Report on tornadoes contradicts myths and popular beliefs

By Jeff McCaslin Update Staff Writer

he tornado is nature's most unpredictable killer, stalk-ing the countryside like a wounded grizzly bear. Scien-tists and meteorologists have been studying the storms for years, hoping to break the mysteries, and myths, that surround the black funnel-shaped clouds.

Tornadoes follow no predictable path, yet it is generally perceived that they travel from the southwest to the northeast. And it has been documented over the years that they occur everywhere in the world over most land masses. Tornadoes occasionally occur over water, forming waterspouts.

Weather experts aren't really sure how tornadoes are formed but they know the kind of storm systems in which they develop. Their destructive winds move in a counterclockwise direction at speeds from 100 to 250 miles per hour. Experts for the Institute for Disaster Research at Texas

Tech have debunked several myths about tornadoes since they began visiting strike zones in 1970 to gather storm-relat-

The institute's latest addition to tornado research is called "The Tornado: An Engineering-Oriented Perspective" and was designed to help both the meteorologist and the engineer understand the devastating forces behind tornadic

The 189-page report, authored by Drs. Joseph E. Minor. James R. McDonald and Kishor C. Mehta and published by the National Severe Storms Laboratory in Norman, Okla. presents some controversial ideas and is well documented by field observers who gained first hand knowledge of tornado strikes by visiting about 30 places nationwide since 1970.

Its main purpose is to aid building designers in constructing wind resistant structures. The idea was spawned by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission when nuclear power plants began popping up all over the country.

one of the report's major contradictions to popularly held beliefs strikes down the advice to leave windows open when a tornado strike is imminent. The authors could not find any on-site documentation to prove that assumption. In fact, they hint that instead of worrying whether your windows are open, you should get to a place of safety.

"Observations suggest that an open window can help by relieving pressure on the roof," the report states: "Most often, however, the direction of the attacking wind will be un-

The report further states that differences in atmosp pressure while a tornado is approaching and when it actually hits is not significant enough to indicate that the change in pressure is solely responsible for the damage.

"Tornadoes do cause buildings to 'explode." He cause of the walls and roof moving outward a seems to be wind-related, rather than induced by

The report also says that severe winds act on a structure before "the largest portion of the atmospheric pressure change can become effective."

Since the report was released, the National Weather Service Disaster Preparedness staff has deleted all reference to opening windows during a tornado strike.

Another myth dispelled by the institute is that the low central pressure of a tornado sucks water from ponds and swimming pools.

ming pools.

"The vortex (or center) is hardly small enough, nor the pressure low enough, to effect significant water removal through a 'sucking process."

The authors found that reported incidents where swimming pools have been sucked dry by a passing tornado were untrue. Researchers found that one incident in Omaha. Neb., was not the result of a tornado but rather from the Fire tragedy, traffic death hit Lubbock

F ire officials this week were trying to unravel the mystery surrounding the decided by ing the deaths Sunday of three city firemen, the first to die in the line of duty since 1957.

The bodies of Larry Tucker, 25, Kenneth Haggard, 34, and Eddie Swafford, 30, were found in a back dining area of a 34th Street restaurant by fellow firefighters early Sunday, just minutes after the firemen began regular ventilation procedures to clear smoke from the burned building

THE UNCONSCIOUS firemen, still wearing their protective air packs, were rushed to separate hospitals, but all were pronounced dead with a few hours.

Tucker, Haggard, Swafford and other firefighters from stations three at 30th Street and Texas Avenue and the central station, Sixth Street and Avenue L. had arrived at Moris Kitchen and Ice Cream Parlor, 711 34th St., just moments after the blaze was reported at 4:30 a.m. Sun-which apparently began in the kitchen area, was under control, and the men were given the order to ventilate the structure at 6:40 a.m.

Ten minutes later, the three victims were found sprawled within six feet of each other in the back room of the struc-

THE MEN apparently were overcome by toxic fumes that were produced by some burning material inside the building, but officials are awaiting test results to determine exactly the gas may be.

Authorities also are mystified as to how the fumes penetrated the men's protective oxygen masks. The filters in the air regulator of the masks worn by the dead men were found to have small holes in them, leading investigators to believe deadly fumes were able to seep through the safety devices.

Several officials have speculated that toxic gases emitted during the blaze eroded the filters and killed the men.

However, it was discovered Monday that several of the fire department's masks not used in fighting the blaze also had holes in their diaphragms, leading to speculation that the masks the dead men were wearing may have been malfunc-

SEPARATE services for the three men, who had served a total of 141/2 years with the department, were held Tuesday. Area firemen manned Lubbock fire stations so that the trio's colleagues could attend the services.

In other activity this week, the city recorded only its second traffic fatality of the year Saturday when a 19-year-old South Dakota man who had been hospitalized since Feb. 25 died.

Jeffrey Allen Knight of Cherry Creek. S.D. was pronounced dead at 8 a.m. at Methodist Hospital by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

Knight suffered fatal head injuries about 3 a.m. Feb. 25 in the 4300-block of South Loop 289 when his car went out of control, rolled over four times and hit a

HE WAS thrown 18 feet from the vehicle after the car hit the culvert, and the vehicle then rolled over four more times, according to police.

The city's only other traffic fatality of the year was recorded Jan. 10 when a 60-year-old truck driver died after he swerved his rig to miss an oncoming car and his empty cattle truck was struck by a Sante Fe Railway train in the 8200block of Southeast Drive.

The victim, Harold Lee Fulhart of Abilene, suffered fatal head injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene.

No fatalities were reported in February, which was the city's first traffic fatality-free month since December 1976.

or the week's survey, we interviewed 30 security analysts who follow the photographic industry. They are with such well-known firms as Manufacturer's National Bank, Lehman Brothers, Mercantile Trust, Putnam Management Company and Marine Midland Bank. Each security analyst was asked how high and how low he thought each stock would go in the next six months.

Top five stocks Analysts forecast that the stock of the GAF Corporation could rise by an average of 32 percent in the next six months. PCA International was forecast to rise by 28 percent and Fotomat Corporation by 27 percent. Polaroid Corporation was expected to rise by 25 percent and Berkey Photo, Inc., by 23 percent.

When asked how low these photography stocks might go in the next six months, analysts forecast Berkey Photo, Inc., could go down by 25 percent and PCA International by 24 percent. Analysts forecast a drop of 21 percent for Fotomat Corporation a drop of 17 percent for GAF Corporation and a drop of 15 percent for Polariod Corporation. This means that analysts believe that Polaroid Corporation had a good chance for growth and was expected to be more stable with lower downside risk. Analysts were optimistic about the Polaroid Corporation because of the rapid growth of the instant photography field among amateur photographers which accounts for the progress and the growing demand for photographic and reprographic products. PCA International, one of the world's largest portrait photographers, with operations throughout the U.S., Canada, Western Europe and Japan was liked beisillusionment and disorientation - not freedom and opportunity - often are what face the service veteran when he returns to civilian life.

Outreach program gives veterans starting place

The years he spends in devotion to the service of his country might have formed the only way of life he has ever known. Or he might have spent enough time in the military to loose touch with "the outside.

The civilian world, when he reenters it, can be an alien. uncaring place. full of unfamiliar responsibilities

THE DISABLED VETERAN has an especially difficult time readjusting to civilian life. Not only does his military status somehow make him suspect to prospective employers, he is even less an attractive job candidate because of his physical limitations.

Employers often consider veterans as they would political assassins," says Tony Ehrmantraut of Veterans Outreach in Lubbock. "But we're human, and we need orienta-

That orientation, he explained, is something people who aren't familiar with military life tend to take for granted.

"In the service, a man gets three meals a day, all the medical attention he needs and a roof over his head if he's single." Ehrmantraut said.

The serviceman also is trained to do a job for which there may be no call outside the military. "Who needs a tank driver?" he asked.

NOR IS THE PROBLEM of unemployment and disorientation confined to men in the military. Ehrmantraut said, 'it affects women just as much.

Medical, educational and financial benefits available to veterans through the Veterans' Administration often are not exactly what the returning serviceman or woman needs to get back into the swing of things, either. Self confidence, that precious intangible - and a job - are what many veterans need most, Ehrmantraut, who is himself a 13-year disabled Army veteran, explained.

Under the heading of "whatever else the veteran may need to get started," is what Veterans Outreach Program

THE STATE-FUNDED OFFICE, manned by Ehrmantraut and Leo Qirino, a disabled Marine veteran, is one of 11 throughout Texas.

Most importantly, the office maintains relations with employers. Ehrmantraut said, so they are able to provide jobs for unemployed or underemployed veterans.

Clothes for a job interview and even a ride to the interview, if needed, are also within VOP's realm to supply.

"Anything we can supply to a veteran in need, we will," Ehrmantraut commented. "We don't turn anybody away." In some cases he described VOP's relationship to veterans as "close, like a family." Ehrmantraut will not hesitate, he said, to go into a veteran's home if he thinks a visit will help in any way.

Sometimes he goes to "try to create motivation," and sometimes to fill more basic needs like making sure there is enough food in the house.

OFTEN HIS TRIPS ARE nonreimbursable, but Ehrman traut says he frequently goes beyond the line of duty in his

He served 13 years and was disabled in the Army, he explained in a low voice, and after his discharge he and his wife divorced. He came to Lubbock needing help, and way he could.

Ehrmantraut says VOP is able to get most veterans what they need within two weeks, sometimes as quickly as the same day they come in. "We very rarely see repeats," he

HE AND QIRINO MAKE follow-up calls or visits during the next six months, to make sure everything is going Ehrmantraut's only complaint is he feels not enough veterans in need know about VOP's services. "I would venture to say there are 3,000 veterans in the Lubbock area who could use come help," he said. And in his quietly impassioned way, Tony Ehrmantraut made it clear there is nothing he'd rather do than get ahold

Rodeo's chills, spills filling the coliseum

By Gerry Burton Update Staff Writer

hills and spills of topnotch rodeo continue today as the 37th annual ABC Rodeo rolls into the third round of competition that began Wednesday and will last through Saturday in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Keeping the rafters rocking with his crowd-pleasing "Tribute to Elvis" will be Rick Presley, filling the coliseum with the sound of some Presley greats.

Saturday, champions will be named and top riders and ropers will take home their share of more than $15,000 in prize

All the traditional events - bull riding, saddle bronc and bareback bronc riding, calf roping, team roping, steer wrestling and barrel racing - are on tap for the annual event which benefits the capital development fund of the Lubbock Boys Clubs.

Beards will meet the judges prior to rodeo time again tonight with winners from the first three nights to return Saturday for the championship trophies in neatest beard, best mustache and "anything goes" categories and a top champion award. Cowboys will go one more round with the tough rodeo stock of Jiggs Beutler of Elk City, Okla., with the final round slated Saturday. Cowgirls will be doing their best to shave a little from times set rounding the cloverleaf in the barrel race.

Getting the highest score and the lowest time is the name of the game each year as a record 332 of the nation's topranking rodeo cowboys come to Lubbock for the ABC event which is sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cow boy Association.

Topping off the evening today and Saturday will be the wildest event of the night, pitting a cowboy's riding skill against the bucking bull's ton of determination to scrape him off and then stomp on him if possible. But, between the hooves and horns of the bulls comes the rodeo clown, making saving a cowboy from harm look like one big game

It's rodeo at its best unwinding for the last half of the 37th round. Tickets are available at western wear stores, rodeo headquarters on the South Plains Mall parking lot and at the door.

Iran — cure worse than illness

THE WORLD HAS been given an object lesson in Iran in what often happens in today's revolutionary world.

In the zealous effort to overthrow the existing regime or "establishment," a vacuum is left which invites all sorts of aberrations and injustices sometimes as bad or worse than those which have been replaced.

This has been the classic case in Teheran and throughout the Persian kingdom still seeking to find its way. It may be months, or even years, before that point in time arrives, if current events are any indication.

ALTHOUGH SOME semblance of order has been restored in the Iranian capital itself, conditions bordering on anarchy still rule portions of the countryside.

As is the case in much of the Mideast and Africa, tribal pressures and demands are taking precedent over national goals and

In the western part of the nation, Kurdish tribesmen have openly rebelled against Anatollah Khomeini's regime, demanding a greater voice in the writing of any new constitution and seeking much more autonomy than they have had.

The result was days of bloodshed in and around the city of Sanandah, Iran. An armed truce of sorts now exists, with the independent Kurds taking a wait and see attitude.

IN OTHER parts of the nation, other tribal units are seeking a greater voice.

The fear, expressed by an observer of the situation, is that "gradually the nation will tear itself apart with the various tribal and religious groups each seeking to run its own

In this respect, the Western world is watching warily any moves by those living along the northern borders adjacent to Russia and nearby Afghanistan. Thus far, no overt moves have been made by either nation, but this is no assurance that at the right moment, such a move could be made.

In Teheran itself, Khomeini's grip on things has been challenged. The 78-year-old Islamic religious fanatic has been heavily criticized for the wave of terror and kangaroo courts and executions which marked the first weeks of his "new order."

THUS FAR, MORE than 60 persons, from generals to two former Iranian government news executives have been put to death by Khomeini's firing squads.

Khomeini's prime minister, Premier Mehdi Bazargan, has repeatedly threatened to resign if Khomeini did not halt the summary executions and quit interfering openly in the day to day efforts to restore order.

Despite promises from Khomeini at his headquarters in Qum, he continues to undermine the central government by issuing his own edicts or criticizing his hand-picked leaders as being "weak" and not following his program for setting up an "Islamic

ON ANOTHER, and more volatile front. Khomeini may have bought more than he

We refer to the protest by thousands of Iranian women against a "return to the 18th Century.

As Khomeini tightened his grip on the nation, he sought to do away as much as possible any vestiges of Western dress and habits among Iran's women, particularly among those who have taken up jobs outside the

He also sought, subtly and otherwise, to reinstate the complete, unchallenged authority of the male in Iranian life. American woman activist Kate Millet showed up to lead the protest movement and was promptly put under house arrest and deported.

The truth is that the Iranian people have gained little if anything under a new type of dictatorship. They have wrecked the country's economy, watched as various tribal units went their own way, been party to a blood bath without rhyme or reason and "bought" a fanatic as a leader whose mouthings often more or are of hate than love. This is progress?

Pamphlet may help smokers 'clear the air

Human beings tend to be habitual, which is not a bad thing. The more restrained in personality cherish all daily routines that give order to the sunrise, and a sizable chunk of mankind regularly plunges into a favored form of entert exercise or relaxation following the working day. Even the "freedom" lovers, those worshippers of spontaneity and nonconformity, are identified by their small rituals and idiosyn-

Most habits are harmless, lending shape to our personalities; some are troublesome and quite embarrassing the chronic snacker or nailbiter, for instance. But among the few that are expensive and harmful, cigarette smoking comes most readily to mind.

According to American Cancer Society statistics, there were in 1978 about 53 million smokers 12 years of age and older in the United States, who consumed ately 620 billion cigarettes. In 1974, American smokers spent about $13.3 billion on the habit.

Additional statistics provided by the American Lung Association show the average age for that "first puff" to be 11 years, with an estimated 100,000 smokers under 13 years, according to a January 1979 report signed by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano.

Mike Hill, a program director with the American Cancer Society in Lubbock, also emphasizes the need for smokers to identify the source of their habit. He says people smoke for very different reasons, including relaxation, stimulation, 'as a crutch" and for something to fondle. The source of the smoking must be identified and a replacement provided, he says, to ensure that the person is able to break the habit.

The HEW pamphlet advises the former smoker, shortly after the quitting date, to commemorate the occasion by buying something nice (as a remembrance of the decision to stop smoking and the money that otherwise would have been spent on cigarettes) and by visiting the dentist for a teeth cleaning.

Kerr Construction has 130 days in which to complete the project.

PASSING AND being passed in traffic are both potentially dangerous because they can result in head-on collisions, si-deswipes of run-off-the-road accidents.

You should be alert to all passing situations. For example, a car can overtake and pass you on a straight road, or one can pass you as you are pulling out of a parking space.

A vehicle can pass you as you move out to pass another car, or they can pass you on the right. If another driver wants to pass you, help him.

Check oncoming traffic and slow down if the other driver will need more room to get back in the lane ahead of you.

Any time you change lanes, check your side and rearview mirrors and glance back to make sure your blind spot is Get into the correct lane for a turn

By William D. Kerns

Theater is the big entertainment news this week. Tonight marks opening night for Sam Shepard's "Curse Of The Starving Class" at the Lab Theater on the Texas Tech University campus. "Absurd Person Singular" is the new attraction at the Country Squire Dinner Theater. And next week will see Lubbock Christian College open "The Star Spangled Girl" and Tech's University Theater premiere an original musical called "Pancho!"

(which, by the way, has been recommended for mature audiences). Those who like responsible movies have quite a wealth to choose from in the city. "The Deer Hunter" is without a doubt the most awesome, a powerful gut-twisting movie which is bound to be remembered and debated for years to come. "The China Syndrome" is a film which can be appreciated and debated on a topical basis, and also succeeds as a flat-out old fashioned thriller, to boot. And in one heck of a dandy double feature, the South Plains Cinema plans to sneak "Norma Rae." sure to win Sally Field an Oscar bid next year, tonight with the flawed, but moody "Agatha."

The Fox Theater plans to show special midnight shows every weekend this year, and is starting the ball rolling with an offering of the cult classic "Night Of The Living Dead" tonight and Saturday. And if you'll note the paragraph called Coming Attractions, you'll see a new movie theater listed. The Mann Fourplex has announced it will open its doors on June 29, and has already booked its opening four films.

As for music, the Red Raider Nightclub is asking a $7 cover charge to hear country singer Joe Stampley tonight, and the Greenhouse plans to celebrate its grand opening with music from guitarist Larry Hammett. Keep in mind that Jethro Tull tickets should go on sale next week.

Once again, if anyone is not yet included in the Take Your Pick listings and would like to be, that person or organization should call 762-8844 or write Update. Box 491 Lubbock, Tex. 79408. We both need and appreciate your support and your cooperation in meeting our deadlines

on screen

Backstage I - "Midnight Express." No matter how many Academy Award nominations this powerful and gripping motion picture has earned, it remains a travesty that the performance of star Brad Davis was ignored. The film is one of five current candidates for Best Picture Of The Year honors. Davis plays Billy Hayes, a young American who foolishly tries to smuggle hashish out of Turkey, gets caught and sentenced to a punishment much too severe to even come close to fitting the crime. "Midnight Express" is a film which gets beneath the viewer's skin. It is horrifyingly powerful. And it should not be missed by anyone with a strong heart.

Bockstoge II - "Naughty Freshmen." X-rated material.

Cinematheque - Each Wednesday evening, the Cinematheque Film Society presents classic films on the Texas Tech University campus. Tickets may be purchased by both Tech students and the general public. This week's offering is Otto Preminger's 1944 mystery titled "Laura." It will be screened at 8 p.m. at the Tech University Center's Coronado Room, with the admission price set at $1

Cinema West - "Hair." The hit off-Broadway musical of the mid-'60s is now a musical film. and it's been earning quite a few sparkling reviews. Direction is by Milos Forman, who last gave us "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest." Not screened at press

Fine Arts Drive-In - "Reflections" and "Fantasy In Blue." X-rated material

Fox I - "Every Which Way But Loose." Now in its fourth profitable month in Lubbook, it doesn't appear this garbage will ever leave town. Clint Eastwood stars with an orangutan named Clyde, but only Clyde has any excuse for making this nauseating piece of trash After all, he (it?) couldn't read the script. Laced with country music, this picture is an insult to liberals, conservatives, rednecks, music lovers, animal lovers and anybody who prefers movies offering entertainment. But don't ever make the mistake of thinking a critic makes or breaks a movie. since "Every Which Way But Loose" has already earned a lot more money than any other Clint Eastwood movie released to date.

Fox II - "The Passage." This is a new action film about a sadistic Nazi officer pursuing a scientist and his family across the Pyrenees mountain range. The all-star cast includes James Mason. Anthony Quinn, Malcolm McDowell, Patricia Neal and Christopher Lee. Not screened at press time

Fox III - "The Warriors" and "Hardcore." Both features can now be seen for the same admission price. "The Warriors" is a fine gang movie which takes a simple chase motif and transforms it into sheer cinema action. Though controversial (the film has been accused of instigating violence, though nothing has been proven), the picture is never boring. It deserves its R rating (mostly for language) but, ironically, never makes use of gratuitous violence. A rough movie, it is well directed by Walter Hill and extremely entertaining.

In "Hardcore." George C. Scott gives a rugged, powerful performance as a Midwestern businessman who seeks his runaway 16-year-old daughter amidst the seedy, sick porn parlors of southern California. But though the movie may match the intensity at times, it does not match the consistency of director Paul Schrader's previous effort. 'Blue Collar," His "Hardcore" is a tough story with an unacceptable soft ending, a conclusion which just doesn't live up to any semblance of reality. All in all, it remains a movie worth seeing, a movie with an impact - but a movie with definite script prob-

Fox IV - "The China Syndrome." Starring Jack Lemmon. Jane Fonda and Michael Douglas (and certain to win the former two Academy Award nominations next year), this film manages to be both exciting and topical. It is, also, without a doubt, the most important film yet released in 1979. The plot concerns itself with an accident at a nuclear power plant, but even those who don't care for the political implications will be kept on the edge of their seats by the thriller's tension. The entire cast is superb, but Jack Lemmon stands out more than any other as the power plant employee who must come to grips with his own conscience. Though the filmmakers insist it was not intentional, there is also a highway murder scene which brings to mind the Karen Silkwood case.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front and Back Screens - Closed for extensive re-

Home Box Office - This pay television station offers movies and specials not presently on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening, and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see HBO premiere a special on ventriloquists called "Double Talk" and follow it with a horrible cop movie called "The Choirboys." On Saturday, George Kennedy plays a cruel prison overseer in the action film "Mean Dog Blues" William Devane's entertaining sequel called "The Bad News Bears In Breaking Training" will air Sunday.

And if you'd like something to look forward to in April: HBO will premiere "The Goodbye Girl." the Neil Simon cornedy hit which earned Richard Dreyfuss an Academy Award, and Paul Schrader's "Blue Collar." The latter was my personal pick for Best Film of 1978. Clint Eastwood's original uncut "Dirty Harry" also will be on HBO next Showplace I - "Buck Rogers." Inspired by the amazing success of "Star Wars." this is a new feature-length production about the legendary comic book hero Buck Rogers. The special effects promise to be a hearty selling point. Not screened at press time.

Showplace II - "Heaven Can Wait." Though it's a shame Charles Grodin could not nominations. Lubbock no doubt approved, as city movie-goers picked "Heaven Can Wait" in an Avalanche-Journal poll as their choice for Best Picture of 1978. Warren Beatty is splendid as the football player called to his Maker too soon, and Dyan Cannon, Grodin and Jack Warden are all fine and funny in supporting roles. One of the most

Showplace III - "Boulevard Nights" Hardly a gang movie, this film takes a look at the Chicano sub-culture in east Los Angeles and comes away with both a statement of pride and an honest love story. Danny De La Paz makes a stunning debut as the younger brother who seeks to express his manhood through macho camaraderie. The scene in which the low-riders are bumper-to-bumper on the weekend boulevard is also memora-

Showplace IV - "Superman." The longer this film stays on the market, the more it becomes apparent that it will not stand the test of time. More and more regular filmgoers are expressing their disappointment in the lack of cohesion and lackluster special effects. Christopher Reeve's performance in the title role was the only aspect of the film which pleased me. but rest assured there have been a few folks writing and calling in to express their admiration for the film. It is a movie which hasn't completely alienated the critics or completely captured the public. So don't believe your friends - you'll just have to see it for yourself and form your own opinion

Showplace V — "The Silent Partner." Though you may question your own taste a bit later, this film is going to entertain you. The language is raw, the nudity gratuitous and the violence borders on the sickening (at least in one memorably cutting scene), but we end up involved and rooting for bank teller Elliott Gould to foil sadistic crook Christopher Plummer and get away with his clever robbery. One occasionally wonders why we're asked to root for crooks so much lately, especially after "The Great Train Robbery" and "The Brink's Job," but it still does not diminish the entertainment value

Showplace VI - "The North Avenue Irregulars." For the most part, this picture offers little more than formula Disney gags and a predictable script. But it's worth seeing just for the wonderful performances offered by Barbara Harris, one of film's best and most underrated comediennes, and Cloris Leachman. The slapstick and car crashes should be enough to keep the kiddos entertained, and the wit of Miss Harris and Miss Leachman makes sure the adults don't doze off completely, too.

South Mains Cinema I, Mall — "The Deer Hunter." One of the most devestating films ever put on the screen. "The Deer Hunter" is bound to leave every single viewer weak-kneed and slack-lawed as he leaves the theater. The picture deals with the friendship of three men (Robert DeNiro, Christopher Walken and John Savage) in a small steel-working town in Pennsylvania, and the effect Viet Nam has on each of these individuals. Michael Cimino's direction is superb. and the film has indeed earned its nine Oscar nominations. There is no doubt in my mind that Walken, playing the disturbed Nick, will win an Academy Award for his supporting performance. Three hours long, "The Deer Hunter" is a flawed, but totally unforgettable, gem. The Russian roulette scenes alone will leave a lingering feeling of depression and heartache for many nights

South Plains Cinema II, Mall - "Fast Break." Gabe Kaplan is hired by Cadwallader College to coach its basketball team, and then brings in New York street blacks to ensure a winning season. Kaplan is a good comic with a fine sense of timing, so his screen debut has potential. Not screened at press time.

South Plains Cinema III, Mall - "Agatha" Though it is true that, as one critic put it. Dustin Hoffman "will never be Mr. Suave." the acting remains universally fine in this moody film. Unfortunately, the storyline occasionally falters (especially around the midway point). But no matter. The tale of what may or may not have happened (it's sheer conjecture) during mystery writer Agatha Christie's 11-day disappearance keeps our attention. The photography and art direction are both splendid. Vanessa Redgrave is emchanting as Agatha: Dustin Hoffman is. I feel, more than adequate as the American ionrnalist who tracks her down, learns her secret and faces a decision of his own

South Plains Cinema IV, Mall .- "Same Time. Next Year." Ellen Burstyn and Alan Alda star in the film adaptation of a hit stageplay which concerned itself with two people, married but not to each other, who meet once a year for a love affair. The film follows their changes each year. Miss Burstyn has been nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in this film. Not screened at press time

Vallage - "The Cat From Outer Space." Now on its umpteenth run in the city, this 1978 Disney release is humorous enough to entertain both the adults and the kiddos. Despite Sandy Duncan's usual horrid acting. Ken Berry is fine as the human a feline astronaut asks for help, and McLean Stevenson supplies most of the laughs in a support-

Winchester - "Bedknobs And Broomsticks." Though many Disney fans insist this picture never gained the audience it deserved. I'd be inclined to wager a guess that it's because of its resemblance to "Mary Poppins." Angela Lansbury stars in this re-release. but neither her acting nor the jump-cutting from live action to animation can help the film achieve more than copycat status.

Sneok Previews - The South Plains Cinema will offer a sneak preview of "Norma Rae." an important and entertaining new film boasting superlative performances from both Sally Field and Ron Leibman, tonight. Patrons can pay to see "Agatha" and stay Midnight Shows - The Fox Fourplex will offer a special midnight showing of Night Of The Living Dead" tonight and Saturday. Showplace will offer Friday and Saturday late showings of "Up In Smoke." "Heaven Can Wait." "The Silent Partner." "Bouleward Nights" and "Buck Rogers." Check today's A-J movie listings for exact

April 23-24, Pops Nite - The Lubbock Symphony Orchestra will hold its annual Pops Nite at 8:15 p.m. in the Civic Center theater. The guest star is pop vocalist John Gary. Call the symphony office for ticket information.

April 26, Jethro Tull - One of the hottest bands in the rock industry for the past decade. Jethro Tull has been booked for its first date in Lubbock. The show will be at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock Coliseum and, though British band U.K. is opening Tull's shows in other Texas cities. Stone City promoters indicate the Lubbock date will most likely be billed as "An Evening With Jethro Tull." (That is. Tull will be the only band playing.) All seats will be sold on a reserved basis, and ticket sales should begin in early April.

April 27-29, Lubbock Arts Festival - The first annual Lubbock Arts Festival, of fering everything from dance and theater to international foods and art demonstrations and even symphonic music and street dances, will take place over a three-day weekend at the Civic Center. A total community effort, this festival could no doubt quickly grow to the point of being an annual tourist attraction.

May 4, Bad Company — This popular rock band drew a large gathering the last time it played the Lubbock Coliseum (on the "Burning Sky" tour). No one is expecting anything different this time around. Ticket information is not available as yet.

May 15, "The Sound Of Music" - Certainly an ambitious undertaking for theater-in-the-round, this ever popular musical will open at the Country Squire Dinner Theater. Paul Prece is directing. Martin McDonald has been cast as Captain Von Trapp and Leslie Thurman will pl: / Maria. Tickets each night will be $1 higher than the normal Bowling is big!

Kids Take to the Alleys

Many people are bowled over when they find out that bowling is such a big sport.

In fact, it is the most popular yearround indoor sport in the U.S.A.

Sixty-four million Americans bowl. One million of that number are kids under 17 years old.

Kids like bowling because their size doesn't matter. Girls like it because they can score as well as boys.

Bowlers don't have to wear uniforms that cost a lot of money. Most of them do wear shoes with special soles. The sole of one shoe is made to grip the floor. The sole of the other is made to help players slide.

All tenpin bowling balls are the same size, 27 inches around. They can weigh up to 16 pounds. Kids usually bowl with lighter-weight balls.

Kids often bowl on teams made up of four or five players. They take part in organized bowling leagues put on by the American Junior Bowling Congress. This is the group that sets up bowling rules.

There are three age groups for kids: Peewee Bantam, for bowlers 8 and under; Bantam, for kids 9 to 11; and Junior, for youngsters 12 to 14.

There are 8,500 bowling centers across the country. Many are not just for bowling. Some have other entertainment and restaurants.

Younger bowlers who play on organized teams can earn trophies and patches for many awards. Patches are given when bowlers bowl a certain score. They are also given as awards for things like perfect attendance.

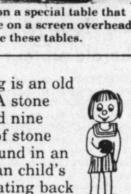

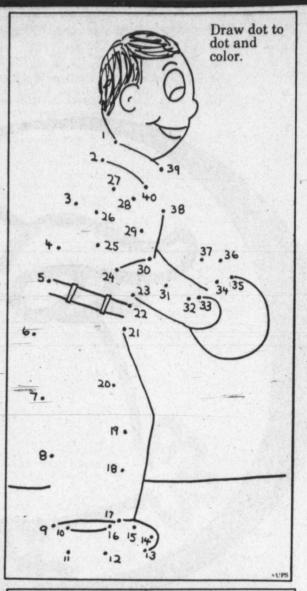

Kids keep score on a special table that projects the score on a screen overhead. Most centers have these tables.

A ranking of America's top five active sports: 1. swimming

The object of tenpin bowling is to knock down all 10 pins with one ball. This is called a strike. The perfect strike hits only four balls: 1, 3, 5 and 9. The others topple over. (There are other bowling games such as duckpins and fivepins.)

Bowling is an old game. A stone ball and nine pieces of stone were found in an Egyptian child's tomb dating back to 5200 B.C.

Crisis of conscience vs. job security sparks angry exchange Scene shows reporter Jane Fonda, news cameraman Douglas

By William D. Kerns

DALLAS — Talk about good instincts. After several years of low-budget films and four seasons of sporting a badge and playing second fiddle to Karl Malden on television's popular "The Streets Of San Francisco," Michael Douglas, the 34-year-old son of the man with the legendary dimple, decided to try his hand at producing. He bought the film rights to Ken Kesey's "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest" from his father, actor Kirk Douglas, who had held the rights for almost 10 years and been unable to get the picture made. The younger Douglas, however, fought for the project with a youthful passion. The result? "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest," the first film Douglas produced, won five major Academy Awards and earned over $80

So naturally, every film studio in town was begging Douglas to choose it for his next project, right? Wrong.

That second project was a script from a relatively unknown writer named Mike Gray called "The China Syndrome" and, during a personal interview in a Fairmont Hotel meeting room, Douglas recently revealed, "We had an even harder time getting this picture made for a number of reasons. First, the production people weren't interested in making it. I had to go to 10 or 12 different sources for financing before I found it with Columbia Pictures. And I was really shocked. I thought that, you know, since I'd just won an Academy Award, it would be a cart blanche situation. But instead, it started taking on similarities to 'Cuckoo's Nest.'

'Back then, people said, 'Who wants to see a movie about a mental hospital?' Only now I was hearing. 'Who wants to see a movie about a nuclear power plant? Who's going to sit still for all that technical language?' And I thought, Jesus, what does a guy have to do to prove himself?"

INDEED, IT. TOOK three years to make "The China Syndrome" and, during that period. Douglas saw the film change and grow, become re-shaped and refined, gain poignancy and suspense. Documentary filmmaker Mike Gray wrote the original script, and he also hoped to direct his story about a documentary film crew which witnesses an accident at a nuclear power plant. At the time, Richard Dreyfuss was

Room and board in Texas Tech's first two residence halls (which later became Doak and West halls) was initially set at

to play the feisty cameraman, a part turned down by Robert Redford and Jack Nicholson, and Jack Lemmon was to be the power plant employee who comes to grips with his own conscience.

But only Lemmon stuck around. Dreyfuss dropped out, reportedly by doubling his salary demands, and Douglas brought in T.S. Cook for script revisions. Then, when she lost the film rights to a film about Karen Silkwood, Jane Fonda became interested in "The China Syndrome." There was no part for her then, a problem which was quickly alleviated when Douglas brought in James Bridges to re-write the script again. The documentary camera crew was replaced by a TV news team, headed by a female on-air personality. Bridges was then signed to direct, Douglas decided to take the much smaller cameraman's role, Lemmon and Fonda satisfied the studio's desire for marquee names and - voila! - the movie was at last being moved into the filming stage. But more roadblocks cropped up in post-production. Asked if the film's title hadn't been changed from "Power," Douglas said, "Oh man, you wouldn't believe the problems we had with the title. The original title was 'The China Syndrome Then it was changed to 'Eyewitness.' Then it was changed to 'Power.' Then we had five months where the studio couldn't decide and just kept having tests made. It was driving me crazy because no one was talking about the picture, just about the damn title. And finally it got to the point where Jane and Jack and I all said the title had to be 'The China Syndrome' or we wouldn't support the picture

"The studio was worried about crazy things: they figured the public would associate the word 'China' with Jane Fonda's politics. I think they tend to underestimate the intelligence of the American public. But it was finally Jack Lemmon who put it all in perspective when he said, 'I've never known a good picture with a bad title.' He's right. If the picture is good, the title sounds right. If it's bad, then people start talking about the title, like they did with 'Who'll Stop The Rain.'

DOUGLAS ALSO HAD to worry about wearing two hats during the filming. He explained that as an actor, a thespian can be "self-efficient," but added, "When I'm also producing, my eyes have to be all over the place. I'm worried about money and being behind schedule. In this particular picture, though, I tried to use that anxiety. That's why I came off sort of like a quasi-maniac. I figured I had so much nervous energy that I should use it in my part; I would chain smoke and yell and scream and

But the question remained: Why produce? Douglas had studied acting at University of California at Santa Barbara, and appeared in a half dozen off-Broadway plays following his graduation. So what satisfaction does producing offer?

"That's a good question," Douglas replied with a frown, "one I'm not sure I can answer. I really don't know what satisfaction I get out of it. I only got involved because I had this great piece of material in 'Cuckoo's Nest.' I just wanted to see that picture made, and nobody else wanted to make a movie out of it. Then when I won the Oscar, people called me a producer and I sort of started living up to the image and opened an office. It would be silly to ignore it. And then a lot of people started sending scripts in, but I always found mysef drawn back to 'The China Syndrome.' I

"I tend to find only one project at a time and spend all my energies making it. I'm basically an actor. But when I find a script that moves me — a story that either scares me or makes me laugh or cry — I want to make it."

So it was the story, rather than the controversial political implications, which drew him to this new film?

"Sure," he answered. "I like pictures about heroes. I like pictures about average people trying to make choices. Not Superman or The Fastest Gun In The West. Just average people with average jobs. Or no job at all, like McMurphy in 'Cuckoo's Nest.' I like people to identify with my characters. Because of how much money movies cost these days, I want most of all to entertain people. And if there's social

STILL, IT SEEMED THAT Douglas and Bridges were attempting to grab a political bull by the horns when they filmed a highway murder scene so reminiscent of the current controversy surrounding Karen Silkwood, the young plutonium plant employee who was killed in an autombile "accident" while on her way to turn over documents to the New York Times which would reveal her plant to be unsafe. But the producer shrugged off the association with, "That was all my fault. In the script, we just wanted to bump Hector off the road. And I was just trying to think of something I hadn't already seen done on 'Streets Of San Francisco' and 'Smokey And The Bandit.' I just wanted a good car stunt that I hadn't seen before.'

Director-writer James Bridges confers with Deuglas
'The China Syndrome' filled with tension-packed drama

Asked what effect he hoped the film would have, Douglas again dodged the anti-nuke issue and said, "Like a lot of films, I want it to work on different levels. I hope it's a good movie, a good thriller. I hope the last 30 to 45 minutes of the picture will keep the audience on the edges of their seats wondering what the hell is going to happen. Then I hope they'll go home and start thinking about who was right and who was wrong. I hope questions will be provoked, similar to 'Cuckoo's Nest.' You know, a lot of people still think Big Nurse was doing her job and McMurphy was just a troublemaker.

'Controversy and debate are always healthy. But the most important thing is that this movie work as a thriller. Otherwise, nobody cares.'

Douglas, who states very firmly he has no intention of ever returning to the television medium, just finished a film called "Running," a love story in which he plays an Olympic marathon runner taking his last shot at glory. During filming, he was running 80 miles a week for training. "Sixteen miles a day," he said. He was the executive producer for "Running" and is currently considering producing the film version of Dan Jenkins' "Limo."

ASKED IF HE'LL EVER work with his famous father, he smiled and indicated there is a distinct possibility. "He and I would definitely like to do something together," he said. "We just don't want to do father and son roles. We're looking for something more interesting Odds are they'll find it, too. Because even more important than talent is the fact Michael Douglas has good instincts. He has the ability to recognize potential in a raw script. Then, he says, the key is to go to every length necessary to ensure realism. You want a nuclear power plant control room? Get the blueprints and a few technical advisors. You want realistic characters? Get the best actors possible, not necessarily the most famous. That's how he made "The China Syndrome," and that's why the picture works so well.

Spring is here! With that in mind, Update asked its readers, "Do you think Spring gardens will do well this year, and do you have any predictions for the crop year?

Mrs. Glynn Jackson emphasized, "I'm not a farmer - my husband and I raise horses and have a stable."

But Glynn Jackson commented, "We plan to have a garden - expect to have a 'great' one.

Mrs. Lois Scharnberg knows about gardening and crops — she's been working for the same company for 2l years and selling garden seed to West Texans for 51 years! She said, "I predict a very good year. Everyone seems to be planning to plant a garden, and the farmers are expecting to have a good crop year."

Dan Young, owner of a local plant and seed company, said he'd had "a bunch of people coming in to buy seed" but sells a lot of seed all year around. He added, "I expect a good gardening and crop year, particularly because of the Spring rains we've been having."

Manuel Sanchez, a seed company employee, said, "Yes, I think we'll have a good year - I hope so. The way people have been buying seeds the last few weeks, I think everybody else thinks so,

Buster Brown predicted a good crop year, especially in view of the fact that the South Plains have been getting some much-needed moisture. "However," he said, "we haven't gotten nearly enough rain and could use some more." Brown explained he wasn't a big farmer by any means but plans to 'try' some cotton this year, in addition to planting some veget-

So with optimism, South Plains residents obviously are getting out their gardening tools and farmers are 'gearing up' equipment to plant - all with the expectation of a good growing season to

Cook 'hooked' on growing, eating chiles

Update Staff Writer

The main goal of the local chapter is to promote growing and processing of chiles, but it also hopes to increase appreciation of the appeal of examples of southwestern cuisine — all prepared with green and red chiles.

Marshall is eminently qualified for his osition because he lives, breathes, thinks and talks about the pods almost every waking hour of any day.

In fact, with no provocation, he will launch a conversation on his favorite subject, telling how he first became in-terested in chiles, and including his experiences with chile-growing since.

While traveling through the Mesilla Valley of New Mexico, Marshall - a Texas Tech University animal science graduate — saw the fields dotted with masses of beautiful green and red chiles. "After that," he says, "I was 'hooked' on the idea of growing chiles on the South Plains. And after thinking about it some more, I felt both soil and conditions were similar to those of New Mexico and as a result I stood a good chance of successfully growing chiles on the South Plains.

Incidentally, Marshall credits Dean Gerald Thomas, formerly dean of agriculture at Texas Tech and now with New Mexico State University, for providing information and results of research concerning chile-growing.

and anticipates planting a new crop, expecting to begin in April if conditions are suitable. This year he will have plantings of several different varieties of chiles but "mostly I will plant 'New Mex Big Jim', a type that was developed by New Mexico State. The strain features 10-12 inch pods and is listed as having

Marshall plans to plant about 25-35 acres in the coming crop year, and has 10 acres of it already contracted for by

'medium pungency' but look out!" the

He emphasizes that chiles are not difficult to grow. First, he plants seeds about two inches deep, much like cotton. "Then," he explained, "I will come back in about two weeks when the sprouts begin to show and scrape off about the top

Marshall grew chiles for the first time inch of soil to give the seeds a better last year. He feels he knows more now, chance to pop up. chance to pop up

"How you water is a critical thing with chiles, he said. "The plants have to have water but not too much. If left standing in water, chiles are subject to disease.

If Marshall has a good year, he will begin harvesting the crop in late July or early August, before the "greens" turn Considering the possibility of chilegrowing becoming a new and exciting alternate crop for the South Plains, Marshall says, "It's not for everyone and isn't a get-rich thing — it doesn't work that way. For example, I can make a whole lot more from growing onions in a good year, but I could also lose a great deal more on onions in a bad year. Chiles are fairly price-stabilized, a big advantage.

"Another important advantage is,

"While the demand nationwide is not presently as heavy as for other vegetable crops, I expect increases in need as 'outsiders' are instructed in the culinary delights to be gained from preparing foods using chiles," he said.

Returning to the subject of the organization of the International Connois Marshall says the group will not have monthly meetings. In the future, the group will sponsor a traditional cook-off, planned for this summer. Marshall wants the event sanctioned for Terlingua points, so that winners would be allowed to participate there.

Marshall is anxious to break the mystique that chile has be a "bowl of red" and emphasizes additional uses of green chiles. He would like to work with area home economists to develop new recipes and said, "Chiles are not only a 'fun' vegetable to cook with but are also a nutritious food. Chile pods for example are six times richer in Vitamin C than an orange and have virtually the same amount of Vitamin A as a carrot."

One of Marshall's favorite recipes fol-

1/4 cup flour

1/4 cup lard

3 cups green

4 tbsps. salt

3-4 cups water

1/2 tsp. camino

(coarsely chopped)

CHILE VERDE

(Serves 10 persons) in their new hor 2 lbs. lean pork cut in 1/2 inch cubes The three-bed 1 cup chopped onion 2 cloves garlic (finely chopped) 2 (16 oz.) cans tomatoes

tsp. oregano (personal preference but Marshall prefers not to use). Sprinkle meat with flour and brown in hot lard with onions. Add remaining ingredients, cover and simmer for at least one hour. To vary, use one cup of raisins or one cup of chopped ripe olives and use beef in place of pork.

"In my estimation," Marshall said, when the beautiful and tantalizing fragance of a chile dish emits from a kitchen, then all is right in the world.'

The new building going up near Seventh Street and Toledo Avenue is not a green house, dental office, or curio shop featuring the early 20th century history of the area.

The brick building lined with windows on the north side, but with none on the west, and only a few on the south, is only a home - not even a solar home for the family of Charles B. and Miriam L. Jones now living at 5445 13th St.

The windows on the east side of the new home, however, do enclose a planned greenhouse connected to the nome which Mrs. Jones hopes to stock

The uniquely designed house is the end result of Mrs. Jones desire to view 'pretty yards' and her interest in Windows stretch across almost the entire back side of their new home so that the landscape may be easily viewed from a garden room off of the master bedroom, the living room, the kitchendining room, and the greenhouse.

The symmetrical, flat structure has only a few windows on the front, however, so that the family may still enjoy privacy in their new home.

The three-bedroom home is being constructed as "an energy saving house" even though it is not solar heated, said Mrs. Jones.

Contractors said the building was insulated with wood, one of the best insulating materials available, and Mrs. Jones added that the many windows, often accused as one of the biggest leaks of energy in today's structures, are doublepaned for even more insulation.

A 1977 annual report to stockholders notes that Dillard's has opened 28 new department stores in suburban shopping centers since 1964, "featuring branded goods in the middle to upper-middle price ranges and catering to a broad spectrum of the population. Special emphasis is placed upon fashion-oriented apparel and home furnishings."

Dillard's, founded in 1938 in Nashville, Ark., by William T. Dillard, is now a public stock company which is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

A NEW STORE was built in Austin in 1964, and two stores were opened in San Antonio in 1968. Those stores, opened under the Dillard name, became the Texas-New Mexico Division.

Since that time, stores have been built or acquired in the following cities: Fayetteville, Jonesboro, Little Rock and North Little Rock, Ark.; Wichita, Kan.; Baton Rouge and Shreveport, La.; Springfield, Mo.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Muskogee, Norman, Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Midwest City, Okla.; and Arlington, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, El Paso, Fort Worth, Hurst, Irving, Laredo, Longview, Lubbock, Temple, Wichita Falls, McAllen and Texarkana.

Dillard's moved its headquarters to Little Rock in 1964. Divisional headquarters still are maintained in San Antonio. Little Rock and Fort Worth.

Dillard's, which has become one of the took a decisive turn 10 years later when fastest growing chain of department Dillard sold the Nashville store and pur- stores in the Southwest, started with an chased an interest in a larger store in initial investment of $8,000. DOMESTIC buying representation is maintained in New York and Los Angeles, with foreign representation in the countries of Austria, Belgium, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, India, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Phillippines, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Taiwan and Thailand.

The firm opened its newest store recently in Abilene. Additional stores are either being built or in planning stages for each of the next several years. A partial trend now is to move into lower population areas with stores of approximately 100,000 square feet. The firm also is planning to expand into Tennesee with a store in Memphis. The Lubbock store, when it was opened in July, 1972, was the largest in the company's chain, containing 160,000 square feet of floor space. Since that time, Dillard's has opened stores in the 190,000 and 200,000-squarefoot range.

Westfall said the Lubbock store is competitive. "We like to give the customer the most for their money. While we want them to have high quality, we also want them to get a good value when they make a purchase. Westfall sums up the store's marketing philosophy as being "high quality, high fashion, at a good price - the best price we can offer.

Westfall displays merchandise upon mirrors in a rainbow effect of color and arrangement. Clothes modeled by mannequins are given a subtle "windblown" effect to suggest action and eliminate a static appearance.

Westfall, who has worked for Dillard's since high school days, is enthusiastic about the effect the store's displays have on customers.

"We try to change something every week so that a customer can see something new each time they come in," he

"There's more to merchandising these days that just hanging merchandise on a Westfall joined the company in Texarkana at age 18. Since that time he has acquired an accounting background by taking college evening courses, and has worked up through the ranks to become store manager. He spent 12 years in Tyler eventually becoming controller and credit manager for the store.

In 1968 he moved to Austin as assistant manager, later moving to San Antonio where he managed the Dillard store in Military Plaza.

In 1972, he opened the store in Lub-

THE LUBBOCK store has approximately 180 full-time and part-time employees. An active recruiting program attracts future buyers and managers.

Dillard's provides a training program, along with classroom sessions for new employees targeted for positions of reponsibility.
Following training, the employee is given an assigment in one of the compa ny's stores. Westfall expects the economy in th Lubbock area to remain strong. "We have not projected a downturn i business during the next six months. We

Red Cross sets aquatic school class, location

The Lubbock County Chapter, American Red Cross, announced confirmation for the Texas National Aquatic School being held on June 3 through 13. The location of the school will be at the Lone Star Camp, just east of Athens, Tex.

The minimum age for enrollment requires that applicants must be 17 years old prior to the school starting date. There will be no exceptions. The enrollment fee of $125 covers room and board, cost of textbooks and teaching materials, use of the equipment and the insignia earned. The enrollment fee must accompany the application. Registration forms for the school may be obtained from the Lubbock County Chapter, 1313 Avenue L. Since acceptance to the school is by approval only, applicants should submit their registration forms as soon as possible. If accepeted for attending the school, applicants must have a current physical examination and a current immunization for tetanus.

The following courses will be available at the Aquatic School:

First Aid:

Basic First-Aid - Instructor; Multimedia Standard First Aid - Instructor; Standard First Aid and Personal Safety

- Instructor; Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care - Instructor; Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation - Instructor (Lecture and Modular version); Water Safety; Water Safety Instructor; and Basic Water Safety Instructor; Small Craft; Basic course in Canoeing; Basic course in Sailing; Basic Sailing and Canoeing - Instructor;

To enroll in the First Aid Section, one need no previous first aid training to qualify as a First Aid Instructor. No swimming activity is required in this

To enroll in the Water Safety Section, you must hold a current, Red Cross and Advanced Lifesaving certificate or be able to pass the swimming prerequiste for the ARC Lifesaving training, which includes a continuous swim of 500 yards. To enroll in the Small Craft Section, you must be able to swim and surface dive, swim on your side and tread water for five minutes

All interested parties should contact the Lubbock County Chapter, 765-8534, as soon as possible.

eyes

By Weston A. Pettey, O.D.

Dear Dr. Pettey: Why are you against sunglasses? I am not against sunglasses. In fact, I wear them myself. What I'm against is wearing them unnecessarily and wearing the wrong kind. The eye is essentially a "daytime" instrument. To function correctly it requires proper light. The only daylight bright or too glary. Either can cause discomfort ... tearing, blinking, squinting, and unclear seeing. Sunglasses can absorb quantities of harmful sunlight. Most vision authorities recommend optically ground lenses. These can contain the composition and precision to allow a prescription for individualized corrective power in addition to a lightabsorbing power. Or, for persons not needing correction, the lenses can be plano (an absorptive lens with no corrective power). Also, since contact lens wearers usually experience an increased sensitivity to light, especially sunlight, they will generally be more comfortable wearing plano ground sunglasses with their contacts, when in bright sunlight. If you have any doubts or questions consult your optometrist. Professionally approved sunglasses screen out ultraviolet and infrared rays, are ground and polished free of distortions and imperfections, are perfectly matched in color and absorptive power and available in shatter-resistant material.

Readers with other questions about eye care may address Dr. Pettey in care of the Texas Optometric Association, P.O. Box 2242, Austin, Tex. 78768.
