

Killer Bees return to tell where they've been hiding

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "Killer Bees" — antic heroes to some, fugitive obstructionists to others — have returned to the Texas state Senate and a triumphant welcome splattered with boos.

The 12 Democrats disappeared Friday and stayed AWOL for five days, robbing the Senate of a quorum until they returned Tuesday. In the process, they virtually assured defeat of a presidential primary bill thought to be tailor-made for former Gov. John Connally.

While the senators were gone, the Texas Rangers were called in but couldn't find them. It was a spectacle that enraged proponents of the bill — and amused many others.

When the senators returned, they told how they had done it.

Ten hid out in a one-room "safe house" within five miles of the Capitol — although one of those later fled the close quarters in favor of a smoke-free atmosphere in Houston. Another was in Oklahoma and the 12th was near the Mexican border.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby had called in the Rangers, pride of the state's law officers. But the best they could do was the mistaken arrest on Sunday of Sen. Gene Jones' brother, whose mustache should have set him apart from the clean-shaven senator.

Sen. Jones, it turned out, was the one at the 10-man hideout who left for another in Houston because he had recently quit smoking and couldn't stand it when the others puffed.

Eventually, the man hiding out in Oklahoma, Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena, broke the ice by driving back roads to meet with Hobby in Austin at 11 p.m. Monday. Hobby made a key parliamentary concession, and the next day the "Killer Bees" told Hobby by telephone that they would return at 3 p.m.

They turned up 12 minutes late, but in style — driving up to the Capitol in a motorcade escorted by state troopers. An ovation broke out in the Senate chamber — with some boos amid the cheers.

Only 19 senators had stayed at their desks, two short of the 21 needed for a quorum. Now, little time is left to complete business before the legislative session ends at midnight Monday, and Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz proclaimed, "I'm absolutely convinced SB1149 (the primary bill) is a dead bill for this session."

By a 17-14 vote, the Senate did tentatively approve on Tuesday a bill designed to establish a presidential primary in March 1980 — two months before the regular Democratic and Republican party primaries.

But the closeness of the vote indicated supporters won't get the two-thirds majority needed under normal Senate rules to bring the bill up for debate and final passage.

The "Killer Bees" disappearance followed indications from Hobby last week that he would suspend the two-thirds requirement and allow the primary to be adopted with a simple majority. The fugitives returned after he agreed to keep the normal rules.

School trustee defends board

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Questions on teacher attitude and specifics about the district's five-year plan brought an angry response from a trustee at Tuesday's meeting of the Midland school board.

The flurry followed a discussion of the district's five-year plan for state accreditation and a review of the top priority items in that plan — increasing test scores of minority and low achieving students.

Dr. Viola Coleman, whose questions to the board on minority test scores at the last meeting resulted in Tuesday's discussion, wanted to know specific new programs to be used to increase minority scores on standardized tests and methods of measuring and changing "teacher attitude," a point she said was one of the most important in student learning.

Staff members explained in-service programs were planned on telling teachers how to "relate," or communicate, to individual students and said several programs that had been successful in the past would be expanded during the next three to five years. Other entirely new programs also would be studied, they added.

When Dr. Coleman continued to press for specifics of these programs, Trustee Johnny Warren responded angrily that he resented "the inference that this district is prejudiced against minority students."

"I have watched for four years this district bend over backwards to do more for minorities than for others," he said. "I think we have a responsibility in this district to educate everyone, not just minorities."

"On the basis of your test scores," Dr. Coleman responded, "you're fulfilling your responsibility to the majority."

After repeating his resentment of "the implication the district is not doing or trying to do an adequate job on minority education" and stressing the district was committed through the five-year plan to raising minority test scores, Warren noted, "I think you're asking us to do special things just for minorities when minorities are part of our whole system."

"If minorities need special things, then yes, that's what I'm asking," she said.

On another topic brought up by the audience, board members said they would take formal action on Plan O, the controversial proposal to merge the city's two high schools, at a later meeting.

A non-binding referendum on the plan was defeated soundly during the April school elections, and board members indicated the plan was realistically dead. But they noted there still were two options open to them to deal with unequal enrollments at the high schools, and that those, too, would be addressed at a later meeting.

Also to come up again are the bus routes approved by board members at Tuesday's meeting.

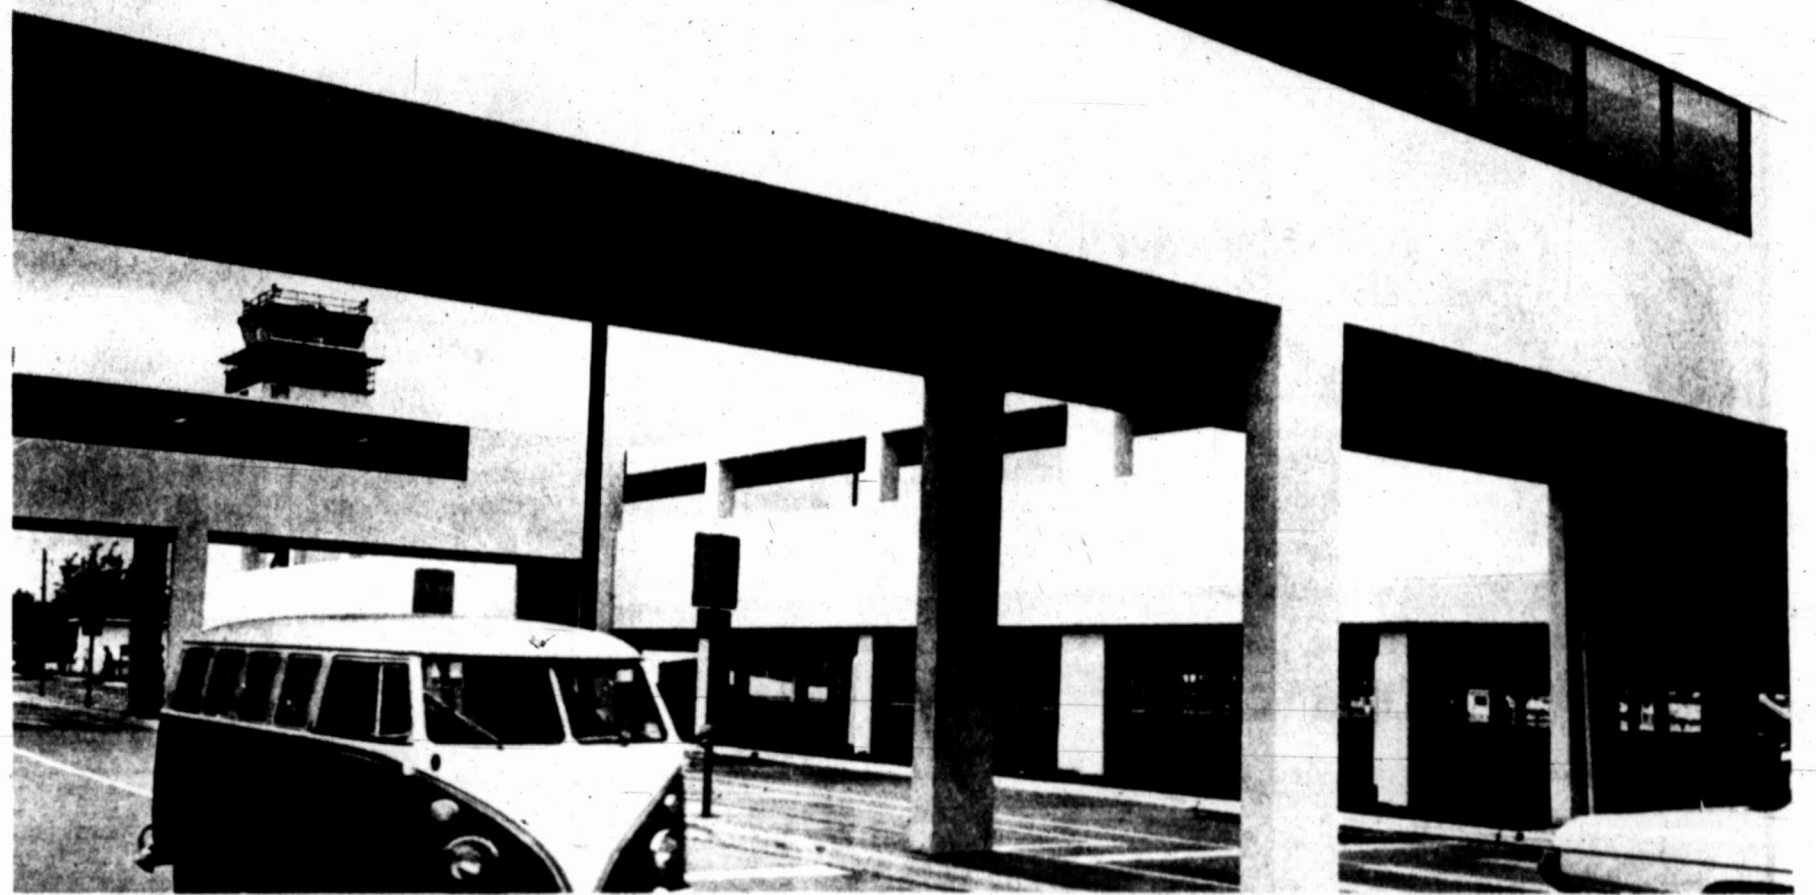

Board members questioned the reason only one of 17 rural buses took students to Lee High School, while the other 16 bus loads attended Midland High School. Changing that ratio, Schools Superintendent Dr. James Mailey implied, would be one way to equalize the enrollments, but he noted, "that would also necessitate boundary changes in town," an issue that also became controversial the last time it was discussed.

While the rural bus routes were approved so state reports could be turned in, trustees were assured the matter would be reviewed again before school started next year.

In other business, trustees approved principals' assignments for next year and awarded merit-based pay increases to 51 of the 85 teachers who applied for it.

Principals who will be moved next year and their new schools include Lee Roy Shannon from Henderson to Lamar; Robert K. Milam from Lamar to Henderson; Carl L. Pirkle

Shopping center concept approved

Magnatex facility finally on the road to completion

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

It was "a fair give-and-take everywhere," said attorney Pat Baskin Tuesday of the Magnatex revised proposal for a shopping center and planned district during its second appearance before the Midland City Council.

During a solemn presentation in which lawyers for opposing sides together presented a joint resolution, the revised "concept" of the Magnatex plan was approved unanimously by the City Council. Final drawings of a plat and details and the zone change will come before the council at its June 7 meeting.

This action puts the local development firm finally on the road to seeing the light of day with its plans. When first presented before the Planning and Zoning Committee in January, the plan drew vocal opposition from people living south and east of the area in question.

Although the plat had been revised since that first meeting, the neighbors claimed it did not answer their needs and finally joined forces and hired Baskin to represent them before the City Council's April 24 meeting.

Magnatex throughout the five months of work has retained Harrell Feldt as its legal representative.

The firm first wants the zoning on 57,398 acres in the southeast corner of FM 868 and North Midkiff Road changed from single family residences to planned district for a housing development (9,745 acres); LR-1, local retail district (2,128 acres); and LR-2, local retail district (45,517 acres).

The second request on Tuesday's agenda was to approve a preliminary plat for Midkiff Plaza, but it was delayed to give the firm more time to work on details.

The comparison between Tuesday's meeting and the April 24 one was like night and day. In April, the seven-hour meeting saw the council chambers overflowing with witnesses for Magnatex and the opposing neighbors and a brief sharp exchange between the two attorneys.

The latter meeting took slightly more than an hour, the attorneys presented the compromise together and few neighbors voiced their feelings with no one opposing this new plan.

In the intervening times, the two sides had representatives meet in several sessions and draw up a revised plan which reflected a compromise for both sides.

"These were grueling sessions that sandpapered the nerves occasionally, and each (side) felt we were yielding more than the other," Baskin said.

Feldt explained the proposal drawn up by the two sides. It includes a solid fence to be built by Magnatex along the southern and eastern borders of the retail section and to include the drainage basin; evergreen trees to be planted by Magnatex along the retail side of the fence; an area of single-family unattached houses next to Emerson Place and Meadowbrook Drive; a row of townhouses behind that and on the eastern border, and deadlines and building guidelines for Magnatex to meet.

When Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development for the city, reviewed the plan, his only objection was the closing of the end of Tealwood Street, which runs in front of the row of townhouses. An alternate plan suggested opening it onto Midkiff Road.

But, Baskin said the neighbors were opposed to that and suggested the council go with the first plan.

"We went down the list of Hennessy's report he made more than a month ago and reviewed his objections," Feldt told the council. "Most of these now have been resolved."

Angelo questioned Feldt as to who would maintain the drainage basin — the city or Magnatex.

Feldt replied, "It is there primarily to drain this area. It (drainage basin) is not something to just alleviate a problem that Magnatex will have created with the shopping center. It will help a problem that already was there, and Magnatex is doing it at considerable expense."

"I judge from that you all would rather not take care of it," Angelo said in a rhetorical manner.

Maintenance of the drainage basin will be resolved when Magnatex appears in June with its detailed plans and plat.

MidTran could get its first real "wheels" rolling in about 90 days with the acceptance Tuesday by the Midland City Council of a bid on vehicles.

A bid for $171,007 from Coachman and Equipment for seven vehicles was the winner, although not the lowest bidder. Superior's bid of $150,055 was the lowest of four.

Figuring it on a cost per passenger seat, though, the Coachman bid was lower, according to John Ingram, president of the non-profit corporation's board of directors.

Coachman's bid was for five 20-passenger mini-buses and two 12-passenger mini-buses which would include wheelchair lifts. Superior's bid was for five 15-passenger mini-buses and two 10-passenger mini-buses.

The winning bidder also promised delivery time within 90 to 150 days

Federal court delays executions in Florida

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — The executions of condemned murderers John A. Spenkelink and Willie Jasper Darden Jr. were delayed by federal court justices hours before the Death Row companions were to die Wednesday.

Spenkelink was the second of the two to be temporarily spared execution in the electric chair, and his reprieve came early Wednesday, less than seven hours before his 7 a.m. date with death.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall postponed Spenkelink's execution in a ruling issued in Washington. The appeal was rejected earlier by two Supreme Court justices.

Marshall told state officials to keep Spenkelink alive until the full Supreme Court could consider the case at its regularly scheduled closed conference Thursday.

"Given ... the irrevocable nature of the penalty to be imposed and the ability of the full court to consider this case within 36 hours at our regular conference, I believe it appropriate to grant the application for a stay until further action by the entire court," the justice said in his order.

Darden won his temporary reprieve when a federal judge delayed his execution 15 hours before he and Spenkelink were to die. U.S. District Judge William T. Hodges ruled in Tampa that Darden must be given time to appeal in the courts. Darden claims the prosecutor made inflammatory remarks during his 1974 trial.

At the prison here, Spenkelink's mother made what she believed was her final visit to her son late Tuesday. She was permitted two kisses and two brief embraces, said Spenkelink's brother-in-law, Tim Myers.

"She got a kiss going in, and one hug. She got a kiss going out, and one hug," Myers said, adding Spenkelink was bound by handcuffs.

Firms diverted oil to Europe, says Schlesinger

The Washington Post

PARIS — U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Tuesday there was "substantial evidence" that petroleum products that normally would be going to the United States have been diverted to Europe by oil companies looking for higher profits.

While Schlesinger did not name the companies involved, he indicated in an interview that he was talking about oil companies that have refineries in the "West Indies" outside American jurisdiction.

He also said that while the evidence pointing to a diversion of oil was not solid enough to take to court, he had no doubt that in recent months the United States has "had difficulty obtaining your fair share" of the world petroleum supply.

He did not elaborate on the nature of the evidence.

Schlesinger, who has been attending a meeting here of energy ministers from the 20 countries that belong to the International Energy Agency, conceded that his own pressure on American companies to stay out of any bidding war for uncommitted oil in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, "could have been a factor" in the recent oil pinch in the United States.

Rotterdam is the world's major market for oil that is not tied up by long-term contracts.

European Common Market Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner recently said "some oil was attracted here by the higher price paid in Europe." Privately, U.S. officials have said that 200,000 barrels a day were involved.

After having gotten companies to hold the line, Schlesinger switched signals several weeks ago, and urged U.S. companies to enter the Rotterdam market.

Apparently as a result, high-quality oil that had been selling for about $20 a barrel on April 1 now goes for about $30.

Schlesinger had said earlier that the Rotterdam "spot market" normally handles about 3 or 4 percent of the world's oil in international trade, but that recently it has been handling double that amount.

Since it resumed production, Iran has been placing substantial amounts of its crude, perhaps as much as half of its 4 million barrels a day in exports, on the spot market.

Schlesinger said that Israel and South Africa, whose long-term contracts with Iran were cut off by the new Islamic revolutionary government, have been bidding up spot prices in an attempt to maintain their supplies.

Diet foods won't disappear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diet soft drinks and other low-calorie food containing saccharin are in no immediate danger of being swept from grocery shelves even though a rule protecting them expires today.

A House health subcommittee was meeting today to prepare legislation to extend the congressional moratorium.

And even if Congress does nothing, saccharin products will not disappear overnight. Food and Drug Administration officials say that because of the bureaucratic red-tape involved no ban could take effect for at least 15 to 20 months.

In any event, cancer warning labels and store posters Congress required when it imposed the original 18-month moratorium are to stay in place.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of today's hearing on what to do with the controversial sweetener, has joined other lawmakers in endorsing a three-year extension of the moratorium.

"Everybody agrees that some kind of moratorium is necessary," said an aide to Waxman who asked not to be named. "But it's not rational to regulate food additives on a case-by-case basis."

She said the health subcommittee wants to review all food safety laws and look toward writing a "good, comprehensive and responsible" overall policy.

"We do not want to ban saccharin as a special case until we have some idea what the food and safety laws should be," she said.

Lobbying against the FDA is the diet food and soft drink's publicity arm, the Calorie Control Council of Atlanta.

The FDA says under its proposed ban saccharin still would be available as an over-the-counter tabletop sweetener.

Former officer convicted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A former Amarillo policeman has been sentenced to five years in prison for kidnapping.

An Austin jury deliberated an hour and 40 minutes Tuesday before convicting Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt of the March 1975 abduction of Jerre Tucker, 25, the only prosecution witness against Vanderbilt.

The former police officer still faces a capital murder charge in connection with the shooting death a month later, in April 1975, of 16-year-old Katina Moyer, the daughter of former State Rep. Hudson Moyer. No date has been scheduled for that trial, set to be heard in Beaumont.

Higher interest rates for 'small savers' proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key congressmen see a hard fight ahead for President Carter's proposal to help small savers by allowing banks and other financial institutions to pay higher interest on passbook accounts.

The president claimed the current ceilings on passbook accounts of 5 percent at commercial banks and 5 1/4 percent at savings associations "are costing the American people billions of dollars in lost interest annually."

Carter proposed raising government limits on savings account interest rates to money market levels as part of a comprehensive package of changes in existing financial regulations.

Market level interest rates vary, but on short-term Treasury bills, the current interest is 9.6 percent.

"I don't think you can write that the president is going to wave a wand and it will take place," said Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., a ranking member of the House Banking Committee said of the Carter proposal. "It's going to be tough."

The president's recommendations also include legalizing interest-bearing checking accounts nationwide and authorizing variable interest rate mortgages which would allow mortgage payments to rise and fall with overall interest rates.

In a statement released at the White House, Carter said the current system of financial regulations "has become increasingly unfair to the small saver."

Defenders of the ceilings on savings interest say their removal would harm savings and loan associations which are committed to long-term mortgage loans at fixed interest rates. They also contend that eliminating the one-quarter point differential between what banks and savings associations could pay could cause mortgage money to dry up.

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House Banking consumer subcommittee, said he supported the ceilings because he wants "to protect the home building industry in the United States." However, he added he would have to study Carter's package before taking a position on it.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal said the administration has no "blockbuster theory" for whipping inflation, and even if it did Congress probably wouldn't go along.

—A government report showed that new orders for durable goods — those that last more than three years — declined by 8.7 percent in April, fueling speculation that the economy is heading toward a recession. The drop was the largest in 11 years.

—Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, announced he would try for a third time to win committee approval for a bill to stem the flow of banks out of the Federal Reserve System.

Carter's proposal to permit interest-bearing checking accounts and seek fairness for the small saver was praised by Rep. Bernard J. St Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the House Banking subcommittee on financial institutions.

Interest-bearing checking accounts — widely known as NOW accounts — already are permitted in New England and New York, and accounts that offer automatic transfer from checking to savings have become popular across the country. However, under a U.S. Appeals Court ruling, automatic transfer accounts will become illegal as of next Jan. 1 unless expressly permitted by Congress.

While backing part of the Carter package, St Germain objected to the president's recommendation for variable mortgage rates, saying they "carry a great potential for harm to borrowers, particularly those with modest incomes."

Carter's plan appears to have strong support in the Senate Banking Committee, where its chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., along with Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., are already sponsoring a similar package, scheduled for hearings June 21.

Several contracts studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee says the Department of Health, Education and Welfare mismanaged so many contracts for outside consultants that the senators "had trouble deciding on which ones" to look into.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee called on HEW officials Tuesday to explain several contracts that HEW had awarded to outside consultants. It said many of them were expensive and ineffective.

Sen. Warren Magnuson, chairman of the full Appropriations Committee, said many of the consulting jobs could be performed by HEW employees.

"In addition to being a very costly personnel practice, it is damaging to employee morale and entirely inconsistent with congressional intent," Magnuson said.

"The vast majority of consultant costs, however, go toward information that is of marginal usefulness to HEW," he said. "The committee has found so many examples of HEW mismanagement in the consultant area that we had trouble deciding on which ones to bring up during this hearing."

"Far too much is spent with far too little return," he added.

HEW, like other federal agencies, can employ consultants to perform specialized duties, to evaluate programs or to undertake activities that the department staff cannot perform.

HEW asked a $236 million budget allotment for consultants in fiscal year 1979 — $42 million more than in 1978 and more than double the expense in 1977. Congress held the sum to $194 million.

The department employed 2,217 individual consultants at a cost of more than $9 million last year, Magnuson said. It has a work force of 143,644.

Magnuson and Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., deplored the fact that many consultant contracts aren't awarded until near the end of the fiscal year.

Hearing delayed

A hearing in the eminent domain suit brought by the Midland school district against the J.E. and Irene Hill estate has been delayed again.

The hearing has been indefinitely delayed because of a change in attorney for one of the heirs, according to Randall Lundy, attorney for MISD.

The district is exercising the right of eminent domain, which allows it to take any property for school use, for an expansion of Midland High School. The property in question is a little less than four acres between Illinois and Ohio avenues, bounded on one side by F Street.

The property to be acquired, which includes the Hill home built in 1902, will be used as practice fields for the high school, according to the district's master plan.

Gasoline remains readily available in Midland

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Although one standard adage has been "Go West, young man," the urban counties of California may not be the place to go just now.

While that state has received excessive news "mileage" because of tight gasoline supplies and high consumer demand, the situation in Midland is much different, local station managers said Tuesday in a random survey conducted by The Reporter-Telegram.

Even with tighter supplies as the month ends, gasoline is readily available, most station managers said.

And it will remain available through the weekend, though consumers may have to change their purchasing habits to obtain fuel when they need it.

Of the 10 local stations surveyed, only two said they would be open Sunday. However, four said they would be open Memorial Day with two more adding a "maybe."

About 30 percent of the stations reported they were normally closed on Sundays anyway.

Customers in Midland can also breathe a little easier about prices. While some station managers pointed to probable increases in the future, the price should remain stable through the weekend.

It's not that gasoline is abundant. In fact, most of the station managers contacted said they also have curtailed station hours slightly because of a tighter supply. To some, that hasn't been bad news.

"It sure helps to go home at six," Chester Pallanes, station manager at Chester's Chevron, 2300 W. Wadley Ave., said.

If anything, slightly shorter hours have kept gasoline available at most stations. About half of the station managers said they still had enough gasoline to last the month.

New allocation levels for June will be announced shortly by the U.S. Department of Energy.

On the local level, occasional, temporary shortages have occurred for unleaded and regular gasoline at individual stations. And one station reported a problem recently with premium. But with other stations citing little trouble with supplies, diligent consumers can still locate the product with a little extra effort.

The situation statewide may not be as healthy, however. One station manager reported finding gasoline in San Angelo last Sunday at a full-service station. The price was a whopping 90 cents per gallon.

Midland prices average in the mid-70 cent range for unleaded at self service pumps; low 70-cent range for regular.

As far as advice, station managers recommend that tanks be kept topped up.

"Keep a full tank," advised Bill Haywood, station manager at East 80 Exxon Service Station of 601 E. Front St.

Storing gasoline cans in cars can turn vehicles into firebombs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists who store cans of gasoline in their cars to avoid getting stranded without fuel are turning their vehicles into potential firebombs, the Transportation Department says.

"People are traveling with lethal liquid bombs in the trunks of their cars," said Joan Claybrook, administrator of the department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. "It's like riding around with dynamite that can explode at any time."

Storing gasoline at home also is risky, she said.

The trend toward storing gasoline in portable cans has been growing with recent concern about fuel shortages.

In California, where the shortages have been the most serious, there already have been several accidents caused when stored gas cans were ignited. Three persons, including two children died in one, and seven were injured in another accident.

In a statement Tuesday, Ms. Claybrook said the explosive power of a gallon of gasoline equals that of 14 sticks of dynamite.

"Even a minor rear-end collision or a spark from a short in a tail light or brake light could set off an inferno resulting in injury or death," she said.

Clark to lead Canada after Tory win

TORONTO (AP) — Joe Clark, a smalltown politician whose Progressive Conservatives toppled the formidable Pierre Elliott Trudeau and the 16-year reign of his Liberal Party in Canada's election, pledged today to put "a new spirit, a new life" into this divided land.

The Conservatives fell six seats short in Tuesday's balloting of the 142 needed for a majority, but the way was clear for Clark to form a minority government.

Trudeau, who became prime minister on a wave of "Trudeaumania" that swept Canada 11 years ago, now becomes the leader of the opposition in the House of Commons.

In New York, his estranged wife, Margaret, said: "Pierre Trudeau will be the best opposition leader known to the world." She made the comment at the Manhattan disco Studio 54 early today.

Because the Conservatives failed to win a majority of seats, the 39-year-old Clark must head a minority government that analysts say is not likely to last more than a year before he calls a new election.

But the outcome nevertheless may prove to be a turning point for Canada since the new prime minister now is the one who must try to keep separatist-minded Quebec from seceding and splitting the country in two.

Final returns for the 282 House seats gave the Conservatives 136, a gain of 38 over the seats they held in the Parliament dissolved in March.

The Liberals had 114 seats, a loss of 19; the socialist New Democrats 26, a gain of 9, and the right-leaning Social Credit 6, a loss of 3.

In the last Parliament, which had 18 fewer seats than this new one, Liberals held a 133-98 edge over the opposition Conservatives.

Popular vote totals, lagging behind, showed the Conservatives with 2.3 million votes (32 percent), the Liberals with 3.3 million (45 percent), the New Democrats with 1.2 million (17 percent) and Social Credit with 340,000 (4.5 percent).

These early vote totals were distorted because they included the heavy Liberal vote in Quebec but not the big Conservative vote in the West. The 59-year-old Trudeau, a smooth but tough political fighter who was the longest-serving government leader among the Western powers, told a tearful Liberal crowd at an Ottawa hotel early today he would "recommend to my colleagues that we hand the government over."

"Keep smiling and let's go on fighting," he urged his followers. Trudeau returns to Parliament now as the member of his home district in Montreal, where he handily won re-election, as expected.

Clark, who becomes the world's youngest elected major government leader, made his victory speech early today in Spruce Grove, Alberta, not far from the Rocky Mountain foothills town of High River where he grew up.

He reaffirmed the Conservative themes of his campaign, an attack on big government and economic troubles he claimed were caused by Trudeau's mismanagement.

The Conservatives, Clark said, will give the Canadians "room to grow, room to find their own dreams" and a government that will "stimulate the economy ... strengthen the institutions of democracy ... so the people will have a stronger voice."

The switch from Trudeau to Clark should mean little change in U.S.-Canadian relations, unless the new prime minister tries to carry out a campaign promise to move Canada's embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to disputed Jerusalem.

Lawsuits, delays, inquiries cloud nuclear picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, wanting to use the lessons it learned from the near-catastrophe at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, will not issue new licenses for nuclear plants for at least three months.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission agreed Monday to the waiting period proposed by Harold Denton, director of its Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation.

Only a few nuclear power plants are expected to be affected by the three-month hiatus, said Roger Boyd, director of the NRC's Division of Project Management.

At the same time, General Counsel Leonard Bickwit was asked to look into the NRC's legal authority to adopt a formal moratorium on nuclear plant licensing.

The commission's action came as the city of Lancaster, Pa., went to court to try to halt a planned discharge of radioactive wastewater from the disabled Three Mile Island plant.

The city asked a federal district court to stop the discharge until the federal government prepares an environmental impact statement showing the plan is safe. The city contends its drinking water could become contaminated by the discharge.

Also Monday: —The House passed and sent to the White House a measure that gives broad powers to the special commission named by President Carter to investigate the Three Mile Island accident.

—Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., released a task force report on the accident that suggested the failings of instruments and equipment played a larger part in the accident than operator error.

"I saw no operator error not closely related to design or equipment error," he said.

He also asserted that a similar mishap "not only could happen again but ... is likely to at any time" at another plant.

Denton, in his proposal, called for temporarily reassigning about 15 NRC staff members to form a "Lessons Learned" task force. That group would review at least a dozen issues raised by the March 28 accident at the central Pennsylvania plant.

Among the issues are operator training and licensing; accident analysis; equipment, instrument and control requirements; emergency preparedness, and the NRC's role in responding to an accident.

Denton said it would take about a month to determine how the accident's lessons could be applied to other nuclear plants seeking licenses and to order necessary changes.

Then, it could take plant owners another month to comply, he said. An NRC review could take still another month.

Boyd said three units in Davie County, N.C., could be ready for operating license consideration "no sooner than June" and two units at Inola, Okla., no sooner than July.

Construction licenses could come up for consideration almost immediately for a reactor unit at Salem, N.J.; in June for units at Mineral, Va., and Avila Beach, Calif., and in July for one at Daisy, Tenn.

The lawsuit filed by Lancaster noted that 105,000 people drink from its water system. Some of the water comes from the Susquehanna River only five miles downstream from the stricken plant's discharge pipes.

The suit was filed against the NRC, whose spokesman, Frank L. Ingram, said he could not confirm that the commission approved the discharge plan. "Any plan approved would be made public," he said.

But the suit charged that the NRC approved, without public notice, the plan to decontaminate 250,000 gallons of wastewater now in the plant's auxiliary building.

The suit said beginning in early June, the water would be passed through a decontamination facility now under construction outside the building, and then dumped into the river.

Bill aimed at auto 'chop shops'

Vernon Vasbinder discusses TSTA plans with Cecile Russell of Amarillo. Vasbinder, an Odessa teacher, will become president of District 18 of the Texas State Teachers Association June 1. Ms. Russell will take over as TSTA state president.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan team of senators introduced legislation Tuesday aimed at hamstringing "chop shop" operations in which cars are stolen and then disassembled so the parts can be sold. "An automobile theft takes place in this country every 32 seconds," Sens. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., declared. They said auto theft is no longer "a teen-age lark" but a $4 billion-a-year industry that the FBI regards as "one of the most lucrative illegitimate businesses today." Their bill would require automobile manufacturers to provide stronger locks and stamp body parts with identification numbers to make their resale more difficult. Biden and Percy said representatives of the Departments of Justice, State, Transportation, Commerce and Treasury and the Office of Management and Budget helped them draft the bill. "This legislation provides law enforcement officials with the necessary tools to stem the tide of professional auto theft," they said. "At one time, auto theft was almost exclusively a teen-age lark resulting in nothing worse than a joy-ride. The recovery of the stolen car routinely occurred in a matter of days, if not hours. "But now the joy-ride is over. Stolen cars are no longer routinely recovered." The senators said the lucrative "chop shops" operate in almost every major metropolitan area in the country. "Stolen cars are taken to clandestine garages where they are quickly 'chopped up' or disassembled by trained crews," they said. "The body parts, which presently have no identification numbers, are then sold for exorbitant profits to individuals in the legitimate auto repair market." "Organized crime has muscled into the auto 'chop shop' business through violence and intimidation and is now trying to expand its control," said Percy, the ranking minority member of the Senate subcommittee on investigations. He said the subcommittee, which is looking into organized crime, was told by the FBI that at least 16 murders in Chicago and four in New York had been traced to "chop shop" operations. The senators said such operations have caused the price of automobile theft insurance to soar, particularly in large cities. They said Boston motorists pay 11 times the national average of $29 per vehicle, New York drivers nine times the average and those in Chicago six times the average. But Biden said the problem is not confined to big cities. "Even though none of the largest U.S. cities is located in my own state of Delaware, we have the 12th highest auto theft rate in the nation," he said. "That means my constituents are paying dearly for the right to own a car."

Out on a limb

How fitting that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance should be celebrating "final agreement" with the Soviets on a SALT II treaty even as the Russians hedge their official announcements and describe the scheduled June 15 signing ceremony as "tentative."

As usual in the tortured history of these negotiations, the Soviets are playing it smart while the Carter administration unwittingly undercuts its bargaining position.

The fact is that the treaty is not yet nailed down. Secretary Vance himself acknowledged that additional negotiations will be required on "the few remaining secondary items which have not yet been resolved."

Then, too, Soviet and American negotiators in Geneva still must translate the agreements-in-principle reached by Mr. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin in recent weeks into specific treaty language.

Until both these tasks are accomplished, no text of the treaty can even be initiated let alone signed by President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The Soviets, as they have done since their very first tentative negotiations on strategic arms in 1969, take infinite care never to foreclose or compromise any chance to wring concessions from the overeager Americans. A dispassionate review of the known terms of SALT II suggests just how well they have succeeded.

As for the Carter administration, its distressing habit of prematurely predicting negotiating breakthroughs while publicly proclaiming its desperate desire to reach an accord has consistently weakened this country's hand in these critical talks.

The recent embarrassment, in which Moscow studiously avoided any echo of Mr. Vance's euphoric announcement, only underscores the point.

Secretary Vance's "final agreement" statement was greeted with stony silence from the Kremlin. The next day, Pravda and Tass merely reported Vance's statement without comment. And when Washington announced that President Carter and Mr. Brezhnev would meet in Vienna June 15 to sign the treaty, Moscow pointedly described the signing date as "tentative."

Clearly, the Soviets are leaving themselves room to maneuver during the final negotiating sessions in Geneva. And just as clearly, the Carter administration has climbed out on a limb from which it will be difficult to retreat gracefully should the Soviets refuse to follow the script in Geneva. It is not the Russians who will be embarrassed if a snag develops in resolving those "few remaining secondary issues."

Exactly what those issues are remains a closely held secret between Washington and Moscow. But obviously the Soviets view them as important enough to forestall their own participation in the kind of hoopla that went on recently in Washington.

But even secondary issues in a treaty involving the physical security of the American people must, by definition, be of surpassing significance.

An ill-timed plan

The goals of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's health care plan are high, as spelled out in the title he has given the legislation, the Health Care for All Americans Act.

But the goals are far overshadowed by the towering costs of the senator's plan.

The promise of unlimited hospital care and physicians' services as well as laboratory costs, drugs and ambulance services, for every citizen quite naturally wins the sympathy of a compassionate nation.

But the cost of the program, acknowledged by the Massachusetts Democrat to approach $30 billion annually to the government, with another $11.4 billion burden on industry and individuals, is insupportable in a time of runaway inflation.

Kennedy has conceded that his bill faces an "uphill battle," blaming special interests.

Those special interests must include the American taxpayer and consumer who bear the brunt of escalating living costs.

The measure is unreasonable, impractical and most certainly insupportable at this time.

ART BUCHWALD

It was a great day in D.C. when Jerry hit town

Jerry Brown came to town riding on a pony. Stuck a feather in his cap. And said rationing was baloney.

Art Buchwald

It's always nice to have Gov. Jerry Brown come to Washington. Despite what he thinks of those of us who run the country, we have no ill feelings toward Californians, and we are not punishing them because Brown wants to be President.

Some of our best friends are Californians, and we were as heartbroken to see them on TV waiting in line for gasoline as they were when they saw us last winter trying to dig out of our blizzard.

To show that we wanted friendly relations with California, Washington went out of its way to make Jerry Brown feel welcome. We decorated all our lamp posts with the U.S. and California flags.

Schools were closed so children could line the streets and see the governor, who may never get to Washington again. Elizabeth Taylor, who now lives in Virginia, was elected "Miss Gas Crunch of 1979," and the U.S. Marine Corps band rehearsed "California Here I Come" for two weeks.

Blair House, where heads of state stay during their visits, was put at Mr. Brown's disposal, and all the furniture was taken out to make him feel at home. The Chief of Protocol hired a backup rock band in case the governor decided to bring Linda Ronstadt with him.

Well, it was a glorious day. Gov. Brown landed on the White House Lawn on his own private rug, where he was greeted with a warm hug by President Carter and James Schlesinger.

President Carter read a statement vowing eternal friendship with the people of California, with whom the United States has had such warm relations over the years. He said that although California has a different culture and tends to panic easily, Washington still considers the golden state a vital part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and he hoped that he could persuade Gov. Brown to let the United States set up monitoring stations in Burbank to verify the SALT II treaty agreements.

Gov. Brown, without notes, was less diplomatic. He said that for years Washington had been ignoring the people of California and had taken them for granted. He felt that if it didn't get it, then he might rethink the alliance and become part of Mexico.

Then both men retired to the Oval Office for lunch.

The President had an omelette and Brown a bowl of Granola. Jody Powell, the President's press secretary, refused to say how the conversations went but rumor has it that during one exchange between Brown and Schlesinger, the governor broke the Energy Czar's pipe.

After the meeting, the President agreed to give California more oil as long as Johnny Carson remained with the Tonight Show. Gov. Brown, in a separate press conference, said he was pleased as far as the talks had gone, but said there were still major differences to be resolved, such as how much lead the United States was willing to take out of California's next allocation. He told reporters he was leaving Jane Fonda behind to work out the details.

President Carter offered to give Brown a State dinner, but the governor refused, explaining he had to get back to Sacramento, because in his absence Republican Lt. Gov. Mike Curb was overthrowing his government.

The President walked Brown to his rug and the governor took off without waving goodbye.

It was a day all of us in Washington will remember for the rest of our lives. No one could recall a reception for a head of State like it since former Mayor Abe Beame came to town to bail out New York City.

Mark Russell says

I love the English. I love their new queen. I also love Elizabeth II.

Actually, Margaret Thatcher is not the queen. She is the newly elected prime minister. Queen Elizabeth still rules and has more to think about than petty matters like forging a kingdom's new destiny.

The British still love their royalty. Their pride swelled as the queen addressed Parliament recently. It was one of the greatest speeches Margaret Thatcher ever wrote.

The speech heralded the dawn of a new conservatism in Britain — lower taxes, tighter budget, the decline of socialism. Come to think of it, it was one of the greatest speeches Howard Jarvis ever wrote.

All of which means — Howard Jarvis is the queen of England. Which makes Jerry Brown the knave.

California-style 'holy man' in search of gasoline

WASHINGTON — My goodness, was that Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. on Jimmy Carter's rich green lawn the other day, pleading for more gasoline for California, the state Brown claims he wants to miniaturize so it will become, say, a charming Luxembourg on the Pacific?

Has this apostle of think small, do with less, shrink it all before Judgment Day, backslid into the sinful doctrine of Dynamic Growth Forever? Or is Brown, as he pants for the Presidency, heeding the political sounds in California, and elsewhere, of honking horns and angry motorists gnashing their teeth on a thousand gas station ramps?

"California is in a state of shock, frustration and anger," Brown diagnosed for a gathering on Mr. Carter's premises. "I have a hunch it (meaning the gas situation) will spread. Gas and job growth have been associated. If we are told, no more gas, that means no new jobs for the rest of the year. And that means a recession and serious challenge to this country."

Those pronouncements sound more like what would come from the mouths of Economic Strength Through Growth advocates and other hawks for increased energy production. They are contrary to what Brown has preached during his California mission. Indeed, they are contrary also to what he has practiced.

There is merit in Brown's instructions that we can all cut waste through a sense of purpose, even spirituality, rather than through means of sheer economic motive. So when he admonishes the affluent to do with a little less, cutting down on gadgets and, say, an extra steak or a country club membership or two, he often strikes a sympathetic chord.

But gasoline is also greatly wasted in this Republic, and here is Brown, on the doorstep of Jimmy Carter, a devout man to be sure, blaming the California gas troubles on the oil companies Edmund Sr. always loved, and demanding more gas at the same time.

It must be remembered that many knowledgeable observers in California claim that Brown's disciples in state government stopped the SOHIO project, thus depriving that state of new supplies of petroleum products. His administration is also credited or blamed for: delaying development of liquid natural gas; losing one million gallons of gasoline per day because of super-strict clean air standards at refineries; driving utilities, desperate for new power plants, to foreign places like Nevada.

The record shows that the California Energy Commission has not licensed one new electric power plant (except geothermal) in all the years Brown has been governor. At great expense to consumers, Brown helped delay the opening of Diablo Canyon nuclear plant — set to begin operations in June — was instrumental in the closing of the Rancho Seco plant, and stopped plans for the Sun Desert nuclear plant.

Indeed, Brown, sniffing the air after Three Mile Island, now calls for a total abandonment of nuclear power as an energy source. He won't wait until the score or more of investigations of poor old T-M-I are complete. Death to the nukes, he cries, wrapping his arms around Jane Fonda. Naturally, Gov. Brown knows that President Carter, his rival, is supportive of a reasonable development of nuclear power, and in Democratic liberal circles these days, could be embarrassed for this stand.

Otherwise, how do we explain Brown's speech to the AFL-CIO building and construction trades convention in San Francisco, September, 1975, wherein he said, "I think nuclear power is an inevitable development.... It ought to be limited, but I think we ought to move forward in the places where it is the safest to build it...."

Tsk, tsk. If Brown could only read those words now. He could feel as awkward as he might this summer in California if heat waves strain power generating capacity, and utility executives lament, gee, if we only had that Rancho Seco plant going. If there are power failures in the summer of 1979, will they be called Brown-Outs?

Ah, what we are really in is the beginning of the 1980 campaign. Brown is running and taunts Carter. Kennedy says he is not running and taunts Carter. The president catches it from all sides, Jesuitical, Boston, anti-SALT and anti-Panama Canal, and commits his own errors of execution as well.

Carter can't figure out how to punish these two Irishmen, Brown and Kennedy, for their impudence. He can't lay a glove on Kennedy. For him to go after Brown, would mean a Holy Man trying to Out-Holy a California-style Holy Man. Maybe Jimmy could sic Billy Graham on Brown.

Gov. Clements urged to veto split primary

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — More than one-third of the 150-member House has urged Gov. Bill Clements to commit himself to vetoing a split presidential primary in order that the Legislature can get "back on course."

The five-day absence of 12 senators opposed to holding a presidential primary in March 1980 — two months before the regular party primary elections — has stalled legislative action.

"We believe that you hold the key to solving this problem," 58 House members told Clements in a letter.

The 140-day regular session must end by midnight Monday. The letter, dated Monday, reads, in part:

"With a single action — your public commitment to veto a separate, costly presidential preference primary and to prohibit special session consideration of this subject — you could provide the leadership necessary to get this Legislature back on course."

"This is no reason whatsoever that any good legislation should die in this session."

One-room house cramped Killer Bees' style

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Things were going as planned last Friday as Sen. Ron Clower picked up his Senate colleagues Carlos Truan and A.R. "Babe" Schwartz shortly before 7:30 a.m.

By 8 a.m., Clower said 10 senators, who later would make international headlines as the Killer Bees, had assembled at a northwest Austin one-room location. Two other lawmakers went undercover at separate locations.

For the next five days, the senators listened for strange noises as they eluded Texas Rangers and state troopers sent to arrest them and return them to the Senate.

When it ended at 3:12 p.m. Tuesday, the rebels had killed chances of a 1980 presidential primary measure passing the Texas Legislature this session.

Clower, D-Garland, said Tuesday the plot began at the Capitol last Thursday, following a Senate session.

HE SAID EVENTS went as follows:

"We went around and notified those senators and got agreements in sufficient numbers to make final plans."

"We executed the plans the next morning by 8 a.m. I went and picked up people, Schwartz and Truan, and took them there. The others knew where to go. We got there and had breakfast, just a regular breakfast that a friend of ours made — scrambled eggs."

"The cars were driven directly to the home but parked 75 yards away, around the corner. They weren't parked directly at the house. Then someone, aides, came by and drove the cars away to the airport."

Clower said his wife knew the group would steal away, but she did not know where they were.

Life inside the hideout soon became confined, said Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

"We did not go out for fear that people would see us," he said. "Everytime we could hear any kind of strange noise, we peeped out the window."

Some senators only brought one change of clothes.

"WE WERE GIVEN a change of underwear when we got there," Truan said.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, said he walked around in his shorts and Killer Bee tee shirt until Truan hid his cigarettes.

"Some of the senators were smoking and I couldn't stand it," Truan said. "I got up real early one morning and I hid their cigarettes."

Vale said he shaved and got dressed for the first time after his cigarettes disappeared.

"I told them, 'Unless I get them back, I'm going to walk out of here and I'm going to walk to the nearest store to buy some. If I get caught, I get caught. I out-bluffed them because they were soon back,'" he explained.

Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, joined his colleagues at the Austin hideout but later fled to Houston. Jones recently quit smoking and said the smoke bothered him.

THE OTHER TWO Killer Bees not laying low in the 20 feet by 14 feet room were Chet Brooks of Pasadena and Raul Longoria of Edinburg.

Longoria would not say where he hid after fleeing state police at the courthouse in Edinburg, near the Mexican border, Friday. Brooks was in Oklahoma near Lake Texoma.

Brooks said his staff maintained contact with the other renegades and set up locations where he could take phone calls from the other Bees.

It was Brooks who broke the ice in a stalemate with Hobby.

The senator drove from Oklahoma on back roads through heavy rains Monday night and arrived in Austin for an 11 p.m. meeting with the lieutenant governor. Hobby agreed in effect not to allow passage of the presidential primary bill without a two-thirds vote.

The Killer Bees said Hobby indicated last week he would let the bill pass with only a simple majority.

EARLY IN THE legislative session, Clower collected signatures of 12 other senators who pledged to vote against a presidential primary held separate from May general party primaries. Only 11 votes are needed to block consideration of legislation under normal Senate procedure.

Four of those signing Clower's list were Republicans who did not participate in the Killer Bees episode.

Never did the renegades have second thoughts about their drastic action, especially after they listened to tapes of their colleagues' speeches during the five days.

The speeches — which often referred to the Killer Bees as "fugitives from the law" — provided inspiration, said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

"We started thinking up meaner things," he said. "It toughened everybody up."

DOGGETT SAID Lt. Gov. Bill

Hobby's threat to remove Killer Bees from committee chairmanships "reinforced feelings that we would stay away until Tuesday midnight."

Only after Brooks extracted a pledge from Hobby on Senate rules, did the runaways agree to return early.

While they were gone, the Killer Bees colleagues often joked that the filibuster-prone absentees probably were talking each other to death.

Bees draw rave reviews, condemnations from papers

By The Associated Press

Texas "Killer Bees" caught the fancy of the state and nation this week, and one newspaper said the 12 state senators "deserve applause" for the imaginative way they killed a piece of legislation they didn't care for.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, one of many which editorialized on the issue in its editions this week, said the senators fought their fight "with good humor, imagination and with serious intent underlying it all."

They drew rave reviews from other newspapers, also, but the praise was matched by editorial comment in other newspapers blasting the senators as being irresponsible by hiding out for four days, denying the Texas Senate a quorum and preventing it from meeting.

The 12 senators drew nationwide exposure after they fled the Capitol in protest of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's method of trying to push through a bill that would split Texas' presidential primary.

Hobby, for want of a quorum, ordered Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety officers to track down and arrest the itinerant senators. None was ever found, although one barely escaped out the back door of his home while officers were mistakenly arresting his brother at the front of the house.

The San Antonio News, noting the nationwide publicity, said: "The Killer Bees and the pursuit thereof has been good for Texas."

Hobby is "acting like a spoiled child," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said in its Wednesday edition.

"The 12 who fled to make their point in the battle over separate primaries may have gone to an extreme but sometimes an extreme action is needed to prevent another extreme."

The Beaumont Enterprise-Journal said trying to explain the senatorial disappearance is "frustrating and there's no way you can do it without feeling embarrassed and disgusted — but also a little bit proud. ... Perhaps this extreme action was necessary to uncover Austin's back room politics."

The San Antonio Express, calling the ploy "an amusing tactic," said "a complex political evolution in Texas" of Democratic crossover voting was behind the move.

Segelke helps Midland snap skid with victory

BY TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

Herman Segelke snapped a three-game Midland Cubs losing streak by notching his fifth win without a defeat this season, thanks to a five-run fifth inning that gave the Bruins a 6-5 come-from-behind win over Arkansas in the opener of a doubleheader at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night, but they were still looking for their first doubleheader sweep of the season.

Arkansas bounced back to win the nightcap 5-4 as a reformed home run hitting first baseman held the Cubs to four hits, all in the first two innings, to give the Travelers a 3-1 edge in the series between the East and West division leaders of the Texas League.

THE JACKSON Mets, who left home last week as co-holders of first place with Arkansas in the East, come into Midland for a five-game series starting at 7:30 p.m. today. Manager Randy Hundley will start lefthander Bill Earley, 2-3.

Segelke, whose 5-0 record is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that he didn't start a game until April 29, was rapped hard in the early innings before settling down to hold the Travelers to one lonesome hit over the final three frames in notching his third route-going effort.

The Cubs trailed 5-1 going into the fifth as a result of a run-scoring tangle by Jim Riggleman in the second, Fred Tisdale's two-run triple in the third and Gene Dotson's sole homer and Joe DeSa's run-producing single in the fourth.

And the way Arnold Kirchenwitz, the righthander from Wisconsin via Mesa, Ariz., J.C. was throwing, it looked solid.

HOWEVER, a leadoff walk to Dan Rohn in the fifth, Jesus Alfaro's single up the middle, a force out and an error on Eric Grandy's grounder to short and trouble was brewing as Rohn scored. Jim Tracy then doubled into the left field corner for a run and Kirchenwitz left in favor of Chris Davis, 0-3, who was to lose in bizarre fashion.

Carlos Lezcano's chopper down the third base line hung in the air so long, Carlos beat it out for a hit. Mike Turgeon then dribbled a grounder down the third baseline as Troy streaked home. Riggleman got the runner at first, but Lezcano raced for unprotected third and slid in safely. When the hasty throw found no recipient and wound up in the Midland bullpen, Lezcano brushed himself off and jogged home with what turned out to be the winning run.

The second game was another story, although both ends of the doubleheader were well played, exciting games. The Cubs jumped in front promisingly enough with a 4-2 lead after two innings, but then Hector Eduardo, a smoke throwing righthander from the Dominican Republic, settled down and snuffed out the Cubs without a hit in the final five innings to run his record to 4-1.

EDUARDO BROKE into baseball five years ago as a first baseman and led the Gulf Coast League in homers. But he struck out a lot. In fact, it was either home run or strikeout and the strikeouts began to so outnumber the homers that when the St. Louis Cardinals found out he could throw in the low 90 mph range, the transition to pitcher was made. He was 13-7 last year at St. Petersburg, A Florida State, and after a two-run homer to Jesus Alfaro in the first and the two run second, he was invincible whiffing five in going the distance.

The Travelers tied it 4 against starter Vinnie Valenti in the fourth on a walk, Gene Dotson's double and Ty Waller's two-run single. They won it in the seventh off lefty Tom Butler, who gave up a walk, and doubles to Jim Riggleman and Tito Landrum, the latter knocking in the game winner.

CUB QUICKIES—The split left the Cubs with a 4-8 mark in doubleheaders this season...Midland infielder Javier Fierro was married Tuesday, but was on hand for both ends of the twinbill. Javier thinks he might spend the off-season in Midland, if he

Alexander signs pact

CINCINNATI (AP) — Charles Alexander, the All-American running back from Louisiana State, didn't waste any time signing a contract with the Cincinnati Bengals.

"I'm satisfied," the Bengals' first-round draft choice said after signing a five-year contract Tuesday that had been negotiated quickly by Alexander's agent and the Cincinnati front office. Terms weren't announced.

Alexander rushed for 4,035 yards and 40 touchdowns at LSU and gives the Bengals something they haven't really ever had at halfback, size and speed.

At 218 pounds, he runs the 40-yard dash in 4.4.

Padres unexpectedly give Perry raise

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran Gaylord Perry, the only pitcher ever to win the Cy Young Award in both the American and National leagues, says the San Diego Padres unexpectedly called me upstairs and that was it — a 1980 contract for $200,000 that included a $25,000 raise.

The decision to sign took less than five minutes, said Perry, 40. He has a 3-4 record this year with a 3.13 earned run average.

Indy problems mount as race nears start

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The reality of racing is little more than an afterthought at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today with the possibility looming of either a 44-car field or no race at all when the starting time arrives for Sunday's Indy 500.

Matters came to a boil Tuesday when car owner Wayne Woodward filed suit to halt the $1 million race and the U.S. Auto Club decided to offer 11 other entrants an opportunity to qualify their cars in a special session Thursday.

Woodward's suit, filed in Marion County Superior Court and scheduled for a hearing Thursday, asks the race be stopped unless his car is reinstated. Woodward's racer was removed from the lineup after qualifying amid allegations of cheating on power restrictions imposed by USAC.

WOODWARD'S CAR, driven by Dick Ferguson, was not among the 11 offered an unprecedented chance to win places in the field. All of those cars were bumped from the grid during time trials by faster cars.

Any of the cars in the special session qualifying faster than the slowest car now in the field — placed there by Roger McCluskey at 183.908 — would be relegated to the back of the traditional 33-car lineup.

The offer was made by USAC President Dick King under a USAC competition rule allowing special rulings "for the well-being of automotive competition." The only stipulation was that all 33 entrants already in the race agree in writing to the extra qualifying round.

Lindsey Hopkins, owner of the car that Johnny Parsons has qualified in the third row, wouldn't speak for his fellow owners, but said: "I'll agree to it. I think it's a temperate, wise decision."

King said the action was taken because the 11 cars involved qualified before a USAC bulletin was issued prior to the final day of time trials "suggesting" that intake exhaust pipes have a minimum inside diameter of 1.47 inches. The bumped drivers said that amounted to legalizing attempts to override power restrictions and put them at a competitive disadvantage.

ed and sealed. They must be used on race day in the same configuration as was used during qualifications.

"Nevertheless, many of these previously qualified but bumped car entrants feel that they were deprived of an opportunity to qualify with a reduced exhaust pipe. If the other 33 entrants agree, we will give them that opportunity."

WOODWARD'S CAR was not included because Ferguson had a second qualifying attempt but failed as his engine died in the final hour of time trials Sunday. Earlier qualification runs of Krisloff and Bigelow also were disallowed, but they were able to make the field later after restrictions in the exhaust pipe were removed.

Ferguson's qualification run was disallowed Saturday when officials found that the exhaust pipe had been welded shut. While other cars had used a washer to shrink the size of the pipe, Ferguson's case was considered flagrant.

Woodward said he filed the suit out of desperation. "I don't want this race halted on my behalf in any way, shape or form unless that's what it takes to put my car back in the race," he said.

Named as defendants in the suit were USAC, the Speedway and Eldon Rasmussen of Indianapolis, who qualified in 33rd and last position for the race. Woodward said one driver would have to be bumped if Ferguson were reinstated, and Rasmussen was listed although his speed isn't the slowest in the field.

Jim Palmer ailing again

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Palmer, the ace of the Baltimore Orioles' pitching staff, is ailing once again.

The 33-year-old right-hander, who has 220 career victories, was scratched from his scheduled starting assignment against the Boston Red Sox tonight after complaining of a sore right elbow.

"The pain moved from the forearm to the elbow," said Palmer, who also has been bothered this season with back and forearm injuries. "They both have the same tendon grooves. I felt it Monday when I came out to the park and threw."

Horner, Braves await arbitration

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner apparently is just what the Atlanta Braves need — a potential superstar at 21, mature beyond his years. Yet because of a contract technicality, within a few days he may be available to the highest bidder.

The blond bomber, fresh off the campus of Arizona State University, stunned the baseball world by crashing 23 home runs and knocking in 69 runs in only 89 games a year ago to sweep National League Rookie of the Year honors.

The Braves were smiling. Their No. 1 draft pick in the June draft had blossomed.

That all came to an abrupt halt during the winter, however, when a contract dispute arose. Horner and his Dallas-based agent Bucky Woy decided to go to arbitration.

That process is expected to culminate the first week in June when an arbitrator at the University of Kansas, law professor Ray Goetz, decides whether the youngster belongs to the Braves or goes on the free agent market.

Since the winter, Horner has run into other roadblocks but it has not deterred him from hitting a baseball.

First, Horner missed nearly all of spring training because of the contract squabble. Then he suffered a fractured bone in his ankle during the season opener and missed 31 games.

But since his return a week ago, and despite the booring of the hometown Atlanta fans, Horner has reacted by slamming three homers and driving in nine runs in only 25 at bats while hitting .280, including a three-run, game-winning home run Monday night against the Houston Astros.

"I should be hitting .800 right now the way I'm swinging," Horner said Tuesday. "My outs are line drives right now. Everything considered — reporting late to spring training, arbitration, the ankle injury, the so-called sophomore jinx — I felt like I had a few things to prove to myself."

"The way things have turned out, I think I can play under any circumstances," he said. "I don't think anything could happen that would bother me after all this."

It is the attitude of the 6-foot-2, 210 pounder that impresses most onlookers.

"When you walk on the field you leave your troubles in your locker. Whatever the case, you have to put it all behind you and do the best you know how," he explained.

He also said his impressive start has got to help if he wins free agency, which he is confident will happen.

"It obviously has to help. If I had come back hitting .100 and making errors in the field it would have put question marks in people's minds," he said.

"It would have put questions in my own mind. But I've come out playing pretty good off the bat. It can't do anything but help our position."

The arbitration hearing came about when the Braves offered Horner $100,000 for the 1979 season. He was asking for a multi-year contract at between $250,000 and $300,000 per year.

He earned a $150,000 signing bonus and $21,000 in salary last season and Woy claimed the Braves could not offer Horner less than $146,000 for this season under baseball rules that allow a maximum cut of 20 percent.

"We wouldn't have taken it this far if we didn't think we would win. Obviously, I'm not 100 percent sure but I am enthusiastic and I have my fingers crossed. I'm more confident than ever that we're going to win," said Horner.

He, however, did not rule out playing in Atlanta, if he wins.

"Yes, there's still a chance I'd stay in Atlanta. I've always said I'd be willing to talk to the Braves if I'm a free agent," said Horner.

"However, if I would stay with the Braves, it would be because of the players. My squabble is not with the players, it is strictly with the front office."

Watson snubs Rose, Brock set pace

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson resists all talk that he's on the same plateau as Jack Nicklaus because of one yardstick: major professional golf championships.

Nicklaus, 39, owns 15 of them. The 29-year-old Watson has only three majors — two British Opens and one Masters.

"That's what I need to do — win more major championships. That's how the press, the fans, my peers judge a player. I'd like to win all four of the major championships right now," said this year's leading money winner.

Watson resumes his duel with Nicklaus Thursday in the opening round of the $329,000 Memorial Tournament over the Muirfield Village Golf Club, 7,101 well-manicured yards that Jack hunted on as a youngster.

Watson, bidding for his fourth victory of 1979, needs just $126 to reach $300,000 for the third straight season. To the look-alike for Huckleberry Finn, that's unimportant.

"Money's not my yardstick — how well I play is the main thing. What you ought to do is check who finished one-two and forget the money. The purses have gone up so," he said.

Can he ever reach the level of Nicklaus, winner of 66 tour events? Watson has 14 victories.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lou Brock and Pete Rose must have the geriatrics set disco dancing.

The latest look at National League baseball statistics show Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals and Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies one-two in the batting race.

What stirs the elderly set is that Brock and Rose total 77 years in age and 36 years as major league ball players. Brock is leading the race with a .371 batting average and Rose is seven points behind at .364.

These two so-called old-timers of the game represent a total of 6,155 hits, 1,050 doubles, 250 triples and 1,851 bases on balls. That's not to mention Brock's all-time major league record of 920 stolen bases.

What makes the performance of Brock and Rose so exceptional is that if you peruse baseball books you'll find less than a handful of players in their late 30s still performing on a regular basis as if they were kids.

The 38-year-old Rose attempted to explain his longevity as a peak performer.

"I do a lot of things to prolong my reflexes," said Rose, who now plays first base for the Phillies after 16 years in Cincinnati.

"I think the fact that I don't smoke and don't drink has something to do with it," said Rose, who played out his option at Cincinnati last year and signed a multi-year, multi-million dollar contract with Philadelphia.

Rose admitted that he is constantly confronted with his age.

"My philosophy is that everybody has to be judged as an individual," Rose said. "Some athletes are through at 21, some at 28, some at 30, they're finished at all ages."

The 39-year-old Brock — he'll be 40 June 18 — announced in April that he would retire from baseball at the end of the 1979 season.

The St. Louis outfielder is coming off his worst season as a major leaguer. He hit just .221 last year. Most people said he was washed up. But Brock has fooled them all.

"I'm a professional," said Brock, who in 1974 stole 118 bases for an all-time major league record. "I know how to play. I know how to work out the problems (of last season)."

Brock shook his head sadly as he thought of the 1978 season. "I had an off year, a terrible year," the outfielder noted.

"But championship players bounce back. I have pride in ending my career, leaving in a blaze of glory, getting 3,000 hits," the outfielder said.

He now has 2,936 and needs 64 to join the small club of 13 players who have 3,000 or more hits.

Brock said definitely that even if he had a great season, he would not change his mind about retirement.

"Just as you know when to start, you have to know when to end. That time has come for me," Brock said.

Aztecs earn coup by signing Cruyff

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Professional soccer has never made much of a splash in Southern California, but that situation figures to change drastically in the near future.

That's because the Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American Soccer League have signed Johan Cruyff, considered one of the all-time greats of his sport, to a multi-year contract.

"I am a gambler and in football (soccer) all along I took risks," said Cruyff Tuesday night at a news conference where his signing was announced. "I think within a very short period we can get a lot of people in the stands and if we get a lot of people, I will be the highest paid athlete in California."

WACO, Texas (AP) — Top-seeded Mike Brunberg of Miami Dade South, second-seeded Karl Richter of Odessa College and all six Midland College entries breezed through their matches Tuesday on the opening day of the rain-plagued National Junior College men's tennis tournament here.

Heavy afternoon rains forced a series of delays totaling more than two hours, but two scheduled rounds of singles were finally completed with only one upset occurring.

Leading the MC charge was fourth-seeded Jose Rivera, who defeated George Savage of Prince George, 6-1, 6-2, in a second round first flight match. All the Chaparrals received first round byes.

Niekros are showing some kind of brother act

By The Associated Press

That's some brother act, Phil and Joe Niekro.

Only three other sets of brothers have won more games combined in the history of major league baseball. And Joe sweetened his career figures Tuesday night with his 100th victory.

"He's got a lot of good years left," says Phil Niekro after watching his younger brother pitch the Houston Astros to a 4-1 victory over his Atlanta Braves. "He's got the confidence a knuckleball pitcher needs, plus he's got other pitches better than I do, like his fastball and slider."

The pride of brotherhood overshadowed the pain of defeat and Phil Niekro bowed to the victor by sending him a bottle of liquor with a note that said, "Congratulations."

"It's just probably cheap wine," joked Joe.

Then he got serious.

"I consider myself a good knuckleball pitcher," he said, "but Phil is a great one. No one in baseball has a better knuckleball than Phil."

Joe Niekro's career victory total is roughly one half of his more illustrious brother's — 100 to 202. He's 33, while Phil is 40.

"I'll never catch up with him," said

Joe. "If he ever retires, I'll try to. But I may retire before him, the way he's pitching."

Incidentally, the brother combinations ahead of the Niekros in victories are, Gaylord and Jim Perry with 485; Johnny, Art and Walt Clarkson with 380 and Christy and Henry Mathewson with 373, all of them by Christy.

The only run off Niekro, 5-2, came on Bob Horner's RBI single in the ninth. The Astros took advantage of two Atlanta errors in a three-run fifth. With two out, Houston got consecutive singles from Julio Gonzalez, Jose Cruz and Cesar Cedeno, the latter driving in one run, and Cruz and Cedeno each advanced on an extra base when Jeff Burroughs bobbled the ball in left field.

Jeff Leonard was safe at first and Cruz scored when first baseman Bob Horner dropped a throw that would have ended the inning. Cabell then lined his single to right, scoring Cedeno. Mickey Mahler was the loser.

Phillies 3, Cardinals 1

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer in the ninth carried Philadelphia over St. Louis. Cardinal right-hander Bob Forsch had a four-hitter starting the ninth and retired the first batter. But Pete Rose singled to right. The slump-ridden Luzinski worked the count to two balls and two strikes, then lined a pitch over the right field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

"I liked where he hit it," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark of Luzinski's opposite-field blast at Veterans Stadium. "That's the direction that shows he's coming out of his slump. I hoped he learned something tonight. We've been trying to get across to him for two years there is a right center and a left center and a straight-away. Most of his homers go to left."

Luzinski agreed.

"He (Forsch) made some pretty good pitches (in the ninth)," said the Philadelphia outfielder they call "The Bull." "I was trying to drive the ball. I had a very good feeling about that at-bat."

Mets 4, Cubs 2

Richie Hebner drove in three runs to back the combined six-hit pitching of Kevin Kobel and Dale Murray as New York defeated Chicago.

Hebner hit his third homer of the season in the first inning off loser Dennis Lamp after Lee Mazzilli beat out an infield single with two out. Hebner singled home Frank Taveras in the fifth for the final New York run after Taveras had beaten out an infield hit, stole second and advanced to third on a wild pickoff attempt by Lamp.

Expos 6, Pirates 3

Tony Perez's bases-loaded double keyed a four-run third inning, pacing Montreal over Pittsburgh. Montreal starter Ross Grimsley held the Pirates to a single run until a pair of errors on the same play narrowed the Expos lead to 5-3.

Veteran Woodie Fryman shackled the Pirates over the final 22-3 innings and nailed down the Expos' fourth victory in the last five games.

Giants 12, Reds 2

Ed Halicki scattered nine hits and had 14-hit support, including three singles and three RBI by Darrell Evans, as San Francisco beat Cincinnati.

The National League West Division leading Reds had a horrible night, displaying sloppy fielding and atrocious baserunning. A potential scoring threat, in the seventh inning, ended with two baserunners at third base.

Padres 7, Dodgers 6

Broderick Perkins' bases-loaded single in the 10th led San Diego over Los Angeles. The winning run was set up by an error by Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes that allowed Jerry Turner to reach second on a grounder.

Turner took third on a wild pitch by Jerry Reuss and then Dave Winfield and Fernando Gonzalez were walked intentionally to load the bases before Perkins' game-winning hit.

Celtics, Larry Bird still some $200,000 apart

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics and Larry Bird still are some $200,000 apart in their stalemated contract talks, and the college player-of-the-year's representative said Tuesday, "If present conditions continue, I would not be optimistic."

Attorney Bob Woolf, Bird's agent in negotiations with the National Basketball Association team, called a news conference to complain that Celtics President Red Auerbach simply won't bargain.

"I am at a loss to understand why the Celtics' organization, by inference or innuendo, would in any way unfairly blemish the image of a fine young athlete."

Sources close to the negotiations said Woolf's original demand of $1 million per year for six years — plus $200,000 in fringes — has been reduced to about $700,000.

The Celtics, Auerbach confirmed, are holding to the original offer of $500,000 a year.

"I thought we'd have a clean, fast deal," Auerbach said. "Give them your best shot, make him the highest paid rookie in NBA history and that's it."

Instead, Woolf insisted that the former Indiana State star will not join the Celtics unless there are "bonafide negotiations."

The Boston-based lawyer said he is asking for a contract somewhat better than the one agreed to by Michigan State star Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who has agreed to terms with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Motta tries to cope with playoff lead

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Coach Dick Motta of the Washington Bullets doesn't quite know how to act with his team leading the Seattle SuperSonics 1-0 in the National Basketball Association's championship series.

The Bullets overcame a 3-1 deficit to beat San Antonio in the semifinals. Last year they trailed 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 before edging Seattle in the seventh and deciding game of the finals.

"I feel uncomfortable ahead," Motta said as the Bullets prepared for Thursday night's home game in the best-of-seven series. "We'll probably do something to even it up and when we're 1-1, I can tell the players we've got the Sonics right where we want them."

The Bullets, who blew a 19-point lead while losing last year's opener, frittered away an 18-point fourth quarter advantage Sunday before winning 99-97 on Larry Wright's two free throws after time had expired.

Some of the Seattle players contended Dennis Johnson didn't foul Wright at all. Others figured it wasn't flagrant enough to be called in a title series and that it was a shame the game ended as it did.

"I hope we win the same way again, so Seattle can say we should be ashamed," Motta said. "I'd like to win four that way, so we can be ashamed all summer."

"It's not unusual to lose a lead with the 24-second clock," Motta said, "but I hope we learned a lesson."

The comeback didn't surprise Coach Lenny Wilkens of the SuperSonics. "When the two best teams in the league are playing, why should anyone think that one of them is going to turn over and die? The comeback was very significant because it showed we don't give up."

While acknowledging that the Bullets are the best rebounding team in the NBA, Wilkens said the SuperSonics would have to better their first-game 55-41 deficit on the boards.

"We can't give them as many second and third shots as we did," Wilkens said.

Cork popping costs team

PHOENIX (AP) — Southern Baptist-owned Grand Canyon College will not allow its No. 1-ranked baseball team to compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics world series this month because players celebrated their last victory with a champagne toast in the locker room.

"Because it's a Christian school, they (the administration) feel we made a disgrace of the school," said Ed Bonine, the Antelopes top pitcher, told The Arizona Republic.

Grand Canyon defeated Sam Houston State, 10-2, Friday to win the Area 2 tournament and earn a berth in the world series scheduled to begin Memorial Day in Nashville, Tenn.

The team violated school rules, however, with a champagne bash in the locker room after the victory and the school administration decided not to let the team compete in the nationals, the Republic said.

Grand Canyon Assistant Coach Kent Fulmer told the newspaper that veteran Head Coach Dave Brazel had called him to say, "We aren't going."

The school's athletic administrator, Bill Estes, admitted Tuesday that the administration had made a decision and said the NIAA would be notified wednesday morning. He would not elaborate.

Brazel and school President Bill Williams could not be reached for comment.

Several Antelope players admitted there was champagne in the locker room after Friday's win, and an Associated Press photograph showing the jubilant players popping corks was transmitted across the country and appeared in a Phoenix newspaper Saturday.

Players claim the champagne was used symbolically in celebration, not to get drunk.

Shepard gets ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has notified University of Houston quarterback Darrell Shepard he will be ineligible to participate in any post season bowl games for the rest of his college career at UH.

Shepard and UH officials had appealed for reinstatement of his eligibility for post season games. Houston spent the 1977 season on probation after the NCAA accused the Cougars of recruiting violations involving Shepard and his purchase of a car.

"I think they made the wrong decision," UH Athletic Director Harry Fouke said. "He is eligible to play 33 of the 36 possible games, most of them against the closest rivals, but he will not be able to participate in bowl games."

"I don't think there's much we can do about it right now."

The NCAA letter said Shepard could transfer to another school and become immediately eligible. However, to transfer to another Southwest Conference school, Shepard would have to get unanimous approval of the other eight SWC schools.

Rome crowd gets attention

ROME (AP) — With superstars Jimmy Connors, Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe all absent, the biggest protagonist of the $200,000 Italian Open tennis tournament is the crowd.

Spectators are eyeing each other and even the players are glancing at the stands searching for answers to questions — Will the Rome crowd behave itself? Will it, as it has often done in the past, demoralize opponents of local idols Adriano Panatta and Corrado Barazzutti with catcalls and boos, turning the sun-baked center court at the Foro Italico complex into a "Lion's Pit."

In the first round, the crowd received a passing grade for behavior. But Italians were winning easily.

Things could change when Panatta or other hometown heroes need a little help from their crowd, as Panatta did against Spaniard Jose Higueras in last year's semifinals.

The Spaniard had won the first set 6-0 and was on his way to capturing the second set when the crowd turned against him. The fans practically booed him off the court. Higueras, and the referee, walked out in disgust, vowing never to return again.

The winner of the German open last week, the Spaniard is back, and if both he and Panatta win their second round matches, the stage will be set for the moment of truth for the Rome crowd.

The Rome crowd appreciates and understands tennis, but, unlike any other, its behavior is patterned after that of soccer fans — cheering your man and demoralizing his opponent.

Last year when "The Crowd Factor" pushed Panatta to the final, only an iron-willed Bjorn Borg withstood a steady stream of coins hurled at the court and triumphed. As the court resembled The Trevi Fountain, Borg walked up to the referee and yelled: "One more coin and I give up."

As for excitement on the courts, Ilie Nastase, twice titlist and 13th seed, exited as Italian Tonino Zugarelli won easily 6-2, 6-4 with the Romanian in his typical moody form.

Another seed to fall by the wayside was Brian Gottfried, ranked sixth. Dominique Bedel of France, 21th in the world, ousted the American 6-2, 6-4.

Rome's slow, clay courts have not been a favorite venue for Americans.

Relaxed Bochte destroys Royals

By The Associated Press

If American League pitchers appear tense, it could be because Bruce Bochte is more relaxed.

"I think it's all psychological," Bochte said after Tuesday night's 12-11 Seattle Mariners victory over the Kansas City Royals in 12 innings. "I'm just more relaxed this year."

Relaxed at the plate, Bochte slammed a home run, a triple and two singles, driving in six runs.

"In the past, with runners on base, I would get tensed up," the Seattle first baseman said. "Now I'm approaching it from the standpoint that I'm gonna do what I'm gonna do and that's that."

Bochte's big night could have been even bigger. With Seattle leading 11-6, Bochte was replaced in the seventh inning after tripling.

"I was itching to get back out there (in the late innings)," he said, "but that's the way Darrell (Manager Darrell Johnson) has been doing me all year."

"I'll do it again the next game," the Seattle manager said. "There are four defensive replacements we make. When you get ahead in the seventh, eighth or ninth inning, you better not lose for lack of defense."

Bochte slammed a two-run homer in the first inning and singled home Julio Cruz in the second. His bases-loaded single in the fourth brought home Cruz and Mario Mendoza to give Seattle a 6-5 lead. Then, after the Royals tied it 6-6 in the fifth, the Mariners erupted for five runs in the seventh with the help of Bochte's triple and doubles by Ruppert Jones, Leon Roberts and Larry Milbourne.

But the Royals, who scored five runs in the first inning, scored five more in the bottom of the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

With Bochte out of the game, Cruz tripled and scored on a single by Ruppert Jones in the 12th inning for the Seattle win.

Rangers 4, Twins 3

Buddy Bell's first home run of the year in the bottom of the eighth inning boosted Texas past Minnesota and handed Twins pitcher Jerry Kossman his first American League loss. Bell also singled home two runs in the third.

The loss dropped Kossman's record to 7-1 while Jim Kern picked up his sixth victory against no losses in relief.

The Twins had tied the game on Ron Jackson's seventh homer of the year.

White Sox 5, A's 4

Jorge Orta's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted Chicago over Oakland, snapping a three-game White Sox losing streak.

"We needed that," Orta said. "This is the worst year I've ever had. I was really getting upset. I'm not a .180 hitter. I'm the only one on the team not hitting good. It was getting embarrassing."

Lamar Johnson singled to start the eighth. After a sacrifice, Orta smashed his second homer of the season off loser Dave Heaverly, 2-3.

"That was a big, big lift," said White Sox Manager Don Kessinger. "Coming off the road and coming from behind in the eighth inning to win. It was a big mental lift for Orta and for us."

Red Sox 7, Orioles 5

Fred Lynn's three-run homer was the big blow as Boston scored seven runs in the second inning, then held on to beat Baltimore. Lynn, the AL home run leader, now has 14 for the season.

Billy Smith hit a three-run homer for the Orioles, whose East Division lead over the Red Sox was cut to one-half game. It was only the sixth loss in the last 29 games for the Orioles.

Yankees 12, Tigers 8

Chris Chambliss, Roy White, Jay Johnstone and Bucky Dent drove in two runs each and Willie Randolph, Reggie Jackson and Jerry Narron each got one RBI as New York outslugged Detroit and gave Luis Tiant his first victory as a Yankee.

New York battered Mark Fidrych, 0-3, and reliever Sheldon Burnside for eight runs and seven hits in the third inning. After the Yankees jumped out to a 12-0 lead, the Tigers jumped on Tiant and reliever Dick Tidrow for seven runs on five hits in the eighth inning, then added their eighth run in the ninth on Rusty Staub's homer.

Indians 8, Blue Jays 6

A grand slam homer by Andre Thornton was the big blow as Cleveland downed Toronto. It was Thornton's first grand slam of his career and sixth homer of the season.

The Indians snapped a 5-5 tie in the sixth on RBI singles by Toby Harrah and Tom Verzyer and a sacrifice fly by Gary Alexander. Eric Wilkins, 2-2, gained the victory in relief while Toronto starter Mark Lemongello, 1-6, took the loss.

Brewers 7, Angels 1

A five-run fifth inning, sparked by Paul Molitor's two-run single, backed Larry Sorensen's five-hitter as Milwaukee stopped California.

Dick Davis also knocked in two runs for the Brewers, who won for only the second time in their last nine games and snapped the Angels' six-game winning streak.

Molitor also tripled in the second inning, scoring Milwaukee's first run on Gorman Thomas' double.

Martin passes a crisis; waits for another test

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Former and, supposedly, future New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin has passed another crisis in his often-bumpy ride through life, but in keeping with the way things happen to him, still another critical moment lies ahead.

A criminal complaint of battery against Martin has been dropped by Reno sports writer Ray Hagar, and the two reportedly have agreed on terms of an out-of-court settlement. Martin, though, still must face Yankee owner George Steinbrenner's test if he is to regain his job next year as manager of the defending world champions.

Steinbrenner, upset at Martin's off-the-field behavior, said last winter that his former manager would be completely exonerated in the Hagar case before he can come back as Yankees' field boss.

"I'm not going to tell them to settle or not to settle," Steinbrenner said when talk of a possible out-of-court settlement first surfaced. "Billy told me he would be proven innocent. But I'm going to have to look at everything, at the whole picture."

Steinbrenner, on hearing early this morning that the suit had been dropped, commented, "I think that's fine. I assume either the reporter felt he didn't have a case or Billy made a settlement with him."

The Yankees owner, at his home in Tampa, Fla., added that while the dropping of the criminal complaint "gets it out of the way" for Martin, he wanted talk with Martin and his attorney about the matter.

Martin is expected to be in Reno Thursday to finalize the settlement. The former Yankees Manager is expected to offer Hagar $8,000 and a public apology, according to Nevada State Journal Executive Editor Bob Ritter.

Hagar said in his complaint that Martin, who was visiting Reno, hit him after an interview Nov. 10, knocking the reporter's glasses to the floor and chipping his upper front tooth.

Hagar said Martin became upset with questions about Reggie Jackson, and demanded the reporter's notes. Hagar said he refused and put his notes behind his back, and then was punched.

Hagar's attorney, Timothy Dixon, said dismissal of the criminal complaint paved the way for Martin to return to Reno without fear of being arrested. Dixon would not comment on the status of the civil suit, which seeks general and punitive damages of more than $10,000.

Moses Malone earns NBA's MVP award

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association's most valuable award has made a comedian out of Houston Rockets giant Moses Malone.

Malone, seen prominently but seldom heard during most of his first three years here, spoke freely Tuesday about his MVP honor and winning the league's rebounding title.

He even got off a one-liner. "I never thought I'd be the most valuable player or lead the league in rebounding," Malone said. "But I got a lot of help from my teammates—they did a lot of missing."

Malone, 24, beat out San Antonio's George Gervin, his closest rival, by a 112.35 margin. Washington's Elvin Hayes was third with 28 votes and Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who has won the MVP title five times, was fourth with 15.

Malone averaged 17.6 rebounds per game and beat out Jabbar and New Orleans' Rich Kelley, tied for second with 12.8 averages, by the third widest margin in NBA history.

Malone played 3,390 minutes last season, more than any other player in the league, and was fifth in scoring with a 24.8 average.

Tate gets Aggie post

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Marvin Tate, interim athletic director at Texas A&M since Emory Bellard's abrupt resignation last October, has been appointed to the post on a full-time basis.

The university's board of regents, acting on the recommendation of the athletic council, promoted Tate to the post Tuesday.

Tate, one of 27 survivors of Coach Bear Bryant's legendary 1954 training camp at Junction, Texas, will head a department with a $3.5 million budget and direct programs for 280 student athletes in eight intercollegiate men's sports and nine women's teams.

"Marvin Tate was a successful Houston businessman prior to joining the athletic department as associate director in 1967," said President Jarvis E. Miller, who recommended the promotion to the regents.

"His business background, and his excellent management of athletic programs and physical plant expansions, convinced us that he is one of the most qualified athletic directors in the country today."

Tate — a starting Aggie guard when he attended the Bryant conditioning camp in Junction that became a legend in Texas sports — said he appreciates the confidence the athletic council, Miller and the board of regents showed in him.

A Lifelong Education!

Your hometown newspaper, The Reporter-Telegram, is read in elementary school classes where the Newspaper In Education program helps teachers motivate students to more eager learning efforts. This "real life" textbook is exciting to them and makes the learning process INTERESTING. This means they learn about math, social studies, geography, history, government and other subjects more quickly and thoroughly.

Teenagers accustomed to reading the newspaper in lower grades use the "life situation" textbook to speed up learning, acquire more knowledge and earn higher grades, through their better comprehension of the wider range of subjects and deeper involvement at high school levels.

Young adults have learned to use the newspaper to buy to their greater advantage through retail and classified ads and through the vast source of consumer information offered in newspapers. The same medium provides daily news on more of the subjects in which they are interested: sports, recreation, amusements, lifestyle, travel, health, beauty, fashion and dozens of other areas of concern.

Parents rearing and educating families use newspaper ads, cash-saving coupons, and household tips to help stretch budgets. Child guidance articles help them become better parents. Mini-Page and other children's features entertain and instruct their offspring.

Women's pages and features are a continuing source of help for the housewife in the home and out.

Men and women in business, the professions and all walks of life, find in the newspaper a real treasury of information on business, industry, finance, politics, the economy, local, state, national and international developments in almost every field of human activity.

Senior citizens have in the newspaper a daily companion, bringing news of acquaintances, community events, peer activities, and ever so many helpful articles on coping with their particular concerns. The newspaper helps them keep abreast of Social Security changes, medical and health advice, recreational and social opportunities, shopping advantages and ways to help fight inflation on a fixed income. The Reporter-Telegram's more readable type and clear reproduction is of special importance to them because it is EASIER TO READ.

At every age, the newspaper is the universal encyclopedia, REVISED DAILY.

AT WIT'S END

What's in a name?

By ERMA BOMBECK

I think I've finally figured out why an increasing number of graduates do not want to show up for graduation ceremonies.

It has nothing to do with apathy, rebellion against tradition, or an insensitivity to what parents want.

What it does have to do with is that many graduates are ashamed to have their real names revealed. As the wife of an educator, I've seen my share of graduations. It is always the same. At some point, the principal will pick up a diploma and announce into the microphone, "VERNON VALENTINE TURK." A hush will fall over the auditorium as the graduates look at one another, not daring to believe they're sitting next to a Vernon Valentine.

Finally, a macho senior with thighs the size of pier pilings, a tattoo on his tongue, who wears his letter sweater to bed, will lumber across the stage to claim his distinction. No matter what he has accomplished as "Stud Turk," it has all gone down the drain in that one Vernon-Valentine moment.

After the laughter has subsided, some of the more compassionate graduates will actually walk up to him (or her) and say something awkward like, "I didn't know. I really admire you."

Parents get carried away with names at birth. Most of them never think they're going to hear them over a loud speaker in an auditorium. Some of them say, "If you don't like your name, go with a nickname." This sometimes puts a child in a real decision-making position. Does she want to be called her real name, "Beulah," or go with "Fats"? Does he want to be called by his given name, "Edsel," or ride with "His Accident"? No matter what, the jig is up at graduation.

At my graduation, I sat next to my good friend, Mary Van Dyke Jones. Thinking her name was too long for a diploma, she substituted initials for Van Dyke. She shouldn't have done that.

A few people manage to survive their names. Imagine if you will a graduation exercise where the principal calls out Marion Michael Morrison and John Wayne ambles across the stage, or Vincent Damon Furnier is called and rock star Alice Cooper stands up.

If you still dread graduation this year, imagine what it will be like when Cher's daughter, Chastity Bono, or David Bowie's son, Zowie Bowie, walks across the stage. And be strong!

Altrusa views Collectors Show

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

The Midland Collectors Show was viewed by the Midland Altrusa Club, Inc., when members met in the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library and the J. Evetts Haley History Center for a picnic luncheon.

The tour was conducted by Nancy McKinley, who explained that the exhibit is made up from private collections in the Midland area.

"Our friends who loaned the individual pieces of art have more than demonstrated their generosity by willingly sharing these art treasures that depict our Western heritage," said Jim Clark, show director.

Artists included in the four-day show, both past and present, included Frederic Remington, Peter Hurd, Charles Russell, Robert Scriver and others.

Mrs. McKinley said the library, dedicated July 5, 1976, was built and designed to house the 50-year collection of Haley, the acknowledged dean of range country historians. The collection is of special value to the advanced student, though its offerings are broad enough to have wide appeal to the general reader in all areas of western literature and study.

Included among the more than 10,000 items in the collection, in which the emphasis is on Texas and Southwestern history, are printed and manuscript materials on western exploration, frontier military history, early railroads, the development of ranching and farming, mining, petroleum, politics, frontier social history and extensive material on regional and local Texas histories.

A unique fact about the collection is that a portion of the manuscripts are made up of nearly 700 interviews with frontier cowmen, trail drivers, Indian fighters, Texas Rangers, outlaws and other early Southwestern characters.

Bride-elect feted at party

Carol Sappington, bride-elect of Lindsay Borden, was honored with a brunch and miscellaneous shower hosted by Mrs. John S. Bullard Jr. in her home. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Ken Sewell, Alice Moxey and Jane Long.

Miss Sappington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Sappington, and Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Borden of Dallas, plan to recite vows July 7.

Fifty guests attended the pre-nuptial party.

The Haley Library and History Center also has on exhibit the original Alamo Mission Bell, cast in 1722.

Guests introduced at the meeting prior to the tour were Mrs. Mabel Reese of Steubenville, Ohio, mother of Altrusan Jean Jones, and Tup Ferguson.

DEAR ABBY

Panty puzzle may not be obvious

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: SUSIE IN SPOKANE found a pair of silk panties in her husband's pickup truck and would like to meet the chick who's fooling around with him.

What makes her so sure it's a chick? Maybe it's a rooster. Susie's husband could be macho-straight when he's with her, but a transvestite who enjoys fondling feminine underthings now and then, either alone or in the company of another rooster.

—JOE IN CHESTER, PA.

DEAR JOE: Rooster or chick — it's a fowl situation.

DEAR ABBY: I have a divorced daughter who has been living with her lover. She's 35 and self-supporting, so I can't tell her how to live. However, I am deeply concerned over the fact that my three grandchildren (3, 5 and 7), who live with their mother, are very much aware of the situation since they frequently crawl into bed with them!

I know that this sort of thing is not uncommon these days, but I fear that the children will be very much confused as to what is the right way to live when the time comes to tell them about life, sex, etc.

How can a mother tell her 12- or 13-year-old daughter that this is wrong, when she is doing it? — CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Obviously, your daughter doesn't consider her lifestyle "wrong," or she wouldn't openly practice it in the presence of her children.

The first two works were donated after the years of purchase when AAUW decided that the Turner Memorial Gallery was a fitting location for the hanging of the graphics. Since 1967, these selections have been Purchase Prize Awards in the annual Southwestern Art Shows held in Midland. AAUW has also donated an etching of harbor schooners by Floyd Walser and an engraving entitled "Two Blooms - Three Buds" by Lia Gully. The show opened May 1 and will be on public view through June 3. The event is sponsored by the Museum of the Southwest Midland Arts Association, and the Junior League of Midland, Inc.

The Complete Book Of FINGERMATH

The book you can use to teach simple arithmetic to your children this summer.

$12.95

A learning experience for the whole family

Whether your children are already in school, or about to enroll, you can help them succeed in math...with Fingermath! This remarkable new system of whole number computation turns the hands into a calculator. Using only 10 fingers you and your children can learn to add, subtract multiply and divide. Quickly-easily-accurately.

Perhaps you've seen Fingermath demonstrations on the Johnny Carson Show and other national TV programs where children using their fingers come up with the right answers to sums faster than adults using pocket calculators. Mathematicians were intrigued. Educators impressed. And schools across the country began experimenting with Fingermath in their classrooms.

Texas Electric's Permian Basin power plant near Monahans is shown with a proposed solar energy system superimposed where it might be located. TESCO, along with Rockwell International, is applying for federal approval to study the concept of converting an existing gas-fired unit to use solar energy.

Solar study proposed

Texas Electric Service Co., in conjunction with Rockwell International, Tuesday filed a proposal with the Department of Energy to study the feasibility of using solar energy to generate electricity in West Texas.

This marks the first step Texas Electric has taken toward the use of solar energy. The nine-month study would help determine the economic and technical problems associated with partially converting an existing gas-fired generating unit to a solar energy system, TESCO officials said.

Under consideration for the project is the Permian Basin power plant near Monahans.

TESCO has been participating in the Electric Power Research Institute and looking at solar energy, according to Winston Barclay, manager of the TESCO office in Midland.

"We don't really know whether it's possible to use solar energy to generate electricity on a large scale like this, but a feasibility study could help us answer many of the uncertainties," TESCO President Bill Marquardt said.

He said the proposal is one of several expected to be filed by utility and industry teams. DOE is expected to approve several such studies by Oct. 1.

DOE will look at results of these studies and then determine which plant should be selected for the actual work, according to Barclay.

"The conversion of a conventional generating unit to solar power is a totally new process so there are many questions about the system and whether it will work," Marquardt said.

"This is just another part of our commitment to exploring all the available energy technologies to ensure our ability to provide reliable electric service to our customers now and in the future."

DOE has been doing solar energy research and has worked out a demonstration project on a small scale, according to Barclay.

The agency now is seeking to try such a project on a larger scale, and the Monahans plant is being suggested for the work, Barclay said.

"This (Monahans) is the best installation we have on the TESCO system for this type of project," Barclay said. "It would be a good demonstration project because of its size and location."

If the proposal is approved, TESCO and Rockwell International would analyze the requirements for retrofitting a 115-megawatt generating unit at the Monahans plant with a solar system designed by Rockwell.

Theoretically, electricity then would be generated with solar energy as well as conventional fuels, such as natural gas or oil.

Barclay explained the solar system would be "parallel" to the present fuel system with the gas and oil to provide backup on cloudy days.

The solar system being considered would involve a field of reflective mirrors, called "heliostats," over a half square-mile area.

The mirrors would concentrate the sun's rays on a large tower in the middle of the field. The concentrated sunlight would be used to make electricity through the plant's conventional system.

"The system would work much like our present method, except that instead of burning only natural gas or oil to generate electricity, we would also be using heat from the sun," Marquardt said.

Preliminary information indicates the Permian Basin area in West Texas is particularly suitable for solar energy application because of the high percentage of days (about 275 days out of the year) when sufficient sunlight is available, said Marquardt.

The feasibility study would not involve any actual construction of the solar facility, said Marquardt.

After analyzing results of the study, DOE will determine which studies, if any, warrant further research and design work, he said.

Peer board to probe 'Schuster Affair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of reporters is about to sit in judgment of one of its own for the way he covered a story.

He pretended to be a congressman.

Gary Schuster, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, crashed the party on the day Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat signed their peace treaty on the White House lawn.

That landed him on Page One of the Detroit News and in hot water with the Secret Service.

And The Washington

Post, calling it "The Schuster Affair," asked in a headline, "Can a Reporter Be Punished for Impersonating a Congressman?"

That question will be answered by the Standing Committee of Correspondents, an elected group of five reporters which has been given authority by Congress to issue press credentials.

The Standing Committee conducted two secret meetings on the affair. On Tuesday, it invited Schuster to account for himself at an open meeting on Friday.

"Trying to play Solomon is really a tough job," moans Michael Posner, a correspondent for the Reuters news agency and chairman of the Standing Committee. "It's an unwanted job, thrust upon us."

Benjamin C. West, a congressional employee who is superintendent of the House press gallery, calls the affair "grave."

"We've got to protect our turf," says David Lynch of the Buffalo (N.Y.) Courier-Express, a member of Posner's committee. "They love for us to look bad. They can say, 'If the press isn't going to police themselves, maybe we'll have to police them.'"

What Schuster did was take an absent congressman's place on a special bus chartered to carry congressmen to the signing ceremony.

"All it took was one call, one question, a little observation and one lie to get a police-escorted ride to a first-class seat on the executive mansion's lawn — 50 feet from the table where Middle East peace documents were signed," Schuster wrote in the March 27 edition of his paper.

Since he has a White House press pass, Schuster could have attended without the pose.

He says he did it to point out how easily White House security can be breached even on occasions when it is extremely tight. He says he told the agents who came to his office to question him, "Maybe you guys can learn something from this."

Jack Warner, a spokesman for the Secret Service, said the agency did not know of Schuster's ploy until "another member of the media called and said, 'What are you guys going to do about it?'"

"We commenced an investigation," Warner said.

Second Boston power outage blamed mostly on 'bad luck'

BOSTON (AP) — A faulty cable, malfunctioning circuit breakers and "an unbelievable string of bad luck" are being blamed for Boston's second major power failure in two months.

Some 40,000 customers, including hospitals in the heart of Boston's medical community, were plunged into darkness Monday after a short circuit developed in an underground cable, taking down a large substation, said Walter Salvi, a spokesman for Boston Edison Co.

Last month, Boston Edison spent three days trying to restore power to the city's Back Bay section after a series of manhole explosions which also were blamed on faulty underground cables.

"There is no connection between the two outages," Salvi said Tuesday.

"It was just an unbelievable string of bad luck. We usually average one outage a year. In the last six weeks we've had two."

Salvi said the substation in the city's Brighton section went off the line when circuit breakers failed to open, overheated and exploded.

Customers in the Allston-Brighton, Roxbury and Jamaica Plain sections of the city as well as in parts of Brookline and Newton were affected by the outage. Lights flickered throughout Boston Edison's 40-city system when the substation went down.

Eight hospitals in the area had to operate on emergency power for up to five hours after the power failed.

Power was restored to a last group of customers by 5:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Most House Texans oppose Alaskan Wilderness bill

WASHINGTON—Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on a major roll call votes May 10 through May 16.

HOUSE
ALASKA: By a vote of 268 for and 157 against, the House approved an Alaskan lands bill favored by the environmental lobby but opposed by oil, mining and timber interest. The bill (HR 39), which was sent to the Senate, gives an area of federal land larger than California virtually blanket protection against man's encroachment. With this vote, the House adopted the strictest of three conservation bills under consideration.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., a supporter, said "there ought to be a few places left in the world the way the Almighty made them. Americans will never see a buffalo herd again, and if we are not wise today, our grandchildren will not be able to see a caribou herd."
 Rep. Jerry Huckaby, D-La., had sponsored a less-extensive bill to preserve much of the Alaskan wilderness while permitting limited oil and gas development. He said his bill allows exploration for "precious oil and gas mineral supplies" at the same time it "supports all of Alaska's crown jewels and leaves them intact."

Members voting "yea" favored the strongest possible legislative protection of the Alaskan wilderness.

Reps. Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, Mickey Leland, D-18, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "nay."

FEDERAL AID: The Medical flights debut set

A medical air service that will transport critically ill patients to hospitals throughout the country will make its debut in the Permian Basin with a press conference Friday before flights actually begin June 1.

The transportation service, called Life Flight, will hold a 9:30 a.m. ceremony at Midland Regional Airport for the press and local government and civic leaders.

Life Flight, which utilizes a turbo prop jet plane, will be the only such service in the state.

Currently three Life Flight helicopters make nearly 200 flights in the Houston area each month.

The Life Flight service scheduled for the Midland-Odessa area will connect the Basin with a 15 state area. Fees for the flight are charged to the patient.

The plane and Life Flight officials will be at the ceremony Friday.

House refused, 179 for and 22 against, to increase by fifteenfold the fiscal 1980 budget authority for federal payments to help the elderly, handicapped and poor pay their home heating bills. This amendment sought to increase the authority from $11 million to $164 million. The vote came during debate on the resolution (H Con Res 107) setting guidelines for the fiscal 1980 budget, a measure later passed and sent to conference with the Senate. Members voting "nay" wanted a low funding level for the program under which the federal government helps certain disadvantaged persons pay home-heating bills.

Wilson, Eckhardt, de la Garza, White, Leland, Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "yea."

Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Leath, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler and Paul voted "nay."

Members voting "yea" wanted the President to order gas rationing in the event of an emergency.

Members voting "yea" favored the non-binding resolution urging President Carter to lift the U.S. economic boycott of Rhodesia. Last year, Congress passed a law requiring the President to lift the sanction if he were to determine that Rhodesia's April 1979 elections were free and a major step toward majority rule. Carter has until June 15 to decide.

Senators voting "yea" favored the non-binding resolution. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D., and John Tower, R., voted "yea."

DISASTER LOANS: By a vote of 46 for and 38 against, the Senate voted to kill an amendment to lower interest rates on federal loans to homeowners whose property is hit by natural disaster. The vote came during debate on S 918, "One percent loans in which would provide day's market are totally disaster-assistance loans nothing but open up the first $55,000 and 8.5 percent on higher amounts. The amendment killed by those who are seeking easy money."

Forces joined

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Norman Lear and Alex Haley have joined forces to produce a two-hour TV movie and six one-hour dramatic episodes to air on CBS in March 1980.

Haley, the author of "Roots," will develop a story about two youths growing up in the South in the 1930s, one white and one black. It will follow their friendship as they mature and encounter racial conflicts.

Kent Hance holds gavel

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, whose 19th Congressional District encompasses Midland, Monday became the first freshman congressman of the 96th session to preside over the House of Representatives.

House majority leader Jim Wright selected Hance to preside as speaker of the House during the absence of permanent speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill of Massachusetts.

Hance presided during the first of what is expected to be lengthy and heated debate over funding for implementation of the Panama Canal Treaty.

Ironically, Hance opposes that bill.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player doubles. You hold: S-K63; H-10743; D-97; C-8743. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. The raise, after a double, promises trump support but not much else. If there had been no double you would have passed partner at one heart.

Weekend funeral rites bother city fathers

ATHENS, Ala. (AP) — The Athens City Council says it would be relieved if no more funerals were held on weekends and holidays.

"It's getting to the point that we can't afford to pay for burying people when they insist on having the funerals on Saturday or Sunday, or a holiday, and if we can't do something else, we'll just have to consider a ban on funerals at that time," Councilman R. B. Patton said Tuesday.

Patton said the rising cost of overtime for grave diggers on weekends and holidays has increased the price of grave digging to $90. He said the city charges citizens $50 for the service, and when a funeral is held on a weekend or holiday the city pays the other $40.

"Overtime on the weekends is really killing us," Patton said.

Arrests follow Chicago award to McNamara

CHICAGO (AP) — University of Chicago officials have agreed to post bond for some 50 persons arrested in a protest over the university's presentation of an award to former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

No injuries were reported in the incident Tuesday night.

Some 1,500 demonstrators chanted in the street and burned McNamara in effigy outside the building where he was being presented with the Albert Pick Jr. Award for "outstanding contributions to international understanding."

Authorities said most of the arrests came after a scuffle broke out between demonstrators and police when demonstration leader Ron Kovic, a paralyzed Vietnam War veteran, was hauled into a police wagon. Those arrested were not charged immediately.

Deputy Police Superintendent Thomas J. Lyons authorized the arrests after one of the demonstrators hit him in the face with a blueberry pie. Lyons said he considered a sit-in called by Kovic a "breach of peace."

Earlier in the day, McNamara, now president of the World Bank, was denounced for his role in the Vietnam War at a rally on the university quadrangle.

Kovic, invited to Chicago by Mayor Jane Byrne for Memorial Day ceremonies, said McNamara represented "the worst of this country." He said the former defense secretary "lied to and tricked" the American public during the escalation of the war.

Nearly 300 professors — about a third of the faculty — signed a petition disassociating themselves from the award.

Services for Harvey Milk's birthday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thousands of homosexuals celebrated the birthday of slain gay leader and city Supervisor Harvey Milk in a peaceful demonstration just 24 hours after the conviction of Milk's killer sparked a melee at City Hall.

The celebration Tuesday of Milk's 49th birthday drew some 5,000 people to the Castro Street area, heart of the city's homosexual community of more than 100,000.

Milk and Mayor George Moscone were shot to death Nov. 27 by former Supervisor Dan White, whose conviction Monday for voluntary manslaughter was regarded by many as too lenient.

The riot that ensued injured 160 people, cost the city $1 million in damages and other expenses and left the City Hall area a glass-strewn shambles.

Police Chief Charles Gain took full responsibility for police actions during the riot, although many of his men grumbled that Gain was too restrained in dealing with rioters.

"Without doubt some of my men wanted to move against the crowd and articulate their anxiety and frustration. But moving at that time was not the wise thing to do," Gain said. He said 59 officers were injured in the riot, and 12 patrol cars were set ablaze.

The morning after the riot, a calculated calm prevailed between police and the gay community as the birthday celebration approached. Mayor Dianne Feinstein pleaded for peaceful cooperation.

Three hundred volunteers moved through the birthday celebration crowd to maintain control under an agreement that uniformed police would stay away as long as the celebration remained peaceful.

Odessa man dies in crash

ODESSA — The body of a man found today in the wreckage of a mobile home here was identified by Department of Public Safety officials as Manuel Lujon, 19, of Odessa.

Lujon was the driver of a car that struck a mobile home at Loves Mobile Home Sales, 6700 Andrews Highway, about 2:45 a.m. today, DPS officials said.

A passenger in the car, Melesio Hernandez, 22, of Odessa was listed in satisfactory condition with head and arm injuries today at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa. He had earlier been listed in poor condition.

Initial investigations by DPS officials at the scene of the accident had determined that Hernandez was the driver of the car. The body of Lujon was not found until a second investigation of the wreckage, officials said.

DPS officials said they first thought Hernandez was the driver of the car.

The car with the two men were traveling south on Andrews Highway, according to DPS reports.

The vehicle first struck the center median and then the curb on the west side of the highway, officials said. The car then rolled one and three-quarter times and struck a telephone pole before hitting the mobile home, according to DPS reports. The vehicle came to rest inside the unoccupied home, officials said.

Both men were thrown from the car, according to DPS officials.

Arrests follow Chicago award to McNamara

CHICAGO (AP) — University of Chicago officials have agreed to post bond for some 50 persons arrested in a protest over the university's presentation of an award to former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

No injuries were reported in the incident Tuesday night.

Some 1,500 demonstrators chanted in the street and burned McNamara in effigy outside the building where he was being presented with the Albert Pick Jr. Award for "outstanding contributions to international understanding."

Authorities said most of the arrests came after a scuffle broke out between demonstrators and police when demonstration leader Ron Kovic, a paralyzed Vietnam War veteran, was hauled into a police wagon. Those arrested were not charged immediately.

Deputy Police Superintendent Thomas J. Lyons authorized the arrests after one of the demonstrators hit him in the face with a blueberry pie. Lyons said he considered a sit-in called by Kovic a "breach of peace."

Earlier in the day, McNamara, now president of the World Bank, was denounced for his role in the Vietnam War at a rally on the university quadrangle.

Kovic, invited to Chicago by Mayor Jane Byrne for Memorial Day ceremonies, said McNamara represented "the worst of this country." He said the former defense secretary "lied to and tricked" the American public during the escalation of the war.

Nearly 300 professors — about a third of the faculty — signed a petition disassociating themselves from the award.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Police shot and killed 14 men, women and children trying to take food to militants occupying the Venezuelan Embassy. It was the second time in two weeks President Carlos Humberto Romero's forces fired on demonstrators and raised the number killed by his military regime to at least 37.

Associated Press correspondent Gordon Mott said at least three of the dead were women and six appeared to be teenagers or younger. Notebooks and school bags were strewn on the ground and a woman's purse was spilled in a gully where her body had fallen.

The bodies of two children between 10 and 12 years old lay side by side, their arms intertwined.

Corpses were lying on a street corner half a block from the embassy and a short distance from the Sheraton Hotel in the upper-class northwestern district, and two were found in a dead-end alley where the demonstrators apparently tried to hide from the police.

A Red Cross spokesman said in addition to the dead that an estimated 20 persons were wounded, some of them seriously.

The troops opened fire Tuesday evening as 100 to 150 demonstrators in separate groups marched toward the embassy from two directions, carrying food to nine members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc who seized the embassy May 11.

Presidential press spokesman Col. Rafael Flores Lima said in a telephone interview that "police received fire from the militants and had to return it," and a witness said the first shot apparently came from the demonstrators, but said he could not be sure because of the darkness.

Guns lay beside at least two of the bodies and they were free of bloodstains, although the hands next to them were covered with blood, indicating the guns were placed there. Spokesmen for the Bloc, a coalition of peasants, and workers pledged to non-violence, said none of the demonstrators opened fire.

According to witnesses, the shooting started at 6 p.m., with heavy firing lasting about three minutes.

They said shooting continued sporadically for about an hour.

Five Red Cross workers went to the scene as the area was cordoned off and police began a house-to-house search for demonstrators.

The Venezuelan ambassador and seven other hostages escaped from the embassy Sunday night, and the next day the government offered the militants safe conduct out of the country. But they refused and vowed to remain until the government frees three Bloc leaders they say are jailed. The government, which says the three Bloc leaders are not in custody, retaliated by cutting off food, water and electricity.

Other members of the Bloc occupied the French and Costa Rican embassies and the Metropolitan Cathedral in San Salvador May 4. Five hostages inside the Costa Rican Embassy escaped May 7, and the next day police opened fire on demonstrators in front of the cathedral, killing 23. One policeman also was killed in the gunfire.

On May 9 the militants holding the Costa Rican Embassy accepted an offer of safe conduct out of the country and flew to Costa Rica where they were granted asylum.

But 16 Bloc members are still inside the French Embassy, holding the French ambassador and five other hostages there. In addition to the Metropolitan Cathedral, Bloc members also have occupied several other churches around the country.

Before the shooting began Tuesday, this capital of 1 million persons was nearly paralyzed by public transportation strikes to protest a wave of anti-government bus-burning. Stores closed and private pickup trucks were pressed into service to carry people around the city.

Bus owners refused to allow their vehicles on the streets, as a protest of lack of government protection. Authorities said at least 40 buses have been destroyed, with damage totaling more than $500,000.

"This is only going to make the situation worse because the recent violence has already caused many businesses to lose a lot of money," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

Bomb near Tel Aviv kills woman, baby girl

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A terrorist bomb killed a woman and a baby girl and injured 12 other persons at a crowded bus stop in a town outside Tel Aviv today as hundreds of Israelis poured into northern Sinai to support settlers who vowed to fight rather than give their land back to Egypt.

The bomb exploded shortly after 10 a.m. atop the fiberglass roof of the curbside bus stop in Petah Tikvah, six miles northeast of Tel Aviv. The slain woman and 18-month-old girl died in the local hospital, authorities said.

The Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut claimed responsibility for the blast. It said a store nearby was used by Israeli soldiers and that the attack was part of the PLO plan to get back "the natural rights of our people that Israel usurped in 1948."

Vance meets with Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today amid signs of a British tilt toward the new black-majority government in Rhodesia and away from the previous U.S. British idea that guerrillas had to have a say in it.

The meeting lasted nearly an hour but there was no immediate comment from either side.

Before the session, however, ambassadors from Australia, Canada, Ghana, Guyana, India, Nigeria, Trinidad and Zambia met with Foreign Minister Lord Carrington and told him of their governments' antagonism toward any move to recognize the new black-dominated government in Rhodesia.

Christian Democrat handcuffed

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Three men and a woman handcuffed a Christian Democratic city councilor to a railing today, poured a can of glue on her head, then hung a Red Brigade sign on her neck and took photographs, police said.

The sign read: "The Red Brigades will strike the servants of the Christian Democrats." The attack on 38-year-old Rossella Sborgi, an active opponent of Genoa's ruling Communist-Socialist municipal alliance, came 11 days before Italy's national elections June 3-4.

West Germans elect president

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Conservative Karl Carstens was elected president of West Germany today, defeating the first woman ever nominated for the largely ceremonial office.

Carstens, 64, a leader of the Christian Democratic Union, was president of the lower house of Parliament.

Anne Marie Renger, a 59-year-old widow, was the only candidate running against him in the voting conducted in the federal assembly. She is a Social Democrat.

More Vietnamese to come to U.S.

WASHINGTON (P) — The Carter administration has decided to allow at least 5,000 Vietnamese to join their families in the United States as a means of easing the plight of the "boat people."

Dale DeHaan, deputy U.N. high commissioner for refugees, was carrying the decision to Hanoi today, along with an initial list of 600 Vietnamese who would be resettled here, a State Department refugee expert said in an interview.

Aid to Turkey urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is being urged to follow the Senate's lead by resisting attempts to eliminate $50 million in military aid grants to Turkey, the economically troubled key to the defense of NATO's southern flank.

The Senate voted 64-32 on Tuesday to reverse the stand of the Foreign Relations Committee, which had converted the grant program to a loan.

French kidnap plot unveiled

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Basque separatists plotted to kidnap Jacques Chaban-Delmas, the No. 4 man in the official French hierarchy, sources close to the veteran politician disclosed today.

Chaban-Delmas, 64, is speaker of the French Parliament and Mayor of Bordeaux. He served as prime minister under the late President Georges Pompidou.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said militants of the Spanish-based Basque separatist movement ETA planned to abduct Chaban-Delmas two weeks ago and hold him hostage while demanding freedom for Basque activists arrested in France.

Nicaraguan guerrillas holding out

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas strengthened their positions in the northern sector of Jinotega as government troops fought to regain control of the northern city, refugees reported.

The national guard, the military and police force of President Anastasio Somoza's government, said Tuesday it had almost recaptured the city, but refugees fleeing Jinotega said the guerrillas were holding out and heavy fighting continued.

Thorpe 'tendencies' discussed

LONDON (AP) — Former Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe had "homosexual tendencies" when he first met Norman Scott, Thorpe's defense lawyer said.

The disclosure in the murder-conspiracy trial, splashed across the front pages of Britain's newspapers, came when attorney George Carman was cross-examining Scott in court Tuesday.

Bob Hope

"Bebe" Rebozo

Names in the news

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope is going on the road again — this time to put on a show in the People's Republic of China. The show will be telecast next season on NBC. Hope will film the show in June, principally in Peking and Shanghai. NBC said Tuesday it would be the first such show since the thawing of relations between China and the United States. China is one of the few countries Hope has never visited. "I'm very excited," Hope said. "It's something I've wanted to do ever since things opened up between our two countries." The special will feature Hope as a typical American tourist seeing the country for the first time. Top Chinese entertainers and cultural attractions will be among the highlights.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon is getting a new neighbor — old friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo. Dwayne Berger of San Clemente Realty said Tuesday the Miami millionaire has bought a luxurious home next to the Nixon estate, which is one of 50 in a guarded private compound. Rebozo is one of the few people Nixon has seen regularly since he resigned the presidency in 1974. Berger would not say how much the home cost.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Rock and roll singer Chuck Berry has pleaded innocent in federal court on three income tax violations. Berry was accused in a three-count indictment handed down by a federal grand jury earlier this month of evading taxes and knowingly filing false individual and corporate tax returns for the year 1973. U.S. District Judge James Meredith on Tuesday set July 9 as Berry's trial date. If he is convicted on all three counts, the singer faces a maximum penalty of up to $20,000 in fines and 11 years in prison.

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — England's Princess Anne visited port wine makers and drank a 164-year-old vintage on the first day of an official visit to Portugal. The princess was shown port cellars Tuesday in Oporto, where the wine has been made for four centuries. She was given 100 liters of a wine made in 1777, the year of the birth of her son, Peter. Princess Anne was invited to Portugal by President Antonio Ramalho Eanes, who made a state visit to Britain last November. It is the first visit by an English princess to Portugal, England's oldest ally, for 600 years. The princess and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, were to fly to Lisbon today for sightseeing and a gala dinner at the British Embassy.

Gov. Clements repeats special session threat

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators will be summoned into special session unless they pass several key pieces of legislation he supports, Gov. Bill Clements has reiterated. An initiative and referendum bill is at the top of his priority package. In a statewide telecast Tuesday night, the governor said he doubts the legislators will pass the bills in the remaining five days of the Legislature. Earlier Tuesday, Clements pinned some of the blame for a possible special session on 12 renegade senators — the "Killer Bees" — who by their absence prevented the Senate from having the necessary quorum to conduct business. "It is unfortunate that we even have to contemplate a special session and the additional expenditure of more than a million dollars," said Clements. "But if childish games and the minority's refusal to face its sworn duties in 140 days of a regular session doom some of the major legislation I have been talking about, I have no choice but to consider calling a special session to dispose of unfinished business."

School breakfast program bill prompts hungry debate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Sue McBee angrily objected Tuesday night that fellow legislators had insinuated she was taking food from the mouths of school children. Opponents of her bill on the school breakfast program painted verbal pictures of kids trying to hear teachers over the growling of their empty stomachs. That was the kind of emotional debate that went on before the House voted tentative approval, 76-62, to Mrs. McBee's bill. Final consideration still is needed before the measure can go to the

Defective product debate refused

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate refused Tuesday to debate a business-backed proposal revising legal defenses in suits over defective products. The vote to bring up the measure was 18-13, which was three short of the two-thirds majority required. House members already have approved the bill, 70-66. Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said he introduced the bill because manufacturers cannot obtain insurance to protect themselves against product liability suits.

Clements said the unfinished business also includes approval for wiretapping in narcotics cases, energy legislation and budget-execution authority. One legislator told The Associated Press the governor indicated he will call a special session next year while legislators are running for reelection. Clements also indicated, the legislator said, that he will make initiative and referendum, wiretapping and budget execution campaign issues if the Legislature fails to pass them. Clements repeatedly has threatened to call a special session if an initiative and referendum bill, to put before Texas voters, is not passed in the regular session. The House failed by 17 votes Monday to pass an initiative and referendum measure. The governor also threatened legislators with a special session if they failed to pass a state bar bill to his liking. But after the House rejected to state bar measures tailored to fit his specifications, Clements said although he is considering calling a special session, no decision has been definitely made.

The bill would let school districts stop serving breakfast to needy children at any school where less than half the eligible youngsters participate for 60 consecutive school days. Also gaining tentative approval, 91-39, was a bill allowing the handful of districts without school cafeterias to abandon their breakfast programs. A 1977 state law requires each school district to join the federally funded breakfast program if at least 10 percent of its pupils are eligible. Children receive breakfast either free or at reduced prices. Mrs. McBee, D-Del Rio, said the breakfast program "is obviously working well in some areas and it is obviously failing miserably in others."

The Texas School Administrators Association backs the bill, and administrators have testified they resented being ordered by the state to participate in the breakfast program. Rep. Paul Elizondo, D-San Antonio, said the bill was "convenient for school administrators who are not handling this program effectively" but would hurt children. "This is the year of the child. We should not start it by refusing to feed hungry kids in the morning," Elizondo said.

House may try one more vote on controversial home loan bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — One of the Legislature's most controversial bills, raising the ceiling on home loan interest rates, is on its way to Gov. Bill Clements' desk — maybe. The "maybe" is because House sponsors still aren't satisfied with the 92-41 vote that finally passed the bill Tuesday. They might try one more time. If the bill does not get the 100 votes needed for immediate effect, interest rates would be stuck at their present level until Aug. 27. Clements is expected to sign the bill. He proposed its essential provisions after deciding it was necessary to assure a supply of mortgage money in Texas. Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the sponsor, said his hope of getting 100 votes rests with 11 representatives who abstained from voting Tuesday. Representatives often abstain from voting if a bill involves a conflict of interests. The bill would set the ceiling on home loan interest at two percentage points above the average monthly rate for 10-year U.S. Treasury notes and bonds — currently just above 9 percent. The absolute maximum would be 12 percent. The new ceiling would be in force only until Sept. 1, 1981, unless the 1981 Legislature extends it. House members accepted the Senate's decision to remove a provision outlawing "points" that lenders charge sellers of homes. They also went along with the Senate's action to allow penalties for prepayment of a home loan if they are required by an agency created by the federal government. Donaldson said the Federal National Mortgage Association ("Fannie Mae") requires penalties but usually waives them if they conflict with a state law.

Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, urged the House to reject the Senate changes and send the bill to a conference committee. Allee was voted down, 86-46. Allee said the House should fight for the prohibition against seller "points," which he said can easily add $2,000 or $3,000 to the price of a house when passed through to buyers. "As a builder, I can tell you that eliminating points is not going to reduce prices. ... I can tell you, I am not going to reduce the price, and neither is any other builder. I'm going to put the money in my pocket," replied Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado. Donaldson and Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, pleaded for 100 votes. McFarland said the price of a $60,000 home would rise by $2,000 while a family waits between now and Aug. 27 for mortgage money to become available.

Rotary to hear woman astronaut

Dr. Shannon W. Lucid, an astronaut candidate (Mission Specialist), Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, Houston, will be the speaker Thursday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Rotary club in the Midland Hilton. She was selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in January 1978 and, in July, commenced a two-year training and evaluation program to qualify for subsequent assignment as a mission specialist for future space shuttle flight crews. She is expected to discuss her work at the Space Center in her talk here, according to John W. Thomas, Rotary program chairman. Dr. Lucid was born Jan. 14, 1943, at Shanghai, China, but considers Bethany, Okla., to be her home town. She received a bachelor of science degree in Chemistry from The University of Oklahoma in 1963, and master of science and doctor of philosophy degrees in Biochemistry from The University of Oklahoma in 1970 and 1973, respectively. She has held a number of academic assignments. She is married to Michael F. Lucid of Indianapolis, Ind. They have three children.

'Port to Plains' highway sought

Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — West Texas officials have renewed their long-standing plea to the Texas Highway and Public Transportation Commission for a "Port to Plains" highway. Officials from Austin, Houston, Snyder, Abilene, Coleman, Lampasas and Brownwood were on hand Monday to urge the commission to approve a route running from Lubbock via Abilene and Austin to Houston. Cost of that route — one of four which has been under study by the commission for some five years — would run between $600 million and $1.35 billion, depending on the type of highway constructed. Bob Bailey of Abilene said the route would provide access to the state capital from the High Plains area, allow better transportation of grain to the Port of Houston and qualify as a demonstration project for federal funds under the 1978 highway act. Those funds would amount to only $5 million, however, a department spokesman reports. Former Houston Mayor Louie Welch and Austin Mayor Carole McClellan endorsed the project, with Welch expressing the "strong support" of the Houston Chamber of Commerce for it. Trucks now carry 50 percent of the grain shipped to the Port of Houston — with that tonnage exceeding 11.6 million annually, Welch said. Houston, he added, "will be satisfied with nothing less than a highway of interstate caliber." A number of West Texas officials were on hand for the session but did not speak. Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene was on hand for the presentation by the West Texas delegation. The commission promised the matter would receive full attention — and promised that the fact that Commission Chairman Sam Waldrop is from Abilene would not affect the consideration of the route.

Carter bids to tighten federal pay system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal pay system is coming under the close scrutiny of President Carter, who wants to peg federal workers' salaries more closely to their counterparts' pay in private business.

the General Accounting Office said pay increases for the top officials in government are "critically needed" to avoid difficulties in recruiting and retaining personnel. Salaries of top officials in government have gone up too slowly in the past 10 years in comparison with the increases in pay of managers in private business and the cost-of-living, the GAO said in a report. Talented officials will leave government for private business unless their salaries are increased, it added. The president's pay legislation would require the government's generous fringe benefits to be included when federal and non-federal workers' salaries are compared, said Carter aides, who asked not to be identified.

At a meeting of federal workers at the White House Monday, Carter said details of legislation to revise the system are still being worked out.

"This is a very important challenge for us all," he told the hand-picked group. "I am determined to bring this about."

Carter aides say overhauling the pay system could save taxpayers $4.6 billion annually.

Carter's comments on the pay system came as

Body iron important

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been told I need an iron supplement, but I'd rather get the iron directly from food. Can you tell me which foods contain the most iron? Why is it so important to have? —Mrs. J.A.K.

Dear Mrs. K.: There are a number of foods that contain iron, but you should check with your physician to make certain that adding them to your diet will negate the need for the supplement. Liver is an excellent source of iron. It is also found in other meats, egg yolk, fish, green leafy vegetables, peas, beans, dried fruit and whole-grain cereals.

Most of the iron in our bodies is in our blood, with comparatively large amounts distributed in the liver, spleen and blood marrow. It serves an important function in moving oxygen to the cells and in helping make use of the oxygen once it arrives.

When there is a loss of blood, significant amounts of iron may leave the body. For this reason, people who have blood loss or who are forming more blood have the greatest need for dietary iron. Women of childbearing age, pregnant women and growing children have the highest needs, and are the most likely to suffer from iron-deficiency anemia.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been reading about the possible cancer-causing properties of nitrites and nitrates. If a substance is believed to be carcinogenic, why doesn't the government simply remove it from the market? —Bud

Dear Bud: There are practical reasons why precipitous action banning the use of nitrites and nitrites might be counterproductive. Early studies have indicated that nitrite may increase the incidence of human cancer. However, the chemical is known to be beneficial in preventing the growth of organisms that cause botulism, a deadly food poisoning, when it is added to uncooked or partially cooked meats, poultry and fish products.

Sodium nitrite also is a preservative used in curing bacon. When the treated bacon is fried at high temperatures, it produces nitrosamines, substances which are considered carcinogenic. The Department of Agriculture has set reduced limits for nitrite use in bacon, and is conducting tests to determine if this significantly reduces the level of nitrosamines produced.

Additional research may support the need for further action either banning or severely limiting the use of nitrite, but the issue at present is not clear-cut.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What exactly happens in the diabetic patient? What goes wrong? —Mr. V.S.

Dear Mr. S.: In a healthy person, the pancreas automatically releases the proper amount of insulin into the bloodstream to metabolize sugar, protein and fat. In the diabetic patient, the pancreas secretes either too little insulin or none at all. The one problem may not be in the pancreas but in the lack of responsiveness of other body cells to react properly to the insulin. This results in excess amounts of sugar accumulating in the blood.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

A bow and blush of shame for ancient Barbara's fame

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — It was right and fitting that I should drop into Barbara Fritchie's house the first chance I got.

After all these years an apology was due for snickering at the feisty old dowager who alone in Frederick town waved her country's flag when Stonewall Jackson rode by with his rebel horde.

Looking back on that outrage now, from the vantage point of the very window where Dame Fritchie rescued the flag shot from its staff by the Confederate rifleman, the whole reaction of ridicule and irreverent laughter was probably Sister Miriam's fault.

Our eighth grade nun really identified with the Barbara Fritchie of the John Greenleaf Whittier poem.

Her voice throbbled with emotion and the wattles in her throat over her wimple got red when she reached the line:

"Shoot if you must this old gray head,
But spare your country's flag," she said.

We used to call her Barbara Fritchie behind her back. Indeed there is an uncanny resemblance to the portrait of Barbara in her bonnet over the old red velvet rocker in the historic house, although she was 96 when she did her flag-waving bit and Sister Miriam couldn't have been half that age when she acted out the story for us.

The trouble began at the point in the poem when the nobler nature stirred within the general's soul and with a blush of shame he issued the order:

"Who touches a hair on you gray head Dies like a dog! March on!" he said.

Right there Charlie Schroder, the class cutup, let out a blood curdling yelp, like a dog that had just been shot.

Stunned by his impudence and our volley of laughter, Sister Miriam ordered us to write out the entire poem three times for homework. The snickering subsided until she reached the poet's windup tribute to the crusty old patriot and the remorseful invader:

"Honor to her and let a tear
Fall for her sake on Stonewall's bier."

An honor student named Marjorie Adams, who never did anything wrong in class, suddenly went all to pieces. Her father owned a tavern and she misheard the line. She commenced to giggle, then guffaw, then howl hysterically helplessly out of control, until the place was bedlam.

For that, the class sentence was increased to writing out the poem a dozen times and being able to recite it on the morrow from memory. I am one of the few people I know who can deliver the ballad from beginning to end without a miscue, although memory still forced a snicker in the appropriate place prior to my visit here.

So, here in the old house, I make public amends to Whittier's hardy heroine, who probably would not have been amused. Judging from the portrait and the biographical evidence, she was a tough piece of work. Of German stock, from Lancaster, Pa., she once poured tea for George Washington. At 40, she married a 26-year-old glovemaking and proceeded to outlive him by 13 years. Although a Yankee sympathizer, she kept two slaves, Uncle Harry and Aunt Minnie. When Stonewall Jackson came to town that first week in September 1862, Abe Lincoln hadn't issued his Emancipation Proclamation yet, freeing the slaves. If he had, Barbara might have wrapped that flagpole around the sideburns of Gen. Ambrose Burnside when Union troops chased after the Rebs 10 days later.

Recent research shows that Gen. Jackson wasn't having a good week when he camped out on the Frederick fairgrounds. The day he crossed into Maryland, someone stole "Little Sorrel," his favorite steed. Admirers gave him a gigantic gray mare that reared up, tossed him in a ditch and rolled over on him as he tried to mount.

Bruised and sore, he took in Sunday services at the German Reform Church, one of the still rising clustered spires of Frederick town, and promptly fell asleep during the sermon. The choir woke him up but not in time to hear the special prayers the minister offered for President Lincoln.

A staff officer named Sanders, who rode at Jackson's side, wrote years later that he never saw Barbara Fritchie or anyone else poke a head or a flag out any window. He recalled that the Confederate band played "Maryland, My Maryland" through the streets, hoping to rally some recruits to the Rebel cause but none came forward.

Oh well, history always has its debunkers. Whittier, who never met Barbara Fritchie, heard the story in a letter from a neighbor, Emma Southworth, who wrote that "the city wore churchyard respect" when Jackson rode though, except for that one flag flying from that second-story window on Patrick Street.

Barbara's exact words when the shooting started, according to Emma, were: "Fire at this old head then, boys, for it is not more venerable than your flag."

There is nothing about dying like a dog, either, but if Whittier had been more accurate I might never have committed his poem to memory or be forced to pen this apology to a gallant lady.

And I am indebted to another gallant lady, Mrs. William Clary, who has presided lovingly over the Barbara Fritchie house for the past 42 years, for curing me of a choric case of the snickers. Thanks too to Sister Miriam, wherever she is, for putting up with our rebel horde.

Fourth panda mating season to bring no pattering feet

By SAM HARTZ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't listen for the pattering of tiny giant panda feet about the National Zoo this year. The curtain has fallen on a disappointing fourth honeymoon for notables Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling.

"We're still getting over the shock," Bill Xanten, curator of mammals, said this week. He said the

Lee scores at Waco

The Lee High School Industrial Arts Club placed third in the Texas Industrial Arts Students' Association competition held recently in Waco.

Among state divisional winners were Jeff McVey, Pat Land, who won two first place awards, and Larry Ledbetter.

Other winners include: First place: Clay Bateman, Buck Chadwick, Todd McMann, Jeff McVey, John Murphy, Laddie Norton, Robert Samuels, Tim Schneider, Steve Hooper, Lynn Justice, Pat Land, Larry Ledbetter, Brent Lowery and Lee Johnson, who won two firsts.

pair's 1978 performance had led to great expectations for this year's mating season.

But the two wound up an unsuccessful 12-day fling at romance last Saturday.

There was no weight excuse this time. On advice from Chinese pandologists, Ling-Ling had been slimmed down from 295 pounds to 250 and Hsing-Hsing from 285 to 260.

"There were a lot of things this year that we weren't expecting," said Xanten. "For one thing, the female's heat cycle lasted only 3½ days this year as opposed to 13 last year."

As last year, said Xanten, there was loud vocalizing, bleating, nips, squeals, ritual fighting and attempts to mate. But it was all on a less intense scale than the improvement zoo officials had expected.

Hsing-Hsing is 8 now; Ling-Ling, 8½. According to Peking, giant pandas don't reach sexual maturity until at least 6. This leaves many mating seasons ahead.

But Xanten said he isn't optimistic at all about next year. "We were optimistic this year."

"Every single year is different. In 1976, she hurt her foot. In 1977 there was a little promise. After 1978, we were hopeful because of the behavior we saw."

Now it's back to the drawing board and think sessions, comparing tapes and checksheet data with last year's, Xanten said.

What next? Xanten didn't rule out artificial insemination as a means of providing America's youngsters with the baby panda many of them write and ask about.

Pipeline prospects gloomy, chairman of Sohio says

CLEVELAND (AP) — The chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) said he doubts a proposed $1 billion oil pipeline from California to Texas will ever get off the drawing board.

"I don't think it's moving fast enough," Alton W. Whitehouse said Tuesday. "Nothing has gone on in the past few months that changes my mind about our decision to cancel the project."

On March 13, Sohio said it was dropping its plans for the pipeline from Long Beach, Calif. to Midland, Tex. But it agreed to reconsider the plan after various California and federal agencies promised to help resolve the problems.

Whitehouse had blamed "endless government permit procedures, pending and threatened litigation" as the reasons for canceling the project.

On Tuesday, he said Sohio has received the promised help. Various bills have been introduced to grant President Carter the authority to give the necessary permits and clear some of the possible litigation against the pipeline. And, nearly all 700 permits needed for the pipeline have been granted.

But Whitehouse said there are still fears of lawsuits which could continue to block the pipeline. "Everyone has been trying to help us," he said. "But we told them at the time we said we would reconsider, that we could not wait forever."

Sohio was expected to make a final decision within 30 days. The pipeline was designed to bring crude oil from the Prudhoe Bay oil field in Alaska to refineries in the East and Midwest and save the costs of shipping the oil through the Panama Canal.

Sohio has been selling more of its oil on the West Coast recently because of the gasoline shortage there. Whitehouse said several West Coast refineries were drawing up plans to convert equipment to handle the high-sulfur Alaska oil, rather than imported oil.

Congressmen seek more diesel fuel for farmers

By The Associated Press

Midwestern congressmen, invoking the specter of idle tractors, have urged President Carter to increase diesel fuel for farmers. But in trying to balance supplies of gasoline and heating oil, the administration actually may cut supplies of the fuel that powers the nation's farms.

Twenty-six farm state congressmen Tuesday reminded President Carter of his pledge that "rural America will not run dry" while their House colleagues vowed opposition to his plan to lift price controls from domestically produced oil.

In New York, service stations whose prices exceed 99.9 cents per gallon — but whose pumps can't accommodate an extra digit — will be allowed today to price gas by the half-gallon.

And in California, where lines at service stations dwindled but did not disappear, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. called for "more candor, less inconsistency and more leadership" from the federal government in the energy crisis.

The Energy Department Tuesday asked refineries to step up production, primarily of gasoline. Officials say the decision will not cut into the winter heating oil supply. But by adjusting their operations to increase gas production, refineries are producing less heating oil and diesel fuel from each barrel of crude.

The department pushed back by one month its Oct. 1 target date for 240 million barrels of heating oil, saying the original date was unrealistic. But because the supply of heating oil will peak later, the supply of diesel is likely to remain tight for a longer period.

Last week, a study by the New England Economic Research Office said that unless some action were taken immediately — perhaps even to the extent of cutting back gasoline production — a major shortage of home heating oil could result in the Northeast. And the report warned heating oil is also used extensively in the Midwest and Middle Atlantic states.

Getty Oil Co. said Tuesday it would halt sales of diesel fuel and heating oil in the Midwest for about a week while it works out a new distribution system. That announcement came as Midwestern senators and House members asked for a meeting with Carter to work out a way to funnel diesel fuel to the farm belt.

"Today we face the very real prospect of idle tractors and irrigation pumps during the height of the planting and growing season," they told Carter in a letter. "Reports indicate that a good portion of America's crop may not be planted if fuel oil supplies do not become available soon."

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department reported that some 67 percent of the nation's crop was planted as the week began, compared to an average level for this time of year of 75 percent.

The report said fuel supplies for farm work "generally rated adequate, although supplies were tightened from the previous week."

In other fuel developments Tuesday: Amoco Oil Co., the largest supplier of gas to the Midwest, announced it could provide only 80 to 85 percent of 1978's supply of gasoline and other fuels "for the foreseeable future."

Illinois state police dispersed a convoy of semi-trailer trucks parked across Interstate 80 near Joliet in protest of the state's crackdown on speeders, a crackdown ordered to help save fuel.

The Energy Department said available evidence does not back up a suggestion by the Federal Trade Commission that "the current gasoline shortage may be contrived." That possibility was raised last week by FTC Bureau of Competition director Alfred Dougherty, who cited "reported figures" indicating that refiners had cut gas production by an amount greater than their import losses.

Carter allies in the House, lacking the votes to stop a move to renounce oil price decontrol, began pushing a compromise asking Carter to delay lifting controls from domestic crude until a windfall profits tax is enacted. Carter says lifting the controls will boost domestic production and reduce dependence on foreign oil.

Radiation did not kill cows

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Radiation released in the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor accident had nothing to do with the deaths of nearly 20 cows on a nearby farm, according to state officials. But they concede they don't yet know the exact cause.

An autopsy was performed on one of the cows, and tissue from its internal organs revealed no unusual radiation, state Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell said Tuesday.

"Samples of the liver, spleen and kidney of the cow from Clair Hoover's dairy farm in Bainbridge were tested by the Department of Environmental Resources and proved to be negative," Hallowell said.

"All evidence leads us to believe that radiation was not the cause of the cow's death," he said.

The tests showed the cow died of "a severe infection in the uterus," Hallowell said, adding that further tests will try to identify the specific source of the infection. There was evidence of jaundice and anemia, but those ailments are believed related to the uterus infection.

The animal was the last of seven cows and 12 calves that had died since April 30 on Hoover's farm. The cows died while giving birth, and their calves were still-born.

Other tests are being conducted by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the University of Pennsylvania and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

"All of the dairy farmers in a five-mile radius (of the nuclear plant) are being surveyed to see if they have had any similar problems. This is about 85 farms," Agriculture Department spokesman John Nally said.

The 400-acre Hoover farm is located near the Susquehanna River about 4 1/2 miles from the crippled nuclear plant, which released small amounts of radioactive material on a daily basis after the March 28 accident.

State officials said that Monday was the first time since the accident that there had been no such emissions.

Passing oil price resolution may embarrass Carter, party

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Majority Leader Jim Wright told the House Democratic Caucus on Tuesday it will be embarrassing President Carter and his party if a resolution passes in opposition to the removal of oil price controls.

Supporters of the non-binding resolution sponsored by U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut prepared to parry maneuvers to kill or weaken it when the caucus resumed discussions today.

Texas caucus members lined up almost solidly against the resolution in what was billed as a test vote Tuesday, a losing attempt to table it. Texans voted 17-3 to table the resolution, but the motion failed 153-82.

"I think this vote was our minimum strength," Moffett said. That unplanned roll call, however, forced the caucus to recess when time ran out before a vote on the resolution.

The three Texans voting with the majority were U.S. Reps. Bob Eckhardt and Mickey Leland of Houston and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Carter does not need congressional approval to lift controls, but Congress can attempt to restore them. "The president of the United States took a courageous stand," Wright said as he urged defeat of the resolution.

The Fort Worth Democrat said federal regulation of the domestic oil industry since the 1973 Arab embargo has served only to speed up the flow of dollars abroad.

"Let's not look for scapegoats, gentlemen. Let's look for solutions," Wright said.

Leaders of stop-decontrol predict victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of President Carter's decision to lift price controls on oil are asking Democratic members of the House to send "a signal to the White House" against higher fuel prices.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., organizer of the stop-decontrol campaign, predicted victory for his resolution at today's scheduled caucus of all 276 House Democrats.

"If we get a quorum, we have the votes," Moffett said. "I'd be shocked if we didn't win on a recorded vote."

However, obtaining the majority turnout needed for a quorum has often proved difficult in attempts to put the Democratic Caucus on record on controversial issues and Moffett said he's not taking anything for granted.

Moffett's resolution would put House Democrats on record in favor of continued price controls on oil.

Although without legal force, such a vote would deal a heavy psychological blow to an administration energy policy still reeling from House rejection of the president's standby gasoline rationing plan.

"It's an attempt to gain momentum and send a signal to the White House," Moffett said in an interview. "At this time, we're gaining every day as House members get more and more angry."

Moffett said he also intends to offer a block-decontrol amendment on the House floor when the House considers legislation authorizing various Energy Department programs for fiscal 1980.

At the White House Monday, press secretary Jody Powell criticized the approach being taken by Congress in dealing with energy problems.

"Re-imposition of controls would be a nice, cheap vote in its political appeal, but it would do nothing for our energy problem," Powell said. Moreover, he said, "If the Congress had passed the proposals the president sent up in 1977, we would be significantly better off in terms of gas supplies this summer."

White House displeasure notwithstanding, House leaders said Moffett seemed to have considerable support for his anti-decontrol move.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has said he agrees with Moffett's opposition to decontrol and would not stand in his way in trying to put the issue to a vote.

However, O'Neill also said he thought such a bid was a waste of time — that even if the House actually voted to block decontrol, the move could never survive an almost certain Senate filibuster.

Assistant House Democratic Leader John Brademas of Indiana recently told reporters Moffett's move would probably win caucus support.

And Brademas, who usually supports the White House on major issues, confessed: "I'm leaning more toward Moffett's position than a few months ago. The oil companies have not behaved properly."

Moffett sent a "Dear Colleague" letter to other House Democrats claiming decontrol would add $86 billion to the nation's energy bill through 1985 and that the president's proposed "windfall profits" tax would capture only 8 percent of that amount.

A staff study prepared for a House Commerce subcommittee claimed Monday that oil decontrol, combined with new federal gas pricing rules and inflation, will drive up the price of gasoline at least 20 cents a gallon by 1981.

Quick action urged on balanced budget amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan group of 33 senators, including two Republican presidential hopefuls, is urging a Senate panel to act quickly on a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget.

The senators made their plea in a letter Tuesday to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on the Constitution, who had already scheduled a hearing today to consider the measure.

Specifically, they urged that the bill be sent to the floor of the Senate before the Independence Day congressional recess, which will begin around the end of June.

Bayh responded through a spokesman that it was "not a probability" this deadline would be met. The spokesman, Jim Barrett, said Bayh expected to hear "many, many witnesses" to determine whether a constitutional amendment is necessary.

The signers of the letter urged Bayh to redouble his efforts "so that the balanced budget proposal may be debated by the full Senate in the near future."

If it is not, they said, "Congress will be pre-empted by the states who are rapidly moving toward the requisite number necessary to call a constitutional convention."

The National Taxpayers' Union, which is leading a drive for such a convention, says 30 of the necessary 34 state legislatures have called for one. A constitutional amendment would have to be ratified by 38 states, whether it was proposed by Congress or by a convention.

The 22 Republican signers of the letter included Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, an announced candidate for the party's presidential nomination, and GOP Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, who has not announced but has said he plans to run.
