says.

WHITE DEATH

Avalanches of dry snow usually strike so swiftly that even when someone sees the slide coming there is no chance to get out of its way. But some victims buried alive have been able to breathe in air pockets — like trapped miners — until rescue workers dug them out. The "white death" avalanche, however, makes escape impossible. It consists of masses of very light, powdery snow.

Ex-Presidents Run Up Big Tab, But No Impropriety Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expenditures authorized for the nation's two former presidents prove very costly each year but none of this money is being spent improperly or illegally, federal officials told Congress Wednesday.

The officials confirmed that in recent years they approved $23,485 in telephone calls placed by former President Gerald R. Ford and his staff, paid $2,242 for plants in Ford's official office and maintained electric golf carts used for transportation at former President Richard M. Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate.

City Scoutmaster Honored In Tulsa

James Halsey, Lubbock Scoutmaster of Troop 409, was recognized Friday in Tulsa, Okla., as one of four outstanding scoutmasters in the south central region of the Boy Scouts of America.

Halsey has served the troop, sponsored by the First Baptist Church, more than 25 years and has helped 49 scouts earn the coveted Eagle Scout award.

He was awarded the Silver Beaver in 1963 and the Scouters Key in 1968. He also has served as a National Jamboree Scoutmaster. Halsey is manager of Irrigation Development for West Texas with Pioneer Natural Gas.

The south central region includes Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico and is divided into 45 local councils.

But the officials said improved procedures have reduced Ford's phone bills. They said the $100 a month paid to have Ford's plants watered regularly is based on a low-bid contract, and that Nixon's golf carts never are used to transport persons playing golf.

"That sounds like that's a lot of talking on the telephone," said Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., chairman of a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee looking into the expenses of former presidents. Pryor said there may be "ambiguities" in the law which should be removed.

Allen R. Voss of the General Accounting Office said the telephone bill was high. But he said it has been cut to about $12,000 through the use of government switchboard facilities.

Voss said federal accountants have to make close judgment calls on the expenses of what one official called "the former presidency," which now costs taxpayers about $800,000 a year.

Raymond A. Fontaine, deputy controller of the General Services Administration, confirmed the accuracy of recent published reports of a number of specific expenses by Nixon and Ford.

These include more than 460,000 sheets of writing paper and 260,000 envelopes and 20,000 each of three kinds of acknowledgement cards for Nixon at a cost of $45,461.

The subcommittee was told that Nixon needed the stationery because he had more than 2 million pieces of mail to answer when he resigned from the presidency in 1974.

The officials stressed that former presidents are not permitted to draw expenses for the upkeep of their homes, or for travel or per diem expenses or for moving expenses. They draw a $66,000 annual pension, receive Secret Service protection and receive expenses for their offices and staffs.

Voss said none of the expenses covered in recent GAO audits have been found to be either illegal or improper. He said these include expenses mentioned in recent news accounts.

"Some of these stories have an unfortunate impact and are liable to downgrade the office of former president," Stevens said.

Voss said former presidents need offices and staffs and stationery and telephones "to carry out their duties." He said those duties are not specifically defined by law.

"He (Nixon) sends out pictures of himself and autographs and I just have to assume that's a duty for a former president," Voss said.

State Supreme Court To Hear Media Case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to decide whether newspapers, radio stations and television stations have the right to file suits to open up meetings of governmental bodies.

It set a June 13 hearing on an appeal filed by the Abilene Reporter-News, KRBC-TV and television reporter Jerry Shackelford.

Meanwhile, the Legislature has passed and sent to Gov. Bill Clements a bill that specifically gives the news media the right to sue for enforcement of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

The Eastland Court of Civil Appeals had ruled that reporters and news-gathering firms have no standing to file suits against government bodies for allegedly meeting in secret.

Shackelford, KRBC-TV and the Reporter-News sued after the Abilene Equal Employment Opportunity Board held a closed meeting on Nov. 30, 1977, and refused to make its decision known by filing minutes for scrutiny by the public.

An Abilene district court ruled that Abilene's city charter gives the city council and its boards and commissions no choice but to hold all their meetings in public. It nullified the equal opportunity board action, enjoined further closed meetings and said the board's decision — whatever it is — may not be enforced.

The court of civil appeals said a person must show a specific private interest in order to have standing to file suit to open meetings of government bodies.

"Plaintiffs failed to allege or prove they suffered a peculiar or special injury resulting from the closed meeting or failure to keep and produce minutes of such meeting," the appeals court said.

Texas High Court To Hear Usury Case

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to hear arguments next month on a suit to determine whether commitment fees charged by lenders are considered interest under the state's usury laws.

C.T. Stedman, an Arlington post office manager, filed the suit against Georgetown Savings and Loan Association, contending the lending institution improperly charged him $3,383 on a $60,000 loan prior to signing of a loan note. The suit contends classification of the charge as a 'commitment' rather than as interest was an attempt to avoid the state's 10 percent usury ceiling.

Arguments in the case will be heard June 13 — four years from the date Georgetown savings agreed to take a 15-year mortgage on a Dairy Queen Stedman wanted to build in Georgetown.

The firm agreed on June 13, 1975, to lend Stedman the money to build the restaurant, but the loan was not executed until construction was completed Feb. 2, 1976.

Stedman contends he was charged 'interest' on the loan for eight months before he actually received the money, even though the savings association did not put the funds in escrow and had full use of the money for that period.

Stedman's attorneys argued the 'commitment fee' pushed the 10 percent interest collected on the $60,000 loan over the 10 percent ceiling.

Lawyers for the savings institution argued the money charged Stedman prior to the time the loan was executed was a commitment fee, and was a separate transaction from the interest.

"Georgetown cannot charge usurious interest and then escape the penalties by disclaiming an intention to do what they had plainly done," Stedman's attorneys said in their appeal.

Under Texas law, a person charged interest in excess of the 10 percent interest ceiling can collect up to three times the amount of the loan plus attorneys' fees.

Georgetown Savings contends the $193,000 and attorney fees Stedman seeks are out of line with any damage he suffered. A Bill pending before the Legislature would reduce the amount of damages a consumer could collect if charged usurious interest rates.

In a separate case, the Supreme Court Wednesday ruled a Isidro Lopez, 16, of Austin must stand trial as an adult on charges of murdering another man with a knife.

Attorneys for Lopez argued he should have been examined by a clinical psychologist before being certified for trial as an adult.

CIGARETTE BUTTS COSTLY

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Spitting or throwing a cigarette butt on the street may bring offenders a jail term of up to 29 days. Home Ministry officials said South Korean streets are clean by Asian standards, but that is not good enough, and a nationwide clean up campaign is under way.

Man Convicted In Youth Death Denied New Trial

AUSTIN (UPI) — David Owen Brooks, sentenced to life in prison for the murder of one of 27 victims of a Houston homosexual murder ring, lost his appeal Wednesday for a new trial.

Brooks had been convicted of the July 10, 1973, murder of William Ray Lawrence, 15, whose nude body was found a month later buried near Lake Sam Rayburn in East Texas as police investigated the homosexual murder ring that also involved Elmer Wayne Henley Jr. and Dean Corli.

Corli was killed by Henley Aug. 8, 1973, and Henley led police to a boat house where eight bodies were buried. Henley is awaiting a new trial on murder charges stemming from the incident.

Brooks told investigators during two confessions that he and Corli had killed Lawrence and another boy and buried their bodies at the boat house. Brooks also told police he had known Corli for six years and had engaged in homosexual activity with him and introduced him to Henley.

During his confession, Brooks said he had gone to Corli's home on July 10, 1973, and found Lawrence alive but tied to a bed. The boy died later that day, Brooks said, and he, Corli and Henley drove to the lake site to bury the body.

Brooks told police he witnessed most of the murders involving Corli and Henley, and in his appeal repeated the contention that he had watched, but not participated in the murders.

The Court of Criminal Appeals ruled the confession had clearly established a common design by Corli, Henley and Brooks for torturing and murdering teen-aged boys, however, and rejected Brooks' appeal.

The court said evidence Brooks "had been prepared to help if something went wrong, and had assisted in the burial of those victims was admissible to prove that (Brooks) was aware of Corli's and Henley's plan."

Murder Conviction Upheld By Court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the murder conviction and 50-year prison sentence assessed a Mineral Wells man in the 1975 death of a two-year-old child.

Larry Plunkett contended that his conviction in the death of April Dawn Peters was based on insufficient evidence. A medical examiner testified the child died on Jan. 27, 1975 of massive internal injuries and a skull fracture.

Plunkett denied that he intentionally harmed the child and contended the internal injuries came from attempts to resuscitate her after she collapsed at her mother's home.

But the appeals court ruled that family pictures taken of the child just prior to her death showed the fatal injuries occurred on the night of her death.

Henley's intent to murder the deceased.

Brooks also objected to introduction of his statements as evidence at his trial, but the court ruled he had voluntarily made the statements and was not under arrest at the time.

He argued unsuccessfully he should have been charged only of being an accessory to murder inasmuch as Henley and Corli had actually killed Williams, but the appellate court rejected that argument.

In a separate case, the court upheld the aggravated rape conviction and life sentence given Michael W. Jackson of Bell County, who was accused of abducting at knife-point a woman who stopped to help him when his car became stuck on a highway shoulder.

Senate Vote To Remove Sanctions Against Rhodesia Praised

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black and white leaders Wednesday hailed the Senate vote calling on President Carter to lift crippling sanctions from war-torn Rhodesia after a black-led government is installed. One black leader said the advisory vote would pressure Carter to act.

"Following the vote, the Zimbabwe (the native name for Rhodesia) situation must change permanently for the better," said a statement from the office of Rhodesia's first elected black prime minister, Bishop Abel Muzorewa.

The vote, the statement said, would force the externally-based anti-government guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe "to adopt a more realistic attitude" toward negotiating with the new government.

Rhodesia's outgoing white prime minister, Ian D. Smith, who signed an accord with black politicians last year leading to limited black rule, described the Senate vote as "refreshing and hopeful."

Keswe Malindi, co-minister of foreign affairs in Smith's transitional government, which is being replaced, said he felt the Senate vote would put pressure on Carter to lift the sanctions.

"I am confident that President Carter, himself a champion of human rights, cannot continue to ignore the welfare of Zimbabweans and the wishes of his own Congress," he said.

The sanctions were imposed by the United Nations after Smith's government rebelled against Britain, its colonial authority, and declared independence in 1965 to head off black majority rule.

If Carter lifts the U.S. embargo, it would amount to a de facto recognition of the incoming Rhodesian regime, making the United States the first major power to do so. He had promised to decide June 15.

In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, the news agency Tanjug reported from Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, that the African nation denounced the vote to lift sanctions, saying it would allow Rhodesia to receive more arms shipments to continue its bloody six-year war with Nkomo's and Mugabe's guerrillas.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government said it is taking a wait-and-see attitude on the Rhodesian situation, watching the lead by the United Nations, the United States and Britain.

The new British government of Margaret Thatcher launched a new peace initiative on Wednesday, sending Sir Antony Duff, the second-highest ranking officer in the Foreign Office, to meet with Rhodesian political leaders.

One well-placed source, who asked not to be identified, said Duff's visit "at this time is a waste of time."

Thatcher declared this week that no final decision on Britain's posture toward Rhodesia would be made until after British commonwealth heads of state meet for their annual summit in the Zambian capital of Lusaka in August. Most of those black leaders support the guerrillas.

"Any initiative has got to come from the States," said the well-placed source. "The timid Tories have already hedged until August on what steps to take. Britain and other Western countries will fall in line with what the States do."

Nkomo and Mugabe rejected last year's constitutional accord which, through last month's free elections, will produce a 100-member, black-dominant two-tiered Parliament led by Muzorewa. Lawmakers will be sworn in next month.

The guerrillas call the new government a sellout because whites retain control of the military, judiciary and civil administration for five years.

Sea Turtles Subject Of World Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has called the first world conference on saving the sea turtle. It has invited 65 countries to a week-long meeting here starting Nov. 26 and will help pay the expenses of delegates from poor countries.

In addition to the State Department, the hosts will include other government and private agencies, including the World Wildlife Fund.

One problem is that shrimp fishermen from Japan, South Korea and Taiwan often catch the big turtles in their nets. Although the State Department now wants to help conservation, its Agency for International Development financed a turtle slaughtering plant in Nicaragua in 1970. Friends of the sea turtle also complain about Mexico, where a sizeable industry supplies turtle leather to western Europe, Japan and the United States.

Carter Orders Gas Aid To California

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, saying no illegal oil industry activity has been tied to the California energy crunch, offered proposals Wednesday that an adviser said could cut the state's gasoline shortage by 50,000 gallons a day.

Carter also said he had asked the Justice Department to launch an investigation to make sure oil companies are not illegally withholding oil from the market to await higher prices.

In a report prepared by the Department of Energy, Carter recommended increased monitoring of oil industry activities, relaxed environmental standards, and stricter enforcement of the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, among other proposals.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California flew to Washington to plead his gasoline-starved state's case at a White House meeting with political overtones for the two potential rivals for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Following the meeting, Carter told reporters his proposals, along with a change in gasoline allocation rules, "will have a beneficial effect" in dealing with California's gasoline shortage.

"It would be safe to say we hope the worst is over" in terms of a national gasoline crunch, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger told the reporters after Carter spoke. He predicted a shortage of 4 percent to 5 percent below projected demand.

Carter said in a White House press room announcement that "we have not found any evidence of collusion or illegalities among the oil companies."

According to Brown and White House officials, the president told the California governor that a May 1 decision to base gasoline allocations on late 1978 and early 1979 consumption figures rather than 1972 figures would also increase supplies for the state.

The more recent base reflects the growth that has taken place in California, White House press secretary Jody Powell said.

Schlesinger estimated that Carter's action would mean that 50,000 additional gallons of gasoline will be available in California each day. The shortage has been estimated at 70,000 gallons a day.

Higher Growth Rate

The Energy Department's report attributed the California supply problems and the long lines at gasoline filling stations to "the higher rate of growth in gasoline demand in that state."

Brown said Carter told him that "May will be the lowest allocation of gasoline. In June, things will improve."

Participants in the meeting, which included most of the state's 45-member congressional delegation, said Carter promised to restore the state's allocation of fuel to the same level it received in 1978. It has been 90 to 92 percent of that.

Powell said supplies in California and elsewhere would reach this level in June or July.

Initiated By Brown

The White House meeting was initiated by Brown, who announced earlier in the week he was flying to Washington to talk to the president about California's gasoline problems.

On Tuesday, White House aides rounded up the congressional delegation to join what had been expected to be a tete-a-tete between Carter and Brown.

The governor conferred privately with Carter and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., for about 10 minutes before the one-hour meeting with the entire delegation.

Asked whether he noticed any political antagonisms, Brown said: "None, on the surface. I always get a fairly friendly reception. We get along extraordinarily well."

Carter 'Concerned'

"I'm convinced the president is concerned" about California's problems, Brown said.

He predicted that if the gasoline problems are not solved, the trouble his state is facing could appear elsewhere in the nation.

"California is in a state of shock, frustration, and anger," he said. "I don't think this is limited to my state. I think it is going to spread."

The governor, who has often advocated restrained growth, said he told Carter current allocations of gasoline were based on consumption in 1972 and that since then the state has created 1 million new jobs.

Hayakawa: Gas Price Should Rise, Get Poor Off Highways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., said Wednesday the price of gasoline should go up because rising costs will get the poor — who don't need it anyway since they are not working — off the road.

Hayakawa said when gasoline prices rise, demand will go down. "Let the price of gas go up — $1.25, $1.50, $2, or $2.50," he said.

Hayakawa said President Carter should simply let gasoline prices rise, so that the poor will not be able to buy it.

"The important thing is that a lot of the poor don't need gas because they're not working," Hayakawa told reporters after the California congressional delegation met with Carter.

"Wealthy people are driving around in their private jets and Cadillacs and they're going to do that whether they have to pay 95 cents for gas or $2 to $3 for gas," he said. "That's what it means to be wealthy."

"Every five minutes on a television commercial, we hear advertisements from Omnis, Toyotas, Cadillacs, Oldsmobiles, Chryslers. People are buying cars like crazy," he said. "The demand for gasoline goes up, up, up."

Legal Attack Jousts Wage-Price Guides

10 percent a year. Under the price guideline, companies generally are required to hold their price increases to 0.5 percent below their average increases during the previous two years.

"The government is like any other consumer and it should use its vast powers to promote its policies," Miss Babcock argued. "It would be shameful for the government to purchase from people who are promoting inflation."

She acknowledged that Carter's program represents the first time the government has used its purchasing powers to fight inflation, but said Congress has given the executive branch broad authority under a century-old procurement act to use its purchasing discretion on behalf of a variety of social and economic policies.

The AFL-CIO has attacked Carter's 7-month-old program repeatedly as being unfair to workers because it holds down wages while prices continue to soar.

Instead, the federation wants Congress to adopt mandatory, equitable wage-price controls, last imposed during the Nixon administration. Carter, however, says he opposes mandatory controls.

Joining labor in challenging Carter's right to enforce his program are three Republican senators and 21 GOP House members who generally oppose most AFL-CIO positions. The senators are John Heinz of Pennsylvania, John Tower of Texas and Jake Garn of Utah.

One of the unions suing the government, the United Rubber Workers, contends its week-old strike against Uniroyal Inc. was triggered by administration threats to deny contracts to the No. 3 tire maker.

URW President Peter Bommarito, who attended Wednesday's hearing, alleges that Uniroyal backed out of an economic agreement that would have broken Carter's guidelines because of the government threats.

There has been no bargaining since May 9, when 8,200 rubber workers struck 12 Uniroyal plants. Bommarito said he thought a favorable court ruling would pave the way for a quick settlement with the company.

Sen. Patman called the bill the "worst bill in the Legislature during my memory." Patman has been in the Senate since 1961.

"This midnight express is running over the people of Texas," he said, referring to the fact the bill was not brought up for debate until just after midnight Tuesday.

Patman sipped ice water and sucked lemons and "honey-candy" for nourishment.

His filibuster was the second within two days.

The back-to-back filibusters began Tuesday at noon with discussion of an election bill by Meier.

A group of senators, including Patman, protested for more than 10 hours that Meier's bill, if sent to the House, could be used as a vehicle to set up a split presidential primary. At midnight, Senate rules cut off further debate on the election bill and it was postponed until Friday morning.

At 12:07 a.m., Meier moved to debate the controversial loan interest bill. The Senate rejected five amendments and Patman took the floor.

The 52-year-old Ganado legislator became the lone filibuster when fellow senators voted 17-12 to vote on the bill when Patman sat down.

A number of senators went to their offices to sleep the rest of the night. For the more than 12 hours there was no general roll call to disturb them. The bill would replace the 10 percent interest cap with a "floating" limit of two percentage points above the average monthly rate for 10-year long term U.S. Treasury bonds, but not more than 12 percent. The main House amendment to be approved by the Senate was a provision that the bill would self-destruct in two years.

Two other bills approved and sent to the Senate would:

- Create the Ogallala Water Import Authority for the High Plains. Supporters want to bring Arkansas water to the arid region, which they say will experience a critical water shortage within 20 years.
- Dedicate a penny of the state cigarette tax to creation of state parks in urban areas.

The House also voted tentative approval to a Senate measure that would ban dangerous toys from sale in Texas.

Oil Decontrol Block Called 'Hazardous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary told Congress Wednesday that moves to block oil deregulation threaten to keep gas-station lines a feature of the American landscape.

"It's a hazardous kind of a proposition," O'Leary said in a defense of administration oil policy.

Testifying before the House energy and power subcommittee, O'Leary was asked about various efforts in Congress to overturn President Carter's decision to lift price lids on domestically produced oil.

"Where do we get more oil? You can't get it, Mr. Chairman," O'Leary said. "You tell me where the additional oil is going to come from."

Administration and oil industry officials claim removing price lids is the key to increasing domestic production of oil and reducing the nation's heavy reliance on imports.

O'Leary noted that since the 1973-74 oil embargo, U.S. demand for oil has increased by 20 percent while demand in Europe has remained fairly steady.

"We're the ones with long lines at gas stations and weekend closings throughout much of the nation," O'Leary said.

And he said oil shortages producing these lines will get worse instead of better unless oil controls are lifted.

Airport Board

Lubbock, said representative Jack Sanderson.

Sanderson said he hopes to begin service under the Airborne name in about four weeks, pending city council approval.

The board withheld action on a preliminary proposal by Harley Wilke to construct a hangar to house a jet rental agency on the airport's west side adjacent to West Tex Aviation.

That possibility will be considered at a later date, after Wilke presents more detailed plans to the board.

In other action, the board:

- Recognized the opening of a new parking lot north of the parking structure under construction, providing about 200 additional parking spaces. The new two story structure should be completed between Labor Day and Thanksgiving.
- Discussed the possibility of moving the airport police office into a larger facility inside the airport. That office currently is housed toward the airport building's north end.
- Recommended that the temporary chapel be moved. Further action on the recommendation will be taken at the next regular meeting.

Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., predicted a "bloody battle" over the oil decontrol issue in Congress.

The lawmaker told O'Leary he doesn't think there are enough votes to block decontrol entirely but suggested that Congress may vote just to keep price controls on oil from older wells — possibly those drilled before 1972.

Even that, O'Leary said, is a bad bargain.

He said keeping a price lid on these older wells would deprive the nation of 300,000 barrels of oil a day that might be expected under decontrol.

"There would be a loss of much-needed supplies," O'Leary said. He said at most, keeping controls on "old" oil might save motorists only a penny a gallon.

"I don't think that's a good trade," the energy official said.

Earlier Wednesday, a top oil industry official told the same panel that early federal action to lift controls on petroleum could have averted the present gasoline shortages in California.

Co-Op Given Backing In West Area

by permitting SPS or LP&L to serve the area along with the co-op, the examiner relied heavily on a decision by the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin involving a Southwestern Public Service application to serve a third annexed area.

That February decision, involving the Bicentennial Addition west of University Avenue and south of 82nd Street, upheld the commission's denial of SPS' application to serve the area.

The court also held LP&L should not be granted a certificate to serve the area because the city failed to apply for one.

Co-op attorney Dale Johnson said the examiner's recommendation, bolstered by the Court of Civil Appeals decision, will help in the co-op's fight against the City of Lubbock.

However, Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg said the matter of which utility serves the Meadows and Lake Ridge area is "really out of their hands (the PUC)," adding, "I'm not sure why they did that."

"Whether the City of Lubbock can serve the area is up to the courts," he said.

Southwestern Public Service officials were unavailable for comment Wednesday on whether they will appeal the case further.

College Fund Amendment Clears House

AUSTIN (AP) — A constitutional amendment repealing the 10-cent state property tax and creating a guaranteed construction fund for public colleges and universities won House approval Wednesday night.

The measure (SJR7) cleared, 101-36, and returns to the Senate for approval of changes made by the House.

One change, giving Prairie View A&M a definite share of the Texas A&M system's building funds, could cause senators to reject the measure and call for a conference committee.

The constitutional amendment would abolish the state property tax — 10 cents per $100 valuation — that now finances new construction at 16 public colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

To replace the property tax as a source of college construction money, the measure would create the State Higher Education Assistance Fund (SHEAF).

In reality, the SHEAF would consist of guaranteed appropriations from general revenue equal to the amount available to the University of Texas and Texas A&M from the Permanent University Fund to cover their construction bonds.

Each year's SHEAF appropriation could be no less than $41 million and no more than $65 million.

Meanwhile, all component institutions of the UT and A&M systems would be allowed to share in the income from the Permanent University Fund, which now is spent almost entirely on UT-Austin and A&M's main campus at College Station.

Rep. Al Brown, D-San Antonio, said at the outset of the five-hour debate that the House version of the proposal was "the great compromise."

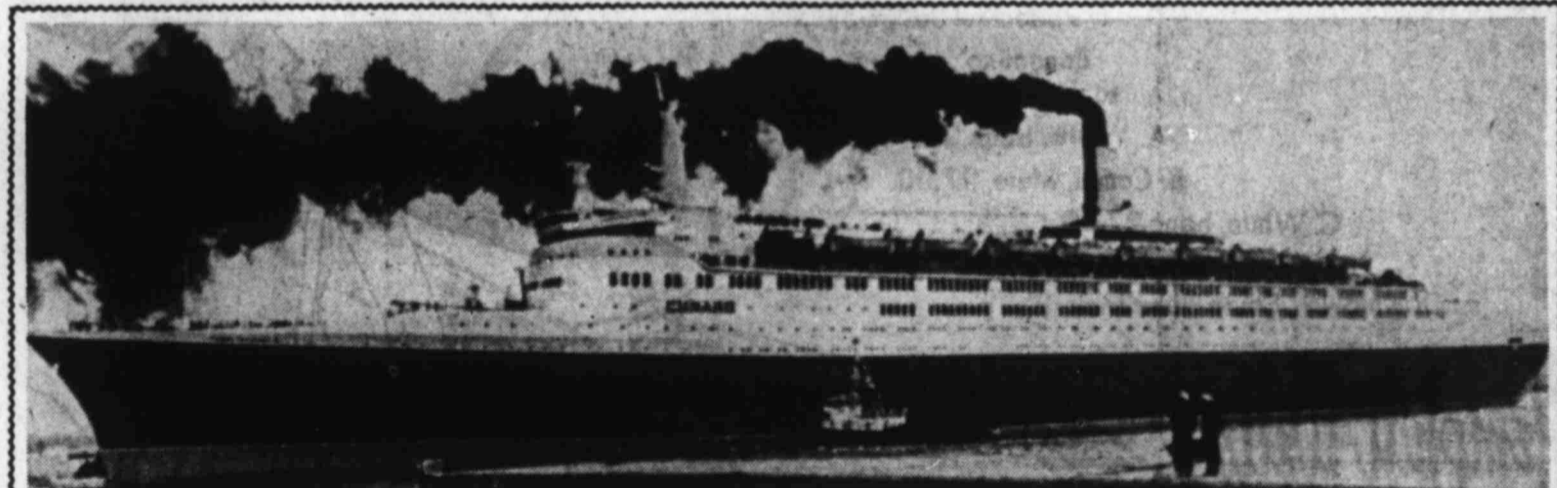

He flourished a page of signatures and asserted, "the lieutenant governor, speaker and the 39 colleges that are affected have signed on."

Reps. Craig Washington, D-Houston, and Sen. Frank Thompson, D-Houston, pushed through, 83-44, an amendment guaranteeing predominantly black Prairie View A&M one-sixth of the A&M system's total building bond authority.

That authority would be a tenth of the Permanent University Fund, which totals about $1 billion.

ERA WINS VOTE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida House voted Wednesday to ratify the federal Equal Rights Amendment in an unexpected move that set the stage for a showdown in the state Senate. House members voted 59-49 for a proposal by state Rep. Elaine Gordon, D-Miami, that would make Florida the 36th state to ratify the proposed constitutional amendment.

CRUISES MAY END — The Queen Elizabeth 2, the last of Britain's fleet of luxury ocean liners, shown on its maiden voyage in 1969, is economically on the rocks and may not continue to operate after next year, its owner said Wednesday. ## Oil Costs May Founder Liner QE II

LONDON (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth II, the last of Britain's venerable fleet of luxury ocean liners, is economically on the rocks and may founder in a surging sea of oil costs.

The craft, which plies the high seas in the proud tradition of its ancestors, the liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth I, may not continue in operation after next year, its owner says.

"The QE II is a British institution and we want to keep it so," said Victor Matthews, deputy chairman of Trafalgar House, the parent company of the Cunard Line, the ship's owner.

"If oil prices keep soaring and we cannot get agreement with the seamen's union for less costly crewing, I am afraid I cannot assure the public that the QE II will be in business after its world cruise in January next year."

The QE II, built on the River Clyde near Glasgow in the 1960s, made its maiden voyage to New York in 1969. Through its early years, the vessel kept piling up millions of dollars in profits while other liners struggled to stay afloat.

But now the "last of the Queens," which Wednesday was on its way from Southampton to New York, is losing more money than it can earn — even when it carries 1,400 passengers who pay $10,000 each for a glittering cruise around the world in 80 days. The super-rich pay $200,000 for penthouse suites on that voyage, which begins in New York every January. The suites cost $1 million to build.

Other passengers can book a variety of less expensive trips. Cunard offers a round-trip fare of $840 in which they can sail either way between Southampton and New York, then fly home via British Airways. Passengers can also sail on any part of the world tour, paying proportionately lower fares.

"It would be the end of an era if the QE II stopped cruising, but we cannot keep on raising our charges and price ourselves out of the market," Matthews told a news conference.

From spring to fall, the QE II is on the five-day transatlantic run, with stops in the French English Channel port of Cherbourg. But the liner spends the winter months cruising in the sunshine or around the world.

The lucrative cruise trade helped the QE II survive longer than its one-time rivals on the sometimes stormy North Atlantic run. The QE II sailed regally on after the France was laid up in 1974 with losses of $20 million. Earlier losses laid up the liner United States in 1973.

The 66,853-ton QE II, the world's largest liner and reportedly the only one with a synagogue, four swimming pools and a golf pro, moves smartly across the Atlantic and the rest of the world's oceans at the equivalent of 30 mph, thanks to four steam turbines that are equal in power to more than 5,000 powerful car engines.

While fuel for those engines cost only $2 million a year in 1973, the cost today has soared eightfold to $16 million a year.

The ship also supports a crew of 950 whose wage bill comes to more than $500,000 a month. The wage level is subject to stringent and costly controls applied to British vessels by government regulations and strong labor unions.

The QE II is shown in Trafalgar House's books as worth only $32 million. To build the same liner today would cost no less than $300 million, shipping experts estimate.

The QE II is scheduled to have its annual refit, or overhaul, including major work on three boilers, in New York in November. That is being done to save time, despite an outcry from British labor unions and the Vosper Thornycroft repair yard at Southampton.

The Americans, who carried out the 1977 refit, pledged they would do this year's work far more quickly than the 42 days Vosper estimated, according to Trafalgar House.

The 1978 refit, known as the 10-year refit and the most extensive since the QE II was launched, was carried out at Southampton. But the overhaul took longer than planned, and as a result two of the liner's voyages had to be canceled.

Mother, Sued For 'Malpractice,' Sues Son's Analyst For Same

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A mother whose son sued her for "parental malpractice" has filed her own suit against the son's psychiatrist, claiming the doctor encouraged the malpractice suit and thus held her up to nationwide ridicule.

"It's going to become an issue of what is the function of a psychiatrist and what is the role a psychiatrist plays in society," the attorney for Shirley Hansen said Wednesday.

In a suit filed Tuesday in Boulder District Court, Mrs. Hansen alleged Dr. Jeffrey Anker encouraged her 25-year-old son, Tom, to sue "for therapeutic reasons."

Her suit seeks $10,000 in legal fees, court costs and other expenses.

Anker could not be reached Wednesday for comment.

Hansen's suit, which sought $350,000 in damages from his parents for alleged "intentional infliction of emotional distress," was dismissed in March.

Judge Murray Richtel ruled the son's assertions were wholly without merit and that legal sanctions should be applied against parents only in extreme situations.

In her request for dismissal of the "malpractice" suit, Mrs. Hansen pictured her son as a "hippie" who was suspended from high school for selling marijuana, who chose to live with friends on a beach in Hawaii, and who refused to cooperate with offers of psychiatric care and formal education or to find work.

In her suit, Mrs. Hansen said the "malpractice" action caused her "great grief, sorrow, humiliation, shock and even anger." She claimed she has been subjected to "ridicule and embarrassment throughout the United States and the rest of the world."

Mrs. Hansen's suit alleged Anker referred her son, his patient since 1976, to John Taussig, the lawyer who filed the malpractice suit.

It further claimed Anker's treatment reinforced her son's paranoia against his parents and "irreparably damaged her relationship to her son."

Since her son's suit was filed, she contended, Tom Hansen has stopped communicating with his parents. Her suit stated they have not seen him since last summer and do not know where he is.

Mrs. Hansen, an astronomer with the National Center for Atmospheric Research here, was on vacation in Maryland and couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday.

Her attorney, Greg Martin, said he feels the main issue in the suit is what a psychiatrist's role should be.

"Our contention is that he did that (encouraged Hansen to file suit) without adequate investigation to determine whether his complaints against his parents were legitimate," Martin said.

Tom Hansen alleged in his suit he was punished for being suspended from school at the age of 14 by "being forced to work long hours at menial labor on little food." Hansen said he was forced to chop weeds in the family backyard.

He further claimed that a doctor in Hilo, Hawaii, had diagnosed him as a paranoid-schizophrenic as a result of alleged mistreatment he received between the ages of 14 and 17.

The family was living in Kamuela, Hawaii, at the time.

Hansen accused his father of treating him as a social outcast, "subjecting him to humiliation and ridicule" and "physically attacking him."

His father, Richard, is a researcher for the atmospheric center and currently is doing work on the East Coast.

Millionaire Chases, Disarms Robbery Suspect

NEW YORK (AP) — Usually it's the rich who get tackled by bad guys, but it was the other way around when a millionaire Wall Street investment banker saw a gunman running up Madison Avenue.

Herbert Allen Jr. was walking along the avenue about 5 p.m. Tuesday when he heard a woman's cry for help and saw a man fleeing up the street. He sprinted after him.

"My first intention was to stop him and see if something was wrong," he said afterward. "After I chased him for half a block and he turned around and hit me over the head with a gun, I knew it was time to do something."

The banker wrestled the thief to the street and a passerby helped him take away the weapon, which turned out to be a pellet gun. The unexpected helper was identified by Allen as a schoolteacher from Mount Vernon.

Police arrived and arrested Robert Strauss, 27, of Levittown, who was booked for attempted robbery. They said he had entered a boutique and pulled the gun on saleswoman Kathleen Dees. But a dog chased him out of the store.

Mayor Edward I. Koch phoned to thank Allen after learning of the incident from David Brown, a former deputy mayor, who saw it happen.

The mayor praised Allen and said he wished more people would do the same. But to Allen it was nothing to make a fuss about.

Oriental Martial Arts Training Lauded By Marine Captain

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"When we go eyeball to eyeball with the enemy, martial arts can be the difference."

That is one reason Capt. Roger Harris believes the U.S. Marine Corps should add Tae Kwon Do to its training schedule as many reserve units throughout the country already are doing.

The most important reason, the inspector-instructor for the local Marine reserve unit says, is the personal benefits — mentally, physically and spiritually — of the training.

"It's not just a sport. It's a way of life," he added. "It's fantastic for confidence and discipline, and it humbles the guy. There is always somebody better."

Harris, who took his first Tae Kwon Do training in Southeast Asia along with many other marines, believes martial arts are needed and will be implemented in training. Thirty percent of his staff and 40 percent of the entire reserve force on the South Plains pay for their own sessions held in conjunction with their monthly weekend drill.

The concentration involved is therapeutic and the self-confidence that while the exercise is outstanding for conditioning, Harris added.

"When the flag goes up and we go to war, we can go out and do our thing and win."

And, in time of peace, there is the benefit to the overall human being in a way other martial arts Harris has tried cannot match.

"It's a good way to humble some guys and build up others."

Heading up marine sessions, as well as those for Texas Tech students and others in Lubbock, is Sung Lee, who taught the art to South Korean marines, South Vietnamese marines and U.S. Marines in Southeast Asia.

Tae Kwon Do, Sung Lee explained, "is not just jumping around and yelling."

It, he explained, for self development only — involving philosophy, history, tradition and meditation to make the mind stronger. It is to be used in self defense only, an oath all take before a lesson or contest.

While bettering the individual marine in these ways, he said, it also keeps him in top physical condition.

Reserves will top off Armed Forces Week with a weekend drill including Tae Kwon Do instruction.

Honors Local Scout Council

The South Plains Council of the Boy Scouts of America has received the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Green Seal Award for outstanding achievement in natural resource conservation during 1978.

The citation was presented May 10 in Tulsa, Okla., at the South Central Regional Meeting of the Boy Scouts of America. Bobby J. Moody, council president, received the award for the council.

Only nine of 417 councils in the nation received the award.

The South Plains Council, under leadership of scout executive Robert F. Bouse, has written a conservation plan for its camp property, prepared cooperatively with the Soil Conservation Service, the U.S. Forest Service, and Texas Tech University in 1977. Projects to fulfill the plan include stream improvement, trail and campsite improvement, identifying rare and endangered species, protecting habitat, stocking native game fish and constructing wildlife feeding stations.

The council also replants trees in burned-out areas of Carson National Forest, under direction of the U.S. Forest Service.

Dangerous Toys Under Scrutiny

AUSTIN (AP) — Toys that endanger children could be banned from Texas by the state health department under a bill that gained tentative House approval Wednesday.

A 77-49 vote advanced the bill, which must be considered once more. Final passage would send it to Gov. Bill Clements.

Rep. Chase Untermeyer, R-Houston, opposed the measure as an attempt to impose state regulation needlessly. He said the federal government already regulates the sale and manufacture of toys.

Space Agency Seeks Additional Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is getting a revised 1980 budget request from the space agency for an additional $220 million, reflecting space shuttle money problems.

A hearing on the budget amendment is scheduled for June 4.

Space agency officials told the Senate subcommittee on science, technology and space early this month that development problems would add $270 million to the shuttle's cost in the next 18 months.

No Strikes Planned By City Gas Stations

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While many parts of the nation braced for a possible four-day shutdown by gasoline dealers protesting federal controls on their price markups, most stations in the Lubbock area plan to remain open during regular weekend hours.

In a spot check of several major and independent local dealers by the Avalanche-Journal Wednesday, most operators said they weren't going to honor the strike, which has been planned for Thursday through Sunday.

The strike, which is being pushed by members of the California Service Station Association who claim that if they don't close for a few days now they won't have enough gas for the Memorial Day weekend. It was condemned by Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday, who urged Texas dealers to stay out of it.

Geri Paul, public relations director for the American Automobile Association in Amarillo, said stations owners contacted by her in a 54-county area reported they couldn't afford to close their stations for four days.

"The trend in this area," she said, "is for stations to start closing earlier in the day if their supplies are running short."

Several Lubbock stations have been operating on a daily allocation basis, and closing their pumps when supplies are exhausted.

Miss Paul said most dealers are receiving about 80 percent of their allotted supplies of a year ago, adding that only a few are experiencing supply problems.

Meanwhile, pump prices in the Lubbock area continue to increase at or a little below the national trend of six cents a gallon per month, according to the survey.

The average price for a gallon of regular, self-service fuel was reported to be 73.9 cents, which is up 4 cents over the same period in April.

Full-service regular averaged 78.9 cents a gallon, an increase of six cents from a month ago.

Both self-serve and full-service unleaded gas rose about five cents a gallon the past month, from 72.9 and 78.9 to 77.9 and 82.9 respectively.

The only serious problem reported in the Lubbock area was from an Exxon dealer who said he has had to close his self service pumps because he can't get enough gas to keep them open.

A majority of the dealers contacted said they would remain open Saturday but would be closed Sunday.

One Gulf dealer said, "I've got enough sense to know that when I sell all my gas I go home."

A local Fina dealer said he didn't know whether he'll stay open this weekend and that it will depend on how much gas is left from sales during the week.

Klan Leader's Speech Reset For Wedding Party

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An anti-busing group has won permission to hear Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke speak at a rally in a county hall by agreeing to reschedule its meeting so it won't disrupt a wedding reception in the next room.

Parks Director Robert Kirchdorfer last month denied the 350-member Valley Station Regulars permission to rent the Sun Valley Community Center on May 26 to hear Duke, head of a New Orleans-based branch of the Klan. The rally also was scheduled at the same time as an evening wedding reception. When the Kentucky Civil Liberties Union stepped in, saying Kirchdorfer's denial violated the group's right of free speech, he relented, provided the Regulars set a new time.

"I'll have to play it by ear," he said. "The stuff is getting pretty hard to come by."

One Mobil dealer said his prices were going up by a penny a gallon today, but added he's had no problem with supply.

Miss Paul said there seems little doubt that gas prices will reach a dollar a gallon by the end of the year the way things are going — up.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere (I think it was Us magazine) a superb article on how to get over a collapsed love affair. Please pass it on.

The basic theory was that most victims fail to overcome their sorrow because they don't suffer enough. These people should have what is called a "Grief Olympics."

It should start immediately after the affair is over. The grieving should last a full 24 hours.

The broken-hearted one should gather all the gifts, letters, pictures and anything connected with the former beloved and put them well out of sight.

Next the sad soul should indulge in a 18-hour agony orgy that will, in the end, set him free. The advice was: cry your eyes out. Don't use the phone. Don't see anyone. The mourning should be done in solitude. Also, it stressed — no fancy food.

Just cottage cheese and water. Play sad music and SUFFER. After awhile, exhaustion will set in — then boredom. When the Grief Olympics have been completed, it is important to make new friends. Do not avoid the old haunts once enjoyed with the former beloved. Go there with a new acquaintance.

It worked for me and I recommend it to others. — Ann G

Dear G.: The piece did indeed appear in Us magazine. It was written by Candu MacConaugh. The "therapy" was designed by Dr. Zev Wanderer, a UCLA lecturer who treated heartbreak cases for 13 years but confessed he never realized how painful rejection by a lover could be until it happened to him.

I would not endorse the Agony Orgy for everyone; however, different strokes for different folks.

Dear Ann Landers: When my husband had an affair, it hurt so much I cried for months. I had pictures in my mind of him with the other woman constantly. The pain was with me always — even after 18 months.

Finally, I decided I must stop thinking about it, so I deliberately set out to have an affair myself. It was the perfect solution. Instead of dwelling on my husband's affair, I now think about my lover. It's wonderful to have someone in my life who builds up my ego and makes me feel desirable.

I'm not trying to get even. My mental and emotional well-being was seriously threatened by the knowledge that my husband was cheating on me. I can truthfully say my affair has helped me more than tranquilizers, new hobbies or counseling. In spite of the good time I'm having, I've tried to get close to my husband again, but he gives me the cold shoulder. I'm not the "cheating type." I was always an affectionate wife and completely faithful until his cheating drove me into the arms of another man. I'm over 40 and nothing to look at. My husband would never believe "Old Faithful" is leading a double life — and loving it. Now Judge ME, Ann Landers. — Tables Turned In Torrance

Dear Torrance: It's not my place to judge anyone. You were looking for an excuse to cheat and you found it. Unless you and your husband agree to sit down with a clergyman or counselor and hash out your problems, you're going to be sharing the most popular cocktail of the 1970s. It's called "Marriage on the Rocks."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
 DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband and I lost our baby 12 hours after his birth due to something called the beta strep infection. Could you explain this to us? No one has done so to our satisfaction. What about future pregnancies? Our son was born five weeks premature. — C.K.

The technical name for this common bacteria is beta-hemolytic streptococcus. It's the same one responsible for strep throat, scarlet fever and various skin disorders. It is a common cause of infection during pregnancy.

Unfortunately, some women may harbor this organism and have no symptoms. In fact, you may have had it present before becoming pregnant. The infection is insidious, for if it spreads to the womb the growing fetus may be affected and there may be premature birth. I suspect this happened in your case. It is not common so this should not add to women's pregnancy anxieties.

This need not affect future pregnancies, and you will be able to conceive again. Prudent caution must be taken to identify any future infection you get and treat it promptly.

Dear Dr. Ruble: We have a bedwetter (he's seven years old). We got him a tiny alarm clock, which he loves. Problem is it doesn't awaken him. Any suggestions? — Mrs. K.L.

Not surprising. Bedwetters are often quite heavy sleepers, which is part of the problem. The solution, unpleasant as it is, is for you to take the alarm clock. The problem is usually more complicated than this, though. You might want to study the subject, which is covered in lay terms in my booklet, "Bedwetting — Ways to Stop It." For a copy, send a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: From a former insomniac, please let me add just one more remedy. Put a pad and pencil by your bed, and before retiring write down everything that's running through your head, including all you have to pick up on and plan to do the next day. Many busy persons cannot sleep because they are itemizing over and over in their heads the following day's affairs. Once you've emptied your head of all these thoughts you can sleep in peace! — H.F.

Fine, anything that turns you off.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have enjoyed your column since you took over. Most doctors have specialties. What is yours? — Mrs. T.A.

Internal medicine.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is there any way to stop the mental process of aging? — H.A.

The term "mental process of aging" is meaningless. We all age physically. Some physical changes can affect our mental capacities. How do we limit that? By taking care of our physical ills as they occur rather than ignoring them. Probably the single most important factor to watch is the heart and circulation status as we grow older. The question you ask appears frequently in my mail.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was given Flagyl tablets when tests showed that I had a vaginal infection (trichomoniasis). I have heard that this medicine causes cancer.

Is that correct, and should I stop taking it? — J.M.

Flagyl is a commercial name for metronidazole. It causes cancer in rats, which means, I guess, that we should stop giving it to them. It has not been proven harmful for humans. It helps in treatment for the trichomonas organism — your problem. It should NOT be used under certain conditions — when a woman is pregnant or breastfeeding, because it can be present in the milk or cross the placental barrier, and reach the fetus. Nor should it be used when taking certain types of blood thinners.

Curiously, while the drug has caused cancer in rats it has no such effect on laboratory hamsters.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Are there statistics on breast cancer occurring in women who have had hysterectomies? — Mrs. P.

A hysterectomy (uterus removal) in and of itself has no bearing on the matter. Hysterectomies are done for several different reasons. If there was malignancy, the risk of it occurring elsewhere are slightly higher. If the uterus were removed for non-malignant conditions, the woman is at no higher risk for breast or other forms of cancer.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Are there other methods of repairing a groin hernia besides surgery? I've heard about a hernia injection. — J.R.

Hernia is a "mechanical problem," in this case one caused by a weakening of the abdominal wall. Through this defect a tiny section of bowel protrudes. The answer to problems of this sort has to be surgical.

That is not to say other methods haven't been tried. One involves injections to form scar tissue at the weakened area. Sclerosing injections (substances to harden tissue) have also been tried. There is danger in such. Another non-surgical method is, of course, a truss to hold the protrusion in place. I don't recommend this unless there is a reason why a person cannot go through with the surgery.

While no one likes the prospect of any kind of surgery, it is the only safe and effective way to correct matters. I recommend it to my patients when it is needed. Hernias don't get better and usually grow worse and more troublesome with time. The chief danger is the risk of rupturing the bowel which pro-trudes through the wall defect — causing peritonitis.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can coughing hard for prolonged periods cause brain damage? — J.B.

No.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Ruble for his booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," care of this newspaper. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Industrial Output, Housing Starts Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's industrial output dropped in April by the largest amount since 1975 while housing starts dipped 2 percent, adding to speculation that a recession may be coming.

The Federal Reserve Board attributed the 1 percent decline in industrial production primarily to the Teamsters strike and lockout in April, but numerous private economists said it is further evidence of an economic slowdown or the mild recession predicted by many.

Next month's statistics — without the distortion of the Teamsters dispute — will be a key to determining the economy's direction, they said.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that housing starts in April fell 2.1 percent compared with a sharp 29 percent rise the month before.

During the first four months of 1979, 13 percent fewer private housing units were begun than in the same period last year.

The pace of housing construction is an early sign of how the economy is faring. The decline comes as savings institutions — the primary source of mortgages — report dramatic drops in savings. Michael Sumichrast, a spokesman for the National Association of Homebuilders, said savings in April fell by $1 billion and the trend is continuing in May.

This shortfall could further cut housing starts in coming months. The Federal Reserve said its industrial production index in April stood at 150.5 percent of the 1967 average of 100. While down from March, production still was 5.1 percent higher than the same month a year ago.

The Federal Reserve reported that auto production was particularly hard hit in April, plummeting 16 percent to an annual rate of 7.9 million units. And it said auto assembly schedules for May and June "provide for only a partial make-up of output lost in April."

April's output figure is a dramatic turnaround from the 0.7 percent production increase in March. The decline was the first since a drop of 0.6 percent in January 1978, and the largest since a 2.2 percent fall in February 1975 during the deepest recession since World War II.

Industrial output has actually fallen since December and the new decline comes amid other signs of economic sluggishness.

Retail sales have fallen in real terms for the last three months; inventories are building up; the overall index of economic indicators has dropped for three straight months and the gross national product during the first quarter rose at a slow 0.7 percent rate.

The administration says slower economic growth is needed to reduce upward pressure on wages and prices.

but it is trying to avoid a harsh recession.

Overall, industrial output of consumer durable goods, which last at least three years, was down 8.4 percent. Business equipment output fell 0.7 percent.

The Federal Reserve said four-fifths of the 1 percent fall was due directly to the trucking industry strike and lockout.

"It clouds the picture and keeps us from characterizing the economy," said a board economist.

"The 1 percent drop is exaggerated by the strike, but it indicates overall weakness in the economy," said a Citibank economist who asked not to be identified.

"The decline on top of sluggish retail sales reflects a general slowdown pattern. We predict a recession for the last two quarters of 1979," said Chris Probyn, an economist at Data Resources Inc., in Cambridge, Mass.

George Hagstrom, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the figures "show further evidence of a softening in the economy... I see a stagnation rather than an immediate, deep plunge."

George Perry, a Brookings Institution economist who predicts a recession later this year, said, "We really have no option but to wait a bit longer to see what's going on."

On the housing front, the Commerce Department reported that privately owned units in April were started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,749,000 — slightly below the revised annual rate of 1,786,000 for March and 20 percent below the 2,176,000 for April 1978.

The number of building permits for privately owned housing fell in April by 6 percent from March and was down 21 percent from the April 1978 rate.

Dollar, Gold Both Doing Well

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold hit record highs in Europe Wednesday while the U.S. dollar, which traditionally falls as gold rises, continued to show surprising strength and finished mixed.

Gold closed at $256.625 an ounce in Zurich and $256.25 in London, both record closing highs for the two centers. The previous record closing highs in Europe's two major markets were set the previous day — $255.375 in Zurich and $254.75 in London.

At one stage in the afternoon gold reached an all-time high of $257.125 in Zurich, while in London at one stage in the morning it reached a record high of $256.625. But prices then fell back.

Gold and the dollar usually move in opposite directions, because investors traditionally turn to gold as a safe refuge in times of dollar uncertainty. In recent days, however, both have been strong.

"That's rather a curious relationship," said one New York dealer. "That's another golden rule that's gone out the window — you can't have gold firm and the dollar firm at the same time."

He attributed the seeming paradox to a growing perception by dollar traders that rising oil prices are making the dollar relatively healthy, both because dollars are required to pay for oil transactions and because other nations are more adversely affected by increases in the price of oil than the United States because of American domestic production.

There was renewed concern about higher oil prices Wednesday as Libya and Venezuela raised their oil prices and Kuwait and Abu Dhabi were rumored to be about to do the same.

Kuwait has called for substantial increases at the end of this year in oil prices charged by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"High oil prices and oil scarcity, while not necessarily good for the United States... are worse for other countries," the New York trader said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Some electric utility companies pay dividends of 9 or 10 percent on their common stocks — 100 percent tax free. This being the case, why would anyone buy other stocks, bonds, savings certificates, etc., which pay the same or lower rates of taxable dividends or interest?

A. Let's start by amending your statement. The dividends paid by most utilities are fully taxable. Some utilities pay dividends that are partly taxable and partly non-taxable. In recent years, only a couple of utilities have paid 100 percent tax-free dividends.

Years ago, this was a common practice. But the tax laws have been changed, so that fewer and fewer utilities have been making what are technically called "return of capital" distributions.

Because the vast majority of utility stocks are selling at prices where their dividends produce high current yields — annual dividends divided by market price — they are natural investments for people who want high income.

The earnings and dividend payouts of most utilities have grown at relatively modest rates. Investors who seek more rapid growth naturally look elsewhere.

There's risk, of course, in all stocks. So, people who don't want to take any chances turn to savings certificates, U.S. Treasury Bills, savings accounts and similar things providing the safety of fixed numbers of dollars.

And there are all kinds of other savings, investment and speculative vehicles available — tailored to different tastes. Assuming you are happy with utilities, stay with them. Just don't expect everyone else to do as you do.

on the account more or less than 8 percent?

Since you need income, I have to assume that your account is invested in high-income securities. These days, a well-managed income account can get better than 8 percent. If yours is, tell the bank you want to withdraw at a rate higher than 8 percent.

Unless you're dead set on leaving an estate, you might think about withdrawing all of the income and some of the principal on a steady basis. It's your money. You might as well use it.

I suggest you go to the bank; sit down with the officer in charge of your account; get everything squared away. A good trust account should do just as well for you as you could do elsewhere.

Q. I have a good income from mortgages. But, because I am 64, additional long-term investments do not suit me. I have some six-month savings certificates which will come due soon. Should I renew them and put money from my other income in more six-month certificates?

A. That would be a smart move. Insured, six-month savings certificates — with the present high rates of interest — are good things for many people who have a minimum of $10,000 to tuck away. This applies especially to those in your age bracket.

Because your letter comes from a state with a high state income tax, you should also look at six-month U.S. Treasury Bills — the interest on which is not subject to state and local income tax.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I am asking your help in an urgent matter. Due to my health I have been unable to work since April 1978 but I have not been able to obtain Social Security disability benefits for which, according to my doctor, I am qualified. Why does a man who is eligible for benefits have to go live like a beggar to get some of the money from a fund he has been paying into for 32 years? If I had the money I had paid into the program I would not have to ask for these benefits. Can you help with Social Security problems like this? — F.H. Saint Jo

SEN. BENTSEN RESPONDS — The Council of Appeals within the Social Security Administration advises me that, based on information you submitted in your appeal to them, they have approved your claim for benefits. You should begin receiving the benefits within the next month.

MESSAGE — My husband, my mother and I are planning a summer vacation tour of Europe and the Middle East. My mother is 86 years old and, to get a passport, must present a birth certificate. At the time she was born, though, no one kept an official record so there is no birth certificate. What can we do to have the passport office accept my mother's application without the birth certificate? Any help you can give will be greatly appreciated. — P.T., Amarillo

SEN. BENTSEN RESPONDS — Passport officials tell me that several documents can be used in lieu of an actual birth certificate. If the birth was recorded in the family Bible, for example, that will suffice. If no documentation is available, then an investigation through the U.S. Census Bureau would be in order. Census officials will search the records of the first census after your mother's date of birth for a record of her being counted. I am sending along the form necessary to have census officials check their records. A $7.50 fee is charged for this service.

Do you have a problem with government? Message to Washington cuts through the red tape to get answers to your questions about Social Security, veterans benefits, immigration matters and other problems you may have run into in your dealings with the federal government in Washington. Write Message to Washington, c/o Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510. Inquiries to Message to Washington are sometimes edited before publication, but the intent and substance of the inquiries are maintained.

New Estimate Indicates Sharp Upturn in 1979 Winter Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's winter wheat crop is estimated at 1.39 billion bushels, 11 percent larger than the 1978 harvest which was the smallest in five years, the Agriculture Department said recently.

However, based on surveys May 1, the new harvest estimate is 4 percent below the department's initial forecast of 1.44 billion bushels last Dec. 21, not long after the crop was planted.

The new estimate was the first since then. Officials said much of the reduction from December prospects "occurred in the Pacific Northwest where winter kill caused abandonment or reduced stands" of wheat.

But overall, the crop was reported in "fair to good" condition as of May 1 and generally had adequate soil moisture to sustain further development, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

The 1978 winter wheat harvest was about 1.25 billion bushels. Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following spring and summer. It accounts for about three-fourths of total U.S. wheat production.

Production in Kansas, the leading wheat producer, was estimated at 321 million bushels, compared to 306 million in 1978.

Burst Of Good Weather Sparks Corn Planting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A few days of clear weather have enabled farmers to start ahead rapidly in planting this year's corn crop, the Agriculture Department said recently.

By May 13, an estimated 34 percent of the corn acreage was planted, a jump of 21 percentage points from a week earlier, the department said in a weekly report on weather and crops.

Although corn plantings trailed the long-time average completion rate of 55 percent for mid-May, progress was only four points behind the pace of 38 percent planted a year ago.

Planting of spring wheat, however, continued to lag far behind, averaging 20 percent completed by May 13 against 50 percent a year ago and the average at this time of 76 percent, the report said.

The biggest delays were in Minnesota, Montana and North Dakota.

Cotton planting was 45 percent planted, just slightly behind the year-ago pace of 47 percent. Soybean plantings, at 6 percent nationally, were slightly ahead of this time last year.

The report said corn planting in the eastern Corn Belt was 35 percent completed by May 13, a 28-point gain in one week. It was also ahead of the year-ago pace of 29 percent.

In the western Corn Belt, planting gained 16 points during the week, averaging 23 percent completed, compared to 38 percent a year ago, the report said.

Farmers in the southeast were about 91 percent finished with corn planting, compared to 84 percent a year ago.

The 17 states included in the weekly report, which accounted for 93 percent of the U.S. corn production last year, and their corn planting progress as of May 13, compared to a year ago, included:

Colorado 48 percent done by May 13 and 61 percent a year ago; Georgia 98 and 93; Illinois 35 and 31; Indiana 35 and 15; Iowa 34 and 51; Kansas 35 and 30; Kentucky 38 and 33; Michigan 25 and 60; Minnesota 4 and 38; Missouri 27 and 14; Nebraska 25 and 35; North Carolina 91 and 86; Ohio 60 and 35; Pennsylvania 42 and 28; South Dakota 2 and 8; Virginia 75 and 59; and Wisconsin 15 and 30.

GRAIN FUTURES
CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures fell Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade, partly in response to improved weather and reports of progress in planting the spring crop.
Reports that the Soviet Union has made progress in planting its spring wheat crop, plus talk of improved planting and growing conditions in China, helped depress prices for wheat.
Traders surmised that sunny spring weather in the Grain Belt also will help farmers erase part of the planting delays that helped drive both corn and wheat prices higher in recent weeks.

Program Honors Former LHS Principals

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The past met the present Wednesday at Lubbock High School when seven of the school's principals from 1910 to present were introduced before an enthusiastic student audience.

Students clapped and whistled when each man was presented on the stage in the school auditorium during the program honoring all nine principals that have served the school since the early years of this century.

The highlight of the program was the presentation of the senior gift — an oil portrait of Jay Gordon, who was principal at the school from 1955 to 1957. He is currently assistant superintendent for instruction for the Lubbock public school district.

"One of the greatest thrills of my life was being named principal of Lubbock High," Gordon told his receptive audience. "It's a great school and it will be for a long, long time."

Other principals honored were G.N. Atkinson (deceased), who served from 1910-1926; R.W. Matthews, 1926-1944; Floyd Honey, 1944-1955; Bill Howarth (deceased), 1957-1961; Howard Price, 1961-1965; E.C. Leslie, 1965-1969; Jerry Crawford, 1969-1970; and Knox Williams, 1970 to the present.

The response from the students was especially enthusiastic at the introduction of R.W. Matthews, who lent his name to Lubbock's Matthews Junior High School.

After the program, Matthews, 88, said he enjoyed his 28 years in the school system, which included a nine-year term as superintendent for the district.

He has noted some changes, though, including the control of students by their parents.

"When I was in the schools, parents had more control than they have today," said Matthews. "And if parents don't have control, schools can't. I think rules and regulations should be enforced."

Matthews declined to comment much on changes in education because he has not stayed close to the schools since retiring. "I promised myself when I retired I would never make any suggestions to my successor on how to run the school," he said.

But he added that he broke that promise when he replied to a request by Superintendent Ed Irons for suggestions on how to deal with the integration problem in the schools.

He said he is "glad to see integration working out," but his suggestion to Irons revealed his disapproval of forced busing: "First call the school board together and sell all the school buses. Then take the money and build portable buildings. Remove all boundary lines from the schools and tell the children they can go to any school they want provided they walk. Then give credit for physical education to any student who walks three miles."

Former principals Floyd Honey and Howard Price both noted the variety of course choices students now have as compared to the days they were working in the school system.

"There is a greater opportunity for students to find courses to meet their individual interests," said Honey. And when they moved from the semester to the quarter system, it expanded courses tremendously.

Price said the variety in the curriculum is an improvement. "Students are less inhibited. They have more freedom to be more creative and individualistic."

Price also noted that students seem to be more individualistic in their behavior patterns as well. He said that peer pressure used to control students' behavior. "But in the last few years, students have decided they have the right to do their own thing," said Price.

According to Honey, students haven't changed through the years by their own choice. "It's always been my philosophy that boys and girls haven't changed. They're what we as adults have made them. Any change has been by virtue of changes in the home and school in that order," he said.

The program was a senior class project under direction of Robert Rangel, class president and Larry DeLeon, project chairman.

"FEAST DAY" — The parish of St. John Neumann Catholic Church, 22nd Street and Frankford Avenue, celebrated the "feast day" of St. Isidore, patron of the farmer, Tuesday night at the church for Catholics and non-Catholics. Soil and farm equipment were blessed during the ceremony. Special prayers were offered for all aspects of farming and agribusiness. ## Handicapped Law Compliance Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Colleges and universities will have to spend up to $561 million renovating facilities to meet a June 1980 deadline to make them accessible for the handicapped, a report from the department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates.

The total costs of complying with the federal regulations for all schools, hospitals, libraries and other facilities that receive HEW funds could "approach or even exceed $1 billion," Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said in a preliminary report to Congress.

That is double HEW's estimate in a 1977 study, which put the one-time accessibility costs of implementing the law at $300 million to $500 million.

The $561 million estimate for colleges and universities was made by HEW's National Center for Education Statistics, which surveyed 700 colleges. The center said the costs for the nation's 1,400 public colleges and universities would exceed $316 million, or an average of $216,000 each, while 1,600 private institutions will have to spend $245 million, or $151,000 each.

A second study commissioned by HEW came up with a lower figure for compliance of $360 million. The June 1980 deadline marks the end of a three-year period in which all institutions getting HEW funds are supposed to provide access for the handicapped or face a loss of federal funds.

Califano sent two reports on the costs to the Labor-HEW appropriations subcommittee in the House last week.

Although higher education groups are lobbying for extra aid to pay for the renovations, Califano said he was not seeking any funds for that purpose now because it would be impossible to target the aid efficiently.

The HEW report emphasizes that the law, part of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, does not require existing buildings to be entirely barrier-free. But the schools' programs as a whole must be accessible.

The center said colleges would have to make 75 percent of their space accessible to comply, but only 41 percent is now accessible to the handicapped.

HEW said the final costs of bringing the nation's 16,000 school districts in compliance with the law could reach or exceed $500 million. It said many school systems have "greatly overestimated required actions and costs, while many others erroneously believe that no investments are necessary."

It said compliance will be easier for the nation's 7,000 hospitals because most already have elevators. But the total national costs were estimated in "the tens of millions of dollars."

Renovation costs for the 7,000 library systems also may reach "the tens of millions of dollars," it said. Vocational schools may cost "in the multi-hundred million dollar range" to come into compliance.

Califano sent the report to Congress earlier this month. A copy was obtained Wednesday.

One Killed, Five Injured During Miami Shootout

MIAMI (AP) — One man was fatally wounded and five persons — three of them police officers — were wounded in a shootout here Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The shooting began when a man opened fire on two women who were in or near a parked car, said Dade County Police spokesman Tim Peiper.

Both women were wounded, he said, and one ran to a nearby house for help.

Overton-Baptist Dispute To Be Aired

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Whether the 13th Street houses will be preserved as historic landmarks or give way to parking lots for First Baptist Church worshippers will be determined at two meetings today.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, meeting at 8:15 a.m. in city council chambers, has been asked to approve the use of three lots and a portion of a fourth lot on 13th Street for additional church parking.

However, the Urban Design Commission, which meets at 7 p.m. in the city hall Emergency Operations Center, is considering historic landmark designation for two houses on the proposed parking area.

The zoning board probably will be asked to table consideration of the church request for a month to allow the design commission to reach a decision on the houses, at 2219 and 2223 13th St.

A spokesman for the Overton South Neighborhood Association, which is fighting to save the houses and stop further encroachment into the neighborhood by church parking lots, said negotiations have been going on with a church representative in an attempt to work out a compromise.

"We made what we feel are several reasonable and equitable offers in an attempt to resolve the questions and save the houses," the spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said.

"We are still hopeful some agreement will be reached," he said.

However, indications are that no compromise will be reached.

"The two 13th Street structures have been under a moratorium issued by Urban Design Commission Chairman Beverly Stribling to halt any further dismantling of the houses."

The houses are now owned by E.G. Cone, owner of E.G. Cone Construction.

Cone had planned to move the houses, then restore them.

If the structures are recommended for landmark designation by the Urban Design Commission, the Planning and Zoning Commission will consider it like any other zone case.

The city council will have the final authority in deciding whether the houses should be protected with the designation.

If the houses are designated landmarks, demolition or significant structural changes would require the approval of the Urban Design Commission.

The relatively new commission has not designated any landmarks since its inception in September, but could recommend protection for the Depot Restaurant at 1801 Ave. G, as well as the two 13th Street houses, today.

Also on the zoning board's agenda is consideration of a request by Guy Wilson, representing the City of Lubbock, for a special exception to allow a pump station north of 82nd Street and west of Memphis Avenue.

In September, the board approved construction of the pump station at approximately 78th Street and Quaker Avenue, but the ownership of the land changed and so did the pump station location.

City officials are counting on funds from an Aug. 21 bond sale to finance construction of the pump station they say must be completed by June, 1980, to prevent a curtailment of water use next summer.

Zoning board members are expected to table the request of Doak Enabnit, for Lubbock County Hospital District, for a special exception to allow an Emergency Medical Services station in a mobile home at 5012 50th Street because of problems with the application.

Harold Burkhalter, representing O'Donnell Enterprises Inc., will ask for a variance in the parking requirements on a proposed fast-food restaurant at 1702, 1704, 1706 and 1708 19th St.

Other requests are:

— O.V. Scott, representing First National Bank, for a variance in the sign requirements for a drive-in bank at 10th Street and Avenue Q.

— Craft, Elliott & Field, representing Farrar Del Norte, for a variance in the setback requirements for double-frontage lots at 5702 62nd St., and 5701, 5713 and 5717 64th St.

— M.L. Collins, representing Double C Inc., for a special exception to allow self-service gas pumps in a local retail (C-2) zone at 8210 Hudson Ave.

— Aubrey J. Fouts, representing JHJ & G Inc., doing business as Mr. J's, for a special exception to allow self-service gas pumps in a C-2 zone at 5719 66th St.

— Al Komarek for a variance in the setback requirements for a carport at 2826 62nd St.

— Buri D. Bourns, representing Luther T. Bourns, for a special exception to allow a mobile home to be used as a dwelling at 3508 Ave. J.

— Shirley A. Cleveland for a special exception to allow a beauty shop in a residence at 2625 E. Auburn St.

Clear Weather Sparks

Corn Acreage Planting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A few days of clear weather caused corn planting to jump ahead during the past week, say Agriculture Department officials.

An estimated 34 percent of the corn acreage was planted by May 13, a jump of 21 percentage points from a week earlier, the department said.

Last year, despite a cold, wet spring which delayed plantings, farmers went on to harvest a record corn crop of 7.1 billion bushels as nearly ideal weather continued through the critical summer and early-fall months.

College President Will Head Nuclear Mishap Investigation

BIG LIFT — With an assist from the photographer, Cheryl Ann McDonald lifts a police helicopter in Melbourne. Cheryl, 22, is the Victoria State Police candidate in the Miss Australia Quest beauty contest. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — John G. Kemeny has a fondness for detective stories and designing computer games. And, he says, investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor accident may include a little bit of both.

Kemeny, the president of Dartmouth College and one of the country's leading mathematicians, is chairman of the 12-member presidential commission examining the accident. Thursday the commission begins three days of hearings in Middletown, Pa., near the damaged reactor.

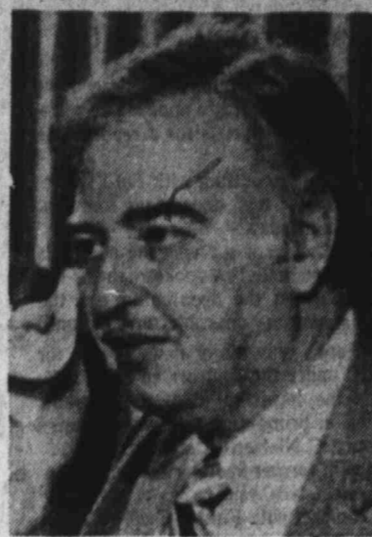

A stocky, unathletic man whose only sign of tension seems to be chain smoking, Kemeny is said by associates to bring to the inquiry a keen mind and a determination to ask questions until he gets answers.

"If you hear the same story enough different ways you just keep digging until you get the truth," Kemeny, 52, told a group of Dartmouth alumni recently.

Although he has no background in nuclear physics, Kemeny will spearhead the investigation which he believes could have wide-ranging impact on the future of the nation's atomic power program. President Carter wants a report and recommendations by Oct. 25.

As Dartmouth president since 1970, Kemeny has stayed aloof from the nuclear power debate. Last September in a convocation speech, however, he decried those who try to solve complicated issues with simple solutions and used the nuclear power issue as an example.

His only other involvement with nuclear energy was when, as a Princeton undergraduate and Army draftee, he was a mathematician on the project to develop the atomic bomb at Los Alamos, N.M.

JOHN G. KEMENY

On the Dartmouth campus in Hanover, N.H., Kemeny is described by students and faculty as "extremely intelligent" and a man who above all loves to teach. His mathematics courses — he tries to teach at least one each term — are sought out.

But Kemeny's nine years as president have not been without controversy as the 210-year-old college underwent a number of changes, including for the first time enrolling women. Just days after taking over in 1970, Kemeny headed off a confrontation by dismissing formal classes for a week because of the killing of four students at Kent State and urging professors to hold seminars to discuss the Vietnam war and the Kent State shootings.

"He turned a political crisis into an education experience," recalled Dartmouth spokesman Bob Graham. Other associates cite the action as an example of Kemeny's ability to think clearly under stress.

One student, critical of Kemeny because she claims he could do more to increase enrollment of women, nevertheless calls him "an amazing mathematician... he has a mind like a calculator."

Kemeny came to Dartmouth in 1954 and was named to head the mathematics department a year later at the age of 29. Over the years he distinguished himself as one of the country's foremost authorities on computers. Among his 13 books is one, written with another professor, which has enabled thousands of novices to "talk" with computers by using written messages.

He is fascinated by computer games and years ago had a computer terminal installed in his house. And, he said in an interview the other day in his still barren commission office in downtown Washington, the games and detective stories are not unlike the Three Mile Island investigation.

"In some of the best detective stories you get halfway through the book and they get you to the point where you're totally confused and you don't know what to believe. I think that's where we're starting in this investigation."

Kemeny said he agreed with some reluctance to head the commission and after the job is finished will look forward to returning full time to Dartmouth where "I hope to spend the rest of my life."

But Kemeny's origins could not have been farther from the Ivy League. Born May 31, 1926 in Budapest, Hun-

Police Shoot Kidnapping Suspect

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A man who allegedly held a tobacco merchant and his wife hostage and demanded a $50,000 ransom, then abducted the woman and led police on a high-speed chase, was shot and seriously wounded Wednesday, officers said.

Lucille Little, who was in the car, was unharmed, police said.

The suspect, identified as Bernard Graves, about 35, was shot after he jumped from the Littles' Cadillac and started firing at pursuing officers, authorities said.

Graves was taken to the University of Kentucky medical center, where he was reported in "very, very serious condition."

gary, he came to the United States in 1940 as a youth fascinated with mathematics. His parents, fleeing the Nazis, had left almost everything behind, even their luggage.

Like many children of immigrants, young Kemeny attended New York City's George Washington High School where at the same time another famous refugee of Nazi Europe, Henry Kissinger, also was a student. The two did not know each other.

A quick learner, Kemeny was first in his high school graduating class. Later at Princeton University he served as a graduate assistant to Albert Einstein — an experience he today calls "probably the single most wonderful year of my life."

Intending to immerse himself in the nuclear investigation, Kemeny and his wife, Jean, have rented an apartment in Washington and cancelled a planned month-long vacation this summer.

They have two grown children, Jennifer Carner, a computer scientist, and Robert, a department store merchandiser.

Warehouse Co., his wife and two household employees were held captive part of the morning.

Little later told reporters his wife called him at work.

"This man came in and held her for ransom. She called me and I came home and then he had us both there," he said.

"She went to town to get the cash while he held me. And then he drove off with her," Little said.

Police said they were called at 10:30 a.m. by a concerned employee of the downtown bank where Mrs. Little withdrew $50,000.

When Mrs. Little returned with the money, the man forced her back into the Cadillac and drove away, officials said.

Police, alerted by the bank employee, gave chase.

'Hitman' Identifies Alleged Underworld Leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Reputed underworld leader Aniello Dellacroce was arrested in connection with a murder as a result of information furnished by a top hitman who is "singing like a canary" for government investigators, the New York Post reported today.

The Post said Aladena Fratianno is informing, along with Peter Salerno, leader of a nationwide, multimillion dollar burglary ring from 1969 to 1975.

The Post said Fratianno's information led to the arrests Tuesday of Dellacroce, 65, reputed boss of the Gambino family, and Anthony Plate, 66, alleged to be a top underworld enforcer.

The two men are charged with plotting the murder of Westchester loan shark Charles Calise in 1974.

In addition, the Post said Fratianno and Salerno gave information leading to the arrests of Joseph C. Bonanno, former head of a New York family, and Cleveland mob chief James Licavoli.

Bonanno is charged in San Francisco with interfering in a government investigation into the laundering of organized crime money, and Licavoli is charged with racketeering in the murder of a rival.

The Post said Fratianno is giving the information in exchange for a five-year prison term for the 12 murders he admits, and Salerno is also trying to have a long sentence reduced.

Air Transportation Up In Spite Of Strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the strike of United Airlines, U.S. commercial air carriers carried 15.7 percent more passengers in April than in the same month in 1978, the industry's trade association said Wednesday.

For the first four months of the year, air traffic was up by 17.8 percent, the Air Transport Association said.

ATA spokesman Dan Henkin said the April increase was due in part to Easter and Passover falling in that month and that the gasoline shortage prompted travelers to choose airplanes over automobiles. Confirmation of the latter was the nearly 50 percent increase in passengers that local service carriers experienced, he said.

Snake Story Convincing

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — The judge thought he had heard every excuse imaginable from speeders, but C. Jay Kiessling's story was convincing enough to get his fine overturned.

Kiessling told Howard County Circuit Judge Robert F. Fischer he was in a hurry because he was nervous about his passengers — 12 rattlesnakes squirming restlessly in a cloth bag on the car's back seat.

"This testimony about the snakes is a first," Fischer said Tuesday.

Kiessling, 31, of Finksburg, told the judge he "was concerned that the bag might have been torn by a nail during shipping, and they (the snakes) might get loose."

Kiessling, codirector of the Maryland Reptile Institute in Ellicott City, was stopped for going 70 mph in a 50 mph zone after he had picked up the rattlers at Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

The box holding the snakes had been cracked open during shipment.

A county District Court judge earlier wasn't convinced by Kiessling's excuse and found him guilty. Kiessling was fined $40 and $5 in court costs.

But Fischer apparently believed Kiessling and gave him probation without judgment.

Polanski Plans Return

CANNES, France (AP) — Film director Roman Polanski, who fled from California after being convicted of having unlawful sexual intercourse with a 13-year-old girl, said Wednesday he plans to return to the United States.

The 45-year-old filmmaker, who directed such movies as "Rosemary's Baby" and "Chinatown," told a news conference he would return after he finishes filming his latest movie, "Tess," adapted from the Thomas Hardy novel "Tess of the d'Urbervilles."

In an interview published Wednesday, Polanski told a Paris newspaper he would not return to the United States before the film opens in Paris, scheduled for Oct. 24.

The precise time "depends on my state of mind," Polanski told the French newspaper Le Matin. "Nothing has been fixed. There has been no arrangement about it there with anyone."

After being found guilty of having sex with the 13-year-old girl, Polanski fled to his residence in Paris in February 1978. As a French citizen, the director could not be extradited from France.

He has since remained secluded and has barred the press from the "Tess" set.

He held the news conference during the film festival at Cannes on the French Riviera.

Students Show Promise

ASHLAND, Kan. (AP) — It's enough to make a stockbroker cry.

Seven teen-agers from Ashland High School, in the plains of southwest Kansas and miles from the nearest stock ticker, invested a theoretical $100,000 in the New York Stock Exchange.

Ten weeks later the students had a Big Board portfolio worth a theoretical $238,455.44, a gain of 14 percent a week.

They comprised one of 327 teams in a contest organized by the Center for Economic Education at Kansas State University.

Four of the teams more than doubled their original investment.

"Luck," admitted Janet Ediger, a member of the Ashland team.

Ambassador Resigns

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati financier Marvin Warner, who will marry Washington, D.C. television personality Susan G. Goldwater, has resigned his post as ambassador to Switzerland effective July 15.

Warner's resignation was accepted with regret Tuesday by President Carter.

Warner, 60, will marry Miss Goldwater on May 28. She said earlier she plans to drop her television show, "PM Washington." They plan to live in suburban Clermont County.

She is the former wife of U.S. Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif. It is the second marriage for both.

"The most gratifying part was being involved in making recommendations about the dollar problems and working directly with the White House and State Department and Jewish financial interests and coming up with solutions which stabilized the dollar," said Warner in a telephone interview from Washington.

"Some of my recommendations were effectuated," he said.

Opera Singer Bows Out

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti was forced to withdraw from his performance as Cavaradossi in Puccini's "Tosca" on Wednesday night because of tonsillitis, the Metropolitan Opera Co. announced.

Pavarotti remained in New York, a spokesman said. He was to be replaced by Vasile Moldoveanu for the performance in Northrop Auditorium.

The same illness caused Pavarotti to cancel his performance in "Tosca" with the Met in Atlanta as well as several other engagements around the country.

NBC Cancels Jerry, Betty

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC has terminated an agreement with former President Gerald R. Ford to appear in a number of news specials for a reported $1 million.

GERALD FORD

A similar contract with Ford's wife, Betty, also was ended, the network said Wednesday.

NBC did not say why the contracts were terminated. A spokesman for the Fords called the decision to end the agreement an "amicable termination."

Ford's only major news special for NBC under the contract, in April 1978, was the lowest-rated of 65 programs aired in prime-time that week, figures from A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

A separate contract with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger remains in effect, NBC said.

NBC announced its contract with Ford Jan. 29, 1977, but did not disclose terms of the agreement. Broadcasting sources said at the time, however, that Ford would be paid about $1 million to make at least one major documentary a year for five years.

Mrs. Ford's contract with the network was announced in March 1977. NBC said she would appear in at least two special programs in the next two years. The terms were never disclosed.

Court Fed Up With Inmate

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Clovis Carl Green Jr. has become a pest in federal court, and the judges have told him to stop.

Green, an inmate serving a 10-year sentence at the state penitentiary in Jefferson City, is trying to overturn his guilty plea to a rape charge and is challenging prison conditions. He has filed about 300 suits in various courts without success.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday dismissed seven of Green's recent petitions and told Green to stop filing them.

Judge Donald P. Lay, writing for the full eight-member court, said: "Green's continued abuse of the legal process has placed an undue strain on the judicial manpower of this circuit."

The appeals judges instructed district judges they may dismiss some of Green's complaints summarily.

Cheryl Tiegs' Spouse Jailed

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A Frankfurt judge said Wednesday that Stanley Dragoti, director of the hit Dracula movie "Love At First Bite" and husband of top American model Cheryl Tiegs, is being held in a West German jail on charges of bringing cocaine into the country.

Judge Werner Dinde told The Associated Press that if found guilty of illegally importing the drug, Dragoti can expect "a considerable penalty," perhaps up to three years in prison.

"He has applied for an investigation into his arrest during which the question will be considered if bail can be granted," Dinde said. Dinde said such an investigation can take up to 14 days.

"Dragoti told us that he is well-known in the United States as a director and producer of films," Dinde said. "He said he was on his way to Cannes, France, where he was supposed to receive an award for his movie 'Love At First Bite.'"

The 46-year-old Dragoti left Frankfurt International Airport after his arrival from the United States over the weekend, apparently to do some shopping in town.

Lock Foils Tank Thief

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The U.S. Army M-123 tank must have been a tempting target for a car thief.

There it was, parked at a gas station with three others atop tractor-trailer rigs while members of the West Virginia National Guard slept at a nearby motel.

Neighbors, awakened by loud noises about 4:30 a.m. Wednesday, looked out their windows and saw a tractor-trailer and the tank in the middle of the street.

But the nation's defenses were not weakened. Police Lt. E.T. Cason said a chain lock on the tractor's steering mechanism prevented the thief from stealing the rig.

Cason said the National Guard unit was traveling to Fort Pickett in south Virginia for training.

Twins To Address Grads

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Speaking in alternate paragraphs, twins Alan and Alvin Chow will deliver the student speech at the University of Maryland's commencement Sunday.

The Chinese-American brothers, who have both maintained straight-A averages during their four years of study, were chosen to represent the 3,220 members of the class of 1979.

Asked what they plan to tell their fellow graduates, the identical twins said: "We want to encourage our classmates to learn for the sake of learning, rather than for a grade or as a means of getting a job."

Both are accomplished classical pianists who have won major piano competitions. In addition, the Chows will be seeking advanced study at the Juilliard School of Music in New York next fall.

The twins grew up in Miami, where their father owns Joe's Grocery Store and their mother is an interpreter for the U.S. Immigration Service.

Harvard University Reveals Core Curriculum Overhaul

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard's first major overhaul of its undergraduate curriculum in 34 years — requiring graduates to prove they can write, do math and read a foreign language — was greeted enthusiastically Wednesday by the nation's top education official.

The core curriculum unveiled Tuesday also abolishes required general survey courses in favor of highly focused subjects that stress the process of thinking. Instead of taking such courses as "Survey of American History," next fall's Harvard freshmen will fulfill their history requirements by picking from "The Christianization of the Roman World," "The Emancipation of the Jews" and "The Darwinian Revolution."

U.S. Commissioner of Education Ernest L. Boyer said in Washington that he had long held the position that there is a certain "core" of knowledge that should be part of an undergraduate education.

Colleges must make "some judgments about what is important and unique about human knowledge," Boyer said. "There is no absolute core. Judgments must be made. A college that fails to make those judgments is left bankrupt — it has no ideas."

"I never felt that every course we taught was as good as every other one. That's not to deny the value of electives. But some courses are much more valuable in terms of the goal of an educated person," he said. "We must be able to say what it means to be educated. ... It's not just whatever you want to do for four years."

Harvard Associate Dean Phyllis Keller said the purpose of the highly focused courses is to show students how scientists and historians think, rather than giving them a smattering of knowledge about a general subject.

"The emphasis is more on approaches to knowledge than on facts and information," said Mrs. Keller, who helped develop the new program with Henry Rosovsky, dean of arts and sciences.

Beginning with this fall's class, Harvard students will have to take courses in five specific areas, plus prove they can write, do math and read a foreign language.

The change is likely to be imitated by planners at other colleges.

"Our reform has had the effect of arousing concern about general education in other places," said Mrs. Keller.

Several other big universities, such as the University of Chicago, the University of Missouri and Northwestern, have already set up new core programs.

The only courses required of all students in the new program at Harvard are writing and a new course that emphasizes the application of mathematics, including how computers work.

The idea of switching to a new basic curriculum was accepted by the faculty a year ago after much debate and opposition from some students.

At a faculty meeting Tuesday, officials revealed the first 84 core courses, 55 of which will be available to incoming freshmen. Students will choose about one-quarter of their courses from the core curriculum. The new program will be used by all students by 1982.

As under the current system, half of each student's 32 courses required for graduation will be in their major area of study and a fourth will be considered "electives."

The students will have to take 10 semester-long courses in the core curriculum's five areas — literature and the arts, history, social and philosophical analysis, science and math, and foreign culture.

Among other core courses are "Turn-of-the-Century Austrian Culture," "Space, Time and Motion" and "The Concept of the Hero in Hellenic Civilization."

Until now, students chose required courses from Harvard's general education program, which was set up by President James Bryant Conant in 1945 and which had a great impact on American higher education.

"The general education program had become very diffuse," said Mrs. Keller. "There were so many choices that there was no coherent program."

Silverman Wants NBC On Top In News

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — NBC president Fred Silverman has told officials of the television network's affiliate stations that the way to escape NBC's third-place ranking is to lead the way in news.

Silverman told the affiliate owners and managers meeting here that all areas of news would be expanded, led by lengthening the NBC Nightly News from 30 minutes to an hour. He specified no target date.

President's Energy Proposals Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor, big business, consumer groups and segments of the oil industry paraded before the House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday to oppose President Carter's energy proposals.

The Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Manufacturers and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists endorsed Carter's plans to phase out price controls on oil beginning June 1. But they rejected his proposal to tax away some of the oil-industry revenues that would follow decontrol.

On the other hand, consumer representatives, the AFL-CIO and some environmentalists opposed decontrol but urged stiffer taxes on the oil industry.

Somewhere in between were the League of Women Voters, Friends of the Earth and the Sierra Club — which offered support for Carter's plan only if the tax on the oil companies is made much tougher.

The testimony before the committee brought little new evidence for Congress to consider. But the dissent among witnesses underlined the difficulty Congress has had in the last two years trying to develop an energy policy.

In an effort to reduce U.S. consumption of imported oil, Carter has announced plans to phase out price controls on domestic oil, which have held prices below world levels.

Knowing that prices will rise as a result of decontrol, the president has asked Congress for a "windfall-profits tax" that would take away part of the oil industry's increased revenues. Oil companies should be allowed to keep some of the money, Carter says, to pour back into energy production.

Eventually, Carter wants the tax money to help the poor pay their higher fuel costs, and to aid mass transit and development of new energy sources.

The most frequent point made at the hearing was that Carter's tax would leave the oil industry too much of the windfall.

David Masselli, representing Friends of the Earth, called Carter's tax "laughably low ... riddled with unjustified exemptions."

The Treasury Department estimates decontrol will increase oil-industry revenues by $15.4 billion through 1981. After state and local taxes, federal income taxes and payments to landowners who own the oil are deducted, the industry would be left with $8 billion. The proposed new tax would cut that to $6 billion.

Jack Carlson, chief economist for the Chamber of Commerce, said no new tax is needed because oil companies reinvest so much of their profits. Between 1971 and 1977, he said, "oil companies invested amounts totaling substantially more than 100 percent of net income" in the search for more oil.

Rudolph Oswald, speaking for the AFL-CIO, said Carter's package "would add up to nothing more than a license fee for the privilege of profiteering."

James E. Greene, executive vice president of Belridge Oil Co. of California, said his firm's record is typical of the industry.

Between 1969 and 1973, he said, Belridge production was 15,000 barrels of oil per day. In 1973, with prices averaging $22.5 a barrel, production dropped below 10 barrels daily per well, a level that exempted production from price controls. Last month, Belridge averaged $12.40 a barrel. But production has jumped to 40,000 barrels a day, Greene said.

"If there were ever a company which would be a candidate to be accused of being in a 'windfall-profits' situation, this would be a logical one," he said.

In fact, Greene said, here is what happened to the company from 1973 through 1978:

- Pre-tax profits of $312.6 million.
- State and federal income taxes of $147.8 million — or 47 percent of profits.
- $69.7 million, or 23 percent of pre-tax profits, was paid to the company's stockholders, who had to pay income tax on those dividends.
- Belridge invested $130.7 million in wells and equipment to increase production — or 42 percent of pre-tax profit.
- Common arithmetic will show that in order to increase production we invested more than we had left after taxes and dividends," Greene said.

Petroleum Letter Reports CIA View Of Oil Scramble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA is forecasting a slowdown of world oil production and an international scramble for supplies during the next four years, a specialized petroleum newsletter asserted Wednesday.

A spokesman for the CIA was not available for comment on the forecast by London Oil Reports, a weekly newsletter specializing in the international oil industry.

The report said CIA analysts were preparing an unclassified study forecasting a slowdown in the growth of world oil production from as much as 2 percent annually in recent years to 1 percent a year or less — possibly stalling at no growth at all.

It said the CIA anticipates that the slowdown will trigger increased competition for oil supplies between the developing nations and the industrialized nations and that international agreements will not be effective in allocating the oil fairly.

Mobil Abandons Search For New Oil In Atlantic

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mobil Oil Corp. said Wednesday it had abandoned its second well in the Baltimore Canyon area and was giving up now the search for oil and gas off the mid-Atlantic coast.

It is the 13th dry hole reported off New Jersey and Delaware since drilling began nearly 14 months ago.

Five oil companies have given up on the area, which the government said might hold as much as 1.02 billion barrels of oil and 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Only three drilling rigs remain, although a few are expected to begin wells on new lease tracts later this summer.

Mobil's dry hole was reported by the semi-submersible rig Western Pacesetter III about 100 miles east of Cape May in a little-explored area of the Baltimore Canyon Trough.

The well, started on Jan. 6, reached a depth of 13,992 feet and was plugged "after tests indicated no significant quantities of hydrocarbons," according to Mobil spokesman James Amanna.

The company's statement was taken in the industry to mean that some small signs of oil or gas were found in the well, which was in 258 feet of water about 10 miles from the edge of the Continental Shelf.

Mobil reported its first dry hole Dec. 27 at a location about 70 miles east of Atlantic City and about 35 miles north-northwest of its latest dry hole.

Amanna said the leased drilling rig will return to the Gulf of Mexico and Mobil's future drilling plans "will depend on further analysis of the drilling results to date."

Mobil and five partners paid $3.1 million to the federal government in August 1976 for the right to explore the nine-square-mile lease tract.

Mobil owned 25 percent interest in the tract. Other partners are Getty, 23 percent; Sun, 23 percent; Diamond Shamrock, 14 percent; Amerada Hess, 10 percent; and Marathon, 5 percent.

Only Exxon, Tenneco and Texaco presently have rigs drilling in the Baltimore Canyon Trough.

Oil Executive Warns Of Car Repair 'Ripoffs' On Road

NEW YORK (UPI) — Amid the current controversy over whether vacationing motorists face a large or small danger of being "ripped off" if their cars need repairs in a town far from home, an official of one major oil company is offering tips on how to avoid having it happen to you.

The official, R.A. Pierpont Jr., retail business manager of Exxon U.S.A., quoted in the current edition of Popular Mechanics Magazine, said motorists who fear repair shop or gas station ripoffs should:

1. Get itemized bills of all repairs and get back the old parts which were replaced. He says a motorist who thinks he was victimized can turn this "evidence" over to company investigators who "usually can determine if a part was purposely damaged."
2. Before leaving on a trip, put your car in top shape. Particularly check the parts that gas stations have on hand to sell, like spark plugs, cables, etc., and be suspicious later if these things suddenly "break" while you're getting service.
3. When you stop for gas, get out of the car and watch what's going on. If the attendant looks under the hood, peer over his shoulder.
4. "If possible, patronize self-service stations." But wherever you stop, never leave your car unattended at the service island to visit the restroom or get a snack.
5. Since most breakdowns involve simple repairs, if you are a Saturday mechanic, bring some parts like battery cables, drive belt, hoses, plugs, points, and condensers with you and, if you have the ability, do it yourself.
6. If you break down in a strange town, call the Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, or the local agent of your insurance company to recommend a repair shop. Or a book entitled "Where to Find Certified Mechanics for Your Car," a listing of mechanics certified for competency by the National Institute for Automobile Service Excellence, is available from the Institute, 1825 K St., NW, Washington, D.C., 20006 for $1.99.

Some of the "ripoff" tricks to watch out for:

1. Shortchanging on gas. Make sure the attendant makes out only one slip, not two, with your credit card. Keep the receipts and check them against your monthly bill.
2. Shortchanging on oil. "Short-sticking is probably the oldest way of selling unneeded oil to a customer" — the attendant simply doesn't put the dipstick in all the way. Or he can use a lower-priced oil than he charges for. Or even "fill" it with an empty can.
3. "Honk honk." This is an old trick in which an attendant has a nail embedded in his shoe and punctures a tire while he's pumping gas.

If you sit behind the wheel while an attendant works on your car, you would not be able to see him if he: dropped an antacid tablet in the battery, slit a drive belt or a hose with a concealed knife, poured a vial of milk in the power steering pump or the automatic transmission filler tube, cut or disconnected the coil-to-distributor cable, poured gas over a fuel pump which is then described as "leaking," or bent a windshield wiper.

Pierpont stressed that only a "relatively small number" out of the many thousands of dealers are dishonest, but added it is wise to be prepared.

Oil Exploration Policies Knocked

HOUSTON (UPI) — The government may set aside millions of acres of wilderness lands that could be important sources of oil and gas during the next decade, an Exxon executive said Wednesday.

John L. Loftis Jr., an Exxon USA vice president, told the International Association of Geophysical Contractors that more realistic policies were needed for oil and gas exploration on federal lands.

"As part of the Roadless Area Review and Evaluation being conducted by the Forest Service, all national forest lands are being surveyed to identify areas to be included in the Wilderness System," Loftis said. "More than 60 million acres have been identified for study. No oil and gas operations have been allowed on Wilderness lands since 1964."

Loftis said unless a "reasonable" Alaskan acreage bill is passed in Congress, the nation may lose the state as an area for resources.

"We must all work for multiple use where environmental conditions permit," he said.

Japanese Wildlife Treaty Encounters More Problems

TOKYO (AP) — Six years after Japan signed a treaty protecting endangered wildlife, efforts to get the treaty ratified have hit another snag.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry says it has temporarily dropped plans to submit the measure — aimed at cutting down on the flourishing trade here in rare and protected animals — to the Diet, Japan's parliament.

A spokesman said "it appears to be impossible to get it ratified" this session because of opposition from animal traders, importers, furrers and other businesses, and because of the Diet's calendar.

Although the Foreign Ministry, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry and the Environmental Agency all support the treaty, it has had a low priority in the Diet since it was signed in April 1973.

The Foreign Ministry said the "Convention on International Trade and Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora," better known as the Washington Convention, would be sent to the Diet next session.

There are almost no statistics available on the extent of the trade in live rare animals, their furs and skins, and other products such as ivory, in Japan or through Japanese companies. However, the World Wildlife Fund of Japan claims at least 20 major Japanese trading houses are deeply involved, and the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources, in Switzerland, cites Japan as one of the most "prolific traders in wildlife."

Japan is the largest buyer of furs from Hong Kong, where there is a large illegal fur trade which authorities are trying to control. Imports include leopard, civet, lynx and cape seal furs — all banned under the Washington Convention. A leopard jacket sells on Tokyo's Ginza for $2,500 to $3,000, a civet jacket for slightly more.

Conservationists also complain that many Japanese zoos — mostly smaller ones — have been illegally importing live endangered animals, and last year a scandal erupted over the Isehima Zoological Garden in Kobe, which requested that an Indonesian zoo smuggle birds of paradise to it. The Indonesian zoo director labeled the request "monstrous" and distributed photocopies of the letter to zoo officials and conservation groups around the world.

The controversy led to the discovery that "Isehima Zoological Garden" was a cover name for an animal trader.

According to the World Wildlife Fund, more than 600 birds covered by the Washington Convention have been legally imported into Japan in the past five years, including more than 300 peregrine falcons, 63 golden eagles, and from two to 60 of various other species. Many others were brought in illegally, the fund claims, because of lack of knowledge on the part of customs men.

Other trade banned under the convention includes that in alligator, crocodile, and reptile skins, turtle shells and ivory — about $26 million worth a year of ivory. Other figures were not available.

"Japan may be the largest trader in endangered species," said Dr. Shinjiro Ikeda, director of the World Wildlife Fund of Japan. "According to a survey in Bangkok, more than 20 Japanese trading houses are involved in the trade — furs, live animals including chimpanzees and alligators."

Ikeda said the Japanese government keeps no statistics on such trade, and requires in most cases only an export license from the selling country. However, much of the trade comes through countries that haven't signed the treaty so the export license is no help in controlling sale of endangered species.

Sixty-six countries have signed the convention, but only about 50 have ratified it. Japan is the only major developed nation that has not.

The Japanese Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums has been pushing for ratification, although some of its 110 members object that the treaty would make rare animals more expensive, according to Dr. Shigeharu Asakura, an association president.

Asakura says the association requires its members to be shown a license from the endangered animals' native country, not exporting country, before they may buy animals covered by the treaty. But, he said, "some of our members do not observe the rules." In addition, some 100 to 150 zoos and aquariums are not members.

Asakura, Ikeda and officials at the trade ministry agree that even if the treaty is ratified, it will be very difficult to enforce. They pointed out that customs agents are not specialists and don't recognize endangered animals.

The trade ministry plans to publish color pictures of the nearly 700 species on the convention list but does not plan to establish penalties for violating the convention should it be ratified. Instead it will depend on a foreign exchange control law with a maximum penalty of 3 years in jail and a fine of about $1,300.

"It's going to be a very, very big problem," Asakura said.

Careful Food Storage Can Save On Groceries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a comment on food storage from the federal Office of Consumer Affairs:

"The money you save through careful shopping can be lost if foods are not properly stored once they leave the supermarket. Foods that need refrigeration should always be put away quickly. This is especially important during the hot summer months. Storing foods properly can help extend the period of time they will be good. Most canned goods can be stored for a year. Exceptions are high acid foods such as tomatoes and pineapple, which should be used within six months for best quality."

EQUINES HAVE DAY IN COURT — Judge Edwin Berman, right foreground in black robe, is flanked by jurors in Chicago as they watch two mounted policemen display horses in Daley Court. The judge and jurors filed out of the nearby circuit court to view the horses at the request of attorney Robert Cooney, who is representing an elderly man who is suing the city for $200,000. He alleges he was knocked down by a police horse during a demonstration in 1977. (AP Laserphoto)

Forced Soviet Repatriation Alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nikolai Tolstoy, author of a book indicting two World War II allies for forcibly handing over to the Soviets some 2 million persons who were tortured or killed, said Tuesday "the Americans came out looking much better than the British."

Tolstoy, whose book "The Secret Betrayal" was published first in England and last winter in this country, cites former secret documents which he says show that Great Britain and the United States forcibly repatriated about 2.5 million persons.

Many of them, he says, committed suicide rather than go back to Russia. Many, he says, were Cossacks or White Russians and some were women and children who had never lived in Russia.

The documents show that a secret agreement made in 1944 between Britain and the Soviet Union, later agreed to by the Americans, provided for the return to Russia of 6 million persons, more than half of them already in Soviet hands in Western Europe.

Tolstoy, heir to the senior line of the family and a relative of the novelist, was born in England and lives there. He spoke at a news conference at the National Archives, custodian of the U.S. records of the period.

He said Sir Winston Churchill, then prime minister, was largely kept in the dark about the operation. He places primary responsibility on Harold MacMillan and Sir Anthony Eden. He said MacMillan refused to talk to him about the matter.

"I corresponded with Anthony Eden about it, and he sent me back a very friendly letter," Tolstoy said. "When I asked him specific questions he replied that he was too old and ill to talk to me. I noticed he was talking to other people who were writing about subjects he approved of."

Tolstoy said he met resistance from all official quarters in England, including all the principals. "They said, anyway, these people went to very decent schools and they couldn't have done the things you are writing about." He noted that he also went to the same schools.

One incident of the period was reported in American newspapers. A group of Soviet prisoners of war about to be repatriated rioted, and several of them committed suicide at Ft. Dix, N.J.

Tolstoy said he can find no record of any American approving in advance what the British and the Soviets agreed to.

"That doesn't excuse them altogether," he said. "But I could not find any record of Americans using force on women and children, although they sent back about as many people as the British did."

Did the British and Americans get anything in return?

"As far as I can see, they got nothing except the contempt of the Soviet government," Tolstoy said.

TV Cameras Slow Work In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Televising the House of Representatives is turning lawmakers into hams and slowing down the work of Congress, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill says.

There's "no question" that the presence of television cameras in the chamber brought the recent debate on the federal budget to a snail's pace, forcing Congress to take nine days to finish work on the measure, O'Neill told reporters.

But he said he still supports the decision to make live television coverage of House proceedings available to television outlets around the country.

"The kinks will be worked out" of the system, barely a month old, O'Neill said.

"But has it held up the Congress? Sure, it's held up the Congress," the speaker said.

He said during debate on the bill setting budget targets for fiscal year 1980, which was finally approved late Monday, many members clearly were playing to the cameras.

O'Neill said members gave speeches both to catch the eye of constituents back home and so staff members, clustered around television monitors in House office buildings, could "watch the boss" in action.

In the past, many members put their speeches in the daily Congressional Record without delivering them, O'Neill said.

Design Graduates To Get Badges

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Rhode Island School of Design seniors will get sheriff's badges for diplomas at their graduation this month.

But they won't be able to form a posse.

The prominent art school holds an annual informal student competition to design an offbeat diploma, given along with the official sheepskin.

This year's winning entry is a sheriff's badge emblazoned with the school seal. The arresting idea, which won out over a pair of sunglasses, will be given to graduates at the May 26 commencement.

"It's a five-point star with the RISD seal in the center," said designer Barry P. Wells, 22, a senior from Burlington, Mass. "It's silver in color and the type is red enamel." RISD's official colors are silver and maroon.

Wells said the idea for this year's diploma had nothing to do with the school's "Private Parts" art show, a display of human sexual organs raided by police a year ago. The law under which it was raided was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court Monday.

"They're very attractive, nice, fun objects," Wells said of the badges. "They sort of have an air of officialness about them."

"They're sort of a paradox between being very official and mock-official," he said. "It's sort of a parody, in a sense, of the officialness of the ceremony."

"But I wouldn't play it up too much," he added quickly.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAY 17, 1979

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

House Members Reveal Energy Holdings In New Documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress debates the lifting of oil price controls and other energy issues, more than two dozen House members disclosed Wednesday that they had financial interests in oil and natural gas in 1978, according to newly released documents.

Seven other congressmen listed honoraria from oil companies in their disclosure statements for last year.

The statements, required by the new Ethics in Government Act and by existing House rules, are the first to cover a complete year. Reports issued in May 1978 covered only the last three months of 1977.

Some congressmen listed stock portfolios so diversified that their votes on a whole range of issues could potentially affect their financial investments. Many, however, showed little income except for their $57,500 congressional salary.

Elsewhere, disclosure statements also released under terms of the Ethics in Government Act showed that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the Supreme Court owns stock worth more than $500,000 in the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. and in Woodale Hillside Inc.

The initial filings by presidential candidates showed former Texas Gov. John B. Connally as the wealthiest. Connally reported $1,000,376 in business income and honoraria, and the report indicated at least $299,000 in interest and capital gains for a total of $1,299,976. Connally pointing out, however, that this was gross income.

The House disclosure statements showed that Rep. S. William Green, R-N.Y., is one of the wealthiest members of Congress. Green listed dividends from Allis Chalmers and Starrett Housing of $15,000 to $50,000 each and lesser amounts from such companies as Pogo Producing, Mortgage Growth Investors and Mesabi Trust.

Green and his wife also reported holdings in several oil companies in 1978, including Atlantic Richfield, Delhi International Oil, Clark Oil and Buttes Oil and Gas.

Rep. James Cleveland, R-N.H., said he received dividends for stock from Standard Oil of California worth between $2,500 and $5,000 and dividends from Gulf Oil, Mobil Oil and Exxon Corp. of between $1,000 and $2,500 apiece.

Cleveland said he had holdings in all four companies worth $15,000 to $50,000 apiece.

Rep. William Clinger, D-Pa., listed extensive common stock holdings in some of the best known corporations, including a holding of at least $100,000 in Gulf Oil Corp.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., listed income ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 from royalties on interest in 11 Pennsylvania gas wells.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., received a royalty interest of between $1,000 and $2,500 on oil and gas producing leases in his home state.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., a leading opponent of last year's oil price decontrol bill, reported receiving $5,850 in honoraria from oil companies and industry associations. Dingell has supported President Carter's recent decontrol decision.

However, other congressmen who listed extensive stock holdings apparently kept oil and gas interests out of their portfolios.

Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., who listed a total of $812,000 in stocks and dividends, reported no interests in oil or natural gas.

Rep. Michael McCormack, D-Wash., chairman of an energy technology subcommittee, listed stock in two solar energy companies.

The exact amounts of dividend payments and stock purchases are not listed in the disclosure reports. However, congressmen are required to list their investments and outside income in one of six or seven categories that give amounts in ranges.

In 1978, congressmen were permitted to receive up to a total of $25,000 in honoraria. Starting this year, however, outside earnings are limited by House rules to $8,600.

Like most members of Congress, Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., reported very little in outside holdings, liabilities or income. Markey reported only a $100 fee for an article for the Boston Globe.

Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., listed an interest worth between $50,000 and $100,000 in the Ace Car Wash Inc.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., had several staff members submit disclosure statements. One staffer listed under personal property a sheepdog named Buffy Bear worth $115, a younger sheepdog named Brandy worth $136 and a cat named Buster worth $15.

The Senate is expected to formally issue its financial disclosure statements for 1978 later this week.

However, some reports were made available early, among them a statement in which Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California reported receiving $24,926 in honoraria in 1978 in addition to his congressional salary of $57,500. Cranston also listed real estate holdings, including a Washington townhouse and a lot and a commercial building in Los Altos, Calif., each worth between $100,000 and $250,000.

Burger was among eight of the nine Supreme Court justices to file disclosure statements; Justice Lewis F. Powell has received permission to file his statement one month late.

The reports showed that Potter Stewart is by far the wealthiest of the justices who filed statements. A 12-page financial disclosure by Stewart showed that in 1978 he and his wife Mary Ann received between $86,500 and $233,000 in income from trusts, capital gains, rents, royalties and dividends from a substantial stock portfolio.

Figures are not exact because the disclosure form indicates only ranges in which amounts fall instead of giving specific amounts.

Besides Connally, the presidential aspirants filing statements by Wednesday were former CIA Director George Bush, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan. and Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., all with six-digit incomes.

President Carter must file both as a federal official and candidate. The White House said that both the president and Vice President Walter F. Mondale's report would be filed in about two weeks.

Because this is the first reporting required under the new law and because the new Office of Government Ethics was late in providing the required forms, generous allowances are being made for delayed filings.

Bride Discards Woman 'Husband'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A 17-year-old bride who was married for four months before she discovered her 19-year-old "husband" was a woman has been granted an annulment.

Chancellor D.J. Alissandratos ordered the marriage annulled Tuesday after reviewing a birth certificate of the young woman's spouse, showing the husband was born a female.

The young woman, who now works for a Memphis restaurant, was asked during the hearing only if she knew her spouse was a woman when they married in 1978.

"No, ma'am," she told attorney Audrey M. Scott.

Alissandratos granted the annulment based on a Tennessee law forbidding homosexual marriages.

The minister who married the couple in a large, formal ceremony said the discovery the bridegroom was a woman came as a complete shock to him, the bride and his congregation.

"I'm a certified sex therapist," said the minister who asked that his name not be used. "I'm not that easily fooled."

But he said the groom — who was "nearly a twin of David Cassidy" — looked and acted like a man.

"He had masculine characteristics," the minister said. "I later learned that he was taking male hormones."

The clergyman, who said he had reservations about marrying the couple only because of the bride's age, said he agreed after the girl threatened to run away. Bridal showers were given by church members, invitations were sent and a well-attended, formal wedding was held.

It was not until the couple left for a new home in Atlanta that the minister began to hear rumors about the "groom."

Returning to Memphis, the girl told the minister she left her husband after hearing her in-laws use a woman's name when referring to her spouse.

The girl said her husband had always refused to undress with the lights on, claiming he had a deformity caused by a football injury.

REGIONAL

ROUNDUP

Morton High Announces Honor Grads

MORTON (Special) — Annette Willingham, daughter of Gary and Janie Willingham, has been selected valedictorian, and Mary Kay Smith, daughter of Mrs. Morton Smith, is salutatorian of the 1979 graduating class of Morton High School.

Miss Willingham was named Outstanding Student in geometry, algebra I and II, English I, American history and trigonometry.

She is vice president of the student council, president of Future Teachers of America, and vice president of the MHS band. She has been a member of Future Homemakers of America, the National Honor Society and was a cheerleader.

Miss Willingham, who plans to attend South Plains College in Levelland, lettered in tennis four years.

Miss Smith is president of Future Homemakers of America and secretary of National Honor Society, Future Teachers of America, MHS band and the student council.

Miss Smith also is a cheerleader and has received a $600 scholarship through 4-H and plans to attend Texas Tech University.

Top Two Levelland Students Named

LEVELLAND (Special) — Levelland High School has named Dale Moore as valedictorian and Kent Rhyme as salutatorian of the 1979 graduating class.

Saletta Duff was honored as top senior girl.

Moore, son of Gordon Moore of Lubbock and Betty Moore Spruill of Levelland, earned a four-year 98.36 grade average. He recently was named as an alternate for a nationwide National Honor Society scholarship and has lettered in basketball, baseball and track for three years.

Rhyme, son of Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Rhyme of Levelland, also was nominated for the National Honor Society scholarship. He is graduating with a 95.9 grade average.

RHYME MOORE

Miss Duff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buford Duff of Levelland, has a 95.46 average. She has participated in band and was editor of the high school yearbook for two years.

Granberry To Be Commencement Speaker

SNYDER — Dr. James Granberry, former Lubbock mayor, will be the speaker for commencement exercises at Western Texas College at 8 p.m. today.

Granberry served as mayor of Lubbock from 1970 to 1972 and was given an Award of Appreciation from the citizens of Lubbock for his leadership during and after the tornado which struck the city in 1970.

In 1974, Granberry was the Republican party's nominee for governor. He was named to the State Republican Executive Committee in 1978 and served as Lubbock County chairman of Gov. Clements's campaign.

One hundred twelve students are candidates for Associate in Arts and Associate in Applied Science degrees, and another 15 are to receive certificates of technology for completion of one-year programs.

Dr. Robert L. Clinton, president of WTC, will introduce Dr. Granberry. Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president, and Dr. Gene McClurg, dean of Occupational Education and Technology, will award degrees.

Commencement ceremonies are scheduled in WTC's Central Courtyard and will be moved to the college gymnasium in the event of unfavorable weather. A reception honoring the graduates will be held in the Student Center following the program.

Walkathon Draws 500 People

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — More than 500 persons participated in the March of Dimes Walkathon here May 5.

The walk extended from Clovis High School to the Cannon AFB ramp. This week the walkers visited their sponsors and collected their pledges based upon their number of miles walked in the Walkathon. Most of the entrants completed the 15-mile route.

Pledges are to be turned in to Ken White Commodity Office by Friday.

Airport Operation Transferred

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — The city of Paducah and Cottle County have turned operation of the co-owned Dan E. Richards airport over to the newly-created Airport Advisory Board.

Kenneth Trent was appointed chairman. Other members are Homer Long, Orin Fell, Alton Jones and Bobby Sunday.

Researchers Get Grant

CLOVIS, N.M. (Special) — Three University of New Mexico researchers have been awarded an $81,400 grant from the Carnegie Corp. of New York to publish a directory of externally funded programs in higher education for Hispanic and native American students.

Manuel Justiz, associate director of Latin American Programs in Education, Dillon Platero, director of the American Indian Center for Community Education, and Paul Resta, associate dean for special projects in the College of Education, are principal investigators for the project.

An advisory board, chaired by UNM President William Davis, will provide technical advice and will assist in giving direction to the project, Justiz said. The Carnegie Corp. grant will cover all costs of the first printing of the directory, but the continued revision and publication of the book will be assured by royalties from sales of the first edition.

UNM Press, which will print the directory, also will manage an escrow account which designates that royalties be used for technical and reproduction costs of producing new editions.

Justiz said the first edition of the directory should be ready to go to press by next summer. He said a vast market exists for the reference book which should assure that it will be available for 10 to 15 years.

A full-time researcher will be hired next month to begin the initial research and survey work, Resta said. The fragmented nature of current information will make the project a challenge, he added.

Antelope Study Slated In New Mexico

ROSEWELL (Special) — An independent four-year antelope study in southeastern New Mexico will begin in early June, according to two researchers from New Mexico State University.

V.W. Howard and Rex Pieper, professors at NMSU, told area ranchers participating in the study that the university will begin the research financed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) as soon as two full-time research technicians are hired.

The study was developed after two years of controversy over a BLM program to modify small sections of fences on public land to allow passage of antelope. Ranchers believed the modifications, which allow antelope to crawl under the fences, would also allow predators and livestock to move between pastures.

Two college-trained technicians, working under the direction of Howard and Pieper, will complete the research on the 18 test pastures. The technicians will be based in Rosewell during the four years of the study.

The researchers will watch movement of livestock and antelope through different sizes and types of existing fence modifications in some of the test pastures. They will also determine the size of area needed for a herd of antelope to grow and develop.

The BLM awarded the research contract to NMSU in late April. NMSU's projected cost for the study is $311,000, about $18,000 more than the BLM had allocated. BLM officials, however, said the agency will provide the additional funding.

Paducah Honor Students Named

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH — James Prater and LeAnn Long are valedictorian and salutatorian of the 1979 Paducah High School graduating class.

Prater, son of Mrs. Atha Prater, finished with a 2.913 average on a 3-point scale, while Miss Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Long, recorded a 2.868 average.

Prater was senior class president and band president, and plans to enter the architecture engineering program at Texas Tech University in the fall.

Miss Long was vice president of the National Honor Society, a cheerleader and a member of the Dragonettes volleyball team.

'Gossamer Albatross' To Try Channel

LONDON (AP) — A 26-year-old California man plans to climb into a gawky, 70-pound airplane this month for an attempt to fly across the English Channel on his own power.

The plane, the Gossamer Albatross, has a 96-foot wingspan — longer than that of a DC-9 — and is built with the latest super-light materials.

Bryan Allen plans to climb onto its bicycle seat and start pedaling at dawn on a near-windless day, possibly as soon as Saturday.

"We'd like to fly very early in the day," designer Paul MacCready, 53, told a news conference Wednesday, "because one of the big problems we face is overheating."

The nearly transparent Albatross is to drift into the air near Folkestone, about 10 miles from Dover and opposite Calais on the French coast. He said plans call for the plane to level off at 30 feet and glide at about 13 miles an hour. If all goes well, MacCready said, the craft will land in France — somewhere.

The channel is only about 25 miles wide at that point. MacCready, of Pasadena, Calif., said wide variations from a straight-line crossing might become necessary to avoid air turbulence stirred up by ships, many of whose crew will be able to look up at the flying plane.

Allen, a 6-foot, 137-pound bike racer whose pilot qualifications include being able to generate .35 horsepower for more than two hours, has never gone all-out in the Albatross. Just before leaving for England he pedaled it for 69 minutes, covering about 14 miles, and said he felt he could have gone on for hours.

If they make it, the team will win a $200,000 prize offered by British industrialist Henry Kremer. MacCready said that will just about cover expenses.

Banks Pressing Cleveland For Payment Of Debts

CLEVELAND (AP) — Five months after Cleveland's default, local bankers are pressing demands for repayment, and the firm which runs the city's computers is quitting because of $1.6 million in unpaid bills.

"I find it difficult to understand why prompt repayment should not be made," William Clutterbuck, senior vice president of Cleveland Trust, said he wrote to city Finance Director Mary Medvick on Tuesday.

James Wert, senior vice president of Society National Bank, informed the city his bank also wants to be repaid with interest by Dec. 31.

Cleveland Trust, the city's largest bank, is owed $5 million. Society is owed $500,000.

Miss Medvick said Wednesday that it may be 1980 before the defaulted notes are repaid entirely, but that the city would keep up interest payments, the Cleveland Press reported Wednesday. She told the Press that as of April 30, the city had $12 million in checks written to creditors but not mailed because of a lack of funds. She said the $12 million is "within the normal range."

The finance director said she had not been notified of the canceled computer contract.

Computer Services Corp. of El Segundo, Calif., operator of Cleveland's data processing system, said it authorized its lawyers to notify the city it would terminate its contract 90 days after May 18.

"We have repeatedly attempted to work out a plan for resolving the payment of outstanding invoices, but to date the city has expressed no willingness to do so," said Matt Lawson, a Computer Services spokesman.

In February, voters in the nation's 18th largest city approved a 50 percent increase in the municipal payroll tax and City Council later passed an ordinance, over the mayor's veto, setting aside the new tax receipts to pay off the defaulted notes.

Mayor Dennis Kucinich has refused to enforce the ordinance, saying Cleveland can only afford to begin repaying the notes in July, with a first payment of $1 million. A state appeals court is considering a council attempt to force Kucinich to use the tax receipts to wipe out the debt.

Cleveland defaulted on Dec. 15, 1978, when it failed to repay six banks when $15 million in municipal notes matured.

Last week, Central National Bank warned in a letter it planned to go to court if necessary to collect its $3 million. But Central National President Wilson Brown Jr. called the letter a "friendly hug, not a bang on the head" in an attempt to get financial information and a repayment plan from the city.

So far, no bank has made a formal move to foreclose on the city.

$1,000 Grant

Awarded

Meadow School

MEADOW (Special) — The Meadow High School department of drama has received a $1,000 grant from the Ahmanson Foundation of Los Angeles, Calif.

Some of the funds will be used for scholarships to summer workshops.

The grant was issued in memory of Thelma Cates Bockmon, deceased wife of a longtime Meadow science teacher, C.L. Bockmon, who now is in Avinger.

Meadow students produce an all-school play in the fall. Meadow one-act plays have qualified for the state meet in Austin 13 of 15 years, and placed first, seven of those times.

Meadow now is tied with Snyder High School for the most first place wins in the history of the contest.

Lubbock Man Picked For Lawyer's Post

J. Michael Irish of Lubbock will succeed John Comere of San Antonio as president of the Texas Young Lawyers Association (TYLA) of the State Bar of Texas after the annual State Bar convention June 26 to 29.

Lucius D. Bunton, an Odessa lawyer, has been elected president-elect of the State Bar and Terry Scarborough of Austin who was born in Petersburg, was chosen president-elect of TYLA.

Bunton defeated O.F. "Dink" Jones of Victoria in the statewide balloting.

Supply Vessel Bumped Collapsed Rig's Leg

GALVESTON (AP)—A vessel delivering supplies to an oil rig platform in the Gulf of Mexico bumped a leg of the rig eight hours before it collapsed into the sea, killing at least two men and leaving six missing, the ship's captain testified Wednesday.

Capt. Van Meter Fayard, master of the 150-foot Delta Seahorse, was the first of six witnesses to testify before a Coast Guard board of inquiry probing the collapse of Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp.'s Ranger I rig last Thursday night about 12 miles south of here.

Of the 34 men at the rig, counting the boat crew, 26 were rescued. Two bodies have been recovered and six are missing.

Following Fayard's testimony, Coast Guard Capt. William E. Whaley, chairman of the board, said the leg struck by the Delta Seahorse apparently was not the same leg that collapsed on the 1,300-ton rig.

Also scheduled to appear were five other survivors: Joe Pillsbury, first mate of the Delta Seahorse; Mac Johnson, a toolpusher; James Sasser, a driller; James Densing, a roustabout and Jim Ferguson of Mitchell Energy, operator of the rig.

"We tried to moor to the rig Ranger I, and during the mooring operation I brushed the starboard bow leg of the rig Ranger I," Fayard testified. "After that we stayed on anchor because of the weather. Two people came off the rig. They examined the leg and as far as I know, they didn't think it was anything to get concerned about."

Fayard, of Waveland, Miss., said there was no damage to the Delta Seahorse and added, "If there was any damage to that leg, it was very slight."

Fayard testified he examined the rig leg and could see paint and rust scraped from the leg.

Eight hours later, while asleep in his cabin, Fayard said he was awakened by a loud cracking sound.

"When you hear a sound like that, and you're on a boat, you go find out what it is," he said. "It was a sound out of the ordinary."

"I ran to the pilot house and saw Ranger I going into the water, stern first. And we were still moored to it."

"In about five or ten minutes the rest of the rig caved into the water. Immediately the rig and my ship turned 180 degrees with the flow of the current."

Fayard said he ordered the mooring lines holding the rig to the ship cut about 45 minutes later when the rig's platform started sinking.

Prior to the accident, Fayard had unloaded about 50 tons of supplies including a portable cement tank, chemicals, a drilling unit, and a basket of rig equipment.

Fayard said he also had pumped about 9,000 gallons of diesel fuel onto the rig and about 250 to 500 barrels of water.

Fayard said he sent a Mayday distress signal immediately after rushing to the deck and ordered all life-saving equipment overboard.

"Since I was on anchor, it was my decision to remain at anchor to be a stationary base that they (survivors) could swim to," the 50-year-old captain said.

The hearing opened with a statement read on behalf of Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf, saying that committee will investigate the disaster.

Meanwhile, in Houston, U.S. District Court Judge Ross Sterling ordered Atlantic Pacific to remove the rig from the Mitchell lease with all deliberate speed.

Mitchell Energy had earlier filed suit seeking unspecified damages and an order requiring removal of the rig. The Mitchell suit alleges the rig was unseaworthy, which Atlantic Pacific has denied.

NAZI GETS NEW TRIAL
CHICAGO (AP)—Frak Walus, who was stripped of his citizenship last year for allegedly concealing his Nazi past, has again been denied a new trial by federal Judge Julius Hoffman. A defense lawyer had argued that Hoffman should grant a new trial because he discovered five new witnesses willing to testify Walus was doing forced labor in Germany at the time that others have said he was murdering Jews in Poland. But Hoffman agreed Tuesday with prosecutors who said the witnesses should have been presented at the original trial.

Researchers Menstrual Problems Aired

AMHERST, Mass. (AP)—One year ago, the University of Massachusetts Graduate Research Center was closed temporarily after some female laboratory workers complained of irregular menstruation. Today the phenomenon remains a mystery and the focus of controversy.

Some employees report they still experience menstrual problems and believe something inside the 17-story scientific research tower is responsible.

Several lab workers have quit — at least one of them on the advice of a doctor after becoming pregnant.

Federal investigators, however, recently concluded that the irregularities were not caused by "occupational exposure," and school officials have suggested the problem could be psychosomatic.

Those conclusions have prompted criticism that the problem has never been fully investigated because it mostly affected women. Some male lab workers complained of dizziness and headaches last year.

Carole Shuler, a biochemistry lab technician, said that if men were involved, investigators "would tear the building apart."

The research center, which opened in 1972, contains elaborate systems for cooling, heating and circulating air and water, and is "50 times more complex than high-rise dorms on the 24,000-student campus, according to the building engineer, Howard "Bud" Fay.

Experiments in some of its 100 labs routinely use toxic chemicals or radioactive substances. But an extensive network of ducts, vents, drains and pipes designed to handle the dangerous fumes and wastes has performed inefficiently, according to investigators. Strong chemical odors frequently drift through labs and corridors.

Investigators also found that some student and professional experimenters worked in the wrong areas or disposed of hazardous substances in improper receptacles.

The investigation by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, however, could establish no link between chemicals and menstrual irregularity or other employee complaints.

Helen Boland was among the laboratory workers who decided to quit because of the perceived health hazard.

She said she began working as a technician at the research tower last May, shortly before the building was closed for a week. "I was excited about going to work in this big, modern building," she recalled. After it was reopened, she spent two months there without incident.

But then, she said, she began to menstruate irregularly, on 10 to 14 days of a 23-day cycle. "It seemed I was bleeding all the time," she says.

Dr. Samuel Topal, a university gynecologist who examined nine female tower employees last year, says he still does not know what to make of their menstrual problems: "It could be an indication of some chemical in the air ... It's hard to say."

He agreed with the decision to close the building temporarily. "Something had to be done. The women were very angry and I don't blame them. It's more than hysteria," he said.

Also, a survey revealed that a significantly higher number of male and female research center employees than those working elsewhere initially reported such health problems as nausea and dizziness.

Some officials insist the complaints are at least partially psychosomatic. Barry Averill, the university's director of health services, has noted "a high anxiety level" in the research tower, and has suggested some women have become hypersensitive to chemicals in the building.

But Mrs. Shuler says that does not explain why several women on several different floors all developed menstrual irregularity about the same time last spring, long before anything had been said about health hazards.

She said college officials seem to have little interest in following up on the women's problems.

Her view gets some support from Fay, who followed the tower through construction in the early 1970s and generally is thought to know more about it than anyone else.

Sad Story Unavailing In Bank Robbery Trial

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) Richard Vincent Stevens said his back hurt so much he had to take a bus to the bank, but the jury was not sympathetic. It convicted the 62-year-old former maintenance man of attempted robbery.

Sentencing had been scheduled for Wednesday, but Circuit Judge Harry Lee Coe delayed it until June 22 while a pre-sentence investigation is conducted.

Stevens told the judge during a two-hour trial that he had no money, job, family or pain medication when he went to the Central Bank of Tampa Jan. 24.

"I know it was wrong but it was the only way," Stevens said during a two-hour trial. "I was in pain and I needed money for medication and clothes. I took a bus to the bank because my back hurt and I could only walk about 50 feet."

Police answering a robbery alarm at the bank reported finding Stevens hunched against a teller's window. Detectives said Stevens was in severe pain from arthritis and probably could not have made it out of the bank even if police had not been called.

Coe and prosecutor Mark Ober warned the five-woman, one-man jury not to let sympathy interfere with their verdict.

"Of all the people in this courtroom to feel sorry for Mr. Stevens, I do the most," Ober said. "But there's no doubt that...he did what he did. He's not alone. There are thousands of people in his condition."

The jury convicted Stevens after 45 minutes of deliberation.

Sam Houston Ends Chaps Playoff Hopes

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The Lubbock Christian College baseball team, which had fought for life all season long, passed away in its sleep Wednesday.

The cause of death was pitching — or rather lack of it. Eight different LCC pitchers gave up 22 runs and 25 hits as the Chaparrals dropped both ends of a doubleheader by scores of 10-5 and 12-8 to fall out of the NAA's Area II baseball tournament here.

Victor in the first game was number two William Carey College. In the second game, it was number seven Sam Houston State. But in both cases, the end was swift and relatively painless.

In the nightcap, with the loser facing elimination, Sam Houston paraded 28 batters to the plate in the first four innings to take an 11-7 lead that was never threatened.

The first four batters the Bearcats sent to the plate reached first, two on hits and two on walks. All four scored.

In the second inning, Sam Houston appeared to have the game well in hand as it chased starter Gary Swann, after he had allowed three runs.

Trailing 7-0, LCC started to fight back. Bobby Doe walked. Karl Mahan was hit by a pitch and Brady Brashear singled to load the bases. Coach Larry Hayes sent pinch-hitter Mark Morgan to the plate. He walked, scoring Doe. Tommy Inman popped weakly to third for the second out, but Steve Brigante rose to the occasion with a booming triple off the right-centerfield wall to make the score 7-4.

Seemingly bolstered by this unexpected support, reliever John Ross retired SHSU without much furor in the top of the third. He was rewarded in the bottom of the frame.

Kenny Toney and Doe each singled and then, with one out, Mahan drove the ball into right field for a single scoring Toney. Brashear fought off an inside pitch, popping it weakly to the centerfielder, but that was enough to score Doe, making the score 7-4.

The celebration was short lived. SHSU got a double from Steve Hume to open the inning. Glenn Wilson walked and John Tomlinson singled to score Hume and leaving men at first and second.

Designated hitter Gary Wyatt knew what to do then. He gave the ball a long ride, parking it well behind the fence in right-centerfield, effectively ending the ballgame.

LCC, which made it to the area tournament for the sixth time in the last seven years, finished the season 42-24.

In the first game, second-ranked William Carey College knocked through four LCC pitchers (three in the eighth inning) on the way to its second-round game with

No. 1-rated Grand Canyon.

The Crusaders had three players with three or more hits in the win over LCC. Leading the way was second baseman Ricky McMullen who was simply phenomenal, collecting four hits in four at-bats, scoring 4 runs and notching 3 RBIs. Included in that list was a fourth-inning, 2-run homer that blew the game open.

LCC and WCC see-sawed through the early innings, then with LCC up by a run in the bottom of the fourth, Steve Sasser belted a triple to deep right-center field. He scored on Dexter Day's single to tie the game.

LCC starter Kevin Burke got Reggie LaGrone to fly out, but then McMullen delivered his key homer straight down the left field line to make the score 5-3.

That chased Burke and brought on reliever Noel Delgado, who had come on in a similar situation in the district tournament at Dallas last week and collected a win. It looked as if he might repeat that Wednesday as he retired five of the next six batters.

But then Day led off the sixth with a double, stole third and scored on a McMullen single to notch the insurance run.

LCC threatened in the top of the eighth but came up short. Trailing 6-3, left fielder Richard Bowles knocked the ball deep into center field. The WCC outfielders must

Don Henry Follow The Meandering Path

AS THEY TROTTED onto the court in San Antonio's HemisFair Arena Wednesday night, some 16,000 fans stood and stomped their feet and cheered. The Spurs were home...

They were playing at home... They have found a home...

But, just like a thirsty cowboy hitting a watering hole after six months on the trail, they took a very winding route home.

And as they packed their bags Wednesday night and headed for their next game in the NBA playoffs, there just might have been a couple of feathers tucked away in a vacant corner of a traveling bag, the final reminder of a flighty history.

The Spurs weren't born in the shadow of the Alamo, nor in the mind and bank vault of some NBA bigwig. They were born in the heart of Big D, then farmed out to a couple of neighbors, only to be returned to their original parents before being rescued by the loving fans of San Antonio. Fans who loved and watched over them, until they could grow up, strong and feisty.

GONE ARE THE days of the Beasleys, Cincy Powell, Ron Boone, Max Williams, the beach ball, Gene Moore, Manny Leaks, Donnie Freeman, the 3-point play, Rich Jones, Glen Combs, and Bill Blakely.

Gone are the opponents such as the Condors, the Floridians, the Cougars, the Stars, the Colonels.

Gone are the Chaparrals themselves. Roadrunners take straighter paths to safety — or successful feeding areas — than did the Chaparrals of the late 60's and early 70's.

It was the American Basketball Association which brought professional basketball to Dallas in 1967. They were the Chaparrals, and uniforms — not attendance figures — were the brightest things about them.

For three years, they ran in Dallas, then came that new concept which was to revolutionize the profession, the regional concept. Dallas owners looked westward, first to Fort Worth and then to Lubbock.

My, how looks are deceptive.

FROM THE DALLAS Chaparrals, they became, in the summer of for 1970, the Texas Chaparrals, and red, white and blue, Texas-shaped emblems with a road-runner striding through toward El Paso popped up on car bumpers and on windows over Lubbock.

Bullets Even Series With Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Elvin Hayes hit for 25 points and Bobby Dandridge had 10 of his 20 in the fourth quarter Wednesday night as Washington upended San Antonio 108-100 to send the National Basketball Association finals back to the Bullets home court for the decisive seventh game Friday night.

With the game tied at 82 less than two minutes into the fourth quarter, Hayes converted a three-point play to put the Bullets ahead to stay. Washington, who shifted in the final period to a big lineup that included Dandridge, a 6-foot-6 forward, at guard, then outscored the Spurs 18-10 in the next 7½ minutes to take an 11-point lead and put the game away.

Reserve forward Greg Ballard had eight of his 18 points in the final period as the Bullets fought back from the Spurs' commanding 3-1 lead to even the series 3-3.

The Bullets led 54-49 at halftime, but the Spurs staged a third-quarter uprising, outscoring the Bullets 12-2 in a 3½-minute span to take a 73-70 lead with 3:01 remaining in the period.

But Hayes, hounded by double coverage throughout the game, hit a dunk shot at the buzzer to tie it at 78.

San Antonio's George Gervin, averaging 31 points per game in the series, was held to 20 by a scrappy, double-teaming Washington defense.

Washington took command of the game at the start, holding a seven-point lead, 30-23 at the end of the first quarter.

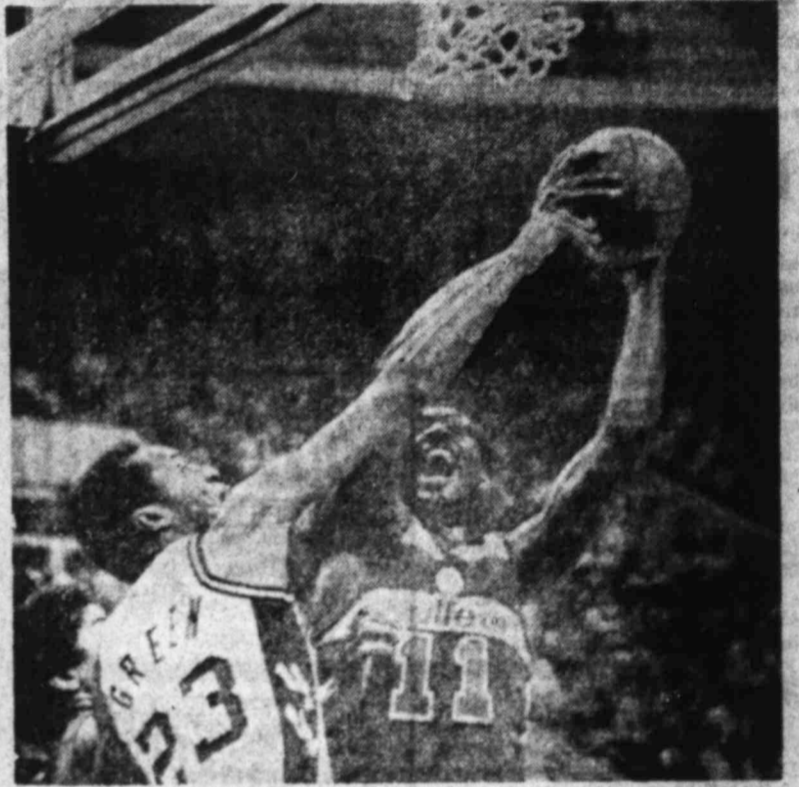

The usually hot-handed Spurs could shoot only 36 percent in the second quarter but managed to cut Washington's lead to five at the half.

San Antonio reserve guard Mike Gale kept the Spurs in contention in the second quarter by scoring eight of his 18 points in that period.

The 6-9 Hayes, held to less than 20 points per game in the series by the Spurs' trapping defense, had only nine points in the first half but came up with 11 in the third quarter. The Spurs had been using one of their guards to double-team Hayes and Dandridge near the basket, leaving Washington guard Tom Henderson free.

The much-maligned Henderson managed 11 points in the game, all of them in the first three periods. Washington's other guard, Kevin Grevey, had 15 points.

Amarillo To Host Dragway Event

AMARILLO (Special) — A strong field of professional drag-racing drivers will be invading Amarillo Dragway Saturday and Sunday for the rich National Hot Rod Association Winston World Championship Series, the fourth event on the five-race South Central regional points campaign.

More than 300 competitors will be battling for $40,000 in cash and contingency awards during the two-day event, as all eight NHRA competition categories — including the top fuel, funny car and pro stock professional divisions — will be in action, along with the four ET bracket classes.

Topping the list of pro entrants will be winter nationals top fuel champ Bob Noice of Van Nuys, Calif., who now pilots the potent Brissette & Drake dragster which took Kelly Brown to the Winston World Championship in 1978.

Noice moved into the driver's seat when Brown joined another racing team early this year.

Noice recently captured the Division 4 points event at Fort Worth, and he is currently second in the regional standings and third in world points.

Challenging Noice for top-fuel honors this weekend will be current South Central Division leader Steve Stephens of Houston who captured the opening event on the Division 4 schedule at New Orleans, La. Stephens, the 1977 Division 4 titleholder, finished fourth in last year's regional standings, and his Quick-silver dragster figures to be the top opponent for Noice and the Brissette & Drake machine.

Other contenders include former two-time divisional titlist Mike Tarter of Houston, past U.S. Nationals winner Marvin Graham of Oklahoma City, Doug Mead of Sulphur, La., and former pro champion Keith Craig of Oklahoma City.

In the funny car category, Texan Billy Meyer of Wado leads the field with his Plymouth Arrow. The 24-year-old veteran recently took top honors at Fort Worth in the third event on the South Central regional circuit, and he will be shooting for two in a row here.

Meyer has placed third in the final Winston World standings for the past two seasons and is currently sixth in this year's world points.

Battling Meyer for the funny car title will be West Coast ace Simon Manziez of Torrance, Calif., who drives a Dodge Challenger. Manziez won the Bakersfield, Calif., Fuel and Gas Championships in March.

Chip Woodall of Dallas, Larry Brown and Jerry Jefferson of Oklahoma City, and Ezra Boggs of Norman, Okla., will be in the funny car field.

In pro stock, defending Division 4 champion Lee Shepherd of Arlington brings the Reher & Morrison Chevrolet-Camero in search of his fourth consecutive regional win. Shepherd, fourth in the final Winston World standings a year ago and currently second behind leader Bob Glidden, has dominated the pro stock class in the first three races.

His competition includes Billy Wash of Forsan, Bobby Marriot of Dallas and Jerry Janke of San Antonio.

Lakers Pay Out 'Magic' Figure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers announced today that they have reached agreement with Michigan State's Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the player they'll take as the first pick in the National Basketball Association draft.

A contract won't be signed until the Lakers formally pick Johnson in the June 25 draft.

Johnson, tall (6-foot-8), extremely quick 19-year-old, agreed to a contract calling for a reported four years at $600,000 a season.

Johnson, smiling broadly, entered a packed press conference and said, "I'm happy and excited to be here. I probably wouldn't have come out (in the hardship draft) if this team hadn't wanted me. The Lakers have one of the best centers in the league in Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and it's an outstanding organization."

Johnson, a sophomore, had announced last Friday that he was turning professional, declaring himself a hardship case. He said the decision was difficult because of all the factors involved — "the money, my team, my coach and my family."

A gifted passer and playmaker, Johnson averaged 17 points a game in leading the Spartans to the NCAA championship. He played point guard — an extremely unusual position for a player his size.

Nicknamed "Magic" for his sleight-of-hand artistry with the ball, Johnson also averaged 7.3 rebounds and 8.4 assists for the collegiate champions.

The Lakers, who won a coin flip with the Chicago Bulls for the first pick in the draft, decided to pick Johnson over such other outstanding collegians as Sidney Moncrief of Arkansas, Bill Cartwright of the University of San Francisco, UCLA's David Greenwood and — possibly — Indiana State's Larry Bird.

The Boston Celtics have negotiating rights to Bird, but the collegiate player of the year will enter the draft if he and the Celtics don't reach agreement.

Suns, Sonics To End Series

SEATTLE — The biggest game of the season for both the Seattle SuperSonics and Phoenix Suns is set for Thursday night when the two National Basketball Association teams meet in the deciding seventh game of their Western Conference championship series.

The winner of Thursday's game will advance to the NBA finals against the winner of the Eastern Conference championship series matching the defending champion Washington Bullets and San Antonio Spurs.

The Spurs held a 3-2 lead in the series entering Wednesday night's sixth game at San Antonio.

The opposing coaches Thursday, Len Wilkens of Seattle and John MacLeod of Phoenix, agree that the 30,000-plus Kingdome fans can expect another rugged battle on the boards in the emotional, physically draining series.

Seattle's big front line of center Jack Sikma and forwards Lonnie Shelton and John Johnson, along with wily veteran reserve Paul Silas, have dominated the boards throughout the series.

Although he isn't advertising his strategy, Wilkens may assign Shelton, the Sonics' power forward, to guard the Sun's dangerous high-scoring small forward Walter Davis.

MacLeod has replaced Adams with rookie Joel Kramer.

Ehlo Signs Odessa Letter

ODESSA (Special) — Craig Ehlo, who led Monterey to a District 4-AAAA basketball title, has signed a letter-of-intent with Odessa College, according to head coach Ron Mayberry.

Last season, the 6-5 cager was cited by the Avalanche-Journal as the City's top schoolboy cager after leading the Monterey Plainsmen to district and bi-district basketball titles. He was also the MVP of District 4-AAAA.

"I think I can play for them next year," commented the Joe Michalka pupil. "They've got a good team and I'm happy to be a part of it."

During his senior year, Ehlo scored 438 points during the regular season. He hit 165-316 shots from the floor and 108-143 free throws, along with pulling down 265 rebounds.

Against El Paso Coronado in the first-round of the region tournament, Ehlo paced all MHS scorers with 17 points. However, Monterey lost the game 58-43.

At Odessa, Ehlo will be used primarily as a second guard, he said.

"They lost Bobby Ray Ennis to Cal-State Fullerton," said Ehlo. "So that opens up one spot. They needed another guard."

Despite his ball-handling and scoring capabilities, Ehlo said he was not contacted by a major four-year school, prompting him to ink with OC.

"I was kinda disappointed," commented Ehlo. "But hopefully after I get finished at Odessa, a major college will be interested."

Ehlo will go from one winner to another when he makes the move to OC. Last year, Monterey finished the season with a 25-4 won loss mark. At the same time Odessa was 26-9, finishing second behind Western Texas College in the Western Junior College Conference title chase.

"He's certainly a college prospect," said Michalka. "He can certainly do a lot of things with the ball...shoot, score. He was definitely one of the top players in the area last year."

Watson Heads Colonial Field

FORT WORTH (AP)—Tom Watson long has said that the only people he's trying to impress are his peers—the other touring golf professionals. "Really, they're the only ones who can fully appreciate it if you make a good shot. They know what you're doing, what you're trying to do, the difficulty involved," Watson said time and time again.

"They know if you've made a good shot, or if you've made a lucky shot. They're the people I want to impress. I want their respect. You know, that Tom Watson was one helluva player, well, that's what I want."

He doesn't have to wait. They're saying it now. They are impressed.

"How about that?" asked Jerry McGee. "Can you believe his 1-2 record? Seven 1-2 finishes in 12 tournaments. Is that strong?"

And he answered his own question. "It's unbelievable."

"I hope he keeps on going. Something like this is good for golf."

Watson's authoritative domination, reasserted in the last couple of months, has given the game a focal point and new interest.

The Man To Beat

He is, of course, the man to beat going into the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament that starts today on the famed old Colonial Country Club course, a par 70 layout measuring 7,151 yards along the banks of the Trinity River.

"He just keeps doing it. He's doing everything well, scrambling when he has to and he's hitting the ball very well," said Jack Tuthill, the PGA official in charge of this event and a veteran of two decades on the pro tour.

Third Golf Victory

His victory in the Byron Nelson Classic last week was Watson's third of the season. No one else has won more than two. In addition, he's been second four times and has been a playoff loser in the last two major events, the 1978 PGA and the 1979 Masters.

"It boosted his season's earnings to $286,674, more than $120,000 ahead of the man in second place. And, as usual, he leads the tour in stroke average, 70.5."

Those statistics, of course, put him in the lead for a third consecutive Player of the Year title and make him an overwhelming favorite for the $54,000 first prize here.

Opposing him a strong invitational field of 102 that includes defending champion Lee Trevino and the three players who have scored double victories this year, Hubert Green, Lanny Wadkins and Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller, back in action after a three-week break.

Assembly Eyes Preakness Title

BALTIMORE (AP)—Trainer Lefty Jolley finally got to see the film this week of General Assembly's second-place finish to Spectacular Bid in the Kentucky Derby.

He liked what he saw. "I thought he ran even better than when I saw the actual race," Jolley said Wednesday. Saturday, General Assembly will try and top his good showing in the Derby with an upset victory over heavily favored Spectacular Bid in the Preakness at Pimlico.

Spectacular Bid is a heavy favorite to continue his march toward the Triple Crown, but Jolley said, "There's no cinch, I haven't seen one yet."

Jolley has beaten two straight years with the Preakness favorite—in 1975 with Foolish Pleasure and in 1976 with Honest Pleasure.

Three other 3-year-olds are expected to join the field for the 1 3/16th mile $200,000-added Preakness. They are Golden Act, third in the Derby, and Flying Paster and Screen King, fifth and sixth, respectively, in the Derby.

"These are the five best 3-year-olds in America, I think," said Bud Delp, trainer of Spectacular Bid. "There are some great trainers down there," said Delp as he looked along the barns housing the Preakness horses. "There are some great horses down there."

"It's just unfortunate for them that I got the best horse."

Jolley, hoping he has the best horse Saturday, put General Assembly through his final workout Wednesday. With jockey Vince Bracciale Jr. in the irons, the son of Secretariat went five-eighths of a mile on a sloppy track in 58.5 seconds.

Two NMJC Cagers Ink College Letters

HOBBS, N.M. (Special)—Rod Camp and Kirk Eubank, who shared the Most Valuable Player award on this year's New Mexico Junior College basketball team, have signed letters-of-intent to play on the major college level next season.

Camp, a 6-10 center, has signed with Southern Illinois University. Eubank, a 6-5 forward, has signed with the University of Hawaii.

Meanwhile, NMJC has signed Kenny Patrick, a 6-3 forward from Las Cruces High School, to a grant-in-aid agreement. Patrick, the MVP of his team and an all-district performer, averaged 21.5 points per game with a 58 per cent field goal average and 81 per cent free throw average.

and galloped out three-quarters in 1:11. His fractions were 1:14 1/2 for the first eighth, 23 for the quarter, 35 for three-eighths and 47 for the half.

The Wednesday before the May 5 Derby, General Assembly worked five-eighths on a dry track in 57.5.

"At Churchill Downs he came off a kind of lackluster performance (fifth in the Wood Memorial) and needed a good work in him. Here he's coming off a mile and a quarter race," said Jolley, explaining the difference in the workout times. He said he was pleased with Wednesday's work.

In the Derby, General Assembly, ridden by Laffit Pincay, duelled with Sham-go for the lead through the first three-quarters of a mile, and with a quarter-mile left, he was in front. Then Spectacular Bid took command in the upper stretch and won by 2 1/4 lengths.

"He won't necessarily be on the lead Saturday," said Jolley when asked if General Assembly could be expected to set the pace. "It's something you can't decide. It was Pincay's option (to run on the pace in the Derby). It will be his option again."

As for what he thought Spectacular Bid's strategy might be, Jolley said, "He comes from all over the place. He runs from everywhere. He constantly changes his style."

Texas Signs Canyon Cager

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nancy Walling, a 5-foot-9 all-state player from Canyon, has signed to play basketball for the University of Texas women's team.

Walling averaged 19.3 points and more than four steals a game in Class 3A. She is Texas' final basketball recruit for the women's team. "We wanted that 6-5 post player that we couldn't locate," said Texas Coach Jody Conradt, "but we got the cream of the crop in Texas, and nobody in the state can compare with our recruiting year. We'll have the finest freshman class in Texas next year."

Lopez Understands Tour Problem

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — There's no question Nancy Lopez is the star of the LPGA show and the vivacious 22-year-old disclaims reports that her success has caused resentment on the tour.

"The girls haven't cold-shouldered me," Lopez said Wednesday after competing in the pro-am portion of a $100,000 tournament which gets under way Friday at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

"There might be some jealousies," she admitted, however. "But I would feel the same way if I was leading a tournament and all the reporters asked about Nancy Lopez. I can understand that resentment."

Lopez, who became Mrs. Tim Melton in January, was distressed by a recent article in an Orlando, Fla., newspaper that quoted several players stating they didn't miss her because she wasn't playing in that week's event.

Lopez set all kinds of records as a tour rookie last year, including nine tournament victories and an incredible five in a row — the second of which came in this event last year when it was played at the Forsgate Country Club in Jamesburg.

Umpires May Go Back To Work

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Major league baseball umpires have won substantial salary increases, in-season vacations and a boost in per diem and travel expenses which should end their work stoppage as early as Saturday, the Associated Press learned Wednesday.

The 52 umpires, who have refused to work since before spring training, will meet here Friday to announce an agreement expected to be signed Thursday in New York. The umpires' representative, Richie Phillips, is scheduled to complete the settlement with American League president Lee MacPhail and National League president Chub Feeney.

A source told the Associated Press the umpires have been directed to bring their equipment and their traveling bags here for the Friday meeting when they'll go over the details of the settlement.

Expected To Receive First Assignments — It is expected they'll receive their first assignments of the season, and perhaps be on the job the next day.

While the umpires have steadfastly maintained their work stoppage, the major league used sandlot and minor league umpires to work in the spring and since the regular season started last month.

Jim Evans, an American League umpire, said in Beaumont, Tex., that he and his colleagues had been summoned to a Friday meeting in Philadelphia. Ron Luciano of the American League, president of the Major League Umpires' Association, and National League umpire Paul Runge, vice president, will conduct the meeting.

The Major Impetus

The source said the major impetus in forging the agreement came from major league teams, individual players, at least one prominent owner, and behind the scene, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The Cincinnati Reds, Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Royals, for example, sent letters to their league offices expressing growing concern with the work of the substitute umpires. They urged the leagues to do everything possible to restore competent personnel.

The letters criticized the minor league and sandlot umpires for bad calls that were affecting the outcome of countless games. They said also that the present conditions were unfair to the fans, who are entitled to more than inferior quality.

The Agreement To Be Initiated

The agreement to be initiated in New York Thursday was negotiated at a marathon bargaining session that started Monday afternoon in Chicago and lasted into the early morning hours Tuesday.

Neither Phillips in Philadelphia, nor MacPhail or Feeney would discuss the issues.

MacPhail, however, admitted the parties were a lot closer than when they started.

"We were eons apart then," said the American League president. "Obviously we've been trying to get it closed out and it's been a good faith effort on both sides. I'm hopeful, certainly more positive about this than I've been until now."

Phillips said, "We are on the threshold of reaching a compromise agreement between the umpires and major league baseball which should satisfy all parties and insure labor peace for at least three years and beyond."

Terms Not Available

While terms of the settlement were not available, it was learned that the various increases would take effect over a three-year period in various increments.

Players, managers and coaches tried to go easy on the substitute umpires, but as the season has progressed, tempers have flared and ejections from the games increased. There have been bench clearing incidents, and in some cases alleged disregard or lack of knowledge of the rules.

Only two of the regular umpires have worked at all this season — American League rookie Ted Hendry, who signed a contract before the work stoppage began, and veteran National League ump Paul Pryor. Both later gave in to increasing outside pressures and joined their colleagues on the picket lines.

Umpires work under individual salary contracts, but do have a five-year working conditions agreement with the leagues. The major leagues tried to force them back to work under the collective bargaining agreement, but were unable to obtain an injunction.

A federal judge said that since the umpires hadn't signed salary contracts they were no longer employees of the leagues.

The umpires have picketed several major league parks, some with the help of the Teamsters union. In Philadelphia, for example, traffic was tied up in the vicinity of Veterans Stadium and people entering the VIP gate were harassed.

Those were the young days of the ABA, and owners gamely tried to smile. On the west coast, the LA franchise had this crowd counter which clicked in the coliseum every time a customer strolled in. It became quite a joke for visiting teams to yell, "Seven!" shoot a couple of layups in pre-game. "Five," make three or four passes. "Twelve."

They weren't very far off the official count.

In Houston one night, the janitor mistakenly swept out all the programs. So, the fans got no chances at lucky-number scorecards, and coaches weren't sure who they were playing.

Into Lubbock came the Carolina Cougars, another of the regional theories at work, and with them Jumpin' Joe Caldwell, surely one of the most talented — for certain one of the best leapers — athletes ever to perform in there. The Cougars consumed the Chaparrals, although not many folks saw it live.

IN CAME BOB Bass, making his first appearance in Lubbock after leaving Tech as head coach to take over as the coach of the Floridians franchise. And, he beat the Chaparrals with a 3-point bucket at the buzzer.

After five games, poor crowds and no prospects for larger ones, the Chaparrals dropped the regional plan; As one Dallas investor commented, "We couldn't have done more damage if we had set out deliberately to sabotage the franchise." As bad as attendance was here, it was worse in FW, and the team retreated to Dallas.

By now, the roadrunners weren't hoofing it very fast, and in 1973, moneyed men in San Antonio gambled that the team could make it there in that city which was without a pro team of any sort.

It was still the ABA then, but acquisition of some good players (such as Larry Kenon and George Gervin), enthusiastic crowds, and finally, the merger with the NBA, and the the Chaparrals changed their name and outlook.

But, somewhere, a proud chaparral is running loose around San Antonio. Figuratively, he could be crowing these days, about his offspring.

The Spurs have grown up.

Ford Receives Rookie Honor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Phil Ford, named Wednesday as the National Basketball Association's rookie of the year, was praised by his coach as "the best point guard playing basketball."

"And if he's the best in this era," said Kansas City Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, "he's probably the best ever."

A Two-Time All-American

A two-time All-American from North Carolina, Ford led the Kings from last place to first place in the NBA's Midwest Division with his exciting play-making and quick, slick running of the fast break offense.

"Phil is one of those rare kinds of players who can jump up in the air, spot three guys open, and always give the ball to the guy with the hot hand — or give it to the best shooter," said Fitzsimmons, who was chosen last week as NBA Coach of the Year.

A national panel of writers made the 6-foot-2 Ford a nearly unanimous selection, giving him 62 of 86 votes. The other four went to guard Reggie Theus of the Chicago Bulls.

Second Player Chosen

The Kings picked Ford as the second player in the first round of last year's draft but he balked at playing for Kansas City, a perennial also-ran, and was widely quoted as saying, "I can work anywhere I want to. Slavery was abolished 100 years ago."

But after threatening to play in Italy or become an assistant coach at North Carolina, he finally joined the Kings three weeks after training camp opened, took charge of the offense and became an instant hit with coaches, teammates and fans.

"After the first day of practice there was no question in my mind Phil would be accepted by everybody," Fitzsimmons said Wednesday at a luncheon honoring Ford.

"We had been in camp three weeks already but Phil was in better shape than anybody. That was something that impressed the other players. And the first time the fans saw him hustling up and down the court, they fell in love with him."

Fourth in The League

Ford averaged almost 16 points a game and was fourth in the league with nearly nine assists per game. In one game against Milwaukee he scored 26 points and dished out 22 assists to tie Oscar Robertson's franchise record.

"I was very lucky," said Ford, a modest, unassuming native of Rocky Mount, N.C. "I played for the best coach in the NBA and the other guys on the team were tremendous. Considering all the things that went on last summer, I'd like to think everybody for being so nice to me."

"Now I'm very happy the Kings chose me. Getting drafted by Kansas City has turned out to be a blessing in disguise for me. And winning the rookie award is the biggest honor I've ever won in my life."

He is the second player in a row from North Carolina to be named the top NBA rookie. Forward Walter Davis of the Phoenix Suns won that honor last year. Another ex-Tar Heel, Bob McAdoo, now with the Boston Celtics, won the rookie honor in 1972-73 when he played for Buffalo.

Ford is the fourth player in his club's history to win the rookie award. Maurice Stokes won it in 1955-56, when the team played in Rochester. After the franchise was transferred to Cincinnati, Oscar Robertson won the rookie award in 1960-61 and Jerry Lucas took it in 1963-64.

The award is sponsored by National Car Rental, which will supply Ford with use of a car for one year.

Ongais Seeks Better Luck In Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Danny Ongais, victim of two jarring crashes the past two years in practice for the Indianapolis 500, says he is not afraid of speed.

"But I respect it. I don't think I'm braver than other drivers. I'm just a normal man," he said Wednesday.

A year ago, Ongais, one of five drivers to top 200 mph in practice, lost control of his race car, spun backwards into the wall and skidded 600 feet. A fire broke out, but he was not burned, suffering only minor abrasions and a cut tongue.

Ongais went on to qualify in the middle of the front row and led the race for 71 laps before engine problems on the 145th lap gave him an 18th place finish.

In practice last Saturday, Ongais spun coming out of the fourth turn as he tried to avoid a slower car. His Parnelli-Cosworth slid backward about 550 feet, struck the inside wall, did another half-spin and slid 150 feet into the wall again.

There was no fire this time, but Ongais was trapped in the cockpit for more than 20 minutes until a Speedway rescue crew cut the chassis from around him. He was hospitalized Saturday night for a mild concussion and whiplash and released on Monday.

The crash cost Ongais a shot at the pole position for the May 27 race, but the hard-charging driver should be one of the top qualifiers in the final two days of time trials this weekend.

Speed is nothing new to the former motorcycle and drag racing champion from Hawaii, who will be 37 on Monday.

Driving fast is "kind of like getting up in the morning and walking," said Ongais.

He qualified in seventh position in his rookie race in 1977 at 193,040, and he set a record that year for the fastest lap ever run during a race on his 42nd circuit at 192,678.

On last year's championship car circuit, Ongais led in each of his 17 starts, was the fastest qualifier eight times and won five races.

A crash in the Indy 500 used to mean almost certain injury and frequent death. But not any more.

After the 1973 race, in which drivers Art Pollard and Swede Savage and crewman Armando Teran were killed and a score of spectators injured, the U.S. Auto Club and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway took steps which have greatly improved safety.

There have been 61 deaths at the Speedway since it opened in 1909, including 37 drivers, but there have been no deaths and few serious injuries since 1973.

The first thing USAC did after that race, which had to be restarted because of a flaming crash on the first lap that knocked out 12 cars, was to move the fuel tanks to the left side of the cars, away from the track's concrete wall.

Two Golfers Share Medalist In Littlefield

Smalley Rises To Top Of Baseball Hitting Elite

"Jeez, you've gotta crush the ball all the time just to hit .300 in this league. A lot of guys hit .400 for a month; you see it all the time with guys winning the Player of the Month awards. I just happen to be doing it the first month of the season."—ROY SMALLEY

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Roy Smalley has no delusions of grandeur.

The Minnesota Twins' 26-year old shortstop is leading the major leagues with a batting average near .400, but he isn't quite ready for his first silver bat, emblematic of a batting championship.

"Jeez, you've gotta crush the ball all the time just to hit .300 in this league," says Smalley. "A lot of guys hit .400 for a month; you see it all the time with guys winning the Player of the Month awards. I just happen to be doing it the first month of the season."

Smalley's torrid start has been a surprise to some, who wonder about his sudden rise to the top of the baseball elite. But it's not so sudden according to Smalley.

"If you're willing to keep applying yourself for days and that turns into years it may appear to be sudden when it finally happens, but it's really not," he said. "Hard work will pay off — it depends some on ability and some on breaks; I'm not sure of the equation."

Hard work plus perseverance has certainly added up to success in Smalley's case, however.

A weight-lifting program in 1978 added muscle and strength to his upper body and the benefits were immediate. Smalley hit 19 home runs last season, highest among all professional shortstops and his 77 runs batted in was second on the Twins.

This season, though, he seems to be leaving those statistics in the dust.

Through Tuesday night's games he was leading the majors in hits, on-base percentage and slugging percentage, had nine home runs and has been like a vacuum cleaner on defense.

"I think I'll keep him," said Twins skipper Gene Mauch, who dislikes talking about Smalley because he also happens to be the shortstop's uncle.

But Smalley has taken over where others left off, even though he still disdains talk of such things as batting titles.

"It's really not feasible for a guy who doesn't run any better than me," explains Smalley. "And it's hard to go from never hitting .300 before to leading the league. I've envisioned myself as a good hitter, but never as a league-leader."

But good things come to those who wait — and work.

Skins Dissolve Aging 'Gang'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Theismann, in the shadow of Sonny Jurgensen and Bill Kilmer during his five years in the National Football League, finally has become the No. 1 quarterback of the Washington Redskins.

Meanwhile, in California, George Allen jokingly sings a 1930s refrain, "They're Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine."

The Redskins have all but finished dissolving Allen's Over the Hill Gang, the veteran team he put together soon after he arrived in 1971 — one that went to the Super Bowl during the 1972 season.

On Tuesday, the Redskins, in an effort to rebuild with youth, released 29-year-old quarterback Bill Kilmer, a 16-year veteran; 34-year-old free safety Jake Scott, a nine-year veteran, and 30-year-old defensive tackle Bill Brundige, another nine-year veteran who did not play last year because of injuries.

"I think it'll help me develop into a better quarterback," said Theismann when asked about Kilmer's release. "The management has shown me that it's placing confidence in my ability, something that no one else has ever decided to do prior to this particular day."

"George Allen used to tell me that it was my job, but that he couldn't tell anybody because he didn't want to cause problems. Last year there wasn't a total commitment made because I was benched after eight games."

"The mind of an athlete is probably one of the most intricate things, and it can play games. If a team starts to play games with it, it ruins the season. That's what happened to us last season. We were hurting ourselves more mentally than any other way," said Theismann.

In trying to rebuild the Redskins over the past two years, Coach Jack Pardee has axed many of the old standbys — Chris Hanburger, Ron McDole, Len Hauss, Charley Taylor, Rusty Tillman and Frank Grant.

Allen, who was fired in January 1978, told the Washington Post: "Well, you know I said last year when Hauss and some of the others left, 'It's the end of an era.'"

Allen's wife, Eddy, interrupted and said: "George is singing a song, 'They're Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine.'"

Allen: "It's really sad to me because Billy was the first pylon I traded for when I took over. It is the end of a great era. He did a great job and he can still play football. So can Chris Hanburger."

"If I were coaching I'd pick up both of them. I'd pick up Hauss and Rusty Tillman, too. There are certain types of players you need to win. Jake Scott was a great addition. We got him and a draft choice from Miami (in 1976). He had his best year last year."

"Billy was at his best under pressure. I remember a game at RFK Stadium against the Giants. He got hit on a blitz and his nose and face were bleeding. The doctor and trainer went on the field and I said to them, 'Patch him up. I want him for the two-minute drill.' Billy took them in for the winning touchdown, on a pass to Mike Thomas."

Now it's Theismann's turn to show the leadership.

"Leadership is something that is earned, not relegated," said Theismann. "If you go out and do your job and work hard and you win football games, it comes. People lead through example."

Striders Near Track Season

Any boy or girl between the ages of 8 and 18 is eligible to compete for the Lubbock Striders, a local summer track club.

The Striders' season begins June 4 and ends July 21. Workouts will be conducted from 9-11 a.m. Monday through Thursday at the Monterey High School Track, 47th and Indiana. Those who qualify may compete in the state meet in Waco, July 27-28.

The cost for joining the Striders is $12 plus the expense of a t-shirt, which is approximately $4.

For further information, contact Rusty Black, Athletic and Aquatics Supervisor, at 783-6411, extension 2808, or Chuck Swallow, Assistant Athletic Supervisor, at 783-6411, extension 2670.

First-Run Shows Pace ABC To Top Of Week's Nielsen Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — In a time normally given to reruns, prime-time TV viewers in the week ending May 13 sought out first-run episodes and specials, and the tactic, as usual, worked in ABC's favor, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

The front-running network listed seven of the week's 10 most-watched shows, including back-to-back Monday night specials, "Battle of the Network Stars" in fourth place, and "Playboy's 25th Anniversary Show" in fifth.

CBS, in fact, scored even higher than ABC with a special of its own, "Strangers," starring Bette Davis and Gena Rowlands, which finished third in the ratings.

The only other non-ABC programs in the Top 10 were from CBS — "60 Minutes" in ninth place, a rerun of "Barney Jones" in 10th.

At the top of the ratings were episodes of "Laverne and Shirley" and "Three's Company" not previously broadcast by ABC. The rating for No. 1 "Laverne and Shirley" was 25.8, Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, just over a quarter watched at least part of the episode.

16.7 and NBC third at 12.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.6 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC.

For ABC, it was 18 weeks in a row in first place. In contrast, it was NBC's lowest weekly rating since the networks began 1978-79 programming in September. The network's top-rated show, a two-hour "CHiPs" special, was No. 26 for the week.

NBC's problem was as much at the bottom as it was at the top of the ratings. Six of the week's seven lowest-rated shows were on the struggling network, including No. 52 "Real People," "Presenting Susan Anton" 53rd, a Monday showing of "Whodunnit?" 54th, "Greatest Heroes of the Bible" 55th, a Thursday version of "Whodunnit?" 57th and "Hizzoner," 58th. The exception was ABC's "Osmond Family Show" in 56th place.

Here are the week's Top 10 programs: "Laverne and Shirley" with a rating of 25.8, representing 19.2 million homes, and "Three's Company," 25.3 or 18.8 million, both ABC; Movie: "Strangers," 23.7 or 17.7 million, CBS; "Battle of the Network Stars," 22.8 or 17 million,

"Playboy's 25th Anniversary Show," 22.4 or 16.7 million, "Happy Days," 22.1 or 16.5 million, "Taxi," 21.5 or 16 million and "Mork and Mindy," 21.3 or 15.9 million, all ABC, and "60 Minutes," 19.7 or 14.7 million, and "Barney Jones," 19.5 or 14.5 million, both CBS.

The next 10 shows: "Eight is Enough," ABC; Movie: "Anatomy of a Seduction," CBS, and "Angie," ABC, tie; "One Day at a Time," CBS; Movie: "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," ABC; "All in the Family," CBS; "Wild, Wild West Revisited," CBS, and "Fantasy Island," ABC, tie, and "Barney Miller" and "Vegas," both ABC.

Toll-Free Phone Pays Off For Feds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A toll-free hotline set up by federal agents in January to take calls reporting fraud, mispending or ripoffs involving government agencies and programs has brought more than 4,500 tips worth investigating.

"We think it is a success," said Hal Stugart, director of the program. "There are an awful lot of what we consider good audit leads, areas where controls can be strengthened to prevent abuses in the future."

When a call is received, Stugart explained, the tip is checked out by GSA and, if it seems to have merit, is referred either to investigators within the agency involved or directly to the Justice Department.

Historical TV Epic 'As Accurate As Research Could Make It'

IT WILL BE USED FOR FILMING IN JAPAN — Author James Clavell poses on a dock in San Francisco beside the replica of the "Golden Hinde," which will be used in Japan for filming of the television mini-series of Clavell's novel, "Shogun." Filming is scheduled to start in June. (AP, Laserphoto)

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Roots" brought black African culture and history into millions of American homes, and James Clavell hopes the television mini-series based on his novel, "Shogun," will do the same for Japan.

Paramount begins six months of filming in Japan in June, and NBC is showcasing the production for the 1980-81 season.

A $1.5 million replica of the "Golden Hinde," the galleon Sir Francis Drake sailed around the world 400 years ago, sailed from its tourist mooring in San Francisco April 28 for a two-month voyage to Japan, where it will be used in the filming.

Like "Roots," the best-selling "Shogun" is based on real characters in 16th-century Japan. It's the story of a British sailor — a "barbarian" to the Japanese — who becomes a respected samurai warrior.

"But I'm not a historian; I'm a storyteller," Clavell said in a recent interview. "I took their legends — because who knows what's real and what's not — and weaved a story around them. As we all know, fact is better than fiction."

He said the 1,210-page book, which has sold more than 3 million copies in paperback alone, is "as historically accurate as research could make it."

There obviously will be some major changes from the bloody violence in the book — swords chopping off heads, crucifixions and a sailor being boiled alive — before the movie will be suitable for America's living rooms. But Clavell said he hopes the open Japanese attitude about sex, or pillowing as they call it, will help Americans overcome their attitudes of sex being something dirty.

Clavell, a 54-year-old screenwriter, producer and director-turned-novelist, is executive producer for "Shogun." He's a movie veteran: writer for "The Fly," "The Great Escape," "The Satan Bug" and "633 Squadron," director of "Where's Jack?" and writer-producer-director of "Five Gates to Hell," "Walk Like a Dragon," "To Sir With Love" and "The Last Valley."

Writing "Shogun" took three years and three days. "I had to spend an enormous amount of time reading and visiting museums — the British Museum, the Vatican Museum — because the only real eyewitness from the 1600s in Japan is some object really from that time. If you could find eyewitness accounts, they would only be a version of the truth at that time, but a porcelain cup, let's say, or a painting is a true representation."

Born in Australia to a British naval officer and an Irish lady, Clavell also learned a great deal about the Japanese as their prisoner for three years during World War II. "King Rat," his first novel, published in 1962, "was really what actually happened to me during 1945."

Clavell still walks with a limp because of a leg wound received as an artillery officer. "I was standing up when I should have been lying down," he said, propping his leg on top of a coffee table.

In 1966 he produced the best-selling "Tai-Pan," an epic novel on the founding of Hong Kong in 1841 which sold 2 million copies. A film of that book is being produced by Sir Lew Grade, starring Steve McQueen.

Meantime, Clavell is finishing a new book, "It's a modern-day story set in Asia."

"Will it be another massive work? People would be offended if it wasn't. I've a thousand pages so far, and I think I'm three-quarter way through."

Water Recreation Brochures Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boaters, anglers and others involved in water-related recreation may be interested in a series of new brochures being issued by the National Oceanographic Data Center.

Three recently issued brochures cover Lake Erie, Lake Michigan and the North Carolina coastal area. A fourth, scheduled for release next month, will cover Chesapeake Bay.

The brochures emphasize climate and are slanted toward vacationers and other recreational users. The local climate is described in terms of good weather days, sailing winds, fishing weather and other useful statistics.

Two earlier brochures in the same series covered Rhode Island and San Francisco Bay.

ABC Will Resume Making Feature Films

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC celebrated its No. 1 position in television ratings Tuesday and indicated it plans to again produce feature films, a field it abandoned several years ago because of mounting losses.

Leonard Goldenson, the chairman of American Broadcasting Cos., told shareholders the company expects to "promptly" announce plans for making films to be shown in theaters.

ABC dropped out of the field in the early 1970s, despite having produced such successful films as "Cabaret" and "They Shoot Horses, Don't They."

"It was not a profitable operation and we got out," Jeff Tolvin, an ABC spokesman, said Tuesday.

STORE CLOSING FOR GOOD

NEW YORK (AP) — Bonwit Teller's exclusive store on Fifth Avenue in Manhattan — destined to be replaced by an office building — will close permanently on Saturday, several weeks earlier than expected. A spokesman for Genesco Inc. in Nashville, which holds the building lease, said the closing was due to the success of the store's merchandise liquidation sale. Bonwit's still has 12 branch stores throughout the country.

"For one thing, fewer quality features have been made. But, with the proliferation of new theaters, the demand for good pictures is greater. As a result, the gross revenue of successful films is much higher, and the risk of failure is significantly lower," he said.

ABC was for years the perennial No. 3 in TV ratings, but has now been first in prime time for three years. Last year it moved into first place in daytime television as well. ABC still trails in late-night, early-morning, and news ratings, but has shown progress in those fields.

For the first quarter of 1979, ABC previously reported record earnings of $451.6 million, or 91 cents a share, up from $415.1 million, or 84 cents a share, in the same period of 1978. It was the only one of the three networks that said profits on broadcasting increased.

As a result, the questions-asked by shareholders virtually ignored programming — a rancorous subject of debate at the annual meeting of RCA, which owns third-place NBC. Instead, Goldenson was questioned closely on the company's large cash reserves. He promised to recommend an increase in the dividend later this year, but did not say how large it would be.

The three television networks have a close relationship with movie companies buying television series and made-for-TV movies from them and also purchasing television rights for movies shown in theaters.

The movie business has been booming recently, and some analysts think it would fare well in a recession even with a shortage of gasoline. "You don't drive far to get to a theater," noted Stanley H. Fishman, an analyst with Fahnstock & Co.

Despite the profits available, some movie companies have done poorly. Allied Artists once a leading movie firm, filed for protection under federal bankruptcy laws last month.

But Goldenson, while not saying a final decision had been made to go into movies, expressed confidence ABC could use its expertise in picking successful TV movies in making hit movies for theaters. In the last year, ABC has sold its money-losing records division and its chain of motion-picture theaters. It has picked up several specialty publishers — putting out such magazines as "Hog Farm Management" — and will consider further purchases in publishing if opportunities arise, Goldenson said.

Actor Has Starring Role In TV Drama 'Dummy,' But No Lines

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In his next television drama, LeVar Burton, the eloquent Kunta Kinte of "Roots," speaks not a word.

Burton will appear May 30 on the CBS network in "Dummy," a two-hour program based on the real-life story of Donald Lang, the Chicago youth denied civil rights in a murder case because he was deaf and illiterate. His defense was successfully pleaded by the court-appointed lawyer, Lowell Myers, himself deaf. He is portrayed by Paul Sorvino.

"It's the hardest acting job I've ever undertaken," admits Burton, 22. "To play a two-hour drama without speaking one word presents obvious obstacles for an actor. There was not much I could do except just resort to being an actor.

"There were so many times I wanted to speak but couldn't. Ernest Tidyman, who wrote the script, had Lang saying one word at the end: 'Mama,' which actually happened when he won the case. We tried it, but the director, Frank Perry, agreed that it just didn't work. It was better for Lang to remain wordless to the end."

Filming was done in many of the locations where the story took place, including the Cook County jail.

"I was told Lang was back there after being involved in another murder," said Burton. "One day when we were working in the jail, I felt a tap on my shoulder. I turned around and there was Donald Lang. I knew he couldn't read lips, but I started talking anyway: 'I'm LeVar Burton and I was Kunta Kinte in 'Roots' on television and now I'm playing you on television.' I knew that he was well aware of what was going on."

"Dummy" is another advance for the young man who stepped from the University of Southern California campus to star in the highest-rated television show of all time. He had been an acting student at USC, but in musical comedy; when the casting call came for "Roots," he was playing the peddler in "Oklahoma!"

"Physically, I fit Kunta Kinte, but I had no film experience," he recalled. "All my work had been on the stage, and I played 10 times bigger than life when I read for the role."

Yet he was asked back for another reading, then a screen test. Two other young actors were in the running. One day executive producer David Wolper called Burton in said, "Go home and start packing. You're leaving for Savannah tomorrow."

Burton has felt the impact of "Roots," not only in this country but abroad. Showings in foreign lands bring a new wave of letters to the youth who portrayed Kunta Kinte. Burton has been to Japan and Australia for appearances in connection with the telecasts. On May 25 he'll be in Milan to receive the Italian equivalent of the Emmy for his performance.

How does an actor follow such an incredible role as Kunta Kinte?

"I reasoned that actors who appear in television series don't make it in feature films," he explained. "So I stayed entirely away from episodic television. I made one movie, 'Looking for Mr. Goodbar,' did some television movies and a lot of public television, including my own series for children, 'Rebop.'"

"Then I saw that some series stars like Alan Alda were able to make the transition to movies, so now I'm planning to do a series. It's called 'Marco II,' and I play Marco Miles II, who was left as a baby on the footstep of the jazz musicians' union in New Orleans."
