NEWS IN BRIEF

Bill fails

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Initiative and referendum — a Proposition 13-spawned issue that Gov. Bill Clements had made the keystone of his "Tax-payers' Bill of Rights" — failed for the last time in the House on Friday.

Clements had given legislators notice for months that their refusal to approve an initiative and referendum proposal would force him to call them back in special session.

Wayne honored

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements made John Wayne an honorary Texas Ranger Friday, saying the movie star is "a man who has exemplified what the Texas spirit and the Texas Rangers are all about."

Clements also set aside Saturday as a special day of tribute to the actor, who is battling cancer in Los Angeles.

Wayne portrayed a Texas Ranger in "The Searchers," one of his many movie roles.

Chiles confirmed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate confirmed the appointment Friday of Harrel "Eddie" Chiles as a North Texas State University regent despite a senator's comment some of Chiles' public remarks are "totally ignorant."

'Big bill' rumored

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An attorney representing Cullen Davis said Friday the multimillionaire's ex-wife Priscilla left their $6 million mansion in such a mess when she moved out that Davis will present her a bill for about $500,000 for cleaning and repairs.

"Paintings are missing, marble statues are broken, silverware is missing," said Davis. "All of the carpets in the house are ruined."

Davis, 45, was divorced from Priscilla a month ago, and the $3.4 million settlement called for her to move out of the mansion by Wednesday at midnight.

But when Davis and his new wife, Karen, 31, inspected the property the next day they said it was in shambles. Davis said dogs and cats had apparently fouled the carpets in the lavish residence.

Expulsion OK'd

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would allow college administrators to expel students convicted of disorderly conduct or public disturbance charges was approved tentatively Friday by the House.

Authority given

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate tentatively approved a bill Friday that would create the largest water district in Texas — the Ogallala Water Import Authority — to bring out-of-state water to the Texas High Plains. The authority would include all of the state overlying the vast underground Ogallala water formation, except Borden, Crosby, Dickens and Garza counties.

The underground reservoir stretches under more than 40 counties, from Midland north to the Panhandle border with Oklahoma.

Terrorist group claims religious leader's death

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gunmen shot and wounded a religious leader Friday who is a reputed member of the secret Islamic Revolutionary Council that controls Iran.

The Forghan group, which has killed two revolutionary leaders in the last month and is pledged to continue terrorist attacks, claimed responsibility.

Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani, a close associate of revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, was shot twice in the stomach after he answered the door at his house in northern Tehran and struggled with three assailants, according to reports assembled by Iranian reporters.

A spokesman at Tehran's Martyrs' Hospital told the Associated Press that Rafsanjani was undergoing surgery for removal of two bullets, one of which had damaged a kidney. Earlier, the official Pars news agency reported the religious leader was in satisfactory condition.

Shortly after the shooting, in which Rafsanjani's wife reportedly received a minor gunshot wound in the arm, a caller to the newspaper Bamdad said Forghan was responsible for the attack. The mysterious underground group uses a mixture of leftist and Islamic rhetoric in its communiques.

State radio said "millions of people" participated in a second day of emotional rallies Friday denouncing the United States for its criticism of Iran's system of revolutionary trials and executions.

Rafsanjani, 50, was a major speaker Thursday at a rally in Tehran, the Iranian capital. He said the hands of U.S. Senators were "stained with blood," as he denounced a Senate resolution which last week expressing "abhorrence" of Iranian executions. At least 222 persons have died before firing squads since the Islamic revolution overthrew the monarchy of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February.

Rafsanjani was the third senior member of Iran's revolutionary movement to be shot in about a month. On April 23, Gen. Mohammad Ali Gharani, the new government's first chief of staff, was shot and killed in the yard of his home.

On May 1, following May Day labor demonstrations in Tehran, Ayatollah Moreza Motahari, a member of the revolutionary council, was shot and killed as he left a dinner party.

Forghan took responsibility for the assassinations. A communique attributed to Forghan earlier this month said the group would kill all members of the revolutionary council.

272 die in unexplained crash of DC-10

CHICAGO (AP) — An American Airlines wide-bodied jet loaded with 272 Memorial Day weekend travelers crashed nose first and broke apart in flames Friday just after takeoff from O'Hare International Airport. Authorities said all aboard were killed in the worst air-disaster in U.S. history.

Seconds before the Los Angeles-bound DC-10 jetliner crashed, one of its three engines fell off and landed on the runway, said Chicago Fire Commissioner Richard Albrecht. He said the plane hit nose first about a half-mile from the O'Hare runway in an abandoned airfield in Elk Grove Township.

Lee Alfano, police chief of the nearby community of Des Plaines, said there were no survivors from the crash, which occurred at 3:03 p.m. CDT under clear but windy skies.

Rescue workers walked through the smoking rubble, marking bodies with 4-foot-high metal stakes topped by red, yellow and black streamers. The yellow streamers indicated two to three bodies, the red one body and the black five bodies. About 50 stakes had been set out.

Several persons on the ground were injured by debris, at least two of them seriously enough to require hospitalization.

As darkness fell, floodlights were brought to the crash site and rescuers and investigators said they would work through the night looking for bodies and clues.

Neal Callahan, public affairs officer for the Federal Aviation Administration in Chicago, said a recording of conversations between the pilot and the control tower indicated the tower knew on takeoff there was trouble.

"The only thing we do know for sure is that he didn't have time to talk to the control tower," Callahan said.

Asked by reporters whether the plane should have been able to fly with one engine missing, Callahan said:

"Yes, it should fly, no question about that, but that's one thing that will be determined in a further investigation." The National Transportation Safety Board sent investigators from Washington.

Michael Laughlin of Toronto, who filmed the plane's descent with a still camera from a window inside an O'Hare terminal, said the engine "came off and flew backwards and fluttered to the ground" before the plane plummeted.

"I had to force myself to shoot," he said. "I couldn't believe what I was seeing."

John Zuccaro, who saw the crash from the ground, said: "Underneath the left wing was on fire. Stuff was coming out — like white vapor.

"It had to be gas," Zuccaro said. "It was coming out from the left wing. And the thing started turning over. As soon as it was turned over it was going down fast."

Roy Mueller, manager of the Oasis mobile home park near the disaster site, said, "We heard a loud rumbling. We went to the door and we saw this airplane flip-flopping in the air. It belled over and went straight down.

John Wayne, a Chicago area resident, was on an Ozark Airlines flight landing on another runway at the time American Flight 191 took off from a runway at the north end of the airport.

Memorial Day: Summer 'begins,' dead remembered

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Most days they are forgotten.

But on Monday, attention will return to the plaques, graves and statues in Midland County that mark the memory of those who died in American wars.

It's Memorial Day, the unofficial beginning of summer.

It's a day of family outings and the Indianapolis 500.

It is also a day to remember the dead.

In Midland County, those memories will be resurrected at 6:30 p.m. Monday in a quiet, traditional ceremony scheduled for Resthaven Memorial Park.

The 45-minute service will consist of eulogies for the dead and their survivors. Local civic and service organizations will present wreaths to the dead during the service.

At Fairview Cemetery, flags will line the driveway and surround the graves of veterans.

And 10 veterans from the Vietnam War will receive national certificates for community service.

Memorial Day originated as a way to commemorate those who died in the Civil War.

That function has not been forgotten locally.

According to Ada Phillips, a local historian, 32 veterans of the War Between the States are buried in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. Phillips was part of the Midland County Historical Society team that spent two years researching the cemetery to determine who the veterans were.

"Our group went out there one Sunday afternoon and thought we'd find them all in a few minutes," she said.

It turned out to be a lengthy — and interesting — project.

Each of the graves has its own story, Mrs. Phillips said.

She cited the case of Michael Bounds, who died in 1925 in Midland, still a member of the Confederate States Army.

Injured by cannon shrapnel shortly before the end of the war, he returned home, carrying metal fragments in his skull.

Bounds became a minister, Mrs. Phillips said, but through some mix-up, was never discharged from the Army.

He carried that distinction and the shrapnel to his grave when he died at the age of 87.

Some of the veterans' lives touched American history in other ways, Mrs. Phillips said.

John Hyatt, originally from Georgia, spent four years in the war before moving to Texas, she said.

After the conflict, he worked for the Pony Express, the mail-carrying branch of Wells Fargo Co.

According to tradition, Southern women chose May 30 as the day to commemorate the dead from the Civil War.

In 1868, Maj. Gen. John Logan, leader of the Grand Army of the Republic, a Union veteran organization, also named May 30 as the day to memorialize Civil War veterans.

Many Southern states, including Texas, had separate days to honor Confederate veterans.

Later, veterans of all American wars were honored on Memorial Day.

In 1971, Congress relegated the commemoration to the last Monday in May.

Despite the ceremony Monday, at least one veteran feels that Americans are beginning to forget the ideals behind the holiday.

"I think we need to have more public participation," Hank Chambers, commander of the American Legion post said. "People ought to remember what those guys did for us."

Deputy police chief Charles Pepp told rescue workers to "put as many in (the vans) as you can, but don't stack them. Treat them like your own personal family."

Relatives of victims were asked to gather at American's VIP lounge at the airport.

Highways in the area quickly became jammed with rush-hour motorists and hundreds of people gathered at the grisly scene, including residents of the Oasis trailer park.

O'Hare, the world's busiest airport, shut down briefly, disrupting heavy holiday traffic, but later some runways reopened. Departing flights were delayed an hour or more.

The non-stop flight was due to leave Chicago at 2:45 p.m. CDT and to arrive in Los Angeles at 4:42 p.m. PDT. The same jet had landed at O'Hare at 1:05 p.m. CDT, as Flight 630 from Phoenix, Ariz.

A spokesman for Playboy magazine said passengers on the flight included its managing editor Sheldon Wax; his wife, novelist Judith Wax; Mary Tierney Sheridan, administrative director of Playboy Enterprise's international publishing division; and Victoria Haider, Playboy's fiction editor.

Problem real, visiting senator tells petroleum engineers

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

"The American people do not presently believe there is an energy shortage. They believe they are being ripped off by the oil companies," U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., told a full house of petroleum engineers Friday night at The Midland Hilton.

The senator was speaking at the "Ladies Night and Scholarship Awards Banquet" of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

Laxalt is a member of the Senate Judiciary and Appropriations committees, and the Interior, HUD-Independent Agencies, Treasury, U.S. Postal Service and General Government sub-committees. In 1976, he was national chairman of the presidential campaign for Ronald Reagan.

There is a "crying need of somehow developing the facts so the American public will believe them," Laxalt told the gathering.

Perhaps a solution, he said, would be having an independent auditing firm to conduct an audit of the oil and gas industry to dispell fears of so-called "obscene profits," the senator suggested.

The problem is a real one, Laxalt believes. "We have adequate resources of oil and gas in this country if we permit our industry to go after it," he said.

Speaking to an often loudly-applauding group, the senator charged the quest for energy independence in this country has been stymied by a government bureaucracy too entrenched in "protecting its political turf" to get the job done.

The senator cited an example — what he termed the ineffective Department of Energy, an agency with 25,000 employees and a $12 billion budget.

And he stressed the need for an oil industry able to do its job unencumbered by government controls. "The day controls go out of the energy industry, they're (the bureaucrats) out of a job."

But the energy crisis is real, he said. "We're in the midst of a very serious energy crisis."

To effectively combat that crisis will take the establishment of courageous decisions both in the White House and in Congress, he said.

Also during Friday night's event, new officers for the SPE were installed for 1979-80. These include Ken Osborn, chairman; Charles Dickson, first vice chairman; Mike Houston, second vice chairman for Midland membership; Jim York, second vice chairman for membership outside Midland; Dave Boes, secretary, and Tom Gentry, treasurer.

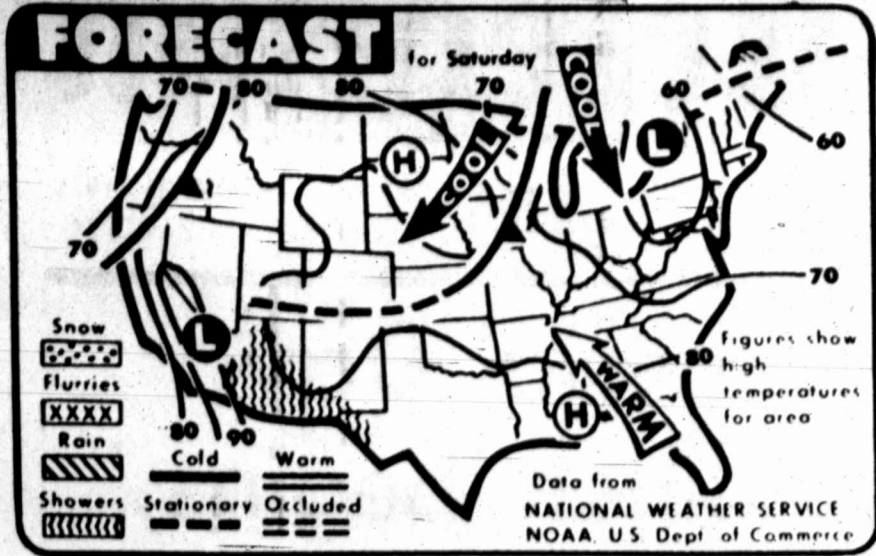

Directors for the coming year include Bill Williams, Allen Cecil, Jack James, Steve Scott, John J. Keesey, Thane Akins, Charles Kalteyer, Don Sparks, and Roy Williamson.

Announced as scholarship award recipients for 1979-80 were Jeffery Sparks, Lee High School; Kevin Myers, Permian High School of Odessa; Victor Gomez, Ector High School of Odessa, and Billy Lewis, Kermit High School of Kermit.

Carter still looks forward to 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter conceded on Friday that the public sees its political leadership as suffering from "paralysis, stagnation and drift" and asked Democrats to close ranks behind him in dealing with the nation's problems.

In an appearance before the Democratic National Committee's spring meeting, Carter said the country faces severe problems and that the public obviously has doubts about whether elected officials are equal to the challenge.

The president also said he looks forward to the 1980 elections, despite the problems he faces.

Carter told the Democrats he was not announcing his plans to seek reelection, "but I have never backed down from a fight."

The president said if he does run, he will take his effort to every precinct in the nation "and I have no doubt it would be successful."

In a blunt address to the party leaders, Carter warned the Democrats that the public sees the government, which the Democrats dominate, as stricken with "paralysis, stagnation and drift."

"The American people do not like it, and neither do I," he said. "You are leaders of our party. I need your help and support. If those of us in positions of responsibility are unwilling to take the heat, to make unpopular decisions, to stand up and fight for them, to offer answers to complex questions, then we will have failed in our hour of history."

"We have never failed our country, we Democrats, and I don't believe we will fail it now," he said.

Carter's comments came at the close of a turbulent week of intra-party squabbling, including the beginnings of a movement to dump him from the Democrats' 1980 ticket.

Earlier in the week, the House Democratic Caucus rejected Carter energy policies in harsh language. And five House Democrats announced plans to seek an alternative to Carter for the next presidential nomination.

Democrats in Cleveland also were putting together a movement to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for the party's presidential nomination.

But Carter got lengthy standing ovations before and after his appearance and was interrupted by applause several times, despite his blunt message.

"Too many Americans today watch the spectacle of politicians grappling with the complex issues of energy and inflation," Carter said. "They see the demagoguery and the political timidity and wonder if we who are in office are equal to the challenge."

Carter said Congress was being "pushed and pulled in every direction by hundreds of well-financed and powerful special interests" and accused the lawmakers of wasting their time and clouding the issue on energy.

"The times we live in call for plain talk, call for political courage," Carter said.

Carter said, however, that he was not attacking Congress and part of the problem stems from the public's inability to accept national problems, especially energy problems. But he faulted Congress for failing to act on petroleum questions, health care costs and other critical issues.

"As president, I have made mistakes," he conceded. And later he suggested, "Maybe if I were a better politician I could have gotten these bills through Congress."

Before Carter's speech and question and answer session with the party leaders, national Democratic Party Chairman John C. White delivered his third spirited public defense of the president in as many days.

"America is at peace and America is at work, and that's a great record," White said. "And I think we ought to give Jimmy Carter credit for doing it as president of the United States."

"Those Republicans can't defeat us unless we first defeat ourselves," White added. "They haven't got a chance unless this party divides itself and helps them."

Odessan in Midland County jail following drug arrest

A 26-year old Odessa man was in Midland County jail Friday following an arrest for possession of a substance suspected to be heroin, valued at $520.

Two officers from the Midland County Sheriff's Department made the arrest at a nightspot on East Louisiana Avenue, Sgt. Tony Robinson said.

Robinson, a narcotics officer for the county, said that he received a call about 9:15 p.m. Friday concerning the individual.

The two deputies arrived at the lounge where they observed a man before making the arrest, Robinson said.

The deputy said he found a packet of the suspected substance in the man's pocket when he was arrested.

Other packets of the substance were found a short distance away on the ground, Robinson said.

The deputy said that the substance weighed nearly 2 grams, and was enough for 13 doses.

"If my arithmetic is right, it's worth $520," Robinson said.

The substance will be sent to the criminal analysis laboratory of the Department of Public Safety in Midland for identification.

Robinson said it was the first bust for heroin the sheriff's office has made since December.

Atlantic City: gambling capital?

By PETER MATTIA

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Frank Mauriello has dealt blackjack and run roulette in the glitter of Las Vegas, but after the first year of gambling on the Boardwalk, Mauriello is home to stay.

"I feel Atlantic City is going to be THE city in the world for gambling, for entertainment, for everything," he says. "Some people can see it now and some can't. I can."

Mauriello, 28, bounced around Atlantic City as a free-lance and newspaper photographer before heading west to learn the gambling trade three years ago.

He earned $12,000 a year in a "decent" Strip casino. Back home, "getting in on the ground floor of gambling," he has made more than $20,000 in his first year.

"Casino gambling's definitely changed my life for the better," Mauriello says. "I never could have made this kind of money in the old Atlantic City. You either had to be a professional — or you had to be a thief."

Not everyone one has been as happy since a year ago Saturday, when Gov. Brendan T. Byrne snipped a bright orange ribbon in Resorts International Hotel Casino and launched a new era for this old seashore resort known for Miss America, salt water taffy and the Boardwalk.

Black leaders complain that the economic benefits have not filtered down to the poor and there are parking and traffic problems. But the economic resurgence triggered by gambling is apparent in much of the city.

Resorts International, taking advantage of its early investments here, has been raking in a phenomenal profit — an estimated $230 million in gross casino revenues in its first year. The win is four times its investment and more than 2 1/2 times that of the biggest Las Vegas casinos.

Spurred by Resorts International's success, cranes and rising steel are already changing the face of the old Boardwalk at nine locations. Caesars World Inc., which owns Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, will break Resorts International's monopoly sometime next month with a dazzling $100 million renovation and addition to a former Howard Johnson's.

Bally and Penthouse say they, too, will open casino hotels before Christmas. Playboy, Ramada Inns, Golden Nugget, Del E. Webb, a number of private entrepreneurs, and even Resorts International, Caesars and Penthouse, plan additional Boardwalk casinos in the next three years.

Nevada gambling giants Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Hilton and Harrah's are planning a huge complex of three casino hotels on marshland away from the Boardwalk near a state marina where Holiday Inns and others plan still more casinos.

With nearly 60 million Americans less than a gas tank away, experts say only the smallness of this barrier island limits its potential. Industry experts say annual gross revenues easily could range between $2 billion and $5 billion within a few years, with the state taking an 8 percent cut as taxes.

The best indicator of renewed visitor interest is the 101 percent first-quarter increase in the "Luxury Tax." Atlantic City levies on room rentals (up 191 percent), tobacco sales (up 20 percent), liquor (up 60 percent) and amusement tickets (up 215 percent).

Officials say unemployment dipped when Resorts International increased its casino and hotel work force from 600 to nearly 4,000 last year. Caesars is increasing its staff similarly and Bally plans to hire later this summer.

But, state labor analysts say an influx of outsiders, especially from Nevada and the Northeast, has held the first-quarter unemployment decrease to only .6 percent compared to last year. The area's 11.9 percent unemployment rate is well above the national average.

Area housing starts are up 18.7 percent for the first quarter. On one block off the Boardwalk, homeowners with summer houses selling for $15,000 three years ago, without heat, were offered $100,000 each if all on the block agreed to sell. The deal has a few holdouts.

Still, with real estate prices soaring, minority leaders say there have been few housing starts for the low- and middle-income blacks and Hispanics who are about half of the city's 44,000 residents.

The situation is so stagnant that state legislators are talking about requiring casino hotels to reinvest 2 percent of their gross revenues to local housing exclusively.

Another potential danger for the new industry is Atlantic City's chaotic traffic and parking problems, aggravated by narrow streets, alleys and dead ends. On summer holiday weekends, even before gambling, moving around by car was difficult.

Hance pledges to continue try at 'breaking ground' for pipeline

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

Despite Standard Oil Co. of Ohio's reaffirmation late this week that it will not build the Long Beach, Calif.-to-Midland pipeline, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock says he will continue efforts to gain approval for his bill.

This piece of legislation is designed to clear the way for construction of that aborted pipeline.

A spokesman for Hance said Friday the congressman will continue with his bill despite Sohio's decision because the congressman "still hopes Sohio can use it somehow."

Hance's 19th Congressional District includes Midland County.

Sohio announced late this week that it has abandoned plans for the pipeline because the five years of delays have rendered the project uneconomically attractive.

According to an announcement by Alton W. Whitehouse, chairman of the board for Sohio, "The fact of the matter is that neither these government leaders nor Sohio can turn around the results of five years of delay, which have substantially eroded the economic attractiveness of this project."

Sohio said it would reconsider the pipeline "if there is a substantial increase of oil available on the West Coast in the future."

The reaffirmation of Sohio's intention to abandon the pipeline came in the wake of increased governmental activity relating to the company's quest to get various regulations for the pipeline approved.

In March the company had announced it was scrapping plans for the $700 million pipeline, saying delays caused by governmental red tape were rendering the project financially unattractive.

During the meantime, Hance introduced a bill in the House that, if approved, would allow President Carter and Congress to waive the state and federal regulations that had held up the project.

This is the bill Hance has indicated he will continue pushing in the House despite Sohio's decision to cancel plans for the project.

Meanwhile, Sohio says it is looking at other alternatives, such as a northern pipeline, a Canadian route and "any other reasonable alternatives that may develop."

Four firefighters killed in explosion of store

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A burning clothing store exploded Friday evening, killing four firefighters who were buried beneath the rubble of a collapsed wall, authorities said. They said they believed that others were buried beneath the debris.

Twenty-seven persons, mostly firemen and bystanders, were injured by flying bricks and glass, officials said.

"The building just shook from top to bottom, and then it just blew," said W.W. Lynch, a Selby businessman who was standing across the street from the store when it exploded. "I don't see how anybody could have escaped."

Firefighters and other rescue workers began searching the rubble after the blaze was brought under control around 9:30 p.m., and Levon Kennedy, assistant Shelby fire chief, said he expected them to find more bodies. He said he did not know how many people were buried beneath the debris.

Officials at Cleveland Memorial Hospital said 27 people had been treated for injuries from the explosions and fire. One person was listed in serious condition. Hospital officials also confirmed that four firefighters were dead on arrival shortly after 8 p.m.

Spenkelnik executed

Carol Meyers, sister of convicted murderer John Spenkelnik, is comforted by her husband Tim during Friday's execution. (AP Laserphoto)

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Silent and wide-eyed, John A. Spenkelnik went to his death in Florida's old oak electric chair Friday, ending a case that became a milestone in the nation's debate over capital punishment.

Spenkelnik, rejecting a chance to make a last statement, sat strapped, gagged and hooded in an austere death chamber at the Florida State Prison as a black-hooded executioner threw a switch and 2,300 volts of electricity surged through the convicted murderer's body.

He was the first prisoner executed against his will in this country in more than 12 years.

The lanky 30-year-old's hands curled and blackened as the first of three jolts shot through him at 10:12 a.m., sending smoke into the death chamber. A doctor listened three times to his heartbeat before declaring him dead at 10:18 a.m.

"We saw a man sizzled today," exclaimed Andy Johnson, a Democratic state representative from Jacksonville who was among the official witnesses and reporters watching from an adjacent room. "And if you leaned forward and looked close you could see that he sizzled and sizzled again.... We sat there and watched a cruel and unusual thing."

The Rev. Tom Feamster, an Episcopal minister who also witnessed the execution, said later, "The last thing he said to me was that he loved me. The last thing that I said to him was that I loved him."

The last execution in this country was on Jan. 17, 1977, when Gary Mark Gilmore refused to allow appeals in his behalf and was shot by a firing squad in Utah. The last prisoner put to death against his will was Aaron C. Mitchell, who was executed in San Quentin's gas chamber on April 12, 1967, for killing a Sacramento, Calif., policeman.

Spenkelnik, who was condemned for killing a fellow drifter in a Tallahassee motel in 1973, was taken from his holding cell for the last walk just minutes before he died.

His final gambit in a six-year legal battle failed moments earlier when the U.S. Supreme Court voted 6-2 to refuse, for the sixth time, to hear an appeal.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham, who had signed Spenkelnik's death warrant May 18, gave the prison superintendent the final go-ahead in a telephone call from his Tallahassee office at 10:11.

"There are no stays at this time. May God be with us," an aide quoted Graham as saying before he hung up the phone.

Florida execution will pave way for Texas, author says

DALLAS (AP) — The death of John Spenkelnik in Florida will pave the way for Texas executions, publisher and author Don Reid of Huntsville said Friday.

Reid, who has witnessed 189 executions in Texas, said he traveled to Florida Tuesday hoping his 41 years of expertise could help convince the governor to save the convicted murderer's life.

But Reid said in a telephone interview that public opinion won over Florida Gov. Bob Graham, who refused to commute Spenkelnik's sentence.

"Since the governor is new in office, he didn't know which way to turn," he said. "Everybody around there wanted to place the responsibility elsewhere."

Publisher of the Huntsville Item and author of "Eyewitness," a book about his experiences, Reid predicted an execution in Texas "Before too long. I hope it doesn't happen, but I think it will. People are running scared. I think you'll see a domino effect."

Joseph Johnson was the last person executed in Texas, on July 30, 1964.

One of the 122 inmates now on Death Row, Leonard Freeman, is scheduled to die by injection June 5. He was convicted of the July 1973 slaying of sheriff's deputy Luis Garza and his wife Elidia near Charlotte, a town southwest of San Antonio in Atascosa County.

"The increase of crime has led more people to favor capital punishment," Reid said. "After I left there Tuesday night, despite defense efforts, I felt the opinion of the public was overwhelming for execution," he said.

Reid said the execution was incomprehensible when compared to other cases. "Here is a drifter, a prison escapee, who killed another escapee who was also a drifter. Another man got a star in a case of robbery and murder," he said.

As for the Supreme Court, "They have reversed themselves a number of times. They also reflect the mood of the people," Reid said.

Reid covered his first execution in January 1938 for The Associated Press. "Back in the old days, you could be executed for many things, such as robbery by fire-arms and rape," he said. "Now it must be murder to be a capital offense."

Signing death warrant held until appeal denied

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Bob Graham, who signed a death warrant for the electrocution of John A. Spenkelnik last week, gave the final go-ahead Friday after hearing that the Supreme Court had rejected a last appeal, Graham's aides said.

Graham then learned of the death in a telephone call at 10:41 a.m., Robin Gibson, the governor's legal counsel who was with him throughout the morning, said at a noon news conference.

"Everything's completed. The execution went as planned," Gibson said the governor was told by Prison Superintendent David Brierton.

Difficult talks foreseen on Palestinian question

BEERSHEBA, Israel (AP) — Israel and Egypt, with American participation, began talks on the Palestinian issue Friday and their tough opening positions on the meaning of autonomy indicated long and difficult negotiations are ahead.

Egypt called for "self-determination" for Palestinians who want an independent state. Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said Israel's 1967 annexation of East Jerusalem was "null and void" and that Jewish settlements on the occupied West Bank "have no legal validity."

Israel responded that it would never agree to a Palestinian state for the 11 million Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Interior Minister Yosef Burg, who heads the Israeli delegation, said "autonomy does not and cannot imply sovereignty," adding "we must by definition reject a priori (beforehand) an independent Palestinian state."

He did not mention Jerusalem, apparently since Israel does not consider discussion of Jerusalem's status a subject for negotiation.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance urged both sides to show "maximum restraint and far-sightedness" and called for "suspension of hostile acts and statements."

Vance also asked the two sides to start work on a solution for Palestinians living outside the West Bank and Gaza — an issue ignored in previous talks and not spelled out by Vance. He repeated assurances to Israel that any autonomy plan must guarantee Israel's security.

The meeting, largely a ceremonial opening, came several hours after Israel lowered its flag in the Sinai town of El Arish and Egypt regained control of a 425-square-mile chunk of the Sinai in the first Israeli withdrawal from occupied territory under the Mideast peace treaty.

On Sunday, Prime Minister Menachem Begin, President Anwar Sadat and Vance will conduct meetings in El Arish and Beersheba and ceremonially open an air corridor between Egypt and Israel.

The talks started with a hitch when Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil did not turn up for the opening and Ali read his speech.

The Mideast News Agency in Cairo said Khalil did not attend because Burg insisted on chairing the session "and in accordance with standard protocol practices," because Khalil outranked Burg "it was not possible for Khalil to attend a meeting headed by the Minister of the Interior."

The talks are a result of the Mideast Peace treaty which said talks on setting up a form of "full autonomy" would be concluded in one year, leading to election of an administrative council.

Burg said the next meeting would be in Alexandria, Egypt, June 6-7. "We are not here to determine the future of the Palestinian people," Ali said. "Only the Palestinians themselves can make such a decision. Self-determination is their God-given right."

This self-determination was the first item in a five-point program which Ali said would guide the Egyptian negotiators. The others were:

—The principle of non-acquisition of territory by force applies to the West Bank, the Gaza Strip and East Jerusalem.

—U.N. Security Council resolution 242 or 1967, which calls on Israel to withdraw from occupied territory and for the establishment of secure borders, "should be respected in all its parts."

—Israeli actions in the West Bank and Gaza, "in particular the establishment of settlements, have no legal validity."

—All said. The annexation of East Jerusalem was "null and void."

—Palestinian human rights must be safeguarded.

Burg said that Palestinian Arabs "should and must conduct their own daily lives for themselves and by themselves." But he said "Israel will not agree, and indeed totally rejects, the proposition, declaration or establishment of a Palestinian state in Judea, Samaria (the Biblical names for the West Bank) and the Gaza district."

"By everything we know to be true, it would be the certain prescription for violence and war. Indeed it would be a mortal danger to Israel and a grave peril to the whole free world," Burg said.

Arabs celebrate as Israeli troops withdraw from city

EL ARISH, Egypt (AP) — Israeli soldiers lowered their flag, packed up and drove away Friday, returning this Sinai capital to Egypt after 12 years of occupation. Arabs danced in the streets with joy.

Sixty miles to the east, representatives of Israel, Egypt and the United States conferred briefly for the first time on self-rule for Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

In southern Lebanon, Israeli artillery pounded guerrilla positions of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Lebanon radio said, but the Israeli military command denied the report. The radio said Reihan, Nabatiye and Aichiye, were shelled, killing one person and wounding many.

Pandemonium erupted in El Arish as people belted, danced in the streets and wept for joy. The turnover ceremony was marred only by a brief shoving match. In Alexandria, President Anwar Sadat watched the changeover ceremony on television and later told reporters, "this is a very moving moment. I am extremely happy."

Hussein Darwish, an El Arish carpenter who commuted three years to Israel to make $20 a day, more than he could earn here, said:

"It is better to live under Egyptian rule than have Israeli money."

During a 45-minute changing of the flag ceremony just outside of town, a crowd of several thousand El Arish citizens shouting "no more Israelis after today," surged against a line of Israeli soldiers.

Pushing and shoving followed with at least one demonstrator knocked to the ground before Egyptian police rushed to the scene.

At one point the crowd threatened to get out of hand when several excited demonstrators grabbed an Israeli soldier's rifle. But after a tugging match the soldier held on to the weapon.

"Today El Arish, tomorrow Gaza and Jerusalem," the demonstrators shouted in unison as the Israelis drove jeeps and trucks back and forth along the edge of the crowd to keep them from moving en masse to the site of the ceremony only a few hundred yards away.

The mood changed to one of joyous celebration when the Egyptian army band, dressed in white coats and blue pants, marched through the gates playing a military tune.

Friday attack brings death tally to 54

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Two terrorists disguised as laborers mowed down a general, two colonels and their military chauffeur in a grenade and machine-gun attack Friday on a Madrid street in the bloodiest assault yet against Spanish army officers.

The Basque separatist group ETA claimed responsibility for the killings in calls to newspapers in Madrid and in the northern Basque city of Bilbao. Police said they were checking the authenticity of the calls. The assassinations raised to 54 the number of victims of Spanish political violence this year.

In a separate incident, authorities said a police inspector and a suspected member of the Maoist organization GRAPO were killed in a shootout in suburban Seville.

Another alleged GRAPO member was arrested and two more apparently escaped. Police said the shooting started when a car occupied by the four men failed to heed a police warning to stop.

Witnesses to the Madrid attack said the gunmen, clad in blue overalls, stood by the roadside as the official car drove by. They first riddled the slow-moving car with more than 50 rounds of machine-gun fire, then opened a car door and tossed in a grenade when the vehicle stopped. The officers were killed instantly inside the Citizens began signing "biladi biladi," Egypt's new peace anthem, and others chanted "Sadat, hero of peace."

The celebration spread into the town of 40,000. Old men in flowing robes and students danced in the streets to the beat of bedouin drums. Women wailed as they lined up in the streets to watch Egyptian soldiers enter the city for the first time since the 1967 Middle East war.

The return of El Arish and a 425-square-mile chunk of the Sinai was the first phase of occupied Sinai withdrawal as set forth by the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Egyptian officials wasted no time in establishing their new administration. Convoys of army trucks loaded with office furniture and personal belongings streamed into the city.

The red, white and black flag of Egypt flew from most private cars and buildings. Banners welcoming Sadat, due in the city Saturday, crisscrossed the streets.

Hebrew signs were quickly pulled down and Arabic onlookers cheered.

Some Israelis seemed dazed.

At the Beersheba meeting, Egypt called for "self-determination" for Palestinians who want an independent state. Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said Israel's 1967 annexation of East Jerusalem was "null and void" and that Jewish settlements on the occupied West Bank "have no legal validity."

Interior Minister Yosef Burg, who heads the Israeli delegation, said "autonomy does not and cannot imply sovereignty."

He did not mention Jerusalem, apparently since Israel does not consider discussion of Jerusalem's status a subject for negotiation.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance urged both sides to show "maximum restraint and far-sightedness" and called for suspension of hostile acts and statements.

The meeting, largely a ceremonial opening, was the first of many over the next year. On Sunday the subject will come up again in meetings between Vance, Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin, first in El Arish, then in Beersheba.

The men also will ceremonially open an air corridor between Egypt and Israel.

AUSTIN, Tex. — Gov. Bill Clements gave the Legislature a special session on Friday.

Shortly after the House passed a Senate-approved bill to allow the use of narcotics in the state, Clements said he would consider the bill.

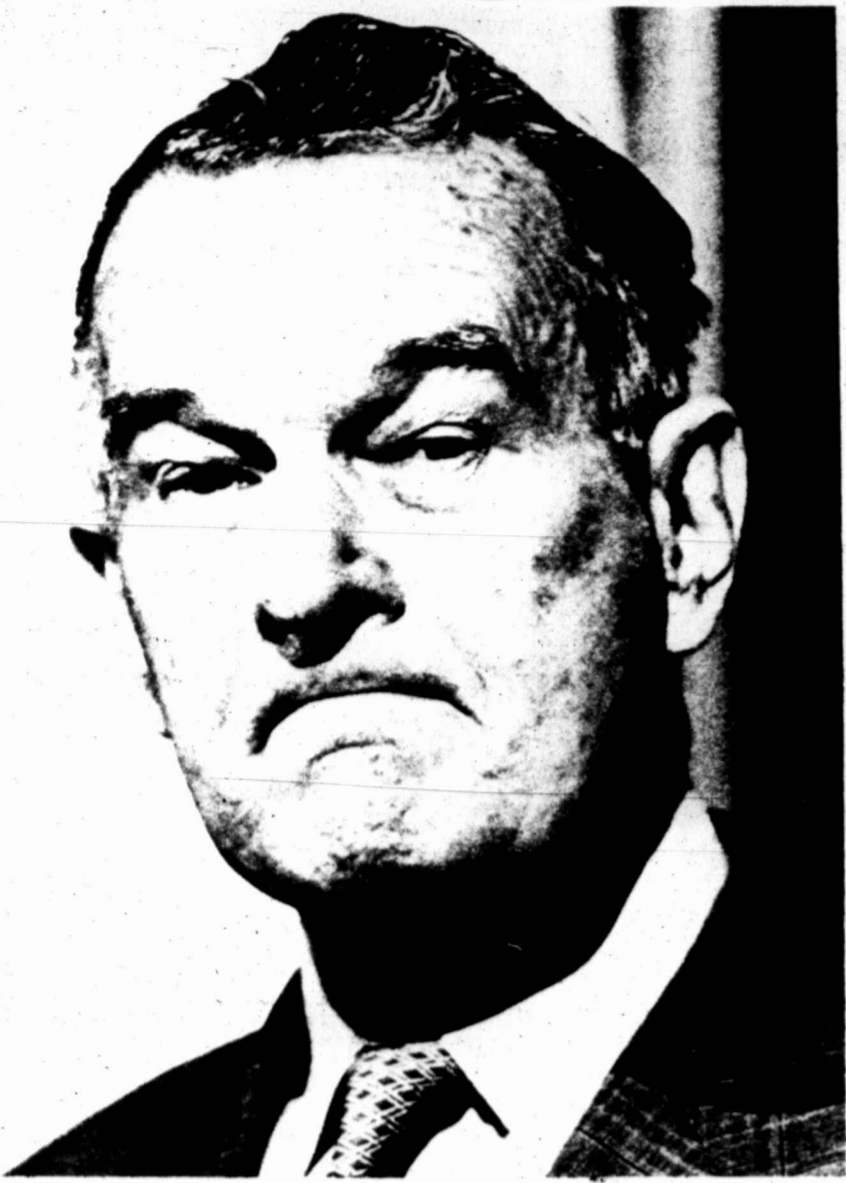

"These two trouble," Clements said in a conference, "the measure tapping and referendum."

"I still may call a session but perhaps avoid it," Clements said.

However, added, he would special session and refer to the Legislature.

A 1980 session could hit home when the home can reportedly be used with some wiretapping campaign relative race

Clements says Legislature not making grade on favored bills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he was still giving the Legislature an "F" on his report card, but he held some hope there would not have to be a special session.

Shortly afterwards, the House buried Clements' hopes of getting a Senate-approved bill that would allow wiretapping in narcotics cases by refusing to let a committee consider the bill, 69-71.

"These two are in deep trouble," Clements told his regular weekly news conference, referring to the measures on wiretapping and initiative and referendum.

"It still may be necessary to call a special session but perhaps we can avoid it.

"If they will get on their horse and get down to work, they can get the job done," Clements said.

However, Clements added, he would call a special session if initiative and referendum are not approved.

"I am set in concrete on that, and I've been saying that for a week," he said. "and if they do not pass a wiretap bill, I will include that in the special session."

Clements said the timing of a special session would depend on what the Legislature leaves undone. Action on a general appropriations bill or a school finance bill would require a quick special session because the new state fiscal period begins Sept. 1.

"On the other hand if a session is needed to take care of initiative and referendum, I would call that when most appropriate... maybe 1980," he said.

A 1980 special session could hit legislators just when they want to be home campaigning. He reportedly has threatened in private talks with some lawmakers to use wiretapping and initiative referendum as campaign issues in legislative races.

Clements said the idea of letting voters initiate legislation was unpopular with lobbyists because "they would lose a certain amount of control with legislators."

The governor said he had 35 to 40 persons working daily on the compromise general appropriations bill "looking for things for me to cross out of it."

The governor said Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, was sponsoring a new bill that would set aside the extra $360 million in state revenue, reported this week by the comptroller, for tax relief only.

"I fully support this bill," Clements said. "This extra revenue should be returned to the people. There is no reason for the legislature to spend it."

Comptroller Bob Bullock said the additional revenue resulted from unexpected increases in tax revenues, particularly oil taxes and franchise taxes on record corporation profits. Sales tax revenue will be down the next two years, Bullock said.

Clements also had bad news from the House Friday on another of his prime demands, more control by the governor over state agency budgets.

Compromise found on tax relief measure

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House-Senate negotiators agreed on a compromise tax relief bill Friday that guarantees school districts will be repaid $192 million a year for any breaks they give taxpayers.

Final passage of the bill, which was prompted by voters' approval of the Tax Relief Amendment last November, will be up to the House and Senate.

Then the measure goes to Gov. Bill Clements who has demanded "meaningful" implementation of the amendment.

Decisions made by the 10-member House-Senate conference committee Friday also would guarantee that no school district could get more state reimbursement money by reducing its tax appraisals and no district would lose money if it raised appraisals.

Legislators earmarked $450 million last summer to reimburse school districts for revenue they would lose by giving taxpayers new homestead exemptions and tax breaks for farm and ranch land in production.

The compromise bill uses only $384 million because it was determined that the revenue losses would not be as great as originally estimated.

If a school finance bill does not pass, the tax relief bill would provide a full $192 million each year in reimbursement to school districts.

If a school finance bill is passed, only $100 million a year would be reimbursed in the tax relief bill, with the rest of the reimbursement flowing to districts through a revised state aid formula.

Another provision of the tax relief bill would remove intangible taxes, household personal property and homesteads from the formula used in figuring local school taxes, if the school finance bill does not pass. This would give local school taxpayers some relief.

Agricultural values already have been added to school tax assignments.

The entire agreement on reimbursement expires in two years, which will give the 1981 Legislature a chance to pass new legislation after the actual effect of homestead exemptions and taxing on agricultural values is determined.

The bill becomes effective with this year's tax collections unless a school district specifically postpones re-evaluation of farm and timberland until 1980.

South took the king of hearts, led the low diamond to dummy's ten and returned a spade to finesse with the jack. West cunningly won with the king of spades and returned the queen of hearts to the ace. South led the jack of diamonds to the ace and took another spade finesse.

DEFEATS CONTRACT
West therupon took the queen of spades and three hearts, defeating the contract.

South should begin by leading the ace of clubs. If only low clubs drop, South can go ahead with his attempt to win a spade finesse. Actually, the queen of clubs would drop, and South could continue clubs to develop a safe ninth trick.

Leader: "The ace of clubs cannot cost anything and guarantees the game if the queen or king happens to fall."

Partner opens with one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-KQ65; H-Q10864; D-743; C-Q. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. If he bids two spades or two hearts, you will raise to game. If he bids two diamonds, denying a major suit, you will bid two hearts.

Research fans hopes of diabetes vaccine

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

BOSTON (AP) — The death of a 10-year-old boy has given scientists the first proof that diabetes in children can be caused by a virus.

The discovery raises the possibility of the eventual development of a vaccine to prevent childhood diabetes, which is usually far more serious than the form of the disease that strikes adults.

Until now, the cause of juvenile diabetes was a mystery, although researchers have long suspected that it might be triggered by a virus. Genetic inheritance and weakness in the body's immune system also have been viewed as possible factors.

The researchers who discovered the virus-linked disease are still uncertain whether the germ causes most cases of childhood diabetes or only the rare exceptions.

These scientists, working at the National Institute of Dental Research and the National Naval Medical Center in Washington, found that the disease in one youngster was caused by a variation of the Coxsackievirus B4. This is a common virus that ordinarily causes flu and cold-like symptoms as well as more serious inflammation of the heart.

An editorial in the New England Journal of Medicine, which published the study Friday, called the finding "highly important."

"We now have evidence that at least some cases of diabetes are caused by a virus," Dr. Marshall Austin, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The form of diabetes that often strikes adults is probably not caused by the newly isolated virus, Austin said. The insulin deficiencies of these people usually are not as severe as those of victims who develop the disease in childhood.

However, he said much more research is necessary before scientists can begin to work on an anti-diabetes vaccine for youngsters.

The editorial, written by Dr. Allan L. Drash of Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, said: "Prevention of diabetes may be achieved in some patients by immunization with viral vaccines."

The researchers noted about half of all Americans have been exposed to Coxsackievirus B4, although it is not known how many encounter the diabetes-causing variation of this virus.

They said this form of the germ may be far more common than anyone had suspected. But since less than one-tenth of one percent of Americans have juvenile diabetes, they theorized that many people successfully fight off the virus without becoming seriously ill.

The researchers said the virus attacks the beta cells — tissue imbedded in the pancreas that produces insulin. Without enough insulin, the body cannot keep proper levels of sugar in the bloodstream.

They isolated the virus in a 10-year-old boy who died in a diabetic coma a few days after he was stricken. When samples of the boy's virus were injected into mice, the animals also developed diabetes.

Although juvenile diabetes can be controlled for several years with injections of insulin, such complications as kidney failure and blindness are common as the victims grow older.

Chinese seek kin in Hong Kong press

HONG KONG (AP) — Many people in China are writing to Hong Kong Communist newspapers in an effort to re-establish contact with parents, brothers and sisters here. Many of them have been separated for more than 30 years.

Hong Kong's Communist papers have carried notices almost daily from people in China trying to get in touch with family members in this British colony.

One recent notice from the neighboring province of Guangdong (Kwangtung) in the Communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao read:

"Dear son, Hung Pei-zhou (Hung Pei-chou). Our blood mother has been looking for you for years. I wrote to you once but never received any reply... Please write to me at the following address upon seeing this notice. (your mother) Li Zhi (Li Chi)..."

Another notice from Liaoning Province in northeast China said a textile worker was looking for his 53-year-old father, reported to be in Hong Kong. The father and son had been separated for 33 years, said the notice, which gave the son's address in China.

Similar notices have appeared in other Communist and pro-Communist dailies here. They included elder sisters looking for younger brothers and sisters, wives for husbands and sons for parents.

Newspaper officials said they ran the notices free of charge as a service to those in China who wanted to re-establish contact with loved ones here. They said in several cases the notices did help writers find family members in Hong Kong.

Hong Kong and China had been reluctant to write to their folks in China for fear of Communist harassment. This was particularly true during the Cultural Revolution in the 1960s. Since the downfall of the "Gang of Four" headed by Jiang Qing (Chiang Ching), chairman Mao Tse-Tung's widow, in October 1976, China has adopted a moderate policy.

Curbs announced on whale tours

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The National Park Service will impose restrictions on ships entering the popular Glacier Bay in search of whales this summer, according to park officials.

Beginning this week, tour ships must slow "to less than 10 knots" in Glacier Bay, a national monument, and must stay at least a quarter mile away from sighted whales, according to Ranger Bruce Page.

The new restrictions were to be officially released Friday by Bay superintendent John Chapman.

"People are just now becoming aware of the problem of the whales," said Page. "We have an obligation to prevent harmful effects to those in Glacier Bay. This is the first time we have put limitations on cruise ships entering the monument."

But he added, "Glacier Bay is a big place; hopefully it can include both people and whales."

The park service is concerned about the number of pleasure cruises taken in the bay during the summer and their effects on the humpback whales. Page said the number of cruises has increased from one in 1969 to 123 this summer by 10 different vessels.

Officials, however, are unsure whether the increased traffic in Glacier Bay, the summer feeding grounds for the endangered humpback whale, is diminishing the whales' numbers.

Mariners sweep Texas Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Leon Roberts' two-run homer carried Seattle to a 5-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in the nightcap of a doubleheader Friday night after he drilled three singles to lead the Mariners to a 3-2 victory in the opener.

Rick Honeycutt, 2-5, scattered seven hits in the nightcap. Dock Ellis, 1-3, was the loser. In the opener, Seattle starter Mike Parrott went 6-2-3 innings, yielding four hits, before getting relief help from Byron McLaughlin and Shane Rawley, who earned his fifth save. Doyle Alexander, 2-3, was the loser, lasting only 3-2-3 innings. In the second game, Texas jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Billy Sample's double, a groundout, a wild pitch by Honeycutt, an error and singles by Richie Zisk and John Ellis. Seattle tied it in the second on a single by Dan Meyer and Roberts' sixth home run.

The Mariners went ahead 3-2 in the third on a single by Ruppert Jones, an error and Meyer's single. They made it 4-2 in the fifth when Jones walked, stole second, continued to third on a throwing error and came home on Willie Horton's single. The Mariners scored their final run in the ninth on a run-scoring single by Bruce Bochte.

Lezcano powers Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gorman Thomas singled home the winning run with two out in the eighth inning and Sixto Lezcano clubbed a pair of home runs, lifting the Milwaukee Brewers to a 3-2 victory over the Oakland A's Friday night.

Loser Bob Lacey, 1-2, who relieved starter Craig Minetto in the seventh, walked Lezcano with two out in the eighth and Paul Molitor singled him to second. Thomas, with just three hits in his previous 39 times at bat, singled to score Lezcano.

Mike Caldwell, 5-4, allowed eight hits, three over the last seven innings, for his first victory since April 29.

The A's took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on a double by Jim Essian, a walk and RBI singles by Rob Piccolo and Dwayne Murphy.

The Brewers got one back in their half of the inning on Lezcano's seventh homer of the season and Minetto retired 12 of the next 13 batters. Then Lezcano tied the score with his second homer of the game with two out in the sixth.

Angels fall to Chisox

CHICAGO (AP) — Ross Baumgarten allowed one hit in eight innings — Bobby Grich's leadoff double in the seventh — and Lamar Johnson drove in four runs for the second consecutive game to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-1 victory over the California Angels Friday night.

Baumgarten 5-1, a rookie left-hander who will be 24 years old on Sunday, defeated Nolan Ryan, who proved a puzzle to the White Sox although he blanked them on two hits last Sunday.

Baumgarten walked eight, struck out five and was replaced by Randy Scarbery after walking the first two batters in the ninth. An error by shortstop Greg Pryor loaded the bases but Scarbery completed the one-hitter by striking out Bert Campaneris and getting Rick Miller to hit into a game-ending double play.

Royals nip Twins, 4-3

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Amos Otis had three hits and drove in two runs, including the game-winning in the ninth inning, as the Kansas City Royals nipped the Minnesota Twins 4-3 Friday night.

Otis doubled off loser Mike Marshall, 7-4, to score Willie Wilson, who led off the ninth with his second triple of the game. The light-hitting Wilson, who also had three hits, laced his triple to left with the Twins' outfield playing shallow.

Marshall got George Brett on a called third strike before Otis slapped his double to left-center. Paul Splittorf, 7-3, scattered 10 hits and gave up two earned runs before needing last-out help from Al Hrabosky, who earned his fifth save.

Minnesota lost a 2-1 lead when Kansas City's Darrell Porter slammed his sixth home run of the season to lead off the sixth inning against starter Roger Erickson.

The Twins picked up an unearned run in the bottom of the sixth but Kansas City tied it again in the eighth on a double by Otis and Pete LaCock's single. Marshall, who took over in the seventh, gave up the tying and winning runs.

Cowboys capture NCAA golf lead

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Oklahoma State's Bob Tway dropped a 15-foot birdie put on the 18th hole Friday to give the Cowboys a 1-stroke lead over Brigham Young after three rounds of the NCAA Golf Tournament.

With sophomore Tway and senior Britt Harrison both shooting 1-under par 71s in the face of winds that gusted to 30 mph, Oklahoma State shot a team total of 294, 6 over par.

That gave the Cowboys an 884 total for the tournament, 1 shot ahead of the Cougars and 4 shots ahead of host Wake Forest.

The Deacons Gary Hallberg maintained his lead in the individual standings at 214, 2 under par, but his third-round 76 left him only 1 shot ahead of Louisiana State's Wayne DeFrancesco, Brigham Young's Bobby Clappert and Ohio State's Joey Sindelar.

Sindelar had the best round of the day, with a bogey-free, 4-under-par 68.

Clappert and DeFrancesco both collected birdies on 18 to shoot 74 and 71, respectively.

North Carolina, the team leader after two rounds, suffered through 90s by opening-round leader Kevin King and teammate Joey Sadowski and fell 8 strokes behind Oklahoma State. The Tar Heels are tied for fifth with Ohio State, 1 stroke behind New Mexico.

Footo lifts Cubs past Phillies, 3-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Barry Footo's two-run homer in the fourth keyed a 3-0 victory for the Chicago Cubs over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night as Lynn McGlothen and Bruce Sutter teamed up on a four-hitter.

Bill Buckner, who had four hits — including a pair of doubles — scored the Cubs' first run in the third after his first double and Dave Kingman's RBI single.

McGlothen, 5-5, gave up four hits, struck out six and walked one before needing Sutter's relief help with none out in the ninth. Philadelphia starter Nino Espinosa, 5-4, was the loser.

Buckner's first double came after Espinosa struck out the first two batters in the third and left fielder Greg Luzinski's throw was short and wide of the plate following Kingman's hit.

In the fourth, Jerry Martin opened with a walk and scored as Footo hit a home run over the left-field fence.

Mets, Pirates delayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Friday night's National League baseball game at Shea Stadium between the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets was delayed by bad fog conditions in the bottom of the 11th inning with the teams tied 3-3.

Umpires ordered the delay after Pittsburgh left fielder Bill Robinson lost Joel Youngblood's fly ball in the heavy fog leading off the New York 11th.

MC, OC feud heats up

WACO — The tennis rivalry between Midland College and Odessa College isn't just a regional feud.

In fact, it's once again expanded to national proportions. And here today starting at 11:30 a.m., the two Permian Basin institutions will lock horns in the first flight doubles championship of the National Junior College Athletic Association men's tennis tournament.

For MC, it'll be the El Paso connection of sophomore Jose Rivera and freshman Oscar Ontiveros against the Wranglers' gifted freshman tandem of Karl Richter and Bill Heiser.

Rivera and Ontiveros advanced to the final with a hard-fought 3-6, 7-6, 6-1 semifinal victory over McFarland and Braver of Mesa, Ariz.

Rivera and Ontiveros collaborated to defeat the OC duo for the Western Junior College Athletic Conference first flight doubles crown while Richter, a scrappy little player from Auburn, Calif., and Heiser, a free-spirit from Chicago, teamed to defeat the MC pair for the Region V title.

Chap coach Brian Gilley seemed fairly pleased with the overall play of his team. "We've had some disappointments," he said, "but we've also upset some good players."

After Friday's action, MC had 25 points and was tied for fifth with Jefferson State. Odessa was on top with 39 while Miami Dade-South had 36 and Schreiner and Central Texas had 32 each.

BOWLING BEAT Ty Bowling has the right name

By RANDY ISENBERG

Ty Bowling paced bowlers in Midland this past week with a sizzling 744 series in the Air Park Men's league. Bowling started the evening with a 230 game, and then in his second game, he mounted an attack on the coveted 300 mark when he began with 10 pocket strikes in a row before hanging a solid ten on his eleventh delivery. Bowling converted the spare for an impressive 289 game, and then concluded the third game with a 225 for the 744, which was the second highest series rolled this season. Ty's impressive bowling carried all week including a summer season opener in the Wednesday Evening Mixed league of 676 on games of 224-226 and 226.

Another big achievement occurred when Jo Ann Campbell converted the 7-10 split in the Sugar & Spice. Good bowling continued among the women. Sandra Moore's 267 paced last week's high game activity. Sandra's big game was part of a 586 series she posted while bowling in the City Mixed league.

This week, Naomi Malson burned the maples to the tune of 255 in posting a 621 series in the Midland Teachers league, while league-mate Pat Brabham bowled consistently well en route to a 610 series on games of 204-197 and 209. Jan Powers bowled a personal high game of 253 while bowling in the City Classic league and she finished the evening with a 595 series and Lois Guthrie continued her fine season with games of 202 and 212 en route to a 571 three gameer.

Marjorie Baker jumped in on the 250 parade this week, posting a 250 even while finishing with a 514 series. Marjorie was averaging 127 at the time, so the game was 123 pins over her average and will earn her a century award from the Women's International Bowling Congress. Jimmie Crouch, whose Crouch Well Service team is currently in third place in the Texas Women's State Championship tournament in Austin, rolled games of 203 and 210 for a 584 series, while

Alamo YMCA gets O'Hearn

The Alamo YMCA has added Courtney O'Hearn to its gymnastics staff, according to Guy Fish, director of Health and Physical Education at the Y.

Courtney has eight years competitive background and is currently attending Odessa College on a gymnastics scholarship. She participated in the Y teams and the Midland High team that went to state. Instructionally, she has taught with Hubert Collins and attended several training camps.

Fish said the Alamo gym classes will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays this summer with classes for 3-4, and 5-6 year olds from 2:30 to 3:15 p.m. Classes for seven year olds and up will be from 3 to 4 p.m. A special women's class, 16 years of age and older, will be held from 2 to 3 p.m.

The summer program starts June 4. Registration currently is underway. Classes will stress tumbling, balance beam, and uneven parallel bars. Class fee will be $4 for Alamo Y members and $11 for non Y members.

Foyt has love-hate image

By WILL GRIMSLEY

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — They fire up those belching, 200 mph monsters in the Indianapolis 500 Sunday and thousands of eyes will be glued on the No. 6 position on the outside of the second row.

There will sit A.J. Foyt Jr., the tough, independent, hard-nosed king of the racing ovals, in his sleek Par-nelli-Cosworth.

Love him or hate him, fear him or respect him, harass him or hail him, it's impossible to ignore him. Wherever motors whine and wheels turn — midjets, stocks, sports cars, the sophisticated Indy championship machines — there is old A.J. making his engines and his rivals burn.

Frustrated competitors have been waiting 10 years for A.J. to hang up his helmet. He's 44. He's won every prize there is — from the prestigious Indy 500 (a record four times) to the LeMans Grand Prix (the first time he ever tried). He never runs out of wind — or desire.

"The guy doesn't need the money," the malcontents mutter around Gasoline Alley. "When is he going to hang it up?"

The answer: Maybe never. They'll have to cut him out one of those crumpled metal thunderbolts. Which brings to mind a story related by the late Bloys Britt, a Foyt biographer.

In the mid-1960s, A.J., a legend even then, showed up unannounced at a dingy racing oval in the Midwest where the feature was a $400 midjet race. A.J. paid the last place starter $100 for his ride.

A buzz swept through the small crowd. The other drivers became indignant. Foyt heard a couple of guys discussing why a driver of such stature would even stoop to such an insignificant event.

"Obsession," said one of them. "Foyt is driven by obsession." "Obsession, hell!" snapped A.J. "I'm driving this car. Let Obsession What's-His-Name get his own ride."

Foyt is an independent spirit who keeps the racing establishment and his fellow drivers on tenterhooks. He is a loner. He never travels with the crowd. He may change strokes in mid-stream — if you can excuse the fractured metaphor — as in the case of the recent owner-driver split.

A.J. was one of the first to break away from the U.S. Auto Club and join the rebel Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART), arguing that the USAC had no feel for the Indy-type racing. Six weeks later he did a complete reversal, rejoining the USAC. Fellow drivers sizzled.

Foyt rarely shows up for the fancy cocktail parties. You don't see him loitering around hotel lobbies, swapping small talk. Often, he zooms up to the garage on a motorcycle, locks himself up with his car, leaps on the motorcycle again and disappears.

Foyt insists he is misunderstood. "People are always telling me, 'A.J., you gotta do these things,'" he said. "I don't have to do a damn thing but die. I've been criticized for brushing off the press. I don't mean to be that way. I get busy with my car and I say, 'Excuse me, I've got work to do,' and the guy gets insulted and tells everybody I'm a heel.

"I love racing. When I'm strapped into a car, I'm comfortable. It's other things — politics, finances and sponsors — that drive me up a wall."

In 1963, he was temporarily suspended for slugging another driver.

Watson fights off wind-chill factor

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — With the wind-chill factor announced at 13 degrees, Tom Watson fought his way through cold, wind and rain to an incredible, no-bogey, 3-under-par 69 that gave him 4-stroke command Friday in the second round of the Memorial Golf Tournament.

"One of the best rounds I've ever played," said a deeply satisfied Watson, the only man in the elite, invitational field able to escape without a bogey in the dreadfully difficult conditions. A steady, drizzling rain was whipped by winds gusting to 40 mph. The temperature hung around 42 degrees.

"I got away with a good round today," said Watson, the year's leading money-winner and gunning for a fourth title of the season. "I didn't make many mistakes. It's hard not to look at all the trouble out there. But I combated it pretty well."

His 142 total, 2 under par, was the only subpar total for two trips over Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield Village Golf Club course, which was shortened from its usual 7,101 yards to 7,004 because of the howling winds.

There only was one other round under par this day that would be more typical of Scot's Muirfield in November than Ohio's Muirfield Village in May. That was a 71 by Terry Diehl, who had a 150 total.

By way of contrast, Lee Trevino — a notorious warm-weather player — finished a round of 81 and announced he'd play no more in this tournament despite a 155 total, comfortably in the cut for the final two rounds. That's 11 over par. The previous high cut figure for the tour year was 5 over par.

More than one-third of the field failed to break 80. The scores ranged up to a 92 — 20 over par — by Roger Maltbie, who won the first Memorial tournament in 1976.

Arnold Palmer was 81-156. Hale Irwin was 80-153. U.S. Open champ Andy North shot 76-155. Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller had 74-153. PGA titleholder John Mahaffey was 78-156. Jerry Pate was 85-158. Andy Bean was 82-158. Defending champion Jim Simons failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 79-159.

"It was a day when 75 or 76 was a pretty good score," observed Watson, generally regarded as the man most likely to succeed host Nicklaus as golf's No. 1 performer. He was bundled into a rain suit on top of a shirt and two sweaters, one of which he purchased in a hasty trip to a shopping center just before teeing off.

"These have been two of the most difficult days to play golf I can remember in a long, long time," said Nicklaus, who said he was pleased with his round of 73 that left him in a tie for second at 146, 2 over par.

Sonics win with zone?

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington Coach Dick Motta calls it a zone. Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens calls it a double-teaming, trapping, pressure defense. Whatever you call it, it has enabled the Seattle SuperSonics to even their National Basketball Association championship series against the Washington Bullets at one victory apiece. And with the next two games scheduled for the Kingdome Sunday afternoon and the Coliseum Tuesday night, (because of a baseball game in the Kingdome) the Sonics flew home Friday feeling good.

"When we went to Washington, we knew we had to have at least a split," said Wilkens. "Now we're happy to be home. We should have close to 40,000 people at the Kingdome Sunday, and that should be super."

The Sonics drew even in the best-of-seven playoff finals thanks to a sticky defense that limited Washington to 30 second-half points as Seattle beat the Bullets 92-82 Thursday night.

Flashy 67 earns Stampede lead

Mike Mullins and Bill Hightower scalded the back nine for a best ball four-under-par 31 Friday and finished with a 67 to grab the first round championship flight lead of the annual Member-Guest Stampede golf tournament at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Mullins and Hightower carded four birdies on the backside en route to their four-under 67, which left them one shot ahead of Al Boudreaux and Ken Sheard.

Three teams were knotted at 70 for third place—Craig Adams and Milton Nickel; two-time defending champions Larry Snyder and Ted Ferguson; and Bill Lupardus and Wayne Youngs.

The 54-hole partnership tournament continues through Sunday with the second 18-hole round scheduled for today.

Harold Davidson and Norman Moore and Marvin Herd and John Kuykendall were deadlocked for the first flight lead with 70s while the twosome of L. L. Fuller and Douglas Fuller was one pock back and two other tandems were three shots off the pace.

Two shots separated the top seven teams in second flight. The leaders at 72 were Bob Riek and Richard Moore and Bill McWilliams and Charley Jackson. Things were also extremely tight in fourth flight, where Bill Beard and Dale Chase led with 73 while three other teams were within one stroke.

Jimmy H. Walker and Lawrence

Bledsoe carved out a brilliant 68 to enjoy a sizeable early margin over two other teams in third flight while in fifth flight, Beck Adkins and Al Self, with a 71, had a two-shot bulge on two other groups.

In both the sixth and seventh flights, the leaders had good cushions. Joe Neal and Bob Coleman hooked up for a 72 in sixth flight, two ahead of four other teams, while in seventh flight, Ray McNeil and Vic Young and Morris Howel and Howard Newton manufactured 74s, two strokes better than the nearest group.

Doug Kloxin and Bob Bond fired a 73 for a runaway four-shot lead in eighth flight while in ninth flight, Wes Dalley and Jack McIntosh carded 78 for a one-shot advantage over Elmer Brimberry and Warren Hairford.

Championship Flight: Mullins-Hightower 67, Boudreaux-Sheard 70, Adams-Nickel 70, Ferguson-Snyder 70, W. Youngs-Lupardus 70, W. Youngs-Lupardus 70, D. # Dibbs leads delayed play

(AP) — The strong showing of the Americans and the good manners of the Rome crowd have been the main feature in this week's $200,000 Italian Open.

Three Americans made it to the semifinals, although the identity of one wasn't to be determined until resumption today of the Harold Solomon-Eddie Dibbs match. Nearly three hours of play Friday didn't produce a winner and the match was called because of darkness with Dibbs leading 6-2, 3-6, 6-5 and ready to serve.

Unseeded Gene Mayer, 23, faced top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in today's semifinals. Vilas outlasted Adriano Panatta 6-1, 6-7, 7-5 and Mayer beat fellow American Terry Moor 7-5, 6-3.

MC to host tournament

Midland College is host again next week to the fourth annual women's golf championships of the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Two courses are slated to be used for the 54-hole tournament which is to be played Tuesday through Thursday, May 29-31. The first 18 holes will be played at Hogan Park Municipal Golf Course and the remaining 36 holes will be played at Midland Country Club. Tee-off time is 8 a.m. each day.

Defending champion Miami Dade Community College-North Campus, Florida, is returning in an attempt to retain its crown. Also competing for the team title will be Temple Junior College, third last year, Midland College, fourth in 1978, Palm Beach Junior College, Florida, and Scottsdale

Community College, Scottsdale, Ariz.

There also will be individuals competing for medalist honors from Macomb Community College, Warren, Mich., Kirkwood Community College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Phoenix College, Phoenix, Ariz.

Midland College hosted the 1978 NJCAA women's golf championships, when the entire tourney was played at Hogan Park.

"We think using two courses will provide a better test for the players," said Susan Holland, coach of the MC women's team and an assistant pro at Midland Country Club.

The Chaparrals are still looking for their first national title, having finished second, third and fourth during previous years. Coach Holland's players have finished well against primarily four-year schools during several tournaments this year.

Slated to compete for the Chaps are: Wendy Goodwin, a freshman from Midland Lee who finished second last year in District 9-4A and took fourth in region and tenth in state; Jamie Gossett, a freshman from Rankin who was three-year district medalist, twice region runner-up and twice state placer; Sheryl Guthrie, a freshman from Midland Lee who lettered three years and qualified for three state meets; Maria Haasch, a freshman from Ft. Worth Western Hills who won the District 9-4A title as a senior; and, Diane Robinson, a sophomore transfer from Texas Tech, who played three years for Midland Lee.

Gottfried upsets Kohlberg

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Using a strong service, No. 1 seed Kevin Curren of Texas cut through his second and third-round opponents in straight sets Friday in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis championships.

But No. 2 seed Andy Kohlberg of Tennessee, who had been the top-ranked college player in the country, was upset 2-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the third round by unseeded Larry Gottfried of Trinity, Texas.

Fourth-round play begins Saturday at the University of Georgia courts, with the final singles and doubles champions to be determined Monday.

Witnesses fear voodoo master

By PATRICK BRESLIN

GEORGETOWN, Del. (AP) — A judge must decide this week whether to bring a reputed voodoo master known as "Black Jesus" back to trial for the brutal stabbing death of a small-town grocer in 1974.

Evidence in the case is sketchy, police say, partly because the migrant workers from the South who knew the defendant fear he has mystical powers and have refused to talk. Behind the fear are three other mysterious deaths — in which many see the specter of voodoo.

"You get in that kind of area, and people you talk to don't know anything about anything, even if it happened right in front of their faces," complained Sam Burke, 35, a deputy Delaware attorney general who heads the two-man prosecuting staff in rural Sussex County.

Police took 16 months to make the first arrest for the murder of Frank Snyder, 55, who ran a grocery and gas station in Milton, population 1,500. Police say the motive may have been that Snyder had chased a robber from his store weeks earlier with a forceful kick.

SNYDER WAS stabbed 18 to 24 times the day after Thanksgiving 1974 while he was at the store alone. A butcher knife was lodged in his body, which was bound with towels and window shade cords.

"It was a horrible murder," said Burke. "He was found in a bathtub with his head wrapped up in towels."

Burke successfully prosecuted two men for Snyder's murder, but their alleged leader, John Preston Rooks Sr., 38, originally from Alabama, was acquitted on a technicality in 1977.

Rooks, a truck driver, lived in near-by Milford and drove a 1967 black Cadillac with gold stick-on letters spelling "Black Jesus." He was also known as "Blue Jesus," but the nicknames were never explained.

After Rooks was acquitted, Burke appealed to the Delaware Supreme Court, which last month ordered a review. Georgetown Superior Court Judge Robert C. O'Hara, has until Friday to decide whether to order a new trial for Rooks, whose whereabouts are not known.

A new trial would once again stir up talk of voodoo, or "hoodoo," or "the root," referring to roots used for spells — though Rooks himself has denied any knowledge of voodoo.

RESIDENTS SAY clusters of voodoo believers live near the Draper King-Cole cannery in Milton, which used to hire migrant labor from the South and Southwest.

"You understand that this is mostly a black religion that has been passed down from slavery," explained one white woman in her 50s who says she no longer practices voodoo but still believes in its powers.

She asked that her name not be used, noting she was asked for spells after a newspaper quoted her. "You'd be surprised at the number of people who would call you, wanting something done," she said.

Police say most believers refuse to talk about voodoo out of fear, and Burke said this applies in the Rooks investigation. "Black Jesus is a guy who has a reputation in the community for being able to, you might say, cast spells or hold people to his will," he said. "He apparently couldn't lose with a set of dice, among other things. And a lot of people were afraid of him."

Burke said the three deaths that cause fear of Rooks may not have been connected to voodoo but believers saw them that way.

THE FIRST WAS in 1971, when Nathan Rogers surprisingly took Rooks for several hundred dollars in a crap game. His axed body was found in a branch of the Mispillion River, and the murder remains unsolved.

Then, before Rooks' arrest, two men bragged they knew Snyder's murderer, and both died. Ricky Tolson was run over by a car, and Charlie Barrows choked to death, vomiting blood, as he drank a beer with friends in a car while telling his story of the murder.

"He died, sitting right in that car, drinking that beer," Burke said. "They could find no cause of death. There was nothing wrong with him."

George L. Reynolds, 24, and Thomas R. Young, 29, were convicted in the Snyder slaying but are appealing.

Young, accused of actually knifing Snyder, carried a Bible to court and claims God tried to tell the jury it had made a mistake when it convicted him on a rainy day in 1977.

"RIGHT WHEN THE verdict was announced, there was this loud thunder clap," said Jack Croft, a reporter who was there. "And Young broke down and cried and said it was a message from God."

The case against Rooks hinges on statements by Reynolds, reputed driver of the getaway car. He told several stories, then said he stayed in the car while Rooks and Young went inside. Burke said Reynolds, asked why he did not tell on Rooks earlier, replied:

"He deals with voodoo, and that's why I wouldn't tell you before, because he can do a 'root' on you."

Judge O'Hara ruled Reynolds' statement could not be used as evidence because it resulted from a promise of leniency. He is reconsidering that, and his decision could allow Burke to re-open the case.

Meanwhile, Burke acknowledges that the eerie case has affected him. After the Reynolds trial, he said, he suffered diarrhea so severe he was hospitalized. His doctor found no reason for the problem.

Burke also speculated that O'Hara might have had a spell cast on him when he threw out Reynolds' statement.

DC-10 involved in world's worst air crashes

By The Associated Press

A McDonnell Douglas DC-10 was involved Friday in the worst crash in U.S. aviation history, and it was also a DC-10 that claimed 346 lives in the deadliest airplane accident ever. DC-10's also have been involved in other serious accidents.

The worst crash in aviation history occurred March 3, 1974, when a DC-10 trijet operated by Turkish Airlines mysteriously plunged into the French countryside outside Paris.

The plane took off from Orly Airport, en route from London to Istanbul. It climbed to 13,000 feet before slamming into a wooded slope just five minutes after takeoff.

None of the 346 people aboard survived, and it was later discovered that a poorly designed cargo door caused the crash.

A DC-10 caught fire and exploded at Kennedy Airport on Nov. 12, 1975, after a flock of birds was sucked into a jet engine during takeoff.

All 139 passengers slid down evacuation chutes to safety as flames engulfed the Overseas National Airways aircraft.

On March 1, 1978, the captain of a Continental Airlines DC-10 aborted his Honolulu-bound flight during takeoff from Los Angeles because of vibrations. The plane skidded 644 feet beyond the end of the runway; its landing gear collapsed and punctured a fuel tank, setting the craft ablaze.

Two of the 200 persons aboard died, and 28 were injured.

Investigators found that the DC-10 partially lost braking because of three blown tires and reduced braking pressure on a wet runway.

American Airlines, whose Flight 191 was involved in Friday's crash, spurred development of the DC-10 in 1966.

McDonnell Douglas evolved the aircraft to meet the airline's specifications for a big-capacity plane that could take off from smaller airports with relatively small runways.

The DC-10 is described as an all-purpose commercial transport capable of operating economically over distances ranging from 300 to 6,100 miles. It can handle 270 to 380 passengers, depending upon seating arrangements.

Ray Deffrey, a spokesman for McDonnell Douglas Corp., said in St. Louis that the company would have no comment on Friday's crash.

See agent: Words hold strong hint of disaster

By MARK STEIN
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — "SEE AGENT." Those words, portending the worst, flashed across the televised arrival board at the American Airlines terminal at Los Angeles International Airport, where a smattering of friends and relatives awaited the arrival of Flight 191 from Chicago.

The flight, due from Chicago's O'Hare Airport at 4:39 PDT, would never reach its destination.

Word of Flight 191's crash spread swiftly, and those awaiting word on the fate of their loved ones were soon outnumbered by scores of reporters and photographers outside Gate 42 on the second floor of the American Airlines terminal.

Two middle-aged women, their faces etched with worry, waited there, too. Three airline attendants, dressed in blue blazers, ushered the women through the crowd of newsmen into an adjoining room.

Others arrived — some trembling — and were taken into the room. Among them was an apparently distraught man dressed in clerical garb.

A short time later, a woman in her mid-20s appeared at the American Airlines reservations counter downstairs and asked if her husband was aboard the ill-fated flight.

A clerk instructed her to report to the room upstairs and wait with the others. She broke down and wept. A friend comforted her and led her up to the escalator upstairs.

According to C. Thomas Nulty, American's district sales manager, about a dozen relatives and friends of those aboard the plane were waiting at Los Angeles International.

Elsewhere, the airline assembled about 40 employees to undertake the grim task of telephoning next of kin. All aboard the plane were dead.

Even though word of the crash was on everyone's tongue, business remained brisk at the American Airlines reservation counter.

Said one traveler waiting to purchase a ticket: "What are the chances of another big plane crashing today? Pretty slim, huh? It won't happen again. I know it won't. Or at least I hope it doesn't."

Holiday travelers break plane, train, bus records

By The Associated Press

The Memorial Day weekend began Friday with reports of adequate gasoline supplies in most areas, as record numbers of travelers wanted to avoid the uncertainty of the gas pumps, jammed trains, buses and planes, letting somebody else worry about the fuel.

Airline bookings were heavier than usual in most cities, partially because of the United Airlines strike, bus companies put extra vehicles in service, and Amtrak passenger train reservation offices in many areas were swamped. Some trains were booked solid.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 500 and 600 people would be killed in traffic accidents this weekend, compared with an average of 380 on a non-holiday, three-day weekend. But Jack Reicht, the council's statistics manager, noted that the estimate was made before the gasoline shortage became acute in some areas, and said he believed the estimate would be too high.

Some resort operators had made prior arrangements to ensure sufficient gas for their patrons, like Grossinger's and other hotels in New York's Catskill mountains, which were arranging for stations to give preference to hotel guests.

Other resorts reporting their rooms filled had advertised that they were only a tankful of gas from major cities.

gasoline for every square yard of floor covering purchased.

"We've been getting a lot of traffic," said Capitol Floors manager Brian Dillistin. "We expect to do real well with it."

An Associated Press survey found that many stations across the country were running low on fuel as the end of the May allocation period nears. In addition, many station operators, faced with dwindling supplies, said they planned to take all or part of the weekend off.

A survey of 5,973 stations by the American Automobile Association found that 39 percent plan to be open on Saturday, 46 percent on Sunday and 61 percent on Monday.

In California, where gasoline supplies have been the tightest, merchants at most popular parks and resorts said they were optimistic that the shortage had passed its worst stages.

Hotels were filled nearly to the limit in Anaheim, next to Disneyland, and in Reno and Las Vegas, Nev. Three Reno gas stations promised to stay open 24 hours throughout the weekend.

At Ocean City, Md., Ed Ellis, who owns three Exxon stations along the beach, said: "I think we've got lots of gas for everybody that's going to want it and my best advice is just come on down and have a good weekend — we can get you home."

DRIVERS IN TENNESSEE were promised that they would either find gasoline or get help from state troopers carrying cans of gas in their cruisers. But state Safety Commissioner Gene Roberts warned motorists not to try to carry spare gas cans in their own cars "because I can't think of anything more dangerous."

Tennessee Energy Authority Director Ed Spitzer said the state had released 1 million gallons of gasoline from an emergency reserve to help stations stay open.

The first anniversary of casino gambling was being observed in Atlantic City, N.J., and hotels and motels were "all close to being totally booked," said city spokesman Carlo Sardella.

Atlantic City stations had an increased fuel allotment, Sardella said, and "many stations closed up during the week to make sure there was enough gas for the weekend."

Amtrak, which has suffered from budget pinches and dwindling ridership, was doing heavy business and spokesman Brian Duff, in Washington, said "there may be some standees on some trains."

All Amtrak trains were being given extra cars where cars are available, Duff said, and extra trains were being added, including a dozen on the Washington-New York run.

THE HEAVIEST RAIL usage outside the Northeast was in California on the Los Angeles-San Diego line, Duff said. Through Wednesday the six daily trains on that route had carried 107,260 passengers this month, well past the 98,837 carried during the full month of April, which had been the line's record.

An estimated 2 million calls were made last week to Amtrak's reservations center in Washington, Duff said, but roughly three-fourths of those calls got only busy signals. Amtrak is training 100 new clerks, he added, and the telephone company is "demanding" that more trunk lines be installed because the high volume affects other telephone customers.

Greyhound and Trailways bus line officials predicted a 25 percent increase in ridership this weekend, and Trailways estimated a 70 percent increase in California.

Greyhound has been running three and four buses on some routes to accommodate the overload, said Jim Redel, Greyhound manager at Kansas City, where the bus terminal was packed Friday morning.

"A lot of people say they're going by bus because they're scared to get out in their cars, afraid they'll get stranded somewhere," Redel said.

Larry D. Dratzer, assistant manager for Greyhound in the Baltimore-Washington area, said he expected 20 percent to 30 percent more passengers this weekend than on past Memorial Day weekends, largely because of the fuel shortage.

TRAVELERS WHO PREFERRED to go by air were hindered somewhat by the 55-day strike against United Airlines. Although the airline reached a settlement with its machinists Thursday, it won't be able to get back in operation on most routes until Monday.

Other airlines were jammed with passengers.

Pacific Southwest Airlines has added six flights a day from San Diego to Las Vegas and four flights from Los Angeles to Las Vegas. Hughes Air West has added two flights from Las Vegas to Burbank, Calif.

TWA spokesman Larry Hillyard in Kansas City said almost all flights were leaving with every seat filled. He said there were no delays and no extra flights because "we don't have the equipment to do so, we're using everything we have now."

At Chicago, TWA spokesman Steve Forsyth said that, compared with last year, the airline expects a 30 percent increase in passengers for the period of Thursday through next Tuesday.

"We're booked to the limit, and we've been full the last four to five weeks," said George Patton, manager for American Airlines at Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

All flights on Delta Airlines were booked solid for Friday and Monday, said airline spokesman Bill Berry.

Increasing gasoline costs boost consumer price figures in April

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest spurt in gasoline prices since the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo sent consumer prices jumping 1.1 percent in April, and more sharp increases at the pump are coming, the government said Friday.

Gasoline prices shot up 6 percent in April but food, housing and other energy costs also continued to advance rapidly during the month to sustain inflation at a 13.2 percent annual rate through the first four months of 1979, the Labor Department reported.

Gasoline prices alone were rising at a 50 percent annual rate, based on increases since the start of the year.

The high inflation rate gouged a big hole in the typical consumer's pocketbook in April, as real weekly earnings declined by a record 2.6 percent from March, the department said. Real weekly earnings refers to how much money a consumer has to spend for goods, services and taxes after taking inflation into account.

President Carter's chief economic advisers blamed surging energy, food and housing prices for the high inflation rate.

But one adviser, declining to be identified, admitted that seven months after Carter's anti-inflation program was instituted, there's "not a hell of a lot" the government can do to moderate rising costs for those necessities.

AFL-CIO PRESIDENT Meany, recalling the administration's plea last October for six months to prove its inflation-fighting effort could succeed, said that April's report "proves that the program is a flop."

United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser said business pricing policies that are fueling inflation "have turned out to be the gravestone over the burial plot" of Carter's voluntary anti-inflation guidelines.

Charles E. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said "Substantial rises in energy prices in the U.S. and around the world are occurring with the end not yet in sight."

Alfred E. Kahn, Carter's chief inflation adviser, said the government is unable to do anything directly to stop oil-exporting countries from jacking up prices or to force food and housing prices to ease. That is because the main causes for rising energy, food and housing costs are beyond the reach of Carter's voluntary price guidelines, he said.

Instead, Kahn exhorted consumers to take the initiative.

"Buy pork, not beef," he said, noting that pork prices declined in April, while beef prices rose. "Use less gasoline... and don't speculate new houses," he said at a news briefing.

One thing the government will do, said Kahn, is investigate whether the oil industry is violating either the government's mandatory price controls or Carter's voluntary guidelines for refining. He said suspicions have been raised because there apparently have been "much greater increases in gasoline product prices" than would be explained by the rise in crude oil costs.

SEPARATELY, the Agriculture Department asked Friday for a special inquiry into why food prices jumped so much in April. Department officials said they were surprised to see that prices during the month jumped 0.9 percent — nearly twice what had been expected.

The 6 percent jump in gasoline prices was the largest monthly increase since a 7.3 percent advance was recorded in March 1974, just as the oil embargo was ending, the Labor Department said.

During the 12 months ending in April, gasoline prices rose 23.4 percent, with most of the increase coming since January.

A gallon of regular leaded gasoline that sold for a national average of 66.8 cents in January cost 75.3 cents in April. A gallon of unleaded gasoline rose from an average of 71.6 cents in January to 80.2 cents last month.

Fuel oil prices also advanced sharply in April, rising 3.8 percent from March and 12.2 percent since the start of the year.

The 0.9 percent rise for food and beverages in April was the lowest in four months. Even so, food prices were up nearly 12 percent from April 1978 and are advancing so far this year at an annual rate of more than 15 percent.

HOUSING PRICES last month advanced 1.1 percent, the third straight month that prices have risen 1 percent or more. In the past 12 months, housing costs have gone up nearly 11 percent.

The overall 1.1 percent rise in the seasonally adjusted Consumer Price Index (CPI) last month compares with a 1 percent increase in March.

The 13.2 percent annual inflation rate so far this year is nearly double the 7.4 percent rate that Carter projected last fall when he announced his anti-inflation program.
