Jail Death Inquiry Indicates Victim Under Medication

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

JOSE A. Villarreal was on "continuous medication" when he was arrested early May 17 for public intoxication and had seen a doctor less than 24 hours before he was discovered dead in his Lubbock County Jail cell, according to an investigator for the Criminal District Attorney's office.

Pat Davidson told the three-man, three-woman inquest jury considering evidence in the 52-year-old Villarreal's death that Veteran's Administration records for the past year show Villarreal was diagnosed as a schizophrenic and had been receiving constant treatment.

The investigator added during his Wednesday afternoon testimony in Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy's court that a medical card in Villarreal's wallet indicated he was taking five different types of medication. The wallet, however, was not discovered by authorities until almost two hours after Villarreal was found dead about 5:35 a.m. May 17 in the jail's second-floor detoxification tank.

Villarreal had been arrested about four hours earlier at El Monte Carlo Lounge, 305 Ave. H, and was booked into the jail on the public intoxication charge.

Authorities first thought Villarreal, who lived at the Woody Apartments, 1608 Broadway, had died of natural causes. But an autopsy revealed the dead man suffered a fatal blow to the head.

Among the more than 20 witnesses called to the stand Wednesday was pathologist John P. Ray Jr., who testified that the blow was a "deceleration" type of injury, usually sustained by a fall.

Bruise, Clot Found

"When the trauma is on the right side front and the hematoma on the left back side, it usually is due to the head in motion striking an immobile object," Ray said. "If a person is struck on the head with a blunt object and the head is not moving, the hemorrhage usually is directly under the bruise."

Under repeated questioning from Criminal District Attorney John Montford, Ray finally told the court the injury "more than likely occurred sometime the evening before."

"With reasonable assurity," Ray said, "I can get (the time of injury) down to six hours from when he was found (dead in the cell). Of course, this is very speculative."

Ray also testified that blood alcohol tests revealed evidence of alcohol in Villarreal's bloodstream that approached the standard legal definition of intoxication.

Accompanied By Man, Woman
During morning testimony, several witnesses said Villarreal did not appear drunk in the early evening of May 16 before his arrest and that he had been accompanied by another man and a woman.

John Lewis Harvey testified that he was at his television repair shop at 1217 Ave. F about 8 p.m. or 9 p.m. May 16 when Villarreal, a woman, (later identified as Sally Galtain), and another man asked him to give them a ride to the lounge.

Harvey said he let Villarreal and the woman out at the club and Villarreal gave him $2. The other man, who the witness said he did not know, asked to be taken to "another place."

Harvey said the last time he saw Villarreal he did not appear drunk and was not drinking when he drove him to the club.

Robert R. Chavez of 1917 Parkway Drive, who saw Villarreal at the club, said the dead man broke up an argument between two women at the drinking establishment. He said Villarreal did

Long Probe Seen In Judge's Slaying

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — It could take a long time to unravel the mystery surrounding Tuesday's assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., the head of the massive federal investigation indicated Wednesday.

"I think I'll be here awhile," said FBI Deputy Assistant Director James Ingram, who declined to reveal any details of the inquiry.

Ingram commands a small army of federal agents investigating the sniper slaying — the second time in seven

Oil Cover-Up Alleged In Energy Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Energy Department attorney charged Wednesday that unnamed agency officials have covered up illegal transactions by oil companies that drive up the price of oil for consumers.

"I think I could get a jury to convict the oil companies and certain individuals in government of conspiracy," Joseph D. McNeff told two House subcommittees probing allegations of white collar crime in the oil industry.

McNeff conceded that he lacks sufficient direct evidence to prove the allegations, but said a combination of direct and circumstantial evidence would be enough to make his case.

"Cancer" Asserred
His charges, and those of other other witnesses prompted Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., to assert that there apparently is "a cancer which goes beyond maladministration (in the Department of Energy)."

"We've got a very serious matter of malfeasance that in many cases constitutes a criminal matter in itself," said Conyers.

A second House member, Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., said Congress may have stumbled on "the largest criminal conspiracy case in our history, involving billions of dollars, and it may be continuing to this day."

He endorsed a recommendation made by McNeff for appointment of a special prosecutor to look into alleged oil industry conspiracies.

Oil Firms Implicated
McNeff charged that most, if not all, of the nation's major oil companies are involved in illegal practices, and said the government's own files contain massive evidence of the wrongdoing.

"The evidence is there in the file cabinets. It's massive, but the cases are not being put together," he said.

A former Energy Department attorney, F. Edwin Hallman, told the committee he had seen no evidence of a cover-up by agency officials. But he added that he had "seen some very strange decisions made that I have questions about."

Until a year ago, McNeff worked within the Department of Energy developing potential criminal cases in the oil industry. But frustrated by what he felt was lack of action by agency officials, he began meeting secretly with congressional officials to express his concerns.

Threats Alleged
Since then, he said, he has been threatened with reprisals, transferred to another job and denied access to all criminal records. McNeff told the subcommittee he has been moved to Dallas from Houston and given little meaningful work to do.

Earlier, a federal prosecutor had testified that as much as two-thirds of the cost of gasoline may be due to oil industry white collar crime.

But Marvin L. Rudnick, an assistant U.S. Attorney in Tampa, Fla., conceded he was speculating and told two House subcommittees, "Nobody has any figures."

Rudnick and U.S. Attorney J.A. Canales of Houston were the leadoff witnesses before two panels looking into allegations of widespread white collar crime in the complicated process in which crude oil is bought, sold, produced and delivered.

The two prosecutors described two basic opportunities for white collar crime in the industry, each of which they said can have many variations.

One involves resellers of crude oil, or firms which allegedly purchase oil at a federally controlled low price, then illegally misidentify the oil as that that can be sold at a federally set higher price. The other scheme involves so-called daisy chains, in which crude oil or oil products are passed between several companies, with each transaction resulting in a higher price.

"It is my belief that it is possible that as much as two-thirds of the money paid at the pump (for gasoline) could be the result" of criminal activity, Rudnick told subcommittees on crime and energy and power.

Under questioning from Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, Rudnick added, however, that "the data is not available" to support his belief.

Meanwhile, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who headed the session, said the subcommittees dropped plans to take testimony from a mystery witness "at

Battle Erupts Between Arabs, Iranian Forces

KHORAMSHAHR, Iran (AP) — Weeks of discontent among Iran's autonomy-minded Arab minority exploded Wednesday into a bloody showdown between armed Arabs and government troops in this city at the heart of oil-rich Khuzestan province.

State radio reported 21 persons killed, and Mossadegh Hospital said at least 102 lay injured after a day of arson and shooting in this city of 100,000.

State radio reported other clashes and at least three deaths in the neighboring city of Abadan, site of the world's

Extended Stay Forecast For Humid Spell

THE LARGE, billowy clouds and unusually high humidity marking Lubbock's weather in recent days should remain in the area through the weekend, along with a moderate chance for precipitation.

Today's weather should be mostly cloudy, with a 20 to 30 percent chance of showers and thundershowers developing in the late afternoon and evening. Temperatures should be slightly cooler than Wednesday's 81 degree reading, reaching about 77 as a high and dropping to about 55. Easterly winds at 10-15 mph are forecast.

Lubbock and the South Plains are under a massive cloud system stretching across the entire Southwest. And while the South Plains remained dry Wednesday, some parts of the Hill Country were bombarded with tennis ball-sized hail and heavy rains. Camp Verde in Kerr County reported large hail and downtown Nacogdoches was evacuated Wednesday afternoon after heavy rains flooded the area.

Under the heavy cloud buildups, rain fell in large amounts. Dalhart received 1.15 inches, while at the other end of the state Beaumont got 1.71. In the Piney Woods, Lufkin reported 1.53 inches, and the Dallas-Fort Worth area measured .79 inches.

Elsewhere across the state, especially in deep South Texas, temperatures peaked out at well over 100 degrees, somewhat of an oddity for late May. Del Rio topped out at 106 degrees while Cotulla got to 104. Presidio and Junction both reached 102.

Radar 'Accuser' Due To Appear In Court

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dr. Dino Boni Jr. has won the right to face his "accuser" in a speeding case — the radar equipment that clocked him going 73 miles per hour on a highway.

Boni, 35, of nearby Beaver Falls, was cited for speeding on Highway 60 on March 1 by state police using radar.

Allegheny County Common Pleas Judge Emil E. Narick ordered state police to bring into court next month the radar equipment in question. Boni said he can show the court that police radar is unreliable.

And Boni argued successfully that under the Sixth Amendment he has the right to "face his accuser" — in this case not only the trooper but every piece of evidence used against him.

"These units are being used not to deter speeding but to raise revenues, and citizens are being intimidated and they're getting fed up with it," Boni said.

Assistant state Attorney General John Kennedy said bringing into court the actual equipment "would set an unbelievable precedent... our radar would spend more time in court than on the highway."

The case has no precedent in Pennsylvania.

largest oil refinery. But the National Iranian Oil Co. reported no interruption to oil operations.

The army repulsed an attempt by the rebellious Arabs to take over Khoramshahr, state radio said, but shooting continued after sunset and gunmen swarmed through the narrow streets. Revolutionary guardsmen assisting the army troops manned sandbag barricades on almost every corner.

The guard, a militia-style group, captured many barricades the Arabs had built from palm tree trunks and car tires, and the barricades smoldered in the night, along with many shops and houses burned earlier in the day.

Demands Listed
Iran's Arabs are an ethnic minority in a Moslem but non-Arab nation. In Khuzestan, where they number about 2 million, they claim to be a majority and are pressing for a greater share of the oil profits, appointment of more Arab officials, greater use of Arabic language and an end to what they say is discrimination in employment.

The fighting erupted at 4 a.m. Wednesday after a tense week in which the province's governor-general, Rear Adm. Ahmad Madani, ordered Arabs to turn in their weapons and evacuate buildings they had occupied.

Madani, head of the Iranian navy, has been struggling for weeks to establish his authority in the province on behalf of the Tehran government.

Fighters Withdraw
By nightfall Wednesday the Arab fighters had withdrawn from most of the city to the Arab quarter, and revolutionary guards fired at them across the 200-yard-wide Karoun River in late afternoon. There appeared to be no return fire.

Reporters trying to cross to the Arab sector were stopped by revolutionary guards, who said it was too dangerous. Ambulances were busy on both sides of the river.

A huge column of black smoke hung over the city. A newspaper said many buildings had been burned, including the main police station, the post office, a government tobacco factory, and a Chevrolet parts warehouse that was looted. Several supermarkets and a warehouse of the National Iranian Oil Co. also went up in flames.

A revolutionary guard officer at the Friday Mosque, used as a headquarters, said, "We have nothing against the Arabs and many of the people here in the mosque are themselves Arab."

He claimed that the people behind the fighting were leftists and former agents of SAVAK, the secret police of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, whose government was driven from power by Younger Children Of Shah In U.S.

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — The three younger children of the exiled shah of Iran left the Bahamas during the weekend for an undisclosed destination in the United States, an informed source said Wednesday.

Asked about the report, a security guard at Paradise Island's Ocean Club resort, where Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his family have been staying, said three of the shah's four children left Saturday for California.

The guard said he did not know their exact destination. Efforts to reach the shah's party for comment were unsuccessful.

the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary forces in February.

In its 2½ months in power, Khomeini's regime also has had to fight rebellions by two other ethnic minorities, the Kurds in northwest Iran and the Turkmans in the northeast. The Kurds were promised satisfaction in the new constitution now being written, and the Turkoman rebellion was quelled.

Annual Alaska Fur Seal Hunt Defended

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's Aleut leaders say their controversial annual hunt for fur seals in the Pribilof Islands is good for the herd and good for the natives' economy.

The Bering Sea hunt, which starts June 26, is opposed by environmentalists, and the Greenpeace organization is campaigning to end the annual harvest.

A 10-member Greenpeace delegation says it will fly to the islands to film the hunt and talk with island residents about replacing the annual hunts with other work.

But if the hunts are taken away, Aleuts would be "completely a welfare people and no way are we going to accept that position," said Aleut Corp. President Agafon Krukoff.

Greenpeace — which has battled Canadian hunters for killing seal pups on North Atlantic ice — has asked President Carter to stop the federally-sponsored take of about 28,000 animals in Alaska. The total fur seal population is estimated at about 1.5 million.

The hunt is directed by the National Marine Fisheries Service under the provisions of a treaty signed by the United States, Canada, Japan and Russia. The four nations share the seals taken.

Russians were the first to hunt seals in the Pribilofs in the 1700s.

Krukoff said Greenpeace should worry about the "whole ecosystem of the Bering Sea, rather than worrying about an unthreatened herd of seals out there in nature's world."

He said only young males that don't mate are taken during the hunt.

Under federal law, only federal employees may run the commercial seal operation in the Pribilofs. About 185 Aleuts are employed by the federal government during the hunt, most on a part-time basis.

Krukoff said the hunt is "scientifically controlled, based on the idea that once we put the thumb on the balance of nature in the Pribilofs years and years ago, we've had to protect the herd."

Swiss Diplomat Ambushed In Second El Salvador Shooting

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Gunmen ambushed and killed a Swiss diplomat Wednesday as he drove to his office in this violence-torn Central American capital, police said. It was the second political killing here in a week and the latest incident in a month of bloody unrest.

Police gave few immediate details, but speculated that the attackers intended to kidnap the diplomat, Hugo Wey, 49, charge d'affaires of the Swiss Embassy, but shot him when he tried to flee.

Police did not elaborate but there have been kidnappings of foreigners an late Tuesday a businessman of Palestinian descent was abducted.

Witnesses gave slightly conflicting accounts of the attack, which occurred in the elegant hill-top San Salvador suburb of Escalon, but all said Wey's car was hemmed in moments before he was shot in the head.

A man driving a few car-lengths behind the diplomat's auto said a car sped from a side street, cutting off Wey's auto and trapping it against another.

The witness, who asked not to be identified, said a gunman waiting on a nearby corner ran to Wey's car and shot him while another gunman kept bystanders at bay. He said the two then jumped into the first car and fled.

No group immediately claimed responsibility, and the motive for an attack on a Swiss diplomat was unclear, although two weeks ago a guerrilla group called Popular Liberation Forces issued a communique "declaring war" on diplomats.

"The possibility that this is a tragic error cannot yet be excluded," said a Swiss Foreign Office spokesman in Bern.

U.S. officials are known to be disturbed over the pattern of political violence in El Salvador. In Washington, State Department press officer Thomas Reston said of the slaying, "We deplore it and we extend our sympathy to the family."

Wey, a 22-year veteran of the foreign service, was the commercial attaché of the embassy and had been charge d'affaires for the past two years. Swiss authorities said he was the first Swiss diplomat ever slain by terrorists.

The Popular Liberation group had claimed responsibility for the May 23 assassination of Salvadoran Education Minister Carlos Antonio Herrera Rebollo and his driver.

The political violence that has plagued this cotry since early May has taken scores of lives. On several occasions troops have opened fire on leftist demonstrators who oppose the rightist military regime of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero. The government has countered by imposing a state of siege, a form of martial law.

The French and Venezuelan embassies and the Metropolitan Cathedral are occupied by militants seeking social reforms. The Costan Rican Embassy had been similarly held.

Militants of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc staging the occupations want reforms and release of three leaders they claim are held by the government, an assertion the government denies.

The guerrilla groups are more intent on overthrowing the government and have targeted foreign envoys to bring foreign pressure on the Romero regime. Late Tuesday, five unidentified men with machine guns kidnapped 25-year-old Miguel Armando Miguel as he closed one of his father's leather shops, police said.

Red Brigade Suspects In Moro Death Seized

ROME (UPI) — Police raided an apartment near the Vatican Wednesday, captured a Red Brigade terrorist couple suspected of murdering Aldo Moro and seized a submachine gun that may have been used to kill the former premier.

In the city of Frascati, outside Rome, police said urban guerrillas were nearly successful in sabotaging the computer center that holds almost all of Italy's nuclear research data. Guards scared them away.

Officials said their pre-dawn raid on the Rome apartment turned up "a gold mine" of evidence in the year-old search for Moro's killers.

The key find was a Czech-made 7.65 millimeter submachine gun, the type of weapon police ballistics experts say was used to kill Moro on May 9, 1978.

The two Red Brigades members, Adriana Faranda and Valerio Morucci, were in the bedroom of their flat near the Vatican when police armed with submachine guns and wearing bullet-proof vests burst in on them.

Both were among nine persons formally accused in the Moro case by a Rome tribunal last December.

Investigators said Miss Faranda took part in the Red Brigades attack on a central Rome office of the Christian Democratic Party May 3 in which two policemen were killed.

Officers dragged from the apartment five cartons and seven suitcases crammed with automatic weapons, five pistols equipped with silencers, phosphorus bombs, explosives, detonators, ammunition, radio monitoring equipment, identity badges and cards from the Italian defense and interior ministries and a license to drive military and national police vehicles.

The arrest and seizure of evidence came two days after police in northern Italy arrested seven suspected Red Brigade loyalists near the town of Como.

Officers said private guards surprised the pair as they were setting a timed fire bomb near the computers and a gunfight broke out. The intruders got away in a hail of bullets and no damage was caused.

Moro, then president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party, was kidnapped by the Red Brigades March 16 last year. His body was found in Rome 54 days later.

Cousteau Request Muled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some members of an advisory committee aren't sure they want French explorer Jacques Cousteau stirring up the undersea world of the Civil War ironclad Monitor.

Cousteau has asked permission to film the wreck for three days in early June, but two committee members say the panel should have editorial control over any broadcast of the film Cousteau shoots.

The U.S.S. Monitor Technical Advisory Committee voted Tuesday to delay a recommendation on Cousteau's request until his organization could submit a more detailed plan. It also delayed action on the editorial control provision.

Cousteau's ship, the Calypso, is expected to arrive in Norfolk, Va., next week and would go to the site. The Monitor sank during a storm off Cape Hatteras.

Son Steals From Parents

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The 30-year-old son of former Gov. Tom McCall has been arrested by Portland police on a charge of stealing $3,136 in silverware from his parents' home.

Sam McCall was arrested Monday and released later in the day on his own recognizance after being charged with first-degree theft.

Police also arrested Mary C. Jackson, 40, of Portland, on a charge of first-degree theft in connection with the incident. Her bail was set at $1,505.

The elder McCall, governor from 1967-74, is now a commentator at television station KATU in Portland.

Police said the silverware, missing from McCall's attic, was sold in exchange for five tablets of Ritalin, a prescription amphetamine often used in the treatment of hyperactivity in children. It has become popular as an illicit street drug.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Keeshan, for nearly a quarter of a century television's "Captain Kangaroo," received the Broadcaster of the Year Award Wednesday, and recommended that broadcasters seek out "programming that respects the intelligence of the child."

Keeshan's "Captain Kangaroo" premiered on CBS in 1955 and still is broadcast from 8-9 a.m. EDT weekdays.

NEW YORK (AP) — The author of an internationally best-selling study on female sexuality has filed a damage suit against her publisher, accusing the firm of withholding royalties.

Attorneys representing Shere Hite, who wrote the "The Hite Report," filed the suit Tuesday against the Macmillan Publishing Co. in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

The suit, which publishing officials say is highly unusual, alleges that about $780,000 in royalties were not paid to Miss Hite as they should have been.

Polio Outbreak Strikes Pennsylvania Amish

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A 14-month-old Amish boy has become Pennsylvania's sixth polio victim in the worst outbreak of the disease in 16 years. Health officials said Wednesday they were organizing an immunization "blitz."

The latest victim, only the seventh case in the entire United States this year, is the second in the Amish country of Lancaster County.

The youth's illness was diagnosed as the state Health Department prepared to provide oral polio vaccine to as many as 200,000 residents in the county this weekend.

Five of the six Pennsylvanians struck by polio are members of the conservative Old Order Amish and Mennonite religious sects, many of whose members reject immunization as an unnecessary intrusion in their lives.

Even after agreeing to the immunization, an Amish bishop in Mifflin County, who identified himself only as Sam, told a reporter: "I guess we're doing it to keep the (non-Amish) people satisfied. I figure if the Lord still wants to give us polio, he will."

No case of polio, a disease thought to be eradicated by massive immunization programs, had been found in Pennsylvania since 1975.

About 12,000 of Pennsylvania's 15,000 Amish live in Lancaster County, and health officials fear that literally hundreds of them may be carrying the contagious polio virus without showing any symptoms.

It's not unusual to have 50 to 100 persons carrying the virus for every one active case of polio, according to the Health Department. In fact, the Amish boy has three brothers and sisters who carry the virus but are clinically well, health officials said.

The key to stemming the spread of polio is to immunize as many Amish as possible inasmuch as they constitute the largest group of persons susceptible to the virus, according to the Health Department.

"We don't feel the non-Amish population is in danger, but there are people who haven't been immunized down there, or never completed the (immunization) series," said Dr. William Parkin, the chief of epidemic investigations for the state.

"We're going to blitz our (health) personnel from all over the state ... We're talking of hundreds of people," he said.

As polio cases erupted in Franklin, Mifflin and Lancaster counties, authorities tried with varying success to persuade the Amish to take the vaccine.

"We're getting very good cooperation from the Amish," said Ethel Hershey, a nursing supervisor at the Lancaster state health center. "They are responding and attending the clinics."

The turnout was slower in Mifflin County in central Pennsylvania, where polio struck an Amish woman and boy and a non-Amish woman who wasn't sure if she had ever been immunized.

Ali Plans Retirement

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Muhammad Ali's on-again, off-again retirement from boxing is on again, the heavyweight champ said Wednesday.

Ali said he will officially announce his retirement in four to six weeks at the Hall of Fame in New York's Madison Square Garden.

He is recognized as world champ by the World Boxing Association, but the World Boxing Council recognizes Larry Holmes.

"From my own point of view the boxing Hall of Fame is the best and most proper place with the best atmosphere for announcing my official retirement," Ali said at a news conference.

There is a hall of fame in the Garden, but it's not specifically for boxing. However, John F.X. Condon, vice president of boxing for the Garden, said it's possible Ali will announce his retirement in the famed arena. He will discuss it with Ali and his manager, Herbert Muhammad, when Ali returns from his current world tour.

Challenge To Carter Seen

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — President Carter's mother, Lillian, says Sen. Edward Kennedy appears to be her son's biggest roadblock to re-election, but "Jimmy always welcomes the challenge."

Mrs. Carter said the president probably will try for a second term. "Fund raising has begun," she said. "Coming Saturday night in Atlanta, an 'I Love Rosalyn' banquet is scheduled. And Rosalyn won't keep the proceeds for herself."

Mrs. Carter, speaking at the Mississippi Extension Homemakers Council conference, said her other son, Billy Carter, seems to have whipped his drinking problem.

"Billy has made amends and is doing fine," she said. "He appears to be himself now just like he was 15 years ago when his drinking problem began."

Landon 'Doing Fine'

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Former Gov. Alf M. Landon said Wednesday he was "up and around and doing just fine" following 40 hours of hospitalization after experiencing severe chest pains.

Dr. John Gray said a mild spasm of the coronary arteries was the suspected cause of the pain the 1936 Republican presidential candidate suffered Sunday. Tests showed no damage to his heart.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor and her husband, U.S. Sen. John Warner, R-Va., canceled plans Tuesday to visit Landon, a former Kansas governor, because of the recent illness.

They still plan to attend a fund-raiser for Landon's daughter, U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, in Kansas City, Mo., Thursday, Landon said.

Old Adversaries Meet

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher toured a Soviet exhibition Wednesday with Nikolai Lunikov, the Soviet ambassador who in 1976 protested one of her speeches to the Foreign Office.

In the speech Lunikov didn't like, Mrs. Thatcher, a Conservative, accused the Soviets of wanting to dominate the world.

That prompted Red Star, the Soviet Army newspaper, to dub Mrs. Thatcher an "Iron Lady."

Asked by reporters Wednesday if she still is an "Iron Lady," the 53-year-old Mrs. Thatcher replied, "I still am." She then exchanged amicable remarks with Lunikov over East-West detente.

He also entertained her at the Earl's Court Exhibition Center with Georgian champagne and caviar and brushed off the "Iron Lady" nickname as "the result of some misunderstanding about this so-called military threat."

Gasoline Offered As Bonus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A clothing chain is trying to lure customers to its five stores with a promise of 10 gallons of gasoline for every $75 purchase.

"We're trying to carryoff some retail business on the coattails of the current publicity surrounding the shortage," John Young, a partner in Carlton's Men's Shops, said Tuesday. "So far, we've had a pretty good day."

Austin--Some Good, Some...

AS USUAL, THE Texas Legislature finished in a final flurry of activity that left taxpayers dizzily wondering just what was done for, and to, them in the biennial session.

The main thing is a $20.2 billion budget for the next two years, a 29.8 percent increase over the current budget. This record outlay includes nearly $1 billion more in state aid to public education, part of the increase being intended to reduce local school taxes.

A Constitutional amendment that would give the governor, with the concurrence of legislative leaders, more authority to "manage" the state budget was submitted to the voters for a decision next year.

THE LEGISLATURE failed, however, to approve a measure that would give the voters the right to initiate legislation and to vote on it directly.

Gov. Bill Clements has promised to call the legislators back into special session to act on an initiative and referendum, though, and possibly to reconsider its rejection of a bill that would have permitted electronic surveillance under carefully controlled conditions in drug trafficking cases.

It became obvious during the 140-day regular session that neither the legislators nor the public is as concerned about the initiative and referendum issue as is the governor, who made I&R a focal point in his campaign last year.

Also, in waiting until the last minute to act on the proposed budget execution amendment, senators served notice they remain lukewarm to voter approval of it.

AN EDITORIAL:

Sugar Bill Sweetens Industry

LEGISLATION CREATING a domestic sugar policy is particularly crucial to area sugar beet producers and their counterparts throughout the nation.

H.R. 2172, awaiting action on the floor of the House possibly as early as the first week of June, includes a price objective that would translate into about 20 cents per pound paid to local growers, according to Bill Cleavinger of Hereford.

Cleavinger, president of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Assn., told The A-J the pending proposal includes a provision for up to one-half-cent per pound payment to producers if sugar fails to reach 16.3 cents per pound.

INDUSTRY SPOKESMEN told members of the Senate Finance Committee earlier that enactment of H.R. 2172 could stabilize the price of sugar and not only guarantee U.S. consumers future supplies "but improve the U.S. balance of trade deficit by an estimated $540-$650 million."

Cleavinger predicted enactment of H.R. 2172 should mean "about $2-$3 per ton more for beets on the crop we're growing now."

Why are sugar growers asking Congress to help them? Critics, of course, would argue that it's greed—that the sugar growers are simply asking for protectionism for their inefficient and outdated industry. "We'd all be better off if we (would) just stop produc-

ART BUCHWALD:

Commencement Speaker Worth Weight In Grants

WASHINGTON—Every graduating class has the same problem, and that is to find a speaker who will bring honor and as much money for the school as possible.

Very few people realize how graduation speakers are chosen. This is how it goes: In January, the president calls in the senior class committee and says, "Whom have you chosen as your speaker?"

"We had an election and the senior class has decided it wants Woody Allen."

"The president blanches. 'Yes, he would make a very good speaker though I'm not sure he would be available. Do you have a second choice?'"

"Garry Trudeau, who draws 'Doonesbury.'" "And your third choice?" "Jane Fonda."

"THOSE ARE all excellent suggestions and I'll do everything in my power to see if we can get them. You'll be hearing from me in a short while."

In April, the senior class committee returns and the president says, "I regret we were unable to get Woody Allen or Garry Trudeau. The board of trustees turned down Jane Fonda because of health reasons."

"She's perfectly healthy," the senior class chairman says. "She is, but the school isn't. We have to think of our $10 million building drive. But I do have a marvelous substitute whom I'm sure you will all approve."

"Who is that?" "Archibald B. Whittington, the third." "Archibald B. Whittington, the third?" "I'M SURPRISED it doesn't ring a bell with you students. He owns Whittington and Bellows, the largest makers of prefabricated steel in America."

Their concerns could mean a "vote no" crusade against it.

LUBBOCK AND OTHER cities which furnish teaching hospitals for the state's medical schools were disappointed by the Legislature's refusal to fund the state's rightful share of the costs involved.

Teaching costs not necessary for patient care now are borne by local taxpayers. In the absence of state funding, the Lubbock County Hospital District's Health Sciences Center Hospital faces a financial crisis.

In a positive step, however, the Legislature okayed the establishment of a water import authority which, with voter approval, could implement a financially sound plan for bringing irrigation water to the Panhandle-South Plains.

AN EARLY ASSESSMENT of this Legislature's work indicates that it will not go down as one of distinction.

That in itself may be its greatest contribution, though, to keeping faith with a public that is becoming growingly disenchanted with the ever-expanding role of government.

Some of the session's biggest battles revolved around attempts to undo some of the "reforms," especially with regard to consumer protectionism, inflicted on the state in recent years.

The suspicion lingers, though, that the legislators did or didn't pass significant bills this year not because of any grand design but because they were even more confused than usual about what direction to take.

WASHINGTON—Grove City College's troubles began, as many Americans' troubles do, with a letter from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It began "Dear Recipient" and ordered the college to sign forms confirming compliance with Title IX regulations against sex discrimination. Such confirmation is required of institutions receiving federal aid.

But Grove City insists that it neither seeks nor receives any aid, and it assumed the letter was a simple mistake. Alas, HEW's mistakes rarely have the virtue of simplicity.

THE COLLEGE'S president says: "I was told in strong terms that they would 'bring us into compliance one way or another.'" And he began receiving "insistent, harassing and threatening" calls from HEW.

The college, a small institution in western Pennsylvania, considers itself independent and is determined to remain so. HEW claims the college has forfeited its claim to independence.

When HEW acted, about 140 Grove City students were receiving federal tuition grants. HEW argues that such aid to students who choose to use it at Grove City constitutes aid to the college.

The college argues that this is a petty justification for extending HEW's jurisdiction to an institution that has made substantial sacrifices—in terms of direct aid it has not sought—in order to remain outside such federal jurisdiction.

The college says tuition grants establish a relationship only between the government and the student, and the college's only role is in certifying to the government that the student has matriculated.

HEW REPLIES that tuition grants enlarge the number of young people who can consider attending college, so Grove City "benefits by having its pool of potential students increased."

HEW's position has a certain chilly logic. And it calls to mind G. K. Chesterton's theory that a madman is not someone who has lost his reason, but rather someone who has lost everything but his reason.

The college has no quarrel with Title IX: "As a matter of Christian belief, it has treated males and females equitably since long before HEW was created."

The administration law judge who ruled that he is powerless to overturn HEW's claim of jurisdiction also emphasized that, "There was not the slightest hint of any failure to comply with Title IX, save the refusal is obviously a matter of conscience and belief."

INDEED IT IS: The college believes, reasonably, that signing the form would acknowledge HEW's jurisdiction, and that no good can come of that.

The judge held that HEW has "total and unbridled discretion" in requiring compliance forms. The college is challenging this in court, although Congress, the ultimate source of such discretion, should have the sense to slip a bridle on HEW's imperial bureaucracy.

This latest example of HEW's territorial imperative comes as the dust is still settling in Washington from splendid Jefferson Lectures delivered by Edward Shils of the University of Chicago.

Shils argued that government has come to regard universities as instruments of public policy, and the universities have been eager to be used as such.

After 1945, academic ideology favored a society in which government is "ubiquitously active and omnipotent," and government took responsibility for assuring the supply of the educated manpower needed for a "knowledge-based economy."

THE ECONOMISTS who argued the need for such manpower, and the scientists who were elevated in social standing by their argument, were academics. The logic of their argument was that academics had an enormous claim on society's resources.

In the 1960s, government's goal became the promotion of equality. Rather than recognize that universities are meritocracies, and inherently unsuited to be instruments for that policy, government set about subverting the essence of universities—the rule of merit.

It diluted intellectual criteria with sexual and racial criteria in the admission of students and selection of faculty.

"THE GOOD NEWS IS THAT OUR ECONOMISTS THINK A RECESSION MAY BE UNDER WAY"

Beware Of Title IX

Many academics did not resist the saddles and bridles of regulations which came with government aid, and which enabled government to treat universities as broken horses.

ANDREW TULLY:

Pipeline To Profit

WASHINGTON—Commenting on the Communist era of the 1950s, the late great Judge Learned Hand was distressed by "a spirit of general suspicion and distrust, which accepts rumor and gossip in place of undismayed and un intimidated inquiry."

Were he alive today, Judge Hand would be equally perturbed by the foul air of conspiracy that surrounds the debate over what, is or isn't, an oil supply crisis.

Helpless, the American public seeks a scapegoat, accepting the counsel of Dickens' Foxey to "always suspect everybody."

You'd better believe that many Americans suspect the oil industry of plotting to plunge them into penury. For others, the criminal is the Carter administration.

JIMMY CARTER suspects Ted Kennedy, and vice versa. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., no radical, comes right out and suggests that the government may be forced to nationalize the oil companies.

Thus, without taking sides, the objective observer can be grateful for the product of one lone "undismayed and un intimidated inquiry."

It is the finding of the independent General Accounting Office that lack of regulation has enabled oil pipelines owned by major oil companies to collect hundreds of millions of dollars in excess profits—and to earn a rate of return greater than that of nearly all other U.S. corporations.

At last a respectable investigative agency has come up with an indictment in the morass of suspicion. There may be extenuating circumstances, but the GAO has submitted findings based on a look at the books.

BOTH CONGRESS and the administration should be forced to examine a report which concludes: "If recent decisions affecting other regulated industries had been applied to oil pipelines, consumer costs could have been reduced by as much as $300 million in 1976" (the most recent year for which comprehensive data are available).

Forget conspiracy, the GAO charges lousy regulation by the government.

Item: The current regulator, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, "has not addressed many questionable pipeline practices and presently has no plans to do so," says the GAO.

Item: Levels of profits allowed under pipeline regulations "were not enforced." The result was that 41 of the country's 110 regulated oil pipelines in 1976 "had rates of return higher than what was allowed."

OIL PIPELINES are classified as "common carriers," meaning they must be watched for signs of monopolistic tendencies. The GAO found that during 1976 the most profitable publicly owned company had a return on investment of 32 percent, compared with 137 percent for the most profitable regulated oil pipeline.

So far, both the administration and Congress have done little more than wring their hands and make political speeches about the energy crisis, while public suspicion has run amok.

Addressing attention to the GAO report may not make oil and gasoline more plentiful, but it can answer the question of whether one sector of the energy industry is getting illegally rich at the public's expense.

JAY HARRIS:

The Vote Makers...

THE LAST WORDS of wisdom, as well as demagoguery, have echoed through the halls of the Texas Legislature.

And now the lawmakers, and the people who will pay and maybe benefit, can see what has been wrought.

For some, it will be too much. For others, not enough. The full assessment is still out on what happened in Austin. At best, it was a controversial session, as much as for what was not done as what was.

There are any number of persons who will argue that the period in which the "Killer Bees" were playing their childish game, and grabbing headlines, were the most productive of the entire session. At that point, nothing was happening!

IN ANY EVENT, the boys and girls from the Bayous, the Trinity and West Texas Plains and East Texas breaks will be coming back.

Gov. Bill Clements has vowed to call a special session later in the year to deal with initiative and referendum.

While we have mixed emotions about I. and R., especially in the hands of pressure groups on an emotional issue, we find it intriguing the Legislators obviously did not want to give up their hold on things.

It would be interesting to know if their doubts revolve around the system itself—the system whereby Californians came up with a questionable Proposition 13—or if it is that once in office, "Big Daddy, and Mama, know best!"

If one is to use the tactics of the "Killer Bees" as a criterion, then the latter is the answer. And therein lies another bit of hypocrisy as designed by the Texas Liberal Democrats.

IT WOULD BE interesting to know how many Texas voters fully understood what the "Bee Blackout" was all about.

Or, for that matter, what the significance was on a national scale for the 1980 presidential race and the regular state and local contests next year.

In a nutshell, the "Killer Bees" disappeared for about five days to block what they charged was a change in the rules by Lieut. Gov. Bill Hobby. The latter was accused of attempting to force a showdown on a separate presidential primary next March, as opposed to holding it at the same time as the regular primary election in May.

If the two parties, and especially the Republicans and Conservative Democrats could swing a separate primary, then the Demo favorites could move over and vote for a GOP favorite son, such as former Gov. John Connally, former UN Amb. George Bush, or former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan. Most persons viewed such a maneuver as aiding Connally's fast-rising campaign.

THEN, IN MAY those same Conservative Democrats, plus a few Independents could come back and vote for the more conservative candidates for the Legislature and other party posts.

The "Killer Bees" were in the position of seeking to force the state to hold its presidential primaries in such a way as to gain the most from any large scale Conservative defections from Democratic ranks.

In other words, if held in May, if one were to vote for the GOP presidential candidate, then he or she would have to vote for all other GOP candidates. Switch voting would be out.

So, Presto! With fewer Independents and Conservatives helping name the Legislative makeup and electing people to local offices, the Liberals' voice and votes would carry more weight.

IT WAS NO surprise that cheering quietly in the background were supporters of Ronald Reagan. They also perceive an early primary as aiding Connally's cause in Texas.

There are a couple of points which need to be made here.

One is that this is a heckuva way to run a railroad, a political party or a Democracy, in our opinion. In effect, the politicians are saying to the people that they and not the people will "manipulate" the choice of a president, and the makeup of the Legislature.

The second point is that while we see nothing wrong with the Reagan crowd pushing their man and getting him nominated if possible, we find it interesting that they do not want a head-on clash with Connally with no restrictions on who can vote among the Conservatives. It is also a disturbing thought.

If the Reagan people adopt the attitude that "it's Ronald or no one," as they did in 1976, they might as well fold their tents and pocketbooks—as they also did after losing the 1976 GOP Convention photo finish—and go home now. They also can share much of the blame for handing the country over either to President Carter, Teddy Kennedy or Jerry Brown.

SO MUCH FOR how to control the two-party system.

Meanwhile, back at the "no show" ranch in Austin, a few words are in order.

It makes no sense to us that in most recent sessions, the busy, busy solons, who have been taking two-day, three-day or longer "weekends" during the early part of the session, suddenly find they have to work around the clock at the last to get their jobs done.

Any legislator qualified to run for the job should be able to go to Austin, attack the problems, spending and otherwise, and get things in shape before the usual last-minute midnight "wheeling and dealing" starts.

More bad legislation has been pushed through by weary, angry, "lets-go-home" lawmakers in past years than one can name. It all adds up to sloppy handling of the public's business.

Maybe the "Killer Bees" were right after all. No telling what we would have wound up with had the boys and girls had more time!

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. HOW COME an argument at a baseball game is called a rhubarb?

A. Show business insiders got that one going, and the big-name sportscasters spread it around. When theatrical directors wanted an angry-crowd scene, they ordered the extras to repeat the word rhubarb rapidly. It created a rising rumbling effect without letting any one performer stand out. And any anger scene came to be characterized as a rhubarb.

Every study ever made on the subject of jealousy in humans indicates it's far more common among women than men. What makes this odd is the fact that such appears to be the case only among humans. In lower animals, it's the male only that exhibits jealousy.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have to be more astute than usual in your relations with others, for most persons are dependent on their pride and can get upset if they feel it has been slighted. Give encouragement when possible.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although fun is on your mind, it could prove very costly now, so get at the work you have to do instead. Be energetic at some special talent you are perfecting.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do nothing that could start arguments at home. Try to help kin instead. Paying compliments to new contacts can gain you their good will now. Avoid one who could be detrimental to you socially.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more care than usual if you are to steer clear of accidents, either driving or walking. Not a good day for new contracts of any kind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Cut down on extravagance and save your money for a possible rainy day. Don't argue over a small account or you lag behind in credit quickly. Show you are a reasonable person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be tactful in handling an annoying situation and impress others favorably. Steer clear of the social for the time being. Tend to important business now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You feel very limited but if you get busy on routines you find you make real progress. Analyze the situation well and you know how to improve matters. Get on the cheerful side of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't argue with friends who are under pressure and could be short with you. Get busy at your own work and avoid the social altogether for the time being. Take time to study, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are displeased with conditions in general but be patient and they soon get better. Observe all rules and regulations that concern you and avoid legal worries.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find the right way to complete tasks ahead of you and save time. Not a good day to start on new interests, outlets. Steer clear of a new contact with an axe to grind, avoid trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you go through with an agreement you made or you get into serious trouble. Don't expect too much affection from a loved one today. Do something that will bring about a reconciliation.

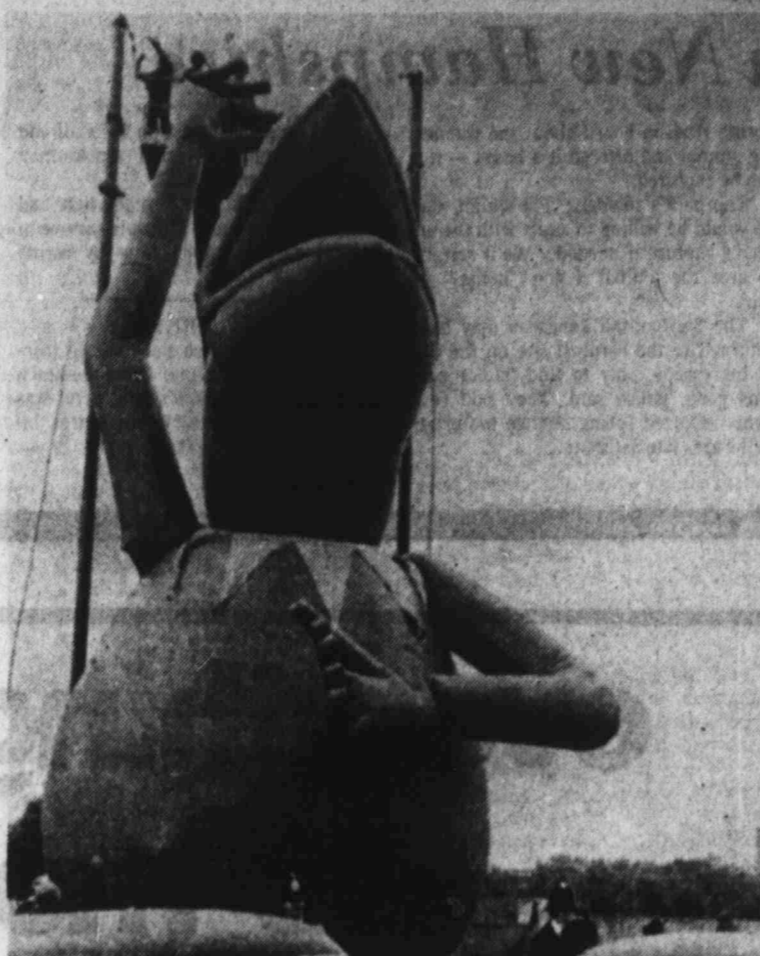

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be fair with a partner and understand other's views better for best results. Be encouraging to others and all works out fine for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Not a good day for taking risks, but fine for showing devotion to close ties and friends. Buy a thoughtful gift for a loved one and pave the way for greater understanding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY......he or she will want to argue with friends because he or she thinks own views are best. Teach early to be silent and learn more and give others the chance to express their views as well.

U.S. Border Authorities Face Growing Hostility

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. border patrolmen are donning riot gear along the Mexican border north of Tijuana, described by one officer as a "war zone" as a result of recent bandit attacks, shootings and mass arrests.

"We're going after the gangs," said Albert M. Franco, chief deputy patrol officer, as the riot gear order was issued Tuesday.

In three shooting incidents Monday night, five Mexicans were wounded, with two of them escaping back across the border.

A record total of 5,342 illegal aliens were arrested in the area in just four days, from last Friday through Monday. Most of them were later released back in Mexico.

Tuesday's outbreak of gunfire came after Mexican police called for help from the U.S. Border Patrol in locating a sniper near Tijuana International Airport. Authorities found three aliens who had been wounded by robbers believed to be Mexican.

Among those three, a 15-year-old Mexican youth was taken to Chula Vista Community Hospital in serious condition with wounds in both legs. Doctors said one leg may be amputated.

Another group of 18 aliens trying to slip into the United States about midnight Monday was met by U.S. officers who shot one man, Ismael Villa, reportedly trying to escape.

Villa was listed in stable condition Wednesday in a San Diego hospital. Border patrolmen said he was shot accidentally when an officer was pushed down an embankment and his pistol discharged.

A few minutes later, 11 aliens escaped from a holding barracks at Border Patrol headquarters by removing a sheet of metal from the bathroom ceiling and kicking a hole in the roof.

A man in that group was being held as a material witness against an alien smuggler whose car crashed Saturday, killing a Mexican woman passenger.

King Tut Exhibit Hits San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To San Franciscans, buying tickets to the King Tut exhibit was like buying a tank of gas — they didn't care so much about the cost as long as they could get one.

Charging $4.50 a head — more than in any of the other six cities on the American circuit of the ancient Egyptian artifacts — the de Young Museum in Golden Gate Park expects 1.3 million viewers to visit the largest single art event in city history.

The June 1 to Sept. 30 exhibit is the last stop in the United States before the "Treasures of Tutankhamun" leave for Canada, West Germany and their return to Egypt.

The number of expected visitors was exceeded only by the multitudes who saw the collection of the 3,300-year-old boy king's burial ornaments and possessions in Chicago.

Six museums originally were on the tour — in New York, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Chicago, Seattle and Washington.

But San Francisco museum officials and civic leaders flew to Cairo to seal a $1 million deal that guaranteed Tut's four-month reign in the city by the bay.

A stipulation of the agreement was that the city give all profits from the entrance fees and the King Tut shop to the Cairo Museum. That was estimated at $1 million.

The San Francisco leaders said it was a small price to pay for viewing the 55 gold and jewelry-encrusted objects taken from the tomb of Tutankhamun.

The exhibit gives spectators a glimpse into a civilization that existed 33 centuries ago. By King Tut's time, 1,334 years before the birth of Christ, the pyramids were already more than 800 years old and the greatest achievements of Egypt's civilization — mathematics, architecture and art — were in decline.

The 55 objects, only a sampling of the 2,950 artifacts taken from Tut's tomb, are placed in a wing of the museum in the same sequence they were found in the tomb by British archaeologist Howard Carter in the 1920s.

Kangaroo On Loose In New Hampshire

NASHUA, N.H. (UPI) — It's not often that residents of hilly, forested southern New Hampshire look out the window and see a kangaroo hop by, but it could happen now.

A carnival came to town Saturday, and before it left one of its star performers — a 130-pound kangaroo — jumped ship.

The kangaroo was amusing children in the carnival's zoo when someone left a gate open and the animal jumped at the chance for freedom.

It almost ended right there when the marsupial was struck by a passing car. But the kangaroo picked itself up and bounded off into the woods, apparently uninjured.

It was still at large Tuesday. A zoologist said the animal could remain a hop ahead of pursuers for a long time, feeding on the lush vegetation of the area.

The carnival's operators told police they didn't want their kangaroo back, and to shoot it if necessary. Police said that wasn't likely to happen, as kangaroos aren't considered dangerous.

Benson's Wild Animal Park in neighboring Hudson heard about the wandering animal and offered it a home — if it can be captured.

The park's zoologist, Pat Quinn, said he would be willing to assist with the animal's capture if needed. "We'll certainly give the animal a good home," he said.

The 3½-foot-tall kangaroo may have returned to the carnival site on the day of his escape, only to find its companions gone, police said. They said residents reported seeing strange footprints in the area late Saturday.

"We have a zoologist on the staff and are fully equipped," said spokesman for Benson's Animal Park.

The animal is strictly vegetarian, and officials say he could probably survive in the woods for a long time by eating leaves.

Assassination Plot Suspects Released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two persons who had been held in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate President Carter were released Wednesday because the government decided not to prosecute.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Donald Etra said there was "not sufficient evidence to warrant further criminal proceedings" against Raymond Lee Harvey, 35, and Osvaldo Espinosa-Ortiz.

Harvey had been charged with plotting to kill Carter at a downtown Cinco de Mayo celebration May 5, and Espinosa had been in custody as a material witness. Harvey was freed, but Espinosa, turned over to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for processing as an illegal alien, disappeared, authorities said.

"The marshal's office tells us that they just released the man about an hour ago, and he just walked out the door," said Philip Smith of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "In this case, the system didn't work."

He said a hold had been placed on Espinosa, identified as a Mexican national, through the Los Angeles County sheriff's office.

Secret Service agent Bill Mattman said no further investigation was planned in the assassination plot.

FBI special agent Tom Sheil said that "at this point the investigation is completed. That's not to say that if tomorrow someone came forward with some additional information that we are not aware of that we wouldn't reinstitute the investigation."

Harvey told agents that he and three other men, including Espinosa, sat in a Skid Row hotel the night before Carter's arrival and plotted an assassination of the president.

Harvey was to fire a starter's pistol as a diversion while the other men carried out the assassination, he said.

School To Produce Its Sole Graduate In June Ceremony

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Jesse Matthew Williams will finish at the top of his graduating class June 12 — but he'll also finish at the bottom.

Williams is the only graduating senior at the Southside Christian Academy here.

He's the first graduate of the 5-year-old church-sponsored private school, and he will be the last because it's closing.

There will be plenty of pomp and circumstance on graduation night, when Williams, clad in black cap and gown, marches behind his teachers to receive his "limited edition" high school diploma.

The teachers are an added attraction to keep Williams from feeling too conspicuous.

"We didn't want Matt to feel like he was getting married," said Lee Bozeman, director of education at the academy.

Williams has been the only member of his class during all of his four years at the school, although Southside Christian had 375 other students in lower grades. The Bethel Assembly of God Church, which owns the school, has put the building up for sale and plans to shut it down.

The closure apparently resulted from a dispute about how the school should be run. Most of its students are not members of the church.

Williams plans to enroll as a general studies student at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond this fall.

He came to Southside Christian four years ago, when the private school he had been attending went bankrupt.

Southside Christian's oldest students then were in the eighth grade, but officials admitted Williams as a ninth-grader.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will earn a quarter of a percentage point more on passbook savings accounts and get even higher interest on new, four-year accounts starting July 1, the nation's banking regulators decided Wednesday.

The three major bank boards, in separate meetings, also voted to eliminate minimum deposit requirements on certificate accounts, except for the $10,000 money market certificates. And they voted to reduce penalties if savings are withdrawn before the certificates mature.

The actions were taken in an effort to give Americans a better return on their savings at a time when inflation is running well above 10 percent and eroding what people set aside in savings and certificate accounts.

They do not, however, go as far as the changes recommended last week by President Carter. The president asked Congress to consider phasing out all interest ceilings on savings that he said "are costing the American people billions of dollars in lost interest annually."

The actions by the Federal Reserve Board, Federal Home Loan Bank Board and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. will affect interest rates available from commercial banks, federally insured savings and loan associations and savings banks.

Retained in the decisions is the traditional quarter of a percentage point interest rate differential that thrift institutions have been granted to help them attract money for home mortgages.

Still, the U.S. League of Savings Associations, a trade group, criticized the decision. The new interest rates, it said in a statement, "will mean an increase in the already-high home mortgage interest rates, too. Borrowers will have to pay the bill." Mortgage rates now exceed 11 percent in some areas.

The bank boards' actions will: Allow the interest rate on passbook savings to rise at thrift institutions from 5.25 percent to 5.5 percent. Banks will be allowed to pay 5.25 percent, up from the current 5 percent.

The higher rate, however, will not be available on NOW accounts, which are interest-bearing checking accounts available in New York and New England, the boards decided.

This action alone could give Americans more than $500 million more in interest earnings on passbook accounts in 1979, according to Home Loan Bank Board figures.

Permit financial institutions to offer savings accounts with minimum four-year maturities with interest tied to, but below, the average four-year yield on U.S. Treasury securities.

Under the new system, current Treasury yield would indicate that a four-year account would pay 8.1 percent interest at a thrift institution and 7.85 percent at a commercial bank, according to a Home Loan Bank Board statistician.

Eliminate minimum deposit amounts now required for savings certificates, except for the popular $10,000 money market certificates. However, minimum deposits are not prohibited, meaning that financial institutions could individually choose to retain them.

Reduce penalties for early withdrawal of savings certificate monies.

Although the Federal Home Loan Bank Board voted to eliminate any penalty should a saver die, the Federal Reserve Board asked for public comment on the proposal. The Home Loan Bank Board late in the day rescinded its earlier action and agreed to seek comment before implementing the change.

The savings changes made by the bank boards were not as extensive as proposals they announced jointly on April 3. Other options had included interest "bonuses" on long-term deposits in passbook accounts and an eight-year "rising-rate" certificate. They were eliminated, the Home Loan Bank Board was told, because of the difficulty in calculating changing interest rates.

"I don't think we have done enough for small savers," said Nancy Teeters, a governor on the Federal Reserve Board.

But board chairman G. William Miller said the moves "are only a step" toward what the board hopes to do for small savers. He indicated that even higher passbook interest rates could be enacted in the future.

Federal Home Loan Bank Board Chairman Robert McKinney put it this way: "I would imagine that these regulations would not please anyone, which probably makes them very successful."

In a separate action, the Home Loan Bank Board voted to allow federally chartered savings and loan associations nationwide to begin issuing so-called variable rate mortgages.

Instead of a fixed interest rate, the rates on the new mortgages can rise up to 2.5 percentage points over the life of the mortgage as market conditions change.

They had been restricted in California and have been severely criticized by consumer groups as inflationary and unfair to home buyers.

The change, which McKinney said was necessary to give thrift institutions the asset, was criticized by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., who heads the House Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs.

"We already face record high interest rates for home mortgages and all this plan will do is bring higher rates," Annunzio said. He said he would fight in the House to outlaw the variable rate mortgages.

The Public Interest Research Group, one of Ralph Nader's consumer organizations, described the mortgage approval as "an underhanded parting shot" by McKinney, who has announced plans to leave the board soon.

Fuel Strike Threatened By Haulers

By The Associated Press
Truckers protesting alleged overregulation and soaring diesel fuel prices may "convoy" into the nation's capital by the end of the week, the president of a national independent truckers group said Wednesday in Los Angeles.

And in Kansas City, the leader of a group of independent truckers said high prices and slim supplies of diesel fuel may force them to park their rigs until the fuel situation improves.

"It's happening now," said Jim Johnston, president of the Owner-Operators Independent Drivers Association of America at Oak Grove, Mo. "It's a spontaneous thing. Our members don't want to blackmail the country, but they can't keep absorbing losses because of fuel problem."

By Friday the majority of truck traffic in the country will be stopped," said Johnston, whose group has more than 2,000 dues-paying members in 48 states. "And by next week it could be almost a total shutdown — a very severe crisis."

In Los Angeles, Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, gave the government until Thursday at 3 p.m. CST to act on the truckers' demands. If there is no move afoot by then to lower fuel prices and deregulate the trucking industry, giving independent truckers an equal opportunity to compete with larger firms, he said he will announce further action at a press conference on Friday.

"If we don't get what we're asking for — full allocation of fuel to the truck stops — and if we don't get some form of de-regulation to allow these truckers to compete on an equal basis, then we will convoy trucks into Washington D.C. right under the noses of the Department of Energy," he said.

He compared the planned Washington demonstration to a protest by tractor-driving farmers last year, but he said he thinks the truckers probably "won't be as polite as the farmers."

Under regulations set down by the federal Interstate Commerce Commission, Parkhurst said independents, unlike major trucking companies, are not permitted to haul full loads of cargo on a return trip, which he called a waste of fuel.

And once the fuel is delivered, he said, it costs too much. He showed a sample bill from a Louisiana truck stop that charged $1.13 per gallon of diesel fuel.

"At more than $1 a gallon, it's costing a trucker 20 cents a mile just for fuel," Parkhurst said, noting that some truckers log as many as 6,000 miles a month.

Truck stops on the interstate system reported normal truck traffic, although some station operators said they had heard rumors of a shutdown.

"We've heard talk about a shutdown, but we haven't seen much yet," Hester Giffen, a cashier at the Overland Plaza, a truck stop south of Kansas City on Interstate 35, said Wednesday.

Despite such reports, Johnston maintains that independents are heading their rigs home out of economic necessity, hoping that the federal government can avert a crisis in the trucking industry.

"We just can't afford to operate. Truckers are doing this out of sheer, utter desperation and frustration," Johnston says. "Unless we get some kind of action to ensure an adequate fuel supply at a reasonable price, consumers will be faced with a food crisis. Independents cannot survive at this rate."

Mishap Traps Driver In Car Nine Hours

A Lubbock woman, whose car hit a 3-foot high concrete bridge under construction on Interstate 27 north of the city, remained in her car nine hours Wednesday before receiving help.

Patricia Glenn Strong, 42, of 1337 49th St. was in satisfactory condition at Methodist Hospital with injuries she suffered at 4 a.m. Wednesday.

Reports indicate that the woman rammied her chest against the steering wheel. Her injuries prevented her from moving until she finally struggled out of the car about 1 p.m. and got the attention of a passerby who called EMS.

The housewife told police that she was southbound on U.S. 87, saw the road closed sign too late and smashed into the bridge.

The accident occurred on an overpass under construction in the 4300-block of the Amarillo Highway. The woman's 1977 Oldsmobile Toronado was destroyed in the incident.

Atomic Energy Gains Renewed Support

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Sugvard Eklund, director-general of the International Atomic Energy Agency, said Wednesday that anti-nuclear groups should give peaceful nuclear energy a chance because another energy crisis can be expected in the 1980s and nuclear energy is still "the most readily available and cheapest" alternative to oil.

He said the Three Mile Island reactor accident in Pennsylvania has not convinced him that nuclear energy is riskier than any other form of energy production, even hydroelectric power. "We are counting on one dam break at least once every ten years. In the past, we had dam breaks even once every five years," he said.

The organization was established in 1957 to promote peaceful uses of nuclear energy and recently has served as a nuclear safety agency.

Lubbock Man Arrested In Child Molesting Incident Wednesday

A 44-year-old Lubbock man was taken to county jail Wednesday afternoon after an incident involving indecency with a child earlier that day at an East Lubbock residence.

The five-year-old girl's mother told police that she was awakened shortly before noon Wednesday by the child, who was yelling a man's name from another room in the house. The woman said she went to investigate the child's screams and saw the man trying to molest the child and then leave the room.

Reports show that the child told her mother that the man had molested her, and the woman took the youngster to Health Sciences Center Hospital where police were called. Police arrested the suspect, who was in the hospital waiting room with the woman, and took him to jail.

In reported thefts and burglaries, Zachary Knighten of 3505 Ute St. said he went outside Wednesday morning and discovered his $1,695 car missing.

Marie Sanchez of 114 E. Kemper St. complained that someone took her purse, which contained $300 in cash, from her couch while she took her children to school Wednesday morning.

Harold Milnes of 3161 20th St. told police that someone stole an air compressor, worth $295, from the back of his pickup truck between noon and 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Framing contractor Randy Clodus reported that burglars took a rowdus stand, valued at $400, from a construction site at 304 York Ave. sometime between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

A 14-year-old boy was taken to custody by police Tuesday night in connection with an attempted burglary which occurred about 11 p.m. at Gilbert's Auto Supply at 708 4th St.

Titus' companion told police the two were walking onto the football field at Alderson Junior High School when he heard four or five shots ring out from a car which was passing by. He said the vehicle was occupied by three black males ranging in age from 18 to 25 years.

Potatoes, Turkey In Good Supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Potatoes may be the best buy in June, and supplies of pork, chicken and turkey are also plentiful, according to the Agriculture Department's food marketing alert.

Beef is listed as in adequate supply only because large amounts of alternatives are available, the department said, with supplies 12 to 14 percent less than last year.

Pork production, however, is up 10 to 12 percent, chicken 9 to 10 percent and supplies of turkey are up a whopping 24 to 26 percent from last year, officials said.

The spring potato crop brought supplies of that staple to 27 percent more than last year, the department said. Also plentiful are milk, eggs and dairy products.

There will be adequate supplies of fresh strawberries, fresh peaches, plums, nectarines, sweet cherries and apricots, oranges, limes and lemons.

Gasoline Delivery Cuts Stifle Optimism

NEW YORK (AP) — Optimism among some government officials and industry experts over June gasoline supplies is being dampened by further cutbacks by several major oil companies in the amount of gasoline they will ship dealers during the month. But in Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell Wednesday repeated the administration's opinion that May was the worst month for oil supplies and that the situation in June and July would be "somewhat improved." Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, however, said the cutbacks were "not a favorable sign" for the gasoline supply picture in June, and he said the entire gas supply situation was being reviewed.

allocation does not mean that the company will have 30 percent less gasoline in June than it did in June 1978. That just represents what the firm is shipping to dealers who do not qualify for special breaks.

Texas Gasoline Dealers Running Out Of Supplies

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association reported Wednesday increasing numbers of Texas service stations are running out of one or more grades of gasoline while awaiting June allocations from suppliers.

The AAA's Texas Division said motorists this weekend will find sharply higher prices with gasoline supplies considerably tighter than over the Memorial Day weekend. It said the crunch will be much tighter in large cities than in small cities and rural areas.

Prices were said to have increased from 1 to 2.3 cents a gallon in the past week.

The weekly Fuel Gauge survey of 462 service stations throughout the state indicates 10 percent of the stations have exhausted their May allocations of premium gasoline, 6 percent regular, and 5 percent unleaded. A week ago the percentages were 6, 3 and 3.

As opposed to 64 percent statewide last Sunday, 70 percent of the stations reported they will be closed Sunday. In large cities, however, the closings are expected to jump to 89 percent.

Little change was reported in other closing times, with 63 percent of the stations now closing by 8 p.m. weekdays and 41 percent closing by 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Only 6 percent of the stations are selling gasoline 24 hours a day and only 2 percent, compared with 3 percent last week, are limiting purchases in any way.

Most of the 24-hour stations were said to be on Interstate highways near midway points between large urban areas, such points as Fort Stockton, Madisonville, Temple, and Pecos. The AAA said supplies are ample at such points but prices are higher than average.

Full service average prices reported Wednesday were 78.6 cents for regular, up from last week's 77.3 cents, 82.2 cents for unleaded, up from 81.2, and 84.5 for premium, up from 83.1 cents. Self service averages were 75.7 cents for regular, up from 74.8, 79.7 cents for unleaded, up from 78.9, and 81.4 cents for premium, up from 80.7 cents.

Diesel prices were said to have passed those for full service regular gasoline the first time, averaging 78.7 cents a gallon compared with last week's 78.4 cents.

The AAA said the weekend crunch would be worst in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and Austin, with about 80 percent of the stations closed nights and Sunday and about 50 percent closed after 6 p.m. Saturday.

The San Antonio situation was said to be somewhat better, even though Sunday closings are expected to be 75 percent compared with last week's 63 percent. About half the stations surveyed there, however, reported being open nights, both on weekdays and on Saturday.

The AAA said that among smaller cities the situation was much better with Amarillo, Beaumont-Port Arthur, Midland-Odessa, and Waco all having about one-half their stations open on nights and Sunday.

Closing time percentages: Closing by 8 p.m. weekdays: Amarillo, 56 percent, Austin 80, Beaumont-Port Arthur 38, Corpus Christi 70, Dallas 89, El Paso 63, Fort Worth 87, Houston 72, McAllen 20, Midland-Odessa 27, San Antonio 53, Waco 57, and miscellaneous 59 percent.

Closing by 6 p.m. Saturday: Amarillo 14 percent, Austin 53, Beaumont-Port Arthur 25, Corpus Christi 50, Dallas 43, El Paso 20, Fort Worth 80, Houston 43, McAllen 15, Midland-Odessa 33, San Antonio 55, Waco 43, and miscellaneous 43 percent.

Closing Sunday: Amarillo 53 percent, Austin 87, Beaumont-Port Arthur 38, Corpus Christi 60, Dallas 89, El Paso 67, Fort Worth 80, Houston 85, McAllen 75, Midland-Odessa 47, San Antonio 75, Waco 36, and miscellaneous 63 percent.

Mideast Peace Funds Granted Quick Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's $4.8 billion U.S. aid package to carry out terms of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty sailed through the House Wednesday, assuring congressional approval.

The Senate had already approved the aid and the House approved it 347-28.

House and Senate conferees must now compromise small differences to produce a final bill for Congress' final approval as early as next week.

Nearly every House speaker supported the aid, many of them arguing that $4.8 billion is a high price for peace but that U.S. costs of another Middle East war would be even higher.

"Without this bill the peace process will certainly be jeopardized," said Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., the bill's floor manager.

The aid includes $800 million to help Israel relocate two air bases out of the Sinai, $300 million in economic aid for Egypt, $2.2 billion in credit weapons sales to Israel and $1.5 billion in credit weapons sales to Egypt.

Since most of the aid is credit sales for defensive weapons and programs, only $1.47 billion of it comes out of the U.S. Treasury.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., sparked the only dispute during the debate by contending that the United States should conduct exploratory talks with the Palestinian Liberation Organization for an overall Mideast peace settlement.

"This glitter of hope can only be encouraged by talking with the PLO, just talking," Findley said.

But other lawmakers said Carter is right in refusing to talk to the PLO unless it drops its refusal to recognize Israel's right to exist.

"When one party says 'No, we'll not recognize Israel's right to exist,' how do you deal with people like that?" said Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J.

Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., said he shares the desire for peace but said he does not know how to tell young people in his district that Congress could afford the aid but not more money for summer youth jobs.

"You can suggest at least to the youths that they may not have to fight or their children may not have to fight in the Middle East," said Marc L. Marks, R-Pa.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My employer has a pension plan, of which I am a member. I consider that plan unsatisfactory. Can I withdraw from it and establish my own individual retirement account (IRA)?

A. The answer is yes, can I set up a Keogh plan, with my moonlight income?

A. The answer to your first question is "no." But, take heart. The answer to your second question most likely is "yes."

The reason for the negative answer to your first question is that IRAs are only available to people who are not currently enrolled in a "qualified retirement plan." Under the rules, you can't pull out of your employer's pension plan — no matter how unsatisfactory you feel it is — and set up your own IRA.

A person who is not currently in a retirement plan can put 15 percent of his or her annual earnings — up to $1,500 a year — into an IRA and not pay income tax on that money or the money that money earns in interest and/or dividends, until the money is withdrawn. That's usually after retirement, when the tax bite is lower.

But, because you work for a company which has a pension plan, the IRA route is closed to you.

Just the same, if you have "moonlight" income, the chances are very strong that you can establish a Keogh account — a retirement plan for the self-employed. A Keogh plan allows a person receiving income for personal services to tuck away up to $7,500 a year, under basically the same tax-shelter rules that apply to an IRA.

The income from most part-time "moonlight" jobs is eligible for a Keogh account. If you don't open a Keogh plan with that money, you're just making an unnecessary gift of taxes to Uncle Sam.

Q. I am on the board of directors of two companies. Both companies have pension plans for officers and employees, but not for directors. Can I count my directors' fees as "self-employed income" and open a Keogh account?

A. Of course you can. I'm amazed every time I run into corporate executives who serve on the boards of directors of major corporations who blink their eyes when they realize that they haven't been taking advantage of this tax shelter.

Then, I'm brought back to earth by reporters who admit they're not putting 15 percent of their free-lance writing income into Keogh plans.

Q. Do the market prices of tax-exempt municipal bonds react to interest rates, the same way the prices of corporate bonds do?

A. Yes. When interest rates go up, the market prices of all already issued bonds — municipal, corporate or any other kind — go down. And, when interest rates decline, the market prices of "outstanding" bonds — bonds already out there in the market — go up.

Think this through and you will see that it stands to reason. The upward trend we have seen in interest rates for some time now provides a backdrop.

If XYZ Corp. issued bonds a few years ago, when the going interest rate was 6 percent, it pledged to pay $60 a year interest on each $1,000 bond it sold.

These days, with interest rates for the same quality bond at about 10 percent, XYZ Corp. might have to pay $100 a year interest on each new $1,000 bond it wants to sell.

Harvard Tops List Of Schools Getting Gifts, Endowments

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvard, the nation's best endowed university, received gifts totaling $63.56 million during the last academic year, a study of 67 colleges and universities said Wednesday.

Total giving by private sources to the schools amounted to $906,753,000 for 1977-78, an increase of 13.1 percent over the previous year, said George A. Brakeley, board chairman of Brakeley, John Price Jones, Inc., a fund-raising firm.

During the last three years, private donations to the colleges and universities increased by 37.4 percent.

Following Harvard among the 10 most successful fund raisers studied were:

Stanford, $54.55 million; Columbia, $48.1 million; Yale, $45.15 million; Minnesota, $34.55 million; Cornell, $33.53 million; University of Southern California, $33.19 million; Pennsylvania, $32.92 million; MIT, $31.33 million, and Chicago, $30.71 million.

Harvard's total endowments of $1.39 billion kept it as the only school in the nation with an endowment of more than $1 billion.

The other highly endowed schools listed by the study were Yale, $945 million; Stanford, $527 million; Princeton, $432 million; MIT, $331 million; Northwestern, $304 million; Columbia, $295 million; University of California, $285 million; Chicago, $283 million, and Cornell, $281 million.

Library Book Sale Plans Disclosed

The Friends of the Lubbock City-County Library are accepting book donations for their annual book sale in September.

Books, paperbacks, magazines, records and tapes will be accepted at the Mahon and Godeke branch libraries. The sale is scheduled Sept. 27-29 at the Godeke branch building, 2001 19th St.

The library staff will review all donations to determine if any are suitable for use by the library.

Proceeds are used to provide gifts for the library.

will pay more than $600 for a bond paying 6 percent a year interest, when — for $1,000 — he or she can get $100 a year interest.

So, in this example, the market price of each XYZ $1,000 bond paying 6 percent would drop to $600.

The same thing would happen to municipal bonds issued by "Anytown, U.S.A." The interest rate, of course, would be lower — because interest on municipal bonds is not subject to federal income tax.

Chrysler Model Changeover 'Critical'

DETROIT (AP) — The switchover from 1979 to 1980 models will be a critical period for Chrysler Corp. and 1981 will be a lot better, says the second-in-command at the floundering automaker.

"It's looming right in front of us," President Lee A. Iacocca said Tuesday of the upcoming model changeover. "This is when we've got to roll up our sleeves and go to work and do what we have to do. We've got to balance out so we don't carry a tremendous stock (of old models) into the new year."

Iacocca was interviewed by the Detroit News. The session was scheduled before the company announced the closing of its Hamtramck assembly plant at the end of the 1980 model year.

The closure is a cost-cutting move in the wake of a $205 million loss last year, a $53.8 million loss in the first three months of this year and slumping sales.

Asked if Chrysler had its back to the wall, Iacocca said, "That's doomsday talk. I don't even think that way."

He repeated earlier projections that 1979 would be a rough year, 1980 should show improvement and 1981 should be significantly better.

"Everything seems to focus on 1981 because of the nature of this business," Iacocca said.

The company had locked up plans for 1981 models before Iacocca moved over from Ford Motor Co., which had fired him as president, last fall. In that year, new pollution and economy standards take effect.

"The most difficult time will be the downturn projected by economists between now and maybe next spring," Iacocca said. "I subscribe to the notion that business will not stay at 11 to 12 million cars and 4 million trucks ... (but closer to 10 than 11 and 3.5 million trucks."

The biggest help Chrysler could receive from the government, he said, would be a grant of "some breathing room" on the tightening fuel, safety and pollution standards.

"We would suggest that our major competitors meet the law. Give us two years and we'll join them," he said.

Gas Cost Increase Called 'Far Larger' Than Crude Cost Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's anti-inflation agency said Wednesday the explosion in gasoline prices since January is "far larger than can be explained" by increases in oil prices alone.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability also ruled that Amerada Hess Corporation of New York, a major petroleum producer and refiner, violated the administration's price guidelines during the past six months. Several other oil companies are probable violators, it said, without naming them.

Amerada Hess is the first petroleum producer to be found in violation of the price guidelines. The council said the company admitted it was not in compliance. Alfred Kahn, the chairman of the council, told reporters earlier Wednesday that as many as nine other companies were suspected of being out of compliance. However, the council would only say later that "several" companies had been notified they were probable violators.

It said several other major oil companies, also not named, have been found to be in full compliance with the guidelines, and that discussions with many other refiners are still in progress. About 80 refiners have been contacted to date, it said.

In a preliminary report on its investigation into recent sharp increases in gasoline prices, the council said the average price rose 8.5 cents per gallon from January to April — an annual rate of increase of 59 percent — and probably increased another 4.2 cents per gallon in May.

If the council is correct, that would raise the average price per gallon in May to 89 cents.

"These price increases are far larger than can be explained by the increases in domestic and imported crude-petroleum prices alone," the council said.

It said profit margins increased 33 percent for petroleum retailers from January through April and 38 percent for petroleum refiners. By contrast, the cost of crude oil to refiners increased 9 percent.

But it also said the widening of the difference between wholesale gasoline prices and crude oil prices "does not necessarily imply that there is widespread violation of the price standard by petroleum refiners. However, it said it has "intensified its monitoring" of refiners.

It said the increase in the average price of gasoline understates the actual increase that some consumers have had to pay because many service stations have closed their less-expensive self-service pumps.

Kahn said the price of a gallon of gasoline averaged 65 cents in April, up from about 64 cents slightly more than a year earlier.

Kahn said the 8.5 cent increase in the price of gasoline from January through April broke down this way: 3.5 cents for increased profit margins at refineries, 2.5 cents for retailers and 3 cents from the increased cost of crude oil.

The rising price of oil, if it continues, could add as much as one-half to 1 percentage point to the inflation rate each year, he said.

The administration's price guidelines are largely voluntary, and there is no specific penalty for violators. However, the administration says it will seek to bar major violators from bidding on government contracts, although its authority to do this is being challenged in the courts.

Kahn also told reporters he personally favors gasoline rationing as a solution to gasoline shortages, if the shortages become unmanageable. However, Kahn made clear he was speaking for himself, and not for the administration.

Kahn reiterated his view that the administration is thinking of tightening the price guideline for all businesses. This guideline asks businesses to hold price increases to one-half of 1 percentage point below the average increases in the 1976-1977 period.

But he indicated he is less certain about whether the wage guidelines, now set at 7 percent a year, can be maintained, given the worsening rate of inflation, lately at an annual rate of nearly 14 percent.

"I don't know if we can hold the wage standard, but I hope to hell we will," Kahn said. He also said that while the guidelines aren't an integral part of the anti-inflation program, he thinks that wage and price standards of some sort will be used "on and off for as far as we can see. Some times they will be off."

"I have always emphasized that wage and price standards are marginal; they are worth doing, but are useless in the absence of fiscal and monetary restraints," he said.

Kahn said he thinks it was a mistake for the government to cut taxes last year, saying the tax cut contributed to the spurt in economic growth in the final quarter of last year and the worsening of inflation in the first quarter of this year.

If he were president, Kahn said, he would tell the American people, "Your standard of living is going down and there is nothing I can do, or you can do on your own." The problem for the nation will be to "distribute the burden so it doesn't tear us apart," he added.

Tank Truck Explosion Not Matter For Courts, Lawyer Asserts

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawyer for the maker of a tank-trailer that exploded and killed 16 people near Eagle Pass told the Texas Supreme Court Wednesday that courts should stay out of the case.

An attorney for the driver's widow and children scoffed at the idea but was called down for his comments by Chief Justice Joe Greenhill.

Damon Ball of San Antonio, representing Lubbock Manufacturing Co., said the driver's product liability case should be tried in Lubbock — not Eagle Pass — if it is tried at all.

Left unsaid was the possibility that a Lubbock jury might be friendlier to the local company than jurors where the accident happened.

The April 1975 explosion of the liquid gas trailer killed 16 and injured 44 people. A Lubbock Manufacturing executive said in February the firm and its insurance company had sustained $20 million in judgments.

Ball and his colleague, Thomas Crofts Jr. of San Antonio, asked the court to overturn lower court decisions placing the trial in Eagle Pass.

Ball noted that the case of Francisca Cedillo Vidua de Verduco, widow of driver Jesus Verduco, turns on whether the design of the tank-trailer was defective.

Verduco, a citizen of Mexico, was driving the tractor-trailer combination for a Mexican firm called Surtigas, S.A.

Ball contended the legislature gave the Texas Railroad Commission exclusive authority years ago to approve designs of every vehicle made for carrying liquefied petroleum gas.

"We say ... there is no evidence to support venue in Maverick County because the courts, by reason of the delegation to the Railroad Commission, have no jurisdiction to pass on the adequacy of design of vehicles registered by the Railroad Commission," Ball said.

Broadus Spivey of Austin, an attorney for the Verduco family, said Ball's remark brought the case of the DC-10 crash at Chicago to mind.

Under Ball's logic, Spivey said, "if the FAA had approved that design, those occupants of that DC-10 would have no cause of action."

Ball and Crofts said the case should be tried — if at all — in Lubbock because that was the point where any design defects would have occurred.

"The only thing shown to have occurred in Maverick County is the damaging event," Crofts said.

Spivey said if the Supreme Court's decision upholds that reasoning, "the result would be that corporations that manufacture goods would move to Dallas County."

"That would be the effective end of that kind (product liability) of cause of action. ... It has been my experience that in Dallas County the plaintiff doesn't win," Spivey said.

"Lubbock County would be an exremely conservative jurisdiction," he added.

"Counsel, I've got to find that your argument is immaterial," interjected Greenhill.

In another matter before the court, the tribunal ruled that Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. must pay a Matagorda County man $420,371 in damages because a mobile telephone unit installed in his pickup came loose and caused him to have a wreck.

Napoleon M. Griffith filed the suit against Southwestern Bell, saying the defective installation was the cause of the one-car accident July 7, 1973, in which he was injured.

A trial judge, hearing the case without a jury, ruled the 40-pound mobile radio unit was improperly installed and that the improper installation rendered it defective and in an unreasonably dangerous condition.

In other cases Wednesday, the high court:

—Agreed to hear arguments June 27 in a suit by Clear Creek Basin Authority attempting to collect civil damages from the city of Houston because Houston's waste treatment plants are violating state permits in dumping improperly treated waste into Clear Creek.

—Refused to reopen the massive water rights dispute settled a decade ago to determine which landowners in the Lower Rio Grande Valley have rights to water from the river that separates Texas and Mexico.

—Upheld an assessment against attorneys in Texas for payment of debt on the Texas Law Center Building built by the State Bar.

—Ordered District Judge Ed J. Harris of Galveston to permit another judge to rule on an attempt to block Harris from presiding over the divorce trial of Rep. Douglas McLeod, D-Galveston, and his wife. McLeod contends Harris should be disqualified because of the Harris family's close friendship with Mrs. McLeod, and because of political differences between McLeod and Harris, a former state representative.

Criminal Appeals Court Affirms Murder Sentence

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday ruled there was sufficient evidence to determine the cause of the 1975 death of a Kerr County girl and upheld the 99-year murder sentence assessed Allen Ladd Woody for murdering her.
 Woody was convicted on a change of venue in Pecos County for the Sept. 17, 1975, murder of Elizabeth Pearson and appealed that his companion, Lyle Brummett, should have been an accomplice witness during the trial.
 Brummett testified he and Woody saw Carol London and Miss Pearson experiencing car trouble near Kerrville. They invited them to smoke marijuana and led the two girls to an isolated area.

Brummett said he proceeded to have intercourse with Miss London and Woody with Miss Pearson. But he said that Miss Pearson was struggling and Woody choked her to death with his hands. Brummett then did the same thing to Miss London.

The following year Brummett was being questioned by police in Austin concerning another rape-murder case when he confessed to the murders of the two girls in Kerrville. Authorities later found the skeleton remains of the two victims.

In his appeal Woody claimed trial evidence did not prove Miss Pearson's cause of death since a coroner only had the skeleton to examine. But the criminal appeals court ruled that Brummett's testimony that Woody choked Miss Pearson with his hands was sufficient to prove cause of death.

The criminal appeals court also upheld the 60-year aggravated rape sentence of Lorado Cole of Austin, denying his contention that he did not use force in seducing a woman.

The victim testified she returned from work shortly before midnight. After she took a shower, she said she saw Cole standing outside her bedroom window. She said she tried to flee the house but Cole grabbed her.

When she screamed, Cole told her he had a knife and would stab her. The victim said Cole threatened her once more before he threw her on the bed and raped her.
 The woman admitted she did not see a knife because Cole kept one hand behind his back. The court, however, said that Cole's physical restraint of the woman and the threats to stab her were sufficient reasons to indict him on aggravated rape.

The court also upheld four counts of embezzlement against Cleopatra Boggess of Houston for endorsing and cashing four checks belonging to her employer, J.M. Frost III. The woman testified she cashed the checks and left the money in Frost's office.

But the court said there was circumstantial evidence that Mrs. Boggess lived beyond her means, sufficient enough to prove her guilty of embezzlement.

Health Benefits For Vets OKed

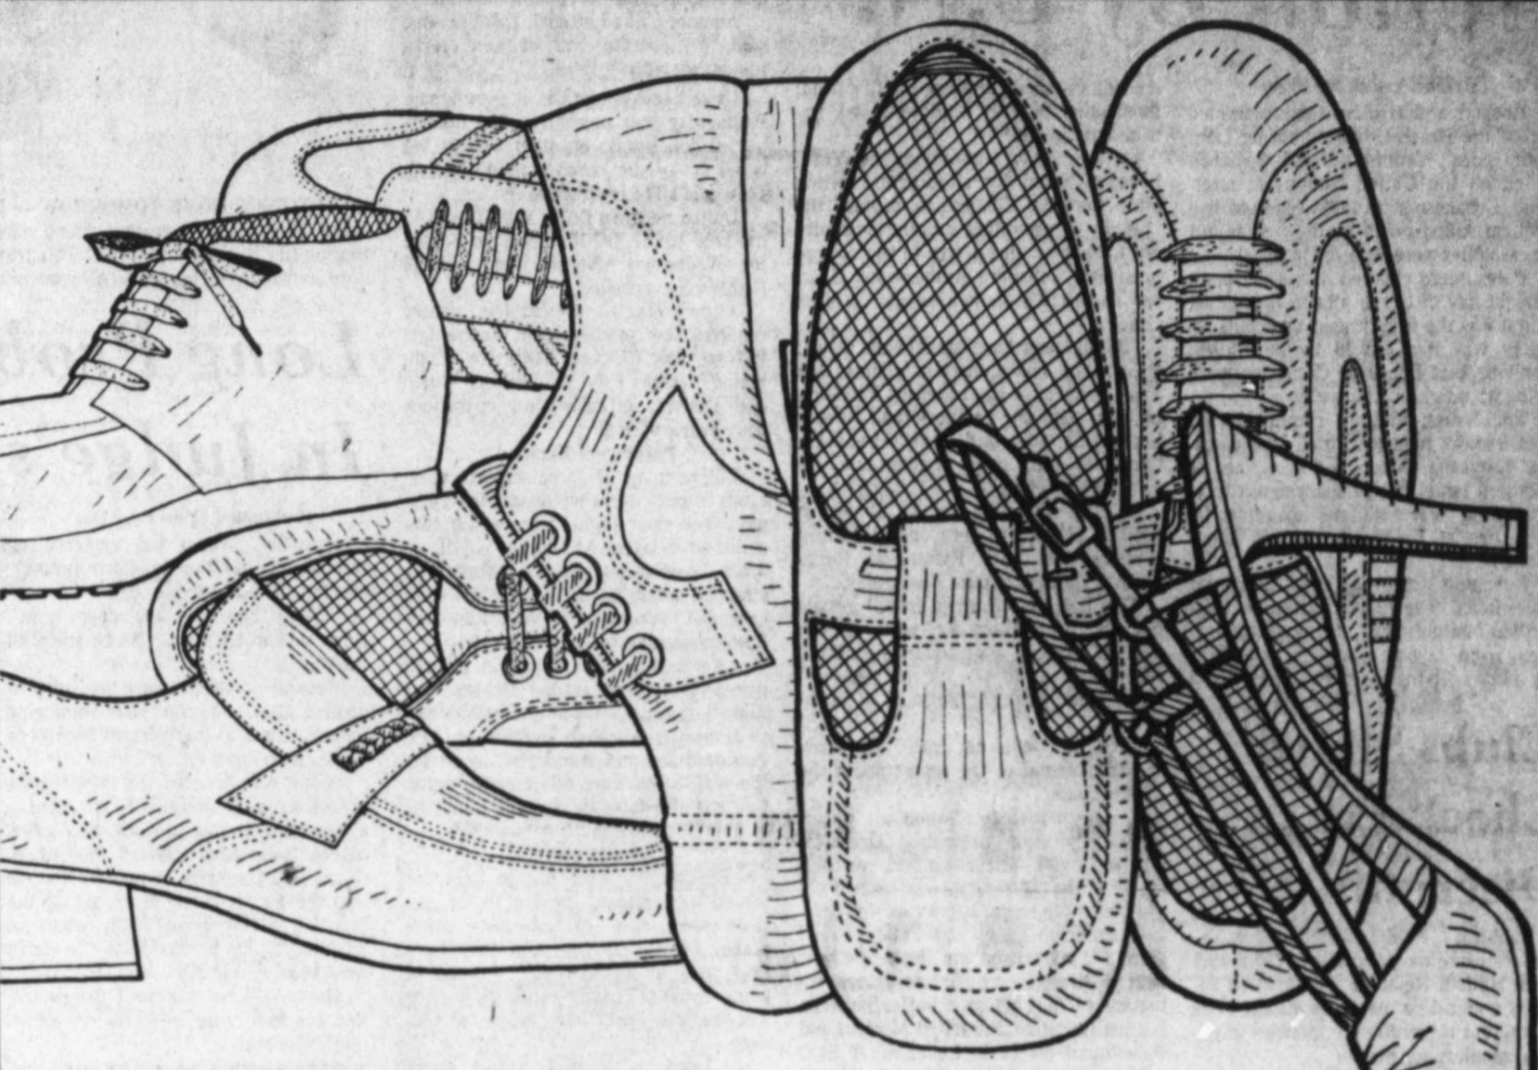

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved new health benefits for veterans Wednesday, including readjustment counseling for veterans suffering emotional problems from the Vietnam War.

It passed 342-0 a House-Senate compromise veteran benefits bill and sent it to the Senate for final approval.

The Veterans Administration estimates nearly one-third of the 8.7 million Vietnam-era veterans still are having trouble adjusting to civilian life. The Congressional Budget Office estimated that about 170,000 of those veterans will seek counseling under the program authorized by the bill.

The measure would authorize the Veterans Administration to provide counseling at new community business district centers as well as at its hospitals and clinics. The bill also would authorize five-year pilot programs for alcohol and drug abuse treatment for veterans and for preventive health care for disabled veterans.

DC-10 Inspections Block Few Flights

By The Associated Press
 Dozens of DC-10 jumbo jets lifted off again Wednesday just hours after the wide-bodied jets were grounded for safety checks, but federal officials said other DC-10s had failed to pass inspection. Most airports reported only minor schedule disruptions on Wednesday and officials at the eight U.S. airlines which fly the jetliners predicted that service would be back on schedule within hours. Fred Farrar, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said Wednesday that some DC-10s had failed safety inspections and still were grounded, but he didn't know how many. He said about half of the 134 DC-10s owned by U.S. airlines had passed inspection and were either cleared for flight or already were returned to the air. The planes were grounded by the FAA after an American Airlines DC-10 jet crashed on takeoff Friday from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, killing 274 persons. A Continental Airlines official said Wednesday that "minor discrepancies" were found in five of its 15 DC-10s. "There is no serious problem. There is nothing major. These are just small things we found that we want to fix ourselves," said Continental Vice President Joe Daley. He said he had no further details.

The FAA grounded the DC-10s for inspection on Tuesday because of "grave and potentially dangerous deficiencies" in their engine mounts. The deficiencies were found during engine bolt inspections provoked by the crash of an American Airlines DC-10 at Chicago on Friday. The FAA order removed from service 12 percent of the available seats on domestic airlines. It was not binding on foreign airlines, but many nevertheless grounded their DC-10s for inspections on Tuesday. On Wednesday, most reported that their service, too, was returning to normal. The FAA order came after United Airlines mechanics found a crack in "a pylon spar web, a horizontal reinforcing plate," on one of its DC-10s, according to United spokesman Dave Ostwald.

New Defect Found
 A second inspection of that plane was ordered and mechanics found another defect — a crack in one of the two braces supporting the reinforcing plate. Another United official, Ed Williams, said, "We consider both of these cracks major problems." United spokesman Chuck Novak said Wednesday that mechanics had not reported deficiencies on other DC-10s. He could not predict when United's 37 DC-10s would all be returned to service. United assigned DC-8s and 727 jets to most of its 61 DC-10 flights scheduled for Wednesday, Novak said, but 16 flights were cancelled.

Airport officials around the country reported few problems on Wednesday. In New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Washington, Kansas City, Dallas-Fort Worth and Denver, officials said operations were nearly normal. Passengers Stranded
 But at many of those airports thousands of passengers were stranded Tuesday when their flights were either cancelled or delayed. At Chicago's O'Hare, 3,200 passengers were temporarily stranded when 16 DC-10 flights were cancelled, according to American Airlines spokesman Joseph Scott. "We just couldn't move in enough planes to replace all the DC-10s," he said. "Logistically, it was impossible."

However, Michael Derchin, a vice president and airline industry expert for the Wall Street firm of Oppenheimer & Co., said Wednesday, "I don't think the airlines lost any significant business." Planes Substituted
 "Essentially, these people were not lost to the airlines," he said. "The carriers were able to substitute other planes for the DC-10s. And they have been able to juggle routes, instead of going nonstop from New York to Los Angeles, you might have to stop in Chicago." At London's Gatwick Airport, about 1,000 people were held up when British Airways' Civil Aviation Authority grounded the nine American-built DC-10s flown by British carriers. All nine jets had been cleared for flight on Wednesday.

Witness Sees Oil Cover-Up
 The department presumably is conducting investigations into alleged white collar crime in the oil industry. Congressional aides had said earlier the witness was a former oil company executive who had information about criminal activity. Dingell said the witness had been subpoenaed to testify under oath. He declined to elaborate on the Justice Department's request. On a related matter, the subcommittee released a General Accounting Office report critical of the Energy Department's enforcement of the complicated price controls on crude oil. The GAO, Congress' investigative agency, said Energy Department officials have not given adequate priority to pricing audits, and until recently were unable to audit resellers of crude oil because of delays in resolving disputes in price regulations. In addition, the report said the department needs better coordination with the Justice Department. Lengthy delays in referring cases to the Justice Department "could jeopardize federal prosecution of some violations," because of an expiring statute of limitations, the report said.

In addition, the report said the department needs better coordination with the Justice Department. Lengthy delays in referring cases to the Justice Department "could jeopardize federal prosecution of some violations," because of an expiring statute of limitations, the report said.

Long Probe Viewed In Judge's Slaying investigation, which has centered on some leaders of the Bandidos motorcycle club, would be accelerated. "We're into this too deep now," Boyd said in El Paso. "We're going all the way."

Federal marshals were assigned to protect Boyd and the four remaining federal judges in the Western District of Texas, said Garza. Wood was guarded for three weeks after Kerr was ambushed by two men in a van while driving to work, only a few blocks from where Wood was killed. Garza said the judge requested Nov. 30 that the guards be removed, telling the marshal, "If someone really wants to kill me, all the protection in the world would not prevent it."

Garza said he continued the protection for two more weeks before reluctantly removing it. "The security was on him at my insistence. He asked that it be removed. I'd like to have continued it. There is a possibility it might have deterred something like this (the slaying)," said Garza. "But we had received no threats on his life." Wood owned a pistol and displayed it to Garza on Nov. 30 when he requested the guards be removed. Garza said he had heard Wood carried the revolver, but did not know if the judge had it at the time of his death. Ingram declined to comment on whether there was a connection between the attacks on Wood and Kerr. But Assistant U.S. Attorney Fred Rodriguez said Wednesday, "It's certainly something to look at."

Kerr has been given constant protection since he was attacked. He escaped the automatic rifle fire with only minor injuries from flying glass. He was unavailable for comment Wednesday. Grand juries in El Paso and San Antonio have looked into the Kerr attack. Several members of the Bandidos testified before the panels and some took lie detector tests and participated in a police lineup viewed by Kerr. No arrests have been made in the Kerr case, however. The federal investigation has resulted in a variety of charges against several El Paso and San Antonio members of the Bandidos. U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell, a former federal judge, said it was the first time a federal judge has been assassinated. "We don't intend to leave a stone unturned," said Bell. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, asked Bell on Wednesday to offer a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Wood's killer.

ler "This vicious, unprecedented assassination must not go unpunished," he said in a letter to Bell. President Carter reacted to the assassination with anger, saying, "The killing of a federal judge... is an assault on our very system of justice."

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, said in Washington that the slaying was "open defiance" by organized crime. "Organized crime is flexing its muscles to show the nation they can kill anyone who gets in their way. If this crime isn't solved, it will multiply itself," he said. Gonzalez said Kerr visited him last week and he warned Kerr that he remained in danger and that Wood was in "extreme danger."

"I think there are several persons who wished Judge Wood dead and that is what they accomplished," said U.S. District Judge William Sessions of El Paso. Wood was shot near his car in front of his townhouse. The bullet, which Bexar County Medical Examiner's Investigator Frank Castillon said was apparently from a "high-powered rifle," tore into Wood's spine and splintered into "15 or 20 fragments." The fragments damaged vital organs and lodged in Wood's abdomen and chest, Castillon said. The fragments were flown to the FBI lab in Washington. Carol Spears, daughter of Chief U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears, was visiting her brother in a nearby townhouse, heard the sound of the shot and ran to the window. "I saw him as he jerked back, twisted around and fell to the ground," she said. "I didn't see where it came from. I didn't know it was a shot."

Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos, who conducted the autopsy, said Wood probably died within minutes.

Jail Death Inquest Testimony Continues

 not seem drunk inside the club. However, club owner Juan Benites and bartender Aurora Gonzalez said Villarreal was asked to leave because he was "too drunk." Benites' nephew, Robert DeLeon, said he first noticed Villarreal about 11:30 p.m. May 16, "leaning against the bar." "He looked sort of drunk," DeLeon said. "I saw him ask the bartender for a beer and she refused to serve him."

All three witnesses said Villarreal appeared to be alone inside the club and did not have a fight with anyone at the nightclub. A subpoena has been issued for Miss Gaitain, but deputies were unable to serve her with the summons Wednesday. In other testimony Wednesday, police Sgt. Jerry Parker and James Little, Cpl. Dan Leming and patrolman Max Wilkinson described finding Villarreal unconscious outside the club shortly after 1 a.m. May 17. All officers said Villarreal appeared to be intoxicated. They reported smelling alcohol on his breath and that they noticed no type of injury on Villarreal. Jailers Jack Eller and Berry Leary, who was the first official to discover Villarreal's death, outlined jailing procedures to the court, noting that the jailing of unconscious persons on the public intoxication charge was not unusual. Leary, however, added that after Villarreal was placed in the second-floor "drunk tank," he personally checked on Villarreal three times, under orders from jail Capt. Steve Dowling. Leary said the individual checking of prisoners was not routine but that "Capt. Dowling said to keep an eye on him because he appeared so drunk." Leary said he went into the cell at 2 a.m., 3:30 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. and did not notice anything unusual concerning Villarreal's condition at any time. The inquest will resume at 9 a.m. today.

Trade Loss Paced By Autos, Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp increase in imports of automobiles from Japan and oil from OPEC nations contributed to a U.S. trade deficit of nearly $2.2 billion in April, the worst in three months, the Commerce Department said Wednesday. The department said imports of all goods rose 5 percent during the month to a total of $16.03 billion, while exports declined 3.9 percent to $13.88 billion. The trade deficit of $2.15 billion was the worst since January and reversed, at least temporarily, a recent trend toward improvement in the nation's trade ledger. The deficit in March was just $821 million.

Improvement Seen
 However, trade analysts said they wouldn't change their projection for overall improvement in the trade outlook this year on the basis of the one-month deterioration in the figures. The administration projects the 1979 deficit at $23.5 billion, down from the record $29 billion last year. Imports of oil and autos both were up sharply in dollar terms in April. Imports of autos, primarily from Japan, rose $371 million to nearly $1.1 billion, while oil imports jumped $334 million to a total of just under $4.1 billion. Analysts said the 9 percent rise in the value of imported oil was not surprising in view of recent price hikes by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The quantity of imported oil rose 5 percent to 266.7 million barrels.

Steep Dollar Slide
 The huge trade deficits of the past two years contributed to the steep slide in the value of the U.S. dollar in the same period, since it meant that the amount of U.S. money flowing out of the country to pay for the trade was increasing. However, the dollar has regained a significant portion of its earlier losses, although it wasn't clear whether the April trade deficit would affect its new-found strength. One analyst said it might have no effect since the deficit had been expected to rise from the low March level, although he expressed surprise at the magnitude of the red ink in April. The Commerce Department said the nation's trade deficit with Japan increased sharply in April, totaling just under $1.1 billion for the month, up sharply from a deficit of $286 million in March.

OPEC Deficit Rises
 The deficit with OPEC nations also rose to slightly more than $2 billion, up from $1.4 billion in March. In addition to autos and oil, there were also significant increases during the month in imports of coffee, up $56 million; fish, up $52 million; iron ore, $68 million; and miscellaneous manufactured articles, up $122 million. On the export side, there were significant declines in foreign sales of chemicals, down $117 million; soybeans, $106 million; computers and office machinery, down $119 million; coal, down $53 million, and animal feeds, down $67 million.

Despite the April erosion in the trade figures, the Commerce Department said total exports during the first four months of the year were still 15 percent above exports in the same period last year, while imports grew at a slower rate of 9 percent.

VETS AS FEDERAL WORKERS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Over 345,000 Vietnam era veterans work for the federal government, according to statistics compiled by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management. The agency said 1,250,000 veterans represented 45 percent of the 2,750,000 federal workforce as of last December. Vietnam era veterans accounted for 12 percent of the total workforce.

Lebanon Urges Action By U.N.

By The Associated Press
 Rockets and artillery shells slammed across the Israeli-Lebanese border from both sides Wednesday and Lebanon called on the United Nations to intervene. Lebanese state radio reported five civilians killed north of the border but no casualties were reported in Israel. Palestinians claimed it was the ninth straight day of Israeli attacks, but Israel said it was the first time in a week its artillery was involved in the hostilities, implying that Lebanese Christians were doing what fighting there was.

The Israeli military command said Wednesday's fight was brief. It said several Katyusha rockets had been fired at northern Israel from Lebanese territory, prompting "a few minutes" of return Israeli fire at Palestinian targets about 9:30 a.m. Lebanese provincial authorities, and Palestinian guerrilla spokesmen, described "unrelenting" artillery bombardment from daybreak to noon, with Israeli planes flying overhead and boats cruising off shore. Besides the five dead, three other persons were wounded. Lebanese radio said.

At the United Nations in New York, Lebanon asked for an urgent meeting of the Security Council to discuss the "rapidly deteriorating situation in southern Lebanon." In a letter to the council president, Lebanese Ambassador Ghasan Tuani cited "Israeli escalation of its attacks."

The Israelis have steadfastly denied Palestinian and Lebanese claims that their forces have been shelling Palestinian bases regularly for more than a week, but Israeli radio said Israel's Lebanese Christian allies were responsible for some artillery fire.

It said Christian militia forces in southern Lebanon were engaged in an artillery duel with Palestinian forces north of the border zone Wednesday.

The Lebanese claimed Israeli missile boats were patrolling Wednesday off the port of Tyre, a Palestinian stronghold that Lebanese officials say has been devastated and virtually emptied of civilians.

"No, no, that's not true," an Israeli spokesman said of the report about the missile boats.

Israeli Jets Swoop
 The Palestine Liberation Organization said two Israeli jet fighters swooped low over the Tyre area, then peeled off and broke the sound barrier as they left.

Palestinian guerrillas said Israeli guns had trained on the Hasbani River, near positions held by Syrian peacekeeping forces that act as a buffer between rightist Christian and leftist Moslem and Palestinian forces in Lebanon. A PLO spokesman called it "an obvious attempt to provoke the Syrians into precipitous military action" and dislodge them.

The PLO also said Christian militiamen under Maj. Saad Haddad, who with Israeli backing proclaimed a "Free Lebanon" state in a six-mile-deep strip along the Israeli border April 18, also were shelling Hasbani and adjacent hamlets for the same purpose.

U.N. Polices Area
 The Israelis turned the border strip over to Haddad when they withdrew after their March 1978 invasion of southern Lebanon. The rest of the region is policed by a 5,800-man U.N. truce force, and the Lebanese state radio said the shelling was meant to force the U.N. troops — whose mandate expires June 19 — to withdraw. The radio and the Palestinians say an earlier shelling of Tyre caught Dutch, Norwegian and Fijian U.N. troops in a cross-fire.

In Beirut, Lebanese Prime Minister Salim El Hoss summoned U.S. Ambassador John Dean, and Beirut radio quoted Hoss as urging that Washington "bring this (Israeli) aggression to a halt." Syrian newspapers urged Arab governments to clamp an oil embargo against the United States, and Hoss appealed to oil-rich Arab countries to help Lebanon cope with 60,000 refugees reported to have fled the south.

In other developments: —The Israeli government reduced the prison sentence of Terre Fleener, 25, of San Antonio, Tex. Miss Fleener was convicted last year of aiding Palestinian guerrillas and sentenced to five years in prison. The government recommended the term be cut in half, and under Israeli law, she can apply for parole June 25, after completing two-thirds of the sentence.

Clubs Slated Check For Discrimination

Lubbock's Public Accommodation Ordinance came under scrutiny Wednesday when Human Relations Commission advisory committee members disagreed as to whether the ordinance includes physically handicapped people.

The ordinance prohibits discrimination in all public buildings, including restaurants and nightclubs. HRC member Roy Pope, himself physically handicapped, suggested the commission review the ordinance because, he said, handicapped people are discriminated against when they cannot enter a building because of architectural barriers.

Pope cited as examples night clubs with steps that do not permit access for wheelchairs, and banks with revolving doors.

Advisory members agreed that the ordinance is worth testing as it stands and made recommendations that commission members visit clubs to see if they are complying with the ordinance.

They added, however, that if the ordinance is not able to curb city-wide discrimination against physically handicapped persons as well as minorities, it should be amended.

Also discussed at the advisory committee's monthly meeting were complaints received about commentator Paul Harvey's programs on Channel 28.

Member Taita Dorow said she received several complaints about Harvey's alleged derogatory references to Mexican-Americans who don't speak English and blacks on welfare.

She and other committee members suggested the commission ask the station for equal time to express opposing viewpoints.

Estes Mail Fraud Trial Set June 11

DALLAS (AP) — Paroled West Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes was ordered Wednesday to stand trial June 11 on a mail fraud charge stemming from an alleged con scheme similar to one which earned him a prison term in the early 1960's.

Estes will stand trial with longtime friend and former secretary Sue Goolsby of Abilene on one of four federal indictments returned against him Feb. 22. He also faces charges of interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained securities, conspiracy and concealing assets from the Internal Revenue Service.

Raymond K. Horton of Midland and M.L. Copenhaven of Houston also were indicted in the same case and face trial immediately after the completion of the Estes-Goolsby case.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill denied a defense motion Wednesday to try Goolsby separately. The trial, slated to begin June 4, was ordered delayed after Estes's defense attorney, G. Brockett Irwin, requested more time to study government evidence.

In the 1960's, Estes built a fortune on mortgages using non-existent anhydrous ammonia tanks as collateral. He was convicted of fraud in 1963, sentenced to 15 years in prison and paroled in 1971.

Janitor Accused Of Bugging Courthouse

AYER, Mass. (AP) — Police hunted Wednesday for a 71-year-old janitor accused of hiding a network of homemade bugging devices throughout the 27-room Ayer District Courthouse.

Ira Keizer of Acton, indicted Tuesday on nine counts of illegal wiretapping by a Middlesex County grand jury, vanished last Thursday after a search warrant was issued for the courthouse.

A team of 15 state police detectives, assistant district attorneys and technicians from the First Security Services Corp. of Boston combed the building for 12 hours Thursday night and Friday morning.

Their sweep uncovered a variety of small transmitters hidden in telephone booths, courtrooms and offices and at least one desk calendar. Some 20 tape cassettes of recorded conversations were found in two locations along with several radio receivers.

Investigators said the receivers were found in Keizer's office. Among the electronic booty seized was a small antenna wired outside the office of presiding Judge David Williams.

"Every room had the capability of being eavesdropped on," said Lt. George McGarrity, a state police detective who led the sweep. "The transmitters were wireless and portable. They could be placed anywhere."

McGarrity said the equipment was homemade. "The average person who could read diagrams could have put together the equipment," he said.

Authorities were still trying to determine how long the bugs had been operating and why they were placed throughout the courthouse.

"We suspect this was going on for a substantial amount of time," said William Codinha, the first assistant Middlesex County district attorney. "We'll have a better idea when we listen to the tapes."

"How the information was being used is another question we still have to answer," he said. "But we have to treat it as a very serious situation. It was a substantial violation of others' rights that goes to the very cornerstone of the criminal justice system."

He said the grand jury would reconvene next week to review additional evidence in the case.

He declined to say whether more arrests were expected.

Codinha said the investigation was launched on information provided by Assistant District Attorney Dane DiMichalis, who "began hearing and seeing things" while he was at the Ayer courthouse for a murder trial.

Codinha and DiMichalis declined to comment further on the discovery of the equipment.

Keizer worked as building superintendent at the courthouse for 10 years. His co-workers declined to talk about the case and neither state police nor the district attorney's office had much information on Keizer.

"Right now he's pretty much just a name to us," said McGarrity.

Separation Of Siamese Twins Completed

HANSEN TWINS — Twins Lisa, foreground, and Elisa Hansen are shown in the intensive care unit of the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City following an operation that separated the Siamese twins. The 19-month-old girls, daughters of David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, Utah, were joined at the top of the head before the 16-hour operation that concluded early Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Doctors severed a small connection between the brains of Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen during a 16½-hour operation to separate the girls, their doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Stephen Minton said the 19-month-old twins were in "critical but stable condition" Wednesday, as they were when surgery ended at 3:05 a.m.

He said a small connection between the sisters' brains was severed by surgeons during the marathon operation. Previously, doctors had said the twins' brains were separate, although linked by shared blood vessels.

Minton said the neurosurgeons separated the brains — linked at a small spot at the back of the head — without difficulty, adding it was too early to tell if either girl suffered brain damage.

"I love them. I want them to be perfectly normal," said Minton of the girls, daughters of David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden.

He said the next days and weeks will be critical for the twins, born joined at the top of their heads.

The girls tolerated the risky surgery well, the doctor said, but "there are many things which could go wrong" — including infection and bleeding.

Doctors used magnifying lenses strapped to their foreheads to work on the tiny blood vessels, he said. During the operation, two surgical tables were pushed together for the babies.

Minton described the feeling in the Utah Medical Center operating room at the moment of separation:

"The girls are like members of our own family. There was an exhilarating feeling of accomplishment. I was extremely excited at that moment."

The girls are in the hospital's intensive care unit — in separate beds for the first time in their lives. During the day, medical center spokesman John Dwan said, they were "moving and laughing. They're okay."

The twins' parents were in seclusion Wednesday, but the sisters' uncle reported, "Boy, are they happy!"

"We're all happy," said the uncle, Paul Hansen, 19. "It's a medical first and we're privileged to be part of it."

He quoted the twins' father as saying, "We're relieved and the Lord has answered our prayers. We've been hoping and praying for this day. It's a miracle, a dream come true."

At 3:05 a.m., as the girls were being brought out of their deep sleep and ushered to the intensive care unit, Elisa cried out, said Dwan, who watched part of the operation.

"All of a sudden little Elisa, her arms swung out and she — 'Waaaa' — she cried," he said. "There were smiles and drooping shoulders and the doctors relaxed."

Dwan compared the operation to a ballet, "absolutely incredible to watch." He said the operating room was noisy with up to 11 doctors working at one time.

Other attempts to separate such twins have ended in death or severe mental retardation, said Minton. Total and successful separation had never been accomplished on twins joined in such a manner, he added.

"It's been a long, long time," said Paul Hansen. "So many operations and so many times in the hospital. There's still a lot to do, but the big part is over. Our prayers were answered."

He said Lisa and Elisa still face long periods of additional hospitalization, "primarily for plastic surgery."

However, he said, it has been the parents' wish all along that separation be attempted so the girls could live normal lives.

"It's going to be quite something holding them again," he laughed. "Before, if you played with one, you played with the other, too."

Father Of Chad Green Denies Return Rumor

BOSTON (AP) — The father of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green denied Wednesday that he intends to return to Massachusetts to seek dismissal of contempt charges brought against him for taking the boy to a Laetrile clinic in Mexico.

Gerald Green disputed his lawyer's contention on Tuesday that Green would try to clear himself in court so that he could bring his family home.

Reached in Tijuana by WREB radio in Holyoke, Green said, "I have no intention of returning. We are planning to continue fighting, and we will fight it to the end."

Green and his wife, Diana, were found in contempt by a Plymouth Superior Court judge when they secretly took the boy to Mexico last January, rather than obey a court order forbidding use of Laetrile. They said they felt Laetrile treatments could help their son battle his cancer.

Judge Guy Volterra had ordered the couple to stop giving the boy home doses of Laetrile, vitamins and enzymes. The judge said the youngster was being poisoned by cyanide, which is one of the ingredients of Laetrile.

The lawyer, George Donovan, who said Green would come to Massachusetts within two weeks, could not be reached for further comment Wednesday. He met with the Greens in Los Angeles last Tuesday.

The prosecutor in the case, Jonathan Brant, said Tuesday that the Greens could probably purge themselves of contempt "if they return voluntarily and apologize for flouting the court's authority."

In the interview Wednesday, Green said:

"Jonathan Brant can take it and stick it in his ear as far as I'm concerned. If he thinks I'm going to apologize to those people, he's out of his mind. The state owes us an apology for disrupting our lives."

The Greens are under court order in Massachusetts to give their boy chemotherapy. Volterra issued that order more than a year ago when the parents said they thought the standard cancer drugs were poisoning the child.

Soho Residents Search For Missing 6-Year-Old

NEW YORK (AP) — The search for the lost child of Soho has become an intense community effort, involving police hotlines, psychics and neighborhood meetings.

Parents and other residents of the lower Manhattan neighborhood have joined forces to try to find frail, blond 6-year-old Etan Patz who was last seen last Friday walking down a street to catch a school bus.

Posters printed in English, Spanish and Chinese — reflecting the ethnic diversity of the neighborhood — have gone up on buildings, parents have interviewed passersby, and psychics have been pressed into service.

"It's a threat to all of us as parents, and something that strikes very close to the heart," said Ann Romasco, a freelance writer and resident of Soho who has helped organize the neighborhood to aid in the search for Etan.

Mrs. Romasco, the mother of two, is among the neighbors who have brought meals to Etan's parents, Stanley and Julie Patz, who wait for news of their son's fate in their loft.

The loft is in disarray, as members of the news media troop through to interview the Patzes. They have two other children — Ari, 2, and Shira, 8 — and Ari scooted around the cluttered loft in a red toy car, under the benevolent eye of a mural of a smiling green dragon.

A policeman is posted 24 hours a day next to the Patz telephone, and two others sit in a green van in the street, answering calls to a special hotline: 777-3683.

Patz said calls have been coming at a rate of 500 a day, many from "psychos."

"Who knows how many cute little blond kids there are in the city?" he asks.

Hobby Opposes Revival Of Initiative/Referendum Proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — One chance in the legislature was more than enough for the governor's initiative and referendum proposal, says Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"I really think that's the kind of legislation a governor ought to veto rather than call a special session about," Hobby said grimly about Gov. Bill Clements' promise to summon lawmakers back to Austin sometime before 1981.

"I'm basically not in sympathy with what he plans," the Senate's presiding officer added.

Clements' plan to let voters pass and repeal laws crumbled in the House and never got a full Senate audience.

"It never enjoyed wide acceptance in either house," Hobby said in assessing the 66th Legislature, which ended Monday.

But, Hobby added in an interview, compromise is possible on the issue of indirect initiative proposals "as long as we have something that does not bypass the legislative process."

Clements was not alone in watching a pet project go down to defeat.

Hobby's 1980 presidential primary bill led to the internationally reported "Killer Bees" episode. Twelve liberal and moderate senators boycotted the Senate to stop the bill and eluded Texas Rangers sent by Hobby to arrest them.

The rebel senators claimed the bill was rigged to help former Texas Gov. John Connally's bid for the Republican presidential nomination. The Killer Bees also said Hobby changed Senate rules to pass the bill.

After Hobby agreed to return to normal operating procedure, the 12 senators returned and the bill died.

The lieutenant governor said he would handle the situation identically if he had to do it over again. His leadership and political credibility remain intact, he maintained.

"I did the right thing, what the presiding officer has to do. I would do nothing different," Hobby said.

"What effect it has (on my political future) is up to others to judge," he said.

FUGITIVE SURRENDERS

RED LAKE, Minn. (AP) — A sixth man is in custody in connection with the violence on northern Minnesota's Red Lake Indian Reservation that saw two persons killed and 45 vehicles and several buildings burned or destroyed by gunfire. Donald Edward Desjarlait surrendered to agents. He is charged, along with five others, with assaulting federal officers during an armed takeover on the reservation.

Hobby would like to see Clements include the presidential primary issue on the special session's agenda. But the lieutenant governor will not urge the governor to do so.

"If I'm asked, I'll certainly say something but I'm not much of one to be telling somebody else how to do their job," Hobby added.

Clements has not announced a date for the special session. Hobby said he has no hints about it and would rather not see lawmakers again until January 1981.

Aside from the Killer Bees flight, the 1979 legislature was "a pretty good session," he said.

Hobby pointed to property tax revision as its most important accomplishment. Lawmakers approved single countywide appraisal offices, homestead and automobile tax exemptions and repeal of the 10-cent per $100 state property tax.

"The property tax code has been kicking around for six years," he said. "Property tax is an area of obvious inequity and it took six years of kicking around various proposals before one that met the muster came out."

He scoffed at claims the session became a buffet for special interests. Among other items, legislators passed bills making it harder for consumers to win lawsuits against deceptive businessmen.

"The people saying that (special interests took over the legislature) are mainly plaintiffs lawyers with largely personal interests in the matter," Hobby said.

Kids, Animals Make Good Subjects For Photography Contest Entries

Children and animals are both appealing photographically and when you combine them in one photo most anything can happen. The interplay between the child and the animal can produce a funny picture, one that is sentimental or appealing. Whichever way it goes, the likely combination seems to attract the attention of photography contest judges year after year.

Introducing an animal into a picture is an almost certain way of attracting a child's attention, making him or her far less conscious of the camera. The result can turn a posed picture into one that is utterly natural.

Keep this in mind when you are thinking of pictures you've taken since the first of July 1978 and those you are taking now to enter in the A-J snapshot contest. And never lose sight of the fact that if your entry is a top winner here, it will go on to compete for $55,000 in cash-and-travel prizes in the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards. There it will be competing with the entries from other participating papers in the United States, Canada and Mexico. But there are some 220 prizes, so your chances will still be good. The contest is open to any amateur.

PRIZE WINNER — Sharon Jozwiak of Appleton, Wis., won a certificate of merit in the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards for this picture of her son, Robbie, dangling a lure in front of a calf.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal contest, being held in conjunction with Kodak, begins Sunday and ends July 4. Entries may be mailed to the "Snapshot Contest Editor," c/o the A-J, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, 79408 beginning Sunday. Weekly winners in color and black-and-white categories will receive parchment certificates. All weekly winners will compete for cash awards from the A-J in both categories and their photos will be sent to Kodak for the international competition.

YOU CALL THIS FUN? — This is known as a sure way to keep a springer spaniel from jumping out of the tub while getting a bath. Robin Donina recognized the scene as a good picture and the Alliquippa, Pa., high school senior won a certificate of merit for the photo in the 1978 Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards.

Voyager Photos Show Blue Snow On Surface Of Jupiter Moon

from a distance of 28.7 million miles. Note the Great Red Spot and the changed cloud patterns. The photo at right was taken two hours before the one at left. Note that the Red Spot has not yet rotated into view. (AP Laserphotos)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voyager spacecraft pictures indicate Jupiter's volcanic moon Io may have blue snow in some areas, scientists reported Wednesday.

Dr. Laurence Soderblom of the U.S. Geological Survey said close examination of pictures of the reddish-yellow moon show areas near the South Pole that appear to be covered with a bluish substance.

Soderblom said two pictures taken six hours apart by Voyager 1 as it passed Io in March show a bluish glow developing within some surface cracks.

"It suggests eruptions of a gas, possibly sulfur dioxide," Soderblom said. "Freezing gas would form fine crystals or particles that scatter blue light and look blue."

Scientists disclosed the surprise findings at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration briefing at the annual meeting of the American Geophysical Union.

Soderblom estimated that between 30 to 40 blue areas are visible in the pictures, mostly in southern regions and along faults in the crust.

Discovery of spewing volcanoes on Io was a highlight of the mission that returned dramatic pictures and other data on Jupiter and several of its moons.

The robot spacecraft is on its way to Saturn and a sister ship, Voyager 2, is 20 million miles from Jupiter and closing in for a July 9 flyby. NASA officials said both spacecraft are in good condition, although Voyager 2 has been using its backup radio system since the primary unit malfunctioned early in the mission.

Dr. John Pearl of Goddard Space Flight Center said preliminary infrared readings show Io's volcanoes are cooler than earlier estimated.

Pearl said most areas on the satellite seem to have a temperature of about 235 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Readings of a plume from one volcano showed a temperature of only about 80 degrees.

These figures don't match well with speculation that the volcanoes may be shooting molten sulfur, which would require temperatures of about 233 degrees.

B NEWS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

he added.

Soderblom said eight spewing volcanoes, some shooting plumes hundreds of miles high, have been positively identified so far. For unknown reasons, these volcanoes are distributed around the equator of the satellite, he added.

Dr. Edward Stone of the California

Institute of Technology said pictures from the incoming Voyager 2 show Jupiter's Great Red Spot has been drifting to the west and other features slowly evolving since Voyager 1's visit.

Scientists have added a 10-hour picture taking session of Io to the spacecraft's flight plan in hopes of getting a continuous record of volcanic activity in one region, he said.

Voyager 2 will fly closer to the moons Europa, Ganymede and Callisto than its predecessor for better resolution pictures. And the spacecraft also will take more pictures of Jupiter's dark side to get a better look at giant lightning bolts spotted by the first craft.

Navy Getting Tough With Fatties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy is getting serious about weight control. Navy officials said Tuesday that a new weight control program for service personnel is set to begin soon.

As part of the program, Navy personnel will be given extra assistance in losing excess pounds. Persons who don't shed enough of their extra pounds face possible disciplinary action or even discharge from the service, officials said.

The new program will beef up a regulation already in existence, officials said. "Waistlines stretching the front of an otherwise well-fitting blouse or shirt ... or pot bellies detract from good military appearance," said Lt. Joey Keeffe of the Navy Military Personnel Command in Washington.

Officers who don't keep their weight down will see that fact noted in their fitness report, reducing their chances for promotion, while enlisted men and women could be discharged.

Since 1977, the Navy has discharged 527 enlisted men and 19 enlisted women for obesity. No officers have been discharged, officials said.

Golden Eggs Not Required, Just Silence

WASHINGTON (AP) — What's bad for the goose turns out to be bad for the golfer.

Federal authorities Wednesday charged a Washington physician, Sherman Thomas, with killing a Canada goose with his putter May 3 at the Congressional Country Club in suburban Maryland.

He was charged in U.S. District Court in Baltimore with killing a goose during

Juvenile Delinquency Reaches All-Time Low

QUIMPER, France (AP) — Four kindergarten children, aged 3 to 6, got into a school for infants in this western French town at night, wrecked four classrooms and killed four pet birds, police sources said.

On Saturday morning, the janitor found tables and chairs overturned, cupboards emptied, phonographs smashed and walls and floors covered in ink. A dove and three budgerigars, a type of Australian parakeet, had been killed and plucked, and three other birds daubed with paint.

The police sources said the children were easy to identify because they had been reported missing by their parents that night.

The odds against getting a royal flush in poker are 649,739 to one.

the closed season and with illegally possessing a Canada goose, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Curt Schmoke.

Club members report witnesses have given two conflicting versions of the goose's demise.

One version is that the goose honked just as Thomas was putting on the 17th green, causing Thomas to misshits putt and attack the goose in a rage.

The other version is that the goose was injured when accidentally hit by the ball as Thomas made his approach shot. Thomas then killed the injured bird to put it out of its misery.

The goose-hunting season in Maryland ended Jan. 26.

Thomas could not be reached for comment. His attorney, Charles Shaffer, declined to comment, saying he was unaware charges had been filed.

He acknowledged the conflict reports of the goose's death.

Thomas earlier won a temporary injunction in Montgomery County Circuit Court forbidding the country club's board of directors, who were investigating the incident, from considering any disciplinary action against the physician. The board's options ranged from dismissing the incident to expulsion and loss of membership.

Federal law proscribes the types of weapons that can be used to hunt geese. Hunters can use shotguns, bows and arrows or birds-of-prey such as falcons. Golf clubs are forbidden.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I have a very good suggestion for that woman whose husband cannot interest her in lovemaking — so she pretends he is Cary Grant.

She should stop him in the middle of the preliminaries (no matter how brief they may be) and request gently but firmly that he give her two compliments. Example: "You have lovely eyes." or "That was a fine dinner you prepared tonight." There should be no coaching. Be patient and wait for him to think of something. And remember, don't allow any irritation, past or present, to interfere. In time, the desired degree of intimacy will result from the most important ingredient in any relationship. It is called communication. The suggestion I offer here saved my disintegrating marriage. Please sign me — Mrs. Ontario took it seriously. Once I was awakened by the sound of my own voice. I was also talking in my sleep.

I would like very much to know why I do it — or why does anybody do it? What can you tell me about sleepwalking? — Baffled In Boston

Dear Baff: Not much. So I consulted "The Ann Landers Encyclopedia" and reread the piece on sleepwalking by Dr. William Keller, former chairman, Department of Psychiatry, University of Louisville, Ky. He wrote:

"Sleepwalking has been going on for centuries and it's still anyone's guess as to why some people walk in their sleep and others do not. It's been attributed to many causes — from being possessed by demons to eating too much for dinner.

"If a member of the family is a sleepwalker, simple safety precautions should be taken, such as locking windows and screens, keeping the furniture in the same place, and the use of uncomplicated devices — such as installing a child's gate at the top of the stairs.

"One bit of superstition persists — that something serious will happen to a sleepwalker if he is awakened suddenly. This bit of folklore probably originated when someone startled a sleepwalker on a bridge and he fell off."

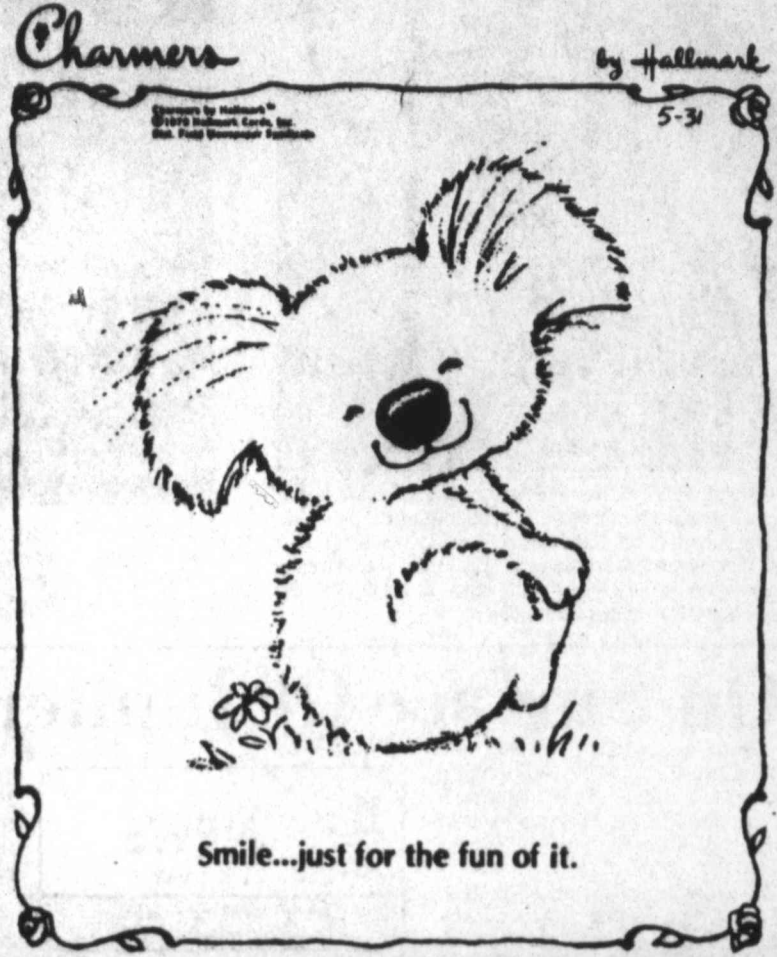

Dear Ann Landers: I hope I can help "Bashful Kidney" because I, too, was brought up in a very strict family that made me feel sex, the body, and all bodily functions were "naughty."

Not being able to urinate in the presence of another person can be a serious handicap — especially in college or the armed services. I know because I experienced both situations and it was hell.

I went to the counselor on campus and was given an immediate solution. He said, "Flush so that you will not be heard." From that day on I never had the problem. Please pass this on in your column. It's amazing how one little bit of simple advice can alleviate so much suffering. — Carefree in Canton

Dear Canton: Your solution worked so it's a good one — but private stalls are required. Thanks for sharing.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Why doesn't the body develop some sort of immunity to gonorrhea and syphilis? It seems that modern science should be able to come up with some vaccine to wipe this out. — P.P.

The body does develop some very weak immunity, and medical researchers are, indeed, working to find ways to strengthen it. In fact, it has been one of the leading goals of immunology research for many years. Efforts have been intensified recently because of the near-epidemic proportions of the problem in the young.

At a medical meeting I attended recently a researcher in the field told me it is hoped to have a satisfactory anti-gonorrheal vaccine in use within a decade. That's but a tick of the clock compared to the countless thousands of years the problem has been around to plague man.

Development of vaccines is more complicated than you might believe. We've been able to detect the presence of certain natural antibodies against the gonorrhea germ in bodies of infected persons. But it's not nearly potent enough to provide any effective degree of protection against reinfection. Thus, the germ can be contracted time after time with roughly the same unpleasant effects each time.

Syphilis is an entirely different and more difficult matter. It can produce some mild immunity at the cell level over many years. It's a very slow process and in the meantime new infections can occur, especially of the skin. The nagging problem in development of any vaccine is that injection of an organism may cause a full-fledged case of the disease it is intended to fight off. Immunities to various organisms vary in amount depending on which is involved. Some produce high levels, while others produce hardly any.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I read several months ago in your column how menopause can cause a troublesome vaginal itching and dryness, which leads to irritation and infection. Can this happen with other skin on the body of a woman at menopause? — D.L.V.

No, you'll recall I said the problem is related to hormones, specifically to the reduction in estrogen production at that time in a woman's life. The chief effects (if there are to be any at all) are in the so-called "target" organs — breasts, uterus, or any that are dependent on the hormone supply. The cause of the dryness is a change in cell tissue there, and it is a real problem for many menopausal women. Many write asking about it. If the symptoms are severe and pose a threat of complications, such as infection or interference with sexual intercourse (a major concern), local application of estrogen creams can be used springly for brief periods. Women concerned with menopausal dryness may want to study my booklet on menopause, where it is discussed in more depth. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of this newspaper.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents. Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Small Pay Hike Disappoints Teachers

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The 5.1 percent teacher salary increase passed by the legislature won't compensate for the going inflation rate, but it's "better than nothing," say some Lubbock teacher association officials.

The school finance bill provides for a 5.1 percent annual pay raise for most teachers for the next two years, in line with salary increase given other state workers.

Experienced teachers will receive additional pay raises, and in some cases may have their salary raised up to 10 percent a year during the next two years.

"I hate to complain about anything we get, but I was real disappointed it isn't more since we're below the national average (for teacher salaries) to start with," said Wendell Huddleston, outgoing president of the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association. "This doesn't bring us any closer to the national average."

He added that the increase "won't be a drop in the bucket" compared to the cost of living.

The Texas State Teachers Association had lobbied for a 7.1 percent increase—a wage hike that was passed by both the House and Senate and scaled down in conference committee.

The state starting salary for teachers is $8,540. Tony Compton, president of the Lubbock Educators Association, said he wanted the higher figure, but said,

15-Year Sentence Given For Rape

A 26-year-old Lubbock man was found guilty Wednesday in the December rape of a convenience store clerk and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary.

The 140th District Court jury took 28 minutes to find Billy Ray Lawson of 516-B E. 37th St. guilty and 1 1/2 hours to decide his punishment.

He was accused in the rape of a 29-year-old Lubbock woman last Dec. 3 at an 802 Ave. Q store. She testified Tuesday that he pulled a knife, robbed the cash register of $160 and then assaulted her in a back room of the store.

Lawson was indicted in January on five counts of aggravated rape. The case this week was the first of those to be disposed.

"There's no need in getting a big percentage rate increase if the money's not available."

Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, chairman of the Senate Education committee, had told his colleagues Monday that, "This (the 5.1 percent hike) is all the money we had available."

"We all would like more money, but we're willing to do our part to stay within President Carter's inflation guidelines," said Compton. He said the 5.1 increase "will help some" but that he doesn't "see that it will make that of an impact."

Eric Schaudies, legislative chairman for the classroom teachers association, was unhappy with the scaled down pay increase. He said that he has a salary committee that has been working on a study showing that during the last six years the Consumer Price Index cost of living has risen 27-28 percent.

"Our salaries in proportion to inflation have fallen six to eight percent less than the cost of living each year," he said. "Even if they had adopted the 7.1 increase, salaries would have fallen $2,065 less than the national average for teachers."

He said that Texas teachers "rank about 33rd in the nation" in salaries.

He added that the 7.1 figure was even a compromise from the Texas State Teachers Association's original legislative package.

Schaudies said he "doesn't buy" Mauzy's statement that the state had no more money to give than that involved in a 5.1 percent increase. He said that he had heard that the state had a surplus.

"Of course the problem in Texas is that they can't consider any educational legislation until after the 120th day of the session," said Schaudies. "So that, sure, any surplus is taken care of before we get our piece of the pie."

He said he had no idea whether the decreased pay hike would prompt a request for an increased local increment to add to the state salaries, but said that he feels the school board might approve such a request "if it's financially possible."

"The school board here in Lubbock appreciates the job our teachers do," he said.

School board president Charles Waters said he felt the 5.1 increase is what the Texas State Teachers Association "realistically" felt it could get. "You never ask for a conservative amount," he said. "It's a bargaining technique."

He said he thought the approved figure is what the teachers' group "privately, if not publicly would be satisfied with."

Redistricting Proposal Turned Down

An attempt to redistrict Lubbock County Commissioners Court precinct lines based on road and bridge mileage suffered a silent death at a meeting of the court Wednesday.

Commissioner Jim Lancaster's motion to equalize the mileage in his own Precinct 3 and Alton Brazell's Precinct 4 by changing the boundary along County Road 27 failed to receive a second from other commissioners, thus preventing a vote on the proposal.

Lancaster told the court redistricting was necessary to equalize the costs of maintaining roads and added that the number of residents to be affected by the changes along County Road 27 "would probably be fewer than 150 people."

"I feel like that is where the greatest discrepancy exists," Lancaster said of the current boundary between precincts 3 and 4.

He said his latest estimates of the road and bridge mileage in the county show Precinct 3 to have 357 miles compared to 289 in Precinct 4. He also said Precinct 1 contains about 277 miles and Precinct 2 approximately 336 miles.

Lancaster brought a map of the county with proposed new precinct boundaries to the meeting and explained that his motion would give precincts 3 and 4 each about 305 miles in roadways.

"I feel like this is a very fair presentation," he said of the envisioned future boundaries, but other members of the court were less certain of its merits.

Strake Endorses Improved Relations With Mexico Due To Large Oil Supply

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Secretary of State George Strake, noting Mexico is "literally sitting on" an underground sea of oil, Wednesday advocated developing better relations with the crude-rich nation.

"We'd better stop treating them like second-class neighbors, because they're not," said Strake, who was in Lubbock to address the Rotary Club.

In fact, he said during a news conference, the United States should pay Mexico the same price for its oil that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in the Middle East charges.

He also urged the development of a comprehensive energy policy and criticized the Carter administration for failing to do so. "The days of cheap energy are over, done, gone," Strake added.

During his Rotary Club address, the secretary outlined Gov. Bill Clements' goals and successes during his first four months in office.

And he took the recently adjourned Legislature to task for not implementing some of the governor's top priorities.

For example, Strake said, the Legislature did not implement a $1 billion tax reduction as Clements wanted. And the legislators killed the governor's pet bill calling for legalized wiretapping to be used in the war against narcotics traffic.

A bill for proficiency testing to monitor the effectiveness of schools was ignored, Strake said.

"Clearly, the possibility of continued conflict between Bill Clements and the Legislature is real," Strake said. "But the opportunity for substantial and beneficial change in government is just as real."

The secretary also highlighted Clements' legislative accomplishments, noting that of the 17 items the governor ranked as high priorities, 13 had been passed.

The approved measures include abolition of the 10-cent property tax, consolidation of the state's energy agencies, strengthening of state offices in Mexico City and Washington, D.C., single-county appraisal units and a 5.1 percent raise for teachers and other state employees.

Clements also is controlling the growth of state government, Strake said, explaining his goal is to reduce the state payroll by 25,000 employees through attrition.

Already, Strake said, employees in Clements' office have been reduced from 311 to about 240 — a 20 percent drop.

A-J Correspondent
PLAINVIEW — A 242nd District Court grand jury Wednesday indicted six Plainview teen-agers on charges of criminal mischief in connection with a May 18 vandalism incident at Plainview High School involving more than $6,000 worth of damage to the school.

Indicted were Randall Gary Wallace, 18; Stephen Mark Cyert, 19; Ricky Jones, 19; Jeffrey Brent Dickerson, 18; Gregory Lloyd Ferguson, 18; and Leland S. Lampkin, 18.

Plainview police said the young men painted obscenities on walls in the high school and gym.

Pope's Hometown Prepares For Upcoming Visit

WADOWICE, Poland (AP) — The house where Pope John Paul II was born is getting a state-paid facelift just in time for his return visit June 7.

"I've been trying for 35 years to get this place painted," said Zbigniew Putyra, who lives in the two-room apartment where Karol Wojtyla was born. "Suddenly the painters showed up last week and did the job in three days."

The pope, who will visit Poland June 2-10 for the first time since his elevation, is scheduled to deliver an address to thousands of Roman Catholics in the town square June 7.

He will also say Mass in the morning at a nearby monastery and in the afternoon at the former Auschwitz concentration camp some 18 miles from Wadowice.

It remains to be decided whether the pope will visit the second-floor apartment in the 160-year-old house where he was born in this southern Polish farming and factory town of 15,000.

Today's FOCUS

Just in case, communist authorities ordered the inner courtyard of the three-story building painted bright yellow, and the apartment itself given a coat of green paint.

A marble plaque on the outside of the building reads: "In this house was born May 18, 1920, and lived Karol Josef Wojtyla, Pope John Paul II."

renovation of the church properties, gleaming with a fresh coat of yellow and white paint.

Putyra, a 57-year-old physics teacher at a local high school, said crowds of pilgrims have visited the town ever since Wojtyla was elected the first non-Italian pope in 455 years last Oct. 16.

By now Putyra and his wife are used to having strangers appear at their door at all hours of the day and night to see the apartment.

"I am accustomed to it now, and I don't mind visitors in the morning and the afternoon. But it's difficult when they get us out of bed at night," the affable, gray-haired man said.

"Once the doorbell rang when I was wearing only a pair of shorts. I opened the door and found myself face-to-face with a group of nuns."

Putyra's guestbook for visitors has more than 1,000 signatures and messages. Italians make up the largest group of foreign pilgrims, followed by French, Americans, Hungarians and Czechs.

A 74-year-old Polish woman, a distant cousin of the pope, signed the guestbook last week, recalling her visits to the apartment when Wojtyla was a child.

The latest entry was from an American who lives in Adelphi, Md. She wrote: "Your Holy Father. My mother and I have come to Poland to see your heritage. We were sorry we had to leave your country before we could actually see you. Please remember us in your prayers. God be with you."

Putyra's family moved into the apartment in 1938 after Wojtyla and his father, a retired Polish warrant officer, moved to Krakow, where the future pope entered the seminary in 1942.

His mother died in 1929, an older brother in 1932 and his father in 1941, during the German occupation of his homeland.

Putyra said the house where the pope was born was owned by a Polish Jew who managed to escape to Palestine before the Holocaust. After the owner died, the house reverted to the communist state, to which Putyra pays a monthly rent of 200 zlotys, about $60.

Putyra was two classes behind Wojtyla in the town school. He remembers him as a friendly, strong-willed youth, as do many of the elderly and middle-aged residents.

All those interviewed agreed that the papal visit will be the high point in the 652-year history of the town, despite enormous crowd control problems it will doubtless pose.

"It will be a mess," Putyra said. "There may be 30,000 people trying to crowd into the square. Police say there is room only for 10,000."

The church has already put out appeals for 300 men, aged 20 to 40, to keep order among the throng. The only requirement, beyond sex and age, is that the marshals be educated "in the Christian way of life."

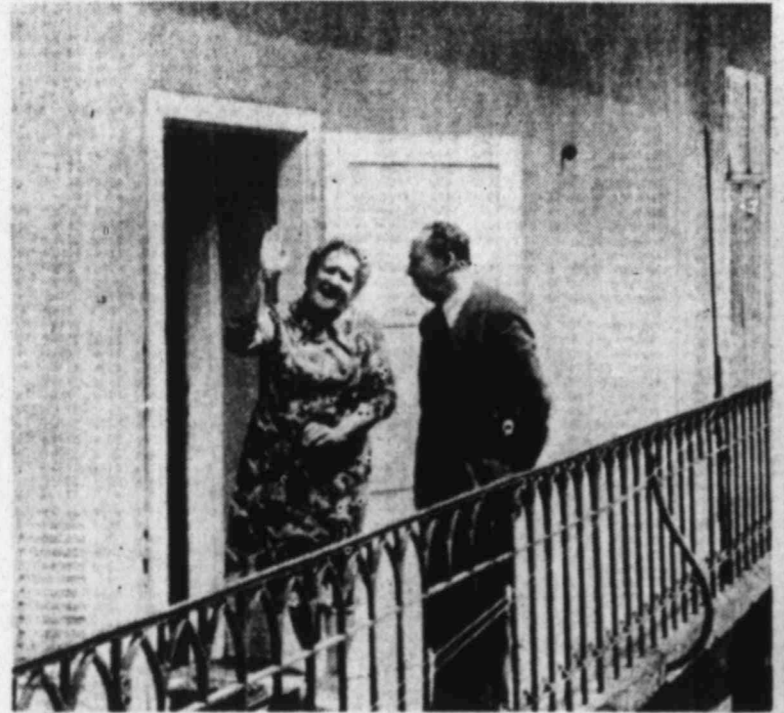

SHRIMPING PRESSURE HIGH

The largest shrimp beds in the world, discovered in 1948 off Marssaq and in Disko Bay, Greenland, are fished night and day during the summer months, until ice blocks the fishing grounds.

Magazine Alleges Pope Had Youthful Romance

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Three days before his historic papal trip to Poland, Italy's leading newsmagazine reported Wednesday that Karol Wojtyla, the future Pope John Paul II, had a youthful romance with a girl who is now a leading Polish actress.

The Vatican had no immediate comment, but it has denied previous reports that the pope was engaged or even married during World War II, before being ordained.

Panorama devoted its cover story to "Karol and Halina," identifying the girl as Halina Krolkiewicz Kwiatkowska, now the 57-year-old star of the Stary Theater in Krakow. The magazine said she is separated from Polish scriptwriter Tadeusz Kwiatkowski.

Karol and Halina's "tender story," "love story" began when he was 14, and they saw each other occasionally until her eventual marriage in 1945, it said. A year later, Wojtyla was ordained a priest.

The authors, Italian journalists Stefano de Andreis and Marcella Leone, said the article was based on interviews in Poland.

They said the two young people were often seen walking hand-in-hand and the young Wojtyla infuriated his soccer teammates because he devoted more time to Halina than to sports.

Both Wojtyla and the young woman acted together in school plays, he portraying kings and she acting the role of queens, the magazine said.

The war temporarily disrupted the romance, Panorama said, but both were active in the Polish underground and occasionally were together.

But Halina eventually developed a romantic relationship with a man named Jacek Stwora, the magazine said, and then married Kwiatkowska.

Wojtyla, according to Panorama, stayed away from Halina's engagement party and a few weeks later enrolled in a Krakow seminary.

A day after Cardinal Wojtyla was elected pope last Oct. 16, published reports said he was either engaged or married before choosing the priesthood and that his fiancée or wife was killed by the Nazis.

"He was never engaged and he was never married," Vatican spokesman the Rev. Pierfranco Pastore told reporters at the time. "This is a very thorough denial."

On Saturday, the 59-year-old pope begins an unprecedented return to his native Poland. It will be the first visit of a Roman pontiff to a communist country.

The Vatican announced that he will be accompanied on his eight-day journey by a top-level delegation headed by Cardinal-designate Agostino Casaroli, the Vatican's premier and expert on communist affairs.

Also in the papal party will be Bishop Paul Marcinkus of Cicero, Ill., head of the Vatican Bank, who also acts as the pope's unofficial bodyguard. Marcinkus is credited with helping save the life of Pope Paul VI when a knife-wielding assailant rushed at him at Manila Airport nine years ago.

The papal party, on board an Alitalia 727 jetliner, is to depart from Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport at 7:40 a.m. Saturday and will fly over Austria, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia en route to Warsaw.

Sihanouk May Seek Aid For Cambodian Refugees

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan said Wednesday he has not received a reported request from Cambodia's former chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, for permission to visit Cambodian refugees in Thailand.

"I don't think Sihanouk could do anything about the Cambodian refugees except to look at them," Kriangsak added.

Kriangsak was referring to a report in an English-language newspaper, The Nation, that Sihanouk, who is in exile in Peking, recently told a visitor he wants to visit the refugees and donate $50,000 to help them.

U.S. House Panel Told Of Toxic Road Oil

CORRIGAN (AP) — A Texas A&M scientist disagreed sharply Wednesday with state officials on the physical dangers of contaminated oil placed on roads in several East Texas subdivisions, warning residents to check their water wells.

And three residents of an area near this East Texas community in Polk County told a congressional subcommittee hearing of the illnesses they had suffered and the animals they had lost since the toxic material was spread on the streets near their homes.

The hearing was conducted by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. It came after reports that contaminated road oil had been supplied free to subdivision developers by Browning-Ferris Industries of Nederland.

Dr. Max Costa, an A&M toxicologist, testified he would be hesitant to move his family to the subdivisions where the contaminated road oil was used and warned residents to have their water wells tested before drinking the fluid.

Dick Whittington, deputy director of the Texas Water Resources Department, said he would have no concern "for my health" by living in a subdivision where the questionable road oil had been removed.

Costa said that samples of the soil and water near the affected roads showed heavy concentrations of nitrobenzene and traces of cyanide.

He said short-term exposures to these substances would cause severe headaches, dizziness and skin irritations.

Long-term exposure could result in damage to the liver, kidneys, and spleen, he said.

Whittington testified that his research showed the effects of nitrobenzene are "fully reversible, leaving no after effects at the concentration levels detected" at the Reilly's Village subdivision near Corrigan.

The department official also said there were only negligible amounts of nitrobenzene in the water supply and in the soil away from the roadway. Whittington said he believed the amount of the toxic chemical in the air was below the danger point.

Not so, said Costa, who questioned the state department's figures on the danger level for human beings.

Robert Duff, resident of Reilly's Village, said since the oil was laid on the road his 5-year-old daughter had suffered severe stomach pains, that he had suffered persistent and severe headaches, and his wife had infections on her arms.

Duff also said that he had lost several dogs. "I just found them dead behind the house and I don't know why."

Barbara Wilder, another subdivision homeowner, said she had had severe skin irritations and that her husband had "trouble breathing."

She said her family had lost nine head of cattle since the oil was placed on the road.

City editor Charles R. Cook of the Port Arthur News, the newspaper that first released the stories on the contaminated road oil, said he had visited Reilly's Village subdivision and had suffered a severe headache.

He also said the water resources department had been advised that Browning-Ferris was supplying the contaminated oil, but had taken no action until the newspaper stories appeared.

Jim Carlton, a reporter for the News, said he had interviewed Melvin Grizzard, a former chemist with Browning-Ferris, and was told that the company had mixed toxic chemicals in batches of road oil.

"He (Grizzard) told us chemicals were mixed into the road oil as a means of cheap disposal. He also told us he would not participate in the operation and had to resign under pressure," Carlton said.

Whittington said department officials did investigate Grizzard's charges "but concluded the allegation was not substantiated. Later events have proven that contaminated road oils were shipped from Browning-Ferris."

Whittington said oil is being removed from roads in 16 areas of East Texas located in at least five counties. Browning-Ferris, he said, has been referred to the state attorney general's office for violations of the Solid Waste Disposal Act and "the matter is now in the hands of the courts."

Eckhardt said environmental dangers have become a nationwide problem and that Congress must "double up and catch up to determine what corrective measures can be taken by federal and state agencies to preclude a recurrence of the problem."

The congressman said a second hearing will be conducted in mid-June, possibly in Houston "at which time we will hear additional witnesses, including those from Browning-Ferris."

Computer Offers Assistance To Farmers

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Engineers and scientists at Texas A&M University are hammering computers into plowshares.

Their work aids a farmer's probability of success in raising a crop, though he will continue to need a "sixth sense" to outguess weather and other factors.

The Texas A&M bioystems group is devising means for a computer to describe a living organism the way that machines now numerically represent mechanical processes. They believe the capability will lead to higher food and fiber yields at lower costs.

The Texas A&M research, supported by the National Science Foundation, the U. S. Forest Service and the Environmental Protection Agency, has been described as "leading the nation."

Biologists, nuclear physicists and chemists, mathematicians, agronomists and computer scientists in the Industrial Engineering Department group directed by Dr. Guy L. Curry are climbing toward the computer description pinnacle. En route, they have reached productive plateaus.

One result has been Bugnet, a computer-based anti-pest system. Bugnet enables county agricultural extension agents to rapidly identify insects and make pest management recommendations.

The ultimate goal is a set of equations that completely describe a plant's growth, fruit production and other survival functions. Equations that depict some plant functions have been attained.

"A plant's first goal is to survive," pointed out Dr. Don DeMichele. "Its system and the way it manages itself takes care of that first. If the plants get proper amounts of light, air, nutrients, water and other necessities, it produces fruit, fiber and so forth."

Agriculture, through irrigation, fertilizers and other measures, controls those elements toward more efficient production.

The Texas A&M group wants to better manipulate the plant to further enhance production.

Through time-compressed computer simulation of plant growth, the bioystems group plans to change the elements affecting a plant's ability to produce, explained DeMichele, a nuclear physicist in the group.

This will be done through numerical changes in equations solved by computer. The outcome will be the best set of circumstances to achieve the best agricultural production.

The engineers and scientists believe it will become possible to numerically cross-breed for desirable plant traits, bypassing time consuming hybridization trials.

Such computerized crops management offers a ray of hope in feeding the people of the world.

The bioystems group has access to a variety of computers in the computing science division of the Industrial Engineering Department. More complex calculations are relegated to the Amdahl 470/V6 computer in the Data Processing Center, which provides calculations for an extensive array of tasks.

Minicomputers handle much of the bioystems group's efforts, though.

A portable unit that fits under an airplane seat features a design graphics system that generates pictures of equation solution plots in color on a television screen. Transported to seminars and conferences, it enables scientists to change plant models on the spot and rerun programs to determine effects on how the plant being modeled grows and produces.

The Texas A&M scientists and engineers are not devising new machines so much as finding new ways to put computers to work for mankind.

Other advanced engineering and scientific methods are being applied.

Plants are set up in the Texas A&M cyclotron beam, to measure carbon-11 distribution through their parts. A device attached to a leaf injects radioactive C-11 into the plant. As sugar produced in the leaf is distributed through the plant, radiation sensors ride "elevators" down the stem to the roots, tracing the ion pairs-emitting carbon.

The measurements reveal the plant has a daily clock that governs its sugar distribution. In the morning, leaves retain virtually all the sugar for their growth and development. By midday, the nutrient that would carry a leaf-injected pesticide to the remainder of the plant has started moving in substantial quantity. In mid-afternoon, almost all the sugar travels to the stem, fruit and roots.

In one lab, the youngest member of the bioystems group is measuring electrical resistance in plants. If such relatively simple measurements can be correlated with plant functions, lower cost means of measuring variables for the equations can be obtained.

The various backgrounds found in the interdisciplinary bioystems group provides an advantage. It has led to a cross-breeding of ideas, further enhancing their research.

IN OUR PROFESSION, there's this joke concerning the broadcast media that you can't line the garbage can with a radio or television set. Kinds difficult to work a cross-word on the radio dial, too.

But, the jokes coming Frank Elliott's way last fall weren't about Page 1, Sec. B; the lining for the cat's sandbox, or the whereabouts of Dick Tracy. The jokes weren't too funny, nor the language of the conversations too jovial.

Elliott, as chairman of Tech's athletic council, had to field many complaints about the Raiders — and other SWC schools — radio broadcasts. It wasn't all politeness and light.

Last fall was the first for the Mutual network to replace Exxon in broadcasting Southwest Conference football. The fans had been accustomed to the low-key Exxon approach, its professional game accounts and broadcast teams, and its decades of experience.

Mutual, then, projected its own format, and in many ways, it met with resistance from listeners. What reached their ears caused them to blister Elliott's.

IN THE AFTERMATH, Elliott can laugh about it. Fact that the conference and Mutual have made public their desires to improve the product makes it easier for Elliott.

"I learned more about radio (last fall) than I ever thought I would," laughed the Tech law-school dean Wednesday. "Or at times wanted to."

"They (SWC listeners) called all of us (in the Tech athletic department), I guess. I'm sure that Clint Formby (the Tech Regent who last winter asked for an investigation of the radio matter) got about the same complaints that I did."

During a timeout, or a change of possession, the network would cut to a commercial. When it returned, sometimes the announcer would be describing play No. 2 or 3 — or 4. Touchdowns, on occasions, had to be picked up via the instant-replay method.

"I thought, basically, that there were

U.S. FEMS WIN

TAIPEI (AP) — Sharp-shooting Carol Blazejewski scored 30 points and led the United States to a 100-40 victory over Sweden while South Korea beat Britain 80-56 in the William Jones Cup basketball tournament Wednesday. The U.S. team, which captured the world championship in Seoul more than two weeks ago, led 56-19 at halftime. The Americans now have a 5-0 record.

two areas of problems," Elliott recounted Wednesday. "There was the technical aspect, running over into the game with commercials. And the second, trying to find where a game was being broadcast."

"Well, there was a third, where some of the games were missed completely in some of the (listening) markets."

"But, basically, I think the fans will see improvements in all three."

ELLIOTT, ALONG WITH Al Witte of Arkansas and Mike Harvey of SMU were appointed to a conference radio committee to look into the matter, and this — plus the complaints — brought on his sudden interest and enlightenment on radio.

At the spring SWC meeting, it was announced that the conference and Mutual had agreed to make some adjustments. "Al and I worked on it the most — since we were both attorneys — and Mike has some dealings with technical radio."

"But, obviously, there were problems. We now feel that going into the fall, we have worked most of them out. For one thing, they (the network) are going to 30-second commercials instead of the 60-second ones of last year. We think this will control that sort of thing (as missing plays)."

ALSO, ELLIOTT SAID that Mutual has agreed to advertise in newspapers on Fridays and Saturdays the complete listings of weekend games with stations, call letters and frequencies in the various markets. "So anybody can find the game they want in their area."

"I think this will ease up on the complaints, because so many of the people didn't know where to locate their games."

"In our (Lubbock's) case, there have been some adjustments, insofar as the number of stations to carry Tech games. I think that only KLLL and KFYO will broadcast Tech games. It won't be like Exxon where one carried them all, but we're trying to work it out in the metropolitan areas where one station will carry seven or eight Tech games, another seven or eight Aggie games, so people can get used to where to find them."

Elliott indicated that efforts are being made in some of the larger markets to beam the games from stronger stations, for better coverage.

Even with its problems, Elliott said, "Surveys show that we reached a much bigger audience (in 1978) than Exxon." So, stay tuned.

Weiskopf Leads PGA Group
Gunning For Kemper Victory

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, a three-time winner of this event, said he fails to understand the reasons for the move of the $350,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament from its long-time home here to the Washington, D.C. area.

"I really can't comment on it, because I don't know the reasons," Weiskopf said Wednesday before a practice round over the 7,160-yard, par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course which will be played by the touring pros for the last time this weekend.

The tournament, which has been played here since 1969, next year will move to the Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb. The move was recommended by PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman approved by executives of the sponsoring insurance company.

"It's a shame," Weiskopf said. "It's not like they haven't been successful here."

"They have a golf course that's always in immaculate condition. They seem to have a very good local organization. And the galleries, well, how can you ask for any better?"

"But I don't know what the reasons may be for the move. I guess only time can tell if it's the right thing to do."

He paused for a moment and smiled. "Ask the Commissioner. Let him put his foot in his mouth," he said.

Beman has said the move is part of a long-range plan to get the tour into areas of the country which do not now have professional golf tournaments and to reduce the number of events that have a heavy concentration of tournaments. At the moment, North Carolina is host to three PGA Tour events.

Weiskopf's enormous success on this course, along with an upward trend in his game, made him a prime candidate for the big, $63,000 first prize. "I'm starting to play a little better," said Weiskopf, who has scored three of his last 11 victories at Quail Hollow.

Among his chief opponents in the 150-man field are defending champion Andy Bean, U.S. Open king Andy North, PGA champ John Mahaffey, Masters titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller and Lanny Wadkins, a two-time winner this season and second to the absent Tom Watson on this year's money-winning list.

Others include Ray Floyd, Al Geiberger, Lon Hinkle, Jerry Pate, Ed Sneed, Johnny Miller and Arnold Palmer, who owns a home on the course and led last year's event through the first 36 holes.

CBS will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Waltrip Ready For Texas Speedway Win

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Things have changed for Darrell Waltrip since the last time he raced at Texas World Speedway, site of Sunday's $180,000 Texas 400 Grand National stock car race.

"Last time I raced here, I finished second and felt like I won. It was the best finish I had that year," Waltrip told a gathering of press at a breakfast Wednesday.

The last time at the Texas track for the 32-year-old Waltrip, as well as the last time for other Grand National stars, was 1973. That was Waltrip's rookie season on America's top racing circuit.

His Sunday return here, at the wheel of a Chevrolet, will be something of a homecoming for the hottest driver on the circuit, whose wife Stevie was born in Houston, 90 miles away.

Waltrip, winner of the prestigious World 600 last Sunday at Charlotte, N.C., leads the NAS-CAR money list for the current season with $254,660 as a result of three victories and 10 top five finishes through 13 of 31 races on the 1979 schedule.

"Thinking back to the last time I was here ... then, I never would have thought there was $250,000 in the whole world, much less think about someday winning that much," Waltrip noted.

At his current pace, Waltrip could wind up with as much as $700,000 in winnings this season.

"Things have sure changed," Waltrip noted.

Joining Waltrip in Sunday's 200-lap event at the two-mile high-banked track is the driver who beat Waltrip to the finish line here in November 1973, all-time stock car star Richard Petty.

In addition to Petty, with 187 career victories and two this season, are Atlanta 500 winner Buddy Baker; Bobby Allison, a three-time winner this season, and Cale Yarborough, winner of the past three national championships.

The Texas race will also be a homecoming for one of three rookies vying for the Rookie of the Year title that barely eluded Waltrip in 1973.

Terry Labonte of Corpus Christi, Texas, is currently locked in a tight battle for the rookie title with Dale Earnhardt and Joe Millikan. Labonte made his superspeedway debut here exactly a year ago in the U.S. Auto Club sanctioned Texas 500.

Earnhardt became the first rookie since 1974 to win a Grand National race by capturing the Southeastern 500 in April.

"I'll tell you about the rookies this year," Waltrip noted. "You don't have to look around to find out where they are on the track. They're either right in front or breathing down your neck, lap after lap. I think somebody forgot to tell them they're rookies."

Hazing Case Involves MHS Baseball Team

By BOB BAJACKSON

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

A member of the Monterey baseball team was involved in a hazing incident prior to the start of the regional baseball playoff series in El Paso last week, the Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Monterey Principal Jerrell Snodgrass confirmed Wednesday night that an incident had occurred involving a sophomore member of the squad. However, MHS coach Bobby Moegle earlier in the day denied knowledge of any such matter, and Lubbock athletic director Pete Ragus said he was unaware of the situation.

Contacted Wednesday night, Lubbock ISD Superintendent Ed Irons said knew nothing of such an incident but added he would investigate immediately this morning.

Reportedly, the MHS athlete went into shock when placed in a bathtub of ice on May 21, the night before Monterey played El Paso Austin in the regional playoffs in El Paso. It was said to be a part of a sophomore initiation conducted by older members of the team.

The youth reportedly was rushed to an El Paso hospital where he was treated and released. The next day, MHS lost to El Paso Austin 11-7, then was eliminated from the high school baseball playoffs by Austin in a second game here last Friday.

A family member would not comment on the incident and told the Avalanche-Journal he wanted the whole thing forgotten.

The incident is the second involving the MHS baseball team on an out-of-town trip in less than a year. While the team was in Austin last June for the state tournament, a motel manager was pushed into a swimming pool during a post-game party given for the MHS team, students and its fans.

Niekro, Astros Notch Win Over Cincinnati

By The Associated Press

Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro won his sixth straight decision with ninth-inning relief help from Joe Sambito as the Astros defeated Cincinnati 6-3 and moved within percentage points of the first-place Reds in the National League West.

Niekro, 7-2, had allowed only one run in 26 innings before he lost his shutout in the eighth when Junior Kennedy hit into a bases-loaded double play, scoring Cesar Geronimo from third base. Niekro was later tagged for a two-run double by Geronimo in the ninth before Sambito came in to secure the victory for the Astros.

Houston took an early 3-0 lead and chased starter Tom Seaver with three more runs in the sixth on a single by Art Howe, a bases-loaded walk by relief pitcher Dave Tomlin and Niekro's sacrifice fly.

Cesar Cedeno highlighted Houston's early 3-0 lead with a solo homer into the left field bleachers in the third inning for his fourth homer of the season. Houston took a 1-0 lead in the first on a single by Cedeno after Terry Puhl had led off with a single.

Houston got another run in the second when Rafael Landestoy reached base on a fielder's choice, went to second on Niekro's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Puhl.

ROYALS 7, ORIOLES 1
Amos Otis hit a two-run home run in the first inning and Rich Gale pitched out of several jams to make it stand up for a 3-1 Kansas City victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Gale, 5-3, allowed only four hits and struck out five, but made things tough for himself with seven walks before giving way to Al Hrabosky at the start of the ninth. Hrabosky earned his seventh save.

George Brett singled with one out in the Kansas City first and with two out Otis hammered a 1-0 pitch from Mike Flanagan into the right-field bleachers for his third home run of the season.

Flanagan, 6-4, gave up nine hits, struck out seven and did not walk a batter.

The Orioles scored in the third when Al Bumbry led off with the first of his two singles and came around when Gale walked Ken Singleton, Eddie Murray and Gary Roenicke.

INDIANS 6, WHITE SOX 4
Ron Pruitt cranked a two-run homer to highlight a four-run uprising in the fifth inning and lead the Cleveland Indians to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

ans to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

RANGERS 3, RED SOX 2
Slumping Richie Zisk singled with one out in the 10th inning, scoring Al Oliver from second base and giving the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Reliever Dick Drago, 3-2, yielded a single by Oliver to start the inning and Bill Sample sacrificed him to second. After an intentional walk to Pat Putnam, Zisk, hitting only 240, came through with only his 18th RBI of the year.

Unbeaten Texas reliever Jim Kern earned his seventh victory by pitching four innings and allowing two hits. It was the Rangers' ninth consecutive victory over the Red Sox dating back to last season.

Boston took a 1-0 lead in the first inning against Dock Ellis when Jerry Reamy led off with a single, advanced on a grounder and scored when Fred Lynn singled for his 42nd RBI.

The Rangers nipped Mike Torrez for two runs in the fifth. Johnny Grubb lashed his fifth home run to start the inning.

TIGERS 4, BLUE JAYS 2
Milt Wilcox scattered five hits and Rusty Staub and Lance Parrish each cracked solo home runs as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2.

The victory, the Tigers' fifth in a row, marked their longest winning streak of the season and moved them to the 500 level for the first time since April 28. The loss was Toronto's fourth in a row.

Wilcox, 4-2, walked three and struck out five in posting his third complete game of the year.

The Tigers scored twice in the fourth inning to break a 2-2 tie when third baseman Roy Howell booted Alan Trammell's grounder, allowing Parrish to score from third, and Lou Whitaker's sacrifice fly brought home Aurelio Rodriguez.

Parrish, who had four hits in five at-bats, cracked his fifth home run of the season off loser Phil Huffman, 2-5, to lead off the eighth inning. Parrish drove in the first Detroit run when he singled home Staub, who led off the second inning with a double. Staub's third homer made it 2-0 in the third inning.

The Blue Jays scored both their runs in the third when Howell singled with the bases loaded for one run and Rico Carty followed with an RBI grounder.

CARDINALS 7, METS 3
Garry Templeton tripled and scored on an error to snap a 3-2 tie and Lou Brock followed with a home run, powering the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Templeton's triple and Brock's homer came off Mets right-hander Craig Swan, 4-4, starting the fifth. The blast was part of a 15-hit Cardinal attack, which also featured Ted Simmons' three-run homer, his 10th of the year, off New York reliever Jesse Orosco in the seventh.

Aided by two double plays and errant Mets base running, St. Louis right-hander Silvio Martinez, 3-1, weathered 12 of 15 New York hits to register his third straight triumph with help from three relief pitchers, including Darold Knowles, who recorded his fourth save.

Templeton wound up with four hits in the game.

EXPOS 2, PHILLIES 0
Gary Carter cracked a two-run homer in the second inning to support the six-hit pitching of Bill Lee as the Montreal Expos defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0.

Carter's ninth homer of the season came after Tony Perez had bloomed a single off Nino Espinosa, 5-5, one of only four hits against the Phillies right-hander in six innings.

Lee, 5-2, left at least one baserunner stranded in each of the first four innings and stretched the Phillies' scoreless string against Montreal to 22 innings.

PIRATES 9, CUBS 2
Jim Rooker tossed a two-hitter and was supported by a 17-hit attack that included home runs by Willie Stargell and Bill Robinson as the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs 9-2.

The Pirates earned their fourth triumph in a row as Rooker raised his record to 3-0 after spending the first six weeks of the season on the disabled list with an ailing shoulder.

Pittsburgh jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning off Lynn McGlothen, 5-6. The first-inning assault included a triple by Tim Foli, a sacrifice fly by Dave Parker and five straight singles by Stargell, John Milner, Ed Ott, Dale Berra and Phil Garner.

Owners Negotiate For Jazz

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Racetrack stockholders began negotiating Wednesday with majority owners of the New Orleans Jazz following postponement of a decision whether to move the team to Salt Lake City.

Louis Roussel III, son of a New Orleans bank executive, said the 600 shareholders of the Fair Grounds were trying to buy the team from majority owners Sam Battistone and Larry Hatfield for an undisclosed amount.

The disclosure followed a maneuver by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., that resulted in National Basketball Association owners agreeing to postpone a Thursday meeting in Chicago at which the Jazz move was expected to be approved.

"We're talking dollars and cents — a lot of zeros," said Roussel. "The talks have been going on for a couple of days, but we had our first contact today with Mr. Battistone and Mr. Hatfield. I'm always optimistic."

Roussel said the talks were conducted in a long distance telephone conference from Santa Barbara, Calif.

French Leads Sprints

Dallas sprint car driver Ed French switched operations to Lubbock last weekend and took home the whole ball of wax.

French, who runs regularly at Devil's Bowl and is a top competitor on the national "World of Outlaws" circuit, got past Lubbock's Don Zahn in the main after snaring both the heat and the trophy dash.

The race also saw the return of an old Lubbock favorite, Ron "Hoot" Ellis, who wheeled Zahn's car in the first two outings and got a second to French in the trophy dash for his best showing.

In other highlights, Bubba DeBusk won a first-ever trophy dash in the late model/division, Ricky Pope won the mini-stock main, Robert Stepp took the street stock finale and Jerry Winton won the late model/division feature. The summary:

Point Clark Takes NAIA Diamond Win

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Point Park College took a 3-3 win over Birmingham-Southern after posting four runs in the third inning during an elimination game Wednesday in the NAIA World Series.

The win sent the Pennsylvania team, now 26-4, into a Thursday afternoon National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics contest with the loser of Wednesday night's game between Nashville's David Lipscomb College and the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse.

Point Park first baseman Ed Haberle led an 11-hit attack with three singles, including a key blow in the third that drove in two runs.

Neil Bass and Joe Fiori each added a pair of singles for Point Park.

John Van Atta was the winning pitcher, with assistance from ninth inning reliever Paul Yourick.

Yourick came in with tying runs on base and one out. But he retired Birmingham-Southern's two batters, including a game-ending strikeout.

Designated hitter Joe Corcoran had three singles for Birmingham, which ended its season 49-13.

TIGERS MAKE CHANGES

DETROIT (AP) — Outfielder Dan Gonzales is being sent down to the Detroit Tigers' farm club in Evansville, Ind., and Ed Putnam will join the team as a third-string catcher. The American League club announced Wednesday that Putnam, who plays at Evansville, will become a third-string catcher, replacing Milt May, who was acquired by the Chicago White Sox.

Thomas Trying To Talk

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas, whose name once spelled controversy in the National Football League, is cooperating peacefully as he tries to return to the game at the age of 31.

Thomas, known for problems with the press and coaches in the past, has not played football since 1975. But the Green Bay Packers think he still has the potential and signed him to a free agent contract in March. This week he is among the rookies and veterans at the Packers' early training camp.

"As I was telling my wife on the telephone this morning, Green Bay offers me a chance to start a new life," Thomas said Tuesday. "Everything here gives me the incentive and motivation to answer my football problems."

Thomas recalled that when he signed with the Dallas Cowboys in 1970, his coach at West Texas State told him he would rather see him going to Green Bay because he felt Vince Lombardi would give him a better chance of surviving in the NFL.

Now, Thomas is playing for Bart Starr, the man who was the field general on the Lombardi-coached Packer championship teams of the 1960s.

"When I look at Coach Starr, I feel I'm looking at Coach Lombardi because he's a product of Coach Lombardi," Thomas said. "He's very confident. He knows what he wants, and he's a people's person."

Last fall, the Packers had Thomas in for a tryout that ended in yet another controversy.

Tech Signs Fem Athletes

Texas Tech went outside the boundaries of Texas and grabbed recruits for volleyball, golf and tennis, Tech officials announced Wednesday.

Christa White of Apple Valley, Calif., was signed to a letter-of-intent by volleyball coach Janice Hudson. A 5-10 hitter, Miss White shared the San Andreas league's most valuable player award while earning first team all-league and all-state honors.

She led the Apple Valley High School team to a 15-3 record and state playoff berth last year. Miss White also was selected to the all-star team at the U.S. Olympic Development Volleyball Camp last summer.

The Raiders' second golf recruit is Robini Wohlman from Independence, Kan.; a protégé of pro Tom Watson's instructor, Stan Thirk, Miss Wohlman won the Miss Mizou Golf Tournament this year and placed second in the Kansas Match Play Tourney.

Jill Ayn Crutchfield of Duncan, Okla., is Tech's fifth tennis recruit. Miss Crutchfield was the state runner-up in singles play in 1978 and the state champion in 1977. Currently, she is the third highest ranking tennis player in her age group in Oklahoma, according to the United States Tennis Association.

Idalou To Host Softball Tourney

IDALOU (Special) — A single-elimination slow-pitch softball tournament will be held at the Idalou Ball Park June 16-17.

The tourney is limited to 16 teams and trophies will be awarded for first and second-place finishes.

The entry fee, which is $45 per team, must be in the mail and postmarked by June 5. Mail entries to Idalou Ball Club, Joanne Flusche, Box 1188, Idalou, 79329.

Murray Brown of Florida State scored field goals at a percentage of .691 in the 1978-79 basketball season to lead the NCAA.

DOUG MOE

Spurs Want Moe Back As Coach

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio Spurs president Angelo Drossos, admitting that at one point this season he felt controversial Doug Moe was finished as the team's coach, said Wednesday the Spurs will keep Moe on.

The announcement ended weeks of speculation that Moe would be leaving the NBA team he has coached to two consecutive Central Division titles.

Moe, 40, acknowledged he was looking for another job this season while guiding the Spurs to their second consecutive Central Division championship. Moe has one year remaining on his contract.

"There was a time last season when Doug wanted out of his current contract to seek employment elsewhere," Drossos told reporters. "For that reason, I had every intention of obtaining another head coach for the Spurs for next season."

"However, in the past few days, Doug and I have come to a clear understanding that he now prefers to stay with the Spurs, so the board of directors and I have agreed to retain him as head coach for next season."

"The reasons for the indecision regarding Doug's status were personal between he and myself," said Drossos.

The Spurs snapped their six-year ABA and NBA playoff jinx this season by eliminating Philadelphia and reached the Eastern Conference finals. But the team frittered away a 3-1 lead and lost to Washington.

The outspoken Moe was fined a record $3,000 last week by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien for bitterly criticizing the officiating in the sixth and seventh games of the Washington series.

Drossos was critical of Moe's statements and refused at that time to give Moe a vote of confidence.

There reportedly has been friction between Moe and Spurs officials. Moe projects a casual, jeans-and-sneakers image and coaches a wide-open, run-and-gun offense. Spurs officials were reportedly not pleased with Moe's casual approach to the job.

"We (Drossos and Moe) argue once in a while," Moe said Wednesday. "Our disagreements have been between us and not with the team. Everything is terrific between us now."

Moe said he decided in the second half of the season to seek another job. He reportedly was interested in the Denver job before it was given to Donnie Walsh. Moe came to the Spurs in 1976, their first in the NBA, after two years as an assistant in Denver.

NCAA Track Meet Blasts Off

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (Special) — The hammer throw is not one of track and field's glamor events, but Scott Nelson hopes to give it a big boost by winning the event for a record-tying fourth consecutive time in the NCAA Outdoor Championships.

The University of Washington senior begins his quest for that coveted fourth crown today in the hammer throw qualifying that is part of a long opening program in the three-day 59th NCAA championships at the University of Illinois.

Texas Tech will have three representatives in the meet — the most ever — and all will be facing preliminaries. James Mays, the school record-holder in the 800-meter dash, will be running in that event, where Mays' 1:47.14 is one of the fastest times in the nation.

Senior Ricky McCormick and junior Greg Lautenslager both qualified for the 1500-meter run. McCormick holds the school record for the 1500 at 3:42.9, and Lautenslager has run 3:43.0.

Last week, Mays ran 1:48 in finishing second in the 800 meters at a national meet at Wichita, Kan., and McCormick ran the mile in 4:04.8 (best of Tech history) in finishing out of the money at the same meet.

The 1500 meter prelims will be today at 4:30 p.m., and the 800 meter at 6:20 p.m. There will be semifinals in the 800 meters, and they are Friday night. Mays is seeded fourth in the 800 prelims, McCormick ninth in the 1500 meters.

The ever-improving Nelson, the collegiate record holder with a toss of 238 feet, 8 inches, has won three consecutive NCAA hammer throw titles, starting in 1976 with throws of 216-8, 228-4, and 237-5. He also has won three straight 35-pound weight titles at the NCAA indoor meet in Detroit.

Outdoors, only the late Steve Prefontaine of the University of Oregon has won four national titles in a row in the same event, capturing the three-mile run in 1970-71-72-73.

Last year in this meet, Nelson, a native of New Westminster, B.C., had little competition, beating his closest rival by more than 25 feet. This year, however, there are two strong challengers — Richard Olsen, a UTEP freshman from Sweden whose best throw is 236-10, and Paul Buxton of Washington State, who has thrown 230-7.

The hammer throw trials and final will be held Friday. Five other finals — long jump, shot put, 110-meter hurdles, 100-meter dash and 10,000 meters — also are set for Friday, with the remaining 14 finals Saturday.

While Nelson will be shooting for glory for himself and his event, he will be one of the few Washington athletes to have much impact on the meet.

Actress Still Riding High From Pick As New 'Angel'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Several days had passed since Shelley Hack's selection as Charlie's newest Angel, and the 27-year-old actress and model still was finding that ticket to instant fame hard to believe.

"I go through phases of not believing it, thinking that we're talking about a third person who's not here in the room at this moment," she said.

Producers Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg con-

SHELLY HACK — Charlie's Newest Angel

dered 5,000 women before choosing Miss Hack to replace the departing Kate Jackson in ABC's hit detective series, "Charlie's Angels."

"I'm happy, and everybody's been so sincerely helpful," the blonde actress said in an interview in a temporary dressing room at 20th Century-Fox Studios. A hairdresser was at her side.

"I can't believe it. I get the series and I get to go to the Caribbean (where the first episode of the new season will be filmed). And I get two parking spaces — one by the sound stage and one by my dressing room.

"I wonder if I'm supposed to put my hand and feet in concrete in the parking spaces," she laughed.

And there's more. The new role means more commercials, more TV specials, movies and series down the road.

Miss Hack joins Jaclyn Smith — an original Angel — and Cheryl Ladd in the series. Two years ago, Miss Ladd replaced Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

"I'm the new kid on the block," Miss Hack said. "Jackie and Cheryl have been really nice. They made me feel so welcome. Sure, I have worries, but the thing that's so nice about it is that everybody's been so supportive."

Miss Hack will play Tiffany Welles, daughter of a Connecticut police chief who is a friend of Charlie, the Angels' unseen boss. "The character will evolve during the season," she said.

"She will be pretty much like me. She'll be a Smith grad, too. I don't know if they're really shaping the character to me. The scripts were written before I was cast. They had a character in mind and they wanted to know if I could add to it."

Miss Hack already is known to TV watchers as Revlon's Charlie girl. She was working in New York, unaware of the search for a new Angel, when her agent called with the suggestion that she test for a part in the series.

Spelling and Goldberg had to move quickly. "Charlie's Angels" was going into production for its fourth season June 11 aboard a cruise ship in the Caribbean. Miss Hack took the job May 22.

"I went into the office and everyone sat down," she remembered. "They passed around Cokes and 7-Ups and we had a big toast. They'd just told me the news. I asked if I could make a phone call. I said it was long distance.

"I called my mother and she said she'd been wanting to talk to me. I said I had something more important than my sister's history test. I told her and she got excited. That's an understatement."

Miss Hack, the eldest of six in a close-knit family, is single. "I have somebody I see sometimes," she said.

CBS Upsets 19-Week ABC Sweep Of Nielsen Network Viewer Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS broke ABC's 19-week streak at the top of the ratings, scoring heavily with two specials and knocking ABC into second place for the week ending May 27.

The specials — "Body Human: The Sexes" and "Dummy" — were CBS' only entries in a top 10 otherwise dominated by ABC, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

But CBS also got a boost from the last three chapters in the miniseries based on John Dean's "Blind Ambition," which finished 11th, 12th and 13th. Part I of "Blind Ambition" was in the previous week's ratings.

ABC's success, as usual, was in half-hour comedies — "Three's Company" first in the ratings, followed by "Laverne and Shirley" and "Eight is Enough."

The rating for "Three's Company" was 25.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, just over a quarter saw at least part of the show.

"Body Human" and "Dummy" tied with another ABC situation comedy, "Happy Days," for seventh place in the ratings, just ahead of "Barry Manilow's Third Special" on ABC.

It was another dismal week for NBC. The network's top-rated program, the first installment in a two-part movie-for-TV, "The Best Place to Be," was No. 19 in the ratings.

CBS' rating for the week was 17.2, with ABC second at 16.8 and NBC third at 13.5. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.2 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

All three networks had shows at the bottom of the list, with ABC's "Welcome Back Kötter" 55th, followed by "Rocky's People" and "Good Times" on CBS, "Hizzonner" on NBC and "The Osmond Family Show" on ABC.

Here are the week's Top 10 programs:

"Three's Company," with a rating of 25.3 representing 18.8 million homes, "Laverne and Shirley," 24.9 or 18.6 million, "Eight is Enough," 24.7 or 18.4 million, "Vacation in Hell," 24.6 or 18.3 million, "Mork and Mindy," 23.3 or 17.4 million, and "Taxi," 22.1 or 16.5 million, all ABC; "Happy Days," ABC, and "Body Human: The Sexes" and "Dummy," both CBS, all 21.7 or 16.2 million, tie, and "Barry Manilow's Third Special," 21.6 or 16.1 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows:

"Blind Ambition," Parts 4, 2 and 3, all CBS; "Dukes of Hazzard," CBS; "Young Guy Christian" and "Carter Country," both ABC; "60 Minutes," CBS; "Barney Miller," ABC; "Best Place to Be," Part I, NBC, and "Barnaby Jones," CBS.

Circus Patrons Delight In Elephant Manure

NEW YORK (UPI) — A byproduct of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus may become as much a tradition as the 109-year-old circus itself.

For the third year in a row, the circus awe away free bags of manure from the show's 18 elephants, drawing dozens of gardeners to Madison Square Garden, where the show has been running since March 28.

The circus offered 8,000 pounds of it — the weight of one elephant. It was fresh — Less than 24 hours old — and packaged in 4-to 12-pound bags.

Those who wanted it came from all over the New York metropolitan area.

"I'm going to put in my garden," said Jeneva Spain of Brooklyn. William Gaines of Manhattan said he intended to put in his flower pots. "I know it's a precious commodity," he said. "Where else are you going to get it?"

Since the elephants are fed a rich and varied diet of hay, grains, apples, carrots and other vegetables, their manure is prized as a fertilizer because of its high concentrations of nitrogen, phosphorus, calcium and other minerals.

Because the manure is so rich in chemicals, the gardeners must age their fertilizer at least three months and turn it into compost before it is used, according to a circus spokesman.

It apparently works wonders. "I used it last year and the tomatoes were dark red and very tasty," said James Soriano of Lindenhurst, N.Y. Another man said his rhubarb grew twice as big as its normal size.

The free manure had perhaps deeper meaning for Diana Margolies. "It's my birthday," she said. "I wanted a better way to celebrate it."

How much was she going to take, Mrs. Margolies was asked. "If it smells, very little. I have to spend the whole day in New York."

The woman and her three young children ended up hauling away five bags to their car for the trip home to Rockland County.

'Lungs' Used To Show Benefits Of Not Smoking

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An exotic dancer, claiming to have a 64-inch bust, paraded in a bikini Tuesday outside the Statehouse where the lawmakers were discussing cigarettes.

"Stop smoking in time, and you can have lungs as healthy as mine," read a placard hoisted by the demonstrator, Morganna Cottrell.

Her one-woman parade came only an hour after the House passed a bill prohibiting sales of cigarettes to persons under age 18.

Several hundred onlookers, many with cameras snapping away, gathered around the dancer as she moved around the building.

Violin Played Under Water

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Every time he plays the violin, Mark Gottlieb takes a dive — into 10 feet of water.

The Stanford University graduate student first took his instrument under water at age 10, when he grew bored with "regular practicing" and decided it would be more fun to fiddle around at the bottom of the family pool.

Since then, he's developed an appropriate repertoire of such pieces as Handel's "Water Music," Strauss's "Blue Danube" and Bert Bacharach's "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head."

Gottlieb, 22, dons a tuxedo and scuba gear for his performance in seven to 10 feet of water. He waterproofed his instrument, which is electronically amplified through loudspeakers above.

JAPANESE TOURISTS

TOKYO (AP) — A survey of 3,781 Japanese who returned from foreign travels on one given day showed that on the average they had bought more than $400 worth of goods abroad. The survey, taken by Customs Service officials at the Tokyo International Airport, showed that liquor, cigarettes and perfume topped most shopping lists.

Karen Black Stars In NBC's 'Power,' Story Of Tony Vanda

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Karen Black is one of those actresses who finds the transition between movies and television easy.

She recently finished a movie called "Danny Travis" at 5 in the afternoon, and at 8 was on a plane for Mexico to work on the CBS miniseries "Mr. Horn."

Then she went to work with Joe Don Baker on an NBC miniseries called "Power" for broadcast next season. And soon after finishing that, she was off to New Orleans to star with Sam Waterston in her husband's production of "The Moviegoer."

"Power," written by Oscar-winner Ernest Tidyman, is a fictional account of the rise of Tony Vanda as a labor leader.

Miss Black first was offered a role as a lawyer who has an affair with Vanda. "She was well-spoken, crisp, sexy," the actress said. "But I liked the role of Rose, the wife, better."

"She ages from 23 to 60. I thought that was quite a challenge. It offered you a lot of choices you could make. You can do getting a little bit older, a little bit sadder, a little bit wiser. People understand that."

"It's about what it's like to be married to a man having an affair. It goes on for about 10 years. I guess a part of you dies."

At first executive producer David Gerber wasn't sure the 35-year-old actress could handle the role as a 23-year-old. She marched into his office and told him to take a look at her wrinkle-free face under the light. He was convinced.

She also plays the woman at 27, 35, 45, 50, and 60. "Fifty was the hardest," Miss Black said. "It's just wrong. It's in between. I don't know, I can't explain it. I guess I don't know people who are 50. I just didn't do it as well. Let's say I did the others better."

Miss Black spoke in the living room of the old Hancock Park home she shares with her husband, producer-writer L.M. "Kit" Carson, and their son, Hunter, 3. On the wall is a poster of a movie about Kit Carson, her husband's ancestor and namesake.

Miss Black — born Karen Ziegler — moved to Hollywood after her first Broadway success, "The Playroom," and her first movie in New York, "You're a Big Boy Now."

"When I got here they said, 'Who is this girl who just did Broadway?' she remembered. "Who cares about Broadway? So I did a lot of television guest shots. I think the first one was 'Run for Your Life' or 'The FBI.' My first day of shooting was outdoors at night. They didn't pick me up and I didn't know where it was. I Wandered up and down hills."

She finally broke away from television. She went to New Orleans for "Easy Rider," did some more stage work and then was in "Five Easy Pieces." For that she won the New York Critics Award and an Oscar nomination.

Since then, she's starred in such films as "Portnoy's Complaint," "Airport 75," "Day of the Locust," "The Great Gatsby," "Family Plot," and "Capricorn One."

"I've never been typecast," she said. "After 'You're a Big Boy Now' I got a lot of scripts for virgins. 'Easy Rider' broke that pattern. I wasn't a hooker."

She had sexuality. That's a collapsed description. She wasn't serious. She was like a child.

"For 'Power' they offered me a formidable woman, but I accepted a nice wife. It tends to ride on your last movie."

"After 'In Praise of Older Women,' I was sent scripts about women who took off their clothes at the least provocation. In that I took off some of my clothes. I was 22, he was 16. So people thought I was older and started sending me scripts for older women."

Birth Control Product Ads Termed Misleading

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of law students, saying one in four women who use over-the-counter contraceptives will become pregnant, asked the government Wednesday to halt what they claim is misleading advertising of birth control products.

The petition asking the Federal Trade Commission to crack down on "false and deceptive ads" for non-prescription vaginal contraceptives was filed by three George Washington University students who held a news conference to announce their action.

Supporting the trio, which calls itself the Students for the Examination of Contraceptive Effectiveness, were Reps. Barbara A. Mikulski, D-Md.; Andrew Maguire, D-N.J.; Anthony C. Beleson, D-Calif.; and Ted Weiss, D-N.Y.

Weiss said he will introduce a bill that would require manufacturers of over-the-counter contraceptives to label their products' effectiveness.

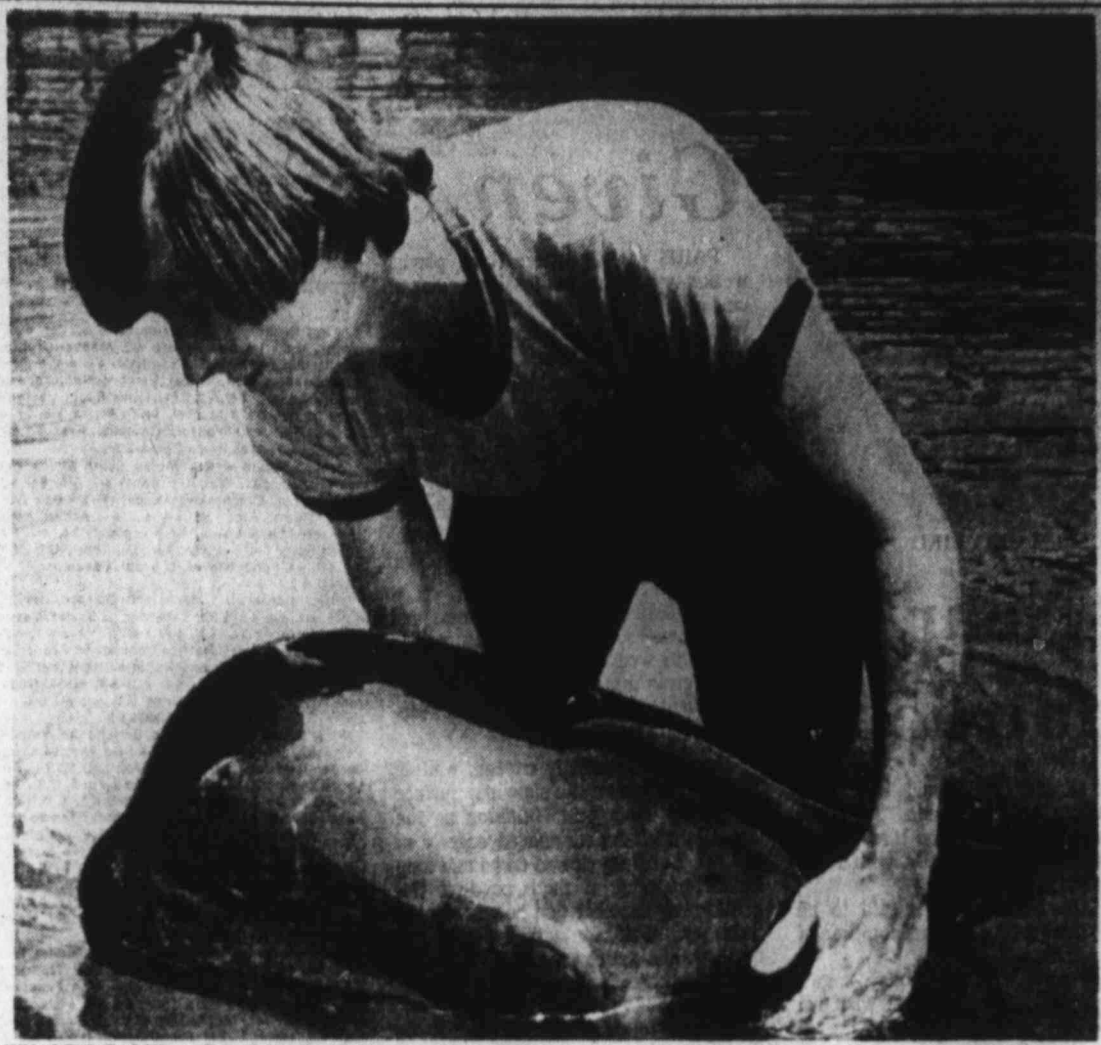

"Consumers are placing false reliance in products they think are over 90 percent effective in preventing pregnancy, when in fact they may only be 70 percent effective or less," the group said in its petition.

The law students estimated that more than 1 million pregnancies will result each year from failure of contraceptive foams, creams and jellies.

They also asserted that manufacturers of non-prescription contraceptives try to "play on the fears" of women who are afraid of the health side-effects of birth control pills.

"Contrary to what consumers are led to believe, over-the-counter vaginal contraceptives are not equivalent to the pill in effectiveness," the petition said. "Only if a woman is aware of the strengths and weaknesses of a contraceptive can she put it to proper use."

WHALE'S TALES — Bob Schoelkopf, director of the Marine Mammal Stranding Center in Atlantic City, N.J., tends to a young whale which beached itself during the weekend. Whales Get Help From Humans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Whale lovers offered more than 200 pounds of mackerel Wednesday to help an olive-black female pilot whale sick with possible meningitis or an ear infection.

On the West Coast, meanwhile, a 40-foot gray whale which had become tangled in fishing nets was saved by Makah Indians and the Coast Guard in the Pacific Ocean off Washington state.

Keith Davenport, who works at the non-profit Marine Mammal Stranding Center in Atlantic City, said the pilot whale was "still the same. There are no changes."

Mackerel is the only food the whale will eat, and the response to an appeal for donations has been positive, Davenport said.

"One man called this morning and offered 100 to 200 pounds," said Davenport. "He's probably a fisherman." He said another person offered about 30 pounds.

The 10-foot, 600-pound whale was found beached Saturday night. The whale, being treated in a salt-water pen, is described as very thin and weak, and has turned down squid and herring and other staples in a normal whale's diet, Davenport said.

Volunteers are staying with the whale around the clock to prevent her from turning over from a loss of equilibrium. The sick whale must be kept upright to prevent her from covering the blow hole behind her head and drowning.

The Pacific whale became tangled Tuesday near Neah Bay, Wash., about a quarter-mile off shore in nets used to catch salmon.

Two Indians and a Coast Guardsman trying to cut the 20-ton whale free of the nets were dumped into the sea when the whale rolled, overturning their boat. They were not injured.

Veterinarian Dr. Thomas A. Gornall said the whale is "easy to spot. He's pulling several fathoms of net and a huge yellow float."

Gornall said when the anchor line holding the net was cut, the whale "was gone like a shot."

Scientists Discover Shipwrecks Off Keys

WASHINGTON (AP) — As many as six shipwrecks, some possibly dating back to the era of Spanish explorers, have been discovered off Key Largo, Fla., the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported Wednesday.

The team of marine scientists also found a deepwater coral reef system much larger than had been known to exist in the area.

"Preliminary studies ... indicate an undiscovered reef system about 14 miles long," said Floyd Childress, chief scientist aboard the research vessel Pierce in a study of the Key Largo marine sanctuary. NOAA is responsible for managing the sanctuary and the only other one in the country at Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Although shipwrecks were known to exist in the area, the number that was discovered surprised the scientists. According to the sonar record there are at least four and possibly as many as six wrecks lying in 120 to 300 feet of water.

"One of the wrecks is about 190 feet long. Its size and shape suggest it probably is a freighter sunk within the past 30 years," Childress said.

Another of the wrecks appears to be a badly deteriorated wooden vessel about 80 feet long, he said.

While the identity of the wrecks remains a mystery, he noted that on at least two occasions in the 1600s large flotillas of Spanish ships were lost in storms near Key Largo and few of the wrecks were ever found.

The scientists are planning to investigate the wrecks by diving in a submersible vehicle supplied by the Harbor Branch Foundation, an oceanographic research group.
