Sunday storm strikes Stanton with sand and fury

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

STANTON — Robert Barber and his wife Estella were just "milling around" the house about 6:30 p.m. Sunday, when a "gigantic whirlwind" or high winds brushed Stanton's southside, uprooting trees and destroying several houses.

"I noticed windows popped out, and my lamp came out of the house," Mrs. Barber said. "The house was just shaking and rumbling."

By the time it was over, five wooden pillars around the house were torn off, elm trees were toppled and a car was "sideswiped" by a falling tree. Debris was littered all about.

"I was just standing there shaking," Mrs. Barber said. "I didn't know what else to do."

She said a pet cat, Tina, was knocked unconscious by the flying debris, and her tame rabbits huddled together in fright.

"THEY WERE as scared as I was," she said.

Her husband said he was unnerved by the sudden storm.

"The whole house shook like I don't know what," said "Fats" Barber.

Across the street was a lot only recently "vacated."

"This was a house; now it's completely gone," said Col. Ken Dawson of the Texas State Guard, which was dispatched to patrol the damaged areas.

Approximately 25 guardsmen from Midland, Andrews and Big Spring were present Sunday night.

Dawson, of Midland, is commander of the state guard's Fourth Military Police Group. He said the guardsmen were at the "disposal" of Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders.

SEVERAL BLOCKS west, at 408 Saint George St., Leonard Brown and his wife, Daisy Mae, were watching television when the high winds tore shingles off their roof, collapsed part of a plank fence, demolished the chicken coop and tore open the pen holding Brown's racing greyhounds.

"I forgot all about watching television when I saw that cloud," Brown said. The storm "was already here" when he looked outside, he said.

He said his wife first looked out the window and said she saw a "sand-storm" headed their way.

Brown, 72, also eyed the storm and said: "That ain't no sandstorm; it's a cyclone."

He said rain and some hail followed in the wake of the storm.

Brown regrouped his six "running greyhounds" and two puppies, but lost most of his 52 chickens.

"It's the laying chickens is what is lost," Brown said. "I'd be better off losing the little ones."

Brown said he has a "little insurance" on his property but "not enough to put it back" into shape.

"I don't see how we got out without getting somebody killed," he said after surveying the damage in his neighborhood.

JEFFREY YOUNG, 14, was outside when he first sighted the storm.

"I saw it all coming," he said, "and got in the house. I saw trees lifted up and everything."

None of those who saw the storm referred to it as a "tornado."

No one reported seeing a funnel cloud, either.

A tornado warning, however, was issued Sunday afternoon and night by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

FORTY-ONE YEARS ago, in June 1938, a tornado did strike Stanton.

"It took a pretty good swath," said

Bob Bryan, a dispatcher for Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders. "It took up half of the town."

Bryan, 44, was 3 years old when he saw the "twister" travel through town from the northeast to the southwest.

He said the tornado of '38 passed over Stanton once "and then it came back."

Sunday afternoon's cyclone-like whirlwind reportedly developed near the Martin County courthouse in downtown Stanton and crossed the railroad tracks before it formed and picked up sand and fury.

The storm struck the city at 6:33 p.m. Sunday, according to the sheriff's department.

Damage from high winds, heavy rain reported in area

STANTON — A 4-year-old boy was injured and two homes and a trailer house destroyed about 6:33 p.m. Sunday when high winds struck the south side of town.

The storm damaged 12 other structures, a spokesman for the Martin County Sheriff's Department said today.

A mobile home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Valdez was turned upside-down, torn apart and scattered across the top of the couple's car.

Their 4-year-old son, Raymond Valdez Jr., was slightly injured.

A neighbor, Susie Martinez, who described the storm as "awful," and her husband, Isidro, drove the child to the hospital for treatment.

The boy was treated and released from Martin County Hospital for cuts to the head and bruises.

Mrs. Valdez and two other children were present with the boy in the mobile home when the storm struck.

However, none of the other family members were injured, according to official reports.

Officials said Monday there were no other reported injuries from the storm.

Law enforcement officials spent several hours Sunday night searching for a missing resident of a garage apartment destroyed by the storm.

Juan Miller, who lived in the apartment, later was located in Big Spring, where he had gone to visit earlier in the day.

Johnny Villa of Stanton said he was visiting his girl friend when the winds or whirlwind struck his home.

The small wooden structure he resided in was lifted from its cinder block foundation and scattered over a nearby pasture.

The Texas State Guard had 25 guardsmen from the 4th Military Police Group in Stanton, according to Col. Ken Dawson.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport today insisted that a tornado touched down about two miles south of the Martin County Courthouse and traveled west to east.

There were no reported sightings of a funnel cloud, however.

A spokesman for the Howard County sheriff's office said high winds blew over several signs as the storm moved through Big Spring Sunday night.

The south part of Big Spring was without electrical power for more than an hour after lightning struck a power line, an official for Texas Electric Service said.

Other towns, including Midland, reported varying amounts of rain, hail and wind Sunday night.

The Tall City received an official .77 inch of rain during Sunday's stormy weather. South, east and west Midland received .4 inch of rain, while north Midland reported .6 inch of rain, according to unofficial sources.

Iran softens its request for delay

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's revolutionary government, stung by Sen. Jacob Javits' resolution criticizing more than 200 firing squad executions in three months, told the United States to delay sending its new ambassador until they tried to soften the blow today.

Nonetheless, Javits was assigned a 24-hour police guard at his Manhattan apartment building because of threats against him and his wife by the Iranian government, New York police said.

The official Pars news agency said Sunday that the Javits' resolution represented "clear interference" in Iranian affairs, and that "continuation of such hostile acts of U.S. officials would make the Iranian government... revise its relations with the United States and limit them."

"The Iranian Foreign Ministry has asked the new U.S. Ambassador (Walter L.) Cutler to postpone his trip to Iran until such time as the political atmosphere between Iran and the United States is cleared."

However, Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi told a news conference today: "The Iranian government is aware that the executive and legislative branches are clearly separated in the United States and so the action of the U.S. Senate is not taken by us as an indication of official U.S. attitudes toward Iran."

"Our objection is directed at the action of the United States' Senate and as far as relations between the Iranian government and the U.S. gov-

"We have no need for the United States. It is they who need us, as a lucrative market for their goods as well as a source of oil for which their greed never ceases." — the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ernment are concerned, I received a letter from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance last week in which the U.S. government expressed its wish to have relations with Iran expanded in all spheres."

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime in February, called the U.S. government an "injured snake" because of his victory and blasted the Javits' resolution Sunday.

The resolution introduced by the New York Republican and passed Thursday said if the firing squad executions, which have reached 213, continue that relations between the United States and Iran would be endangered.

"Well, we hope to God that they are endangered, for what do we want to do with the United States," Khomeini told tribesmen who visited him in the holy city of Qom.

"We have no need for the United States. It is they who need us, as a lucrative market for their goods as well as a source of oil for which their greed never ceases."

Javits and his wife Marion also were summoned to appear before a revolutionary court, The New York Times quoted Iranian television as saying.

The charges were not spelled out, but presumably they stemmed from Mrs. Javits getting close to $70,000 in 1976 for helping a firm get a public relations contract with Iran Air. Her husband was a top member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the time.

Cutler, America's former ambassador to Zaire, was to replace William H. Sullivan, who had close working relations with the shah and left Iran April 4. The State Department in Washington had no immediate comment on the request to delay sending Cutler to Iran.

Islamic courts in central Isfahan and Qom sentenced nine policemen to jail terms and whippings Sunday for directing violence against anti-shah demonstrators.

At the same time, two Britons were freed after one of them was tried on charges wasting Iran's resources, corruption and involvement with the shah's SAVAK secret police.

Break in relations takes Nicaragua unaware

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Guerrillas killed eight national guardsmen in Leon and battled troops block in Jinotega as Mexico broke relations with the government of President Anastasio Somoza, accusing it of "horrendous genocide."

There was no immediate comment on the break in relations, which took Nicaraguan government officials by surprise.

Hundreds have been killed in almost daily battles since an uprising by Sandinista guerrillas was rushed by Somoza's national guard in September, and on Saturday eight guardsmen were ambushed and killed by guerrillas in Leon, 60 miles north of Managua.

Forty miles further north, more than 300 guerrillas took over Jinotega on Saturday night and by Sunday the national guard was attempting to re-take the town block by block, refugees reported.

One witness who asked not to be identified said that he could not say if there were any dead or wounded, "but one thing is certain: there is fighting in all parts of the city."

"We are bringing a call for help to the Red Cross in Managua that their branch in Jinotega urgently needs food and milk, especially for the children because food has become scarce," the witness added.

The highways leading to Jinotega, which has a population of 40,000, have been blocked by Somoza's troops, telephone lines have been broken and no one is permitted to enter or leave the city.

Mexico's break in diplomatic relations with Somoza's regime was announced by President Jose Lopez Portillo at a luncheon in Cancun, Mexico, honoring visiting Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo.

Lopez Portillo said he felt duty-bound to speak out after hearing

Carazo's description of events in Nicaragua "and the gravity of the situation."

"It was something that we knew about and we didn't want to believe — that in Nicaragua a hateful attack is being carried out against the Nicaraguan people, a horrendous genocide," Lopez Portillo said.

At a news conference later, Lopez Portillo said: "Mexico cannot withstand the permanence of any political regime that implies for the people that suffers it not only servitude but an unacceptable abuse."

Then calling on others to follow Mexico's lead in breaking with the Somoza government, Lopez Portillo added: "How we would like that other Latin American nations ratify this decision. And from here, from this forum, I am asking them to do it."

One immediate problem caused by the rupture was the fate of 38 persons who have received asylum at the Mexican Embassy. The group includes 13 men, 13 women and 12 small children. Many fled to the embassy fearing persecution from Nicaraguan authorities.

Opposition leader Rafael Cordova Rivas, freed from a Somoza jail last week, hailed Mexico's break in relations as a positive sign and said he hoped other governments would follow suit.

"We hope other countries will follow the same policy as the Mexican government because maybe this way the genocide will stop," Cordova Rivas said.

Cordova Rivas, one of three negotiators trying to mediate a solution to the Nicaraguan crisis peacefully last January, was arrested May 1 by authorities who accused him of subversive activities.

Burglary suspect fatally shot in Sunday chase

ODESSA — A burglary suspect was fatally shot early Sunday after getting caught in traffic in a commandeered car following a running gun battle with police.

The suspect, Aubrey Lee Owens, 27, of Odessa was shot by Jerry Davis, chief investigator for Ector County District Attorney John Green, according to reports.

Five Odessa police units responded to a burglar alarm at the Strike-It-Rich discount department store at 1:40 a.m. Sunday, Detective Lt. K.R. Jones said today.

Police were fired upon as they entered the store after having the manager unlock the door, Jones said.

When police returned fire, a man escaped the store by kicking out a plate glass window, Jones said.

The man ran down Eighth Street, exchanging fire with officers from the Odessa Police, Ector County Sheriff's office and Department of Public Safety who had been called in to assist, Jones said.

At Eighth and Grandview, the suspect commandeered a car with three passengers, placed a gun to the driver's head and told him to drive, Jones said.

While the car was caught in traffic, Davis, who apparently had heard about the incident on his police radio, approached the car, jerked the door open and exchanged fire with the suspect, Jones said.

Owens' shot missed Davis, but the suspect was fatally wounded, Jones said.

Davis recently was the key figure in the arrests of suspects now charged with murder in two Ector County cases. Both cases originally were investigated by other offices.

Owens was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital by Peace Justice Manuel Valles, who ordered

Jury resumes deliberations in White trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jurors who have deliberated the fate of Dan White for five days without reaching a verdict asked to rehear the testimony of a defense psychiatrist who said White suffered an "emotional collapse" when he killed Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

The seven-woman, five-man panel, which has deliberated more than 30 hours since receiving the case Wednesday, resumed discussions this morning.

The jurors appeared in the courtroom during an unusual Sunday session in San Francisco Superior Court.

They asked for a reading of the transcript of the testimony by Dr. Martin Blinder, who interviewed White three times earlier this year. Blinder said he was unable to say for certain that White was mentally ill when he shot Moscone and Milk last Nov. 27.

But Blinder said White was "more reflexive than reflective" when he fired the fatal shots. He also said White had told him that he had suffered bouts of depression about a half a dozen times a year since childhood.

White, 32, sat expressionless while the two hours of testimony were read. Outside, defense attorney Douglas Schmidt said White was "not doing too well" while awaiting the verdict. He declined to elaborate.

Schmidt and prosecutor Tom Norman have speculated the jury could be deadlocked on whether at least one of the killings was murder or manslaughter.

The prosecution asked for first-degree murder convictions, which could carry the death penalty.

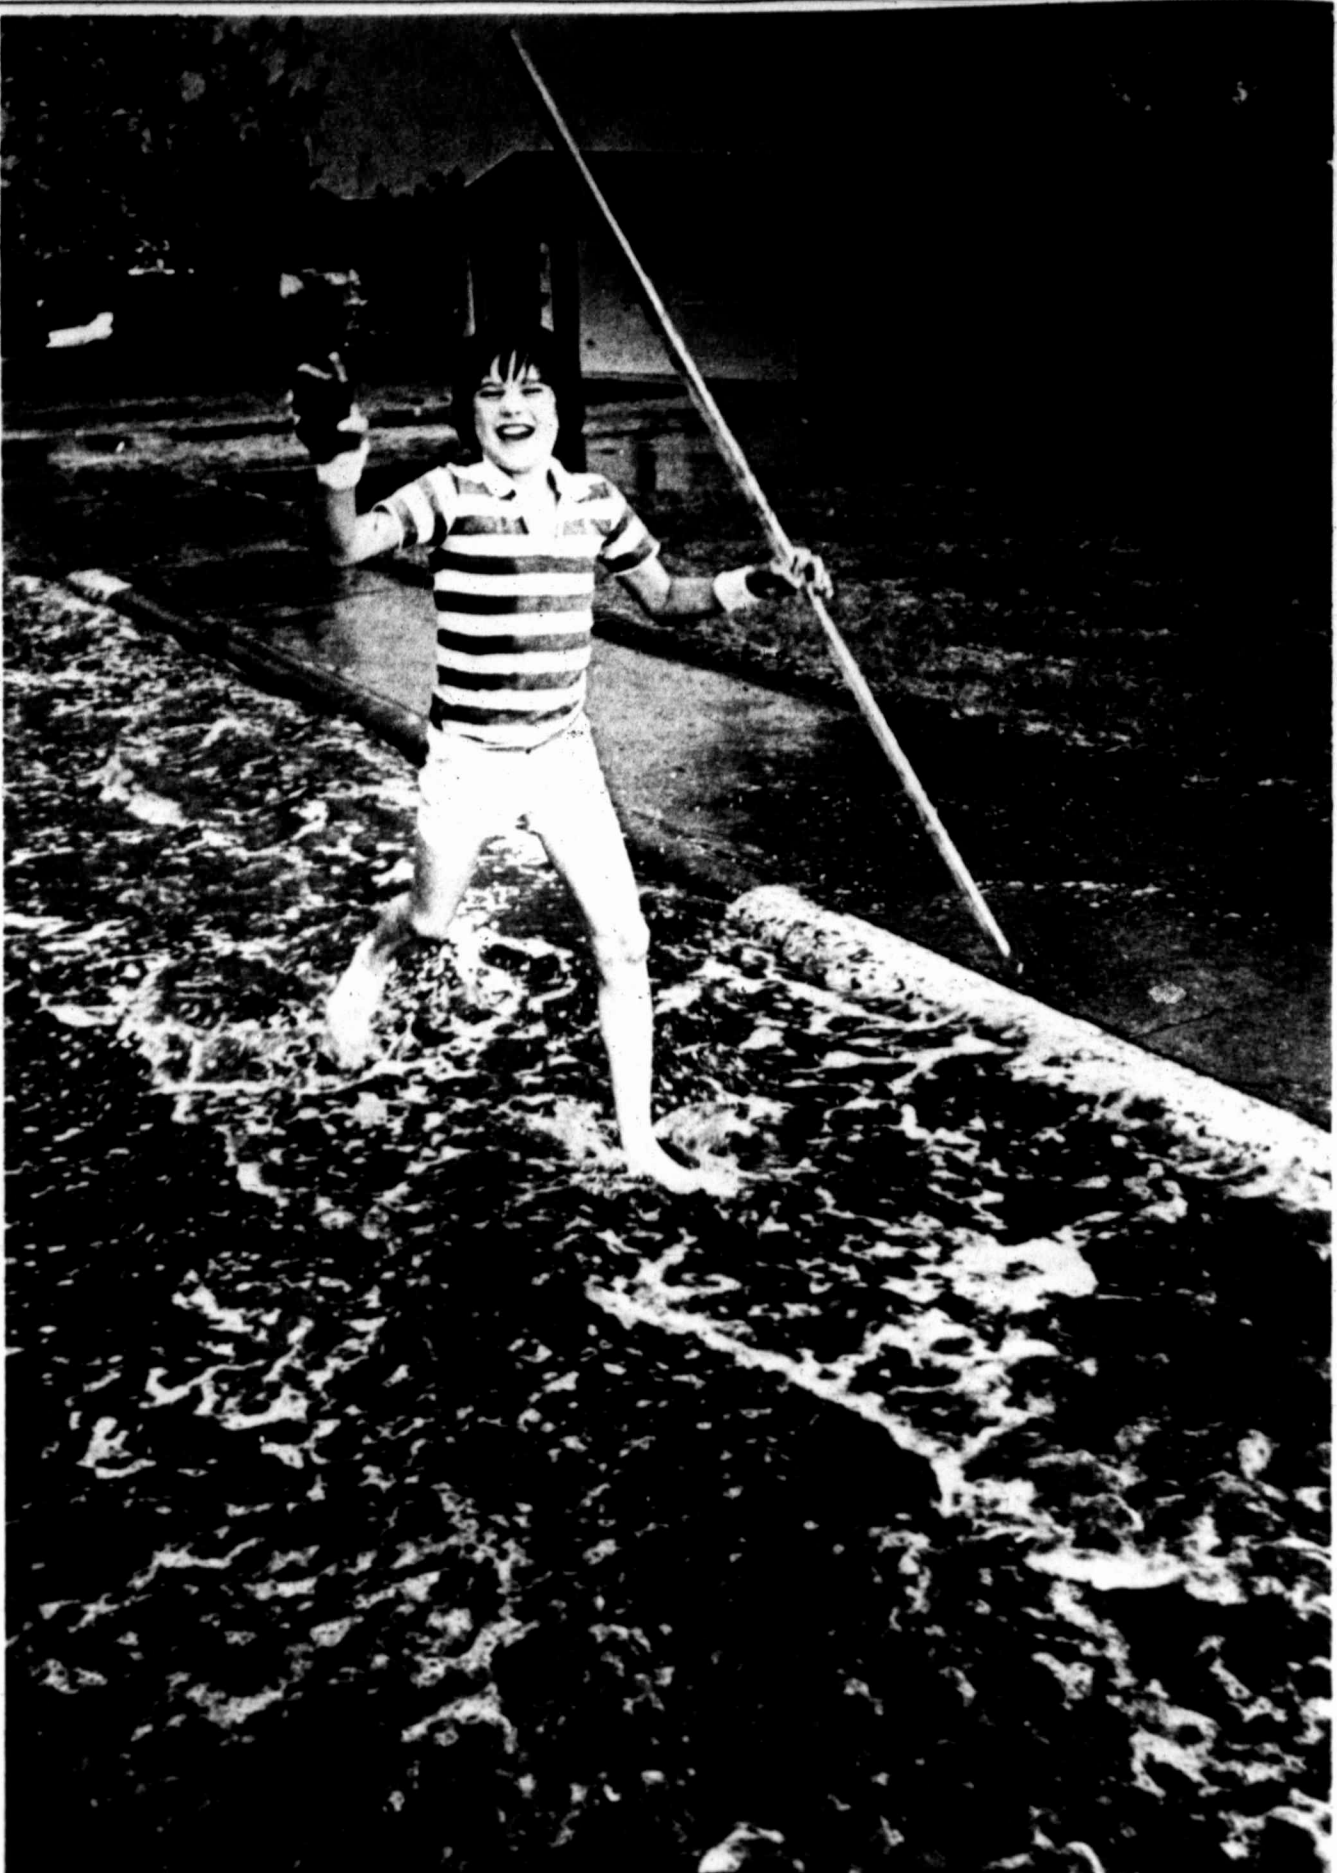

Suspect fatally shot in Odessa

The shooting will be presented to the grand jury for investigation, Jones said.

Odessa police said a sackful of guns had been gathered inside the store before they entered.

Police theorized today that two suspects witnesses claimed to have seen running from the scene actually were law enforcement officers in pursuit of the man, and that Owens was alone in the alleged burglary attempt.

Besides farmers, another group of Midlanders enjoys downpours on the order of Sunday's .77 inch of rainfall. Oil company executives give pessimistic outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil company executives gave a generally pessimistic assessment today of the nation's fuel supplies and said Americans must adjust to driving less, driving slower and paying more for gasoline.

Executives of five major oil companies appeared before a Senate Energy subcommittee to face questioning on whether there really is an oil shortage and, if so, what they are doing about it.

James H. DeNike, a vice president of Shell Oil Co., said his company's stocks of gasoline are "less than they should be at this time of year" and that the situation will get worse this summer.

DeNike said the United States "will continue to experience energy supply problems over the next several years."

W. J. Price, a senior vice president of Chevron U.S.A. Inc. said the demand for gasoline increased 5 percent over the past year, while supplies of crude oil dropped because of the unrest in Iran.

However, he said, Chevron will be able to supply about the same amount of gasoline this summer that it did last year, and that he was hopeful "May will have been a low point."

Both executives said the supply of oil on the international spot market, oil not already committed by contract, has dried up.

All the industry witnesses said that if shortages are to be lessened Americans must be persuaded to change their driving habits, including using car pools and obeying the 55-mph speed limit. The executives also appealed for a relaxation of government controls, saying U.S. oil must be allowed to rise to the world price.

Thailand plans to oust Cambodian refugees

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Nearly 40,000 Cambodian civilians and soldiers will be ousted from Thailand soon and sent back into embattled Cambodia, authorities said today.

The deputy governor of Chantaburi province, where the Cambodians fled in the wake of recent Vietnamese attacks, said in a telephone interview that Thai merchants were selling food and medicine to the group camped out on a forested plain near the border at Bung Chanang village.

He said they would be sent back into Cambodia "at another location along the border."

The group of 40,000 apparently was cut off from a southward march by Vietnamese forces which have stepped up their attacks in a race against the monsoon rains which have already begun. The rains make large-scale military operations difficult.

The soldiers in the refugee group, estimated to number less than a fifth of the total, are loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot whose resistance is now believed centered in the rugged southwestern area of Cambodia.

Thailand maintains it is neutral in the conflict but Vietnam and the new Phnom Penh regime have accused Bangkok of aiding Pol Pot's forces.

More than 50,000 recent Cambodian escapees are currently in Thailand — about 11,000 of them north of Chantaburi province in or around the Thai border town of Aranyaprathet. Most of the 11,000 are ethnic Chinese and may not be sent back into Cambodia.

Another 500 Cambodian soldiers and civilians of the Pol Pot side entered Thailand Sunday in the southeastern province of Trad.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia Dec. 25, ousted the pro-Chinese Pol Pot regime two weeks later and set up a pro-Hanoi government headed by Heng Samrin. Pol Pot guerrillas have been battling the Vietnamese and Heng Samrin forces ever since.

Despite heavy damage, funnel cloud not sighted

Injuries were suffered by the trailer's four occupants, Odessa police said today.

Police said several trees were uprooted by the high winds in Odessa.

Andrews reported "not enough rain to measure and very little wind." Lamesa reported .3 inch of rain, Stanton had "quite a bit of rain" and Rankin had "just a little shower," according to reports.

Big Lake reported about one inch of rain but no high winds and Crane reported a little hail and rain. Garden City reported an inch of rain and no high winds.

Midlanders can look forward to clearer skies and warmer temperatures Tuesday.

Skies should clearing late tonight, and be fair by Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Chance of showers will continue through tonight, the weatherman said, but he offered only a 20 likelihood on their actually happening.

Tonight's low should be near 60, with the high Tuesday in the mid-80s.

Sunday's high was a balmy 90 degrees before the front moved in, with the overnight low dipping to 62.

Southwest to begin non-stop Austin flights

Non-stop air service between Midland and Austin on Southwest Airlines will begin June 1, according to airline officials.

More than half of Southwest's daily departures to the state capitol will be non-stop according to Ken Hargrove, Southwest Airlines' Midland-Odessa station manager.

The non-stop flights to Austin should make additional seats available on the Dallas to Midland flights, said Hargrove.

With its June 1 flights, Southwest will have 11 daily (Monday — Friday) departures from the Permian Basin.

Carter touches on job program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging that black voters put him in the White House, President Carter says he'll take a second look at controversial plans to cut back on summer jobs for poor youths in 1980.

Addressing a predominantly black audience Sunday at Cheyney, Pa., Carter said flatly, "You and other black Americans are the reason that I am president."

Although his talk, a commencement address at once all-black Cheyney State College, focused on an appeal that blacks exercise their voting rights, he also touched on the jobs program.

A number of vocal and influential blacks were dismayed in January when the president sent Congress a budget calling for a $200 million cut-back in the summer jobs program in 1980. This would be done by making 14-year-olds ineligible for participation.

"We will take another look at our summer jobs program, which has been seriously troubled," Carter told his Pennsylvania audience. "The level of jobs in the future will depend on the effectiveness of the program."

Carter said a year-old task force headed by Vice President Walter F. Mondale will review the program, which will provide 1 million jobs this summer.

Returning to the central theme of his address, the president asked:

"How are we going to have the leadership to fight for equal opportunity and affirmative action in jobs, schools and housing if even the act of voting is too great an effort?"

"I ask you to join with me in overcoming fear about the future, in battling apathy, in fighting for change. One place to begin, for instance, is to keep the pressure on for equal opportunity in education and jobs."

A few dozen anti-nuclear demonstrators held up banners just outside the campus.

Although the protesters were not permitted on the college grounds, one person in the audience shouted, "Stop the nukes," when Carter called for Senate ratification of the new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

Public filing fewer forms, study to say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public got some relief from filling out federal forms recently, but administration officials fear the red-tape burden may be back on the rise.

Anti-fraud investigators trying to set up better "paper trails" to nab swindlers and new rules covering strip mining and toxic chemicals are a few of the reasons why the depth of federal paperwork is expected to increase.

The administration's war against paperwork appears to have reduced some of the millions of hours the public spends filling out forms, says a soon-to-be released study by the Office of Management and Budget.

The report estimates that by last December the government required an annual total of 800 million hours of work by the public to fill out the forms.

That was 14 percent less than required in January 1977, the month President Carter took office.

But most of the gains were made during the early months of the administration. The last three months of 1978 show only a 1 percent decline.

"It looks like it's going to turn around and go the other way," said a veteran of the anti-paperwork campaign, who asked not to be identified.

He put the score at "Us 2, Them 15."

The effort to control the number of federal forms is not being helped by Congress and other parts of the bureaucracy over which Carter has no authority in the paper fight, officials said.

Also, new rules, such as those covering strip mining and toxic chemicals, require new forms. And, federal investigators want to lay better "paper trails" to help auditors catch crooks.

Carter's budget office can veto new forms issued by line agencies, but papers put out by such independent regulatory bodies as the Federal Communications Commission are approved by the General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress.

The paperwork controlled by the OMB went down by 15 percent. The paperwork controlled by the GAO increased 9 percent, the report says.

Carter plans to seek legislation that would transfer the GAO's report-clearing responsibilities to the budget office.

'Deep reservation' about SALT exists

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the new strategic arms limitation agreement wins the backing of the nation's active military officers, it will be only with their "deep reservations," says retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt.

Zumwalt, an opponent of the arms treaty (SALT II) with the Soviet Union, said Sunday that retired military officers, some of whom have argued against the agreement, "are able to speak up, whereas the active military are muzzled."

Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff must decide between backing a presidential decision, such as the new treaty, or resigning, he said.

"I gather these members believe they should support (the treaty) despite their deep reservations about SALT II," he added.

Zumwalt, a member of the Joint Chiefs when he was chief of naval operations, was interviewed with two other treaty opponents on NBC's "Meet the Press." Also questioned were Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, and Paul Nitze, a former Defense Department official and now chairman of the Committee on the Present Danger, a group opposing the treaty.

Zumwalt's comments on the military's view of the pact were in response to suggestions by Defense Secretary Harold Brown that retired officers tend to exaggerate Soviet military strength.

Brown and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance appeared on the interview show last week to argue in favor of the agreement, which is to be signed next month by President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The treaty was the result of more than seven years of negotiations. It would expire in 1985.

Zumwalt said he has seen the position papers on the agreement sent to the president and defense secretary by the military leaders, and "I can tell you that if that series of written recommendations is submitted to the Congress...the senators will be shocked at how far their views have been watered down."

Garn told the interviewers that the treaty would permit the Soviet Union to attain nuclear superiority by 1985.

Asked if he would be willing to trade American nuclear forces for the Soviet arsenal, Garn replied "absolutely not" today.

But "by 1985, if they continue their present build-up, I would," he added.

Nitze, discussing the prospects of a new round of negotiations for a SALT III, said that "it's very uncertain as to what's going to happen after 1985."

high cost of groceries. Savings of that amount would result, he said, if the error rate in passing out stamps were cut in half...

That is a big order for the federal and state administrators responsible for the Food Stamp program, but that's what budget balancing is all about.

Administrators of the program in Texas are working diligently at this sort of thing, and with considerable success. It can and will work anywhere if the people in charge really get after it.

Congressional liberals have been crying that balancing the federal budget will take food from the mouths of the hungry. They should check with Mr. Coleman for one example of how federal deficits pile up for no other reason than slipshod administration of federal programs.

There is little doubt that American taxpayers would support whatever appropriation is necessary to assure that poor people are not left behind in the struggle to keep up with inflated food prices.

They will object, however, and rightly so, if Congress allows errors and laxity to spread the benefits beyond the limited segment of the population which really needs them.

The ready presumption that certain items in the federal budget are "uncontrollable" is the main reason why Congress regularly retreats from the goal of a balanced budget.

One of them, Rep. E. Thomas Coleman of Kansas, has identified specific ways that the program could get by without the additional $650 million and still meet its commitment to help the genuinely needy cope with the

INSIDE REPORT: Anti-U.S. propaganda from Russia heard in Turkey

Anti-U.S. propaganda from Russia heard in Turkey

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Echoes of incendiary anti-American propaganda beamed into Iran from the Soviet Union just before the fall of the shah are now being heard in Turkey, leading presidential advisers to this chilling conclusion: Moscow believes Turkey is ripe for destabilization.

agreement, replacing bases lost in Iran. But Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher returned from his recent rescue mission to Ankara with very little progress toward agreement. It is at this bleak moment that the Kremlin has unlimbered its propaganda guns used to such good effect in Iran.

The propaganda zeroes in on the new counterterrorism "fascists" of the West. "NATO is the main supporter of the fascist escalation in the country," a Romanian-based clandestine transmitter purrured last week. "NATO is behind the murderous fascist dens, the counterterrorism organization and those aspiring to a fascist military coup." Three days later, a U.S. soldier stationed in Turkey was murdered — the second such killing in a week.

Two years ago, Jimmy Carter had little expectation of conditions in Turkey presaging the end of Harry Truman's great post-war experiment. Carter had inherited an ideal safety-valve from the Ford administration

ORGANIZE A RALLY AND I'LL COME AND TALK IN A MOMENT

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Social Security taxes have skyrocketed over the past year and are continuing to soar upward. This is supposed to prevent the Social Security system, which most Americans count on for their retirement checks, from going broke.

There are, however, several leaks in the trust fund — legal cracks through which money is slowly but steadily draining. If the leaks go unplugged, they will cost the system billions of dollars in years to come.

A draft report by the General Accounting Office, due for release this summer, cites the flow of Social Security payments to beneficiaries abroad as a potentially enormous drain. The Social Security Administration currently pays out $624 million a year to 304,000 beneficiaries living outside the United States.

Only about a third of these recipients are U.S. citizens. The rest are foreigners who lived and worked here long enough to qualify for Social Security pensions. The greatest number have gone home to Canada, Mexico and Italy.

This is all perfectly legal, but difficulties arise in supervising the claims of foreign recipients. Obviously, the Social Security Administration can't afford to send investigators all over the world checking on beneficiaries, even if the foreign governments were willing to cooperate.

Another costly provision of the Social Security law gives survivor benefits not only to widows for as long as they live, but to any children under 18 (or 22 in the case of students). The GAO cites one typical example: "It is common for young Filipino women to marry and take care of retired men in exchange for future financial security. The young women become impregnated or adopt a child to become eligible for benefits."

This practice is reflected in the statistics: While only 40 percent of Social Security beneficiaries overall are survivors or dependents, 75 percent of those in Mexico belong in these categories, 71 percent in the Philippines.

Then there are the payments to illegal aliens and their families. The number of illegal aliens working in this country has been estimated at 3.8 million; though many do not file with Social Security for fear of detection, no one knows how many managed to get away with it and qualify for pensions. "Aliens earning illegally could increase costs of overseas benefits dramatically," the GAO report notes.

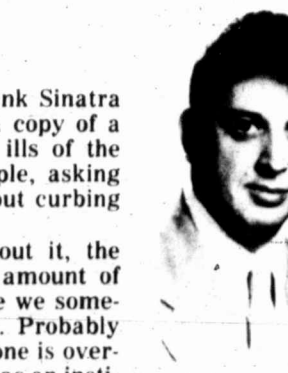

While for most Americans, Social Security benefits are only a supplemental or bare-survival pension, in countries with low standards of living a monthly check in U.S. dollars represents real social security. And the qualification minimum can make it an unbelievable bargain: The GAO study found some illegal aliens, for example, contributing as little as $188 to the trust fund and getting a return on this "investment" of as much as $10,800.

According to a random survey by the GAO investigators, "up to 35 percent of (overseas) beneficiaries could be collecting on wages earned illegally." The problem of Social Security payments abroad will become increasingly serious if steps are not taken. In the past decade, the number of beneficiaries overall has risen 39 percent; the figure for recipients overseas shows a 50 percent increase.

CHARLEY REESE Yes Frank, the press is only a human institution

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Frank Sinatra has mailed a letter and a copy of a very good article on the ills of the fourth estate to 2,000 people, asking them to do something about curbing the power of the press.

There's no question about it, the press does have a great amount of power. I would even agree we sometimes use it irresponsibly. Probably the worst thing we have done is oversell the public on the press as an institution.

I have as much interest in the problem as Sinatra. Without the support of the American people, there is no way the press can remain free. The only "coin" we have with which to purchase that support is our credibility.

Let us dismiss Sinatra as just a case of sour grapes, let me quote one of the greatest American newspapermen who ever lived, H.L. Mencken, the sage of Baltimore, once said, "The average American newspaper has the morals of a prostitute, the courage of a rat, and the taste of a celluloid valentine."

That is not exactly the image we like to portray. We like to convince people that we are wise, sincere, fearless, dedicated to truth, justice and the American Way of Life.

To be blunt, Mencken's description is more accurate. We are, for one thing, a business and our chief business is making money. As John Connally loves to point out, we frequently outperform the oil industry when you measure it as a return on investment.

Secondly, we are primarily in the entertainment business. We peddle our product, whether it's the New York Times or a weekly in Podunk, by appealing to the interests — or at least what we hope are the interests — of the people we are trying to sell.

Over the years we have managed to convince the public that the words "news," and "important" are synonymous, but I can assure you they are not. News is first and foremost whatever we say is news and sometimes it is trivial and insignificant. The only thing it always is, we hope, is interesting.

Insaf as having an influence on the public, it is this — our ability to decide what is and what is not to be considered news — that is our real power.

For example, the anti-war movement during the Vietnam era would have died at birth had a majority of news decision makers chosen to consider it "not news." Quite literally, the Vietnam War was lost when a majority of the leadership in the American press decided it was lost.

Another myth we have created is objectivity. We even fool ourselves on this one. We foster the belief that the news is fathered and presented on a strictly objective basis, meaning neutral and disinterested, when in reality, the news business is a subjective business from start to finish.

All of the decisions involved in the production of news are subjective. Is this news or not news?

Being subjective, these decisions cannot help but be influenced not only by custom and trade definitions but also by peer pressure, personal backgrounds and beliefs, biases, and even ambition. You can find in the American press plenty of examples of biases, unfairness, sensationalism, exaggeration, mis-reporting of facts, double standards and hypocrisy.

In short, the press is a human institution. The sensible approach to take is the same one Thomas Jefferson took. Recognize the flaws. Read and look with your mind in gear. Don't waste time looking for ink-stained messiahs. But also recognize that without this warty, brash, obnoxious but free press, it is a dead, 100 percent certainty that you will end up living in a totalitarian state.

We in the press may not be able to save you, but without us, there's no saving any of us. We are one of the maladies of freedom which can't be cured except by killing the patient. So be careful, Frank.

The House leadership should have known that there was only one fool-proof way to guarantee passage of that rationing plan — attach it to a congressional pay raise.

No congressman will ever wait in a gas line — that's what the staff is for.

S.S. taxes soar; funds dwindle

WASHINGTON — Social Security taxes have skyrocketed over the past year and are continuing to soar upward.

There are, however, several leaks in the trust fund — legal cracks through which money is slowly but steadily draining.

This is all perfectly legal, but difficulties arise in supervising the claims of foreign recipients.

According to a random survey by the GAO investigators, "up to 35 percent of (overseas) beneficiaries could be collecting on wages earned illegally."

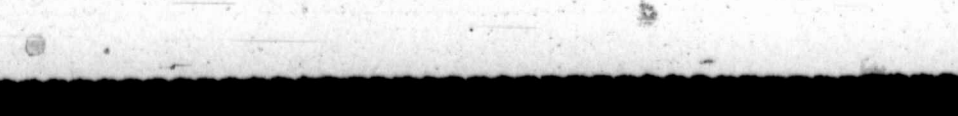

Another potential rip-off lies in the area of benefits to students — children of retirees, disabled or deceased workers who are between the ages of 18 and 22, are unmarried and attend school full time.

Because the student benefits are not tied to the academic year or to the actual cost of the beneficiary's education, many students receive benefits that exceed their expenses, including payment during summer vacation.

The student payment system also relies on the honesty of the recipients to determine their eligibility. But a sample study of students in Los Angeles County and upstate New York found that 86 percent of those who attended school only part time, or had actually dropped out, had failed to notify Social Security they were no longer eligible for benefits.

So, the Soviets are using their escalated radio broadcasts to finish the work insensibly started by the U.S. Congress with its arms embargo and systematically reduce American ties with Turkey.

Youths die in Indian takeover

RED LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Federal officials have agreed to replace the Bureau of Indian Affairs superintendent on the embattled Red Lake Indian Reservation after a day and night of shooting that left two youths dead and the small community of Red Lake in ruins.

An agreement was reached late Sunday between federal authorities and leaders of a group of dissident Indians to remove Roger Jourdain as president of the Red Lake Tribal Council and Celestine Maus as Bureau of Indian Affairs superintendent on the reservation in northern Minnesota where some 3,000 Chippewa Indians live.

Shortly before the agreement was announced, the 23 FBI agents who had spent the day near the reservation in what the FBI called "support positions" were withdrawn to Bemidji, about 30 miles south of the reservation.

Forrest Gerard, assistant secretary for Indian affairs in the Interior Department, agreed to appoint Joe Head, tribal operations officer for the tribal council, as acting reservation superintendent.

The BIA also was ordered to expedite a new election for tribal council chairman, treasurer, secretary and eight district representative posts, said Tom Crawford, editor of the Bemidji Pioneer, who was present when the agreement was reached.

The town of Red Lake was quiet Sunday afternoon and evening following sporadic gunfire the previous night.

About 100 teen-agers rummaged through the burned-out buildings, but no further gunshots were reported.

No arrest warrants were issued during the incident, said David Brumble, special agent in charge of the Minneapolis FBI office who spent Sunday on the reservation border.

The siege erupted at dawn Saturday with the takeover of the local law enforcement center, which was burned to the ground along with an adjacent garage, two grocery stores, the post office and the homes of Jourdain and one of his supporters. Four police officers who had been locked up in the jail were released unharmed before shooting began.

Solar water heater to be on display here

A solar water heater operation currently on a promotional tour of the country is scheduled for a Tuesday stop in Midland.

The display, sponsored by State Industries' Solar Coach, will be at Dellwood Mall.

A 28-foot van will be parked at the commercial center with a solar water heating mechanism and taped explanations of how the heater works.

According to the sponsors, the system can "pay for itself" in five to eight years with energy savings.

Anthony coins leaked early

WASHINGTON (AP) — Samples of the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin are being exchanged prematurely and Rep. Frank Annunzio wants the Justice Department to find the leak and stop it.

Annunzio, D-Ill., said a preliminary check by his staff turned up at least four ways security may have been breached and the coins put in unauthorized circulation.

First known transplant of small intestine fails

NEW YORK (AP) — An attempt to perform what doctors believe would have been the first known intestine transplant from living donor has failed after an infection forced physicians to remove the donated tissue.

Sara Fanelli, 56, of New Rochelle, N.Y., was in critical condition Sunday at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, according to Dr. M. H. Khalid Butt, director of transplantation services.

During a 10-hour operation Wednesday, surgeons implanted two feet of small intestine donated by Mrs. Fanelli's twin sister, Marie Grim.

Mailbox Improvement Week is today through Saturday, and Postmaster D.E. Holster urged all local customers to paint and repair unempt or damaged mail receptacles in town and on rural routes.

Customers should be sure their boxes provide adequate protection to the mail and are easily reached by carriers to help speed collection and delivery of their mail, Holster said.

The Postmaster recalled that a man named Ira F. Collins was among the first to show interest in improving the appearance and security of the mailbox. On April 29, 1963, he filed an application with the U.S. Patent Office for a two-part, cylindrical mail receptacle. It consisted of a detachable scoop with a weather-proof outer casing, and a metal flag that could be raised to indicate when mail was to be collected.

Until Collins came along, Holster said, many makeshift receptacles — including tin cans nailed to trees — were used as mailboxes, particularly after rural mail service began in 1896.

Today, he said, a variety of approved commercial mailbox designs are available for use with decorative posts, and those who prefer a custom-made mailbox may check with the Midland Post Office to make sure it meets specifications and requirements.

During mailbox improvement week, residents should examine their mailboxes to determine whether they have been damaged by weather or vandalism and should make any repairs or improvements, according to Holster.

Lynda Robb seeks support in presidential appointment

By SOLL SUSSMAN AP Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lynda Bird Robb, winding up her first full week as chairwoman of the President's Advisory Committee for Women, says she knows her appointment did not please everyone.

"I recognize the fact that I may not be everybody's choice, but I want to work with them. I want their input," she said. "I want to be inclusive and not exclusive. I want to be a bridge."

Mrs. Robb's appointment to the post vacant since President Carter fired Bella Abzug has drawn a "wait-and-see" response from some feminist leaders and outright criticism from others.

The wife of Virginia Lt. Gov. Charles Robb and daughter of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson had campaigned for the Equal Rights Amendment and participated in a women and credit task force, but she had few ties with the women's movement.

Between bites of beef barbecue sandwiched into a tight schedule Friday, Mrs. Robb said she consulted women's leaders across the political spectrum including Mrs. Abzug - before the appointment was announced May 9.

"I want everybody's support," Mrs. Robb said in a brisk tone. She refuted any notions that her credentials as a feminist might not be strong enough for the job. The term "feminist" has a definition wide enough to include any supporter of women and women's rights, she said.

"Some of my best male friends are feminists," she said. Get-acquainted sessions have taken up part of the first week on the job. She found time for two trips to the White House, once for the president's briefing on the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty and another to see Carter sign an executive order on women and business.

The biggest chunk of time has gone for media interviews, and Mrs. Robb said she would rather be doing other things.

Now, Mrs. Robb said, she needs to spend time selecting staff for the reorganized committee, meeting other committee members and learning more about the issues. Requests for speaking engagements from women's groups across the country have started to arrive.

The 35-year-old woman was not quite sure she was adjusting to the sudden change in her life's pace and her new visibility.

"I remember how peaceful," she said before her voice trailed off for a moment. "But it's a challenge. As mother would say, 'Think of it as a great adventure.'"

Hudson later said he had "trusted" Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, who offered the amendment. But he said the amendment didn't do what Ceverha said it did.

Ceverha's amendment would have required all women receiving abortions, as well as their husbands or — in the case of minors — parents, to receive detailed information on fetal development.

A woman would be shown pictures and given written details on "the probable physical character of the unborn child at the time an abortion is contemplated."

Hudson's original bill would have provided birth control information but guaranteed that a woman would not lose her welfare benefits for refusing to accept family planning services.

Family plan bill defeated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A bill making free family planning services available to women on welfare was defeated Friday in the House after an anti-abortion amendment was added to it.

House members rejected the bill, 28-101, and the sponsor, Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, blamed the abortion amendment which he had agreed to accept.

Hudson later said he had "trusted" Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, who offered the amendment. But he said the amendment didn't do what Ceverha said it did.

DEAR ABBY

Put safety first

DEAR READERS: No problems today. Instead, I am devoting my entire column to tips that could save your life.

Let's pretend you're a contestant on "Hollywood Squares," and you are asked the following question:

"More people are killed every year by (a) tornadoes, (b) cyclones, (c) lightning."

If you said, "(c) lightning," you would be right.

Michael Mogil of the National Weather Service says that most deaths caused by lightning could have been avoided if only common sense had been used. But common sense is not as common as most people think it is.

Lightning occurs during thunderstorms, so the logical time to start protecting yourself is when you see the storm clouds gathering.

As a general rule, avoid high places, metal and water!

If you are outdoors, seek shelter in a house or other large building. (Steer clear of sheds or small buildings in isolated areas.)

If you are on the golf course, and can't reach a building, first drop your golf club, then head for your car — assuming the car is not a convertible, it will act as a "cage" to protect you. (The metal picks up the lightning, conducts it around you and into the ground.) Stay in the car. Keep windows and doors (and sun roof) shut.

Never stand under a tall tree. If lightning strikes the tree, electricity can run down the trunk, through the roots, into the ground and into your body.

If you are caught in a flat, open field, bend down and put your hands on your knees. Do not lie down on the ground. Maintain MINIMUM contact with the ground.

If you are inside, close windows and doors. Lightning can strike through an open window.

Don't take a bath during a thunder storm.

If electricity strikes the plumbing system, it can be conducted into the tub. Don't use the telephone unless it is absolutely necessary. Electricity can travel through the telephone wires.

If you are jogging, stop and get out of the wide-open spaces or you can run into trouble. You are far safer indoors as long as the doors and windows are closed. Most deaths and injuries from lightning occur outdoors; almost half of all people killed by lightning are engaged in outdoor recreation.

Don't rely on rubber-soled shoes to protect you. Lightning can carry a volt of up to 100 million volts. Rubber soles are insignificant as an insulator.

It's also not true that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. The conditions that attract the lightning bolt in the first place can attract it again.

Have a safe summer. Love, ABBY

Economics affects ability of children in schools

WASHINGTON (AP) - A child's ability to do well in school is affected by poverty, proficiency in English and the educational level of the parents, the government reported Saturday.

A new Census Bureau report shows that one in five of America's poor white 14- to 17-year-olds was behind in school in 1976, about the same as black children of the same age.

But the proportion of children behind in school has declined greatly since 1950, the Census Bureau says. In 1976, 6 percent of 10-year-olds were behind, compared to 16 percent of 10-year-olds in 1950.

The report shows that children whose parents did not graduate from high school had the most trouble keeping up.

Children begin falling behind their peers in the first grade, the report shows. "Boys seem to have more trouble than girls keeping up, though that gap has narrowed since 1950."

Figures show that in 1976, 11 percent of 15-year-old boys and 8 percent of girls the same age were behind in school.

'Human error' was not mishap's major factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are saying "human error" was not a major factor in the Three Mile Island nuclear accident. Instead, they are blaming equipment malfunctions and misleading control-board readings for the near-catastrophe.

Congressional sources said a task force investigating the accident concluded that operators were unable to halt the nation's worst nuclear accident because their instruments conveyed data that was either wrong or hard to interpret.

Those conclusions are in contrast with previous contentions by some Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials that operator error played a major role.

The task force report, the first congressional assessment of what went wrong at the nuclear plant located near Harrisburg, Pa., was scheduled for presentation today to a House Interior subcommittee.

A senior member of the investigating team, who asked not to be identified, said the central findings of the task force, headed by Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., are that:

—Control room operators acted reasonably in light of the information available to them during the first hours of the March 28 accident and followed prescribed procedures.

—A pressure relief valve stuck in the open position was the single most serious malfunction, but conflicting information reaching the control room delayed a diagnosis of the problem for more than two hours.

—An emergency core cooling system that had turned on automatically was throttled back dramatically, contributing to reactor overheating, but was done so based on confusing instrument readings and cannot be considered "operator error."

—Temperature in the reactor core soared to a dangerous 2000 degrees Fahrenheit during the first two hours of the accident but control room monitors were inadequate for measuring this high a temperature directly.

Nuclear foes demonstrate at Metropolitan Edison plant

READING, Pa. (AP) — Carrying placards and shouting slogans in front of an empty building, 2,000 foes of nuclear energy demonstrated at the headquarters of Metropolitan Edison Co., part-owner of the crippled Three Mile Island atomic plant.

"First you try to kill us, then you want to bill us," the demonstrators shouted Sunday, unleashing helium-filled balloons into the air to symbolize the release of radioactivity.

The Met Ed building, closed Sunday, was roped off and guarded by 50 state and city police during the 40-minute protest, organized by a Harrisburg-based anti-nuclear group called Three Mile Island Alert.

The demonstrators gathered in a park about two miles away and marched to the Met Ed building, where leaders read a list of demands.

They included the dismissal of federal Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, the assumption by Met Ed stockholders of costs arising from the nuclear accident and the repeal of the Price-Anderson Act, a federal nuclear-liability insurance statute.

The demands were presented to state Rep. Harold L. Brown, D-Reading, who participated in the march and who said he would give them to Met Ed president Walter Creitz.

In another development related to the Three Mile Island controversy, the presidential commission probing the accident awaits congressional au-

—Two valves on an auxiliary water pump system that mistakenly had been left closed when they should have been open contributed little to the severity of the accident.

"Given the information available, the control room operators did what they were supposed to do, they acted reasonably," said the task force official.

"They weren't highly trained engineers. They weren't the most profound people in the world. And they weren't prepared for this type of thing," he said.

"We're emphasizing design error more than human error."

He said a sophisticated nuclear engineer, presented with the same information, might have realized that the reactor core was deprived of cooling water and headed for a possible meltdown.

According to the investigators, four licensed operators were in the control room at 4 a.m. March 28 when the accident started. Within two hours, 10 operators were present.

A light on the control panel incorrectly indicated that a pressure relief valve which had opened to relieve pressure from the reactor's primary cooling system had closed.

Instead, the valve stayed open for two hours and twenty minutes — allowing radioactive steam and water to continue to seep out of the pressurized reactor system and robbing the core of needed coolant.

Untrained to interpret other conditions that could have led them to suspect the valve was stuck open and allowing cooling water to escape as steam, the operators did not realize the uranium fuel core subsequently heated to about 2000 degrees and that the emergency cooling system needed to be on at full force, the report said.

Thus the failure to keep the emergency cooling system at full flow cannot be considered "operator error," the task force concluded.

thorization to subpoena witnesses and to take testimony under oath.

The commission was supposed to have conducted extensive hearings in Middletown last week, but limited its activities to one session Saturday during which local officials and residents expressed concerns.

In Washington, the Senate on Thursday approved legislation to give the panel oath-taking and subpoena authority. The House, however, has not acted.

Meanwhile, Gov. Dick Thornburgh's press secretary says a preliminary investigation shows the nuclear accident is unrelated to the mysterious deaths of 19 cattle within five miles of the plant.

"So far only one of the carcasses has been brought into the state Department of Agriculture labs, and they have found no detectable radiation at all in the carcass," Paul Critchlow said in a telephone interview Sunday.

But the state Agriculture Department will be taking samples of grass and blood samples of live animals to check for possible radiation residues, he said.

The series of cattle deaths in Bainbridge began April 3, less than a week after the accident, when one of Clair Hoover's cows gave birth to a still-born calf. A short time later the cow died. Since then, Hoover has reported the deaths of 12 calves and seven cows.

Senate's 'Killer Bees' still in flight

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It will take more than Texas Rangers on their trail and threats to remove them from office to flush Texas' "Killer Bees" senators from their undercover hives, claims one absentee.

"We can stay gone as long as we want to," Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, said Sunday as he and 11 other missing senators began their third day of disrupting Senate action and avoiding arrest.

Their 19 colleagues — minus some with excused absences — convened briefly Sunday before adjourning without a quorum.

State police and Texas Rangers made one arrest in their statewide search. But the capture became embarrassing when officers discovered they had grabbed Jones' brother by mistake.

"It's not likely we're going to be found until we return on our own," Senator Jones said after phoning a newspaper reporter. "We'll all return together whenever that is. It could be Monday morning; it could be Tuesday at midnight."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby ordered the dozen lawmakers arrested Friday morning after they boycotted a Senate session. The chamber needs 21 senators to conduct business. Unless two absentees are found, the Senate can do nothing.

Jones said 10 absentees were together on Friday and were talking of going to Mexico when he left them.

Others missing — all Democrats — were Chet

Brooks of Pasadena, Ron Clower of Garland, Lloyd Doggett of Austin, Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio, Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, Carl Parker of Port Arthur, Bill Patman of Ganado, A.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston, Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi and Bob Vale of San Antonio.

"It could very well be that all of them are in Mexico except me," Jones said. "The great possibility is that Brooks and Longoria were in Mexico early Friday afternoon."

The Killer Bees — dubbed after they tried to kill several Hobby-backed bills — want to block passage of a presidential primary measure that they say would benefit Texas John Connally and conservative Democratic state officeholders.

The Hobby-supported election bill would hold a March 1980 presidential primary separate from May general party primaries. Critics claim it would encourage cross-over voting by Democrats eager to vote for Connally, who was elected Texas governor three times as a Democrat.

The Democratic lieutenant governor said Sunday the rebels could be removed from office or refused access to the Senate floor.

"I'm just saying this is a recourse that is available," Hobby said of possibly removing them. Republican Gov. Bill Clements was out of the state Sunday, and Hobby was acting governor.

The lieutenant governor said the state constitution provides ways of "filling vacancies in office."

Usually an officeholder's death or resignation would create a vacancy, he said, "but those are not the only ways offices can become vacant."

He added he thought it "unlikely" that the Senate would vote not to seat the missing members upon their return. "That's a possibility that exists."

Jones confirmed that Hobby has threatened through intermediaries to throw the Killer Bees out of office.

"He started threatening to remove us from the Senate, to lock us out of the Senate and other things that seem ridiculous," Jones added.

State police and Texas Rangers lack authority to arrest any of the hiding senators, said Jones, assistant dean of the South Texas College of Law.

"It puts them (state police) in an embarrassing position if they find us. I'm not going to go (with officers)," he said defiantly. "Most of us are lawyers and we have not broken any penal codes of the state. We're not crooks."

Some of the AWOL senators' peers felt otherwise. Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan and Senate dean because of seniority, held an unprecedented Sunday meeting of his State Affairs Committee to effectively kill legislation sponsored by the absentee members.

"It's the people of Texas who are tired of the games that are going on here," Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, said during the brief Sunday session before Moore's committee meeting.

"Almost one day a week this entire session has been expended by members of this particular group (Killer Bees) in chubbing or mini-filibustering," added Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth. "They've usurped the Senate's time by an excruciated exploitation of the rules of the Senate."

Most of the dozen senators also have been called the "Tennis Shoe Gang" after repeatedly wearing sneakers for lengthy team filibusters against several pieces of legislation.

Most absentees hold relatively moderate political viewpoints compared to the majority of conservative senators. They have waited all session for a showdown with Hobby on the presidential primary.

They have accused Hobby of changing Senate rules in midstream to speed passage of the controversial measure.

"Any attempts to characterize the chair's actions as 'changing the rules' is simply a sham to legitimize the shirking of their public duties by the 12 absent senators," Hobby retorted in a statement Sunday.

The threats and criticism apparently have not swayed the group.

"It's been a great deal of fun," Jones told one reporter.

Americans don't realize need for conservation, Libyan says

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Americans don't seem to realize "energy conservation is a challenge to all humanity" says Libya's United Nations representative, who warned higher oil prices could be expected soon.

Mansur Rashid Kikhia said Sunday that the United States must change its trade policies toward Libya and prop up the falling dollar in order to "stave off expected increases in the price of imported crude."

"We would like to see the United States use the energy it purchases with much more wisdom, at least until another alternative can be found. We can't waste our oil, which is our main source of exports, for a super-affluent society," he said.

The continuing rise in OPEC oil prices, he said, was necessary because of the decline of the dollar.

He said the United States continues to buy Libya's oil but refuses to sell many items to the African nation. And he said that refusal stemmed from "pressure from the pro-Zionists."

"What is happening is that we take the U.S. dollar for the oil they purchase and then we spend it with the Japanese or Germans because the United States will not encourage more exports to us," said Kikhia.

LULAC director takes parting shot

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Ruben Bonilla, the outgoing state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, fired a parting salvo at Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton at the Hispanic organization's state convention here.

Delegates elected Raul Vasquez of Austin Sunday to succeed Bonilla. Vasquez defeated Ray Ramirez of San Antonio who had the backing of Bonilla.

Noeni Villarreal of Austin was selected as the deputy state director.

A resolution that accused Hobby and Clayton of "political-hypocrisy" in supporting a separate presidential primary bill passed without dissent.

Bonilla was critical of the role played by Hobby and Clayton in support of the bill he charged was designed to help the presidential aspirations of former Texas Gov. John Connally.

"Here you have two supposed fiscal conservatives supporting a $4 million piece of legislation," said Bonilla. "This bill is really nothing more than a Connally bill, which makes a deserter of the Democratic party the main beneficiary of a Democratic state's policy."

Another resolution passed by the convention attacked that primary bill as an "underhanded ploy to dilute the Mexican-American vote."

Delegates also expressed strong support for the "Killer Bees," a group 12 state senators who have remained absent from the Senate in an effort to kill the primary bill. And the delegates urged Gov. Bill Clements to issue a statement opposing the primary bill.

Proposals by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen to create an office of Hispanic affairs in the White House and to provide $45 million to public education agencies in border counties with high concentrations of alien school children were endorsed by the convention.

Another resolution supported expanded bilingual education programs in Texas public school systems.

Night screamer roams area

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — George Washington once slept here, but he might find it harder nowdays. A strange something is at large, wailing or screaming nightly a mile from the ancestral home of the Father of His Country.

For nine noisy months, the mystery creature has haunted a patch of woods surrounded by $150,000 homes near Mount Vernon, wrecking the peace and defying spotting and identification.

Local teen-agers have caught its act on tape. It goes something like: "oohkra-ah," or "ee-vaakgoo-ah," or even "aaooohauoa-ah-oo."

The Mount Vernon Monster, some call it. Others, Bigfoot. More guesses: hoot owls, loud frogs, a radio with a stuck button, wild boars, a prankster with a bull-horn, the ghost of George Washington, the ghost of George Washington's pigs.

"One person suggested a peacock," said George Stickman, Fairfax County game warden, who has ruled out bears, bobcats and other fauna found in the vicinity.

The peacock theory may not be too exotic. Experts at the nearby Mason Neck Wildlife Refuge said peafowl are often kept as yard pets in the South. One could have flown the coop and fluttered to Mount Vernon.

"They have a loud, penetrating cry, almost like a scream," said John Aldrich, a retired Fish and Wildlife researcher.

Mike Morgan of the National Zoo said the birds used to escape frequently when allowed to roam the grounds.

Whatever it may be, the creature is elusive as well as vocal. It has foiled police watches, flyovers by a U.S. Park Police helicopter, volunteer youth patrols and the determined efforts of warden Stickman.

One resident, Thelma Crisp, says she spotted the Monster. She described it as a creature about six feet tall which lumbered into the woods after being sighted.

Could it be a Bigfoot, trying to reach headquarters of the Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, 15 miles away?

"If it's Bigfoot, and there's proof," said a spokesman, "we'd protect it."

Amish seen as polio source

By TIM PETTIT

REEDSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — State officials are worried that the Amish buggies clip-clopping down the streets of Reedsville may be bringing an invisible polio virus with them.

Polio, now considered rare in the United States, erupted first among the Kishacoquillas Valley's 1,500 Amish, most of whom initially shunned the polio vaccine.

But just last week, a woman in nearby Yeager town, who had no contact with the Amish, came down with nonparalytic polio.

The 36-year-old unidentified woman became the fourth polio victim this year in central Pennsylvania and only the fifth case nationwide since January.

There were 1,536 cases reported in Pennsylvania in 1954, before the Salk vaccine came into general use. Cases have averaged less than one a year since 1968.

Health officials, alarmed that the virus — which can cause paralysis, meningitis or intestinal problems — had spread outside the Amish community, have opened immunization centers in Mifflin County where residents were expected to line up for doses this weekend.

"If we can do away with a large pool of susceptibles, the virus would not be active for long because it would have so much trouble finding susceptibles," said Dr. William Parkin of the state Health Department.

Dr. David Schooley of the Lewistown state health center said officials hope to have 60 percent of the Amish immunized within 10 days. Officials estimate 90 percent of the county's residents are immunized.

"The consensus is everyone thinks they're immunized. But if they're offering a polio vaccine they'll take anything they can get," said regional postmaster Ken Heading. "But I think it's getting blown out of proportion. People outside think it's a disaster area but it's different when you're right there."

Health officials have described the Amish as a "reservoir of (polio) infection." For every active case of polio, as many as 50 to 100 people could carry the virus and pass it to others. But more and more Amish are taking the bitter vaccine.

The Amish, who spurn most modern technology, initially rejected the vaccine not on religious grounds but as an unnecessary intrusion into their lives.

"I didn't like it when Dr. Schooley and his nurse came out here and insisted we take the vaccine," said Sam, a 34-year-old Amishman. "They were strangers. Then Clair DeLong (county agriculture agent) came out and he took hold of things."

Sam, who like most Amishmen didn't want his name used, said most of the Amish in his church would take the vaccine.

"I guess we're doing it to keep the (non-Amish) people satisfied. I figure if the Lord still wants to give us polio, he will."

Getting ready for college? Get out your checkbook

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Students looking forward to college this fall also can look forward to paying more for their education, but youngsters and parents who plan carefully can ease the burden on the family budget.

An annual survey by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board shows that a student who attends a four-year, private college or university and lives on campus can expect to spend $5,526 during the school year that starts in September.

That's 10.6 percent more than the same student at the same school would have spent during the year that is just ending.

The scholarship service said Sunday that average expenses at all types of institutions would be 9 percent higher in the 1979-80 academic year than they were in 1978-79.

It is late in the season to start searching for financial aid, but you may still be able to get some help. The College Scholarship Service says $12.3 billion in public and private aid will be available for students in the coming year.

"Many students, including those from middle-income families, may qualify for financial aid and should apply for funds to help them attend colleges they might not be able to afford on their own," said Joe Paul Case, director of program administration for the scholarship service.

Legislation passed last year expands government aid programs so more people are eligible. Ask for details from college admissions officers; if you are too late for this year, you may be able to get a head start on planning for next year.

There are five basic federal programs to aid undergraduates: Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, College Work-Study, National Direct Student Loans and Guaranteed Student Loans. All except the guaranteed loan program are tied to financial need, however.

If you can't get more money, you will have to figure out how to spend less and the latest study by the scholarship service provides some clues for would-be savers. The budget section where you can trim the most, says the non-profit association, is the one that varies most — tuition.

At private, four-year colleges, tuition, including fees, will average $2,923 in the coming year. At public, four-year colleges, it will average only $880. You could save more than $2,200 a year.

Note: Public institutions often charge extra for non-resident students. Ask about additional fees.

You also may be able to save by attending a two-year college. The career you plan on may not require four years of college. If it does, you may be able to get a degree from a two-year school, then enroll in a four-year institution to complete your training. Tuition at private, two-year colleges for the coming year will average $2,043 — almost $900 less than at four-year schools, according to the scholarship service. Tuition at public, two-year colleges will average $389.

Once you know what tuition will cost, sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out your other expenses. They will vary from school to school and individual to individual, but the scholarship service suggests the following averages for the coming year:

- Transportation: $250 to $450.
- Room and board: $1,400 to $1,700 for students who live on campus, $850 to $1,000 for commuters. (Many families forget to count room and board expenses for a student who lives at home; there may be no rent charge, but feeding a college student is sure to add to the budget.)
- Books and supplies: $230.
- Personal expenses: $500.

Condemned men seek life through courts

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Attorneys for two condemned killers, whose scheduled executions are just two days away, were taking appeals to the courts today in efforts to save their clients from Florida's electric chair.

David Kendall, attorney for John Spenkellink, 30, said he had filed a motion to vacate his client's death sentence. He planned to go before the Florida Supreme Court today to ask justices to hear the appeal.

Robert Harper Jr., attorney for Willie Jasper Darden Jr., 45, said he would ask a federal court to stop Darden's execution until further appeals could be handled in state courts. Harper also planned to ask the trial judge to review the conviction.

Gov. Bob Graham signed death warrants for the two inmates Friday. He defended his action Sunday, telling reporters that the days since he signed the death warrants had been "extremely difficult" for him, but he felt he did the right thing.

"I'm convinced there will be less brutality in our society if it is made clear that we value human life. It will take this kind of step," he said. Graham said he hoped his action would "cause somber reflection on the death penalty instead of an emotional reaction."

As he spoke, hundreds of protesters gathered on the steps of the state Capitol to hear an emotional address by Spenkellink's 67-year-old mother, who lives 11 miles from the prison where her son has been held since 1973.

Lois Spenkellink had wanted to talk with Graham or his wife in a personal appeal to stop the executions, but the governor's legal counsel, Robin Gibson, said that would be impossible.

Graham, however, told reporters that he was unaware Mrs. Spenkellink had gone to Tallahassee to see him. He was away from the capital to deliver a commencement address at Stetson University in DeLand.

Mrs. Spenkellink told an estimated 500 demonstrators that capital punishment should be outlawed.

Several members of the audience dabbed tears from their eyes as the white-haired widow spoke, leaning on a cane and clutching a list of prayers.

"We're all in society and if we let a person be killed, we're all guilty," she said. "What I ask for my son, I ask for everybody."

In North Carolina, Darden's father, Willie Jasper Darden Sr., who can't read, didn't even know until late last week that his son was on Death Row. On Friday, he learned Willie Jr. was scheduled to die Wednesday in the Florida electric chair.

Darden, a 69-year-old repairman, has been relying on relatives for news of his son.

"I hope and trust the Lord that He will spare his life," the elder Darden said Sunday at his home outside Walstonburg in Greene County, in eastern North Carolina.

Spenkellink was convicted for the 1973 murder of Joseph Szymankiewicz, 45, of Detroit, in a Tallahassee motel room. Mrs. Spenkellink said her son has become a productive member of the prison society and that his life should be spared.

Darden was convicted of shooting and killing Lakeland, Fla., furniture store owner James Turman, who surprised Darden when the store was being robbed in 1973.

Father was never told son was on Death Row

WALSTONBURG, N.C. (AP) — Willie Jasper Darden, who can't read, didn't know until late last week that his son was on Death Row. When he was told, he learned Willie Jr. may die Wednesday in the Florida electric chair.

Darden, a 69-year-old repairman, has been relying on relatives for news of his son — Willie Jasper Darden Jr., who has been denied clemency and is scheduled to die for a 1973 murder that he claims he didn't commit.

Darden's attorney, Robert Harper of Gainesville, Fla., said he'll ask for a delay in the execution today on the basis that further appeals are available.

"I hope and trust the Lord that He will spare his life," the elder Darden said Sunday at his home outside Walstonburg in Greene County, in Eastern North Carolina.

Darden, 45, was convicted in 1974 of killing Carl Turman, a furniture store owner, during a robbery in Lakeland, Fla. Witnesses testified that he shot Turman between the eyes, then fired a crippling shot at 16-year-old Phillip Arnold.

The elder Darden said his son has told him several times, "Dad, I didn't do it."

"I never knew him to do nothing like that, but if somebody jumped on him, he would get them off. As far as killing somebody ... I never knew him to do anything like that," Darden said of his son.

"I and his mother were very religious," said the elder Darden, a trustee of Missionary Baptist Church near his home. "Before his mother died, we always carried him to church in Walstonburg."

During a telephone call last year — the only spoken communication between the two in years — "He told me he was writing a book about the Lord, and I told him, 'That's good, keep on doing it.'"

His son was sentenced to training school in North Carolina when he was 18 "for stealing a pocketbook or something like that," Darden said.

"He moved from pillar to post and obviously felt like an outcast. He began taking things, sometimes food and money, during high school," said Leathe Speight of Wilson, a cousin who receives letters from the younger Darden and reads them to his father.

The letters come infrequently, and the elder Darden said he was read the last one two months ago. "He has told me a few times that he believes the Lord is going to spare him," he said.

Javits gets police guard after threats by Iran

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits has been assigned a 24-hour police guard at his Manhattan apartment building following threats against him and his wife by the Iranian government, police said.

The Republican senator from New York was the sponsor of a U.S. resolution criticizing the firing squad executions of more than 200 persons over the last three months in Iran by the new revolutionary government.

"He (Javits) called us and told us of the threat, we contacted the State Department and they asked us to put someone on it," New York Police Lt. Terrance Geil said.

The measure was only temporary and was to be re-evaluated later today, Geil said.

Javits could not immediately be reached for comment.

Javits' resolution condemned the executions by Iran's new government and said that U.S.-Iranian relations would be endangered if they continued.

Following passage of the Senate resolution last Thursday, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini — the Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime last February — blasted Javits, his resolution and the United States.

Javits, the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and his wife, Marion, were also summoned to appear before a revolutionary court in Iran, The New York Times quoted Iranian television as saying.

The charges against the senator were not spelled out, but presumably they stemmed from Mrs. Javits receiving close to $70,000 in 1976 for helping a firm get a public relations contract with Iran Air. Her husband was a top member of the Foreign Relations Committee at the time.

Silkwood supporters celebrate decision

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A "sweet decision" that ordered the Kerr-McGee energy conglomerate to pay Karen Silkwood's three children over $10.5 million was celebrated here Sunday.

About 60 people showed up to protest the Black Fox nuclear power plant planned near Inola, and to celebrate the decision in favor of the former nuclear worker.

The Sunbelt Alliance, an anti-nuclear group, sponsored the rally. The group listened to Bill Davis of the Silkwood litigation team and alliance member Jack Hachmeister praise Friday's federal court decision in Oklahoma City.

"It vindicates Karen Silkwood and it vindicates the power of truth," Davis said. "It proves the power of the little people in speaking out against the most powerful group in the world — the government and the corporations."

However, an appeal to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver is already being planned. At the end of the 52-day trial the jury found Kerr-McGee negligent in Miss Silkwood's contamination with plutonium.

Following the decision U.S. District Judge Frank Theis of Wichita, Kan., delayed a formal verdict at the request of Kerr-McGee attorneys. He also allowed the corporation's lawyers time to file motions seeking a new trial.

The award amounted to $505,000 in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages. The damages were the first in the nation to be awarded in a federal court for radioactive contamination outside a nuclear facility.

Filed by Miss Silkwood's survivors, for her three children, the suit stemmed from her plutonium contamination in 1974. She worked in Kerr-McGee's nuclear plant in Crescent, Okla., at the time. Testimony revealed she was an Atomic Worker's Union activist and had been trying to gather evidence of unsafe working conditions at the plant.

Kerr-McGee alleged during the trial that Miss Silkwood's negligence resulted in her contamination and she may have contaminated herself while trying to dramatize her allegations against the company.

Eight hostages escape embassy

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Venezuela's ambassador and seven other hostages escaped Sunday night from the anti-government rebels who held them captive since May 11 in the Venezuelan Embassy here, police said today.

The daring, two-wave escape left the nine rebels, armed with pistols, alone in the building. Reporters at the scene said police did not appear to be making any preparations to go in after the gunmen.

Ambassador Santiago Ochoa said his military attaché and two other embassy employees stayed behind in the building to "guarantee the sovereignty of Venezuelan territory" when he and four others made their getaway Sunday night.

Police said those who stayed behind, escaped several hours later. Other details were immediately known.

Ochoa said neither he nor the others had been mistreated during the siege, which began when members of the leftist Popular Revolutionary Bloc marched in and took over the embassy.

Members of the bloc are also holding the French Ambassador Michel Dondenne, and five other hostages at the French Embassy, which was occupied May 4, and they control a number of Roman Catholic churches across this tiny Central American nation. They are demanding the military government free five of their leaders. Two men were released, but authorities claim the others are not in government hands.

Ochoa said his wife set the stage for the escape by smuggling a small pistol to the hostages Sunday afternoon, apparently sending it in with the trays of food passed inside through an embassy window.

Once they had the gun, he said, the attaché broke down the door of a rear office with access to the outside. All the hostages scrambled in and barricaded the door to keep their captors out.

Then, with the attaché shouting through the door to distract the militants, the ambassador and four of the hostages climbed out a side window of the single-story building, pulled themselves to the roof and fled. Police said the last three hostages used the same escape route.

Ochoa said the hostages began planning the escape after their captors demanded to search confidential embassy files.

"I refused to let them search the files and said we had been humiliated enough already," he told reporters.

The ambassador said his captors earlier broke a gentleman's agreement they made five days ago by taking back the ammunition for their pistols that they had turned over to the ambassador in exchange for food from the outside.

The militants are now waiting for leaders of the bloc and representatives of the Red Cross to discuss a possible end of the embassy takeover, the ambassador said. A Red Cross official said the bloc leader could not be immediately located and talks probably would begin this morning.

One group of rebels, which took over the Costa Rican Embassy on May 4, left San Salvador for asylum in Costa Rica after their hostages escaped three days later.

Prisoners exchanged

TOKYO (AP) — China and Vietnam exchanged wounded or sick prisoners today for the first time since China's four-week attack into Vietnam in February and March, China's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported.

Xinhua said 120 Vietnamese prisoners "captured in China's self-defensive counter-attack" were handed over to the Vietnamese, and 43 Vietnamese released, then Vietnam released 43 wounded or sick Chinese to the Chinese Red Cross.

"When the released Vietnamese captives crossed into Vietnam, their packs and personal belongings were seized and thrown away by Vietnamese security personnel," Xinhua said.

It did not say whether the released Chinese carried back any belongings.

The exchange came at the "Zero Kilometer Mark" on the road from China's Friendship Pass to Dong Dang in Vietnam, Xinhua said, and was witnessed by Dominique Borel, a representative of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Xinhua said the Vietnamese prisoners were taken by train to Pingxiang (Pinghsiang), carried in ambulances and buses to Friendship Pass and then walked or were carried on stretchers to the Zero Kilometer Mark.

On their release, Xinhua said, the Vietnamese repeatedly thanked Chinese medical personnel. It said the Chinese had given them "meticulous medical treatment and attention to their daily life."

Earlier, Xinhua reported Chinese frontier guards were removing land mines at the point where the Vietnamese prisoners were to be released.

China and Vietnam arranged the POW swap two weeks ago. China has said it will hand over more than 1,000 Vietnamese in exchange for the 200 men it said were held in Vietnam. The border war flared Feb. 17, when China invaded Vietnam.

Cubs, Travs to play two tonight

Midland's Cubs have a chance to get even tonight when they play the Arkansas Travelers in a twinbill at 6:30 p.m. The East Division leaders won the first two games of the series, 12-9, coming from behind with eight runs in the eighth, and a 20-5, show 'em no mercy, bludgeoning Saturday night.

Mercifully, almost, Sunday's game was rained out and since this is the Travelers' only trip to Midland this season, General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., had to make up the lost game as quickly as possible, or play it when the Cubs visit Little Rock.

Manager Randy Hundley will toss Herman Segelke, 4-0, and Vinnie Valentini, 2-1, in an attempt to square matters while Arkansas ramrod Tommy Thompson will go with Hector Eduardo, 3-1, and Arno Kirchenwitz, 3-2, in an attempt to keep the string going.

The big difference in the series thus far has been the bases-on-balls. Midland pitchers have been so wild that it's almost as though the first thing they do on taking the mound is look around the infield and ask "Which one's the catcher?"

At least that's the impression from the 21 walks in two games, 15 of which have turned into runs. Arkansas' pitching has issued 10 free passes to first in the first two games of the series, but only two of them have made it home.

The clubs conclude the series Tuesday with a single game at 7:30 p.m. It will be Reporter-Telegram night with a coupon from the R-T and $3 at the gate admitting the entire family.

CUB QUIPS—After stealing second Saturday night for his 19th consecutive swipe without being caught this season, Eric Grandy finally got caught red-handed when he tried to add third base to his list a few minutes later...Still, Maury Wills, Lou Brock, Danny Lopez or Ernie Lombardi would probably settle for a 19-1 ratio without a second hesitation.

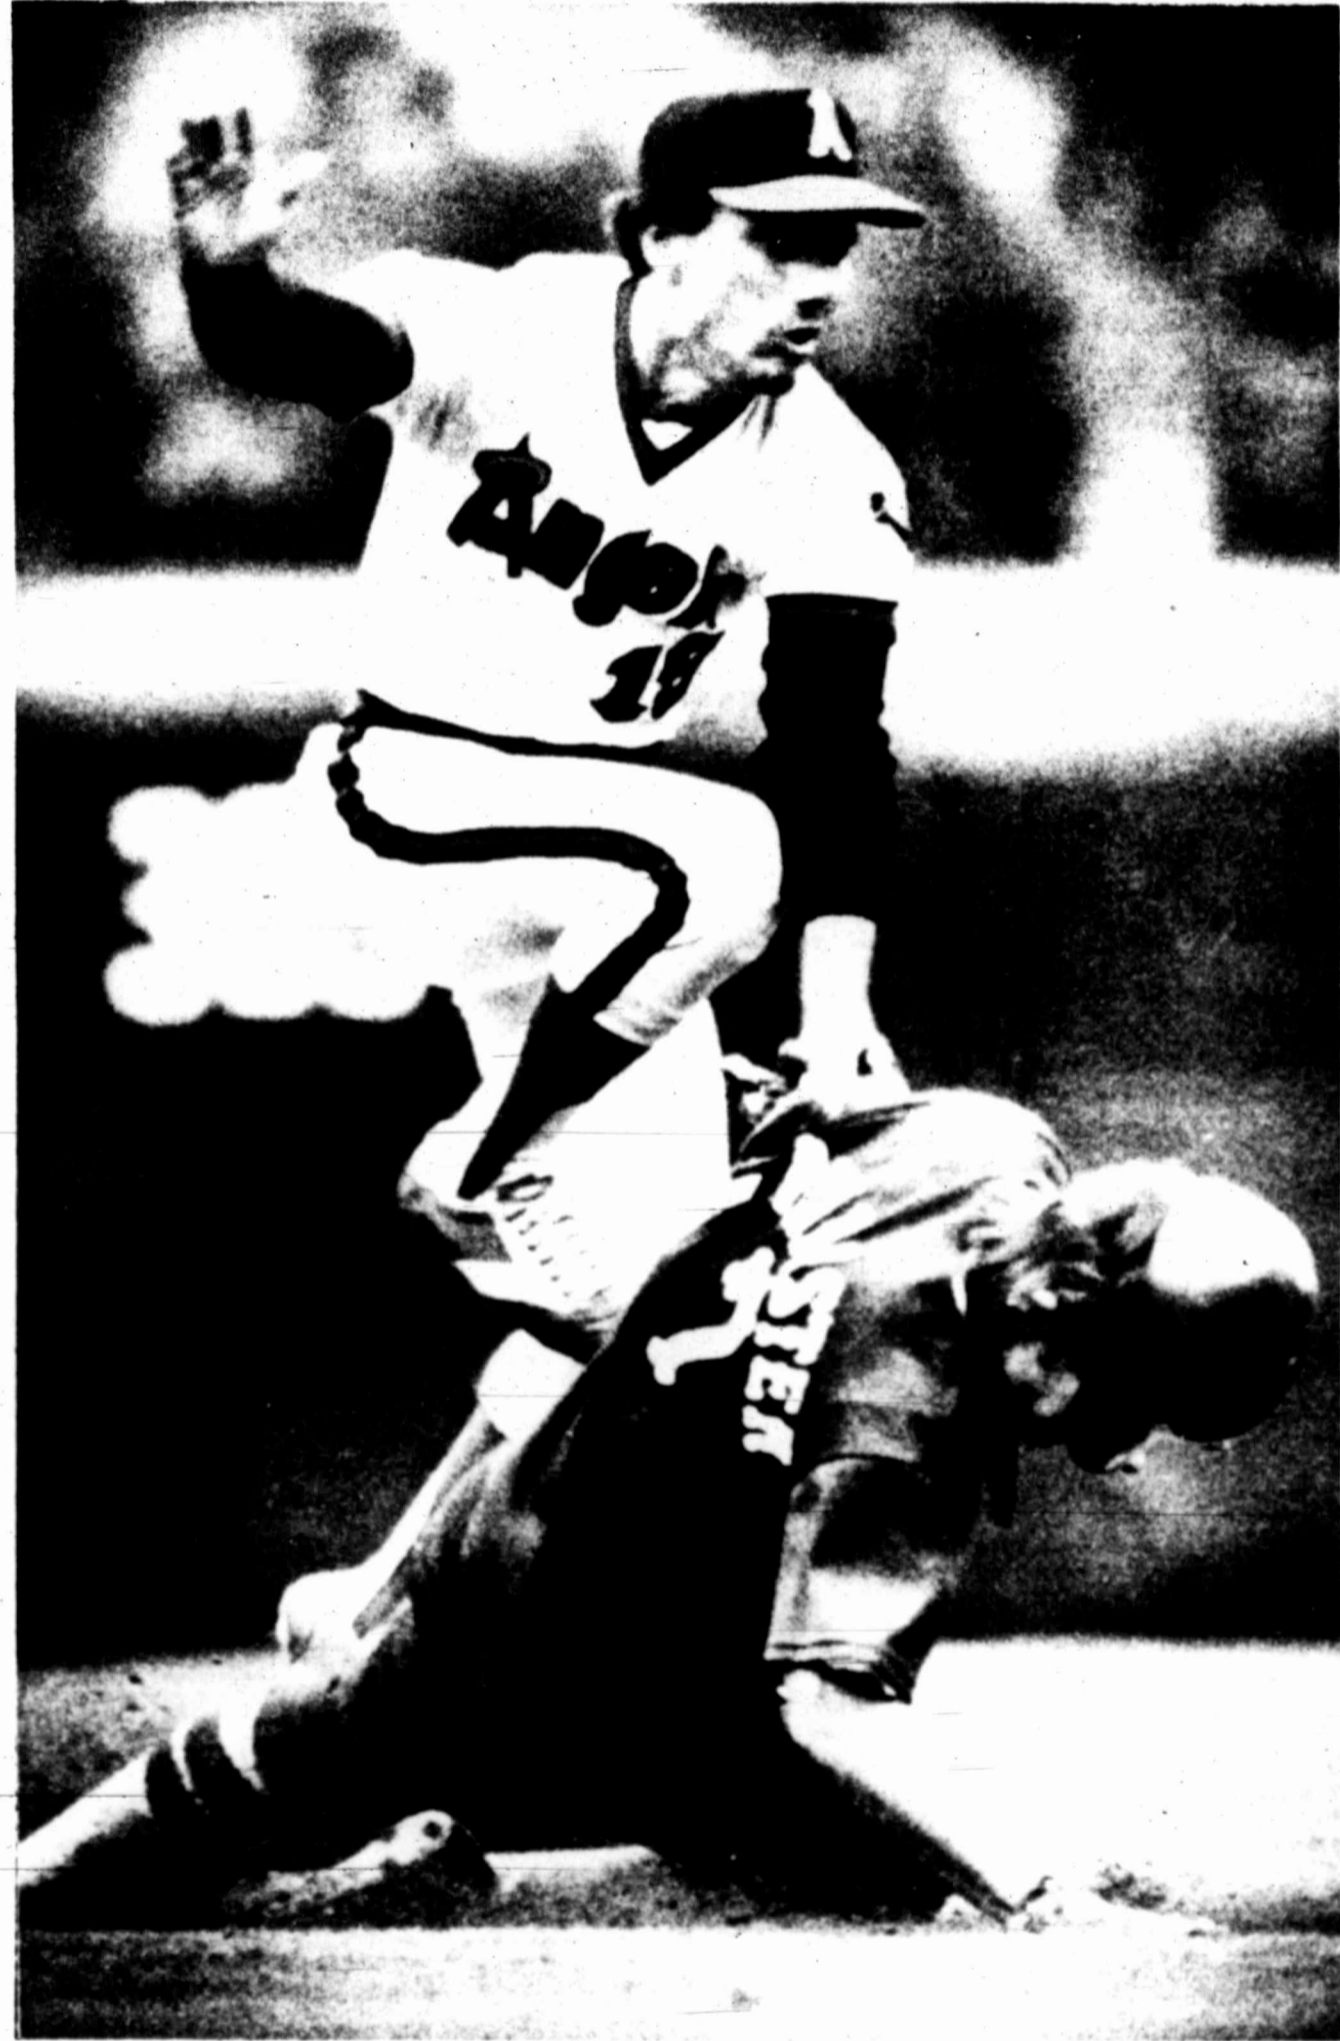

Arkansas Manager Tommy Thompson is a substitute teacher in Ontario, Calif., school system during the off season. "They kept me busy. I worked every day but two and took those days off myself."...As for the 12-hour bus trip from Little Rock to Midland, Thompson said, "Long bus trips don't hurt you that much. They are greatly overrated," to which a Traveler player standing nearby uttered a thing but an "Amen."...Midland outfielder Brian Rosinski had a 10-game batting streak snapped by Tom Chamberlain in Saturday night's 20-5 loss.

Al's old dream finally comes true

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — It was a grand scheme, and Al Geiberger dreamed of it often. The final hole of the U.S. Open. He would lash a long iron to within an inch of the cup.

There would be cheers and champagne and a tap-in and a bunch of money. Well, it wasn't the Open, or the last hole, or even a cinch. But he did what he dreamed of. And it won him the $300,000 Colonial Invitation golf title.

Dandridge's fine feint cityslicks SuperSonics

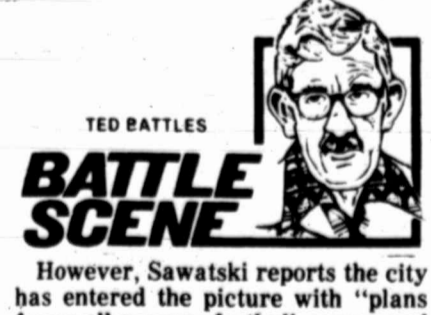

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bobby Dandridge of the Washington Bullets nodded, but it was the Seattle SuperSonics who went to sleep. As he prepared to make an inbounds pass with two seconds remaining in the opener of the National Basketball Association championship series Sunday, Dandridge made an almost imperceptible motion with his head.

grave, dipped to 5-under through 10 holes. With four straight birdies, the tour's leading money winner appeared almost certain to challenge for his fourth triumph of the year. But a double bogey at the 12th torpedded that possibility and Watson's 3-under-par 67 left him tied with Jim Colbert for fourth.

Colbert and Watson earned $13,200, precisely one half of what Littler and January got as runners-up. Colbert slipped home with a 69. First and second round leader Leonard Thompson slumped to a 2-over-par 72 and tied Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller at 278, a shot ahead of Wayne Levi, Ed Sneed, Bruce Lietzke, Jack Renner and Lindy Miller.

TL prexy pays visit

Texas League President Carl Sawatski declared the nation's oldest Class AA circuit watertight and fit for sea on his annual swing through the West Division.

However, Sawatski reports the city has entered the picture with "plans for an all-purpose football, soccer and baseball stadium which would serve the city school system and be available for the Texas League club and may be the answer. Soccer has swept the city and they need some place to play."

Stopping in Midland over the weekend before heading for Amarillo, the one-time major league catcher felt the closest the league has to a problem is Tulsa and Shreveport and it concerns the playing facilities for each.

A year ago, Shreveport was campaigning for a new park, but with the old park located just off a new freeway access, "They have made some improvements and are adopting a wait-and-see attitude. They feel the present location may be the most desirable site in the city." And if it turns out that way, then club operators would seek further park improvements.

points out, "The Polo Grounds (257 and 260 down the lines and 505 to center) wasn't built for baseball. Ebbets Field (Brooklyn)? When you played there you'd uppercute the ball to jack it over that short (297) right field fence and screen. And what happened the other day in Chicago, that 23-22 game. That's not baseball."

One park Carl isn't concerned about is Cubs Stadium. He disputes the contention of Bob Rodgers, the former El Paso manager and one-time California Angels catcher, who contended a couple of years back that the only major league surface that could equal it was the old Kansas City park.

THE PROSPECT of an all-purpose field, the type facility that most major league parks constructed in the last 20 years are, may not appeal to the baseball traditionalist who believes that baseball stadiums should be for baseball and carry their own unique identity, but, despite his upbringing, Carl is a renegade.

But Larry Wright picked up the subtle signal, drove the lane for a bounce pass from Dandridge, and was fouled by Dennis Johnson on a layup attempt as time expired. Wright, who came off the bench to score 26 points, missed his first free throw but sank the next two, giving Washington a 99-97 victory and a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series which resumes here Thursday night.

"I thought I blocked the shot," Johnson said, "but with all the noise, I couldn't hear a whistle. I thought we were going into overtime." "It first flashed through my mind that it was goaltending," said Wright, who had his best playoff effort in three years as a pro. "Then I had to go to the foul line, and the butterflies started."

Indiana University law professor Harry Pratter, who was in the car with Knight, said the coach could not see the bicyclist and proceeded into the intersection very slowly. Knight was unavailable for comment.

Kenny said he shouted to Knight as he drove by, and that Knight followed him, stopped the car and got out to ask what he had said, the student newspaper reported.

Indiana Daily Student photographer Bill Warren, who was walking by the intersection, said he began shooting pictures and that Knight asked him to stop. When he continued, Warren said Knight pushed him into the bushes, the paper reported.

Nolan Ryan's Express leaves White Sox limp

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan's express left the Chicago White Sox limp and Tommy John's local anesthetic was anything but painless to the Boston Red Sox.

The two veteran pitchers used contrasting styles to fashion brilliant two-hitters Sunday. Ryan, California's fireballing right-hander, blew his smoke past the White Sox for 11 strikeouts in pitching the Angels to a 4-0 victory. John, a left-hander, only fanned five but used his sinker to record 16 ground ball outs and boost his record to 9-0 as the New York Yankees blanked the Boston Red Sox 2-0.

John, backed by home runs from Reggie Jackson in the fourth inning and Graig Nettles in the ninth, allowed only a bunt single by Jerry Remy in the first inning and a sliced double by Fred Lynn in the fourth and then retired 14 batters in a row until a one-out error in the ninth preceded a game-ending double play.

Angels 4, White Sox 0

Like John, Ryan faced only 28 batters, one over the minimum. He allowed only singles by Chet Lemon in the first inning and Greg Pryor in the third and retired the last 20 batters. Ryan walked only one batter — Alan Bannister in the second — for just the seventh time in his career in pitching his 14th career two-hitter and 40th shutout.

"I felt I was in the best groove I've had all year," said Ryan, 5-2, who has hurled a record-tying four no-hitters but has never pitched a complete game in which he hasn't walked anyone. "I had better velocity on the fast ball than I've had.

"Sometimes when I'm walking people it can make me a bit more effective. I don't really make as big a deal out of walks as everybody else does."

Ryan has struck out 10 or more batters in a game 122 times, extending his own major league record.

Orioles 6, Blue Jays 2

Dennis Martinez fired a four-hitter and Lee May drove in two runs, one with a solo homer. Martinez, 6-2, retired 19 consecutive batters after Toronto scored in the second and third innings. May put Baltimore in the lead 3-2 with his ninth home run in the sixth inning. Ken Singleton also drove in two runs with a bases-loaded walk and a double.

Royals 5, Twins 1

Darrell Porter and Pete LaCock hit consecutive triples when Minnesota's outfield defense collapsed and Kansas City scored two runs with the help of shortstop Roy Smalley's throwing error while Paul Splitteroff checked the Twins on nine hits.

In the fourth inning, center fielder Willie Norwood lost Porter's fly ball in the sun. LaCock, the next batter, was given a triple when Norwood and left fielder Ken Landreaux collided and let his fly ball drop between them. George Brett drove in two Kansas City runs with a single and homer.

Rangers 6, Mariners 4

John Grubb drove in three runs with a homer, sacrifice fly and single. Grubb's RBI single in the sixth capped a three-run rally, highlighted by Larvell Blanks' two-run single, that gave Texas the lead. In the fifth, Grubb hit a sacrifice fly to close the gap to 4-3. He started the Texas scoring with a leadoff homer in the fourth. Reliever Jim Kern allowed the Mariners just one hit in 3 1/3 innings.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, obviously, as regular umpires returned to action Saturday and Texas Rangers' manager Pat Corrales croons a tune of endearment at plate umpire Dave Perez Sunday. The unappreciative Perez, criticized Pat's fortissimo and gave him the gong. (AP Laserphoto)

Mesa completes Sterling discovery

Mesa Petroleum Co. has completed a pair of Fusselman wells in Sterling County, designating one of them the discovery well of the Sterling City (Fusselman gas) pool.

The strike is Mesa No. 1-4 Williams. It finished a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1,800,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with a gas-liquid ratio of 8,401-1. Gravity of the liquid is 64 degrees.

Completion was through perforations from 8,424 to 8,430 feet after a 9,000-gallon acid treatment.

Hole is bottomed at 8,538 feet and 5.5-inch pipe was cemented on bottom. The plugged back depth is 8,482 feet.

Well site is 5.5 miles southwest of Sterling City and 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 4, block T, T&P survey.

Total depth is 6,421 feet and seven-inch casing is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 6,363 feet.

A dual well with the Delaware oil zone, it is 8,580 feet from northeast and 660 feet from northwest lines of section 31, block 33, H&TC survey and five miles southeast of Barstow.

Hunt No. 3-31 F. H. Scott was completed from the Cherry Canyon for a daily flowing potential of 70 barrels of 46.8-gravity oil and 40 barrels of water, through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations from 4,878 to 4,937 feet.

The pay was fractured with 31,074 gallons. Total depth is 6,322 feet and seven-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 5,940 feet from northeast and 660 feet from southeast lines of section 31, block 33, H&TC survey.

ADOBE PROJECTS

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. will drill the four Scott (Cherry Canyon) gas projects.

No. 13 Barstow is 5,940 feet from northeast and 660 feet from northwest lines of section 39, block 33, H&TC survey and 3/4 mile northwest of No. 12 Barstow, an active Scott (Cherry Canyon gas) project.

Adobe No. 17 Barstow is to be drilled 1,258 feet from northeast and 598 feet from southeast lines of section 35, block 33, H&TC survey and 1/2 mile southeast of No. 14 Barstow, an active project.

No. 18 Barstow was spotted 2,080 feet from northwest and 660 feet from southwest lines of section 155, block 34, H&TC survey and an east offset to No. 14 Barstow.

KUWAIT JOINS INCREASE LIST

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait has tagged a new 60 cent surcharge onto the price of a barrel of its oil, joining the growing list of oil producers hiking their prices in the face of rising world demand.

An oil ministry spokesman said Sunday the government was raising the price of a 42-gallon barrel of its oil to $16.40. That is $2.40 over the $14.00 base price for Kuwaiti crude approved by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Terminal opened

PUERTO ARMUELLES, Panama (AP) — Panama has opened a $60 million petroleum terminal designed to move 500,000 barrels of Alaska crude oil daily through the Panama Canal and on to East Coast refineries.

The terminal, located on a stretch of the undeveloped Pacific Coast 300 miles west of the canal and five miles east of the Costa Rican border, will transfer oil from supertankers to smaller ships able to pass through the canal. It will go around the Azuero Peninsula and into the Gulf of Panama to enter the canal.

Officials said the terminal, inaugurated Friday, eliminates the need for the more risky at-sea transfers which have been used since the Alaska pipeline opened.

Three U.S. companies — Northville Industries Corp. of Long Island, N.Y.; Tellepsen-Wallace of Houston, Texas; and Chicago Bridge and Iron of Chicago, constructed the terminal on 200 acres donated by the Panamanian government in return for a 25 percent share of the profits.

Officials of the company operating the terminal said shippers will pay 15 cents a barrel for using the facility. That will earn the Panamanian government an estimated $1.8 billion annually and the Panama Canal an additional $30 million a year in tanker tolls.

The United States is to turn the canal over to Panama by the year 2000.

Governor rejects plan

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Gov. Ed Herschler has rejected an ambitious plan to pipe crushed coal from Wyoming and Montana to Texas Gulf Coast power plants.

The Democratic governor exercised an option provided by the heavily Republican, pro-pipeline Legislature in nixing the $1.8 billion proposal, saying he opposes exporting Wyoming's "precious water resources."

Don Thomas of Houston-based Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. said company officials were involved in a "process of evaluation" to determine their next step after Herschler's decision.

Texas Eastern planned to tap the Little Bighorn River in northern Wyoming for a proposed dam and reservoir that would supply water for both the pipeline and other uses in the state.

Gasoline dealers may get some control relief

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline dealers, who threatened to strike in protest over federal price controls, apparently will soon get some relief from those controls. But the changes, analysts say, will cost Americans a few cents more per gallon for gasoline.

The Department of Energy said last week it was considering increasing the amount of markup a dealer is allowed to take on a gallon of gasoline to cover operating expenses and provide profits.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

Existing regulations expire May 31, so industry sources expect a decision soon.

Dealers in many states had threatened to close their stations for three days over the past weekend to protest the current controls, but they abandoned the plan because of worries over a consumer backlash and government legal action. Leaders of the protest said the strike plan might be revived in July if the regulations are not eased.

The average markup — known as dealer margin — now is 9.6 cents a gallon, about 17 percent of the wholesale cost. The wholesale price currently averages about 57 cents a gallon. The remainder of the 82-cent-a-gallon national average price for gasoline is federal, state and local taxes.

Dealers have been pushing markups higher in recent months to make up for cutbacks in the supplies of gasoline they receive from suppliers. When allocations are lowered, the dealers raise markups to keep profit levels the same.

When the markup regulations were set in March 1974, the average margin was 10.8 cents a gallon, about 37 percent of the wholesale price. The average margin then was higher than now because of the spread of cheaper self-service gas stations in the past five years.

Dealers complain that inflation since the markup rules went into effect has made the system obsolete.

"Gasoline retailers are laboring today under federal price ceilings that have not been basically changed in more than five years, although the cost of living has risen more than 50 percent in that time," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, a Los Angeles-based newsletter that covers the industry. "It's not surprising that retailers are requesting relief and the government is considering giving it."

According to the Lundberg Letter and other industry sources, the government is considering four plans for changing the margin, each of which would mean higher prices for consumers at the pump.

One would add 3.4 cents to the current margin, thus adding 3.4 cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline to the consumer. Some segments of the industry oppose this, saying that inflation will render it obsolete in a couple of years and force another change.

Two other plans, closely related, would set markups at 25 percent of the wholesale price or, in the second plan, at 30 percent for full-service dealers and 20 percent for self-service dealers, recognizing the lower costs of self-service stations. Either of these plans would boost consumer prices about 4.5 cents a gallon.

Percentage markups are favored by many dealer groups because they would keep up with inflation, although some government officials oppose the idea because it could contribute to inflation.

The fourth plan under consideration by DOE would put a flat 15 cent per gallon markup on all dealers. This plan is favored by regulators because it is easier to enforce, and it could force some dealers in areas where operating costs are high to roll back their prices. A flat 15-cent margin would add about 5.4 cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline on average nationwide.

Market says U.S. must cut

PARIS (AP) — The European Common Market accused the United States today of failing to cut oil consumption and warned that the world's economy cannot sustain America's oil import level much longer.

Guido Brunner, energy commissioner of the European Economic Community—the Common Market—told ministers of 20 Western industrial nations gathered here to discuss energy that the world economy would be unable "to sustain American oil imports at the present magnitude."

Laying down the nine-member EEC's position in a bluntly worded speech, Brunner attacked the U.S.

Congress for rejecting President Carter's fuel rationing program.

He said that unless Congress is capable of adopting an emergency program, "Americans will continue to mislead themselves about the true energy situation, and to consume twice as much per person as Europeans."

However, latest figures released by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a 24-country study group based in Paris, show that American oil consumption went up 4.1 percent in the 12 month period ending last February — less than EEC members France, 4.2 percent, Italy, 6.8 and Britain, 6.1.

Gasoline lines grow in East

By The Associated Press

Gas lines grew at East Coast service stations, imitating the parade of cars that has become a way of life for West Coast drivers.

Motorists in many of the nation's metropolitan areas Sunday found only 10 percent to 40 percent of the gas stations open, and many of those limiting purchases to save fuel for the upcoming Memorial Day weekend.

"The situation's a little grimmer than I'd say for publication," said an Ohio oil industry spokesman who asked not to be identified.

"The feeling around here is that around Thursday or Friday all hell could break loose. The last four days of the month are looking grim."

In Connecticut, lines of 80 to 100 cars and waits of 1 1/2 hours or more were reported along the heavily-traveled Connecticut Turnpike. Police went to a Bridgeport, Conn., service station three times Sunday responding to attendants' complaints that drivers were threatening them with bodily harm. There were no arrests.

Californians found little evidence that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s order for stations to stay open had produced the desired results. Weekend closings topped 90 percent in the state's urban areas, though reports before the weekend indicated 23 percent of all stations would stay open Sunday.

And the crunch began to show itself in other parts of the country:

—In Albuquerque, N.M., the manager of one service station discovered over the weekend that 900 gallons of gasoline were missing.

—A New Orleans station manager estimated he lost $3,000 after two men allegedly sold his gas for $3 a tankful.

—Independent truckers protesting the high cost of fuel stopped traffic for about half an hour before officials persuaded them to move their rigs from interstates 80 and 280 near Davenport, Iowa.

—Business was down at some motels in Colorado's Pikes Peak area, but tourism seemed to have increased. "A lot of tourists have the attitude that if they are going to go, they better go now," said Tom Marshall, regional director of the American Automobile Association.

—Exxon's chief executive officer, Clifton C. Garvin, charged that gasoline is in short supply in California and other Western states not because those states are getting less, but because their drivers are asking for more.

Meanwhile, Georgia stations were stockpiling extra gasoline for the holiday weekend, said Jack Houston, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers. He said some suppliers were delaying deliveries to make sure fuel was available for the holiday.

AAA officials in Texas predicted a dry holiday weekend in that state. But tourism officials said no one was sure what would happen.

In the Northeast, rainy weather kept down the weekend demand for gasoline in New Jersey and New York, leading officials to predict supplies would be available for Memorial Day.

In the Pacific Northwest, gas was expected to be available for Memorial Day in eastern Washington but not in coastal metropolitan areas, said Fred Bowman, a director of the Evergreen Service Station Association.

neers attending a February conference agreed that this could be done through research into such areas as lightweight materials.

Thinking may hurt if you think wrong

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's what you think you know that hurts you. Today's South thought it important to conserve entries to the dummy, so he took the first trick in his own hand.

Declarer next cleared the top diamonds out of the way and got to dummy with the ten of clubs to cash the jack of diamonds. Then he led dummy's king of clubs.

REFUSES CLUB

West refused the second club, and South couldn't get to his hand for the last club trick. He won only four diamonds, two hearts and two clubs. Before South could develop a spade trick the defenders had defeated him with the long hearts.

South should win the first trick with dummy's king of hearts. He then runs the diamonds. After West takes the ace of clubs South can get to his hand with the ace of hearts to cash the last club as his ninth trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, you bid one heart, and he then bids one notrump. You hold: S-K5; H-Q10854; D-843; C-A98. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Partner has a minimum opening bid (about 12 to 15 points) without good support for hearts. Game is just about out of the question, and one notrump is as good a spot as any to play the hand.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Many materials cause problems

Dear Dr. Solomon: For several years we have known that coal dust can cause serious illness, and now on TV's 60 Minutes I learned that asbestos is probably even more harmful. Is it likely that other products may be found to be equally dangerous?—George

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband has been told he has angina pectoris, and the doctor prescribed pills for him to take when he has an attack. What is the significance of this condition, and what is the outlook for a person with it?—Mrs. M.L.

quires prompt medical attention. Most people with angina pectoris respond to medical treatment. For those who do not, a surgical technique, coronary artery bypass, has come into wide use in recent years. The operation involves the use of blood vessels from other parts of the body to construct detours through which the blood can bypass narrowed portions of coronary arteries. It is estimated that more than 70,000 such operations are performed each year.

Dear George: Unfortunately, that is a possibility. Recent research seems to suggest that fiberglass dust may harm lung tissue. Fiberglass is widely used as an insulating material.

Dear Mrs. L.: Angina pectoris refers to episodes of chest pain which occur when the heart does not receive sufficient oxygen. The pain usually can be relieved with nitroglycerin or other drugs that increase the blood supply to the heart, or reduce the workload of the heart and, therefore, the amount of oxygen it requires. The important thing to learn is how to avoid attacks without a major interference with one's lifestyle. It is also essential to know the characteristics of a real heart attack, which re-

'Dirty post card' collection on display at Paris museum

By MARCUS ELIASON

PARIS (AP) — With hardcore pornography comfortably settled in Paris, "le dir-tee post card" seems no naughtier than the stocking leg of a can-can dancer. But the post card as art or history retains its humble corner in the pantheon of French passions.

The capacity of the post card to evoke laughter, nostalgia or distaste is being artfully displayed at a museum in Paris' Bois de Boulogne.

Each of the thousands of post cards on display is a captured splinter of time, bringing to life a faded world of handlebar mustaches, horse-drawn carts, shoeshine stands, billowing bonnets, thatched roofs, organ grinders and knee-length swimsuits.

There were days, these cards remind us, when people wrote with goose feathers, sculpting the "M" of a Mademoiselle with a zestful flourish.

French post cards were born in the 1870 Franco-German war. Bismarck had captured Strasbourg from Napoleon III.

So the city's Red Cross printed small message cards that could be carried to Paris by balloon. Homing pigeons were taken along in case the balloon didn't make it.

The balloons and pigeon post have vanished along with the sleazy hawkers who would tug the tourist's sleeve and hiss the oft-parodied line, "Do you want to buy a dirty post card?"

Today an old post card, whether it pictures a plump half-nude Victorian woman or a long-forgotten prime minister, is a collector's item to be rummaged for in the used-books stalls along the Seine River.

With the appearance in 1889 of the first picture post card, portraying the newly built Eiffel Tower, a major industry was born. By 1909, the Reunies Co. in France was printing half a million cards a day.

Some cards show little has changed in a hundred years. One portrays a policeman with a dog on a leash watching a park for hoodlums.

Another depicts a healthy young man with beard and shoulder-length hair scything garden weeds. He looks like a graduate of the 1960s back-to-the-land movement, and indeed, the post card's message is: "Sun, Earth, Work, Peace."

World War I made the post card a propaganda tool. Kaiser Wilhelm was pictured entwined in snakes.

There were post cards which, pasted together, formed lifelike portraits of Napoleon Bonaparte.

Another vogue was the series of post cards which told a story. These ranged from simple boy-meets-girl yarns to the 1890s' trial of army captain Alfred Dreyfus, an espionage case with anti-Semitic overtones that became a sort of French Watergate.

There were post cards for the social conscience — breadlines in 1906, street demonstrations in 1910 — and others portraying Mata Hari doing a belly dance.

The great poster designers did not disdain the post card as an art form, and cards by Alfons Mucha, Jules Cheret and Leonetto Cappiello sell today to collectors for hundreds of dollars each.

The French remain avid senders, as well as collectors, of post cards. The exhibit includes a model of a bistro be decked with the 200 post cards the owner receives every summer from her vacationing customers.

Here's what fuel means on your electric bill.

Table showing utility bill breakdown: Residential Rate, Base Rate, Fuel @ $0.009, Total, kWh used this month, Amount due.

The cost to provide your electric service is divided into two parts: base rate and fuel. The base rate covers the cost of bringing electricity to you—things like the miles of lines, substations, power plants and the Texas Electric employees to make it all work are included in the base rate.

But the other part of your bill, fuel, is what some people don't understand. The "fuel" amount on your bill is what we must pay to buy the natural gas, oil or lignite coal that we use to make your electricity.

Without that fuel, all the other things that make up your electric service system would be useless. We must burn fuel to make your electricity. How much we use each month to make your electricity is shown by the fuel amount on your bill.

At Texas Electric, we want you to understand what you're paying for.
