House Demos oppose plan to decontrol U.S. oil prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democrats today formally approved, by a 138 to 69 margin, a resolution opposing President Carter's plan to lift price controls on domestic oil. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, whose home state of Massachusetts is heavily dependent on heating oil, openly broke with the president in supporting the motion.

The action, ratifying a voice vote taken Wednesday, is not binding. However, backers said it was an important symbolic gesture from within

Beef prices to remain high

But the news not all bad for consumer or producer

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

Beef prices apparently will remain high for the next few years, but the news is not all bad for the consumer.

Nor is it bad for Midland-area cattle producers despite a month-long drop in prices for cattle. Both groups can expect developments in the meat business over the next few years which will prove beneficial, market observers said. For the consumer, meats other than beef will be available in ample supplies at possibly lower prices for the duration of 1979, a livestock marketing specialist at Texas A & M University said. And for the cattleman, beef prices are expected to climb steadily during the next two or three years, the owner and manager of the Southwestern earlier this week. According to Dr. Ed Uvacek, a livestock professor at Texas A & M University, consumers will have an abundant choice in meats at the mar-

Livestock Auction in Midland said

"We are fortunate for at least the duration of 1979 in that there will be a sufficient quantity of other meats around," Dr. Uvacek said in a telephone interview.

Dr. Uvacek predicted that prices for pork, chicken and turkey "will be moving down or at least stabilizing" over the next few months.

Beef prices will continue to remain high for the next few years, he said. At the bottom of it all are the biologic and economic realities of something called the cattle cycle, a 12-year process that results in alternate periods of boom and bust for the cattle producer.

The latest bust began in 1973, though the effects lagged behind for a number of years.

Basically what happened, Dr. Uvacek said, is that the market collapsed and producers began liquidating their herds.

"What we're seeing now is a result of the cutback," he explained. "The supply is low and the price is up." If the cycle holds true, production will be stimulated by the higher prices, and eventually the price for the consumer will stabilize, Dr. Uva-"We might see a little slack off in the retail price two or three years down the road," he added. In the meantime, cattle producers can expect higher prices while the shortage in cattle persists. According to Enos Howle, a vice president for Midland Livestock Corp. and owner and manager of Southwestern Livestock Auction, it takes time to rebuild a cattle herd once it has been culled. "It takes two or three years to build back a herd," he said. Howle noted that despite a shortage in area livestock, prices have dropped slightly this month for cattle. Feeder cattle are down about $25 per 100 head; packer cows and bulls, down $10-$12 per 100, he said. Howle speculated that the current lag in cattle prices is a result of a cut in demand because beef is moving slowly in retail outlets and contract cattle are being delivered to buyers. But Howle said the setback is only temporary. And producer confidence in the market is high, he added.

"It still looks good for cattle. Any-time there's a shortage, it's good as far as price is concerned," he said. Howle said while consumers may shy away from beef when the price is high, it's absence from the family food table will only be temporary. "They may switch to something cheaper, but it's all in what they want and what they have to have," he

Meanwhile, Dr. Uvacek said he is advising cattlemen, who are normally a conservative bunch, to re-enter the market at this time if they are "For the ranchers, it looks prosperous for the next two or three years if they have the money left to ex-"My advice to anyone who really wants to stay in the cattle business is to expand now and don't wait three or four years. There is money to be made within the next two or three years. It won't be nearly as profitable after that," he said.

Dr. Uvacek said the Carter Administration may consider price controls on meat prices if beef continues to lead increases for the consumer.

Such a program "seldom is a help" to the producer, he said.

Top New Hampshire court refuses to dismiss Thomson libel action

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The New Hampshire Supreme Court Wednesday declined to dismiss a libel suit filed by former Gov. Meldrim Thomson against the author of a controversial book about the publisher of the Manchester Union Leader.

The court ruled Thomson still may sue Kevin Cash, author of "Who the Hell is William Loeb?" The book is an unauthorized biography of the publisher of New Hampshire's largest daily and only morning newspa-

The book precipitated suits and countersuits among Cash, Loeb and Thomson. Loeb editorally had backed Thomson, a personal friend, in several gubernatorial campaigns.

The libel suit is to be heard in Superior Court. The Supreme Court, however, dismissed Thomson's contention that he was "a private citizen" when the book was published in 1975 by Cash, a former newsman for the Union Leader and New York Herald Tribune.

"It is undisputed that as of the publication date ... the plaintiff was governor of the state. As such he is unquestionably a public official," the court ruled.

As a public figure, Thomson would have to prove that Cash not only printed false information but did it "with malice and reckless disregard as to the truth of the publication.'

Post office encourages moving mail boxes to street

By MIKE SLATON

Returning to a time when mail boxes lined rural lanes like sentinels at the front walk, the U.S. Postal Service is encouraging Midlanders to take their mail boxes off front doors and move them to the street.

Stan Sartain, director of customer services for the Midland Sectional Center covering 168 post offices in West Texas, said putting mail boxes on the curb rather than on the house cuts the cost of delivery, makes delivery of mail quicker and helps protect mail from the weather.

Cost for mail delivery to the door rather than to a curbside box averages about $15 more a year a house," said Sartain.

"With between 1,000 and 1,200 new deliveries to make each year," he said, "that makes a difference of about $15,000 a year in delivery

If a large number of houses had curb-side mail boxes, delivery time could be cut by as much as an hour, said Sartain. The savings in time results from the carrier not having to leave the truck to make deli-

Delivery of mail by truck rather than walking also results in more protection from the weather, said Sartain.

High winds sometimes blow letters away from the mail box mounted on a house. With the boxes on the curb, the mail is protected from wind as well as rain until it is picked up, said Sartain. New federal regulations concerning curbside mail boxes were enacted in 1976. Sartain said. The regulations state that all new residences must have curbside boxes unless the residence is a new home in a block where other homes have at-the-door mail boxes. Mail pick-up is required at curbside boxes when the flag is up, said

Sartain. Mail left on at-the-door mail boxes does not have to be picked up by the carrier unless there is mail to be delivered to that address, he Policy concerning pick-up of at-the-door mail is up to the local postmaster, he said.

"In Midland," he said, "we encourage the carriers to look for mail on the box and pick it up.

"Sometimes, however, the carrier can't see the box, and sometimes we have a problem with individual carriers."

Although federal regulations are directed only at new residences in new neighborhoods, the post office encourages all Midlanders to move their mail boxes to the curb to help improve postal service, Sartain

Bert Lance enters plea of innocent

ATLANTA (AP) - Former federal budget director Bert Lance pleaded innocent today to federal charges of conspiracy and misuse of funds at two Georgia banks.

he and three northwest Georgia businessmen were indicted by a federal 'I have an infinite faith in the fairness of the American people, and I know that no jury will find me guilty of the charges directed against me."

The indictment, which makes no mention of Carter, concerns Lance's banking practices before he resigned the presidency of the National Bank of Georgia to serve eight months in the Carter administration in 1977. It alleges a conspiracy to commit banking violations and fraud against agencies of the government from 1970 to the present. The indictment said the conspiracy "has resulted in losses and potential losses in excess of $500.-000" to the banks involved.

THE CHARGES FOLLOW nearly two years of investigation by various Lance's first appearance in court could come as early as today. He is to be arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Allen L. Chancey Jr., but officials still had not announced the details early this morning. A trial could follow within 90 days

Lance, who had been a major fund-raiser in Carter's presidential cam-paign, came to Washington as director of the Office of Management and Budget when Carter was inaugurated in 1977. For a time, they had lunch together twice a week and consulted daily by telephone. They had been political associates since 1966, and when Lance resigned on Sept. 21, 1977, an emotional president announced it.

Now Lance is charged in 22 of 33 counts in an inch-thick indictment. If convicted on all counts, the maximum penalty would be 95 years in prison and a fine of $115,000

The charges against him include conspiracy, misapplication of bank funds, falsifying personal financial statements to banks, and making false entries in bank records. The grand jury described a pattern of bad debts covered and re-covered by new loans — eventually 383 loans from 41 banks that totaled more than $20 million — that benefitted the defendants, their families and their associates.

THE ALLEGATIONS relate to Lance's terms as president of the Calhoun, Ga., First National Bank in 1963-1975, and the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta in 1975 and 1976.

The indictment does not touch on loans from the National Bank of Georgia to Carter's peanut business in Plains, Ga., which are now the subject of a separate grand jury investigation headed by special counsel Paul Curran.

That inquiry reportedly is considering whether the loans may have been used, in part, to finance Carter's 1976 campaign in violation of federal election laws. The president has said they were not.

On Wednesday, after the indictment was made public, presidential spokesman Jody Powell said "it would not be appropriate" for the president or his spokesman to comment. The Justice Department had notified the White House of the indictment Tuesday.

Twenty months before, after newspapers had raised questions about Lance's finances, and investigations by federal banking officials and the Senate had begun, Carter announced Lance was resigning - and praised

"I DON'T THINK there is any way that I could find anyone to replace Bert Lance that would be, in my judgment, as competent, as strong, as decent and as close to me as a friend and adviser," Carter said then. Even afterward, Lance kept his staff pass to the White House. The others now named in the indictment are all long-time associates of Lance, and all were involved in Lance's unsuccessful race for the Georgia governorship in 1974. They are: -Thomas M. Mitchell, a Dalton, Ga., businessman and member of the state transportation board, whom Lance left in charge of his holdings in a blind trust during his eight months in Carter's administration. -Richard T. Carr, a former officer at the Calhoun bank and president of a bank in Ringgold, Ga. -H. Jackson Mullins, a long-time friend of Lance who owned a pharmacy in Calhoun and owned stock in the Calhoun bank

ALL THREE WERE charged with conspiracy along with Lance. Mitchell was named in 11 other counts. Carr in 12 and Mullins in six. All involved violation of federal banking statutes.

The key conspiracy count charges that the four: -Extended loans which "were knowingly beyond the capacity of the recipients to repay.

-Allowed hundreds of thousands of dollars of overdrafts.

-Juggled bank records and misled other banks into lending money.

Clayton says split primary is 'dead issue'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A "split" presidential primary - which many believe would help John Connally - is a "dead issue," says House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton denied knowledge late Wednesday night of any "plot" to out-maneuver the 12 "Killer Bee" senators by sending the Senate a split primary bill as an amendment to an otherwise unrelated bill.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, told a news conference that conservative Democrats had just such a plan in mind.

"There is no plan so far as I know to run out a presidential primary bill. ... I can't understand what is so important about a dead issue," Clayton, an advocate of the split primary, told reporters.

Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday he had refused an offer by Bryant to deliver House votes for initiative and referendum in trade for Clements' propose to veto a split primary bill.

Clements, who badly wants the Legislature to submit an initiative and referendum proposal to the voters, said he told Bryant "to go jump in the creek.'

"I am still convinced that Gov. Clements can get initiative and referendum passed, without a special session, if he vows to veto a rigged primary bill that would throw $5 million in taxes down the drain," Bryant

Clayton contends a March presidential primary would force candidates to commit to "Texas issues." It also would let conservative Democrats vote for Connally in the GOP presidential primary, then support conservative candidates in the Democratic primary for state offices in May. Rep. Susan McBee, D-Del Rio. chairman of the House Elections Committee, said she knows of no bill on the House calendar that could become a presidential primary vehicle. "This is another example of the paranoia that seems to be rampant this session," she said.

Two "Killer Bee" senators who broke a Senate quorum for five days to thwart a separate-day primary bill expressed concern over reports of House efforts to keep the idea alive.

"We're trying to get the House members cranked up," said Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said, "I think they want to pass that (split primary) bill so bad that they're looking at any bill that has 'election' on

Doggett said 80 House members oppose the measure and, "If all those people stand by their word on the presidential primary bill better than our Republican members did over here, we ought to be secure."

Clayton also said a rider in the state budget bill that would deny state funding of the 1980 Republican primaries if the GOP has a presidential primary without legislative approval would be changed or removed. GOP rules provide a presidential primary, and Clements said he would veto the entire appropriation bill if the rider stays in.

Masked burglar shoots three in California

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - A masked burglar dressed in black got into the home of Neutrogena Corp. soap company president Lloyd Cotsen, tied up his wife, their teen-age son and a guest, then shot all three in the head, police said.

All three were in a hospital early this morning, and the guest was reported in "very critical" condition. Police said each had been shot once with a .22-caliber pistol.

Police identified the victims as Joanne Cotsen, 49, Noah Cotsen, 14,

Report says Odessa schools offer 'unequal' education to minorities

ODESSA — Federal investigators have said Ector County public schools offer "unequal" and "inferior" education to minority students, according to a report released by Ector County Independent School District

But Superintendent Bill Holm termed the findings of the investigators, released by school officials Tuesday, "invalid" and charged investigators from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare "had already made up their minds before they got here."

The report also was sent to the U.S. Department of Justice's Civil Rights Division and the U.S. District Court in El Pasó. But Holm said he does not know what effect the HEW report will have on the school district.

According to Holm, the school district currently is operating under a 1971 federal court order — mandating racial desegregation — which gives the El Paso court jurisdiction over complaints of violations of that court order.

In mid-April, HEW representatives spent four days in Odessa investigating complaints by some Mexican-American parents and students of racial discrimination and child abuse.

The investigators' report, sent to school officials Monday, was released by Holm in a Tuesday morning press and Chris Doering, 13, of West Covina, who had been living with the family while attending school in Beverly

According to UCLA Medical Center spokesman Jim Powers, both Mrs. Cotsen and her son were in serious condition following surgery.

Doering was in "very critical condition" at Cedars-Sinai Hospital.

THE FARMING community got its name from Elbow Creek, which "nearly touches where it begins," and which, when it's not dry, dumps water into Beals Creek. This, in turn, empties into the Colorado River.

"I just shoved the door to and forgot about it,"

McKinnon said of the store's final day. Though the world outside changed, most everything in and around the McKinnon place remains unchanged — except for the seasons.

There was a "price freeze:" The Texaco gasoline pumps outside the store reflect 29 and 33 cents per gallon. Old W.E. Garrett snuff tins are stamped 10 and 15 cents each; the small one used to be a nickel. Tin cups sold for 29 cents each. Among the many old soda water bottles is a "Sky Pilot" brand.

It was neighborliness.

Not needed in Texas

Monopoly bargaining power over all teachers in the public schools of Texas long has been a desire of labor unions in the Lone Star State.

And they very well could be closer to achieving their goal right now than at any previous time.

Union lobbyists, early this month, were able to get one of their bills — S.B. 289 — reported out of the Senate Education Committee. The committee action was surprising and shocking to many Texans.

The bill, as proposed, would grant the unions monopoly bargaining power over all public school teachers. Thus, the union bosses would be able to force all teachers to accept the union as their exclusive bargaining agent - even teachers who oppose the union and do not desire its aid, assistance, advice or what-have-

Think about it for a moment. If the unions should succeed in passing this legislation, union officials would have almost unlimited power to call teachers out on strike - keeping schools shut down until their demands are met.

Texas and Texans very definitely do not need this sort of legislation. In the first place, it is in direct opposition to the Rightto-Work principle. Senate Bill 289 should and must be defeated, along with any other bills giving unions monopoly bargaining Fortunately, no further action on the measure has been taken. Hopefully, it will be permitted to "rest in peace" without further attention (floor action) during the remainder of the session, ending May 28. But there always is the danger of some unwarranted, unwanted legislation getting by in the closing days and hours of a legislative session. Every effort should be made to prevent S.B. 289 from getting by under such circumstances.

And in this connection, it is somewhat encouraging to note a substantial loss of membership in the Texas and other affiliates of the National Education Association (NEA)-union, as reported in "Right To Work News."

Susan Staub, staff director of Concerned Educators Against Forced Unionism (CEAFU), says this "reflects the growing awareness and rejection of the NEA's promotion of compulsory unionism by the nation's educators."

"Right To Work News" quotes Ms. Staub as saying, "Educators are concerned about the firing of good teachers - often tenured teachers - at the command of union officials."

She added that "Educators more and more, are standing up for their freedom of choice."

It is our firm belief that a vast majority of Texans do not favor granting unions monopoly bargaining power over Texas'

Carter sure Soviets won't cheat

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - The key to the SALT II agreement, and to its chances of approval by the Senate, is "verification." Senators want to be sure the Soviet Union isn't cheating on the number and variety of its nuclear President Carter has reassured them. "We are confident," he declared last month, "that no significant violation of the treaty could take place without the United States detecting it. But secret documents do not support the president's rosy assurance that the Soviets will be unable to fool us. Quite the contrary, in fact.

A "Top Secret" report in the National Intelligence Daily, the CIA's super hush-hush information newspaper for top government leaders, has this to say: "In view of our incomplete understanding of Soviet concealment and deception activities and in view of the inconsistencies and unevenness of their use by various parts of the (Soviet) strategic forces ... our forecast ... in this field must be highly tentative. Competent sources confirmed to our associate Dale Van Atta that the report is all too true. It warns that despite the "considerable political, economic and even military risks involved ... we cannot exclude the possibility that Soviet leaders, if they believed they could succeed, would approve a program of concealment and deception designed to help gain a strategic advantage over the U.S."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Indeed, the CIA report speculates that "an effort of this scope almost certainly was approved at a high political level." The CIA is convinced, in other words, that the men in the Kremlin are perfectly willing to cheat on the SALT agreement - and our intelligence techniques can't prevent them from getting away with it.

From secret documents and from intelligence sources close to the SALT negotiations, we learned the details of a number of the Russians' tricks. They have been using them since at least 1964 to hide their weapons strength from American intelligence. We cannot report all their tricks without revealing our own secret detection methods. But it is safe to tell part of the story:

One relatively simple screen the Russians use for their strategic weapons was described to us by a source: "When the Russians move mobile missiles, there is sometimes a long logistics trail. It's like a circus of vehicles going through the country and is as easily detected. But if they break the caravan up, moving one truck at a time, we might not learn about the move.'

· Beginning about 1964, the Soviets began "disruptive painting" of their intercontinental ballistic missile complexes, constructing dummy roads, facilities, equipment and launch sites - modern versions of "Potemkin villages" by the people who invented the technique.

. In 1966, the Russians learned to time their activities to our satellite schedules. "In response to warnings of the approach of U.S. reconnaissance satellites passed to all branches of the Soviet military establishment," one document notes. "both surface-to-air missile and airwarning-and-control radars restrict their electronic emissions at times when the emissions would be susceptible to interception by the satellites. In 1967, the Russians began building tunnels big enough to hold up to 20 missile-carrying submarines. Dum my subs were constructed to confuse American spies, and canvas or "environmental" coverings were used to camouflage the facilities.

· Though the CIA claimed these subterfuges never seriously hampered our ability to maintain an accurate count of Soviet submarines," the agency admitted that it made it tougher to figure out a far more vital statistic - the number of Soviet subs in port at any given moment.

 In 1974 and 1975, the CIA discovered that the Soviets were partially covering submarine hull sections awaiting assembly at Severodvinsk, and concluded that "these actions were clearly attempts to deny the United States information on missile-launching subs before they are built."

 The most innovative — and potentially dangerous — deception began in May, 1974. That was "telemetry encoding," or making messages from test missiles indecipherable to non-Soviet monitors tracking the weapons.

It is tricks like these that have given many members of the Senate cause for concern. One senator put the case for caution bluntly: "We have consistently underestimated Soviet capability," he told us. "The past track record is not encouraging. Senate skeptics, with good reason, are not viewing the SALT II agreement through Jimmy Carter's rosecolored glasses.

The three sat in silence.

Then Ham brightened up, "I know what. Let's call Charley Kirbo in Atlanta. He'll have a solution.'

The President placed the call and explained the situation to Kirbo, who, outside of Washington, is Mr. Carter's most trusted advisor.

Kirbo listened and then said, "Have you met with Rosalynn on this?"

The President said, "She's at a mental health meeting in California. It's 9:25 now so I don't have much time.'

"What does she want in exchange for going to bed?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"You're going to have to trade off something," Kirbo said.

"I promised at my Inauguration that I would not make any compromises. I never go back on my word, the President said.

"I know that, Jimmy. How about offering her a ten o'clock deadline?"
"That seems fair," Jimmy said. "What if she doesn't buy it?" 'Then ask her to come up with her own bedtime plan. You've done all you can and now the ball is in her court," Kirbo said.

"I knew you would come up with a solution, Charley. Thanks a lot."

The President turned to Ham and Jody. "I'm going back to Amy with one last proposal. She either goes to bed at ten o'clock or has to take the consequences for it."

"What consequences?" Jody asked, taking notes.

"I will tell her I'm very disappointed with her."

WASHINGTON — It was more luck than a gift of immediate prophecy that what I wrote six weeks ago about fuel shortages forcing people from their cars into trains is happening in spades right now.

Amtrak, everybody's scapegoat, is swamped with passengers and people who want to become passengers uick, only they can't get through on the phone. This gasoline crisis, particularly in California, is a vivid preview of the time when people will have to count on taking trains, period, because gasoline costs and availability will weigh heavily against motorists making medium and long distance trips.

Jimmy Carter's face that the United States of America will need a passenger railroad system in place when we move into the era when our cars will no longer be able to bathe in gaso-

And yet this realization coincides with the strong move by the Departnent of Transportation to cut back Amtrak service, thus weakening this already patched up rail passenger system. Congress still has time to ass amendments to this eviscerating

Meanwhile, Amtrak suffers from a dose of heavy ambivalence. It is thrilling to be overrun with passengers, but it's no fun to see the disappointment on their faces when they board some of the equipment.

Amtrak is frustrated to realize that scores of millions of Americans who only use Amtrak in emergencies, be-lieve there is always a first-class rail system waiting for them to use. So when they use it in such emergencies as now, many go away saying they won't use it again. This reaction gives the anti-rail passenger crowd arguments why Amtrak should be cut more, and perhaps even eliminated, i.e., the people don't use it, and when they do, they don't like it.

Consider Amtrak's reservation computer center at Philadelphia. Nearly two million phone calls were placed to the center the week of May 14th, six times as many placed the same week a year ago. But only 448,-796 got through. The telephone company warned Amtrak that it was overloading the Philadelphia area's long-distance capacity and making life miserable for other customers. Consider California where passengers must stand on Amtrak's Los Angeles-San Diego trains, 12 of them a day. Consider that Amtrak bookings were up 14 percent in April, and that this jerry-built rail system is headed for a record year with 22 million passengers likely.

Now, there is a strong anti-Amtrak lobby comprised of super Proposition 13 types, bus companies and perhaps even the railroads. They can argue that: Amtrak doesn't operate one single line in the black; Amtrak used up $4.2 billion in subsidies in eight years and didn't come up with a good rail system; ridership has not increased fast enough; it would be cheaper to buy free bus or airplane tickets for most Amtrak passengers, since each rail passenger is so heavily subsidized. Most of these arguments are valid simply because Amtrak has never been funded sufficiently or given as-surance that it is here to stay. The bus companies have a right to resent some of Amtrak's funding (though buses ride on subsidized highways), but would be better served to integrate with Amtrak's schedules, providing bus service to pick up where Amtrak ends. As for the railroads who bellyache about the federal bucks spent on other modes of transportation, they shouldn't be knocking Amtrak, the dummies, because Amtrak is also in the railroad business. When trains are two-thirds or more filled with passengers, there is no more energy efficient transportation system going. The other day, Amtrak president Alan S. Boyd spoke to employes and told them that Amtrak the way it has had to operate - is not energy efficient, but that train systems with good passenger load, are. Congress, which moves like an elephant this year, has come around a little on Amtrak. Sen. Frank Church made the best move when he asked Senate Leader Robert Byrd to hold authorization on the cutdown Amtrak bill until after the upcoming recess, thus giving congressmen a chance to hear what people think back home. Church not only wants to save rail service in Idaho, but across the country, too, because he feels there must be a national rail system ready when gasoline shortages become perma-

The Administration wants to cut $1.4 billion from Amtrak's budget in the next five years, and with it, 12,000 miles of route. Several amendments to the Amtrak bill amount to saving service on a half-dozen long distance routes and a number of commuter

Reds whitewash Giants

By The Associated Press

Mike LaCoss said Manager John McNamara waved his magic wand again — but the wands Dave Collins & Co. had something to do with it, too. LaCoss, unbeaten this year, chalked up his fifth victory by threehitting San Francisco Wednesday night while Collins, Johnny Bench and Ray Knight were hitting home runs off Vida Blue in Cincinnati's 5-0 whitewashing of the Giants.

It washed away the bad taste of the Reds' 12-2 loss 24 hours earlier and widened their National League West lead to 21/2 games over the Giants.

In the rest of the NL it was Atlanta Houston 5; St. Louis 3, Philadelphia Los Angeles 4, San Diego 2, and Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 0. Chicago at New York was rained out. "We haven't lost a game I've started yet,1' said LaCoss, a 23-year-old right-hander. "It seems like Mac waves a magic wand when I pitch. "Like tonight, He puts Dave Collins in left field and he hits a home run

(his first as a National Leaguer). He's just a super manager. LaCoss' first start this year came against the Giants after the Reds had lost their first three games. It was a disaster for him — four hits and five runs allowed in two-thirds of an inning, although none of them were earned because of an error he committed. Still, the Reds won that one 7-6 and haven't lost with him on the Similarly, errors and erratic baserunning led to Tuesday night's horrendous showing against the Giants.

"When you lose like that." LaCoss said, "it's better just not to say anything, forget it and go about your business. It would have been a lot worse if we'd played like that and lost

Blue, who has lost three in a row, has been getting shelled of late. Last year he allowed 12 home runs in 258 innings. This year he's given up a dozen in only 80.

"The problem is he's throwing the right pitch at the wrong time," said Giants pitching coach Larry Shepard. There's no doubt he'll come out of it. It's like Bill Madlock batting .200. It just doesn't figure.

Bench's homer leading off the second inning gave LaCoss the only run he needed. But before the inning was over Dan Driessen had singled and Collins had homered. Knight's homer, his first of the season, came with the bases empty in the fourth.

"He was throwing all right," catcher Mike Sadek said of Blue. "Two of the home runs came on pretty tough pitches. He threw a slider down and away to Knight but he went out and got it. And Collins hit a pitch over his Jerry Royster's two-run single highlighted Atlanta's five-run eighth inning that enabled Tony Brizzolara to chalk up his first major league victory. Brizzolara allowed seven hits in eight innings but was virtually untouchable after Houston's four-run first.

In the eighth, J.R. Richard walked Darrel Chaney on four pitches and grooved a pitch to Pepe Frias, who singled. Joaquin Andujar took over and walked Charlie Spikes before Royster singled.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 1

The St. Louis Cardinals literally stole their game from Philadelphia. Three stolen bases off Phils pitcher Dick Ruthven were followed by three run-scoring hits.

In the third, Ken Oberkfell singled. stole second and came in on Gary Templeton's single. Templeton then stole second and came home on Keith Hernandez's single

Dodgers 4. Padres 2

Burt Hooton checked San Diego on six hits and Steve Garvey doubled home two runs in the Dodgers' victory. Los Angeles shelled Randy Jones and three relievers for 14 hits, four by Dusty Baker.

The Dodgers wiped out the Padres' 2-1 lead in the fifth when Gary Thomasson and Bill Russell singled, Garvey doubled them both home, then Garvey scored on Baker's single.

their ever-increasing costs.

Agabashian says

egos are involved

The split has been felt particularly strongly with the approach of championship racing's richest and most prestigious race — Sunday's Indy

"They're gonna ruin racing if they don't get this thing straightened out, and they're not going to get it settled until they get rid of the ego thing,' Agabashian said. "There's a lot of egos out there, and that could take a long time — maybe too long.

"The fans can get disenchanted and, if that happens, the sponors may pull the bucks out. If that happens, it could kill the whole thing.'

The slim, grey-haired Agabashian drove in 11 Indys, finishing as high as fourth.

He thought back to those years and said. "We had a drivers' dispute with the Speedway back in '47. The drivers were trying to get more (money) out of the Speedway." "But Wilbur Shaw and Tony Hulman had just taken over the Speedway two years earlier, and they were spending big chunks of money to upgrade the physical plant. Shaw and Hulman satisfied 'em with an answer that there'd be more, but they couldn't promise anything. "The thing is, it was done by sitting down and talking man to man. They settled down and got it done. I wish that would happen out here now.'

The first step in that direction may have been taken Wednesday. At the call of veteran driver Roger McCluskey, drivers, owners, mechanics and officials from both sides met for two hours to discuss their grievances. The result was inconclusive, but there was agreement to continue talking - and that's progress.

Four entering Hall of Fame

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Four outstanding athletes have been voted into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame this year, raising the Hall's members to a total of 72.

Chosen for induction into the Hall by the organization's board of directors were Billy Ray Barnes, former all-pro football star and Wake Forest University football-baseball standout; Jack King, state and world champion trap and skeet shooter; Ronnie Shavlik, former All-America basketball center and multiple record-setter at North Carolina State University 24 years ago: and Shore, former major league baseball pitcher who more than 60 years ago pitched one of the few perfect games in big-league history.

SOCCER to repeat again as NBA champions

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets, with a chance to become the first repeat champions of the National Basketball Association in 10 years, may not be the fat cats they're depicted

COLLEGE FAIRLEIGH DICKINSON UNIVER-When the Bullets struggled to beat Atlanta 4-3 and SITY-Named John Orsino baseball LAKE FOREST COLLEGE-Named then had to overcome a 3-1 deficit before prevailing over San Antonio, some observers figured they had lost the desire which carried them to the top last

But veteran forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin tx VIDERCERIUS BEST AND THE STATE OF THE STA Haves say a second championship would be even more satisfying than the first.

"We have more reason to win than Seattle," Dandridge said as the two finalists of last season prepared for tonight's contest in Capital Centre, the Bullets leading 1-0 in the best-of-seven series.

"Two championship rings would be icing on the cake for Wes (center Wes Unseld), Elvin and myself," Dandridge said. "And we have some young players who realize that a lot of great players in the league never even get to play for the championship.

"I learned a long time ago to forget my personal goals," said Hayes, who finished third in the voting for the NBA's most valuable player. "The championship ring means more to me. I want a second one. The first one was good, and I want more. Seattle, meantime, is encountering the same kind of doubt that Washington faced last season - even though the SuperSonics extended the Bullets to seven games a year ago and finished behind them this year with the second-best regular season record. Coach Lenny Wilkens was a bit bemused by a

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 68 years old, and will be entering the hospital soon to have a pacemaker implanted. I've been told that nuclear pacemakers are a vailable, and I'm wondering about the pros and cons. -Mr. L.M.T.

Dear Mr. T.: Nuclear-powered heart, pacemakers were first used early in 1973, and only about 3,000 were implanted throughout the world during the first five years. This figure contrasts with an estimated 300,000 electrical devices which have been implanted in patients in the United States. Of the first 15 patients to receive nuclear pacemakers in one of the two facilities originally licensed to insert them, 13 are alive and well, and 10 have their original unit.

Initially, there had been some concern about the safety of isotope-powered devices, but studies have revealed no evidence of any problem or danger from them. Their chief advantage is their long life.

The major disadvantage of the nuclear pacemaker is its cost-from $6,500 to $7,000, compared with a cost of from $1,800 to $2,500 for the best lithiumpowered unit. Furthermore, the new lithiumpowered units now have an expected lifetime of five to 15 years. They are hermetically sealed in a wateroroof capsule and, therefore, more reliable

For young patients, who may require a pacemaker for 20 years: or more, the nuclear-powered device might be preferable.

Dear Dr. Solomon: After our experience with the swine flu vaccine program, which seemed to cause more problems than it solved, I wonder whether the advisability of other mass inoculations shouldn't be reviewed?-Mr. F.S.

Dear Mr. S.: Reviews as to the advisability of such programs do take place. The U.S. Public Health Service recently recommended that the practice of emergency typhoid vaccinations after floods and other natural disasters be stopped, since there is no evidence that outbreaks of typhoid generally follow these catastrophes. Moreover, epidemiologists at the Center for Disease Control say that the vaccination does not necessarily protect everyone receiving it; in fact, some individuals experience a harmful reaction to the injection itself. It was concluded that vaccination programs place an unnecessary burden on emergency health resources, which are often in short supply at such a time.

The Public Health Service made its recommendation on the basis of a study of the 1976 earthquake in Guatemala. Despite the fact that Guatemala is a developing nation, where typhoid is endemic, it was found that the disease did not pose a problem after the disaster. The scientists noted that boiling water after a natural disastsr, in order to assure a safe drinking supply, was more important than vaccinations in preventing typhoid disease.

Brussels court ends rat-shoot tradition

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - A Brussels court, bowing to pressure from animal lovers, has ordered a halt to the shooting of live rats at an annual folk festival dating back to 1887.

The ruling this week ended an eight-year legal battle waged by animal protection groups that claimed the rat-shoot was barbaric.

The festival, held each August in the western Belgian town of Zaffelare, commemorates the extinction of an army of rats that threatened the town in 1887. During the festival, archers would shoot rats out of small wooden boxes dangling 100-feet in the air. When the rats hit the ground, club-wielding children bludgeoned them to death.

BUSINESS MIRROR Merchandising may come again to Wall Street

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - A hush has fallen on Wall Street, where earlier this decade the defenders of private securities markets clashed with government regulators over the modernization of trading.

Confrontations are rare now; the dialogue is calmer, the interfaces less angry. Muscle-flexing is hardly part of the scene. And so even is the level of discussion that many people assume the issues have

They haven't. What has happened is the presence of William "Mil" Batten, 69, who became chairman of the New York Stock Exchange in 1976, succeeding James Needham, a tough, sometimes combative chief executive.

Though assertive, as executives are, Batten's style is low key. "I don't think much is accomplished by confrontation," he said the other day. "We can get more done if we avoid it than if we seek it out.'

It's Batten's management style. "I'm resultoriented," he said. The way to achieve goals is to have each group understand the other. If screaming would do it, if it would achieve goals, I'd be for it."
He is a reasonable man. "The objectives of the SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission) and people in this business are the same," he said. "We want a market in the public interest. We want integrity. Although you can find an argument on almost any subject in this notoriously opinionated community, many people feel the Batten style is right for the Under Needham, himself a former SEC commissioner, the hard in-fighting probably was required, since stock exchanges at the time assumed they were fighting for their lives. Few SEC opinions were left unchallenged.

But now the law is written. Under a 1975 act of Congress, the various exchanges are committed to linking their facilities into a central marketplace. Congress didn't specify the form, but it stated the goal

As head of the biggest exchange of all, Batten's role is to maintain a constructive dialogue with other exchanges, with the SEC and with his own membership, and somehow to balance it all with the public

To date, as he sees it, the linkage is evolving smoothly and "in accordance with the act," although he concedes some disagreement with the SEC on the rate of progress - on the timing of advances.

Most important of these developments, one that Batten carefully notes is a joint effort of various exchanges, is the electronic linking of competitive market centers into the "intermarket trading system." To the buyer or seller, ITS's value is in allowing brokers to find the best price for a multiply listed stock, whether on the New York, American, Midwest, Pacific, Philadelphia or Boston exchange.

The system is not yet free of bugs. Moreover, only a little more than 400 stocks, of a potential 1,000 or more important multiple listings, are included. More are added each week, but there's a long way to go.

Because of ITS, the exchanges no longer will be self-contained. While remaining separate market centers, they constitute to some extent a national market in which information is shared

A composite quote system, in which brokers see bids and offers in any market center, and the consolidated tape, which reports trades no matter what the exchange, complete the vital linkages to

While all links are significant, the consolidated tape has immediate visual meaning for investors, since it is what browsers and buyers scan in brokers' retail outlets. Before, separate tapes commonly were shown, one for Big Board stocks, the other perhaps for Amex issues.

Batten, a lifelong merchandiser who capped a career at J.C. Penney Company when he was named chairman, would like to enlarge the product line at the Big Board, primarily with financial futures and options His administration has changed the floor itself; the trading posts are out, electronic gear is in. The visitors gallery, which handles 450,000 a year, is improved, with commentary offered in five languages. There may even be a day when the Big Board will again advertise its wares. There has been no advertising program for eight or 10 years, or since regulatory and back office problems took top priority.

"It's not enough to have a good product, said Batten the merchandiser. "You have to explain it to the public.
