Rationing in California

Drivers find little relief

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The first day of an "odd-even" gasoline rationing scheme appeared to bring little relief as many California drivers again found themselves in long service station waiting lines. Lines of up to 75 cars were reported in suburban Los Angeles, where some motorists said they had put off buying gas for a week to wait for rationing to begin.

"I've been doing a lot of walking for the last two weeks and I just coast the 13 miles to work," said

In Texas too?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements said today that plans are being made to ease gasoline shortages, if situations similar to California develop in Texas.

"It is not a standby rationing plan as such," said Jon Ford, Clements' press secretary. Ford said this plan might include such procedures as setting aside separate days for selling gas to automobiles with odd- and evennumber license plants, or for special hours for gasoline

"Any practical approach to easing the use of gasoline if a shortage develops," Ford said. "So far no specifics Kenneth Jann of Alhambra, who waited in line at 7:30

The plan, which alternates days of eligibility to buy gas between drivers with odd and even-numbered license plates, began at midnight and appeared to have little success in reducing lines. Drivers also faced shortages of the kind of fuel they needed. Several station owners reported being out of regular and low on unleaded.

Cars stretched six blocks at one West Los Angeles station — about the same as Tuesday — and about 15 driverless cars were parked overnight at a Santa Monica station, waiting for the pumps to open at 8

In Culver City, two drivers played checkers on a car trunk as they waited in a line.

Most station owners checked this morning to be sure drivers with only license plates ending in odd numbers were in line. Few attempted to check fuel gauge levels to see if they were half-full or less, another new

Israeli tanks, troops reported in Lebanon

By The Associated Press

Twenty-five Israeli and Christian tanks and an unknown number of soldiers were reported to have taken up positions in southern Lebanon today following three days of Israeli air strikes against guerrilla targets and another terrorist attempt across the frontier.

The provincial governor in the southern port city of Sidon said the tanks entered Shakara and were near Braachit, both six miles north of the border and about 15 miles east of Braachit is one of several towns that Israeli-backed Maj. Saad Haddad recently ordered to join his brea-kaway state in southern Lebanon. The provincial governor said the tanks moved in about 7 a.m.

A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization confirmed the movement, and the Iraqi News Agency said there were 30 Israeli tanks and about 300 soldiers in the force.

However, it was not clear if the tanks were being redeployed within Haddad's enclave or had actually moved into the area from Israel.

"It might be the preparation for a new invasion," said the PLO spokesman, referring to the March 1978 Israeli invasion of southern Leba-peacekeeping force.

When the Israelis withdrew last year, they left a six-mile border strip in the hands of Haddad and his 1,500 militiamen. Much of the invasion area is occupied by a 6,000-man U.N.

Meanwhile, the Tel Aviv command reported an Israeli army patrol clashed with a band of Palestinian guerrillas on the Israeli-Lebanese border early today, wounding and capturing one.

The guerrilla squad was discovered at about 4 a.m. attempting to cross the border fence west of Kiryat Shmona into Israel. In a brief exchange of fire one guerrilla was wounded and captured while the rest of the band escaped back across the border into Lebanon, the army spokesman said. No Israelis were reported hurt in the clash.

From interrogation of the captured guerrilla, it was learned that the band originated in Tyre, on Lebanon's Mediterranean coast, according to the brief announcement. It was not disclosed how many guerrillas were in the squad, but the announcement said they intended to attack civilians. Police also dismantled a bomb found near a Jerusalem bus stop today as Israelis braced for guerrilla raids following three straight days of Israeli air strikes against Palestinian targets in Lebanon.

The Israeli public has been especially alert to terrorist attempts since Palestinian guerrillas raided the northern settlement of Nahariya last month, killing four persons.

Israeli warplanes attacked Palestinian targets in Lebanon for four consecutive days after the raid in April, and on Tuesday flew their third straight day of reprisal missions this

School board concerned over minority test scores

By BILL MODISETT

Concern over achievement test scores of minority students in the Midland Independent School District resurfaced Tuesday afternoon during the board's regular meeting.

Dr. Viola Coleman brought up the issue by asking the board for some action "to start narrowing this gap."

The physician said she was concerned about achievement test scores of minority students in the MISD.

Those test scores, she said, represent only one of a number of problems in the school district relative to minority students, which these students believe are not being addressed by the board or the school administra-

Although the board took no action, Superintendent Dr. James Mailey was instructed to present additional information about what is being done at the board's next regular meeting.

Dr. Coleman also told the board the number of local minority teachers has been on the decrease in the district in recent years. As a result, black teachers have organized to attempt to bring about some beneficial black teachers May 17 and indicated he will report to the school board on that meeting.

Specifically, Dr. Coleman said the needs of the district include a smaller teacher-pupil ratio, earlier diagnosis of children with special learning problems and less "social promotion" - moving children to the next higher grade even though they have not achieved that level. According to Dr. Coleman, a "gap" also exists in the schools between the administration and the school board and the community is aware of it.

Citing what she said is the declining number of black teachers in the school system, Dr. Coleman said additional minority teachers could help black students learn quicker and bet-

Suggesting the school district should look on the educational process as "multi-cultural," Dr. Coleman said educational consultants possibly could be employed by the school district to assist teachers in overcoming the problems.

In answer to Dr. Coleman's statement, Dr. Mailey told board members the district has set priority goals as part of its five-year plan and that those goals include the improvement of learning by minority students.

The efforts in those goals focus mainly on teaching methodology, he said, but the budget also calls for using some consultant help.

"Success is the name of the game." Mailey said. "I'm not at all satisfied with the progress our youngsters are

Board member Ed Runyan said the school district does not need a "quick solution to a long term problem." What is needed, he said, is to "zero-in on this particular problem, arrive at a plan of action and implement it.

"We've got to have a time frame." Board members also heard a report on the "Partners In Reading" program operated by the school district in conjunction with the Junior League of Midland. The program, which has been in existence some two years, has been given financial assistance by the

'guilty' Fife switches

FORT WORTH — Stephen Patrick Fife, 22, on trial for the strangulationmurder of his 19-year-old girl friend nine months ago, switched his plea from "not guilty" to "guilty" after 11/2 hours of plea bargaining here

He was sentenced to 50 years in grison as a result.

Fife had been indicted for the July 19, 1978, death of Catherine Ann "Fifi" Murphy, his girl friend of three years. Seven months later, on Feb. 8, Fife led Jerry Davis, chief investigator for Ector County District Attorney John Green, and other lawmen to a grave, near the banks of the Pecos River in Crane County, containing the decomposed remains of Miss Murphy.

The change in pleas came after Fife's attorneys, Royal Caswell and Cynthia Clack, bargained with Green and his staff. Green consulted with Thomas Murphy, father of Miss

Police guard confiscated drugs By MIKE SLATON

Dust rises to surround the tires of a rusted old car as it rolls into the clay driveway. The dog on the porch stirs himself to bark as a young man steps out of the car, crosses the yard and enters the house.

Minutes pass. The dust slowly settles back onto the driveway and covers the hood of the car with a grey film. The dog drifts back to sleep.

Music breaks the stillness a half hour later as the door to the house opens and the same young man steps out. In his arms are two brown paper shopping bags. Inside the bags, individually wrapped in newspaper, are 10 pounds of marijuana.

The people in this house eventually will be arrested, according to law enforcement officials who described the typical scene.

The young man who just purchased the marijuana is an undercover nar-Although weeks or months will pass destroyed. Along with those two sacks, on their way through the judicial process, are 12 50-pound bails of marijuana seized when a plane belly-landed in a local field, a shoebox full of methamphetamines confiscated in an earlier "bust" and thousands of dollars worth of illegal drugs and material suspected of being illegal drugs.

LAW ENFORCEMENT agencies in Midland and throughout the country are faced with the same problems: how to maintain security for the confiscated drugs and how to maintain a positive chain of custody. As with all material confiscated for evidence, whether it be a possible murder weapon or samples of hair, custody of confiscated drugs must be documented in all steps of handling. From the agent who first takes possession of the drugs to the person who ultimately destroys it by court order, all persons handling the evidence must be a recognized and identifiable

This documented chain must be maintained so there is no room for lapses in custody that might prejudice a case in court.

Security is a major consideration in evidence custody. The evidence must be kept from any possible tampering or even allegations of tampering.

Sgt. Les Fine is the evidence man for the narcotics divison of the Midland police department. It is his job to see that security and the chain of custody is maintained for drug evidence confiscated by the police department.

There are two ways drugs may come into the custody of the department, said Fine. One is when an officer outside the narcotics division takes the evidence into custody; the other occurs when a member of the narcotics division makes the "bust." "If the narcotics division makes the bust," said Fine, "the evidence offi-cer (Fine) is called to take the evi-

In the case of an arresting officer confiscating a suspected drug, said Fine, the officer keeps the evidence in his possession until booking procedures are completed. It is then marked with a tag giving the case number and the officer handling the

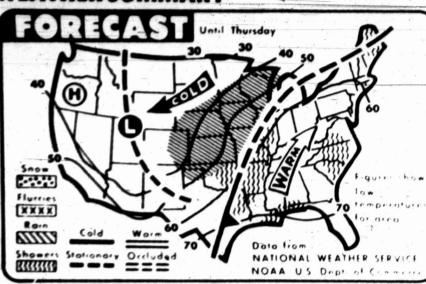

The material is then placed in a plastic bag and also marked with the same information as the evidence,

The next step for the officer is to lock the evidence in a specified locker to which only Fine has the key. The evidence remains there until he moves it to another security locker where it stays under lock and key until it is taken to the Department of Public Safety laboratory for testing, to court as evidence or to be destroyed, said Fine.

This particular chain of custody. means the evidence passes through fewer hands with the result of fewer

Bell favors passing charter to guide nation's spy efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell says he favors enactment of a legislative charter to guide the nation's spy agencies — if it can be done without hampering inteligence gathering.

"If charters will prevent intellience agencies from performing their mission effectively, they are not worth the price," Bell said in the first speech ever given by an attorney

Murder-suicide ruled in deaths

Officials said the man called police and reported his wife had been shot at

When they arrived at the house, fficers said, they heard a gun shot. After forcing open the door, they found the man and his wife lying on a bed. The man was lying across the woman's body, officials said.

Louis Martinez, 28, died shortly after arrival at Medical Center Hospi tal, officials said.

Mrs. Martinez was pronounced lead at the scene by Peace Justice Jimmy Harris.

According to investigating officers. Martinez was shot once in the chest with a .22-caliber pistol. Mrs. Martinez had been shot once in the right side with a 22 caliber bullet.

Harris ruled murder-suicide in the general at the CIA's Langley, Va., headquarters.

"If well-balanced charter legislation can be enacted, it would be a truly valuable and historic achievement," the attorney general said.

His remarks Tuesday to more than 600 CIA employees appeared to represent at least a change in tone from comments he made at a conference of FBI agents last month.

At that time, he said, "We would be just as well off to leave everything alone" and abandon the idea of a charter. "We have learned to live without it and I'm afraid we'll be done in if we aren't careful." Bell also told the CIA meeting

Tuesday that "it would be better to do without charters" rather than place "unnecessary restrictions" on spy

But he said he expected Congress to enact a charter that would not hamper intelligence gathering.

Attempts to alter legislation on canal treaties attacked

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) -A top government official attacked U.S. congressional attempts to modify the legislation implementing the Panama Canal treaties and warned that Panama will reject any laws it feels violate the spirit of the agreements.

'Odd couple' keeps cropping up before Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Somehow, the Tellico Dam and the snail darter, the unlikeliest of odd couples, keep turning up as a controversial issue in Congress.

The House and Senate labored literally to the end of the 1978 session before hatching a bill designed to head off Tellico Dam-like controversies of the future.

Its major problem: it didn't entirely resolve the Tellico Dam controversy of the present, in which a tiny fish, the snail darter, has blocked completion of a Tennessee Valley Authority

As a result, the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, debating an issue it tried to resolve a year ago, arranged to vote today on whether to permit completion of the $113 million project, snail darter or

Committee aides refused to speculate in advance on the outcome of the vote on the proposal by Sen. Howard

Approval for Baker's proposal would be a major victory for supporters of the facility which has been more than 90 percent complete since work stopped on it two years ago.

The House of Representatives voted last year to permit completion of the project, but the Senate refused to go

A year ago, Baker declined to call for a special exemption for the dam. Instead, he and Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, backed legislation to establish a Cabinet-level committee authorized to grant exemptions to the Endangered Species Act.

The law had prevented completion of the project because the Supreme Court ruled that closing the dam's floodgates would flood the habitat of the snail darter, a three-inch fish listed on the endangered species list. That would violate the law, the court

The law passed last year called for voted unanimously against granting an exemption.

"If that's all the good the committee process can do, to put us right back where we started from, then we might as well save the time and expense," Baker said. Aides said at the time Baker had expected the project to win an exemption, particularly since it was nearly complete. One committee aide, who asked not to be identified by name, said the proposal to exempt the dam from the law would have virtually no chance for passage except that Baker, the Republican leader in the Senate, is working actively for its approval.

"If the thing were debated on the merits, it wouldn't have a chance," said the aide, who works for a senator expected to oppose Baker's plan.

Opponents of the exemption, including Culver and many environmental groups, say the Cabinet-level proved an exemption for the Grayrocks Dam on the Laramie River in Wyoming after first requiring certain changes to protect the downstream habitat of the whooping

Opponents of Baker's plan also say granting an exemption would undermine the committee's work, and doom Congress to doing what it intended to avoid with last year's bill debating controversial projects indi-

Opponents also say the project was poorly designed from the start. Officially, the TVA has "no position" on whether the dam should be completed. In a report issued last year, the agency outlined an alternative that calls for development of the river and the surrounding area without closing the dam.

And what of the other half of the odd couple, the fish itself? Biologists say its population is dwindling in the Little Tennessee River because it can no longer get upstream to spawn as it did before the dam structure was built.

MOSCOW (AP) — E.L. Doctorow's American best-seller "Ragtime" is the hottest book in Moscow right now. In fact, too hot for Soviet authorities Psst! American novels to handle - but not for the thriving Writers here say the Communist bring healthy prices

Party's Central Committee has denounced the novel as pornographic in what is being whispered as a new government crackdown on U.S. books available in translation. The decision, secretly made in April, puts the book into the underground market in pirated books especially new American novels where bestsellers bring anywhere from $45 to $150. "It's a business," a Soviet writer explained. "Anyone who wants to read American books can get them this way. The pirating is done by Russians controlled. The prices are a healthy chunk in a country were the average monthly salary is $240.

One enterprising Muscovite is known to have collected 3,000 popular books from abroad just to reproduce and sell them. There are also recent graduates of Moscow language institutes who sit at typewriters most of the day and translate U.S. books, like Mario Puzo's "The Godfather." Some Soviets go to the apartments of translators to hear the books read in Russian. Many writers say they were able to "read" the works of Vladimir Nabokov this way.

The Xerox copies of U.S. books appeared on the Moscow scene only in the last three years, writers say, now that bound novels sold on the black market have become scarce.

The typical Moscow bookstore is stocked with copies of Angela Davis'

autobiography — and little else American.

Buyers who show a badge from the elite Writer's Union can browse through a special tiny bookstore in central Moscow that occasionally has U.S. works for sale. In recent years, writers have seen Arthur Hailey's 'Airport,' Truman Capote's "In Cold Blood," and Robert Penn Warren's "All The King's Men," as well as works by science fiction writers Isaac Asimov and Ray Bradbury. The editors of important Soviet journals as well as Soviet ministers and their aides have special reading privileges. They receive a list of U.S. books available in translation and merely underline the novels they want to read.

So where are they? Many books meet the same fate as "Ragtime," a kaleidoscopic look at the 1920s that was translated in full and appeared in the September and October 1978 issues of Foreign Literature, a widely sought but hard-to-get journal that prints foreign works. The Central Committee, writers said, determined that the book was "not only bad for women to read, but for men, too" and has indefinitely delayed its publication in book form - despite earlier publicity here that it would be made available.

"It signals a definite change of policy for a while," one Soviet writer told The Associated Press. Now, underground copies of "Ragtime" are being hurried out into the waiting arms of readers anxious to see what all the fuss is about, and the issues of Foreign Literature are prized.

The Central Committee is said to be pressuring the journal to present more works by authors of the socialist

Far-away Libya may influence Idaho Senate race

By STEPHEN C. SMITH

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - Libya separated from this grain-growing state by an ocean and half of two continents - would hardly seem to have any influence on an election for a U.S. Senate seat from Idaho. But it threatened to do so.

It began when the Libyans hinted they would buy more grain from Idaho farmers should a long-delayed shipment of military jets to their country go through. Sen. Frank Church, an Idaho Democrat and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has opposed the shipment and is up for re-election in

The economic realities would seem to leave Church in a tough spot. But Republican sources say the GOP has decided not to make a campaign issue out of Church's opposition to export eight Lockheed C-130 transport planes which Libya bought more than five years ago.

Idaho Republicans had been inclined to oppose Church's position until Libyan dictator Moammar Khadafy sent military aid to Uganda's Idi Amin and reports connected him to the overthrow of the Shah of Iran, the sources said.

Idaho Farm Bureau officials, gobetweens in the sale last year of $30 million of Midwestern wheat to Libya, also say they're not interested in pressuring Church during the 1980 election.

"Church is in between a hard place and a rock because of his position," said Oscar Field, president of Idaho Farm Bureau. "We recognize his po-sition and we're not going to try to push Church. He has stated he is willing to let our agricultural commodities be sold abroad." The Farm Bureau also refused Libyan requests to sign statements saying it doesn't deal with Jewish interests, Field said.

Libya hinted that it would buy huge amounts of Idaho grain and possibly open a trade office here if Church signed letters inviting Libyans to Idaho, a spokesman for Church said.

State Republicans became interested in Libya after Rep. Steve Symms, R Idaho, — a probable Church opponent in 1980 — led a trade delegation there in 1977. Since then, Idaho and Libya have exchanged several trade delegations.

Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, said Libya's primary interest in Church and Idaho is the export of the jet cargo planes, now mothballed at a Lockheed facility in Marietta, Ga.

"The Libyan government is acting in their own interests to enhance their image in Western countries,' McClure said. "If the farm bureau can use this desire as a means of expanding agricultural markets, it will benefit the Idaho farmer."

The Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations have refused to issue export licenses for the jets, fearing they might be used against Israel.

According to State epartment sources, Libyan officials apparentlybelieved Idaho farmers, seeking new commodity markets, could pressure Church into supporting export of the planes. The Libyans tried much the same tactic on President Carter's brother Billy, they said.

Church said he wants no part of Libyan pressure and said Khadafy doesn't need his permission to open a

"Creating a trade office in Idaho is up to Libya, not me," Church said. "If the Libyan government wants my endorsement, in return for their establishing a trade office in Idaho, that is a game I will not play either with Libya or any other foreign government. Church said he opposes shipping the planes to Libya because the nation "is not only hostile towards Israel, but also toward Egypt and other moderate Arab governments. I see no reason to sell the Libyans any military transports.' Symms, who supports trade with Libya and has set up meetings between Libyan emissaries and congressmen, contacted the State Department at the request of Libya to inquire about the aircraft.

Another D.C. 'march'

Good Grief! And what an emotion-packed demonstration of anti-nuclear advocates that must have been in Washington, D.C., Sunday

And consider, if you will, the motley crew of dissidents leading the throng - Hanoi Jane Fonda, Consumer Advocate Ralph Nader, Benjamin Spock and Bella Abzug. And if that isn't bad enough, there also was Gov. Jerry Brown of California. How would you like to have that group at the helm of the United States Governnent? Yet, that is the very place where they would like to be.

Gov. Brown's attendance and participation in the demonstration certainly should have sidetracked his presidential ambitions insofar as a majority of American voters are concerned. If this is the case, then the demonstration was worth something.

Fonda, Nader, Spock, Abzug and Brown, if they had their way, would put an end to progress, the free enterprise system, industrial development, the orderly development of natural resources, and the American way of life in general.

The demonstrators were well within their rights. There is no argument about that. But their demands were completely out of

They did accomplish one thing, however, in that coordinators of the movement were invited to meet with the president, which was something new President Carter didn't take long, however, in advising them mediate shutdown of the nation's nuclear power plants is "out of the question." He merits a round of applause for his sound reasoning in this regard.

It is noteworthy also that on Monday a message from Mr. Carter was presented to a European Nuclear Conference in Hamburg, West Germany, in which the president said that "although nuclear power is not without problems, we recognize that its benefits are significant.

"I reaffirm my pledge that the United States will be a reliable nuclear supplier under predictable and clearly established nonproliferation safeguards."

He could have added that the benefits of nuclear power are necessary, as well as significant.

European and Latin American nations are going right ahead with their nuclear development and expansion programs. The United States should continue, and even step up its nuclear energy program, practicing every possible safety precaution.

We don't know the exact number of persons involved in the Washington demonstration, and it really doesn't make a whole lot of difference. Estimates range from 65,000 to 70,000 on the conservative side to Nader's "way up yonder" figure of 125,000. And that is about as far off base as Nader usually is.

The unfortunate part of the whole business is that demonstrations of this nature seem to be "catching." It is noted that a Texas anti-nuclear group (Texas Mobilization for Survival) plans demonstrations for June 2 at two nuclear construction sites in the Lone Star State.

It is said the protesters will demand a moratorium on operation and construction of the plants. Again, Good Grief! And again, the demands are unreasonable.

A representative of the organization said, "As part of the June 2-4 International Days of Protest, anti-nuclear demonstrations will be held at both the South Texas Nuclear Project in Matagorda County and the Comanche Peak Nuclear Project near Glen Rose.'

Senator Ribicoff to call it quits while he's ahead and an apple farmer named Horace don't respect is the one who doesn't

WASHINGTON - We're losing Abe Ribicoff, a tough, skillful and valuable senator, because he is smart enough to quit while he's ahead. Ribicoff, 69, in the political game since 1938, says he won't stand for re-elect-

It was as obvious as a kosher pickle that Abe Ribicoff was Jewish, championed civil rights, fought bigotry and was ardently devoted to Israel Yet no senator took more vicious abuse than Ribicoff for his courageous support of President Carter's 'airplane package" in which Egypt and Saudi Arabia got hot jet fighter planes along with Israel.

That airplane deal convinced Egypt, at least, that Carter was serious about peace and led to Camp David and the peace treaty. When Carter saw Ribicoff at the Begin-Sadat signing ceremony, he said: "I thank you from the bottom of my heart, Abe. We couldn't have done this without you.

Ribicoff had been reviled by Jewish groups and old friends for going against the Israeli lobby, for backing Carter's controversial Middle East policy, even for being a royal guest in Saudi Arabia.

Nick

"Nobody likes getting beat up, Ribicoff recalls of the attacks on him. "But history proved I was right. Some lifelong friends who abandoned me came back shamefacedly. In the long run, Israel is better off because of this peace process. After serving as a state legislator, police court judge, and congressman, Ribicoff predicted in 1950 that young John F. Kennedy would be the Republic's first Catholic President. In 1956, he gave the vice-presidential nominating speech for Kennedy after first backing him for President.

After being elected in 1960, Kennedy said Abe could have any job he wanted; Ribicoff took HEW. Though Kennedy offered him a seat on the Supreme Court, Ribicoff begged off, and went home to run for the Senate

Though he had been a successful governor and lost only one election (that in 1952 to Sen. Prescott Bush with Ike running) Ribicoff ran into big political trouble. A guy named Kowalski almost beat him for the nomination at the state convention, Even now, while backing Carter for reelection, Ribicoff nurtures support for Sen. Edward Kennedy, if he ever becomes a candidate.

His instincts are liberal, but Ribicoff usually follows the art of the possible. He originally championed Ralph Nader, but wouldn't agree with Nader's extreme charges. Ribicoff pushed for catastrophic health insurance, not Kennedy's comprehensive, costly system.

Ribicoff dresses and grooms impeccably, but he was a street kid who had his nose broken in one of many fights. He grew up in a third-floor flat because his factory-worker father couldn't afford the slightly higher rents for lower floors.

GPU to take cost-cutting steps as result of Harrisburg mishap

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) - The chairman of General Public Utilities Corp. said today the company is eliminating 600 of its 1,500 jobs in a move to conserve cash following the accident at its Three Mile Island nuclear complex near Harrisburg.

We are cutting wherever we can," said GPU chairman William G. Kuhns at a news conference prior to the company's annual shareholders

Kuhns said the job cuts would be accomplished through attrition, layoffs and early retirement plans. He also said some employees would be given the option of transferring to Three Mile Island from other locations in the system rather than be laid

"We build power plants," said spokesman James Crotzer. "Without nuclear power, we're out of jobs."

In another cash conserving step Kuhns said his salary has been cut from $265,000 a year to $230,000 a year, while GPU President Herman Dieckamp's salary has been cut from $207,000 to $180,000 a year. GPU also has reduced its quarterly dividend from 45 to 25 cents a share and has halted all new construction.

Man, 39,

sentenced NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) - David Learned

"Your company has been seriously wounded," Kuhns told stockholders recently in a letter explaining some of the effects of the worst accident in the history of nuclear power generation in the United States.

Tight security was planned for the meeting despite predictions that fewer than 100 persons would peace fully picket against nuclear power.

William Tomallo, Johnstown's public safety director, said about 25 police officers would be deployed today. He said another 50 officers could be summoned quickly if needed and GPU security forces would be increased inside the area where the meeting is to be held. Phil Canary, an organizer of the Johnstown chapter of the anti-nuclear Mobilization for Survival, said the chapter would have about 50 pickets outside the arena. He said he expected few out-of-towners at the demonstration, largely because much antinuclear effort had been spent on a weekend demonstration in Washing-

A counter demonstration began as about a dozen hard-hatted construction workers picketed outside the meeting site

'We build power plants," said spokesman James Crotzer, who added he expected between 50 and 60 pickets later in the day. "Without nuclear power, we're out of jobs.'

GPU shareholder meetings ordinarily draw about 600 participants, the company said. But an estimated 1,200 to 1,400 shareholders were expected to be on hand today.

The meeting is being held here because Johnstown is headquarters of Pennsylvania Electric Co. (Penelec), one of three subsidiaries through which GPU holds ownership of the Three Mile Island plant.

The other two are Metropolitan Edison Co., which operates the plant and owns 50 percent of it, and Jersey Central Power & Light Co., which, like Penelec, owns 25 percent.

GPU had counted on Three Mile Island's two generating plants to provide 30 percent of its power needs for its 1.5 million customers.

But the damaged No. 2 reactor at the $1.1 billion complex remains closed indefinitely, and the other reactor in the complex - Three Mile Island No. 1 — has been closed for maintenance since before the March 28 accident. Although it was not damaged, company officals have said they don't expect it to reopen this

'Inside job' likely in attempted sabotage of Vepco nuclear plant

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Officials investigating the attempted sabotage of fuel elements at Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s Surry nuclear plant say it probably was an inside job.

'At this point, it's a little early to speculate, but it's a secure plant ... and it would lead you to believe that it would come from the inside," said special agent Sherrill W. Law of the FBI office here. He is directing the bureau's investigation.

Vepco Vice President C.M. Stallings said Tuesday that company inspectors had discovered the day before that a caustic white crystalline substance had been dumped into 62 of 64 new, unradiated fuel elements at

Officials say they won't be certain what the substance is until it is tested, but Jim Miller of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said it resembles a corrosive crystal drain cleaner which Vepco keeps on the site for cleaning.

Stallings said the incident might be the first documented case of attempt d sabotage of a nuclear generating facility in this country, but he added that it posed "no threat to the health and safety" of Vepco employees or the public

He said the uranium fuel within the elements was not damaged because tubes surrounding it are unaffected by caustic substances.

Law said the FBI began investigating after Justice Department attornevs determined the sabotage had violated the Atomic Energy Act. Miller said an NRC security specialist arrived at Surry on Tuesday to help the FBI investigators and check out possible security gaps.

The fuel elements were scheduled to be used to refuel Surry Unit No. 2 later this summer. That unit is out of operation for replacement of its steam generators and its sister, Unit 1, has been ordered off line by the NRC to check its ability to withstand earthquakes.

The elements are in a storage building between the two nuclear reactors. Each element consists of 22 zirconium tubes, 12 feet long but extremely thin, which contain uranium fuel pellets and are strung together with steel supports.

Each element is wrapped in plastic and held in a metal container embedded in the floor of the building and covered with a square manhole cover taped to the floor, Stallings said. He said the culprit apparently untaped the cover, unwrapped the plastic, and dumped from "a couple of cupfuls to a gallon of the chemical' on each element and then replaced everything as it had been before. "Whoever got in there knew what he was doing," he added.

Crude oil price rise foreseen

WASHINGTON (AP) - Even as the Carter administration raises its inflation forecast to at least 8.5 percent, some private economists are warning that price boosts for such necessities as food, energy and housing will far exceed that rate.

March set as walkout to end

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati police planned to worked 12-hour shifts Tuesday. join their wives in a march on a City Council meeting today before ending a 24-hour walkout triggered by the death of a fourth officer in 10 months.

Several hundred officers Tuesday threw their patrol car keys against a statue honoring the department's dead and walked away from their jobs.

Police and their wives were to march to the they don't know how short-manned we are. They'd meeting to seek action on their proposals for such safety measures as hollow-nosed ammunition, twoman patrols, and body armor. The job action was to be brief, but Elmer Dunaway, president of the state and local chapters of the Fraternal Order of Police, said "we may just stay out indefinitely" if the council did not act. In the meantime, the city was without its normal level of police protection for the first time since a wage strike 60 years ago. The walkout was triggered by the slaying Saturday of Officer Melvin Henze, the eighth officer to die on duty in five years. FBI statistics show that so far this year, Cincinnati had the highest number of police deaths of any major city in the nation. he emotion surrounding the deaths was evident on the faces of the 700 officers who attended enze's funeral. Some wept as the casket was brought "They're feeling a combination of emotions.

They're hurt. They're mad. They're afraid," said Lt. Col. Lawrence Whalen. "Maybe they've suppressed their feelings too long. But now they're saying, 'It ends here. They'll be no more."

Police and city officials refused to say how m

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal admitted he told a Senate appropriations subcommittee. 'uesday that the administration had "screwed up" Barry Bosworth, the director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, later agreed with Blumenthal's prediction.

At a dinner of the Society of American Business and Economic Writers, he said inflation now is "absolutely inconsistent with forecasts last Octo-

The revised prediction threatens to toughen labor's already hard stand against President Carter's 7 percent wage guideline, a COWPS spokesman acknowledged.

The United Rubber Workers union is seeking a package far in excess of the president's ceiling and the United Auto Workers union has warned the administration not to interfere in its upcoming nego-

"It doesn't make a more happy situation with labor," said spokesman Joe Carter of the wage and price council. "We recognize that it's a very difficult situation labor leaders are up against.'

Even before the new prediction, the AFL-CIO's executive council, meeting here, blasted the president's anti-inflation program as "an absolute flop" that penalizes workers and urged that it be scrapped.

Meanwhile, economists at Data Resources Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., said energy prices are expected to increase at an annual 15.5 percent rate. Domestic crude oil should rise 20 percent in price, said Bob Gough, a senior economist at the company headed by Otto Eckstein, a former member of the Council of Economic Advisers

Gough said the median price of a new single-family home this year will be about $63,500, which would represent a 13.5 percent increase over last year-Food prices, he said, are likely to rise 9 percent to 12

The overall inflation rate will be tempered somewhat, Gough said, by relatively mild price rises for clothing and shoes, durable goods and transporta-

A general premise held by many economists is that forecasts of higher inflation can generate a buy-atany-price psychology among consumers wishing to beat ever-mounting costs. That increased buying, in turn, fuels inflation still further.

Reacting to that possibility, Blumenthal said Congress and the administration cannot afford to let Americans think inflation is unbeatable. And for those businesses that raise prices for fear of mandatory controls, the secretary added: "People should be assured now that there is no intention whatsoever to have any kind of wage and price controls."

The AFL-CIO, nonetheless, repeated its call Tues day for mandatory controls.

Another private economist, Gar Alperovitz, charged Tuesday that the administration has "failed to address the basic causes of inflation.

His National Center for Economic Alternatives said that from January through March: food rose at a 17.7 percent annual rate, seasonally adjusted; energy skyrocketed 24.6 percent; shelter increased 14.3 percent, and medical care, 9.4 percent.

Alperovitz called for a federal energy corporation to tap new energy sources, price supports to ensure sufficient and stable food supplies, and lower interest rates to help create enough housing to meet th high demand created by young couples of the baby boom generation.

Meanwhile, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Tuesday that the effective interest rate on mortgages for new homes rose in April for the 17th straight month. The rate rose to 10.34 percent for new homes and 10.54 percent for previously occupied homes, the board said. In March, the rate lenders were charging for new homes was 10.30 percent and 10.47 for previously occupied homes

Kleberg dies

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Richard M. Kleberg Jr., board chair-man of the sprawling King Ranch and one of the most powerful men in Texas ranching, died Tuesday at a Corpus Christi hospital. Kleberg, who was 62, had been hospitalized since February.

Born to a prominent South Texas ranching family, Kleberg chaired the King Ranch corporation, one of the world's largest oil and ranching operations.

The 126-year-old ranch became famous for its development of the Santa Gertrudis cattle breed, and has a long history in thoroughbred horse racing, including the 1946 Triple Crown winner Assault, and his half-brother, the 1950 Kentucky Derby winner, Middle Ground. The ranch also was the inspiration for Edna Ferber's novel, 'Giant," and the motion picture.

Kleburg was noted for his willingness to experiment to improve the cattle industry. The Santa Gertrudis, the first officially recognized native breed in the Western Hemisphere, was developed by his father, Richard M. Kleberg, and uncle, R.J. "Bob" Kleberg Jr.

Free-swinging M-Cubs deck Dodgers again, 8-2

SAN ANTONIO—Ted Power and Rusty McDonald teamed up to whiff 16 Midland Cubs, but it was what in Tall City and between whiffs that counted.

Led by Jim Tracy's four hits and Carlos Lezcano's awesome sixth inning home run, Midland turned St. Mary's College field into a shooting gallery with 17 hits for an 8-2 victory over the San Antonio Dodgers, their third win in four games here, Tuesday

The only sour note about the night was Mike Allen. After relieving starter Lee Smith with two runs in and the bases loaded in the fifth, the blondheaded Pennsylvanian moved down the Dodgers in no-hit, five strikeout fashion before something snapped in his arm in the eighth. Just how bad it

Meanwhile, Power and McDonald were victims of defensive desertion by teammates as Midland scored only three earned runs. Typical was the first inning when Jared Martin reached first on a two-out error by shortstop Gary Weiss. Eric Grandy then tripled into the right field corner, Tracy walked and Mike Turgeon drilled a hit-and-run single through the hole vacated by Weiss as he dashed to cover second. That scored one run and then Brian Rosinski blooped a single to left for another

In the fifth, Tracy singled, Rosinski grounded to first and when John Shoemaker threw the ball away, Tracy scored Naturally, catcher Jesse Baez let the ball go through his legs and Rosinski took second and scored on Javier Fierro's single.

Lezcano hit the first pitch in the sixth for his fourth homer, a monstrous blow over the left field fence. "I got it up and in with nothing on it," Power confessed late. Tracy then doubled, Turgeon singled and took second on the error and when Myron White bobbled the ball in right, Tracy second.

The ninth inning run followed the script when Bill Hayes struck out on a wild pitch, reached first and scored on Martin's double

San Antonio's only runs came in the fifth when Smith walked two and gave up a single to Jim Del Vecchio to load

Weiss singled to right for two runs and when Smith walked Zouras, that brought on Allen for Smith who got the final out on a fly to right.

San Antonio has proven to be just the tonic needed for Midland pitching. In four games here, Midland hurlers have surrendered just five earned runs, although until Tuesday's game, the Cubs batting had fallen off.

Rangers leave stunned Islanders in coma

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers, ever-poised, always businesslike, allowed themselves this one moment of jubilation — one giant departure from the composed, workmanlike manner which dissected the New York Islanders.

When the final buzzer sounded, and the 2-1 victory was theirs Tuesday night, the Rangers reminded everyone they are a bunch of young people. Goalie John Davidson leaped off the ice, jumping as high as a man can when he is wearing 30 pounds of wet equipment.

Right wing Don Murdoch soared into space, his gloved right fist punching the air, while every Islander stood and stared in open

The New York Islanders — the National Hockey League's best team in the regular season — had gone from powerhouse to doghouse in the span of a six-game semifinal they had expected to win. The first day of summer came much earlier than planned; instead of celebration, months of explanation lie ahead.

BUT FIRST, there is pain to wash

"I guess I'll get drunk. What e ise isthere to do?" asked Islanders Captain Clark Gillies. "If I didn't, and I went home, I'd just be up all night, anyway."

"You might say the Islanders choked or the Islanders blew it, but that wasn't so," said Islanders right wing Mike Bossy, who snapped a five-game streak without a goal by opening the scoring on a power play at 8:56 of the first period. "The Rangers stood up to us and the Rangers won the series. I still don't think they have a better hockey team than us, but they did in this series."

As a result, the Rangers can sit back and wait to see who they'll play in their first Stanley Cup final since they lost to the Boston Bruins in 1972. If irony is on their side, and if the Bruins beat the Montreal Canadiens in Game Seven of their semifinal Thursday night, the Rangers would have a chance for revenge.

"But right now," said center Walt Tkaczuk, "I don't even care who we play. I just want to enjoy this victory.

TKACZUK AND left wing Steve Vickers are the only Rangers left from that '72 team. They have spent seven dismal years waiting for another opportunity; two of those years, they didn't even make the playoffs.

"I'm kind of jealous of the young guys on this team, because it only took one or two years for them to make the finals and it took me seven," said Vickers, a greybeard of

The smile on his face said he wasn't serious. He knew the youngsters combined with the veterans to pull this surprising team within four victories of the Stanley Cup.

Murdoch, a third-year man, tied it at 5:03 of the second period, and Ron Greschner — on a pass from rookie Don Maloney (the playoffs' leading scorer with 19 points) — scored the winner 3: 42 later.

All that was left was more of the hard-work that has been the Rangers' signature this spring. Doubt and discouragement remained for the Islanders.

"We get close and we get close," said Gillies, "and now we wonder what the heck it is we have to do to win."

What the Rangers did was work.

They never gave Gillies — or his linemates, Bossy and Bryan Trottier — any space in which to work the magic which led Bossy to 69 regular-season goals, Trottier to the regular-season scoring crown and Gillies to 91 points of his own.

Phoenix squares Sonic series, 2-2

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Rebounding is causing concern for the Seattle SuperSonics, who return home to find their playoff series against the Phoenix Suns tied at 2-2.

The SuperSonics, the defending National Basketball Association Western Conference champions, out-muscled the Suns in the first two games of the best-of-seven set, picking up 119-92 and 109-106 victories before home-

However, the Suns closed the rebounding gap in Game 3 Sunday in Phoenix, and slipped past the Sonics, 119-104. Tuesday night, the Suns finally won the battle of the boards, 49-40, and beat the SuperSonics, 100-91, before a sellout crowd of 12,660 at Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

ans Memorial Collseum.

"We can't let that happen (get outrebounded) and expect to win," said Seattle center Jack Sikma, who averaged 15.6 points a game during the regular season and 12.4 rebounds. "We need to control the boards. We're the big team and they're the quick team. We'll have to work harder and do a better job the next time on the boards."

The 6-foot-l1 Sikma was held to five points and nine rebounds Tuesday night.

"You can't depend on your shots day in and day out," added guard Dennis Johnson, who had 21 points in the losing effort. "But the defense can remain constant, and rebounding."

HOWEVER, JOHNSON promised the SuperSonics would "be all right when we get back to Seattle."

The Suns saw a 15-point lead in the second period evaporate and Seattle take a 69-67 lead with 5:49 left in the third quarter. A layup by Lonnie Shelton culminated a run in which Seattle outscored Phoenix, 19-9:

The comeback was keyed by Gus Williams, who scored six of his 22 points on the night in that stretch.
However, the Suns tied it 17 seconds later on a baseline shot by Paul West-later on a baseline shot by Paul Westphal and went ahead for good with 5:08 left on an 18-footer by Walter Dayis, who led all scorers with 27 points.

The Suns, leading 81-77 going into he final period, put the game on ice as they hit 12 unanswered points to go ahead, 93-77, with 6:20 remaining in the game. Half of that scoring punch was provided by reserve guard Ted McClain, who converted on shots from 10 and 12 feet out, as well as a layup.

Bruins send Canadiens into 7th game

BOSTON (AP) — The Bost on Bruins last won a Stanley Cup playoff game at the Montreal Forum against the mighty Canadiens on April 11, 1971. Now, once again, it's either do the job or go fishing for the summer.

With their backs to the wall, the Bruins remained alive in the National Hockey L eague semifinal round Tuesday night, skating to a 5-2 victory which forced a seventh and deciding game in Montreal Thursday night.

Stan Jonathan, a full-blooded Tuscarora Indian from a Canadian reservation, switched from muscleman to scorer for the Bruins. He scored three goals, including two in the third period after Wayne Cashman had put Boston in front 3-2 late in the middle session.

DESPITE NINE consecutive playoff games losses in Montreal — one in 1971, three in 1977, two in 1978 and three this year — the 13ruins insisted they can win there and move on to a championship showdown with the surprising New York Rangers.

"I'm looking forward to it," said Cashman, who

"I'm looking forward to it," said Cashman, who helped Boston to Stanley Cup championship in 1970 and 1972. "When you win the seventh game of a series in Montreal, you know you're in the Stanley Cup playoffs. I think we can win a game there, whether it's the first game or the seventh game.

Hogan to host celebrity tourney

More than 100 teams and guest celebrity players are expected to compete in the Nickel-Williams Charity Golf Tournament at Hogan, Park Golf Course May 19-20.

In previous tournaments, such stars as Craig Morton have appeared for the benefit tournament and this year will be no exception. Scheduled to play at Hogan are Donnie Anderson, former Texas Tech All-America and Green Bay Packers all-purpose halfback; Don Maynard, Joe Namath's favorite target with the New York Jets; Dallas Cowboys assistants Dan Reeves and Mike Ditka. Other Dallas Cowboy players and coaches, as well as Chrysler factory executives, also are expected.

The two-man partnership best ball, which was an annual tourney until a few years ago and then abandoned, will be reinst ated as an annual event with Honda Jeep of Midlar d and Nickel Lease, Inc., the co sponsors

Entry fee is $80 per team; and includes greens fees, refreshments, bag tag, brills and golf hat. Entries should be made by noon Triursday to Craig Adams or Mark Felton, coordina tors at Nickel-Williams Chrysler (694-6661), or by calling Rex Worley, the Hogan Park pro.

Teams will be flighted in five flights after the first day of play. Trophies and gift certificates will be awarded in each flight. Prizes will be given for longest dive on No. 9, clos est-to-the-hole on No. 3 and a free car for the first hole-in-one.

Proceeds will benefit children at the Midland

It may be ironic to some Midlanders that the popular Ingram has joined the camp of the enemy, so to speak. Indian River has been a thorn in the side to Midland College tankers on the national level the past couple of years. Ingram is deserving of the promotion, and it will be hard to pull against him regardless of where he

On the awards front, Andy Williams walked away with the most prestigious honor of the night when he was nonored with the Gathercole Award, The award goes annually to the swimmer who turns in the best time with the national times used as a standard.

Williams had the seventh best time in the nation in the 100-meter freestyle this past year and was a member of the nation's tenth best 400-meter freestyle relay team. Other members of that relay team to receive special recognition were Mike Seay, Karl Schmidt and Andrew Jordon.

Clay Spears, Alastair Reid and Mi chaela Hasek were also honored with pecial coaches' awards. The coaches picked these three because of exceptional qualities in performance and as team members.

Special awards were also given to team members that earned berths in the senior and junior nationals during

Expos hurler just misses gem

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Andre Dawson was playing a step or so too deep in center field and Rodney Scott was playing a shade too shallow at second base - which is why Scott Sanderson never had the chance to toy with the idea of a no-hitter.

"You're always going to regret a hit like that. But we were playing him right and he's a good hitter. You've got to give him all the credit," Sanderson said after Terry Whitfield punched a bat-handle single to shortcenter field in the first inning, the only hit off the Montreal right-

AP Sports Writer . The Kansas City Royals took a beating from the Texas Rangers Tuesday night — literally.

The Royals not only lost an 8-7 decision to the Rangers, but also lost two of their best players, Al Cowens and Frank White, when they were felled by pitches from erratic Texas starter Ed Farmer.

"I don't know what their pitching situation is, but the way he was throwing he should have been out of the ballgame," said White, whose right thumb was broken by a Farmer pitch. "I was lucky I got my hands up or he would have hit me in the face, too. They talk about knocking guys down, but after seeing what happened tonight, it isn't funny at all. It was frightening.

Cowens, taken off the field on a stretcher after Farmer broke his jaw with a pitch, was operated on at an Arlington, Texas hospital. He was placed on the disabled list for 21 days, and White for 15 days.

"Both players were playing great," noted Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "You just don't replace players like that. It would be like Texas losing (Al) Oliver and (Buddy) Bell, and California losing (Rod) Carew and (Joe) Rudi.'

BOTH WHITE and Herzog said there was no doubt the incidents were unintentional, and Farmer said he was sorry the Royals had lost the players. He insisted that he wasn't trying to hit anyone. Farmer, starting in the major leagues for the first time in five years, also threw a wild pitch and in one inning walked three straight batters.

Rick Mears, the fastest rookie in Indianapolis 500 history a year ago, raised the week's top speed at the speedway to 193.5 mph late Tuesday, during the final minutes of the day's practice session. Mears' lap, clocked with a hand-held watch, topped the day's previous high speed recorded by Al Unser, defending 500 champion, who drives for Midland's Jim Hall Chaparral Racing Team. By the end of the usual late-afternoon flurry of activity at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, 35 cars had made practice runs, including 10 for the first time since the track opened

Unser's hot lap in his new Chaparral racer was 189.235. Others over 180 in the busiest day of practice so far included Johnny Rutherford, Tom Sneva, the second-place finisher here the past two years, Gordon Johncock, Sheldon Kinser, Danny Ongais and rookie Hurley Haywood. Johnny Parsons, at 179.641, and Lee Kunzman, making his first track appearance this year at 179.390, were just under the 180

Although the slumping Los Angeles Dodgers won the game and he drove in two runs in the victory, Reggie Smith was in a foul mood. Before and after Monday night's 5-2 triumph over the New York Mets, the Dodgers' outfielder apparently was unhappy that he was playing, feeling that a sprained knee had not healed enough for him to return to the lineup. Smith hurt his knee when he stumbled over first base during a game in Houston the second week of the season. He has played only sporadically since then, mostly as a pinch-hitter, despite statements by the club that his availability was on a day-to-day basis. Asked about his earlier statement that he would not return to the lineup until the knee was completely healed, Smith responded: "So I lied. It isn't healed. I was asked before the game if I could play. They didn't ask me how the knee felt.'

John Reaves is a realist about the Cincinnati Bengals' decision to make Jack Thompson their first choice in the recent NFL draft. Club officials said they picked the Washington State quarterback so he could eventually replace starter Ken Anderson. "After the draft there are always moves around the league." Reaves said "If I happen to be one of those moves I will leave with no hard feelings. The Bengals have been good to me." Homer Rice, the Bengals coach, refuses to say that Reaves - who has been the Bengals' backup quarterback — is about to become trade bait...

French architect Roger Taillibert, who played a key role in Montreal's costly Olympic preparation, has agreed to appear May 16 before the Quebec government inquiry into the 1976 Games' $1.27-bil-lion cost. The flamboyant Taillibert has said he thinks of himself as a builder of monuments, and his Montrealer critics have complained that the $612-H RER BB SO million Olympic Stadium fulfills Mayor Jean Drapeau's dream of leaving a monument behind. Taillibert has compared his work with the building of Egypt's pyramids and Europe's giant medieval cathedrals. As for paying for his project in Montreal's lower-class east end, Taillibert said in 1975: "I don't concern myself with costs."

A commission lawyer has said privately that if Taillibert were to appear he would be questioned closely about information he gave the City of Montreal for the preparation of a 1972 budge which proved to be substantially less than the eventual cost. For example, the 70,000-seat main stadium was estimated to cost $106 million in 1972, but ended up with a final price tag of $612 million...

'Lewis always good boy' says disappointed Mom

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) - They had gathered in the ninth floor dining room of the New York Athletic Club newsmen, sportsmen, marketing and promotional types - to pay tribute to the "Athlete of the Decade.

At one end of the room, a large but strikingly attractive black woman stood alone - almost as if lost in the gabbing, glass-tinkling crowd. 'That's Mrs. Alcindor," someone whispered. "Jabbar must be the win-

Cora Alcindor was disappointed as any mother might be - but she took the news in good grace. She laughed heartily and talked animatedly through the lunch of fruit cup, underdone beef, home potatoes and jello with whipped cream.

"He was always a good boy — never gave me or his father an ounce of trouble," she said of her beanstalk son, who changed his name from Ferdinand Lewis Alcindor Jr. to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and went on to become the leading player in the National Basketball Association.

The Alcindors - Jabbar was an only son - lived in the middle class Washington Heights section of Manhattan. The elder Alcindor was a transit policeman.

"Because of his name they always called my husband 'Ferdinand the Bull," Cora said. "I was determined it wouldn't happen to my boy so we made sure he was called 'Lewis.'"

It is easy to see how Jabbar came by his height. His mother stands 6 feet, a pillowy woman who looks young enough to be his wife. Papa Alcindor is 6-2.1/2 of less than satisfactory players. You'd mention an employee's name and ask Casey why the man wasn't playing or why he'd been dispatched elsewhere. Quite frankly, lately the Yankee firemen have turned into chance that he might hurt his valuable left arm by overworking it as a reliever.

Guidry proves 'real' fireman

Guidry's explanation is simple. He sees a need on his team and he is going to do what he can to plug it. If Reggie Jackson's thumb were in a cast, Guidry couldn't do much about replacing the loss of power. Pitching is his business, and starting or relieving makes little difference to him, although it might make plenty of difference to his team.

THAT IS the stuff heroes are made of and if somehow this move turns the Yankees around, Guidry will once again emerge as the man who made the difference. He may also be able to erase the bad memories of his pre-Cy Young days as a not-so-successful reliever. "He is an achievement-oriented person," says one New York psychologist who is an avid Guidry-watcher. "Those kind of people are moderate risk-takers. He believes he knows what he's doing and therefore, if there's a risk, it's moderate and just the kind of thing an achievement-oriented person would seek out. The fact that he failed in that role before is also in-

Before becoming Cy Young, Guidry spent three seasons, 1974-76, when he was primarily a reliever. Ptching for the Yankees and their farm clubs at Syracuse and West Haven, he appeared in 118 games in those three years and started only nine of them. So he won't need a road map to find the bullpen.

He had 26 saves over that stretch, none of them in the American League. In 1977, he notched his first big league save, right before the Yankees discovered how devastating he could be as a

Since then, Guidry has left the bullpen assignment to others but now that the others have injured thumbs and banged-up ERAs, he has returned to relief

The early results have been encouraging. There was an early one-pitch save in Chicago when Gossage was still intact and then a 32-3-inning stint in which he gained the victory Sunday

If Stengel were still around and you asked him why he thought Guidry was doing this, the old man would wink, nod toward the bullpen and probably give you that same line he used so

"He seen what they done."

Baseball no lark to serious Bird

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) -Larry Bird, the two-time All-American who led Indiana State to the runner-up position of the NCAA basketball tournament this spring, was deadly serious when he asked to play on the Sycamore baseball team. "It wasn't just a big gag for him," said baseball Coach Bob Warn. "It was something he wanted to do, and do well." Bird, the college basketball player of the year, had not played baseball since high school, although he has played slow-pitch softball in a city league and last year hit 12 home runs and drove in 48 runs in 20 games. He also is an assistant baseball coach at West Vigo High School, where he is a student teacher.

Last week, while negotiations were getting nowhere with the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association, Bird appeared in a doubleheader with the Sycamores against Kentucky Wesleyan.

"Talent-wise, I'd say he's more skilled at the game (baseball) than most people would realize," said Warn. "I think he has a sincere interest in the game. So much in fact that he's often stated that he would probably as much like to play baseball as basketball, especially as he was coming up in the high school ranks and so forth. "It's an honest interest and desire that he has. Until he got so popular, he'd show up for all the home baseball games the last two or three years and players on the team."

THE SYCAMORES are 30-6 for the season, hoping for an NCAA tournament bid. In Bird's two at-bats last week, he struck out in the first game, then delivered a two-run single up the middle that put the Sycamores in front to stay in the nightcap. He also played first base and had nine putouts in the two Indiana State victories.

"He plays the game just as he does basketball, with every ounce he has,' Warn said. "He's very intense. He was remarking to one of the players before the game that he just wanted to do well, he didn't want to let the Warn said the idea for a guest shot for Bird on the baseball team first came up last winter.

"I was kidding him, 'Hey, you'd better get a bat.' He said, 'Hey, I'll do it.' We kind of laughed it off. Then as I was walking away I said, 'I'll take you up on that '

"His interest for baseball continued to come out and his desire to help us. We've got a tremendous program, butin baseball you're always fighting the anonymous syndrome. Baseball doesn't get the publicity other sports get. He felt if he could come out and play ... first of all it was something he wanted to do; second, he felt it would draw an awful lot of people. In his ownwords, he said, 'People come out and see me and maybe a lot of 'em will come back.

The doubleheader with Bird drew just short of 2,000 fans, about four times the usual number, Warn said. "He struck out once in the first game," Warn said. "I let him play two or three innings in each game. In the second game, he was up once also and swung wildly at the first pitch. The next pitch was low; the third pitch he hit foul down the rigt field line: then a 1-2 pitch was a hanging curve, and he just drilled it. The people in the stands went bananas."

WARN AND Bird's agent, Bob Woolf, who also was watching the game, were a bit alarmed when he 6-foot-9 Bird collided with the catcher going after a pop foul. Bird was stunned for a while but got up and continued the game. The catcher, Mark Rickard, was out of action for

"That just proved how Larry does everything." said Warn. "He is really an outstanding young man. I've had him in class, and he never missed a class, always on time, and always worked as hard as he does on the basketball floor. He brings the best

As middleman, Marshall keeps two sides' esteem

EDITOR'S NOTE - The man in the middle usually gets shot at from both flanks, but not so Ray Marshall. As secretary of labor he occupies that uneasy position, and while labor's relations with the Carter administration are, at best, chilly, Marshall has managed to retain the esteem both of his boss in the White House and the nation's union chieftains.

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President Walter Mondale had just delivered some impromptu remarks at a White House news conference called to announce a new employment program. Then, as he was introducing Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall, Mondale noticed a thick typescript curled up in Marshall's hand

"You're not going to read that whole thing, are you?" the vice president kidded the secretary.

Well, you know, I'm programmed for 50-minute lectures," Marshall replied in his Texas drawl.

The flat speaking style, the authoritative gestures, the scholarly stares from behind oversized glasses expose Marshall as the professor that he once was. But underneath the academic veneer is a savvy politician.

After two years as Jimmy Carter's secretary of labor, Marshall may flunk public speaking, but he's getting high grades in the two main courses offered in this town: politics and diplomacy. More than anyone else, he is credited with preserving the link tenuous as it is - between organized labor and Carter's administration

"THERE COULD HAVE been a permanent rupture if it weren't for Marshall," says one Labor Depart

"I firmly believe that the things the administration and the labor movement have in common are much more important than the things that tend to divide them." — Ray Marshall ledged: "Ray's kept that strained relationship together." He added:

"He works harder at day-to-day Democratic politics than any other cabinet secretary we've got. But you don't think of him as a politician.

Colleagues, aides, labor leaders and other people who deal regularly with Marshall say the 50-year-old former University of Texas economics professor is both an influential adviser to President Carter on domestic policy and a persuasive advocate of organized labor's principal causes. Carter trusts him and labor trusts him, though a gulf of mistrust separates Carter and labor

Union leaders are fond of him because of his efforts to present their A White House official acknow- views to the White House and because of his winning battles within the administration on their behalf. "We think he's doing a very good job for us," says one top AFL-CIO official. Carter has high regard for his secretary, according to the White House official, because of "his unquestioned loyalty" and because "Ray and the president think alike on most things.

"They come from similar backgrounds. On politics, they think alike,"said the official, noting that both men — reared as strict Southern Baptists — speak the same language,

TO LABOR LEADERS, however, Marshall and Carter do not think alike at all. They view Marshall as Carter's "liberal conscience," who is always going to bat for organized labor. They view the Democratic president as a conservative Republican on economic policy.

Marshall the politician finesses the point. "It's easy to exaggerate the differences" between labor and Carter, he told a reporter recently. "I firmly believe that the things the administration and the labor movement have in common are much more important than the things that tend to divide them.

That observation has become Marshall's stock refrain as he travels the country to address union groups. His low-key message is that this Democratic administration cares about the needs of working people and that this labor secretary will make sure it keeps caring. Marshall, in loyal agreement with the president in public, has fought vigorously for his positions in private White House circles and has won on several major issues. That is why, he says, he supports the thrust of Carter's economic programs. "This department played a major role in shaping those policies," said Marshall. "I think we have been able to shape them in a direction that is sound from the workers' point of

Marshall is generally credited as a key architect of the government's expanded public service jobs program. He persuaded Carter in 1977 to back larger increases in the minimum wage and won the president's promise this past winter to resist efforts to delay minimum wage increases scheduled for next year. He won a muchpublicized battle with Carter's economic advisers by preventing the administration from weakening regulations proposed by his department to increase textile workers' protection from cotton dust exposure.

Marshall also was the first administration official to propose that Carter adopt voluntary wage-price guidelines as a way to fight inflation and avert a recession. The guidelines have angered organized labor more than any other Carter program, but labor leaders don't seem to blame Marshall for his role.

BEFORE MARSHALL joined the administration, AFL-CIO President George Meany once remarked that Marshall was "one of the few American professors who understands the working people.'

Freddie Ray Marshall (he has dropped the Freddie) is one of those proverbial self-made men. Born in 1928 in Oak Grove, La., his family moved to Mississippi while he was an infant. His mother died several years later, and he was reared in a Baptist orphanage in Jackson, Miss., where he would rise before dawn to tend the.

Marshall ran away from the or-phanage at the age of 15. He worked briefly at a dental laboratory, then lied about his age and joined the Navy in 1943, serving as a radio operator in the Pacific during World War II. "I felt there was more future in the Navy than in false teeth," he said.

After the war, he got married and enrolled in a Mississippi junior college even though he had never attended high school. An outstanding student, he received his B.A. degree from Millsaps College in Jackson and an M.A. from Louisiana State Univer-

He received his Ph.D. in economics from the University of California at Berkeley, which he attended on a Rockefeller Foundation grant provided for poor Southerners.

A FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR, Marshall taught at the University of Mississippi and LSU before joining the Texas faculty in 1962 as a full professor at the age of 34. There, he became an outspoken advocate of desegregation, a stand that was not popular within the southern academic community at that time

Marshall specialized in employment and training programs, particularly those designed with help from organized labor to create more job opportunities for the rural poor and minorities - and later for women.

That, along with what one aide calls "a congenitally optimistic view of the world," may be his principal drawbacks, particularly in this busy year of major union contract bargaining. Marshall, however, seems satisfied to leave the day-to-day problems of preserving labor peace to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, the government agency created for

Upgrade your status when unloading books

By Hugh A. Mulligan

BETHEL, Conn. (AP) — Here in Connecticut, they are known as tag sales, a litter of junk on a lawn surrounded by a parking problem.

In New Jersey, they are called garage sales. When I lived in Vermont, they were called barn sales. Elsewhere in the land, and in many foreign climes, they are called backyard sales, flea markets, white elephant sales and junk jamborees

Regardless of their regional designation, these imprompty bazaars enable householders ordinarily unconnected with the world of retail merchandising to become bedouin traders for a day or a weekend and unload the jetsam of their attics and cellars on a

The sale is usually connected with spring cleaning, friends, so why not you? Just the initials "E. H." and that cannot fit into the presently trash-encumbered garage. The idea is not to make a profit, although that is not an unwelcome possibility, but to have the customers haul off the rejected impedimenta of a lifetime and void the nuisance of repeated trips to the town dump or the expense of hiring a pickup truck or a junk haulage firm.

Surplus books seem to be a popular item at these suburban souks, and a neighbor has hit on an ingenious scheme for upgrading the quality of the rejects from his personal library before putting them on sale.

Again, neither price nor profit enter the picture. All books, regardless of size, age or content, are retailed at 50 cents apiece for hardbacks and a quarter a throw for paperbacks. His concern is that the purchaser of these volumes — probably one of the neighbors — should realize that they played a key role in the intellectual development of the

The book should tell the prospective buyer at first glance that he is about to possess the treasured keepsake of a family of scholars, aesthetes, bookworms and closet double domes, folks, who spend their evenings bent over a volume of Restoration drama or Keynes, economic theory rather than a hockey game or a sitcom on TV.

To create the impression of a household of scholars on corresponding if not speaking terms with the leading lights of the literay world, all that is required are a few felicitious phrases scrawled in the fly leaf of the volume offered for sale. If, as my neighbor (who shall remain nameless lest the bottom fall out of his flea market) suggests, you are unloading an old high school text book of Cicero's Orations, you can enhance its sentimental value and expand your own academic background by inscribing a little fictitious commendation on the vacant page adjacent to its title. Minority-owned firms said needing assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government must redirect its assistance to minority-owned companies or they will continue to be too small to compete effectively for business, says a study released by the Commerce Department.

The report calls for a $188 million program over the next two years to help minority businesses train managers, acquire capital and get into new markets.

"Minority business enterprises cannot grow in terms of size, stature, respect, profitability and potential for sharing equitably in the economy on the present terms," the report says. "There must be a change in the government's missions, accompanied by new policies and programs.

The $100,000 report, released Monday, was the product of five months of study by James H. Lowry and Associates, a minority-owned management consulting firm in Chicago.

A Commerce Department spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous, said he expected many of the recommendations to be included in the agency's future policies.

He added that some would require ongressional action, which could be a problem because of efforts to hold down government spending.

The Commerce Department now spends about $58 million a year through its Office of Minority Business Enterprise, the spokesman

'Despite all of the government's minorities still control only 4.4 percent of all U.S. businesses, only generate 0.7 percent of all U.S. business receipts and only provide employment for 0.8 percent of all available U.S. employees," the Lowry study

The most recent statistics available indicate that in 1972, minority persons controlled 382,000 firms while white entrepreneurs ran 8.7 million companies. Sales at minority-owned companies were $16.6 million, and employees numbered 456,000, the report

Recommendations for improving minority management skills include special training programs for chief executive officers and fellowships on acquiring capital.

Building of capital, the report said, could come through a 90 percent government guarantee on loans to employee-owned minority companies and low cost government loans to mid-sized companies.

Efforts to help increase the minority business market share could include programs to encourage such businesses to manufacture producs the government needs and federal tance in helping minority businesses sell profitable subsidiaries to minority entrepreneurs just starting.

"Minority business persons cannot solve the problem alone because they lack the requisite capital and manpower, and the private sector lacks the purpose and incentive required to open up additional opportunities to minorities," the report says.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) A proposal allowing each county to have but one office appraising property for taxation by all units of government won surprisingly easy approval in the House on Monday. The House voted 119-12 to send the proposed constitutional amendment to the Senate.

Existing constitutional language allows the Legislature to force all taxing units in a county except the county govern-ment itself to have a

Elephants find Oklahoma home

By BILL HAZLETT The Los Angeles Times

HUGO. Okla. - This remote prairie town has a higher per capita elephant population than any community in the United States.

That's because Hugo, a thriving farm center that straddles U.S. 271 a few miles north of the Texas state line, is the winter home of the nation's biggest big top and only five-ring circus.

"At times we probably have as many as 50 elephants on the grounds," said D.R. Miller, owner-operator of Carson & Barnes, billed as "America's Largest Wild Animal Circus.'

We always have at least 25 elephants with the show," Miller said, "because you must never mislead the public. Kids come to the circus to see the animals and you should give them what you

"I've been in the circus longer than any man except the late John Ringling Sr., and if I can last three more seasons I'll have beaten him," said

"I USED TO BE a performer," Miller added. "I walked the tightwire and worked the trapeze, but I' never was a great performer. I just never had the style, personality or looks to be a circus star." Carson & Barnes is a "mud show." one of the last of old-time circuses operating under canvas and playing one-night stands on the "high grass circuit" of unmowed lot and vacant fields.

"There are two or three other circuses using tents," Miller said, "but most of them work in shopping centers or paved parking lots for three or

A few big circuses, like Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey, blay domed stadiums and convention centers, Miller said, and many carnivals play just about anywhere they-can

Miller pointed out the distinction between a circus and a carnival. "The circus," he said, "is designed to entertain you. The carnival brings things to town so you can entertain yourself."

A FEW YEARS ago, Miller said, there were dozens of small circuses crisscrossing the United States playing one small town after another. "Now, we're almost alone, carrying on the circus tradition. "We contend we're the biggest because we have more animals, more trucks, more performers, five rings, more of everything. Miller runs his circus like a commander preparing problems. If you get good help you can make it, but if you get bad help the problems are endless. "It costs us $8,750 a day - seven days a week just to operate," Miller said, "and that doesn't include the $350,000 it costs us each year to repair the circus and put it back on the road. During its 1979 tour, the circus will travel about 15,000 miles with more than 220 stops in 23 states.

Most of the two-a-day shows will be in small towns like Paris, Texas; Wylie, Okla.; Colby, Kan., Bad Axe, Mich., and Rhinelander, Wis.

Miller checks everything himself.

"When we move out we're putting 85 units (trucks, semi-trailers, mobile home) on the road," Miller

"WE AVERAGE ONE truck breakdown every day, and when it rains you soon find out why this is called a 'mud show' in circus slang.

'We play a lot of small towns, so our average move is only about 75 miles a day," Miller said.

"Our schedule works pretty well for farmers because they can get to town and see the shows. In some of the smaller towns - ranging in size from maybe 1.800 to 3.500 people - about half the merchants will hang a 'Gone to the Circus' sign in their windows and close for the day.

In addition the logistical problems, Miller said, the business is overrun by inspectors of every descrip-

"You wouldn't believe the building inspections, Miller, a short, stocky man with a thatch of fire inspections, animal inspections, EPA (Environsteel-gray hair and a constant chew of tobacco mental Protection Agency) inspections and even inspections by the Immigration and Naturalization Service because some of our performers are from Mexico or South America," Miller said.

"In some cases it takes longer for the local authorities to get a court order for us to move on than Miller, whose father and brother also were circus it does for the elephants to put up the tents and us to put on our shows.

10 p.m. and usually goes on until 2 a.m. Miller remains right in the middle of the activity. "It's about the only thing I know, and I enjoy the challenges that come along every day," he said. "I figure I'm about one of the luckiest and happiest men in the whole world. I'll tell you just how lucky I

"Over the years I have survived six automobile accidents, three truck crashes, several motorcycle smashups, a plane crash and had a ship sink out from under me.

House Texans approve buying of destroyers

WASHINGTON-Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 26 through May 2.

HOUSE

SHAH'S SHIPS: The House rejected, 88 for and 325 against, an amendment whose main purpose was to prevent the U.S. government from buying two destroyers ordered years ago by the Shah of Iran but not wanted by the new Iranian government. The amendment sought to eliminate $628 million in fiscal 1979 budget authority. Its failure may result in the Defense Department acquiring the destroyers from the Ingalls shipbuilding company at Pascagoula.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Miss, the vote came during debate on the fiscal 1979 Members voting "nay" favored budget authority to acquire the destroyers for the U.S. Navy.

Reps. Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake

Pickle, D-10 and Ron Paul, R-22, voted "yea." Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Bill Archer, R-7, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenbolm, D-17, Mickey Leland, D-18, Kent Hance, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Abraham Kazen, D-23 and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "nay "

DEFENSE BUDGET: The House rejected, 188 for and 209 against, an amendment in favor of higher defense spending. The amendment sought to in-crease fiscal 1980 budget authority for the military by about $2.6 billion over the $135.2 billion ceiling urged by the House Budget Committee. The vote came during debate on H Con Res 107 (see vote above).

Members voting "yea" favored higher defense spending.

MOSCOW (AP) - Moscow's buildings are on the move. Using a 15th Century Italian method, the Russians are reorganizing the city center by rolling their historic buildings to and fro.

A new city department, formed especially to handle the moves, has just completed its first project, the 34-meter move of the Trud newspaper building along the city's main avenue, Gorky Street, in sight of the Kremlin.

Traveling a few meters at a time, at a speed of about one meter an hour, the 10,000-ton building drew large crowds as it shifted almost imperceptibly down

The movement, along eight pairs of specially laid iron rails, was so hard to notice that construction men demonstrated it to reporters by placing a matchbox on a rail to see it slowly crushed by one of

In an interview, one of Moscow's leading architects, Nikolai Sobolev, said the moving technique was developed 500 years ago by Italian architect Aristotele Floravante, who used wooden rails to move a building 20 meters along a downtown

Before World War II, he said, in a period of Moscow redevelopment during which streets were widened and the city modernized from its old wood-hut look, moving historic buildings was the rule, with about 50 of them creaking up and down the

The handsome dark red Moscow city council building rolled backwards, a picturesque eye clinic turned 32 degrees on its axis and a row of apartment own back yards.

The Tass news agency claimed that their occu-

The huge Prague restaurant and the Shusev architectural museum, both on the ever-widening Kalinin Street, are to be moved backwards, though observers are puzzled as to where the Prague, on a small block of its own, can move to.

One of Moscow's first fire towers, a quaint little turret near Izmailova Park, is also to be moved. "Since the war, we've done without this method, Sobolev said. "Now we see we can't get by without it in the reconstruction of the city." All this moving about of buildings is caused by Moscow's unusual master plan of reconstruction that controls all building of streets and structures and designates "cultural reserves" around parks, streets and buildings in the city center that cannot be

But these "cultural reserves" are beginning to clog downtown Moscow's maze of one-way streets with previously unheard-of traffic jams, as Soviet

With an expanding city pushing against historically protected builings, city planners hav come up with what may e the only answer: move the buildings out of the way.

But the 40 structures that will be so carefully preserved by Mosfundamentspetsstroi are only a tiny minority of the old buildings that stand in the way of a modernizing Moscow.

DEAR ABBY

She's a stooge for a scrooge

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a jerk. I've worked alongside him in our own business for 30 years but I've never had a dime I could call my own. If I want to buy something for myself or our children, I have to ask him for the money. Afterward, I have to show him the sales slip and give him back the exact change.

I don't drink or smoke. He does both. I've never been extravagant. If my husband had to pay someone to take my place it would cost him plenty. I do all my own housework, too. Including the laundry. Don't you think I deserve a few dollars to do with as I please?

I am so disgusted I could scream. Print this. The jerk reads your column. Maybe this will wake him up.

DEAR HAD IT: You not only deserve a few dollars to do you're ENTITLED to it. But if you've held still for this kind of treatment for 30 years, I'm wondering who the jerk is.

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband and I and our l4-year-old son Brian (an only child) have had Sunday dinner out.

Lately Brian has started something new. He rushes through his meal, long before we've finished, and asks his father for the car keys so he can sit in the car and listens to the radio.

His father doesn't like it any more than I, but he gives him the keys and we finish our meals without him.

Brian has done this when we've had others eating with us. I think it's rude, but my husband says that if he prefers to sit alone in the car and listen to the radio, we shouldn't insist that he stay

I know my husband is hurt, as am I, but we're not sure what to do about it. What do you think? - BRIAN'S

DEAR MOTHER: Brian is trying to tell you he is bored. Have you tried drawing him into the conversation directing questions to him - listening to his responses? Try it next Sunday and I'll bet Brian stays through

DEAR ABBY: How about starting a eampaign to get restaurants to offer children's portions at reduced prices to senior citizens? I'm over 65 and can't eat a regular-size meal in a restaurant, but I'm not allowed to order a child's meal.

I just hate to see all that good food go to waste, Abby. Please see what you can do for us older folks. -SMALL EATER IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SMALL EATER: It's a lovely idea, but unless a restaurant shows a profit it can't stay in business. An occasional child's meal at a reduced price won't bankrupt the average eatery, but if it became too

Better ask for a doggie bag and take

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a niece who has blond hair and blue eyes and is married to a man who also has blond hair and blue eyes and just gave birth to a baby with brown eyes and coal black hair? - UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE "Congratulations."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Babies die more frequently in poor families than in families that are well off and it matters little whether they live in countries that are rich or poor, according to a new study. Researchers for the Overseas Development Council, a non-profit group devoted to problems of the poorer countries, concluded that: "Babies born to low-income families on the reservations of Native Americans or in urban ghettos face twice the risk of dying in infancy than do the babies born to parents living in the affluent suburbs of New York City, Chicago or Los Angeles

In oil-rich Venezuela, where the per capita income is $2,570 per year, 49 of every 1,000 babies die in their first year. But in Sri Lanka, where per capita income is $200 a year, 47 of 1,000 babies die.

Afghan babies, whose parents are only slightly poorer at $160 a year, die at the rate of 190 per 1,000.

Brazil and Taiwan have similar per capita income levels - $1,140 dollars in Brazil and $1,070 in Taiwan - but the infant mortality rate in Taiwan is only 25 per 1,000 and in Brazil, it is

Deaths high among babies of poor

In the United States, one of the wealthiest countries in the world, the infant mortality rate is 15 per 1,000. In Iceland, which is slightly poorer on average, the rate is only 8 per 1,000. Overall wealth and poverty does make a difference in some cases, however. "For example," the authors write, "in sub-Saharan Africa, 160 of every 1,000 newborns will not survive to their first birthday. If these same families and their babies lived in Europe or North America, all but 14 of every thousand would live.'

The study, by Sarah K. Brandel and Davidson R. Gwatkin of the ODC staff, is called "International Year of the Child: An Incentive for More Effective Development Strategy.'

'Second life' now possible for lost teeth

LOS ANGELES (AP) Dental Association con-- Youngsters are rough on teeth. They loose them to football, skateboards. bicycles, fist fights and an assortment of tumbles and spills — but the loss need not always be permanent.

Most parents don't realize that an uprooted but unbroken tooth can be cleaned up and put back in its socket where, with a dentist's help, it will often take hold and enjoy "an extended sec-ond life," says a New Jersey dentist.

And saving that original equipment is better and cheaper than replacing it with a false tooth. said Dr. Noah Chivian of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

Replanting teeth is a fairly simple procedure that's been around for decades and although it's most effective with children, Chivian said, it works with adults as well

Recent studies found that more than 20 percent of replanted teeth successfully reattached themselves and lasted five years or more, Chivian told a California

With improving procedures and quick action by patients, Chivian said the rate comes close to 50 percent, and some replants will last a lifetime: the informal record is 47 years.

"The most important thing is: the quicker the tooth is replanted in the mouth, the better the chances for an extended second life," he said in an interview. "The key seems to be (getting it) replanted within 30 mi-

Chivian, who works mostly with children 8 to 11 years old, had these recommendations for saving a tooth that's been knocked out:

-Holding the tooth by its enamel crown, not the root, gently wash it in running water. Don't brush it and don't apply disinfectants such as al-

—The tooth should be carefully inserted back into its socket before the trip to the dentist. If that won't work, it could be kept in the mouth under the tongue or between the cheek and gums — where it will be bathed in saliva.

But if the kid is crying or something, you don't want him to swallow it, so you could just put it in a glass of cold water and take that to the dentist's office."

After "some minor dental procedures," the tooth is returned to its socket and splinted held in place with wire, medical glue or even

Once firmly in place, "the microscopic living cells covering the root will rejoin with their counterparts on (the socket)." After about a week the splints are re-

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Eighteen dead and at least 39 wounded were reported after police fired on demonstrators supporting anti-government leftists occupying San Salvador's cathedral and two embassies.

The count was made by Red Cross workers after the shooting ended Tuesday evening. "We took 37 persons out of the cathedral with wounds, most of them in critical condition," one worker said. "There were 11 persons dead inside the building and seven dead on the steps outside. A television camera crew reported seeing two wounded policemen lying in the street.

The Red Cross source said President Carlos Humberto Romero's military government authorized the Red Cross to remove the wounded and any who wanted to leave the cathedral, and that rescue workers evacuated 10 bystanders who were trapped inside by the shooting.

But he said the 30 to 40 members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc occupying the cathedral since Friday afternoon and about 150 other Bloc members who took refuge to escape the shooting vowed to remain until the government meets their demand for freedom for five of their leaders they claim are being

A presidential press spokesman said some of the men inside the cathedral opened fire, critically wounding three policemen. But witnesses denied

One witness said about 100 demonstrators broke from the crowd to join the leftists inside the cathedral, and "the troops lining the square began firing above the heads of the crowd and then lowered their aim into the crowd.

Other witnesses said the leftists inside the cathedral fired back with pistols, then dragged some casualties from the church steps inside and bolted the heavy wooden doors.

Minutes later, about 120 reinforcements poured out of a police barracks near the cathedral and sealed off the area. An explosion was heard, and the troops opened fire in the plaza and in nearby streets

Thorpe lawyer tries to bar testimony

LONDON (AP) - Jeremy Thorpe's lawyer is trying to bar the prosecution's three chief witnesses from the murder conspiracy trial of the former Liberal Party leader because they are selling their stories for publication.

Thorpe's barrister, George Carman, argued after the trial opened Tuesday that the three men might tailor their testimony to improve their sales.

'A witness may shape his evidence to accommodate his paymaster," Carman declared in asking Justice Sir Joseph Cantley to rule out testimony from Norman Scott, the former male model who claims Thorpe was his homosexual lover in the 1960s; Peter Bessell, a former Liberal member of Parliament who told the police that Thorpe and three others plotted to silence Scott by having him murdered, and Andrew Newton, a former airline pilot who says he was hired as the hit man but lost his nerve and killed Scott's dog instead.

Thorpe and his three co-defendants - David Holmes, George Deakin and John Le Mesurier - all pleaded innocent at the start of the trial Tuesday at the Old Bailey criminal court. Selection of a jury of nine men and three women took only 25 minutes, but the start of the prosecution's case was delayed by argument about the admissibility of the testimony from its three chief witnesses.

Carman said a London Sunday newspaper is paying Bessell $100,000 for his account of the scandal, and Scott and Newton have employed agents to peddle their stories to publishers.

He said Bessell, who now lives in California, also had been given "carte blanche" immunity by the prosecution in exchange for his testimony even though he has admitted guilt in a million-dollar

These arrangements, Carman continued, constituted "a continuing contempt of court." He accused the three men of "a conspiracy to pervert the course

Posecutor Peter Taylor told the court that if Bessell, Newton and Scott "were prevented from giving evidence, there would really be no trial."

"It would be a travesty of our whole system of criminal justice for a judge to decide that not only shouldn't a witness be believed, but he shouldn't even be heard," he declared. He said any evidence relevant to the case, even if obtained "by inducement" such as payments from newspapers, was admissible in court. He argued that the Watergate scandal might not have come to light had it not been for investigative journalists, and the day might come when witnesses might not come forward unless paid by the press to do so. The four defendants are charged with conspiring to have Scott killed because his talk of homosexual relations with Thorpe threatened the political fortunes of the Liberal Party and its leader. Thorpe, who has denied he had sexual relations with Scott, also is charged with inciting Holmes to commit the

Thorpe, 50, was forced by the scandal to resign the party leadership in 1976 and in the general election last Thursday lost the seat in the House of Commons he had held for 20 years.

Amin troops murder civilians

SOROTI, Uganda (AP) — Idi Amin's troops, in one of their final acts of vengeance in this northeast Ugandan town, stopped a train carrying 1,000 fleeing civilians and shot about 50 of them beside the tracks, railwaymen reported.

They said Amin's men ordered 41 passengers, most of them men, to lie face down under the mango trees near the Soroti station, then started shooting. They said four young women hiding in a nearby toilet were shot and four girls were kidnapped by the

Reporters who reached Soroti after it was occupied last weekend by Tanzanian troops and the new Ugandan government's soldiers found four skeletons in a cassava patch near the looted, bullet-marked station and two bodies in a latrine pit.

The railwaymen said the Amin soldiers carried away the other bodies at night, apparently in a belated effort to hide the slaughter. The troops from Kampala said they found a mass grave in the town and estimated 200 bodies of men, women and children were in it. Nearby were three empty pits 10 feet long, 2 feet wide and 3 feet deep.

The escape train that became a death trap still stood at the small arcaded station with bullet holes in several of its nine cars. It had come across northern Uganda, where bands of Amin's troops and security police have been on a rampage of revenge since their leader lost control of Kampala nearly a month ago. Most of the passengers were believed to have been Christian members of the Acholi and Lange tribes, favorite targets of Amin and his Moslems during his eight years in power.

Assistant traffic superintendent Christopher Odeke, 45, said the train reached Soroti late on April 23. The 200-mile trip from Pakwach had taken 24 hours instead of the usual 12. There were three times more passengers than seats; and people were clinging to the roof of the coaches and the diesel engine.

"Armed men came in three automobiles and stopped the train from going on. They took the keys to the locomotive," Odeke said.

The passengers spent the night in and around the train. "The next morning the men came and told the people they would return the keys in the afternoon," Odeke continued. "But when they returned, the men were drunk. The assistant station master, Ben Bella Epupet,

27, took up the story

"The men started robbing passengers and got 10 bags of money. They forced those who didn't have money or whose identity cards were wrong to get off. I saw 41 people made to lie on the ground in a row beside the tracks. One man tried to run away and the shooting started."

The railwaymen said a civilian picked up a grenade in the confusion and threw it toward the station, killing two persons.

Hundreds of the passengers fled into the countryside. The Amin men told townspeople to drag the bodies away for burial. The railwaymen said the people took four bodies to a cassava patch 100 yards away and then ran away, fearing they would be shot when they finished their task.

Amin's army and police forces are estimated to have murdered up to 300,000 persons during the eight years after he ousted President Milton Obote in a military coup.

Iran firing squads execute eight men

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Islamic firing squads executed eight more men early today, including a leading Jewish businessman accused of "contact with Israel and Zionism," Radio Tehran an

The executions which followed 21 Tuesday morning, brought to 199 the number of persons put to death since Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces ousted the regime of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February.

Among the latest group was Habib Elghanian, who held controlling interests in a large number of companies and was a prominent member of Iran's Jewish community.

The broadcast announcement said he was accused of "corruption and contact with Israel and Zionism and betrayal of his fellow citizens. His properties were confiscated for the weak people.

Iran's new revolutionary government has taken a militant anti-Israeli stance, and when former Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida was executed April 7, working for international Zionism was one of the charges against him. Although Iran is not an Arab country, it has a large Arab minority which supplies much of the work force in the vital oil industry.

A prominent Moslem industrialist, Rahim Ali Khorram, also was executed today. The official Pars news agency described him as a "famous merchant and the owner of some casinos and gambling houses." Islam is opposed to gambling. His property also was seized.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Eighteen dead and at least 39 wounded were reported after police fired on demonstrators supporting anti-government leftists occupying San Salvador's cathedral and two embassies.

The count was made by Red Cross workers after the shooting ended Tuesday evening.

"We took 37 persons out of the cathedral with wounds, most of them in critical condition," one worker said. "There were 11 persons dead inside the building and seven dead on the steps outside."

A television camera crew reported seeing two wounded policemen lying in the street.

The Red Cross source said President Carlos Humberto Romero's military government authorized the Red Cross to remove the wounded and any who wanted to leave the cathedral, and that rescue workers evacuated 10 bystanders who were trapped inside by the shooting.

But he said the 30 to 40 members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc occupying the cathedral since Friday afternoon and about 150 other Bloc members who took refuge to escape the shooting vowed to remain until the government meets their demand for freedom for five of their leaders they claim are being

One witness said about 100 demonstrators broke from the crowd to join the leftists inside the cathedral, and "the troops lining the square began firing above the heads of the crowd and then lowered their aim into the crowd.

Other witnesses said the leftists inside the cathedral fired back with pistols, then dragged some casualties from the church steps inside and bolted the heavy wooden doors.

Minutes later, about 120 reinforcements poured out of a police barracks near the cathedral and sealed off the area. An explosion was heard, and the troops opened fire in the plaza and in nearby streets

Thorpe lawyer tries to bar testimony

tailor their testimony to improve their sales.

Justice Sir Joseph Cantley to rule out testimony from Norman Scott, the former male model who claims Thorpe was his homosexual lover in the 1960s; Peter Bessell, a former Liberal member of Parliament who told the police that Thorpe and three others plotted to silence Scott by having him murdered, and Andrew Newton, a former airline pilot who says he was hired as the hit man but lost his nerve and killed Scott's dog instead.

Thorpe and his three co-defendants - David Holmes, George Deakin and John Le Mesurier — all pleaded innocent at the start of the trial Tuesday at the Old Bailey criminal court. Selection of a jury of nine men and three women took only 25 minutes, but the start of the prosecution's case was delayed by argument about the admissibility of the testimony from its three chief witnesses.

Carman said a London Sunday newspaper is paying Bessell $100,000 for his account of the scandal, and Scott and Newton have employed agents to peddle their stories to publishers.

He said Bessell, who now lives in California, also had been given "carte blanche" immunity by the prosecution in exchange for his testimony even though he has admitted guilt in a million-dollar

These arrangements, Carman continued, constituted "a continuing contempt of court." He accused the three men of "a conspiracy to pervert the course

Posecutor Peter Taylor told the court that if Bessell, Newton and Scott "were prevented from giving evidence, there would really be no trial."

"It would be a travesty of our whole system of criminal justice for a judge to decide that not only shouldn't a witness be believed, but he shouldn't even be heard." he declared.

He said any evidence relevant to the case, even if obtained "by inducement" such as payments from newspapers, was admissible in court. He argued that the Watergate scandal might not have come to light had it not been for investigative journalists, and the day might come when witnesses might not come forward_unless paid by the press to do so. The four defendants are charged with conspiring to have Scott killed because his talk of homosexual relations with Thorpe threatened the political fortunes of the Liberal Party and its leader. Thorpe, who has denied he had sexual relations with Scott. also is charged with inciting Holmes to commit the murder

Thorpe, 50, was forced by the scandal to resign the party leadership in 1976 and in the general election last Thursday lost the seat in the House of Commons he had held for 20 years.

Amin troops murder civilians

SOROTI, Uganda (AP) — Idi Amin's troops, in one of their final acts of vengeance in this northeast Ugandan town, stopped a train carrying 1,000 fleeing civilians and shot about 50 of them beside the tracks, railwaymen reported.

They said Amin's men ordered 41 passengers. most of them men, to lie face down under the mango trees near the Soroti station, then started shooting. They said four young women hiding in a nearby toilet were shot and four girls were kidnapped by the

Reporters who reached Soroti after it was occupied last weekend by Tanzanian troops and the new Ugandan government's soldiers found four skeletons in a cassava patch near the looted, bullet-marked station and two bodies in a latrine pit.

The railwaymen said the Amin soldiers carried away the other bodies at night, apparently in a belated effort to hide the slaughter. The troops from Kampala said they found a mass grave in the town and estimated 200 bodies of men, women and children were in it. Nearby were three empty pits 10 feet long, 2 feet wide and 3 feet deep.

The escape train that became a death trap still stood at the small arcaded station with bullet holes in several of its nine cars. It had come across northern Uganda, where bands of Amin's troops and security police have been on a rampage of revenge since their leader lost control of Kampala nearly a month ago. Most of the passengers were believed to have been Christian members of the Acholi and Lango tribes, favorite targets of Amin and his Moslems during his eight years in power.

Assistant traffic superintendent Christopher Odeke, 45, said the train reached Soroti late on April 23. The 200-mile trip from Pakwach had taken 24 hours instead of the usual 12. There were three times more passengers than seats, and people were clinging to the roof of the coaches and the diesel engine.

"Armed men came in three automobiles and stopped the train from going on. They took the keys to the locomotive," Odeke said. The passengers spent the night in and around the train. "The next morning the men came and told the people they would return the keys in the afternoon," Odeke continued. "But when they returned, the men were drunk. The assistant station master, Ben Bella Epupet,

27, took up the story The men started robbing passengers and got 10 bags of money. They forced those who didn't have money or whose identity cards were wrong to get off. I saw 41 people made to lie on the ground in a row beside the tracks. One man tried to run away and the shooting started."

The railwaymen said a civilian picked up a grenade in the confusion and threw it toward the station, killing two persons.

Hundreds of the passengers fled into the countryside. The Amin men told townspeople to drag the bodies away for burial. The railwaymen said the people took four bodies to a cassava patch 100 yards away and then ran away, fearing they would be shot when they finished their task.

Amin's army and police forces are estimated to have murdered up to 300,000 persons during the eight years after he ousted President Milton Obote in a military coup.

Thorpe lawyer tries to bar testimony

LONDON (AP) - Jeremy Thorpe's lawyer is trying to bar the prosecution's three chief witnesses from the murder conspiracy trial of the former Liberal Party leader because they are selling their stories for publication.

Thorpe's barrister, George Carman, argued after the trial opened Tuesday that the three men might tailor their testimony to improve their sales.

A witness may shape his evidence to accommo date his paymaster," Carman declared in asking Justice Sir Joseph Cantley to rule out testimony from Norman Scott, the former male model who claims Thorpe was his homosexual lover in the 1960s; Peter Bessell, a former Liberal member of Parliament who told the police that Thorpe and three others plotted to silence Scott by having him murdered, and Andrew Newton, a former airline pilot who says he was hired as the hit man but lost his nerve and killed Scott's dog instead.

Thorpe and his three co-defendants - David Holmes, George Deakin and John Le Mesurier — all pleaded innocent at the start of the trial Tuesday at the Old Bailey criminal court. Selection of a jury of nine men and three women took only 25 minutes, but the start of the prosecution's case was delayed by argument about the admissibility of the testimony from its three chief witnesses.

Carman said a London Sunday newspaper is paying Bessell $100,000 for his account of the scandal, and Scott and Newton have employed agents to peddle their stories to publishers.

He said Bessell, who now lives in California, also had been given "carte blanche" immunity by the prosecution in exchange for his testimony even though he has admitted guilt in a million-dollar

"It would be a travesty of our whole system of criminal justice for a judge to decide that not only shouldn't a witness be believed, but he shouldn't even be heard," he declared.

He said any evidence relevant to the case, even if obtained "by inducement" such as payments from newspapers, was admissible in court. He argued that the Watergate scandal might not have come to light had it not been for investigative journalists, and the day might come when witnesses might not come forward unless paid by the press to do so. SOROTI, Uganda (AP) — Idi Amin's troops, in one of their final acts of vengeance in this northeast-Ugandan town, stopped a train carrying 1,000 fleeing civilians and shot about 50 of them beside the tracks, railwaymen reported.

They said Amin's men ordered 41 passengers. most of them men, to lie face down under the mango trees near the Soroti station, then started shooting.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A group representing the nonaligned movement agreed to invite representatives of the ousted Cambodian government to a meeting in Sri Lanka next month instead of the new government installed by the Vietnamese, an informed source reports.

Home loan interest limit hiked by House-passed bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' legal limit on home loan interest rates could "float" from the present 10 percent to as much as 12 percent under a bill approved Tuesday by the House.

A 78-47 vote advanced the bill, which could come up for final passage today. The bill next would go to the Senate.

Outside the House chamber thronged lobbyists for and against the bill. Some wore stickers depicting a cigar-puffing hog and saying, "Stop Greedy Savings and Loans. Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the sponsor, said there was a mortgage money "crisis" that could be solved only by lifting the If legislators fail to raise the interest ceiling, "we would be precluding people from buying homes. We would be precluding people from building nomes," Donaldson said. Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, said the bill would add to the inflationary burden of the average Texan and put home ownership out of the reach of many families. "I don't want you to add to the futility felt by the average citizen who is trying to pay his bills," Wilson told the House. The bill would permit lenders to charge two percentage points above the average monthly rate for 10-year U.S. Treasury notes and bonds or 12 percent, whichever was lower. The April treasury rate was 9.03 percent, so mortgage lenders could charge home buyers up to 11 percent if the bill were in effect today.

Over Donaldson's objections, the House voted 97-36 for automatic expiration of the higher interest ceiling on Sept. 1, 1981, unless the 1981 Legislature extends it. Again over Donaldson's objections, the House voted 71-57 to deny the higher interest rates to lenders who also charge "points" to sellers of homes. A savings and loan association or other mortgage lender would have to choose between "points" or higher interest. Donaldson's original bill allowed a floating ceiling of three percentage points above the treasury rate, but the House voted to drop it to two points, the level Gov. Bill Clements had recommended. House action on the bill — one of the most controversial of the session came less than a week after Clements withdrew his veto threat.

Senators passed, 30-1, their version of a bill implementing the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

House members quickly rejected the Senate bill, and both sides agreed to have a 10-member conference committee attempt to write a single bill on which both chambers could agree.

Major differences include the absence from the Senate bill of $450 million to reimburse school districts for revenue losses caused by mandatory tax cuts. Senators put the money into a separate school finance

Senate gives exemption to all elderly Texans

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Grant sage of California's Proposition 13. Jones, 56, wanted to restrict homestead tax breaks for older Texans. Sen. Carl Parker, 12 years younger, was on the opposite - or older -

In what he referred to as a "Dignity Amendment," Parker won a 24-7 vote Tuesday to provide a $10,000 homestead exemption for all elderly Texans.

The Senate Finance Committee had voted to restrict the exemption to elderly Texans with an annual income of $10,000 or less.

"This is akin to signing a pauper's oath," protested Parker, D-Port Arthur. "It robs them of their dignity — it's just not right. ... You're spitting in the eye of every elderly citizen in your district.'

The Senate passed the bill implementing the popular 1978 Tax Relief Amendment, 30-1, and returned it to the House for action on changes made by the Senate.

The House, however, refused to accept Senate changes and a five-member conference committee was appointed to try to work out a compromise with a similar Senate committee.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, the lone dissenter, said, "The timber barons will get all the tax breaks, along with the land developers and speculators." "Help the needy, not the greedy," said Mauzy, D-Dallas. The constitutional amendment known as the Tax Relief Amendment was adopted overwhelmingly by voters last November. It was put on the ballot by a special summer legislative session in the wake of the pas-

In opposing Parker's amendment, Jones, the Senate sponsor of the bill, said in many areas more than half the population is 65 or older, and "an ncreasingly large number of the population is going to be over 65."

To permit such high property tax exemptions in those areas. Jones said, would "create an absolutely intolerable circumstance for the remainder of the taxpaying group of child-raising age.'

"This has the potential for literally wrecking some taxing entities," said Jones, D-Abilene. "It's hard for me to understand, tax exemptions based on age alone

The Legislative Budget Board has estimated the bill would result in the loss of $397.7 million in school district taxes in 1980-81, with the $10,000 exemption costing districts about $10 million a year. The major impact of the bill, the board said, would be the loss of taxes as a result of the special valuation of farm, ranch and timber land. The board estimated the annual loss in revenue as a result of that provision, beginning in 1981, at $11 million for cities, $17 million for counties, $69 million for school districts and $7 million for junior college dis-

Partial state reimbursement for local revenue losses is set out in another pending Senate bill.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, failed, 22-9, in an effort to limit the lower valuations to family farms and ranches.

He asked Jones if $50 was the highest tax reduction an average homeowner would get under the automatic $5,000 homestead exemption, and Jones replied, "In that range, yes

Auto repair survey rapped by Automotive Info Council

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Automotive Information Council says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams went way too far in lambasting the auto repair industry on the basis of work done on 62 cars. Adams said the department's repair experiment — sending cars fixed to malfunction to 62 randomly selected garages — indicated a motorist has about a 50-50 chance of getting poor service or being overcharged when he has his car repaired. Adams should not "indict the entire automotive service repair industry' on that limited evidence, the auto council said in a statement released Tuesday at its Southfield, Mich.,

headquarters. With more than 100 million passenger cars on the road and 300,000 repair facilities, such a miniscule sampling can hardly be considered valid as even an amateur survey, the statement said.

The council, with an annual budget of $230,000 provided by member businesses, serves as a non-profit spokesman for the industry, which includes auto and parts makers, service shops and even car-wash busin-

"Secretary Adams' charges have done a disservice to the hundreds of thousands of service people who help provide Americans with a freedom of mobility unmatched anywhere in the free world," the council said.

"With the sheer volume of vehicles on the road, there are bound to be problems, but let the average car owner ask whether the secretary's accusations do not grossly exaggerate personal experience.'

States still may have some revenue sharing during '80

WASHINGTON (AP) - State governments are but then say, 'Don't forget to send us our revenue still likely to get some general revenue sharing money from the federal government in 1980, but it may well be less than they expected.

The House, angry over state demands for a balanced federal budget, narrowly turned back a Republican effort Monday to restore $2.3 billion in general revenue sharing in the target budget for fiscal year 1980, which starts Oct. 1.

That House action, on a 195-190 vote, means the House has no money for general revenue sharing in its spending proposals while the Senate is recommending the entire $2.3 billion.

When the House finishes work on its target budget later this week, a House-Senate conference committee will iron out differences between the two chambers and probably compromise on the revenue shar-

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, argued that eliminating the revenue sharing would permit Congress to reduce the federal deficit, a goal that many states have been demanding.

Thirty states have called on Congress to convene a constitutional convention to draft an amendment mandating a balanced federal budget. If 34 states make such a demand, Congress is required to convene the convention.

Deputy cemetery chief to retire

By BLAINE HARDEN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Fourteen minutes afterthe sun rose one day recently over Arlington National Cemetery, Metro Kowalchick began figuring out where to bury 14 more bodies.

In his cemetery office with a panoramic view of the Potomac River and Washington's stone white splendor. Kowalchick, a former coal miner with a seventh-grade education, went over the list of the dead with his friend and interment foreman Sylvester Smith.

Smith has been sad lately. It's not the burying business - he and Kowalchick have buried thousands of soldiers, hundreds of generals and they love their work - it's Kowalchick. He's retiring, and Sylvester Smith said he has gone home at night these past few weeks and cried.

Kowalchick, 59, who, as deputy superintendent of the cemetery, runs the daily operations of one of the world's most hallowed parks for the dead, is retiring to go back to his home town in the coal country of eastern Pennsylvania.

HE'LL BE LEAVING 520 acres of cherry and magnolia trees, 170,000 gravestones and guarded privacy for Centralia, Pa., a town noteworthy because for 17 years it has sat atop a seam of burning anthracite coal. "I am retiring sadly. It is not going to be easy," said Kowalchick, whose voice carries the harsh contours of the Pennsylvania hills and whose wife, Lillian, wants to get out of the Washington area and go home.

Kowalchick, who found his profession by reading an advertisement in the Retired Army Bulletin that said "Cemetery Superintendents Wanted," has been with the national cemetery system for 22 years. He has buried the dead in national cemeteries in New Jersey, Kentucky, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

He's worked, off and on, for 12 years, and five months at Arlington National Cemetery. He chose the location where Audie L. Murphy, the most decorated soldier of World War II, was buried. He pressed the button that lowered John Fitzgerald Kennedy into the ground.

THE KENNEDY BURIAL, for which Kowalchick received a letter of commendation from the Pentagon, took place on a gray Monday in 1963 when 31 other burials were scheduled. They all were held as scheduled; Kowalchick made sure of it.

Two days before, in a cold November rain, Lowalchick remembers arch oak tree with four wooden stakes in his hand awaiting the decision of Robert S. McNamara, Kennedy family members and the cemetery superintendent about where the assassinated president should be buried.

"After the ceremony on Monday, we worked all night preparing the grave so that people could visit on Tuesday. There was so much pressure and we were all so tired, it has all become a blur now," Kowal-

Kowalchick a GS-14, making $35,800 a year, has buried Supreme Court justices and journalists, astronauts and ambassadors, war heroes and babies. He has arrived in is office at 6 a.m. every working morning and goes home about 5 p.m., after making sure all the burials, which average about 12 a day, have gone smoothly.

TO GET HOME, Kowalchick does not leave the cemetery. He drives about half a mile from his office to a white, two-story residence on a hill surrounded by white marble headstones which are kept clean by regular scrubbings with Clorox bleach.

"My family grew up living in na-tional cemeteries. I love it. It is like living on a big estate. There is all the privacy I would ever ask for," Kowal-

Sometimes, he said, the privacy of Arlington cemetery was too much for his three children. Between 1962 and 1965, when his daughter Diana was in her late teens and dating, Kowalchick said her dates rarely made it past the guards to the house.

'I was a stern father. It didn't bother me at all that the boys could not get through.'

KOWALCHICK, WHO is the son of a Russian-born coal miner, said that living among the sepulchers of the nation's military dead is not at all depressing. He has escorted presidents, prime minisers, kings and queens past the tombs of Gen. John J. Pershing, President William Howard Taft and Polish pianist and presidentin-exile Ignace Jan Paderewski.

'I personally escorted the pope before he was the pope," said Kowalchick, referring to a visit of Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, then the Archbishop of Krakow, and now Pope John Paul II.

The dead and their monuments are not sad, Kowalchick said, but the living who come to mourn them often are. He mentioned white-haired mothers from the Midwest who come each Memorial Day to sit for hours in steel folding chairs beside the graves of sons killed in World War II.

Kowalchick also knows an Army colonel who drives to the cemetery nearly every day to tend his wife's grave. She died in 1965 and the colonel, who served in the cavalry during World War I, refuses to allow cemetery caretakers near the grave. The colonel has driven stakes in the ground above his wife's coffin and he stares at her headstone for hours, Kowalchick said.

WHATEVER SADNESS there is at the cemetery, Kowalchick said, drifts away in the early spring with coming of the cherry blossoms, yellow-green grass and school children. He said he hates the idea of moving away in the spring, but added that he'll be back. "I got a brother here," said Kowalchick, a veteran of World War II, who retired from the Army on disability and is eligible to be buried in Arlington. "I hope to be buried beside my

Texas Electric Service files rehearing motion

Albuquerque woman

FORT WORTH — Texas Electric Service Co. on Monday filed with the Public Utility Commission a motion asking for a rehearing on transactions among companies of the Texas

Utilities system. Joining in the TESCO motion were Texas Power & Light and Dallas Power & Light.

TESCO President Bill Marquardt said the company has studied the effects of the order issued by the PUC after a four-month investigation and two-week public hearing into transactions by the companies.

"We cannot agree with some of the commission's findings and legal conclusions. We are asking the commissioners to reconsider those points," he

The three had been instructed by PUC to refund to customers a total of about $3.2 million because the companies had increased interest charges to Texas Utilities Generating Co. without prior approval by the PUC.

Texas Electric's share of the refund is about $1.6 million, or 80 to 85 cents to customers who use an average of 750 kilowatt-hours per month.

Texas Electric is complying with the order, though, and is issuing refunds over a two-month period. The motion filed by the companies also objects to rulings regarding the halt of the sale of electric energy generated by low-cost gas from TESCO and TP&L and the certification of the Martin Lake generating plant, the pricing of any gas produced in the future from a deep lignite gasification research project and use of accelerated depreciation and off-sysSave 121.90 on this two pc suite!

"That man really scared me. He was so calm and complacent the whole time, like it was a game. I didn't know what to expect," she

The woman explained that she carries a gun because she is the manager of a club and restaurant, and often carries cash with her late at night. She asked not to be identified for fear of retaliation against her children.

Police said they recovered more than $3,600 in bills and change, and arrested Richard E. Williams, 50, of Kansas City, Kan.

Detectives said they planned to submit the woman's name to superiors for a commendation.

And, she said, some officers asked her to apply for the force.

Dark Continent has light moments

By ALAN CARUBA Copley News Service

TAMPA, Fla. - On any given day at Busch Gardens, The Dark Continent, the theme park here featuring more than 500 freely roaming big game animals, anywhere from 8,000 to 12,000 people visit. But the most popular people at the park are the gentlemen who go out on the earlymorning feed truck.

Winston Dunson, assistant curator resonsible for the huge veldt-like area called the Serengeti Plain, supervises the daily feeding operation while Wally Schlenke mans the wheel.

Long before the first park guest arrives, these men make the tour of the plain and they are greeted at the gate by a mixed herd of zebras and giraffes, among others, who patiently wait for their arrival

The ride is more than just a feeding operation, however, because both men know that the natural setting is particularly conducive to an exceptionally high birthrate among all of the animals at the park, including from 1,500 to 2,000 birds in the Bird

So, Wally Schlenke not only must put the truck beside the many feed stations scattered throughout the plain, but also keep a sharp eye out for newborn Thompson gazelle or greater kudu. Once a baby is spotted, a quick inspection follows to determine whether it can fend for itself or should be taken to the park nursery for some tender loving care.

In much the same way guests will view the animals from either the monorail, steam locomotive or skyride, the feed truck moves easily among the animals - large numbers of gazelle, antelope, zebra, giraffe, wildebeest, kudu, as well as ostriches and African crown crane, among others. Carefully isolated, but with room of their own, are elephant, rhino and cape buffalo.

The main gate to the park opens at 9:30 a.m. and a single, low entrance fee gives access to a full day that begins with "Marrakesh," a walled Moroccan-inspired village with shopping bazaars and belly dancers:

Nearby is "Nairobi" which is home to the animal nursery and a small animal petting area for children, plus "Nocturnal Mountain," a unique viewing area where night animals can be seen in natural settings.

Other sections of the theme park include "Stanleyville" with the largest log flume ride in Florida and an amphitheater offering free shows that include an elephant act and a magic presentation. "The Congo" offers an extraordinary opportunity to watch a dozen Bengal tigers cavort on Claw Island, a natural habitat, and to take a ride on the African Queen through a dense rain forest. "The Python," a thrill ride, vies with the 'Monstrous Mamba" and "Swinging Vines" for sheer excitement.

No trip would be complete without a stroll through the Bird Gardens and a visit through the Anheuser-Busch brewery to see how Budweiser. Michelob, Busch and Natural Light beers are made.

Talk of rebuilding rail 'serious,' sources reveal

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN The Washington Post

DAMASCUS, Syria - Evoking memories of T.E. Lawrence and the Arab uprising against the Turks, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia are planning to rebuild the Hejaz railway from here to Medina.

It is an ambitious project that has been talked about off and on for decades without result. This time it appears that the three countries are serious about it.

The single-track, narrow-gauge, 833-mile rail line was a marvel of its day. It was completed in 1908, during the region of the Ottoman Sultan Abdul Hamid II. Its working life lasted less than 10 years. When World War I broke out, the desert tribes of what is now Saudi Arabia backed the British in hopes of throwing off the Turkish yoke they had carried for four centuries. Arab raiding parties with Lawrence and other British officers repeatedly blew up track, bridge and rolling stock.

The old line is still in use between here and Amman, Jordan, with a few trains cautiously picking their way down the deteriorating track. South of Amman, only a few rusting hulks remain on stretches of abandoned

Talk of rebuilding the line has been received with well-deserved skepticism in the Middle East. The project has been discussed, approved and even put out to preliminary engineering, and even those involved in the latest plan are not entirely convinced it will be carried out.

That is because it would cost about $1 billion and it is not clear where Syria and Jordan would come up with the money to pay their shares. In addition, the Saudis reportedly are reluctant to finance a project that would be an easy target for Israeli air strikes in the event of a new regional

At the moment, however, "this is very much a live project," according to Mounif Akili, secretary of the General Administration for the Recommissioning of the Hejaz Railway set up by the three countries to plan reconstruction of the railroad. Interviewed in his sparsely furnished office in Damascus' diplomatic quarter, Akili said the project is at a crucial stage - selection of an engineering consortium to prepare detailed construction plans. The plans will cover complete rebuilding of the railroad to modern European specifications, permitting a direct rail link between the Arabian Peninsula and Europe though Turkey

Akili said an original list of about 100 prospective contractors has been pared to two, one an American-West German partnership, the other American-Indian.

The ministers of transport and communications of the three countries, which form the administration's governing board, were to have met this month to award the $20 million contract, he said, but the meeting was postponed without explanation.

"We don't know if it will be in a week or a month or when," he said. "Nothing is really going to happen until that contract is awarded."

He declined to speclate on the cause of the delay. Observers here believe it may have resulted from a governmental paralysis in Saudi Arabia caused by a prolonge absence of Crown Prince Fahd. It surely was not caused by the Jordanians, whose transport minister, Ali Suheimat, is a big booster of the project. He recently spoke of it as "vital," envisioning a major new transport link between Europe and the Arabian Peninsula, and said several countries are eager to provide financing.

Akili said the participants are convinced that the railroad is a practical proposal that would be economically

"Freight traffic between Europe and this region has grown at a dizzying rate," he said. "The trucks just can't handle it. The question of economic feasibility has been settled.'

MIAMI (AP) - A Dade County judge has ruled that radar measurement of traffic speed isn't reliable enough for court evidence, and Dale Smith Jr., who manufactures radar detection equipment, says he couldn't be happier, even if he loses business.

State Attorney Janet Reno Tuesday said she is considering an appeal of Monday's decision by Judge Alfred Nesbitt. If the decision is upheld, it could have an impact beyond Dade County and the 80 accused speeders directly involved.

Smith, who founded the Ohio firm that manufactures radar detection devices known as Fuzzbusters, attended the hearing and said he helped pay fees and expenses for defense witnesses. He said he didn't care if the blow to radar cut his company's

"I don't think we'll sell many Fuzzbusters in Dade County," said Smith. "I don't think this is going to affect our business in the rest of the country, but I don't care if it does.

Smith said that when a driver with a radar detector is caught in a speed trap, he knows he hasn't violated the law but "runs into a stone wall" of false evidence

"I just got teed off," he said. "Judge Nesbitt offered a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, and that's Attorneys on both sides of the case said the impact of Nesbitt's ruling may not be confined to the Miami area, where 5,000 speeding cases were held up during "Very likely the ramifications will be felt elsewhere in Florida and the nation," said Public Defender Bennett Brummer. "I think it would be difficult for other judges not to follow his deci-

Nesbitt said other judges are not bound by law to consider his ruling, and radar has been declared acceptable in eight states.

Unless the ruling is upheid by a higher court, its legal scope is limited to 80 accused speeders who asked that radar evidence be suppressed, or who asked to join the case. If appealed all the way to the Florida Supreme Court and upheld there, all judges in the state would have to follow the ruling.

The issue arose when Nesbitt viewed a television broadcast which appeared to show radar units clocking a tree at 86 mph and a house at 28 mph. Experts testified that errors in clocking can be caused by telephone paging devices, two-way radios or people whistling into citizens band radio microphones.

Prosecutors did not dispute contentions that both equipment and police training might be improved, but argued that radar serves the public good as a law-enforcement tool.

Nesbitt did not rule out the use of radar in the future, saying he thought manufacturers could make it more dependable.

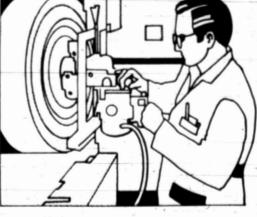

Florida Highway Patrol Director Eldridge Beach, who said troopers would continue to use radar, said patrol officials would talk with radar manufacturers bout the deficiencies Nesbitt cited.

"Of course we're going to go into it deeper with the manufacturer to see if it can be resolved because his ruling could possibly affect other courts around the state," Beach said.

Federal dollars keep rolling in CHICAGO (AP) - Uncle Sam has sent Walter and Alvina Janczewski thousands of dollars in Social Security checks since 1974. They wish he'd stop.

They say the money isn't rightfully theirs - but they can't seem to convince the government to stop sending it.

The Social Security Administration apparently goofed on April 28, 1974. when Walter Janczewski routinely visited the office on his 65th birthday to apply for Medicare. He told them he didn't plan to retire and didn't want any regular Social Security checks, and he continued to work at United States Steel Corp. as a photo-

But the retirement checks began coming anyway.

And Janczewski and his wife Alvina have been getting them five or six times a year ever since.

Each time they deposit the money in the bank and wait for the government to send them a letter at the end of the year asking for the "loan" back, Mrs. Janczewski said.

Last year, the government gave them $2,884 and during the past five years, Mrs. Janczewski estimates the government sent them about $7,000 in

Mrs. Janczewski says the whole business has given her something else to worry about, too. She's afraid that when her husband finally does retire. he may have trouble getting the re-

Rent-a-goat service great for brushland

By PHIL GARLINGTON The Los Angeles Times

EL CAJON, Calif. - Since an accountant here started his rent-a-goat service, he has been swamped with calls from people who want to put his four-footed lawnmowers to work.

So far, Harold Norris said, most of the calls have come from owners of steep canyon brushland that is hard to reach with machines.

"After a year of heavy rain, the canyons around San Diego County have sprouted some dense underbrush," Norris said. "You can either cut the brush by hand and haul it out. Or you can send in a team of goats."

After advertising in the classified section of local newspapers, Norris "A pair of goats will eat up all the weeds in a 100-foot-by-100-foot area in two weeks," Norris said, "and afterwards there's nothing to haul away because the goat droppings make great fertilizer. The goat, however, still is not a practical replacement for the power mower in suburbia. 'Some people complain when you stake a goat on a front lawn," Norris said, "and then there's these zoning

Much of the county, however, is crisscrossed by canyon brushland that is a serious fire threat in summer. Goats, Norris said, are the very thing to prevent brushfires. "During the big Santa Barbara (Calif.) fire last year, one man's home was saved while all those around were lost because he had three goats that kept his underbrush down," Norris said.

Rental rates are $7.50 for one goat per week, or $11 for two. "And you can rent to own," Norris said, adding that a 6-month-old goat suitable for barbecuing goes for about $50.

Until two years ago, Norris said, he didn't know a goat from a geranium. "I was doing some consulting work for a non-profit corporation that was trying to help the Indians on reservations become self-sufficient. One of the experiments was to introduce that were not suitable for cattle."

When the corporation folded, Norris, who was still owed some money, took part of his fee in goats -100 of them

Ownership of the goats, which now roam over a steep hillside that Norris owns, opened new vistas for him.

"For instance, I found out there is a big market for goat meat in Los Angeles among Mexican-Americans and Indochinese," Norris said. "Most of the goats for the Los Angeles market are trucked in from New Mexico and Texas but they can't keep up with the

Pills always poor plan for reducing

Dear Dr. Solomon: My cousin took reducing pills and she lost 21 pounds. I have asked my doctor for reducing pills, but he tells me they aren't necessary. If overweight is dangerous to a person's health, why won't he prescribe the pills?-Tess

Dear Tess: Your doctor has already answered your question-"Because they aren't necessary." He may also have told you that the effect of reducing pills is, at best, temporary, and that they could become habit-

A pill may seem rather innocuous to you, but anything that changes the body's chemistry should not be taken lightly or used indiscriminately. Appetite depressants may produce side effects, including insomnia, nervousness, increased pulse rate, palpitations and a rise in blood pressure. Obesity is harmful, but so are many other conditions.

Reliance on drugs rather than on acquiring new eating habits and increasing activity can do more harm than good. Using a crutch unnecessarily may keep you from learning how to walk properly. And the important ingredient in long-term weight control is a redirection of eating patterns.

Dear Dr. Solomon: With sugar a nono, and saccharin a carcinogenic, are any efforts being made to come up with a safe artificial sweetener? It seems that old American know-how shouldn't find this too difficult a task.-Ken

Dear Ken: One company has developed a low-calorie sweetener. called aspartame, which it claims is safe. The firm has submitted its data to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for review. The substance is said to be about 200 times sweeter.

than sugar, and is composed of two amino acids that occur naturally in more than half of all foods. Following review by the FDA, and before final approval for its sale is granted, a public board of inquiry will consider any scientific issues which may arise.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I realize that in the overwhelming number of cases, obesity is caused by overeating, and that only a tiny percentage is due to glands. But suppose I'm one of those in that tiny percentage? How do I find out? - Connie.

Dear Connie: Before undertaking any program of weight reduction, it is advisable to have a thorough history taken and physical examination done by a physician. This along with appropriate laboratory tests should either confirm or rule out that your excess weight is the result of some organic disturbance. With modern therapy, a malfunction of the thyroid, pituitary, or other endocrine glands generally can be remedied rather easily, thus providing an opportunity for lasting weight reduction.

Only five percent of my overweight patients have a glandular problem, but without correction they are not able to take their weight off and keep

Dear Dr. Solomon: My 8-year-old son was bitten by a stray dog and is presently undergoing a series of antirables treatments. How common is rabies in the United States?-Mrs.

Dear Mrs. L.: The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta has reported that of more than 3,000 cases of rabies in the United States last year, only one victim was human. The remainder were animals, with more than half the cases involving skunks.

Oil firm accuses buyers

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Atlantic Richfield Co. has accused California motorists of sparking the state's fuel crisis with panicbuying of gasoline and overreaction to reports of impending shortages of fuel.

Three Arco executives made the charges at a news conference Tuesday as they presented charts they said refuted public suspicion that the oil companies have been secretly holding back supplies.

John Simmons, president of Arco Petroleum Products, said there are long lines only at California service stations because motorists here "have overreact-

"They have to conserve," he said. "They have to stop this panic buying.'

Simmons was joined by Donald A. Henriksen, vice president of governmental relations, and Edward G. Reilly, vice president of retail marketing, in claiming Arco and other oil companies have tried to keep up with growing fuel demand by refining more oil and producing more gas during this year's first quarter than for the same period last year.

The officials denied hoarding gasoline, saying instead Arco had a lower inventory level of gas for the first quarter this year than for the first quarter in growing concern that gasoline shortages could spread from California, the Energy Department says leaks of internal documents to an oil industry group may threaten public confidence in the way the department makes rules and policy.

A report by the department's inspector general found that the American Petroleum Institute, which counts among its members the nation's largest oil companies, had advance access to a number of internal department documents.

Thomas S. Williamson Jr., deputy inspector general, said those documents included draft rules "that would directly affect the financial interests of API's member oil companies.'

The report said department employees acted "in good faith" in sharing the information. But it added "the practical effect of their conduct has been to favor a major industry group over other interest groups and members of the public. .

Williamson said the inspector general's office was concerned "about the broader implications of these findings for public confidence in the integrity of DOE's procedures for rulemaking and policy formulation."

Meanwhile, Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary predicted that the nation was in for "a fairly tight spring and summer on gasoline supplies." Repetitions of the long lines at California gas stations may happen elsewhere "unless people are very, very patient and don't panic," he

In California, gasoline sales will be restricted, starting today, in most of that state's largest cities under an emergency order signed Tuesday by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. The order provides for sales by odd or even license plate numbers in at least nine counties, which include such major cities as Los Angeles, San Diego, San Jose and Oakland.

Carter's request for standby authority to order gasoline rationing. That voting comes a day after the White House said the nation's supplies of crude oil are at a "dangerously low" level. But presidential press secretary Jody Powell insisted there had been no appreciable increase in the chance that rationing would be required.

The nation's reserves of crude oil were down to 319 million barrels, compared with the 310 million considered to be a "minimum safe level" by the Energy Department, Powell

Also at the White House Tuesday, a group of coal-state senators visited the president to ask him to reject tougher air pollution standards for coal-burning power plants. Sen. Walter Huddleston, D ky., said Carter seemed "very receptive" but made no commitments.

In other energy-related developments:

-The House was opening hearings today on the administration's proposed "windfall profits" tax on oil companies' profits resulting from Carter's decision to lift price controls on domestic crude oil.

-The AFL-CIO's executive council to mount an extensive lobbying effort in Congress to combat Carter's decision to start decontrolling oil prices

June 1. -The Energy Department said Exxon Co., U.S.A., agreed not to charge the public nearly $4 million in claimed crude oil costs that the department said the company had hoped to "bank." The costs had been overstated from August 1973 through December 1977. But the department's Office of Special Counsel said the company miscalculated the amount of money it could pass through to consumers. The Department of Energy's report on leaked documents was the result of an investigation begun after Congress Watch, a public interest group associated with Ralph Nader, disclosed an internal API document in May 1978.

The documnt was purportedly a quarterly report by John Innone, an API staff member, detailing his Energy Department contacts during January-March 1978. The department report concluded that through Iannone, API obtained copies of "23 draft rulemakings and internal DOE memoranda and studies that had not been formally made available to the public. ...

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) - Bargain-hunters, picking over a stock market that had taken heavy losses in the previous two sessions, went on a buying spree in the final hour of trading Tuesday that allowed the market to wipe out most of its early losses and finish mixed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen more than 24 points Friday and Monday and was down more than six points during Tuesday's trading, wound up with an increase of 1.47 to 834.89.

Declines outnumbered advances 9-5 on the New York Stock Exchange, but the NYSE composite commonstock index rose .04 to 55.79. NYSE volume was 32.72 million shares, up from 30.48 million Monday. Among the gambling issues, Caesars World fell 2% to 6714, Bally was off 3/4 to 721/2 and Holiday Inns dipped % to 17%. On the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International class A stock dropped % to 41% as the most active issue and Golden Nugget fell 1/8 to-

The Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial issues rose .19 to 110.81, while the S&P 500-stock composite was up .15 to 99.17.

The AMEX market value index lost 1.27 to 175.66, while the NASDAQ index of overthe-counter issues fell 1.00 to

BUSINESS MIRROR Numerous signs flash warnings of storms ahead

Ely JOHN CUNNIFF A P Businenss Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. economy is now probing its way through murky weather. Thunderheads threaten turbulence, and a few shudders already have been felt. Radar reports differ, but the seatbelt sign is on. If you were pi loting the economy - assuming it could be piloted — you would be buffeted by conflicts. Computer reports wouldn't be of much help either; some are suspect. No matter, the decision is

You must act even though you're uncertain of vital data, such as your forward speed. Or, for goodness sake, whether you're even going in that direction. Some of the data sent to you say you're already in

Only reluctantly would you take decisive action in such circumstances. And when you did, your decision might be made with your own internal computer, your instincts, rather than the mass of conflicting data. That, to some degree, is the dilemma faced by those officials in the Carter administration and the Federal Reserve Board who must monitor and attempt to guide an economy of more than $2 trillion. There's no limit to the advice they get. No limit to the amount of statistical data available. But what it adds up to is a personal decision, a subjective one, one made as much by hunch as by science.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators fell in March for the third straight month. Once it was believed that there straight signaled a recession coming. Sure, but can you rely on the figures? On the theory' "It looks to me like the index is throwing off some fairly mixed sign als," said William Cox, Commerce Department depi ity analyst. Very true; the index showed rises in both the workweek and the layoff Is there guidan ce in the consumer mood? Little.

Surveys show buy ers are depressed; they also show them buying up a storm. Can credit give guidance? Little. March ext ensions reached a record; so did repayments. Well, try the en ployment figures. Okay. In April, employment decli ned sharply but the level of unemployment, seasonally adjusted, rose only one-tenth of one percentage point to 5.8 percent. What do you make of that? Almost anythin g, some economists say. Something's out of join t, but what? The seasonal adjustment, which see ns to distort the numbers each spring? Or was it the trucking strike? Floods? Can you get some guidance from business spending plans? They're way up; McGraw-Hill says business will sp end $177.9 billion on capital improvements, "the sharpest rise since 1966." Sounds awfully bullish.

It does sound bu llish, until the analysts get through with it. In the past, they say, industry used the hiatus of a downturn to i mprove its equipment and plant. Maybe business e: cpects another downturn?

The pace of housing doesn't seem to offer clear guidance. Once it was the first to decline as an economic advance deteriorated. Now it seems almost immune to high prices, high interest, and sometimes tight n ioney. In seeking guidlance from economists you find almost a consensus: there will be a downturn, they say, perhaps begir ining during the second half of the year. But then, you recall, they said the same thing a

Moreover, you I ecall the great doubts economists have about their own discipline, their personal disputes, their questioning of each other's theories, their lack of agreement even on fundamentals.

A decision-maker, therefore, is inclined to rely on internal guidance and faith. Some economists seem to do so. And in de claring recession is avoidable, the president may be following instinct, not economics.

economic docume ntation for that faith. Some of the passengers are su spicious. They wonder how sure he nimself is of his o wn statements.

But when you consider the unusable ingredients offered to decision -makers, can you really blame the pilot of the ship of state for failing to produce decisons and expl anations satisfying to all the pas-

General mining law under fire in Idaho

COEUR D'ALE NE, Idaho (AP) - The future of the Apex Rule, the foundation of general mining law, is now in the hand s of the Idaho Supreme Court.

A dispute over a 1944 contract, outlining the ownership of three or e bodies near Kellogg, Idaho, and signed by Sunshine Mining, Silver Syndicate and Polaris (now Hecl 1), was presented to the high court

At stake is $1,346,724 carried on the books by Silver Syndicate as owe I by Sunshine, and a known ore reserve with about 2.7 million ounces of silver, currently valued at over $21 million.

Mining experts estimate the possible silver potential in the three veins at 20 million ounces, or $160

In 1976, an Idetho District Court allotted 50-50 ownership to Suns hine and Silver Syndicate.

When a vein is | ocated, the Apex Rule states that the owner of the a pex, the point nearest the surface, is the owner of the entire vein.

Glacier, the perfect pig

New owners say he's worth $42,500

HUDSON, Iowa (AP) — His shiny, auburn hair is clean and bristly, the wide-set beady eyes are attentive and the handsome tail curves into one perfect curl. Glacier, a 7-month-old Grand Champion is one 'perfect pig" say Iowa farmers Wilbert and Myron Meinhart and worth every cent of the $42,500 they paid

"He's the price of a combine, but we can use him all year around," said Myron, who with his father, Wilbert, runs a hog farm southeast of Hudson.

Glacier has been their prize stud since February, when the father and son bought him for a price that knocked a $38,000 boar sold in 1973 right out of the Guinness Book of World Records.

Myron was responsible for the tenacious bidding at the Southwestern Duroc Congress in Wichita, Kan., that brought Glacier to Iowa. He staved off two other hog breeders who were still in the running at the $38,000 mark. The second place boar went for $5,500. Myron said Glacier has personality far beyond his

"He's very loose in movement, almost hyperactive in temperment and never has had a sore or bad day in his life," said Myron. Twice a day, rain or shine, a sow is singled out of the Meinharts' 65-sow Duroc herd and ushered to Glacier's pen. In a matter of 10 or 15 minutes, a litter of little Glaciers is on the way.

And the breeders are hoping that in each litter there will be at least a couple facsimiles of the sire. Glacier's first offspring will make their debut this summer, and the Meinharts will be able to tell then if they made a mistake. But if all goes well, they will take one of Glacier's sons to the Duroc Congress show next year and try to recoup their investment.

For those interested in buying a bit of Glacier's immortality, the Meinharts plan to make his semen available at a cost of $500 per one-inch vial, enough to breed one sow Infertility is not one of Glacier's problems - he breeds 95 percent of the sows on the first try. But he's picky about his schedule "It's habit-forming for him," Wilbert said. "If yu'd try to use him at noon, he'd wonder what was going

Oklahoma cattlemen warned of future federal price controls

ADA, Okla. (AP) — A livestock said. official warned Oklahoma cattlemen Tuesday that they may be shackled with federal price controls within the next year because of growing consumer complaints about the rising retail price of beef.

While state ranchers have begun rebuilding their herds, supplies of beef will not increase dramatically in the near future, meaning prices whichhave skyrocketed in recent months may continue to rise, officials

President of the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association Walter Woolley of Ada said Oklahoma cattlemen may soon be in the same position they were in 1973, when rising meat prices triggered massive consumer resistance.

'If consumers organize and the price gets too high on beef. I think we'll see it happen again," Woolley

Charles Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders As sociation, said prices are higher than most cattlemen thought they would be. He said no one knows how high

-Ball told the group the best bet for countering a consumer boycott is to develop a low key approach. Ball warned rising beef prices may force the Carter administration to take action soon.

"I think the odds are we still may have price controls before the next election," Ball said.

He said demand has not decreased dramatically for beef. He said about 2.5 percent of the American family's budget is spent on meat products.

Ample supplies of chicken and pork, beef's chief competitors, will tend to hold down our beef prices

Homesite buyers to get refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission said today it has negotiated what is potentially the largest cash settlement-in its history, winning $14 million in canceled debts and refunds to 7,600 buyers of homesites in central Colorado.

The land was sold, using what the FTC called "allegedly deceptive claims," to residents of Chicago, a number of cities in Colorado and Texas and other places throughout the country.

The FTC said the subdivision sites - 75,000 acres in all - have "virtually no use at present or in the foreseeable future."

Many of the buyers were servicemen, blue collar and white collar workers and people planning their retirements, the announcement said. Under the arrangement, the buyers will be eligible for a refund of 70 percent of the amount they paid. They must return the land to the seller. The agreement was reached with Banker's Life-and Casualty Co. of Chicago, 11 other firms and Robert Greenberg of Los Angeles. The settlement resulted from a complaint the FTC ssued in 1976 charging that the businesses engaged in unfair and deceptive practices by claiming the lots were a good investment involving no financial risk.

The businesses were prevented, under the agreement, from misleading consumers in future land These provisions are expected to affect activities in Colorado and Florida where the companies have most of their land interests," the FTC said. If the eligible buyers take advantage of the chance to get their money back and their debts wiped out, refunds will total about $8 million and canceled -contracts will amount to about $6 million, the FTC

Eligible for refunds will be people who purchased lots in six subdivisions from 1971 through 1973 and who have not been notified of default.

The subdivisions are San Luis Valley Ranches, Rio Grande' Ranches, Top of the World and Larwill Costilla Ranches in the San Luis Valley area and Hartsel Ranch and Estates of the World in Park

County in central Colorado. In the San Luis Valley, those eligible for refunds paid an average $1,359 toward five-acre lots and would be eligible for refunds averaging about $950 and canceled contracts averaging about $850.

In central Colorado, purchasers paid an average $2,500 each. They will be eligible for refunds averaging $1,750 and canceled contracts averaging $500 each, the FTC said.

The FTC opened a toll-free hotline in its Denver office for buyers who think they might be entitled to refunds. The number is 1-800-525-5816 except for Colorado residents, who can call collect to 303-837-

Ag group to expand various rural loan plans

WASHINGTON (AP) - Over the objections of the Carter administration, the House Agriculture Committee has voted to expand various rural housing and development loan programs by almost $2 billion.

President Carter had asked that ceilings for the programs be reduced by $400 million.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, in a letter to the panel, opposed both those increases and an increase in the size of rural towns eligible for aid with their community facilities and a section setting aside 25 percent of the farming loans for poor farmers and ranchers.

Under the House bill, passed Tuesday by voice vote, up to $5.82 billion a year could be appropriated for the various programs, compared to this year's estimated $3.93 billion in loans and guarantees and the $3.52 billion sought by Carter. Later Tuesday, the Senate Agriculture Committee passed a companionmeasure with program ceilings totalling $2.29 billion above Carter's request, but without the other sections Bergland opposed.

"That's too much for us to absorb" with present staff, Assistant Secretary Alex Mecure said just before the Senate panel voted. Only two Republicans backed him as the bill was approved 12 to 2.

None of those totals includes disaster-relief loans made by the Farmers Home Administration, which reached $3.4 billion in fiscal year 1978 and are estimated at $578 million this year. The programs' spending authorities expire this fall. The bills would extend them until Oct. 1, 1982.

CHICAGO (AP) - A 7-year-old girl, trying to escape the locked apartment where her mother had hanged herself, fell three stories and survived.

An unidentified man saw the girl falling and rushed beneath her to break her fall, witnesses told police.

Police said Snday that the child, Rashadad Keshiro, fell from the window of a third-story apartment as she tried to lower herself to the ground on an electrical cord. Her mother, Jean Keshiro, had locked herself and the girl in the apartment and hanged herself with a lamp cord, police

New York population drops by 4 percent

NEW YORK (AP) - New York City's population has dropped by 4 percent to less than 7.2 million in the last four years with the biggest de cline registered among white and Puerto Rican residents, according to a Census Bureau survey.

An analysis released on Monday said the city's white population declined by 12.6 percent from 1975 to 1978 and its Puerto Rican population by 5.5 percent in the same period. Whites make up 58.6 percent of New York's city population.

appropriate and sufficient to carry on a successful Farmers Home Administration program," Bergland said.

The agency needs flexibility in deciding how much aid to keep in reserve to help new farmers and those with net incomes blow the poverty line, he added.

The House measure would open the $250 million community facilities loan program, now limited to places of 10,000 persons or less, to towns with up to 20,000 residents. It also would raise the cap on the program to $500 million.

Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., said the number of eligible communities would increase from 18,467 to about

It also sets an annual ceiling of $1 billion on rural water and sewer loans, compared to $700 million sought by Carter, and $100 million for the water conservation and development programs, on which he wants a $60.5 million cap.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wet fields are still keeping farmers behind in their corn planting this spring, says the Agriculture Department.

As of May 6, an estimated 13 percent of the nation's corn acreage was year ago and the average progress for the date of 35 percent, the department said Tuesday.

Experts to speak to pecan growers

Charles Neeb, entomologist, and Harold Kaufman, plant pathologist, will be featured speakers at the 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting of the Midland County Pecan Growers' Association. They will meet in Room 201 of the Courthouse Annex, 218 W. Illinois

Neeb will speak on pecan nut casebearer detection and control, and Kaufman will talk on stem-end blight in pecans, said Charles W. Green, Midland County extention agent for agriculture.

"These are timely topics which will be of interest to many," said Green. The meeting is open to anyone interested in pecans and who many have one tree or hundreds, Green said. All are welcome to the meeting, he said.

Soviet Union delivers big order for U.S. corn

WASHINGTON (AP) - After million metric tons if it chooses. weeks of rumors that it soon would bounce into the U.S. grain market again in a big way, the Soviet Union has sealed a huge order for U.S. corn, one of the biggest in recent years.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday the new sale is for 1.15 million metric tons of corn, to be delivered this year.

Officials said the sale was reported to USDA by private exporting companies who arrange their own contracts with the Soviet Union and other Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland also announced the new sales at a news conference in Chicago.

According to the department, the Soviets now have bought about 6.89 million metric tons of corn and 2.53 million metric tons of wheat for delivery through Sept. 30, the end of the third year of a marketing agreement that calls for Russia to buy minimum amounts of grain annually.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

The combined total sold to the So viet Union so far this year — about 9.4 million metric tons — compares with around 14.8 million metric tons the Soviet Union ordered in the agreement's second year which ended last Sept. 30.

Under the pact, the Soviets are committed to buying at least 6 million metric tons of the two grains each year and up to a maximum of 8

But if more than 8 million metric tons is wanted, the United States must viets were told they could buy up to 15 million metric tons in the third year if they chose, the same as in 1977-78. Only corn and wheat are covered by the agreement — a five-year pact that will end Sept. 30, 1981: In addition to corn and wheat, the Soviet Union has bought about 900,000 metric tons of U.S. soybeans and 6,300 metric tons of rice in 1978-79, the department said. Officials said the new sale of 1.15 million metric tons of corn - about 45.3 million bushels - was one of the largest at one time to the Soviet Union since the five-year agreement was put into effect. The department did not say why the Soviet Union ordered so much corn at one time, but one source close to the transactions said the delayed spring plantings of the U.S. crop may be a reason, if "the Russians think prices might climb because of a short (U.S.) harvest" this fall. Another reason may be that the record Soviet grain harvest of last year probably included above-average losses and additional U.S. grain is needed to help build up stockpiles. Still another factor, the source said.

asking not to be identified, is that planting in the Soviet Union also has been delayed by bad weather this spring, perhaps raising concern about the 1979 harvest potential.

Radio stations delighted with relaxation of rules

WASHINGTON (AP) - Radio broadcasters are hailing an informal but major step by the Federal Communications Commission to abandon or relax government rules on stations' conduct and performance.

The commission instructed its staff Tuesday to report back within a month or so on options for it to consider in moving toward significant dere-The FCC staff indicated Tuesday its findings on the amount of news and public affairs programming coincided closely with those supplied by a survey of the National Association of Broadcasters. Both studies concluded that far more news and public affairs programming is offered by smallmarket broadcasting stations than FCC rules require.

"These numbers prove that radio stations including those in small markets servetheir communities and will be able to serve better without the burden of those unnecessary rules," Summers said.

The NAB, which says its members include more than 4,600 radio and 570 television stations, had objected to a tentative FCC proposal to try a deregulation experiment only in larger markets - those with 10 to 12 sta-

At the end of a three-hour briefing by the commission staff, Chairman Charles D. Ferris said that on the basis of data now available, he believes the FCC can go ahead "without the experimental mode....When the staff report comes back, we will have an opportunity to take a very signifi-cant step. I think we can do a great deal without an experiment."

Ferris instructed the staff to come back with options on deregulation of all radio stations, scrapping the FCC's maximum-time requirements for commercials and abandoning its 'ascertainment formula."

That formula requires radio broadcasters to interview representative groups to determine the needs and interests of their communities and then attempt to serve them. The proposal would retain the responsibility for ascertaining need, but would drop the formula which requires that stations respond to 38 commission questions on their findings.

Present rules require that stations devote to news, public affairs and similar programs at least 8 percent of their air time for AM stations, and 6 percent for FM stations. Commercials are limited to 18 minute per
