Livingtogethermay really be marriage

Update Staff Writer

Ithough most persons prepare for their weddings with meticulous care, some couples already may be married and not realize it, according to a local attorney During the last decade, living together has become an accepted practice for an increasing number of couples. But under Texas law, some couples who think they are simply sharing an apartment could be married by common law without knowing it

A frequent misconception about-common law marriages is that a couple must live together for a certain time limit," said Leota Alexander, who specializes in

"A COUPLE can live together as little as a week, and if they meet the other two requirements of a common law marriage, they are married," she said.

The Texas Family Code states that the a couple's marriage may be proved if the parties agreed to be married, and after the agreement they lived together in Texas as husband and wife and represented to others that they were married

But, Mrs. Alexander pointed out, the code adds that the agreement to be married may be inferred if the couple meets the other two requirements.

ProvIng the cohabitation of the couple usually is not a problem, she said, and the representation of marriage to others also is not as difficult as it first appears. 'A man doesn't necessarily have to introduce the woman with whom he lives as his wife to prove the third requirement," she said. "Any actions the couple take that might lead others to believe they are married are considered representation as husband and wife.

"SOME OF THE most common things that may serve as representation as husband and wife are shared indebtedness. opening a joint bank account or using the same last name." Mrs. Alexander said. "But the same last name is not really necessary since even couples who are married in the traditional way need not share the man's surname.

Because of the ease with which a couple may be considered married by common law. Mrs. Alexander advises couples who are not sure about their status to consult an attorney.

Common law marriages, she pointed out, must be dissolved by divorce just like traditional, ceremonial marriages. "I have seen people who have been married several times by common law and didn't realize it, basically because of the misconception that they must live together for a certain amount of years or months," she said

AND THE PROBLEMS of common law marriages can be compounded, she added, with the death of a spouse 'You wouldn't believe some of the problems that arise when a spouse, particularly a husband, dies, especially in the area of Social Security," Mrs. Alexander said

If a couple was married by common law, the wife is entitled to the same bentits awarded to a wife in a ceremonial marriage, but many persons are not aware of this, she said

Because of the public's misunderstanding of the legal sanction Texas affords common law marriages, the legislature in 1970 provided a method for formal declaration of the marriage, she

BEGINNING JAN. 1, 1970, couples married by common law were allowed to file a declaration and registration of informal marriage with the county clerk.

So many people just didn't know what their rights were under a common law marriage so the registration system was created," she said. With the registration, she added, there are few problems in determining property and inheritance rights within common law mar-

Ann Davidson with the Lubbock County Clerk's office added that the declaration of common law marriages also provides a method of defining the state's responsibilities to any children born of a common law marriage

If a couple who has a common law marriage has a family and the man is killed and has company insurance, there could be problems with the insurance payments to his children," Mrs. Davidson said. "This document makes the children legal heirs and they can receive the benefits without any problems.

ONCE A couple meets the require ments of a common law marriage, they may file the declaration and registration of an informal marriage.

But, Mrs. Davidson said, many couples do not fully understand the legal implications of the declaration document.

A lot of couples decide to file be cause they think an 'informal' marriage will be easier to get out of that they won't have to get a divorce," she said. But even without this filing, all marriages in Texas require divorces," Mrs. Davidson said. "This is easier only in the sense that no medical certificate is required like is needed for ceremonial marriage certificates. Because both ceremonial and common law marriages are equally binding under the law, and the recent legal questions prompted by the Lee Marvin case concerning the status of couples of decide to live together, Mrs. Alexander said couples who do not want to be married should consider the possibility of a relationship contract

A CASE WITH facts almost identical to the Marvin situation, she said, is pending in Travis County.

"California doesn't recognize common law marriages and the court said that Michele Triola Marvin didn't prove a contractual agreement " she said "But it didn't say that couldn't be proven and the interesting thing about the Marvin case was the award of rehabilitative

There's been no appellate decision on the Travis County case so if a couple agrees just to live together, it is possible one party can at least get back the property brought into the relationship and possible compensation," she said. But until a decision on such living arrangements is made by Texas courts, she said, "the prudent thing would be to have a written agreement, a relationship

UNDER THESE contracts, the couple can be as detailed about the living arrangement as they desire she said noting that in one agreement, a couple even designated the temperature at which the residence thermometer could be set. While that example is extreme, she said, the contracts are good ideas for the growing number of older adults who are deciding to live together More and more middle-aged people are entering into this and it's more important for them because they usually have more property," Mrs. Alexander

And while such agreements tend to 'take some of the romance" out of relationships, Mrs. Alexander said the contracts are "the coming thing."

They (contracts) are not very common now, but I think they are the coming thing in this day and age of hard realities," she said.

During a formal ceremony Tuesday in the home of her teacher for the past eight years, Monica, 21, was presented her diploma for "having met all the requirements set forth by the Texas Education Agency and the Lubbock Independent School District," as noted by Superintendent Ed Irons.

Monica, a cerebral palsy victim, had at last completed her studies within the school district's Homebound Program for students too ill or crippled to attend

"I didn't know of any award I'm so proud to present as this one," said Irons. I know many people have looked upon you as an inspiration. I do.

Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration for the schools presented Monica her diploma which he noted was "Dallas Cowboy blue" - the color representing her favorite football

In accepting her certificate of graduation, Monica, quoted from a story she had written in 1977. Homebound principal Dorothy Phea requested that she read: "When you are troubled, turn to God for help. He knows our every prayer and every thought.

"I try to always do good in the sight of the Lord and to do his will. I advise peo-

Is the budget tight ... enough?

WHEN PRESIDENT Carter announced his New Economic Policy (although he didn't use that phrase, possibly since Nixon did in 1971), there were three main ingredi-

They were monetary restraint, an austere budget and a system of voluntary wage and price controls. As is true of monetary policy. there is uncertainty about how restrictive present budget policy is, or if it is restrictive

However, the uncertainty in the budget case is less. That is to say it seems fairly clear that federal budget policy is not going to operate to reduce the rate of inflation in 1979 below that of 1978, or even to keep the rate from accelerating.

This fact has been obscured in two ways.

FIRST, emphasis in discussion has tended to focus on the planned decline of the federal deficit between fiscal 1979 and fiscal 1980. However, fiscal 1980 does not begin until Oct. 1. and the fiscal year comparisons do not indicate what will be happening as we go through this year.

Second, the budget figures for the future are heavily dependent on assumptions about economic developments, and the economic significance of the budget cannot be assessed without reference to those assump-

Thus, a budget which yields, say, a decline of $10 billion in the deficit if inflation is 12 percent, is less restrictive than a budget that would yield an equal decline of the deficit if inflation is 6 percent.

In calendar 1978, the deficit was $30 billion, whereas it is projected at $33.5 billion for calendar 1979. The deficits for the last three quarters of 1978 were $24, $23 and $21 billion respectively. But the estimated deficits for the four quarters of 1979 are $30. $28, $37 and $39 billion.

IT IS NOT until calendar year 1980, and actually the middle of calendar 1980, that any decline of the deficit is seen.

For the present the main point is that economic restraint from the budget is not to be expected until late in 1980, except insofar as an unexpectedly high inflation rate itself generates higher revenues which reduce the deficit and tend to keep the inflation rate from going higher.

What is needed is a commitment to a desired long-run path of the economy, which we recognize we are unable to stay on continuously, but which we will be determined to return to and which we will return to cautiously and gradually when we have departed from it," writes Herbert Stein, senior fellow of the American Enterprise Institute, in the AEI monthly report, "The AEI Econo-

But so far, the Carter anti-inflation policy has been a clear case of Bruce Gold's dicturn in Joseph Heller's best-seller Good as Gold: "Nothing succeeds as planned.

washington update

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

A dinner for two that cost $7 in 1967 comes out to $16.50 this year. Actually, it's even more than that since this year's rate of inflation has continued to climb steadily since then.

A $15 pair of shoes in 1967 has gone up to $25.75 in 1979.

And, a house you could have purchased for $34,000 in 1967 would cost you $87,000 - and more - this year. In short, the rising cost of living over the past dozen years has cut the value of the dollar by more than half, to only 48

Clearly, indisputably, inflation today is the number one problem facing the United States of America

What can we do about it? I am convinced that the best way to figure was computed in March and the control the rising cost of living is to attack it from two directions, with more spending by business and less spending by government

> There are some hopeful signs that the idea of cutting government spending may be starting to catch on in Washing-

Congress last fall voted to cut the President's budget authority by $14 billion. That is not as much as the $29 billion cut I cosponsored, but it is an encouraging sign nonetheless.

This year the President presented a relatively auster budget, although it still projects a $29 billion deficit.

I am working in the Senate to make further cuts in the budget. As an example. I have introduced a bill to save taxpayers $2 28 billion in the coming fiscal year by eliminating that portion of Revenue Sharing that goes to state governments. I'll be making other proposals for spending cuts in the months ahead.

Less government spending will be of significant help in our battle against the rising cost of living, but by itself it isn't enough to do the job

We need to combine reduced government spending with increased spending increased investment — by business. Increased investment is needed to boost our sagging rate of productivity, or output per manhour, which is probably the single most important thing we can do to combat inflation

Since 1960 the U.S. has allocated a smaller fraction of its total outpout of goods and services to investment than any other Western democracy. Total fixed investment in this country has run at about 17.5 percent of real output. By way of comparison, the figure for Japan has been about 35 percent

How can we turn this around? Simply reducing government spending and government regulation will help. In 1929 spending by all levels of government amounted to only 10 percent of our ceoncomy's total production. In 1977 that rose to 34 percent and it is propjected to exceed 30 percent in the 1980s.

A study by the Hudson Institute concludes that there is a correlation between the size of government and the rate of growth in the economy. The bigger government is, the slower the rate of growth

The reason is not difficult to identify: government crowds out and destroys the incentives for productive private investment. The economy begins to strangle on regulation and red tape. The toll extracted by an expanding government sector in Western countries has cut attainable economic gowth rates by as much as a third in the past 15 years.

In 1976 the rate of savings as a percentage of disposable national income in the U.S. was only 4.8 percent, compared to 13.3 percent in France

I have proposed several legislative initiatives that would encourage Americans to save more.

Despite a busy and sometimes hectic daily schedule. Louise Perry (her husband is Dr. Floyd Perry, professor of education at Texas Tech University who also serves as pastor of Lyon's Chapel Baptist Church), she creates a quiet, thoughtful and loving home for +

When Mrs. Perry was growing up in thing to put in, would mix it all together

Wichita, Kan., there were four children in the family, besides her mother and father. Her mother was a truly wonder ful cook and there was no real necessity for Mrs. Perry to learn to cook. But, at an early age, she wanted to learn and whenever she could watched her mother prepare different foods.

Mrs. Perry's mother didn't use recipes. "Somehow," she recalled, "my mother just knew how much of everyand everything came out all right and STRANGELY enough, Mrs. Perry foretold her own destiny, also at an early age and in the second grade.

I remember the occasion vividly, she said, "when my former secondgrade teacher called - I was to receive my high-school diploma shortly - and told me she'd found some old school papers of mine, while cleaning out her garage. In any case, among those papers was an essay I'd written about myself and what I hoped to do with my life in

"Surprisingly, I expressed two desires: one, to be a pastor's wife; and second, to become a missionary in Haiti (why I chose this country in particular I'll never know). In the first instance, my dream has come true of course, and the latter isn't as important to me now, since I think there are ways I can 'contribute' here in Lubbock.

Floyd and Louise Perry met while both were attending junior college. A fellow classmate introduced them. Recalling the meeting with her future husband Mrs. Perry said. "I think I fell in love with Floyd at first sight - I was really impressed with him.

At the time, there was a fad of wearing socks that tied in the back. The idea was that if you left the strings untied, then you were still looking for a boyfriend. But, jokingly, I told my girl friend that after meeting Floyd, I was going home and tie my sock-strings. I think I should admit I was only partly

THE COUPLE decided to marry. As Perry continued studies toward his ultimate aim - a doctoral degree - friends say the couple must have had their share of adversities but if they did, they don't speak of any. An associate of Dr. Perry commented recently, "I know that as an assistant pastor - Floyd first served in this capacity - he probably didn't make much money. But if he and Louise encountered any difficulties in those days, I've never heard a word about them. Instead, both will tell you all about the many happy times they had then, and also those later when Floyd ministered to his own church '

Noteworthy on the list is Walt Disney Productions with a forecast for net gain of 19 percent. The only stock forecast to drop during the six month period was MCA Inc., by 6 percent.

Analysts see a healthy climate ahead for gambling and amusement stocks. With Atlantic City gearing up for its second season, Nevada continuing strong, and the possibility of other states (New York, for example) enacting new and more permissive gambling laws, gambling issues were particularly attractive. Harrah's was cautioned, however, that the developing gasoline shortage could substantially cut into revenues of resorts and amusement parks if motorists are forced to curtail their va-

· Teacher's Guide

For use with issue: Make the Most of Summer For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.

Page 1: Keeping a summertime calendar can help your child learn much about budgeting his time. Provide three large sheets of paper for making the calendar for each month. The children might add a summer-plan illustration at the top of each month. Hang these calendars in a prominent spot for further study and reference. Go over each one of the suggestions and encourage your child to make the most of summer. Keep a bird chart, writing down each new bird you spot.

Page 4: Study the map of Historic Fort Wayne. Draw a line from the list at the bottom to the building or place indicated on the map. Discuss how this map is different from a road map. Using this map as a guide, make up situations and ask the child the quickest way to get to the named spot. For example: "You are a soldier in the hospital. Find your way to the commanding officer's quarters. You want to complain about your treatment."

Words to review: Barracks and quarters (buildings where soldiers live), privies (bathrooms), blockhouse (a fort made of heavy wood with the top story larger than the ground story).

Reader says guns no booster of crime what's your beef?

Editor, Update.

On May 18, an article in Update was blaming the rising handgun sales for the rising crime activity. I disagree with that statement for several reasons. Handguns are not causing the crime increase. They are not even a factor in the increases. First off the law enforcement people catch the ones committing the crimes but the court system turns them loose. In Texas for killing a person the average time spent in prison is seven years. In a recent shooting a man killed 10 years. That means the man can be back on the street in about 5 years.

The second reason given for the crime increase is people not having enough money, but who doesn't have this problem. Some people will go out and rob for more.

Swat Smith said that women should not have guns for protection. I believe that they should if they know how to use them. It has been proven time after time by communities that teach their women how to shoot that crime has gone now. Why won't that work in Lubbock?

Smith recommended that the women use Mace instead of guns. I do not guess the man has ever tried to spray Mace into the West Texas wind before.

Rev. Judd was saying guns should be banned so it would cut down on crimes of passion. He was saying people would have to get close to people to use a knife. There sure has been a lot of people gotten close to lately. A knife is easier to hide than a handgur

It was also mentioned that children can get hold of guns and hurt themselves. That is going back to the saying people don't care about their children until it is too late. Children taught properly will not bother them

I am a Life Member in the National Rifle Association and against banning handguns. Any club that would like to have any free material from the NRA on Gun Control please contact me.

on screen

Backstage I — "Coming Home." Winner of three Academy Awards for best performances by an actor and actress, and best original screenplay. No doubt one of the most important films released in 1978, this movie takes a look not at the politics of Vietnam, but at the physical and mental scars administered to the men and women caught up in the war fought there. Jon Voight gives the best, the most sensitive performance of his career, and very much deserved his Oscar for his portrayal of paraplegic veteran Luke Martin. Bruce Dern offers his usal strong performance and, but for Christopher Walken's performance in "The Deer Hunter," might have come away with a supporting Oscar. And Jane Fonda is often moving as the Marine's wife caught up in love and the Backstoge II - "Nana." X-rated material.

Cinema West - "Winter Kills." This film was completed two years ago and is only just now hitting the screen. John Huston and Jeff Bridges star in this tale of a presidential assassination conspiracy. Sound familiar? Not screened at press time.

Fine Arts Drive-In - "Naughty Freshman" and "The Joy Of Fooling Around." X-

Fox I - "Manhattan." This is Woody Allen's best film to date, an absolutely flawless film of purpose, a loving and extremely personal mixture of wit and tenderness which manages to spark both comedic and emotional reactions as it damns fashionable intellectualism in favor of the drama of losing relationships. The laughs are plentiful, but they are neither nonsensical nor nonstop. "Manhattan" is Allen's most moving and human and entertaining film. It is further, in my opinion, the best film yet released in 1979. Filmed in black and white, with Diane Keaton and Mariel Hemingway co-starring.

Fox II - "Grease." The soundtrack album made even more money than the movie (just like "Saturday Night Fever"), but repeated viewings by the nation's youth still made "Grease" one of the most profitable movies of all time. The film is a very corny look at the 1950s, not at all accurate and only occasionally enjoyable. Olivia Newton-John's performance is absolutely awful, but John Travolta supplies an admirable energy on screen. And if you'll accept funny, talented Stockard Channing as a high school student, well. I guess you'll be willing to accept just about anything.

Fox III - "Hanover Street." If you adore old fashioned film romance, this is the picture for you. But the film displayed a few too many flaws and overly sappy moments to sweep me away. The cast is strong — Harrison Ford is the American bomber pilot who falls in love with the lovely Lesley-Anne Down, who is in turn married to British intelligence officer Christopher Plummer - but the writing is weak. The firebombing of London is well filmed, though, and Richard Masur is responsible for some much needed comic relief in the Catch-22 style.

For IV - "Can I Do It 'Till I Need Glasses?" This is the R-rated followup to the sexual spoof "If You Don't Stop It, You'll Go Blind." Ads proclaim Robin Williams the star, but word has it Williams is actually on screen for less than two minutes. Not

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen - "The Warriors" and "Up In Smoke." The former film takes a simple chase motif and transforms it into sheer cinema action. Though controversial, the rough movie boasts excellent direction, does not make use of gratuitous violence and remains one of the year's more exciting films. As for the latter picture, I gave "Up In Smoke" top billing in the Worst column when naming the Best & Worst films of 1978. I stand by that opinion. It is a horrible excuse for

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen - "Hooper." Burt Reynolds is a hoot in this funny diversion about Hollywood stuntmen. Fine support is offered by Brian Keith, Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field and, yes, even Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw in a barroom brawl. Though the humor is first rate, the film also says something about the daredevil drives and doubts of movie stuntmen. A sidenote: Burt Reynolds and director Hal Needham began their motion picture careers as stuntmen

Home Box Office - This pay television station offers movies and specials usually not available on Lubbock's big scrrens. Premieres are held on HBO several times each week, and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see HBO premiere "Herbie Rides Again." the first sequel to the popular "The Love Bug." A Mel Brooks film festival of sorts will begin the next day, with "Young Frankenstein" screened on Saturday, "High Anxiety" on Sunday and "Silent Movie" on Monday. Other films being screened on HBO in June include "FM," "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" (a delightful film which never earned the audience it deserved), "The Omen," "Damien: Omen II," "The Buddy Holly Story," "An Unmarried Woman," "Girlfriends" and "Coming Home

Showplace I - "Hooper," See comments under Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back

Showplace II - "The Prisoner Of Zenda." A remake of a remake of a remake, this one starring Peter Sellers in a dual role. Not screened at press time

Showplace III - "C.H.O.M.P.S." Valerie Bertinelli, the lovely younger daughter 'One Day At A Time." stars in this film about the building of a mechanical watchdog. Not screened at press time.

Showplace IV - "Jaws." Director Steven Spielberg treats his Great White Shark like the whale in "Moby Dick," granting it a menacing aura of evil and personifying it in terms of a testing human struggle. On a more basic level, the film is simply a superb ances from Roy Scheider, Richard Dr late Robert Shaw A movie which will be remembered for a long time to come

Showplace V - "Voices." This movie inspires mixed feelings, as the writer and director have two good stories (Michael Ontkean's poor family in Hoboken, and Ontkean's love affair with a deaf woman played by Amy Irving) and refuse to really concentrate on either one. Though inconsistent, however, I found the performances genuine, the characters likeable and the overall film a charming fairy tale. In short: It's not great, but it's well worth seeing.

Showplace VI - "Love At First Bite." Surprise! This spoof on the Dracula legend is really pretty funny, actually hilarious whenever Richard Benjamin is on the screen. The plot finds George Hamilton, as Count Dracula, evicted from his Transylvanian castle and traveling to the Big Apple in search of fashion model Susan Saint James (who dies her hair blonde for this film). Benjamin is a psychiatrist and a descendent of noted vampire hunter Dr. Van Helsing. The laughs come pretty much non-stop, with everyone involved keeping the mood tongue-in-cheek. Look for Arte Johnson as the count's bug-

Threatening zombies are everywhere in DAWN OF THE DEAD

South Plains Cinema I, Mall - "Malibu High." A pretty high school student decides that bedding her teacher is more fun than studying, and a much easier path to South Plains Cinema II, Mall - "Battlestar Galactica." Filmed in Sensurround. the gimmick which now proves that spaceships sound like rollercoasters which sound like planes landing on aircraft carriers which sound like earthquakes. (Have I forgotten anyone?) I have to admit up front to being predjuduced. I despise the Sensurround proc ess and believe it has no place in a fourplex theater where it will undoubtedly disturb patrons in the surrounding auditoriums. And I do not like the idea of a TV movie (the premiere three-hour episode of ABC's "Battlestar Galactica") being re-edited and released as a feature film at new feature prices, no matter how good the special effects may be. I saw the television episode, but this feature version was not screened at press

South Plains Cinema III, Mall - "Dawn Of The Dead." The film carries no rating, and the law states the only rating which can be self-applied is an X. Though there is no sexual pornography in this movie, it might very well be the first which could have earned an X through violence alone, as it stands out as the most gory and brutal horror film yet released. And yet, I liked it a lot. Writer-director George A. Romero uses overkill literally, to the point where we are not always shocked by his zombie murders (this is a sequel to 1968's "Night Of The Living Dead," where the dead return to chow down on the living). Romero's sense of humor and mirroring of human nature is evident throughout, and the installation of humor into such a grisly effort makes for a very nice effect. But stand warned: This remains violent, gory, brutal, adult viewing material which those with weak stomachs will not be able to sit through. I do not use that description lightly. Heads are blown off; entrails are dined upon Quite a few viewers have been spotted leaving the picture early

South Plains Cinema IV, Mall - "Same Time, Next Year." Playwright turned screenwriter Bernard Slade has refused to open up his tepid little Neil Simon clone for the screen and, as a result, the cinema version of his hit stageplay is predictable to the point of being yawn inspiring. The whole thing is just too stage y — but luckily for Slade (and us), the performances are strong enough to keep us from walking out. Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn work wonderfully together; one only wishes they'd held out for a stronger screenplay

Village - "Superman." Following a five month run at Showplace, the film has been immediately picked up by yet another theater. Too bad. The longer this film stays on the market, the more apparent it becomes that it will not stand the test of time. Special effects are over-rated and cohesion is non-existent. Christopher Reeve's performance in the title role was the only aspect of this film which pleased me. Look for the solitary sequel in late 1980.

Winchester - "Beyond The Poseidon Adventure." Now come on, did any of you really expect this to turn out to be a good movie? If you did, I have some bad news for you: This one ranks with "Hurricane" and "The Promise" as the worst films released so far this year. A good cast sells out for money and goes through the motions as a rot-ten screenplay traps them in the capsized ocean liner Poseidon. Michael Caine and Sally Field are the big losers (let's hope this flick doesn't hurt Miss Field's Oscar chances for 'Norma Rae"), but one has to feel sorry for Karl Malden, too. A pitiful film.

Morning Shows - Showplace Six will screen the G-rated feature film version of "Batman" at 10 a.m. Saturday. The admission charge is either a Rainbow Bread wrapper, a Dr. Pepper bottle, a Borden's Milk carton (milk cartons from school cafeterias are not acceptable) or $1 in cash.

Midnight Shows - Showplace Six will screen the R-rated "Looking For Mister Goodbar," a rough but occasionally mesmerizing picture which no doubt played a big part in Diane Keaton winning an Oscar for "Annie Hall," at midnight tonight and Saturday. Showplace will also offer late screenings tonight and Saturday of "C.H.O.M.P.S.," "Love At First Bite." "Jaws." "The Prisoner Of Zenda" and "Hooper." Check the movie listings in today's Avalanche-Journal for exact showtimes.

Mann Theater Corp., headquartered in Los Angeles, Calif., gauges the size of its motion picture operation in terms of screens, rather than by individual thea-

The firm has a total of 300 screens, with four of those reflecting the current movie fare in Lubbock under the designation of Fox Four Theater.

Another four screens will be placed in operation this summer at South Loop 289 and Slide Road.

Target date for the grand opening of that building was originally set for June 29. However, a combination of storm damage and labor difficulties now indicate the completion date may be pushed into July, according to Harold Lieck. manager of Fox Four, located at 4215

LIECK. A graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, has been with Mann Theaters for some 81/2 years. He started. uniquely, as a part-time doorman while working for the Internal Revenue Service in Austin. He has headed the Lubbock operation for the past five years.

The management aspect of an individual motion picture theater appears to require a diversity of talents.

Lieck's responsibilities include the creation of advertising layouts for the newspaper, heading the theater's personnel, making sure money receipts are kept accurately, and seeing that the theater is maintained in good order - a never-ending job.

FOX FOUR HAS shown a wide variety of movie fare through the years, according to Lieck.

We show any and everything luckily, we have stayed away from most Lieck emphasizes honesty in dealing with Lubbock movie patrons, whether the questions are directed at management or staff members.

"If someone calls up and asks how the movie is, and I think its rotten, I'm going to tell them, 'It's a rotten movie'." The manager said, "I had rather the person know what was really the truth about the movie than for them to come and be disappointed." He added, "If I'm not sure how they would react (to a particular film), then I'm going to say, 'You will have to decide for yourself,' or that it is similar to

"I try to tell my staff to do the same

HE SAID. "Let's face it, people are coming out to be entertained or shocked, or whatever, and if they want to know what a movie is like, why not tell them what it's like, instead of saying they are all great."

Prices for tickets, when inflation is sessed its proper place, have changed little, according to Lieck.

"Back in the '50s, the price was about 50 cents for adults. Today, when you consider the dollar is worth 14 cents, the $3.50 price tag still amounts to 49 cents to go to the movie.

The concession sector is a significant part of the local theater operation, according to the Fox Four manager. He agrees with the industry premise that it is a "mainstay of business."

"Your profits there can overide any losses that you take in other places. And let's face it, some people say, what's going to the movie without popcorn?

'So, it's there for a profit reason, and it's there for customer convenience. Most people want to sit through a movie without having to get back up, so they get what they want (from the concession) first.'

A GREAT many motion picture films follow trend-setting movies, according to Lieck. "If you watch the movies, you see that one type of movie comes out, and then everybody — if its a good movie — will follow. It's like Star Wars. For years there were no good science fiction movies, but now there are a lot."

Lieck, in attempting to predict future trends, notes that "We haven't had any good slapstick in years, and this will probably be the next thing to come out - or if not, it may be a trend toward westerns. TV just did that on a series."

He indicated that movies often set trends within society. Before the motion picture film, "Saturday Night Fever," disco was dying in New York City, ac-cording to Lieck. "It was already past its prime. But now its a whole new scene.'

HE SAID, "I think movies were mainly made originally for escapism something to go see and do, and when you get through you don't have to worry about what you saw."

Local houses in the Mann Theater chain have little influence over the kind of movie which is shown.

"It all depends on bookings," Lieck said. "We have a booking agent in Kansas City who decides what films we will show. They bid on it, and depending on who bids the most money, that decides who gets the films."

The big films may go to somebody else if they are willing to put out more money, he said. "Sometimes they put out money for a film that doesn't do any business, and you lose a lot. It's really a guessing game.

'Oliver's Story was one of those where we lost money, and others have made money that we didn't expect to make money on."

THE INDUSTRY'S future is not endangered by television, according to the Lubbock manager. "You get tired of staying at home, or if you live in an apartment, you get tired of watching the tube - besides, there is not that much good stuff on TV anymore," he explained. Anytime you have outside enter ment, movies are going to be there," he

"Lubbock is a very good town for the movie business. This is one form of entertainment that most Lubbockites take advantage of," he said.

Students graduating from high school or college this month will soon be faced with another aspect of the Big World that will affect them for the rest of their lives - credit.

An individual's ability to obtain credit is based on several factors, including the ability to repay the debt, a willingness to do so and collateral, or security in the form of property that could be siezed by the creditor if you fail to pay back the loan.

Most creditors look for three basic facts when processing loan applications, which they refer to as the three C's capacity, character and collateral.

Younger people with no previous credit rating will no doubt find it hard to establish themselves in the world of borrowing and may have to depend on cosigners to start their credit histories.

"Our company will usually require a co-signer for someone who does not have a previous credit history and then we'll check the co-signer's credit before opening af account," says Sue Tiland, credit manager for Dillard's.

Miss Tiland said Dillard's offers two types of accounts. A contract account is set up on an installment basis with regular monthly payments. She said this account is best for persons wanting to buy appliances or stereos and pay them off by the month.

The revolving charge account is usually set up for persons buying items such as clothes on a regular basis. The monthly payments depend on the balance of the account.

Hemphill-Wells Department Store, located downtown and at South Plains Mall, is probably the best bet for the young credit seeker wishing to establish an account to build credit but doesn't have a co-signer.

We would be willing to set up an account for a young person with no previous credit history on a limited amount of credit," says Woodrow Cobb, credit manager for Hemphill-Wells. Cobb said his store offers what is called the option account. The person could either pay on a revolving basis each month (10 percent of the balance) or pay off the whole account when the

Dear Dr. Pettey: If somebody sees 20/20, does that mean his eyes are okay? What it means is that he can see at 20 feet what should normally be seen at a 6 for a 9. Mechanics or craftsmen my that distance. It can mean that "his eyes but those of us in the field of eye and vision care know all too well hat in other cases this can be deceiving.

The 20/20 "standard" applies to distance vision. A person may have 20/20 but only in one eye. Or his two eyes may not work together as a team. His near vision can be blurred, or it can undergo considerable strain, even if used for only few minutes at a time.

In school, a student with 20/20 vision may find that he or she can't study for long periods. Headaches may occur. A typist with 20/20 distance vision may on her copying material see a 3 for an 8: or not be able to read a micrometer or a blueprint accurately. Remember, most livelihoods are made by work done within arm's reach. This does not mean 20/20 is not desireable: to the contrary, it is very much desirable and even essential in the work of many people. Even if 20/20 does not tell the whole vision story, it is an important test in any examination. Readers with other questions about

At the Hamilton Gym, several wouldbe Kurt Thomas gymnasts are working out. But future Korbuts outnumber the boys three-to-one.

Why? J.C. Hamilton, gym owner, instructor and all-around gymnastics enthusiast believes that until recently there were few sports for girls, as compared with all the various boys' sport activities offered, and perhaps this is one of the reasons girls are particularly drawn to

"I also think that boys have always been oriented toward seasonal sports. When a boy finishes the football season, he starts playing Little League baseball and so on. In the past few years, girls have begun to participate in seasonal sports more; and although the picture is son why so many young women are flocking to gyms for training.'

Hamilton, who holds a bachelor of science degree in education, has been involved in teaching gymnastics for many years. "The age when a child should begin gymnastics," he said, "depends on how much fun the child has when he first begins working out in a class. I've had some 21/2-year-old youngsters who entered our regular program and have done just 'super'. We've started a 'mom and tot' program which means that the mothers come out and help their child, under my direction. We're evaluating the effectiveness of this program.

"There also are similar programs being tried at other places across the country. Currently we have some 11/2-

We have a few with brain damage, and we believe this training will help them.

"It goes without saying that I'm sold on gymnastics. It helps anyone's flexibility, agility, strength and coordination. Physiologists are on kind of a tangent about hand and eye coordination. I know what I am talking about when I say 'hand and eye coordination', but your physiologists will argue that is an incorrect term. On the other hand, for us lay people, I think it is important. I've had kids come in who have motor development difficulties, having a hard time just hopping and skipping, jumping, and if they turn upside down, they feel lost. We've had some come in and learn our basic skills, and they've already shown an improvement in school (had been 'slow readers'). We have seen this in our own gym, but various studies have been done to prove that gymnastic skills have helped some slow learners.

'Girls tend to mature faster than boys. They also tend to have more flexible bodies to begin with. Boys in gymnastics work more in the area of strength-related type skills. Until boys get to be 14, 15 or 16, unless they are an abnormally strong, they don't get into the strength threshold. On the other hand, girls get into flexibility-oriented skills, and they simply start off with more flexibility in their bodies.

'It might surprise your readers to learn that we have had children participate in gym work who have cerebral palsy, also some children who are blind. But, we have worked with many handicapped youngsters, who we believe have benefitted by having better coordination and improved good health."

Hamilton admits that stars of the gymnastic world rise to fame quickly. and within a few short years are too old to compete any longer. But he emphasizes his belief that all persons, no matter of what age, should maintain flexible bodies throughout their lives.

He says that even the older children require more 'warm-ups' than the younger ones. Hamilton explained, "Warming up is important. Some of the exercises we do are 'monkey walk' (on all fours), log rolls across the wide gym floor, sommersaults (no hands), straight leg point toes sommersaults and back straddle leg rolls."

As the children warm-up under the watchful eyes of Wayne Downing (an inwatchful eyes of Wayne Downing (an in-structor and a junior at Texas Tech Uni-versity who has taught gymnastics for five years now), Downing said encourag-ingly, "Let's see some form now. Touch the back of your neck when you roll over and push with your hands!'

Hamilton says that youngsters enjoy participating in competition. Youngsters compete at different levels that correspond to difficulty of skills performed.
"Many of our students will compete in at least one or two meets each year," Hamilton said, "but will compete more often as they become more involved. We are the 'number one' team in the area and last year were the only team with a state champion. We also have the only state champion this year.

"Gymnastics is so new that many parents do not understand what to ex-pect from their child entering a gymnastics program. Swimming lessons are not new, and parents know what to expect. When a child comes home with blisters on the hands from practicing, parents sometimes react a great deal.

"Besides increasing self-confidence and improvement in general body condi-tioning, however, parents can expect the child to be thoroughly enthusiastic about gymnastics. And once a child is experienced in the sport, he or she will be willing to devote a great deal of dedication to it. But the successful and winning gymnast is one who has practiced faithfully, while doing something they want to do and having a wonderful time at the Hamilton mentions that teams will compete in what is more or less an area meet in June. "This meet will be," he said, "the qualifying meet for national competition. I personally don't think I have anyone ready right now for 'national', for different reasons. I think the ability is there and certainly the desire to win is there. But the 11-and 12-year-olds are a little inexperienced for nation-al competition. The most talented girl I have at the present time is being pushed by peers into tennis, basketball and oth-er sports. She could be a national-level gymnast within a short period of time, if

Traffic Update: management

THE PAVING on Indiana from 98th Street south of 103rd Street would be complete if the weather had cooperated, according to a spokesman for Kerr Paving, contractors for the project. A half day's work remained to finish putting down the black base when the rain began, and the one and one-half inch Type C asphalt surface will require at least two days. So, weather permitting, residents in that area should be enjoyed the new pavement some time next week A major maintenance project has begun on Fourth Street at Quaker Avenue. says State Highway Engineer James King. The extensive repair job will require several days, causing some inconvenience for motorists. However, King said crews will work in one lane at a time and will restrict traffic as little as possible. Drivers in that area should be especially alert for workmen barricades for the next few days. DO YOU PLAN escape routes when you drive? You do if you are a driver efficient in your management of time and space. Managing time and space can be achieved through effective use of advanced driving techniques to achieve the best position for your vehicle in a stream of traffic. Drivers in traffic must constantly process information to make accurate decisions. They do this by: (1) Identifying important elements such as other vehicles, pedestrians and roadway conditions.

(2) Predicting potential conflicts in the intended path of travel, such as an intersecting vehicle that does not appear to be slowing

(3) Deciding to adjust vehicle speed and/or position to compensate for hazards, such as a deep pothole.

(4) Performing the maneuvers, for example by steering around the pothole. Escape routes are nothing more than alternate paths of travel. As you drive. you identify an immediate path of travel. This is where you want your car to be four seconds from now, based on existing road and traffic conditions. You also need to identify an alternate you place your car if your immediate path of travel were suddenly blocked. Defensive driving is more than carefully positioning your car in relation to front and rear traffic. It also requires lateral or side positioning. Thus, efficient management of time and space means (1) selecting speeds to position your car between clumps of vehicles to your front and rear. It also means (2) selecting lanes and positions within groups of traffic to allow the greatest room to maneuver. This is lateral positioning.

CAUTION! Although we expect other drivers to behave in an appropriate manner most of the time, we cannot depend on them to always drive as we expected It therefore becomes essential to pracpath of travel - in other words, where tice time and space management to achieve efficient driving performance.

QUESTION: What is a dirigible?

ANSWER: A dirigible is an airship filled with a gas that is lighter than air. The lightness of the gas allows the dirigible to lift off the ground. Dirigibles differ from balloons in that the dirigibles can be steered in the desired direction and do not have to depend on the wind. In fact, the dirigible derives its name from the Latin word "dirigere," means "to guide or direct.

The terms "blimp," "dirigible" and "zeppelin" are often confused and sometimes used incorrectly. A blimp is a large bag that contains separate compartments filled with gas. The blimp is also known as a nonrigid airship. A dirigible is a large frame or skeleton over which fabric has been tightly stretched. Inside the frame are many smaller, separate bags containing the gas. A Zeppelin is merely another name for a dirigible. It came into use because Ferdinand von Zeppelin, a German Army Officer, designed and built dirigibles around the turn of the century.

Dirigibles saw limited use in commercial and military operations. Although the airships were capable of carrying large loads over long distances, they had a number of drawbacks, including slowness, docking and storage problems, and a shaky public conficence caused by some tragic dirigible accidents.

(Emile Poree, of New Orleans, La., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus Associated Press' handsome World Map if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors, in care of Update, Box 491, Lubbock. Tex. 79408, is selected for a prize.)

In recent years a trend has been steadily growing causing many businesses to collapse and leaving many otherwise stable enterprises in near failure. Bad checks can and do result in millions of dollars in lost revenue each year. This loss effects every citizen in Lubbock. Only 30% of all returned checks are a result of bookkeeping errors on the part of the writer. 30% are deliberate criminal acts with full intent to defraud. 40% are writen by people who issue the check knowing that they do not have sufficient funds, who hope to be able to deposit enough money to cover the check before it has time to go through the bank. For whatever the reason, you are taking advantage of the merchant by stealing his goods or services.
