Initiative proposal 'not dead, badly wounded,' sponsor says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The sponsor of a proposal giving Texans a limited right of initiative and referendum says it is badly wounded, if not dead.

Needing 100 votes for approval, the constitutional amendment received an 84-34 tally in the House on Monday — five fewer, "aye" votes than when it came up last week.

Rep. Carlisle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, the sponsor said he was not ready to pronounce the measure (HJR3) dead, "but I am saying it is wounded."

Smith said he might ask the House to reconsider Monday's decision "if I think we have the votes to pass it." But time is running short.

The legislative session ends at midnight, May 28. Should the House ultimately approve an initiative and referendum proposal, the Senate — paralyzed since last Friday by the absence of the 12 "Killer Bee" senators — still would have to act.

Gov. Bill Clements has said he would call lawmakers back into special session if they failed to submit initiative and referendum to the voters. Smith was asked if he thought Clements would make good on his threat.

"I don't think Mr. Clements has any choice but to call a special session," Smith said.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, urged rejection of the measure because, he said, it would undermine the representative system of government.

"If you represent your people and I represent my people, there is no better representative form of government than us. ... I trust a system that allows intelligent decisions to be made by informed people," Washington said.

Smith said the people of Texas want initiative and referendum and should get the chance "to speak on whether they want this kind of system. It will carry every county in the state, and you know it."

He urged each House member to "share just a little part of your chair" with the citizens.

Smith's proposal would let Texans, by petition, put initiative issues for new laws and referendum measures to repeal unpopular laws on general election ballots. If voters approved the proposals, they would go before the Legislature, which would have to act.

If the Legislature rejected or amended a measure it received by initiative or referendum, the voters again would receive the issue and could pass their original proposal over the Legislature's head.

Critics of the proposal say it makes it too hard to get an issue on the ballot because a petition would have to be signed by 15 percent of the total number of voters in the People's attitudes

Ten Texas cities are among the more than 150 cities and counties in 34 states now implementing the Clean Community System (CCS), the nation's first program to use behavioral principles in improving attitudes about waste-handling.

The CCS, it is said, has produced sustained litter reductions in excess of 70 percent since introduced three years ago as the major undertaking of Keep America Beautiful, Inc.

The Tall City of Midland isn't listed among the 10 Texas cities participating in the program. It perhaps should be since cleanliness and city beautification long have been community goals here.

The Texas participants are Baytown, Dallas, Fort Worth, Grand Prairie, Houston, Irving, Port Arthur, San Antonio, Sherman and Texarkana (both Texas and Arkansas).

Each CCS program is locally owned and operated and relies on the participation of all segments of a community — business and industry, labor, government, civic groups, schools and the media — in achieving its goals. Keep America Beautiful, Inc. (KAB), a non-profit organization, provides the initial training and ongoing counseling, including on-site visits by its Field Service Department when necessary, to assist in program implementation.

But the really noteworthy thing about CCS, and perhaps the reason that it has been so successful, is the fact that it attacks the problem of littering at its root cause — people's attitudes.

Roger W. Powers, president of KAB, said people in CCS communities in Texas and elsewhere "are thinking differently about how they handle their trash and they're working together at the grass roots level to improve the environment in which they live."

Grand Prairie, for instance, has reduced litter by 72.8 percent since last June while Texarkana has had litter reductions of 52 percent since last October.

And this business of litter reduction is where Midland very well could enter the picture. Many Midlanders — downtown, in shopping centers, around schools and in residential areas — have become careless in this regard, and the litter problem mounts as a result thereof.

And with the wind blowing as it has in recent weeks, the problem is by no means small. Debris from construction jobs combined with papers and wrappings of all kinds are moved hither and yon by the West Texas breeze. A newcomer to Midland said recently that he has been somewhat disappointed at this aspect, particularly in the downtown area.

But it can be improved and even controlled, to a marked degree, if the proper attitude prevails, community-wide.

Attitude, then, is the key word, and this apparently is what CCS is all about.

A "Letter to the Editor" writer in last Sunday's issue of The Reporter-Telegram termed it "community spirit" at the individual level, and this is the very same thing. Most any community at any given time can use an attitude-stimulant as a means of recharging community spirit.

The CCS program works simply by getting the facts about a community's litter problem, involving the people in developing a comprehensive, systematic approach to solving it, focusing on achieved results through this approach, and providing reinforcement to sustain the success of the program.

But regardless of whether or not Midland joins CCS, steps can be taken to tackle the litter problem at the local level, directed strictly by local interests. The Midland Chamber of Commerce has one of the finest and most efficient City Beautification Committees to be found anywhere, and it could be that the panel would be interested in expanding its program in this regard.

But again, it all boils down to people's attitudes, and this includes each and every one of us. How about it?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Last-minute change saved lives

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—The assassination of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., who was gunned down by Rev. Jim Jones' religious fanatics at a jungle airstrip in Guyana last year, might reasonably have been a lesson to State Department personnel responsible for the safeguarding of world-traveling members of Congress.

But Foggy Bottom's bureaucrats were slow to learn the lesson. Several congressmen almost met the same fate as Ryan's last December in the steamy, Guyana-like jungles of Burma. Mere chance, say our sources, prevented their massacre at the hands of cold-blooded killers every bit as dangerous as the lunatic members of Jones' People's Temple.

It should be remembered that Ryan's death — and the 900 murder-suicides that followed it at the cult's Jonestown commune hours later — was sparked by a congressional investigation of the People's Temple. The congressman's concern for his former San Francisco area constituents and the families they had left behind led him to make the investigative journey to Guyana that resulted in his murder.

Although State Department representatives in Guyana did warn Ryan and his party that there were risks involved in his trip to Jonestown, precious little was done to ensure his safety once he insisted on proceeding despite the warnings. Months later, when the lesson of Jonestown should have been digested by State Department security experts, several members of the House Select Committee on Narcotics left on a trip to the so-called Golden Triangle of Southeast Asia — the area of Burma, Thailand, Laos and Vietnam that is the center of opium and heroin traffic in that part of the world.

This was no junket. The congressmen were going to a dangerous, uncomfortable corner of the globe to investigate the traffic in hard drugs, much of which winds up in the United States. They wanted to find out more about the men who control the world's richest narcotics market.

In an earlier column, we identified from intelligence documents the international kingpin of dope peddling — a Burmese mercenary leader named Chang Chi-fu.

Chang's fellow narcotics traffickers had been exposed by the Narcotics Committee, and the revelations had threatened to interfere with their billion-dollar dope operations. As ruthless as they are wealthy, the heroin merchants decided to eliminate congressional pressure on the local governments to crack down on their lucrative trade.

The method was to be simple and direct, sources informed our associates Jack Mitchell and Dale Van Atta: A small army of mercenaries was prepared to kill the congressional visitors in Burma.

The House delegation, which included Reps. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., Stephen Neal, D-N.C., Henry Hyde, R-Ill., and Robert Dornan, R-Calif., was to be gunned down as they were flying by helicopter over the Burmese jungles. Any survivors were to be dispatched by heavily armed ground troops from the dope merchants' army of mercenary bandits.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Latin American Marxists return to 'peaceful way'

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

William Giandoni

Latin American Marxists apparently have been convinced that "the peaceful road to socialism" is the only way to power.

In major hemisphere republics — in Mexico, in Brazil, Argentina and Chile — the Marxists are plotting to use the ballot, rather than the bullet, to get into government.

They learned the hard way. In all those countries, and others, they were given cause to remember that a government, willing to use its power, cannot be defied.

Nicaragua today shows that. There, youths, the adolescents, the students who have been attracted to the Sandinista movement, perish daily in unequal battle with President Anastasio Somoza's National Guard.

Most of the casualties reported are young men and women. Their leaders are to be found in neighboring Costa Rica, or in Cuba, Mexico, the United States or some European country, delivering denunciations of the Somoza regime and encouraging Nicaragua's youth to further heroic action.

Rare is the report of the demise of a veteran member of the Nicaraguan opposition in combat with government forces.

Although the Sandinista leaders act pretty much like the Brazilian, Argentine and Chilean Marxists, in opting for the good life abroad, the revolutionary tactics being employed in Nicaragua, as well as elsewhere in Central America, in El Salvador and Guatemala, are much the same as those that were used, and which failed, in some of the larger Latin American countries.

True, they worked for Fidel Castro, in Cuba. But that was more than 20 years ago, and orthodox military science and tactics have progressed since then, in good part because of Cuba's experience.

Now, though, it appears that most Latin American Marxists not only have decided they cannot shoot their way into power but also realize that, if they win control of a government or positions of influence, they must not be so impetuous or violent as to arouse the fears of the non-Marxist majorities.

Even the Marxists themselves generally admit that the excesses of some Socialist Party leaders in Chile were what provoked that country's armed forces into toppling the government of the late President Salvador Allende Sept. 11, 1973.

Chilean Communists, from Secretary General Luis Corvalan down, were voicing that complaint in the last months and days of Allende's Popular Unity coalition, to which they were a party, too.

But it has taken nearly six years for the Socialists to tacitly admit the fact.

That confession came late in April with the announcement in Berlin that the Central Committee of the Socialist Party of Chile had designated Clodomiro Almeyda secretary general of the party, replacing the former Socialist boss, Carlos Altamirano.

Altamirano, who ran the Socialist Party during the three years the Marxists ruled Chile and who was a member of the Chilean senate, was openly inciting mutiny in the Chilean navy during the government of Allende, himself, one of the founders of the Chilean Socialist Party.

Reports from Berlin, as well as Madrid and Paris, where prominent Chilean Socialists had taken refuge, long before the Nicaraguans arrived, indicate that Altamirano plans to fight the removal. But Almeyda and other veteran Socialists seem to consider Altamirano's extremism to be an obstacle to a possible future understanding with the Christian Democrats who, though somewhat splintered, too, presumably still represent the largest bloc of votes in Chile, were there to be elections.

To judge by what the Chilean Marxists are saying now, they feel that they must prepare themselves to join in a popular front with non-Marxists, if they are ever to get back into power.

Quite obviously that is the Marxists aim in other major Latin countries, too.

INSIDE REPORT:

The politics of gasoline rationing: who benefits?

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger was in Reno, Nev., while the administration's standby rationing plan was being unsuccessfully sold to the House, pointing up the truth about this latest confrontation between president and Congress: It had little to do with energy, much to do with politics.

Rationing would help neither the production of more energy nor the consuming of less. The plan sent Congress was not intended for spot shortages that suddenly sprouted in California. Indeed the procedure under which it went to Capitol Hill was originally intended as a Democratic trap for a Republican president.

For these reasons, Schlesinger recommended against going to the mat with Congress on a proposal basically irrelevant to the nation's energy problem. The president and his men thought otherwise. "The feeling was," confided an insider, "that we had to demonstrate leadership on some issue."

Carter advisers believe he has done just that. They think Carter looked strong, Congress weak, even though the proposal would have accomplished nothing now or in the foreseeable future except to grant standby authority of a kind traditionally unavailable in this country. If this is a victory, it is doubtful Jimmy Carter can afford many more.

The history of the confrontation that left the president outraged begins with the Energy Act of 1975. One provision called for President Ford to submit a standby gasoline rationing plan, designed for an emergency of wartime proportions, by mid-1976, for approval by both house of Congress. Viewing this as a Democratic trap to snare the embattled Republican president, the White House ordered the federal energy office to do nothing.

Evans

A lame-duck Ford finally submitted a rationing plan in January 1977, but it was ignored in expectation that the new Democratic president would submit his own. Over the next 28 months, however, no plan was submitted or, apparently, even contemplated — not until the Iranian revolution.

With reduced crude oil supplies and escalated demand inducing panic and gasoline lines in California, there was a demand for Carter not to just sit there but do something. Schlesinger suggested submitting the standby rationing scheme due by statute three years ago.

Rationing had not been thought about much, so the plan of Carter's Department of Energy was mighty like the plan of Ford's federal energy office. It was identical in being totally unrelated to the panic on California freeways and in failing either to produce or conserve a single extra gallon. What could trigger its use? Short of war, nothing less than a calamitous cutoff of crude oil supplies from the Persian Gulf.

Consequently, Schlesinger urged against any real public drive for a standby plan which, even if approved, could be vetoed by either house if and when actually invoked. He also suggested submitting the plan to Congress take-it-or-leave-it with no attempts at logrolling. But the White House was thinking of leadership imagery, and the modest plan was transmogrified into the key for unraveling the energy tangle.

For the first of Carter's many energy battles in Congress, Schlesinger was absent (not cancelling a speech to an oil producers convention in Reno). Although his own lobbying has been criticized, he could scarcely have matched the incompetence level of the White House in guiding the rationing plan.

After the plan was revised to suit individual senators, it was presented to House members two hours before the vote May 10. "I frankly did not want to oppose a rationing plan," one Democratic congressman told us. "But I couldn't figure out what the devil was in this one." He voted no, unopposed by House Democratic leaders. It was among the most feeble Carter efforts in Congress.

So, congressmen were scarcely ready for the president's emotional condemnation of Congress May 11, unmatched since Richard Nixon denounced the Senate for rejecting a Supreme Court appointment. Carter's aides rejoiced in his firm stand, even though his reaction dwarfed the importance of the plan. "This transcends energy, and goes to the question of leadership," one of the president's men explained to us.

White House aides believe that here the president is on the right side and Congress on the wrong side. That may be correct now, but it assumes the public will be up in arms over failure to adopt a plan that does nothing for the present, provides no extra gasoline for the future and, if ever actually used, would prove massively unpopular. That is thin fuel indeed to power the regeneration of Jimmy Carter as a masterful national leader.

STANTON — Lee Castle was 21 and was "down on the farm" in July of 1918, when Uncle Sam extended his greetings.

And Castle, who's now 84 and vividly recalls those days of the Great War, did not hesitate, but hopped to and stepped forward.

The draft board over at Big Spring told him if he didn't heed the summons to join in the war effort that "you may lose your rights to vote and you may go to the penitentiary."

"You don't have to worry," Castle answered, "I'll be there."

And so he, like millions of other young men, answered the call.

But Castle, who served in the field artillery at Camp Travis at San Antonio, never got "over there."

He was wanted to, though.

"Oh, yeah," he said, "we were raring to go over there."

He was mustered out in May of 1919.

And "they" told him to "go home and go to work and don't be spitting in the dark corner of the room." So he returned to farming at Knott.

Castle was one of four million young American men who became doughboys, sailors and air corpsmen virtually overnight in 1917 and 1918.

TODAY, ONLY 780,000 World War I veterans are yet alive. Their average age is 83.

Seven of the veterans from Stanton and Big Spring gathered here late last week to recall their experiences in the Great War days.

Now, there are six.

J.D. "Dan" Renfro, 83, who was in the original seven, died over the weekend.

The aging veterans met in the Martin County Historical Museum at the urging of museum curator June Reid. They, like others across the land who will be celebrating Memorial Day on May 30, recalled their part in the war:

—Tom Glynn, 82, now a retired Stanton farmer, was a fireman and later an engine-man on the battleship cruiser Cleveland. The crew's mission was "looking for (German) submarines all the time — going backwards and forwards from New York to the west coast of Ireland."

He joined up in 1916, before the U.S. was pulled into the war, and got out in 1920. "I done overtime," he said.

—Homer Schwalbe was drafted in late 1917 or early in 1918 only after he was "turned down" three times when he tried to enlist. He had blurred vision in the left eye due to a "lick" from a cotton stalk he was cutting down. Schwalbe was a cowboy before and after the war.

He served much of his military time as an infantryman at Camp Pike, Ark.

"THEY WOULDN'T send me across," said Schwalbe, 85, a retired rancher. "I tried every way in the world to get them to send me across. I'd rather be anywhere than in those barracks."

—T.W. Haynie was a section foreman for the Texas & Pacific Railway Co. back in 1917, when he got caught up in the war effort.

"I kept trying and trying to get in that Army," he recalled. "All my friends had done gone, and there were just damn few boys my age up there (in Stanton). I couldn't see nothing but girls and old men. It made me feel like getting up and doing something about it."

After volunteering, he got shipped overseas and served on the Western Front in a truck company with the 23rd Engineers. He drove a chain-driven Mack truck.

"I wasn't nothing but a buck private," said Haynie, who served much of his time in the Argonne Forest in France.

"We had plenty of excitement running those trucks over there," he said.

"YOU TALK ABOUT seeing action (in the Argonne drive). Those shells were as 'thick as peas.'"

When he got "over there," the English and French soldiers "were just old men." The younger fighting men were either "crippled up" or "been killed and were all in the cemetery."

"I'll never forget two boat rides," said Haynie, 83. "One was going over on the George Washington. We ran into a hellacious school of porpoises. We ran into three days of storms coming back" on another troop carrier. The seven-deck George Washington carried 10,000 troops, Haynie recalled.

—Leighton Mundt, now 82, of Big Spring was drafted at age 21, served in the 80th Infantry, but was never shipped overseas.

"I was stuck in Houston for the duration — at Camp Logan, the 'mud hole,'" he said. "Oh, it was something else."

He was a mule skinner and, as a carrier of supplies and munitions, "would have been the main target had we ever got to war."

"I'M PROUD that I served for Uncle Sam in the war," Mundt said. "But I'm grateful that I didn't take any blood or give any blood. I'm not one of those boys that's proud of how many (men) I killed; I wouldn't be proud of it."

—Sam Wilkinson, 83, was a "cow puncher" in his younger days. But in 1917, he was drafted and, for a few weeks, soldiered.

"One of his legs was shorter than the other," said his wife, Villa, "and when they found out he couldn't march, they didn't keep him very long."

Wilkinson, who cowboied for Col. C.C. Slaughter and F.G. Oxheer, said his right leg was broken when, at age 13, his horse stumbled and fell on him.

After the Army let him go, he promptly volunteered for duty in the Navy. But he was out within six weeks after "they found out he couldn't march," Mrs. Wilkinson said.

—The late J.D. Renfro of Stanton served as a dental assistant in France with the 20th Field Artillery.

"I had it easy. I'll have to admit that," he said last week, when he donated some of his war memorabilia to the museum.

He said he was inspired to enlist after his brother had volunteered for duty.

"The Army has peculiar ways," Renfro said, "and we had to abide by them."

After the war, he taught school for awhile, but later became a jeweler and watch repairman in Stanton.

Davis hints at wedding plans

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Cullen Davis and his longtime girlfriend, Karen Master, will marry this week, after his divorce becomes final, the multimillionaire industrialist says.

He declined to reveal the exact date.

"I don't want to let the cat out of the bag too much. Let me just say it will be this week," Davis said.

A close friend said, however:

"The wedding will probably be Thursday. They want to be married as soon as the divorce is final."

Mrs. Master, who has been married once previously, was a key witness for Davis at two criminal trials — when Davis was accused of murdering his 12-year-old stepdaughter during a shooting spree at the Davis mansion in August 1976 and when Davis was accused of putting out a contract on the life of his divorcee court judge.

Mrs. Master testified Cullen was in bed with her at the time of the shooting, and Davis was acquitted. Several months ago, she corroborated his story that he was "just playing along" with Charles David McCrory, his former employee-turned-informant, when they discussed various murder plots, and a hung jury resulted.

Priscilla, who was wounded in the 1976 shooting incident, was Davis' second wife. Their marriage was ended last month in a ruling of District Judge Clyde Ashworth. In the divorce decree, the judge awarded the couple's $6 million, 20-room mansion to Davis and gave Priscilla 30 days to get out.

She has to pay him $50,000 a day if she isn't out by Wednesday, which is also the last day she can appeal the divorce decree. Her friends said she plans no appeal.

Davis said his marriage to Mrs. Master will be a quiet affair at a friend's home in Fort Worth, with only a few couples on hand.

"It won't be at Karen's and it won't be at the mansion. We want to keep it very small and very private," Davis said of the wedding.

They plan to move into the mansion as soon as Priscilla moves out, Davis said. He and Karen have been living at her home in Fort Worth since shortly after he and Priscilla separated five years ago.

It is time to quit complaining about runaway government spending, government control, and skyrocketing taxes, and do something to stop them! It is time to get the man representing you in Washington to stop spending your tax dollars on wasteful programs that increase the size and cost of government control over your life, raise the national debt, and cause inflation.

Drinks may change medication effects

Dear Dr. Solomon: I take tetracycline for an acne condition. The other day a roommate of mine saw me taking a pill with a glass of milk and said it was not a good idea. What's the difference what you take with a pill as long as it goes down?—Connie

Dear Connie: Your friend is correct. Certain combinations of drugs and food can make the drugs less useful. Tetracycline and milk is one such combination. Whenever a medicine is prescribed, the patient should be given specific instructions. Should it be taken on an empty stomach? Before, with, or after meals? How the drug is taken can influence its effectiveness.

In general, drugs should not be taken with carbonated drinks, or fruit or vegetable juices, since these may stimulate excess acid. The acid, in turn, may dissolve the drug in the stomach, instead of in the intestines, where it is more easily absorbed into the bloodstream.

If you are on medication, it is generally wise to avoid alcohol. Alcohol can conflict with a variety of drugs including antibiotics, anticoagulants, antihistamines, sedatives, tranquilizers and antihypertensive drugs.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My obstetrician wanted me to take a routine chest X-ray, but I refused. This is my third pregnancy, and I've had no problem to warrant taking an X-ray at this time. Is this a common practice among obstetricians?—Mrs. B.N.

Dear Mrs. N.: You make a valid point. On the basis of a study done at the Mayo Clinic, Dr. George Malkasian, chairman of the division of obstetrics and medical gynecology, says that routine chest X-rays of pregnant women are a waste of money, and provide no useful medical information if the woman's medical history is known.

Of 11,725 pregnant women who were X-rayed routinely at the Clinic between January, 1966, through December, 1975, only 74 were found to have abnormalities. Moreover, in each case the patient either had a prior history of the problem, the abnormality was associated with the pregnancy and later disappeared, or the physician would have wanted an X-ray based on the findings at the physical examination. Dr. Malkasian adds, however, that where the medical history is not known, a prenatal X-ray may well be indicated.

The practice of requiring routine prenatal X-rays started when tuberculosis was prevalent. Today this is not a major disease in most areas, and a tuberculin skin test probably would be a preferable method of detection.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What are the chances that parents with sickle cell trait will pass it on to their children?—Mr. F.T.

Dear Mr. F.T.: Every time a man and woman who both have the trait, have a baby, the chances are: (1) two in four that the child will have the trait just like its parents; (2) one in four that the child will have the serious form known as sickle cell anemia; and (3) one in four that the child will have no form of the disease at all.

Wayne to get honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Wayne, who brought law in order to the American West single handedly, who fought and won World War II dozens of times, is taking Congress without a struggle.

"Few people are given the title, 'The,'" Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. was saying. "There's The President — The Pope — The Queen — and The Duke."

John Wayne, the Duke, 71, hospitalized for treatment of cancer, is going to have a congressional gold medal struck in his honor. No doubt about it.

The Senate already has approved the idea, and the House of Representatives is certain to do the same. Specifically, the legislation would authorize the president to present the gold medal to Wayne and authorize the Treasury Department to strike bronze replicas for sale to the public.

Only 83 Americans have been so honored. And most of them — George Washington and Andrew Jackson to name two — didn't make movies about wars and the West. They lived them.

A House banking subcommittee met Monday to kick around the idea of a medal for Wayne. It wasn't a hearing, it was a love feast.

Rep. Thomas Evans, R-Del., remembered growing up as a kid in Seaford, Del., shelling out 11 cents to watch John Wayne on the big screen. "And 11 cents meant something," he said.

"I learned a lot from John Wayne and I think America learned a lot from him because he set the standard for American manhood," he said.

Evans, 47, grew up on John Wayne. He was born three years after The Duke made the first of his 200 films.

From the President of the United States, in a letter to Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., subcommittee chairman:

John Wayne's "true grit helped win the West, World War II, and the hearts of thousands of us across the country and the world."

From Goldwater, R-Calif., sponsor of the medal legislation in the House:

"Suffice it to say that this award will represent a sincere 'thank you' from his government and fellow citizens for a lifetime of loving his country with a fierce loyalty and more than a little pride in its goodness and despite its faults."

Lee bands play tonight

The awards for last year's seniors will be a way of recognizing them for the honor, band director Van Ragsdale said.

Trudeau catches puck at Montreal's Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau caught an errant puck, swilled champagne with Stanley Cup hockey winners and drew screaming good wishes from Montreal fans in his final public appearance before today's general election.

Along the way, he received some valuable last-minute exposure on national television, which carried the hockey final between the Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers live to millions of potential voters.

Trudeau appeared rested and exuberant, buoyed by a standing ovation from a crowd of more than 18,000 when he entered the Montreal Forum Monday night and wild cheers when he left.

During the third period, he caught a wild puck shot over the boards, more than matching a feat by his chief political rival, Conservative Leader Joe Clark, who snagged a football tossed at him by some hotel workers at Jasper Park Lodge in Alberta earlier in the day.

injuries four

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — An earthquake rocked Bali and the neighboring island of Lombok, leaving four persons hospitalized on Lombok and hundreds of houses and other buildings slightly damaged on the island, officials said today.

No casualties were reported on Bali and damage there was limited to broken glass, they said.

Scientists said the quake hit Monday night in the Lombok Straits southeast of Bali and registered 6.3 on the Richter scale. Fishermen at sea reported huge waves touched off by the quake.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

Pat Walker's Presents:
The Splendor of being Slender

She lost 53 3/4 pounds and 49 1/2 inches at Pat Walker's.

Carolyn Stinson got an unpleasant shock when she stepped on the scales at her Doctor's office. Never faced with a weight problem in the past, she hadn't noticed as the pounds slipped on gradually over the years—and now she was frantic.

At a friend's insistence, she went to Pat Walker's for a complimentary treatment and figure analysis. Impressed by our relaxing passive exercise and sensible approach to good nutrition, she stayed with the program—and obviously has had great results.

"I went from size 16 to size 8 and firmed and toned over all," she reports. "Pat Walker's has changed my life. I feel younger and more energetic than I have in 10 years!"

Like Ms. Stinson, you can achieve your weight goal at Pat Walker's, without rigid diets or strenuous exercises. On our proven program of weight reduction, individualized to meet your needs, you can shape your figure privately in the luxurious comfort of our elegant salon.

Don't wait another day to find out what Pat Walker's can do for you; be our guest for a courtesy treatment and figure analysis. Call NOW to reserve time for your free appointment.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RICHTER
(Wed., May 23)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you likely to become involved in arguments over money, property, possessions and such, but the evening brings you a chance to engage in recreational activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study monetary status well and make improvements so that you have increased abundance in the future. Express kindness to others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Go after your personal aims in a most definite manner for best results. Discuss future with a trusted friend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to dull duties early in the day so you will have time for more interesting activities later. Express happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you steer clear of argumentative acquaintances and thereby keep out of trouble. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try not to irk a higher-up today or you could have more trouble than you can handle. Try to establish more harmony in the home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study further into new interests that have come your way, but don't make a definite decision until late in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The daytime may seem difficult but by evening all goes smoothly. Don't argue with your mate who is not thinking straight now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Postpone handling civic matters until the evening and then you can do a much better job. Avoid one who is temperamental.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan time to handle dull work that has been accumulating. You can make a fine impression on others at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to become more productive in career matters. Use your smile more and ward off a possible bad encounter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Absent yourself from home in the late afternoon when arguments could start. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Instead of arguing with a good friend, await until the evening when your thinking is changed, before making a decision.

DEAR ABBY

To summer cottagers: How to repel boarders

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Now that the summer season will soon be upon us, how about some help for us poor suckers who have summer cottages?

We've had our cottage for eight years, and each summer we grow more popular than the summer before. Friends and relatives come in droves to enjoy themselves in the sun and partake of our food and drink. They stay anywhere from a weekend to a full week. They always come empty-handed, of course.

We have even written notes in advance saying, "We are sorry, but we can't have you this year," — but they come anyway. Why are some folks so thick? We bought this place to get away from these people.

We don't want to seem cranky, but we'd like to entertain the guests we really WANT, without all these others "surprising" us. We're tired of running a free hotel, and are thinking of selling. Can you help us? — HAD IT IN MINNESOTA

DEAR HAD IT: If you've actually written to say you can't accommodate them, but they come anyway — your only salvation is to develop a thicker hide.

Bowden, Gillis to marry

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bowden of Lamesa Highway announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia Ann, to Daniel Andrew Gillis of Pampa. He is the son of B. J. Gillis of Pampa and the late Mrs. Gillis.

The couple plans to exchange vows at 11 a.m. June 21 in the Arizona LDS Temple at Mesa, Ariz.

Miss Bowden attended Brigham Young University and will be a junior student at Texas Tech University. She is a member of the National Honor Society.

Gillis was graduated from Texas Tech with honors with a BA degree in chemistry.

He will start Dental School in Houston.

Miss Bowden is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Bowden of County Road 40W and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Zant of Odessa.

Greet the unwelcome ones at the door with, "You may stay for a few hours, but when the sun disappears, please do likewise."

DEAR ABBY: You are so right when you say, "Live your life one day at a time."

After 13 years of a happy marriage, beautiful children, a successful husband (due to my help), a beautiful home and all the trimmings, my husband informs me that he is just not "happy" anymore!

At the same time, my brother's wife has decided the same thing. Strange? Not really. She is divorcing my brother (they also have a lovely home and two beautiful children) so she can marry my husband.

Need I tell you how much hurt and unhappiness these two selfish people have caused everyone involved?

So, here I sit, still in shock, very hurt and bitter, thinking of how wise your philosophy is.

"Live your life one day at a time."

That's all any of us really has. Sign me. — ALONE WITH TWO CHILDREN TO RAISE

DEAR ALONE: You asked for no advice, but may I give you some? Don't dwell on your bitterness, hurt and resentment. Turn your attention to putting your life together by pursuing new interests. Work on being a positive, attractive, likable person. You still have a lot of living to do. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is convinced that shampooing his hair will cause it to fall out.

Arnold is 25 and good-looking, but he's got this thing about losing his hair because his father was bald at 40. He never brushes his hair because if he sees a few hairs in his hairbrush he practically freaks out! And if he wakes up and finds a few hairs on his pillow, it spoils his day.

He's a wonderful guy, but you don't know how hard it is to sleep with a man who hasn't washed his hair since last July. Help! Maybe he'll believe you: I've given up. — HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Arnold that I said cleanliness and massage promotes the growth of human hair. He stands to lose more hair (and friends) if he allows rancid oil to collect on his scalp.

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet.

"How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to ABBY in care of this newspaper.

Administration calling for more gasoline yield

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, its energy policy under new attack today in Congress, is urging oil refiners to boost their production of gasoline to help ease shortages at service stations.

Refineries have been asked by federal officials to "help ease the immediate shortage by increasing the rate of use of available crude oil and gasoline stocks," says Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary.

Current oil and gasoline reserves could be tapped by as much as 380,000 barrels a day through the end of August, O'Leary said Tuesday in written testimony for the Senate Energy Committee.

Such a step would permit gasoline supplies to reach about 96 percent or 97 percent of last year's level and "help reduce long lines at gasoline stations," O'Leary said.

The statement appeared to reflect a significant change in administration policy, which previously had stressed the importance of building heating oil stocks for next winter — even at the expense of gasoline production.

However, O'Leary said crude oil and gasoline stocks could be drawn down "by a total of about 42 million barrels by the end of the summer without causing serious operational problems."

Meanwhile, House Democrats were meeting today on a proposal to put Democrats on record as opposing the president's decision to lift price controls on domestic crude oil.

Leaders of the move said it was possible that a vote by the Democratic caucus on their resolution might be postponed until Wednesday.

Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking subcommittee on economic stabilization, criticized the administration today for blaming energy shortages on Congress.

"Wherever one assigns the responsibility for this situation, there is clearly a stark absence of coherent leadership on this issue," Riegle said. His panel opened hearings on how the gasoline shortage is affecting independent oil suppliers and individual service station owners.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., organizer of the stop-decontrol campaign, predicted victory for his resolution at the caucus of all 276 House Democrats. But he said today that an expected poor turnout might postpone the vote until Wednesday.

"If we get a quorum, we have the votes," Moffett said. "I'd be shocked if we didn't win on a recorded vote."

However, obtaining the majority turnout needed for a quorum has often proved difficult in attempts to put the Democratic Caucus on record on controversial issues and Moffett said he's not taking anything for granted.

A staff study prepared for a House Commerce subcommittee claimed Monday that oil decontrol, combined with new federal gas pricing rules and inflation, will drive up the price of gasoline at least 20 cents a gallon by 1981.

And that assumes no further increases in world oil prices above the rate of inflation by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries between now and 1981, the report said.

Moffett's resolution would put House Democrats on record in favor of continued price controls on oil.

Although without legal force, such a vote would deal a heavy psychological blow to an administration energy policy still reeling from House rejection of the president's standby gasoline rationing plan.

"It's an attempt to gain momentum and send a signal to the White House," Moffett said in an interview. "At this time, we're gaining every day as House members get more and more angry."

Moffett said he also intends to offer a block-decontrol amendment on the House floor when the House considers legislation authorizing various Energy Department programs for fiscal 1980. At the White House Monday, press secretary Jody Powell criticized the approach being taken by Congress in dealing with energy problems.

"Re-imposition of controls would be a nice, cheap vote in its political appeal, but it would do nothing for our energy problem," Powell said.

Indy becoming nightmare

By HANK LOWENKRON AP Sports Writer INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500, regarded as the showcase of the U.S. Auto Club's schedule for years, has turned into a nightmare for the organization as controversy overshadows the question of who will win Sunday's $1 million race.

Jerry Karl, one of the drivers bumped from the field filed a protest over the time trials Monday. He said he and others in racing have "become victims of USAC's incompetence in enforcing its rules."

The denial of seven protests involving decisions made during the time trials was announced Monday by chief steward Tom Binford following a day of hearings on the protests.

Most of the protests involved efforts by USAC to enforce its regulations restricting engine power and claims that those regulations were changed last Sunday in the middle of the time trials which determine the 33-car field.

Binford, referee Art Meyers, USAC technical director Jack Beckley and race registrar Bob Cassaday held a closed-door hearing on the protests. They rejected claims that the regulations were changed since the track opened this month.

Binford said a notice stating competitors could qualify with at least an opening of 1.47 inches in an exhaust pipe that helps limit the amount of boost an engine receives was a warning to prevent further attempts to violate the rules and not a new standard.

THE PORTESTORS, who included drivers Larry Cannon, Al Loquasto and Spike Gehlhausen, disagreed. "Everything we told them was twisted to hit their fancy," said Loquasto, who was bumped from the field and was asking for a chance to regularly claiming a change in specifications.

"I'm talking to my lawyer. It's too bad that people running the biggest race in the world who are intelligent grown up in the organization with his brother, Pancho, and father both having driven in it for several years. "I'd like to stay with it, but they've really hurt my future with their poor leadership here."

AND WAYNE WOODWARD, an owner and mechanic on another car involved in the protests, is also with USAC which is trying to run a championship schedule this year after the deception of its biggest names to CART.

"I'm going to CART," he said. "It's not that I wanted to, but they've forced me."

Woodward said he was planning to file suit in federal court seeking an injunction to have his car placed in the field and to have the race halted until the issue is resolved.

However, USAC's regulations require an appeal of Monday's ruling to the organization's president, Dick King. That appeal must be filed by midnight Thursday and King would appoint a three-man committee to hear the appeal.

"I'm sure King would act quickly," said Binford about action on any appeals.

Cannon, however, said such an appeal would be "just a waste of time" and that he figured he'd have to go to court to gain satisfaction.

Attorney John Frasco represented Fletcher Racing and Penske Racing in their protests at the hearing. Frasco, who had to go to court to get 19 rejected CART entries into the race earlier, said he hoped the issues involved in the current dispute would not have to be taken to court.

FLETCHER'S TEAM was seeking to have a $5,000 fine it received for altering their waste gate exhaust pipes to affect the air flow. The attempt involved a car driven by Steve Krisloff. The attempt involved was disallowed, but he qualified in a later attempt.

Penske was protesting the disqualification of a car qualified by rookie Bill Alsop. An engine used in the car had been used in one qualified by another member of the Penske team, Bobby Unser. However, Penske claims the use of the engine was accidental and the disqualification was too high a penalty when compared to other cars that were allowed to qualify.

And John Martin, who wasn't allowed to file a protest because he lodged it after deadline, also was talking about legal action.

"I'm a USAC member, have been for a long time, but their actions are forcing to seek legal relief," he said. "The past 24 hours have given me the most mental anguish in my life," said the 40-year-old.

Erxleben signs million-dollar pact with New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints have signed their No. 1 draft choice, kicker Russell Erxleben of the University of Texas, to a six-year, million-dollar contract.

The contract was signed Monday, but no terms were announced. However, reports indicated it may have made Erxleben the highest paid kicker in professional football history.

The contract — a series of six, one-year pacts — reportedly included a $300,000 signing bonus and a sliding salary that will average about $150,000 plus bonuses.

Erxleben, both a punter and a kicker, holds the NCAA field goal record with a 77-yarder against Rice in 1977. He made three field goals of more than 60 yards and 11 of more than 50 yards.

Asked if he thought his distance would be cut by the National Football League rules which forbid use of a kicking tee, Erxleben said it might be reduced about 10 yards a kick.

But he said he didn't expect any trouble kicking off the artificial turf in the Superdome.

As a combination kicker, he scored 120 of 134 extra points attempted in college and 49 of 78 field goals. He punted 214 times for a 44.2-yard average, with a hang time on punts consistently more than five seconds.

Most NFL teams have a separate kicker and punter, but Erxleben said he plans to keep on kicking both ways.

He said coaches' resistance to having only one kicker might be because it would require two replacements if the kicker got hurt.

"But we don't get hurt that much," he said. "The kicking game is as important as offense and defense." Coach Dick Nolan told reporters, "Russell is capable of handling the kicking and punting jobs for us. I think we've corrected and cured our problems in that area."

The Saints already have a kicker, Rich Szaro, and a punter, Tom Blanchard.

Erxleben said he'll try to take both their jobs. "I've got to get it from them."

Besides, he said, Szaro now wears a No. 15 jersey, and Erxleben, who was assigned No. 14 by the Saints, said: "This is the first time in my life I've had a different number than 15. I've been wearing 15 since high school, college and Little League."

According to the NFL's player salary survey from 1978, Oakland All-Pro Ray Guy, a No. 1 pick in 1973, was paid $68,571 last season. The highest salary recorded for a kicker in the survey was $90,000 for an 11 year veteran, either Don Cockroft or Garo Yepremian.

Eddie Jones, executive vice president of the Saints, said he is "not sure Russell will be the highest paid kicker in the NFL but I'm sure he will be the highest scorer in the NFL."

Colonel Taylor wouldn't put his brand on just any old Bourbon.

Introducing Old Taylor 101

He was a mighty demanding man, Colonel E. H. Taylor. A stickler in everything he did. His brand didn't go on anything but the best. Back in the 1870's and 80's the Taylor brand marked some of the finest purebred cattle ever seen in Woodford County, Kentucky.

And the brand marked a very special kind of sour-mash Bourbon. Not just any old Bourbon. This was Old Taylor. An Old Taylor like today's 101. The kind of Bourbon Colonel Taylor liked to keep for himself and his special guests.

Colonel Taylor's herd is scattered now. But his brand of Old Taylor lives on. A real sour mash for real enjoyment. A full 101 proof, for full flavor. Old Taylor 101. It's a brand that true Bourbon lovers are bound to take to.

Old Taylor 101

PROOF

Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey, 101 Proof. Bottled under U.S. Government Supervision by The Old Taylor Distillery Co., Frankfort, Kentucky.

MC seeking tennis crown

WACO, Texas (AP) — Jim Powell of Cumberland College (Tenn.) went against Jeff Savage of Prince George's Community College today to get the national junior college tennis tournament under way.

Their contest, scheduled for an 8 a.m. start, was in the first flight. The tournament has six flights of singles and three flights of doubles.

The tournament's top seed is Mike Brunberg from Miami Dade South, Fla. No. 2 is Karl Richter of Odessa, Texas.

Odessa tied for the championship last year with Midland, Texas, and New Mexico Military Institute.

Players representing 49 schools are in the tournament. Coaches predict Odessa will repeat as champion, with Miami Dade South or Midland giving the strongest competition.

Among last year's returning players is Jose Rivera of Midland College, who won the singles championship in the fourth flight last year but who is playing in the first flight this year as fourth seed. He has signed a letter of intent with Texas Tech.

Zahid Maniya of Central Texas College, runner-up to Rivera in the fourth flight last year, also is in the first flight this year.

Tigers rough up Guidry: Mattack Lyle replaced Matlack at this point and was greeted by Butch Wynegar's single. Willie Norwood's pinch-single scored Morales and John Castino followed with the game-tying single.
