Now it's bread that's going up

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The industry that sells America its daily bread says it is heading toward a price increase brought on by rising energy costs and a sharp increase in the price of winter wheat.

"Costs are building in the baking industry...almost assuring a bread (price) advance on the immediate horizon," declares a recent editorial in Milling & Baking News, a respected trade publication.

However, industry officials declined to say specifically when a price increase might be felt by consumers. "We are concerned," says Bob Wager, president of the American Baking Association in Washington. "The return to the baking industry was down 14 percent in 1978, and the squeeze has continued in 1979."

The baking industry — which commands the fourth-largest fleet of trucks of any industry, has had to absorb a 7 percent increase in freight costs since January. That, combined with a 7 percent jump in wage rates, has hit the industry broadside.

Adding to the price pressure is a strong market for hard red winter wheat, from which most bread is made. At the Kansas City board of trade, the exclusive market for that wheat, the price has jumped between 25 and 35 cents per bushel in little more than a month. After a slight downturn three weeks ago, the market rebounded and was strong again last week.

The baking industry figures that for every $1 gain in the price of a bushel of wheat, the cost of a 100 pounds of flour goes up $2.30. One hundred pounds of flour usually will make about 150 one-pound loaves of bread.

That means the 30-cent increase in futures prices for wheat since late April would be responsible for about a penny increase in the price of bread on the grocer's shelf, according to ABA figures.

"Eventually, all price increases are reflected in the price of the product," Wager says. "If you don't cover your costs, eventually you go out of business."

But it is usually several months before wheat market price increases are reflected in the grocery store price.

"As producers run out of flour they had purchased at a lower price, they go back to the market and buy it at a higher price" Wager says. "It may take three, six or nine months" before wheat prices affect the retail price of bread.

Wheat futures experts say reports of winter kill and wet fields have been at the root of the price rise.

"Nobody's hitting the panic button yet," says Roderick Turnbull, a spokesman for the Kansas City Board of Trade. "But this has been a cold spring. And the later it gets, the more concerned they (traders) are."

Consumers hold key to gas supply

Oil allocation won't increase this year, exec says

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

Midland's and other American consumers hold the key to adequate gasoline supplies — not only this summer, but for the rest of the year, an oil company spokesman said Monday.

Also on Monday, a spot check of local gasoline wholesalers indicated that allocations for the month of June will equal those in May.

The U.S. Department of Energy placed gasoline on allocation in April, when American oil inventories were lowered following an international shortage of crude.

Allocation is a government order assigning gasoline to retailers based on a percentage of the volume of business done during the same month one year earlier.

The word for June, for the summer and for the rest of the year from oil officials, however, is that "consumption is the key to the availability of supply even under allocation."

Max Nalley, a public information representative for Exxon Co.'s western marketing region in Dallas, said oil supplies in the U.S. are not expected to increase over last year's totals. "Supply is not going to change that much. Demand is the key," he said.

As a result, if Americans continue to increase consumption, the available supplies will be depleted quicker, causing lines at service stations and occasional shortages, Nalley said.

Locally, Ken Peeler, president of Midland Oil Co., said gasoline this summer will be a little tighter for Basin consumers.

"I don't think we've hit the worst yet," Peeler said. "The company president said that summer months traditionally are not as busy in the Basin as elsewhere, because the region is not visited heavily by tourists."

As a result, allocations in this area are based on a smaller volume from the year before, Peeler said.

His company's allocation for the month of June is 70 percent, he said, the same as the company's allocation for the month of May.

Spot surveys in the Midland area last month indicated gasoline generally was available in sufficient supplies for consumers. However, customers generally have had to search a little longer to find it.

Nalley said that while Exxon was placed on allocation at 78 percent, the actual gasoline inventory for the company was much closer to 98 percent of the supplies it sold in June 1978.

Nalley said there would be no shortages if Americans cut consumption by 2 percent this year.

"If consumers continue to conserve, everything will be all right," he said.

Part of the shortage continues to result from the situation in Iran. Officials of that country have said it will produce only about 60 percent of the crude oil it sold before the revolution, Nalley said.

Meanwhile, gasoline wholesalers said they expected the price to continue rising about two cents a month. Since October 1978, gasoline in the Midland area has increased about 14 cents a gallon.

"The only way the price can go down is if the supply gets up high enough to exceed demand," Nalley said Monday.

Nalley said there is a growing tendency in foreign circles to blame "American greed" for the fuel shortage.

The public information representative said Americans consume 30 percent of the world's oil supplies despite having only 6 percent of the world's population.

"If other nations used oil at the same rate we do, the entire known reserves would be used up in 21 months," he said.

A Midland spokesman for Texaco Inc. said that company has been placed on an 85 percent allocation.

TESCO may not receive rate increases it wants

AUSTIN — Texas Electric Service Co. faces the possibility of not being granted any of its current $88 million revenue increase request as a result of a motion filed Monday by attorneys for the Texas Public Utility Commission to dismiss the company's application.

John Bell, general counsel for the PUC, filed the motion during a hearing on the rate request.

A PUC staff spokesman said the motion for dismissal was filed because the staff felt the revenue increase request is a repackaging of a $110 million hike request made by TESCO in 1978.

The company was granted about $40 million of that amount, the spokesman said.

The spokesman added that it would be unfair to taxpayers to re-try the same request that was presented in 1978.

Briefs on the motion for dismissal are scheduled to be filed by Friday and a ruling on the matter should come next week, the spokesman said.

Earlier Monday, the date for hearing the case had been set for July 23. Midland County Commissioners' Court and Midland City Council had planned to intervene in that case, along with other Texas cities and government agencies.

Alan Holman, a PUC hearing examiner, had selected the July 23 date during a pre-hearing conference between attorneys for TESCO, its customer cities and the utility commission.

In making the announcement about setting of the July 23 date, Holman said the case could start a week later, depending on disposition of several procedural matters — one of them being Monday's motion to dismiss the case.

TESCO announced May 17 it had filed with the PUC for a 16.1 percent revenue increase to take effect June 21, signaling possibly the third increase in three years. The last hike became effective December 1978.

Midland City Council had planned to take action to suspend the proposed increase schedule for a standard 120-day period during its meeting Thursday.

At their last meeting in May, city officials discussed taking such action at their next meeting.

Midland County Commissioners already had decided on that course of action.

Both agencies thus would have been intervenors in the July 23 hearing, which in effect sets the rural electric rates. Since the PUC keeps the rural and urban rates the same, city officials have said it is necessary to present their case when the hearing for rural rates is held.

The utility has estimated its residential customers in 48 counties would pay $5 more monthly for electric service if the revenue hike request is granted.

Fort Worth, Hurst, Burkburnett and the Texas Municipal League are among other announced intervenors.

Nazi leaders receiving bombs sent by mail

NEW YORK (AP) — Five powerful parcel bombs — all capable of killing or maiming — have been sent to Nazi leaders in four states. And a telephone caller says more are on the way today.

But, unlike the first group, today's bombs "are going to go off," the anonymous caller told The Associated Press on Monday.

The caller, claiming to represent the International Committee Against Nazism, said he revealed where the bombs were located because "this is only a warning. The second time they're going to go off. There'll be more tomorrow."

When asked for more information, the caller said Monday: "We'll call you tomorrow with new places." He hung up when asked if he would call before the new bombs exploded.

Monday's caller said bombs had been mailed to Nazi leaders in Chicago; Cicero, Ill.; Arlington, Va.; and Lincoln, Neb. On Saturday, a person claiming to be from the same group told the AP in a telephone call that a bomb had been sent to Paterson, N.J.

Authorities in each of those communities later confirmed the existence of the potentially lethal packages.

An FBI spokesman in Newark, N.J., said the agency was looking into the incidents — talking to persons who received the parcels and trying to determine who else might get them. He declined to divulge additional details of the investigation.

Each parcel contained similar explosives and detonators, and, in at least three cases, bombs were accompanied by a similarly worded message ending with "Heil Hitler and White Power."

For 12-year-old Greg, all there is left is life itself

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

ODESSA — For 12-year-old Midlander Greg Kitchens, every day is a sightless, speechless, painful void.

He stays alive, though, in his hospital room in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, drawing comfort and strength from the presence of his parents — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kitchens of Midland — and family friends.

Greg is the victim of two forms of cancer. According to physicians, he shouldn't be alive today. On Nov. 10, his parents said Monday, physicians told them it would be a miracle if Greg lived another 90 days.

"It's just a miracle," Mrs. Kitchens said. "We don't know how he can live."

Greg already has lost both his eyes. Tumors in his mouth and throat also have claimed his ability to speak. He communicates through sign language and, despite the inability to see, through some written messages.

Life is all there is left for Greg. And Greg is even starting to question the value of that life, Mrs. Kitchens said.

"On Sunday, he asked us to begin to pray for God to take him on to Heaven so he'll be out of the pain," she said.

But his parents want Greg to live. And while he lives, the medical bills continue to mount.

Two Midland women have taken steps to help. Doris Lloyd and Charlotte Cooke, friends of the Kitchens family, have opened the Greg Kitchens Fund at The First National Bank in Midland.

The fund is to help defray medical expenses incurred by the Kitchens family. Greg has been hospitalized in Odessa since October.

Although Mrs. Kitchens said she estimates the cost to the family of Greg's hospitalization at this point to be about $2,000, she said that, during Greg's lifetime, total cost of the youth's treatment is approaching the $50,000 mark.

Contributions to the fund should be mailed to: Kitchens Fund, First National Bank, in care of Harry Clark, P.O. Box 1599, Midland, 79702.

Greg's story goes all the way back to his birth — he was born with the disease.

Doctors discovered his first cancer — a type of eye cancer — when he was 8 months old.

"We fought that cancer for six years," said Mrs. Kitchens, but the fight was in vain. Cancer claimed his other eye when Greg was 6.

Cancer itself didn't scare Greg, said Mrs. Kitchens Monday, but going partially blind did. That fear was alleviated somewhat when Greg saw Stevie Wonder — the blind entertainer — on television.

The second type of cancer affecting Greg is a bone cancer which has spread throughout his face, mouth and throat.

Mrs. Kitchens said doctors in Houston believe he may have contracted that type of cancer from radiation therapy given for his first type of cancer.

During his battle with the disease, Greg has been to doctors in New York City, Houston, Oklahoma City and Odessa. He has undergone surgery at least 17 times.

Greg and his parents have survived their mental anguish and emotional pressures by depending on prayer.

The Kitchens said they gain strength from their religious convictions.

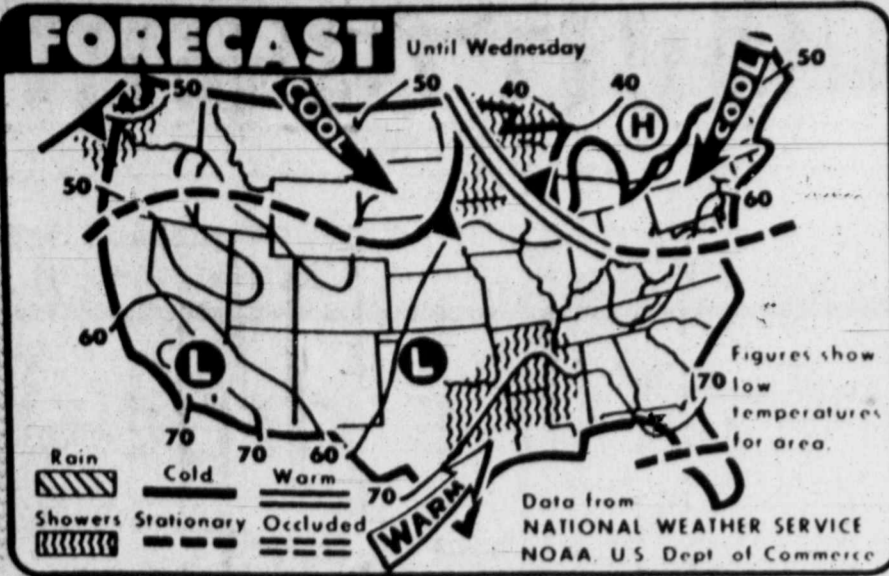

As the financial burdens mount, things are looking bleak for the family.

Kitchens, an employee of Sivals, Inc. of Odessa, has been on a leave of absence. Mrs. Kitchens isn't working in order to spend time with Greg in the hospital.

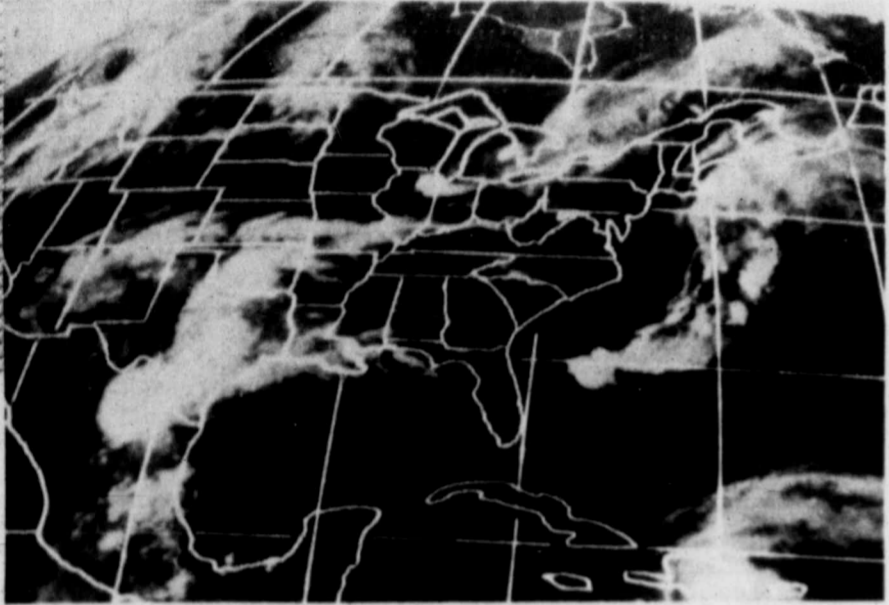

Early in Greg's illness, Midlanders donated some $3,000 to help defray the family's medical expenses.

The family has been appreciative of that help, said Mrs. Kitchens.

Officials again ground DC-10s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials, concerned that improper maintenance procedures may have produced a crack and led to the nation's worst air crash, have grounded nearly two dozen DC-10s.

The grounding was ordered after similar cracks were discovered in two jets that had gone through the same procedure.

This is the third grounding in a week for some of the jumbo jets.

The latest findings are prompting a passengers association to go into court again today to try to get an order grounding all 137 DC-10s flown by U.S. air carriers.

The 50,000-member Airline Passengers Association, based in Dallas, was rebuffed Sunday when it sought a similar order. It used the new information on cracks as the basis for reopening the case today.

The intensive inspections of the jets were triggered by last month's crash of an American Airlines DC-10 as it was taking off from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. The crash, which occurred after one of the plane's three engines fell off, claimed 274 lives.

The Federal Aviation Administration ordered the latest grounding on the recommendation of the National Transportation Safety Board, which is investigating the crash.

The board said two American DC-10s had cracks in the aft attachment points of the pylons. A pylon is a structure that holds the engine to the wing.

Investigators found a 10-inch crack in the aft attachment point of the pylon that separated from the engine that fell off American's ill-fated Flight 191.

The NTSB said the cracks in the two recently inspected planes were apparently caused when mechanics improperly removed the engine and pylon in one section, instead of two steps. Flight 191 had undergone the same "engine removal and reinstallation procedure" on March 30, the FAA order said.

McDonnell Douglas, maker of the DC-10, specifies in a service bulletin that the engine and pylon should be removed separately.

Ed Slattery, NTSB spokesman, said it was conceivable the "pre-existing crack" in Flight 191 could have caused the failure of the pylon assembly holding the engine to the wing. But he said he did not think the crack triggered the crash and that the safety board has not reached a conclusion on the specific cause of the accident.

FAA spokesman John Leyden said the new grounding order involves only those DC-10s that have had their engine pylons removed and replaced in recent days to comply with inspection orders stemming from the Chicago crash. He estimated less than 20 of the nation's 137 DC-10s would be affected.

Under the order, airlines are urged to immediately inspect all planes which had their engines and pylons removed in one section.

American's method of removing and reinstalling the pylon involved using a forklift, the safety board said.

Mark Shepherd Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Texas Instruments Incorporated, Dallas, will address the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday noon at its meeting in the Midland Hilton.

Mr. Shepherd is expected to review the operation and future planning of Texas Instruments, which operates a large plant here, and discuss the overall economic outlook, both national and international. His Midland appearance was arranged by Duke Jimerson, Lions program chairman.

Shepherd, a native of Dallas, earned his bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Southern Methodist University in 1942 and his master's degree in electrical engineering from the University of Illinois in 1947. He was awarded a Doctor of Engineering degree (honorary) from SMU in 1966.

He joined Texas Instruments in 1948 as a project engineer. He has served successively as assistant chief engineer; semiconductor design engineer; chief engineer, semiconductor design, and general manager, Semiconductor Components Division. He was elected assistant vice president in 1954 and vice president in 1955. In 1961, Shepherd was appointed executive vice president and chief operating officer. He was named to the board of directors in 1963 and in 1967 he became president. He was designated chief executive officer in 1969 and was named chairman of the board in 1976.

He also is a member of the boards of directors of United States Steel Corp., Republic National Bank of Dallas, and Republic of Texas Corp. He also is active in other financial and engineering groups and serves as a trustee and governor of SMU.

Shepherd has long participated in numerous international activities of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and presently serves as chairman of its Advisory Council on U.S.-Japan Economic Relations. In October of last year, at the invitation of the U.S. Department of Commerce, he served as leader of the U.S. Export Development Mission to Japan.

'Pure confiscation'

E.V. Mitchell of Midland isn't the least bit shy when it comes to stating his opinions on oil-related matters to members of Congress who frown on the petroleum industry and continually attempt to destroy it, without rhyme or reason.

He recently dispatched the following letter to Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee:

"I heard your outburst against the oil companies, threatening them with anti-trust suit or possible nationalization of the oil business, and you also said that when the American people woke up they would probably turn on the oil companies and devour them. My dear Senator, I think you should go look in your shaving mirror, because if the American public ever really wakes up to what happened in the last 15 years, you and many others like you in Congress may be the ones devoured. I do not understand why you and your cohort from Washington state, along with the man called Ralph Nader, make such a big splash. Had you rather be cold than smell a little coal smoke?"

"It seems peculiar to me that one industry should be the whipping post of so many of you people who are making a play to the stands of organized labor in the big industrial states. They want top prices for everything they manufacture, but they want the oil producers from the oil-producing states to furnish them gasoline and oil at 1930 prices. My friend, this cannot be done. You, Congress, have saddled the American oil producer with a fixed price for crude oil which in no wise will replace it under present conditions. It is pure confiscation to get votes.

"I wonder if you nationalized the oil business what you would then do with it? Give it to Castro? Some of you gentlemen seem to be keen on giving away property that belongs to the United States (such as the Panama Canal) which we bought and paid for.

"If we quit giving money to communist countries or selling them products on credit, which if they default the American taxpayer picks up, we could afford to quit stealing domestic oil because it was drilled a little early.

"Senator Baker, I would like for you to answer one question publicly on television. That is, how much oil is being shipped or diverted to Israel and other nations at the expense of the American motorist?"

If the senator has responded to the Midlander's comments and questions, we have not been so advised.

Who says it's unsafe?

"Under way on nuclear power." That message from the submarine Nautilus almost a quarter of a century ago opened an era in naval and maritime history.

Now the nation is saying hail and farewell to the world's first nuclear-powered submarine as it is en route to Mare Island, Calif., for decommissioning.

The Nautilus checks out with a splendid record — for itself, for the Navy's nuclear propulsion program and for the lore of seafaring. Its historic voyage under the ice to the North Pole in 1958 dramatized the extraordinary capability of the atomic submarine.

The Nautilus never fired a torpedo at an enemy, but by its very existence it helped assure there would be no war demanding that it do so. Nuclear submarines which can remain submerged for long periods are the closest thing to an invulnerable weapon of deterrence.

Ironically, the Nautilus ends its days of active service as the nation wrestles with a fuel crisis and go, no-go decisions about the future of nuclear power. This vessel has logged 500,000 miles without consuming a drop of fuel oil.

The Nautilus was the first of a line of reactor-driven ships and submarines which are secure against the energy crisis which haunts commanders of conventional ships — the need to limit their operations so they can rendezvous with an oiler or visit a fuel station.

Lately, nuclear reactors have been under suspicion as a safe and useful source of energy. The record of the Nautilus stands against those fears. It sails into history as a triumphant example of what the human intelligence can achieve through the disciplined mastery of a new technology.

Now, who says nuclear power is unsafe?

CHARLEY REESE Goal of collectivists is to kill 'our' resistance

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Ayn Rand possesses a brilliant mind. In 1943, she described almost exactly the state of today's culture.

She did it in a philosophical novel, "The Fountainhead," in which a newspaper critic named Ellsworth Toohy tells a smirking phony exactly how you go about conditioning people to accept a collectivist dictatorship.

The primary goal, Toohy says, is to cripple man's soul since the soul cannot be ruled. The way you do that is to turn man against himself. One way to do that is to preach selflessness as the highest ideal. This works because it is impossible to attain and once people adopt it, they will inevitably begin to feel unworthy and guilty.

Another way is to kill man's capacity to recognize greatness. The way to do that is to merely lower the standards so that even the most inept can meet them. "Enshrine mediocrity," Toohy says, "and you raze all the shrines."

Next, turn laughter into a weapon. Teach people to sneer and to laugh at everything. Tell them humor is an unlimited virtue. "Kill reverence and you've killed the hero in man," he says.

Finally, don't allow people to be happy. Kill their joy in living. Take away from them whatever is dear or important to them. Never let them have what they want.

If you look about you, you can see this process of brainwashing at work. We have the most productive nation on earth. Are we made to feel proud of it? No. We are constantly being told that we are greedy and wasteful and use up too much of the "world's" natural resources.

We are a mobile and independent people. Our single family homes and private automobiles are not only symbols but a necessary part of our mobility and independence. The collectivists want them to go. People packed into high density, multi-family urban centers and dependent on government transportation are much easier to control. Listen to the planners. Enshrine mediocrity? Look at education, television and movies.

And who's the butt of most jokes? The patriot, the religious person, the "square" kids who don't ruin their bodies and neglect their minds, the businessman, the honest person, the soldier. Make Anita Bryant, a former beauty queen, successful singer, devoted mother and devout Christian, appear to be the weirdo and make the sexual pervert appear to be normal. A neat psychological trick. Praise the deserter and the draft dodger and ridicule the men who serve as psychos and idiots. Condemn the producer of oil as a greedy pirate and praise the bureaucrat who hinders production as a hero. Portray the cop as a hoodlum and the criminal as a hero.

Can't you see that we are being conditioned? The collectivists want us to believe in nothing and in no one. They want us to think there are no solutions, only problems. They want us to accept unhappiness and frustration as normal. Their goal is to kill our resistance so they can impose their rule.

Well, it's time to fight back. You have a right to own property. Fight for that right against the tax collectors, the environmentalists and the planners. You have a right to be productive. Fight for it against the regulators and the anti-energy freaks. You have a right to keep and enjoy what you earn. Fight for it against the income redistributors, the welfareists and the guilt-peddlers.

Stand up and assert yourself. You have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. You don't owe the world a thing. You have a right to choose your associates and to choose the people with whom you wish to share. You have no obligation to support people who do not choose to be productive. No one has the right to force you to do so. No one — not government, not society, not the world — can reduce or take away your rights because they come from God, not man, so long as you will defend yourself.

The biggest mistake is to believe you can beat the system by conforming to it. No one ever has. You must oppose it on moral grounds. The alternative is to live under the rule of the Ellsworth Toohys, some of whom speak Russian and some of whom speak English, but all of whom are saying the same thing: unite and rule.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Shah pushed for high oil prices

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The real culprit behind the great oil rip-off is identified in secret intelligence reports as the shah of Iran. The documents reveal that he clamored for higher oil profits to finance his dreams of glory.

The shah's agitation and the Nixon administration's acquiescence, according to the documents, led to the devastating oil price increases of October 1973, and January 1974. The Western world still hasn't recovered from the economic impact.

Saudi Arabia, whose rulers feared a backlash against the oil cartel, tried to stop the price rise. The Saudis appealed to the Nixon administration to help persuade the shah to listen to reason.

As late as July, 1974, after the extortionary increases had already been imposed on the world, the Saudis offered to sell their oil at public auction to force prices back down. Yet unaccountably, President Richard Nixon and his foreign policy whiz, Henry Kissinger, never used their tremendous influence with the shah to stop the ruinous oil gouge.

The result was reported on Aug. 30, 1974, by the Central Intelligence Agency: "Riyadh called off an oil auction that would have lowered the price of oil." The Saudis were unwilling to stand alone against the other oil-selling nations. As the CIA explained in a top-secret dispatch: "The Saudis are unlikely to risk political isolation and a breakup of OPEC."

From Riyadh, American Ambassador James Akins reported that

Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani had complained to him about Kissinger's strange reluctance to intervene with the shah. Yamani alleged that Kissinger "is speaking about lower oil prices but in secret doing everything possible to jack them up."

In a secret "memorandum for the file," the ambassador revealed: "The Saudis had urged us on numerous occasions to put pressure on the shah to cooperate with Saudi Arabia and reduce the oil prices. Yet we had refused to do this."

Kissinger explained to us that he was aware of the Saudis' offer but doubted their sincerity. "My belief was," he said, "that the Saudis did not want to get prices down but wanted to place the onus for the price rise upon the shah."

Yet intelligence documents, including intercepted messages, strongly indicated that the Saudis meant what they were saying. These secret reports should have been available to Kissinger.

On the eve of the 1975 oil ministers' meeting, for example, the Central Intelligence Agency reported: "Saudi Arabia and Iran apparently remain seriously divided on the issue of an OPEC oil price rise in the fourth quarter."

"The Saudis may attempt to thwart an increase at the OPEC conference on September 24, although we believe other members will try to work out a compromise."

"Ambassador Akins was informed by Saudi oil minister Yamani on Wednesday that Riyadh had decided it must hold the line against any price increase. Yamani said he told the shah's adviser, Amouzegar, that if Iran insists on a large price increase, the Saudis would sell at current prices and sharply increase production, even at the risk of splitting OPEC."

"Reports from several reliable sources and recent intercepted messages," the CIA stressed, "add credibility to Yamani's statements."

By this time, the shah had already succeeded in quadrupling oil prices, but he still wasn't satisfied. His sales had declined in 1975, and his revenue wasn't keeping up with his spending.

Reported the CIA on Sept. 28, 1975: "Iran is a leading proponent of an OPEC price rise and is generally thought to favor a jump of 15 to 20 percent. Saudi Oil Minister Yamani reportedly has counseled King Khalid and Prince Fahd against an increase at this time..."

However, the CIA cautioned: "The Saudis could prevent an OPEC price increase, but they are unlikely to accept the political costs of such a move."

The shah lobbied with other oil governments, meanwhile, to drive up prices. Reported the CIA two days later: "The shah's adviser, Amouzegar, met with Venezuelan President Perez in Caracas earlier this week to line up support for a price rise."

"Perez suggested that Amouzegar, along with the petroleum ministers of Venezuela and Algeria, try to convince the Saudis to change their position on the price issue..."

On Sept. 5, a National Intelligence Bulletin reported: "Iranian Minister Amouzegar apparently has found that while most OPEC countries share Iran's desire for a price rise, few cartel members are willing to go as high as the 15 to 20 percent range advocated by the shah..."

In the end, a compromise was reached, and the oil cartel adopted a 10 percent increase. But it was the shah, once again, who led the agitation for higher oil prices.

This raises the mystifying question: Why didn't Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger restrain the shah, since they had the political muscle to do it?

SPOTLESS SHOW: After all the hoopla, music and criticism directed at the nuclear industry, federal government officials breathed easier the day after the huge May 6 rally by anti-nuclear groups on the Capitol mall. A National Park Service spokesman told us that the government didn't incur any clean-up or damage expenses from the demonstration, which drew about 70,000 people.

INSIDE REPORT:

U.S. diplomacy has misread Arab reaction to accords

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Twice in recent weeks, imported Arab terrorists with murder in their heart and Anwar Sadat in their sunshirts have been stopped and seized by Egyptian security agents. Both attempts at the life of President Sadat, today's leader most hated in the Arab world, are believed to have been plotted by Palestinian guerrilla commands based in Syria.

Whatever the source, the aborted attempts at Sadat's life have galvanized President Carter's Mideast diplomacy toward this objective: do something, anything to prove to the Arab world that the Camp David accords were not aimed at any separate peace between Egypt and Israel but as a broad framework for total Arab Israeli peace.

But what actually to do? The fact is that U.S. diplomacy, perhaps fatally, has misread Arab reaction to the Camp David accords which should have been clearly predictable.

This reaction was bound to be embittered in the best of cases. But given the intemperate, seemingly calculated moves by Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin to embarrass and isolate Sadat, reaction against the U.S. and Sadat within the rest of the Arab world has been instinctive, unavoidable and inflammable.

There is no quick American fix. Carter has ordered a series of quiet moves to play for time. He wants to create at least a pretense that serious bargaining has started on the future of the West Bank and Gaza. Most important, he wants to persuade the Arabs, particularly oil-rich Saudi Arabia, that Camp David did not repudiate United Nations Resolution 242 which called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands on all of Israel's fronts.

Without fanfare, Carter's orders are being followed. Thus, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger spent a very private two-and-a-half hours at breakfast May 14 with Saudi oil minister Sheikh Zaki Yamani.

No word leaked out of this unusual session, not even the fact the two met. However, these were Schlesinger's goals: to stop the disintegration of the U.S.-Saudi connection, to appeal for Saudi patience and understanding of Sadat's predicament, to persuade Yamani that chances of the West Bank-Gaza negotiations are better than they look.

Now enters Robert Strauss, Carter's newest Mideast innovation as presidential emissary in the West Bank-Gaza stage of the Egypt-Israel talks. With no public disclosure, Strauss quietly invited this city's top Arab ambassadors on May 22 for a get-acquainted cocktail in his elegant penthouse apartment in the Watergate. There was more than getting acquainted on his mind.

Although avoiding conspicuously serious conversation, Strauss nevertheless dropped a word to his guests of utmost political importance. The Camp David accords, he said, could be interpreted in two different ways: very narrowly (which is Begin's way); or very broadly — meaning broadly enough to embrace the full undertakings of UN Resolution 242.

Although Strauss did not say Carter will insist that Israel accept the broad interpretation, that was the implication. His Arab visitors came away impressed.

Carter, Strauss, Schlesinger and the State Department seek to prevent the fatal unraveling of Camp David — perhaps even including some aspects of the Egyptian-Israeli accord. That means visible progress on the West Bank to ease vicious inter-Arab battles involving America's three best Arab allies: Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan. Without such West-Bank progress, Sadat cannot open his borders to Israel and Saudi Arabia cannot finance U.S. warplanes for Egypt.

U.S. policymakers have even worse nightmares. If Sadat attacked neighboring Libya (partly to exploit Egyptian nationalism), would Carter be compelled to back him all the way? Sadat's total dependence on the U.S. today, as Israel blocks his West Bank maneuvers, makes the U.S. as much a hostage to Egypt's policy as it long has been to Israel's policy. That is a foreboding road for the U.S. to travel.

The interception by Egyptian security agents of those two assassination teams from Sadat's Arab neighbors shows how deeply the triumphant Camp David accords have been undermined, and how vulnerable Sadat is, despite his treaty with Israel. The "separate peace" that looks so good to Menahem Begin could become the dagger in the heart of Jimmy Carter's most glittering achievement.

Abortions result in live births

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Two recent abortions that resulted in the births of live babies sparked an anti-abortion demonstration outside the hospital where the infants still struggle to survive.

The babies, a 4-week-old girl and a boy less than one week old, are in good condition, according to a Wilmington Medical Center-General Division spokesman who asked not to be identified.

He would not give the names of the infants or their mothers.

pulse was detected a short time later, and immediate life support measures were taken. The other was aborted alive and was taken immediately to the newborn intensive care unit."

These are the Medical Center's only births during abortions since it started performing legal abortions 10 years ago, he said.

"Medical Center policy states that an infant born as the result of an abortion will be resuscitated and cared for in the same manner as a prematurely-delivered infant," he said.

Delaware law allows abortions for women through their second trimester, which is until 20 weeks of a pregnancy. But a doctor trying to determine the age of a fetus must rely heavily on information from the patient.

"If inaccurate information is relayed by the patient, a misjudgment as to the actual age of the fetus can occur," the spokesman said.

Word of the births prompted about 35 pro-life demonstrators to march in the rain Monday outside the General Division building. The group carried posters saying "Abortion is Murder" and "Stop Abortion."

The hospital spokesman said the babies survived saline abortions, which are used for women in the second trimester of a pregnancy.

In the operation, a saline solution is injected into the womb to induce a miscarriage. The fetus, which at this stage usually cannot survive outside the womb, normally would become a premature stillborn birth.

"One of the infants showed no signs of life," the spokesman said. "But a

DEAR ABBY
She'll be sad about lover, age 21

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with eight children. The oldest is 21 and the youngest is 10. My husband was killed a year ago and it hit me awfully hard.

Here is my problem: I'm in love. I am 40 and the kid I'm in love with is 21. (He's a friend of one of my children.) We didn't intend to get serious—it just happened, and now we have this love affair going. He moved into my house about a month ago.

I loved my husband very much, but he is gone and I need someone to love. Do you think there is any future in this love affair? — IN LOVE IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR IN: I could be wrong, but I can't see much of a future for you and your young lover. Not so much because of the vast age difference, but because of the emotional state you were in when the affair took root. Of course you need someone to love — we all do. But for your sake and his, I think the kid should move out of your house and you should move toward men your own age.

DEAR ABBY: A woman in our office is freaking us out with her humming. When she concentrates she hums one low monotonous note. This can go on continuously for as long as two hours or more without a break.

When I call her attention to the maddening distraction, she quits for a while, then resumes humming again until I could scream.

Others have told her, too. Nothing helps. Her humming has got me so crazy I sometimes can't hear it when it's not there. She's a nice person otherwise, and she's old enough to be my mother, so I don't want to be rude or rough. Please help me and my co-workers. — GOING BANANAS

DEAR GOING: She has — undoubtably developed the humming habit over the years, and now hums unconsciously. But habits are learned and can be unlearned, so the moment the hummingbird starts her song, remind her that she's distracting you. And keep reminding her.

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter from L. IN DENTON, TEXAS who couldn't figure out how come his wife knew how to make love so well if she was a virgin when she was married.

Well, I, too, was a virgin when I married but my husband wasn't, and with all his previous experience, he didn't know peanuts compared to what I taught him!

I didn't learn it anywhere. I just followed my natural instincts and did whatever I felt was right. It seemed to come naturally.

I was blessed with parents who always showed affection for each other and never hid the fact that making love was a normal, healthy part of married life, so when I married it never occurred to me to hold back my sexual feelings. I just expressed them. — NEVER HAD A LESSON IN MY LIFE

'Texans come first'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Joe Poerner says Texas intends to keep its natural gas and not have it siphoned by other states, particularly California.

"As Texans, it's ours. We paid to develop it," Poerner told the Texas Gas Association. "Our needs come before those of other states, particularly California, a state that has repeatedly thwarted the efforts of industry to link our resources from coast to coast."

"As far as I'm concerned, Californians may breathe the pollution of their own political bad judgment," the chairman of Texas oil and gas regulatory agency said.

He said he believed California's own stringent clean air standards "appeared to be the major causes of their desire to switch from other fuel sources to our gas."

Poerner said there should be optimism "rather than rampant cynicism sweeping our nation" about the natural gas industry.

"Despite obstacles which were encountered early in the 1970s, in the form of frequent gas shortages, now the industry is in a good position to improve the quality of service to the consumer."

"The free market place we once enjoyed in our state quickly responded to the short supply and in five years, the number one enemy — not enough gas — has been overcome."

Adding to the improved supply picture, Poerner said, was the commission's decision in April to eliminate the state restrictions on the volume of natural gas used as industrial boiler fuel.

He said one purpose of the order was to keep the prime fuel available for Texas industry and citizens and not have it siphoned off by other states.

Andrus says vast coal lands now can be mined

BY BILL STALL
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Vast stretches of Western coal lands were reopened to potential mining Monday, with the end of an eight-year federal moratorium on its coal-leasing program.

The action was announced by Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus, who said, "It is the keystone to President Carter's goal of better using America's most abundant fuel."

It will have no immediate effect on the current gasoline shortage, and here today that is going to ease his frustration or his or her irritation if they are indeed sitting there in a gas line," he said.

But Andrus noted that in the future, the coal can be used to fuel electric power plants that now are consuming oil. Energy companies also are studying ways to extract natural gas and other petroleum substances from coal.

The new leasing program generally seemed to satisfy both environmental groups and the coal industry, which have battled in and out of the courts through the 1970s over Western coal issues.

The old program was halted in 1971 to discourage massive speculation in coal leases, which did not result in any increased production. The Nixon administration's efforts to resume leasing were blocked in court by environmental organizations, which argued that the government had not prepared adequate environmental impact plans for the proposed mining.

In the meantime, Congress revised the leasing laws and passed the 1977 strip mining act, which was written in part to prevent destruction of the land during mining. Most Western coal lies in thick seams near the surface and is removed by strip-mining methods.

Before new leasing can begin, the government must choose areas to be offered, prepare regional environmental impact statements and eliminate regions that are considered unsuitable for mining, such as areas near national parks and wildlife habitats. Kerry Ridder, a representative of the Environmental Policy Center, said after a briefing on the plan: "I'm generally satisfied ... You have to have a leasing program."

Ray Peck of the National Coal Association said Andrus had resolved some of the issues that had posed problems for the industry. Peck, who was a Department of the Interior official under former President Gerald R. Ford, declined to predict just how much demand there would be for the leases.

Andrus also proposed rules Tuesday to make it tougher for speculators to participate in the lottery program of buying federal oil and gas leases. The plan is to make more of the leases available for immediate development, particularly by wildcaters and independent oil companies.

The program is designed to let the "little guy" have a chance to lease in an area of no proven oil and gas reserves.

But many of the leases are acquired by "filling companies," which serve as middlemen in the process and often resell their leases to major oil companies.

Andrus said in a statement that most of the new rules he is proposing would limit the influence of the filling companies and make it easier for individuals to seek leases on their own. The rules also would make it more difficult to obtain leases fraudulently, Andrus said.

various legal requirements will probably delay the first actual lease sales to 1981 or 1982.

But the decision appeared to resolve most of the remaining disputes among government, industry and environmentalists, and thus could prove an important step in expanding the use of Western coal. The first lease sales are expected to make available 1.5 billion tons of coal in Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, Utah and Idaho, Andrus said.

Andrus refused to guess what effect the potential new resource would have on the nation's energy supply. Just how much new coal might result from the leases depends on the marketplace at the time, he told a news conference. Additionally, it probably would be 1985 before any of the new coal actually came out of the ground, he said.

Andrus smiled when asked him how he thought "Mr. and Mrs. Joe Average" would react to his announcement if they heard it over a car radio while waiting in a gas line.

COKE PROJECT
Sun Oil Corp. No. 10-A Central National Bank is to be drilled as a southwest offset to one of the six wells near national parks and wildlife habitats.

Kerry Ridder, a representative of the Environmental Policy Center, said after a briefing on the plan: "I'm generally satisfied ... You have to have a leasing program."

Ray Peck of the National Coal Association said Andrus had resolved some of the issues that had posed problems for the industry. Peck, who was a Department of the Interior official under former President Gerald R. Ford, declined to predict just how much demand there would be for the leases.

Andrus also proposed rules Tuesday to make it tougher for speculators to participate in the lottery program of buying federal oil and gas leases. The plan is to make more of the leases available for immediate development, particularly by wildcaters and independent oil companies.

The program is designed to let the "little guy" have a chance to lease in an area of no proven oil and gas reserves.

But many of the leases are acquired by "filling companies," which serve as middlemen in the process and often resell their leases to major oil companies.

Andrus said in a statement that most of the new rules he is proposing would limit the influence of the filling companies and make it easier for individuals to seek leases on their own. The rules also would make it more difficult to obtain leases fraudulently, Andrus said.

Around Patricia, they call it The Hump. It began in the 1930s, when shifting sands eased up to a fence line and gradually buried the fence, smothered cotton and grew into a dune. At left is a deep-breaking plow getting the sand-burial treatment. Cotton fields sprawl on either side of The Hump. (Staff Photo by Ed Todd)

The Hump seems 'always there'

PATRICIA — The winds blow. The sands shift and build up along the fence line. Grains of sand grow into drifts, then into banks, mounds and, finally, into The Hump. The Hump, as it's known by the folks on either side of the Dawson-Martin county line, is a sand dune that appears to have encouraged the start of another sandhill, such as at the Monahans Sandhills State Park to the far west.

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

And who's to say it won't come to that in this former range land, which, depending on the drift of the wind and the intensity of the rain, sometimes varies from passable-to-prosperous cotton land to a desert ruled by wind devils.

Unlike much of the rolling Sandhills, The Hump has little room for sand surfing or playing around. It is shrouded by the scrawny but durable shinoak, some yucca, tumbleweeds and wild flowers.

"That (shinoak) is the only thing that grows in the desert, you know," says Myrie Mitchell. This is her country.

Like the highway, The Hump is in the middle of a cotton field in Martin County. It's just a piece down the road from the Dawson County line and Patricia.

A barbed-wire cedar post fence became a sand trap in that one spot. "Everybody in this part of the country calls it The Hump," Mrs. Mitchell said, almost with pride.

The Hump is a novelty to the curious passers-by, but it's something that's "just there" to the Patricia folks.

It started with just a slight build-up of sand and piled higher and higher until over the years, it seems to have always been there.

"It (The Hump) is where my family has lived on that farm for 40 straight years," says Mrs. Mitchell. "There was a fence there when I was a kid, and it (the sand) just keeps building up."

The Hump is shaped like an elongated, though crooked, L, and it seems much longer than its quarter mile and higher than its 15 or so feet. Beyond that are some scattered trees and the Walter Wade farm.

On The Hump's southern side rests an outcast deep-breaking plow. It has been there for only a year or so, but it seems to be sinking slowly in dry quicksand.

"It'll probably be covered up in a few years," Mrs. Mitchell surmises.

Her father, Gay Wade, started farming just south of Patricia in the late 1930s. The fence was there then.

Much later, in the mid-1950s, when he quit farming and moved into Lamesa, his daughter, who became the "landlady," left the fence in place. Doing nothing was far, far easier than moving umpteen tons of sand. West Texas winds can create that kind of situation in just a little while.

The landlady's son, James Mitchell, farms around The Hump, which has become a landmark, a geographical reference point and, perhaps, may someday bear a historical marker.

That may not be necessarily due to The Hump, but rather to what's buried hereabouts.

About two months ago, Mrs. Mitchell was probing somewhere around The Hump when, to her pleasure, she came across "a cache of flint tools," which, on authority, turned out to be 18,000 years old.

But she's not telling just where she found the cache or under what conditions.

"I don't know much about it (archaeology), but I just love to hunt," she says.

Meanwhile, she'll continue to search for artifacts, drive a tractor "when I have to" and watch The Hump grow.

And, not incidentally, she and hundreds of other farm families will be waiting and hoping for rain and sunshine to help the cotton grow.

"The day before yesterday it rained." Some farms got too much and got washed out; some got none or too little, and others got a "just-right" amount.

"We got a short two-inch rain, but we're proud of it. We're grateful for every drop of it."

Even the forest of shinoaks clinging to The Hump expresses thanks for a renewed, verdant life.

Tower declares assets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has declared assets between $45,000 and $80,000 in a financial disclosure statement for 1978.

The senator, a history professor before his election in 1961, showed personal property between $50,000 and $105,000. Almost all was his share in the Civil Service Retirement Fund.

Liabilities included four loans with a total value between $5,000 and $25,000 from City National Bank in his hometown of Wichita Falls.

Each senator receives a $57,500 annual salary.

The disclosure statement that must be filed each year does not require a congressman to list the exact value of his holdings. Property and liabilities are shown by dollar category.

Skylab's return anticipated

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you plan to be on Earth between June 27 and July 21, there's about one chance in 600 billion you'll be hit by a falling chunk of Skylab, scientists say.

Staying indoors won't necessarily help much.

Eight of the estimated 500 pieces expected to survive re-entry heat will be enough to crash through an average concrete office building and most of the rest will come down hard enough to go through a wooden house, a congressional committee was told Monday.

But space agency chief Robert A. Frosch assured a House Government Operations subcommittee that the chances are only 1 in 152 that any human anywhere in the world will be hit.

Frosch, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said re-entry of the 79-ton space station "presently is predicted...between June 27 and July 21. There is a 50-50 probability that this will happen by July 9."

He said scientists will have a better idea later exactly when it will happen. "At best we may be able to delay re-entry by a few hours through exercise of the spacecraft's stabilization system," he said.

That would allow the agency to alert the public worldwide to Skylab's expected path, and might offer a slim chance to divert its falling pieces to less populated regions, he said.

But at best, he warned, scientists will have no idea where Skylab will re-enter, except that it will be within the limits of 50 degrees north and south latitude," he said. That includes all of the United States and Africa, much of Canada, and most of South America, Europe and Asia.

Arizona feels Fullerton's fury

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — It was bound to happen sometime. Sooner or later, to potent bats of Fullerton State had to explode at the College World Series and they did just that Monday night.

The victim was Arizona, which was sent home reeling under a 17-hit onslaught that produced a 16-3 Fullerton victory, keeping the Titans alive in the double-elimination tournament.

Fullerton, rated third nationally, came into the series with a .330 team batting average, but the Titans struggled at the plate in their first two games, losing to Mississippi State 6-1 and beating Connecticut 8-3.

Monday night was a different story, however, as Tim Wallach blasted a three-run homer and Sam Favata rapped four hits to lead the barrage against three Arizona pitchers.

"This has happened to us before, but Augie (Coach Augie Garrido) always gets us going again," said catcher Kurt Kingsolver, who provided a big spark by stealing home in a five-run eighth inning.

Another California team won the nightcap Monday. Eighth-rated Pepperdine eliminated No. 4 Mississippi State 5-4 in 10 innings in the best played game of the series to date.

That action left an unusual situation. For the first time in the 33-year history of the series, the four finalists are from only two leagues — Fullerton and Pepperdine of the Southern California Baseball Association and Texas and Arkansas of the Southwest Conference.

Top-rated Texas (55-6) and No. 7 Arkansas (48-13), both unbeaten in the series, meet tonight. Regardless of who wins that game, Wednesday night's schedule will be Texas against Pepperdine (52-17) and Arkansas vs. Fullerton (57-14).

Arizona (43-25) led 2-0 at one point, but Fullerton tied it in the fourth inning and went ahead in the fifth when Wallach slugged his 23rd home run of the season, a towering shot over the right fence.

Pepperdine, which split four games with Fullerton this year, had a more difficult time with Mississippi State. Designated hitter John Lais drove in the tying run with a single in the eighth, then brought home the winner with a sacrifice fly in the 10th.

Arguments not strong, but playoff seems doomed

The College Football Association's veto of a post-season tournament was predictable, but not necessarily final. However, don't book passage on those promoting a championship-setting playoff.

The arguments against it have been debated long and loud before, but for a brief review: It would interfere with the current post-season bowl setup, alienating longtime friends and doing them irreparable harm. It would interfere with the scholastic progress of the student-athlete. It would make the season too long. It would be an imitation of the pro game, and, so far, no equitable means of selecting the playoff teams has been devised.

It's also the contention of those opposed to the national championship set up that in conclusively determining a national champion, it would be a disappointment to a lot of teams. "Now we have 16 teams that are winners (presumably bowl victors) and if we had a playoff, there would be only one winner."

IT WOULD seem the next step logically would be to eliminate the NCAA basketball tournament and College World Series, rather than have all those disappointed losers.

Only trouble is, even under the present poll system, there is only one winner, sometimes two, if the coaches and writers disagree, as they did last year.

Alabama was No. 1 according to AP and USC was top team by vote the coaches. If Notre Dame felt it was No. 1 by virtue of its Cotton Bowl victory over Houston, it didn't show after the Remember when baseball required that fielders must bring their gloves to the dugout between innings rather than leave them on the field as had been the tradition since April 21, 1869?

We were told the game was forever ruined. Now, few even remember when the change was made.

And how about the outcry when freshmen were declared eligible for varsity athletics. Coaches howled, they could never compete in football. It was unfair. They groaned in protest, but for the wrong reason. The concern should have been over the freshmen establishing the proper academic foundation. Grudgingly, they agreed to accept the change and the freshmen who weren't supposed to be able to cut it, suddenly made bench warmers of a lot of seniors.

The argument that it would make the season too long would be legitimate, except that what once was a standard eight-game season is now 11, plus bowl appearances. And as for interfering with studies, most colleges are on a January break when the playoffs would be held.

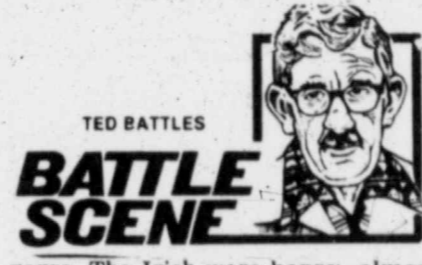

As for imitating the pro game by adopting a playoff, the colleges threw in the towel on that score when they copycatted the pros' two-platoon football.

The concern for the future of the bowls is understandable. After all, the associations have been good for conferences, communities and bowls, not to mention TV.

Once there were four major bowl games and a team earning a spot in any one of them was something special. Now the bowl field is so glutted, that even the four majors have been effected by the dilution.

IT'S POSSIBLE, isn't it, by making the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Rose bowls the sites of the four quarterfinal games that their stature would be reestablished and once every four years they would have the added prestige of hosting the college version of the Super Bowl game.

The contention that there is no mathematical way to pick the most deserving teams for a playoff is true. But then there are always many worthy and disgruntled teams on the sidelines when the NCAA basketball meet begins each March, but they do find solace in the NIT, and the "other" bowls could serve the same purpose in football, giving the uninvited or unrecognized a place to drown their grief...just, for that matter, as they do now.

THE IRISH were happy, almost as much as the ice bowl ordeal was over as by the victory, but as far as Dan Devine and his players were concerned, the only thing the game proved was that on that particular day, Notre Dame was one point better than the SWC champion.

MOSTLY, THOSE who are opposed to the change don't really know why, except that it doesn't sound right.

Jackson beats Cubs to square series, 1-1

JACKSON, MISS.—The Jackson Mets put all of their eggs in one basket here Monday night.

They scored five runs off Herman Segelke in the second inning and then held off a Midland Cub rally in the eighth inning to post a 5-4 Texas League victory before 1,259 fans.

The victory evens the current series Friday at 1-1 while Midland leads the season series 4-3. In tonight's 7:30 contest Midland will send Mark Parker (4-1) against Jackson's Paul Cateciatore (1-3). Midland will open a home series in Cubs Stadium on Friday night against San Antonio.

Jackson got five runs on five hits off Segelke in the second inning for the win as Midland left 11 runners stranded. Segelke absorbed his second loss after winning his first five starts including his fourth complete game on the mound for the Cubs.

Sergio Bodie's two-run single along with a double by Montyn Johnson highlighted a five-run outburst.

Midland scored single runs in the third, fourth, five and eighth innings as Jackson used four pitchers. In the third, Mike Turgeon single, went to second on an error by scored on a wild pitch by winner Bill Harris.

Then in the fourth, Eric Grandy led things off with a double and scored on a groundout to deep short after he

Tim Fischer pedals in memory of his wife

By RANDY YORK
 Lincoln Journal Star

Tim Fischer, a two-year starter in Nebraska's defensive football backfield, pedaled a little harder than anyone else in Saturday's 16-mile Lincoln Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon.

The 23-year-old Fischer might have tried hard under any circumstances. His father, Cletus, is an assistant coach for the Huskers and a former Midland, Texas, High School coach.

But he had a lot more to pedal for during the bike-a-thon. He lost his wife of nine weeks to cystic fibrosis only eight days earlier.

Mary Kay Shipferling Fischer's battle with the painful, fatal respiratory disease ended at age 22.

It sounds like a bitter conclusion to a brief romance. But it was much sweeter, more tender, more precious than that.

They knew what they were up against. But they hoped, they dreamed and they prayed with courage and conviction.

Both were undergrads — Tim battling for a position on the Huskers' team as a walk-on and Mary battling for something infinitely more important, her life.

They met in a university class during the fall of 1977. Their first date was the night before Tim left

WIPP hearings will expand

AUSTIN — Attorney General Mark White's office today was told by Department of Energy officials that DOE will expand hearings on the environmental impact statement for the Nuclear Waste Pilot Project (WIPP) to several Texas cities, including Midland.

DOE is planning to locate the waste project near Carlsbad, N.M. Assistant Attorney General Rick Lowere said today that DOE has informed White's office of a letter which was mailed from Washington Monday stating DOE's willingness to hold hearings in West Texas and to extend the comment period on the environmental impact statement by 60 days.

The deadline for comments has been extended to Sept. 6, Lowere said.

According to Lowere, the hearings would be held in Midland, Odessa, Lubbock or EL Paso, but dates and times have not been determined and are not expected to be fixed until next week.

DOE is holding hearings Thursday and Friday in Albuquerque, N.M., and in Idaho on the WIPP environmental impact statement.

At least one citizens' group in Odessa will be attending the hearing in Albuquerque to register comment on project.

June Naylor, an officer with the Odessa League of Women Voters, said last month the group would be addressing the proposed location of the waste site near water-bearing aquifers.

A portion of Odessa's present water supply is taken from an aquifer located within 40 miles of the WIPP site.

The city of Midland also owns rights to underground water within 40 miles of the site.

Midland and Odessa are on the rail route for transporting radioactive wastes to the plant, according to information supplied in the draft environmental impact statement for the WIPP project.

Critics of the nuclear waste repository contend that the government has not studied all the issues involved.

FBI to release sketch

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — FBI officials say they plan to release at least one and possibly three more composite sketches of persons witnesses have told them were near U.S. District Judge John Wood's townhouse the morning the judge was assassinated.

The FBI released composite sketches last Friday of two white men in their late 20s or 30s whom witnesses had said were in the "immediate vicinity" May 29 when a sniper cut down Wood with a single shot to the spine.

Daniel Shaffer, the assistant director of the investigation, said Friday of the first two composites, "We're not saying these people are connected to the case in any way, but we're not saying they're not either."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Faubus used police politically, paper says

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus routinely used state police as a political arm of the governor's office to investigate private citizens during the late 1950s and early 1960s, a Little Rock newspaper has reported.

The copyright story in Sunday's Arkansas Gazette said Faubus used the state police to conduct surveillance and investigations on political foes, blacks and liberals in Arkansas.

The newspaper said it obtained the information after researching Faubus' files and papers now kept at the University of Arkansas, which recently paid Faubus, a resident of Houston, $20,000 for his private papers.

Odessa man arrested in robberies

ODESSA — A 30-year-old Odessa man today was arrested in connection with the alleged armed robberies of a motel and a convenience store between 2:30 and 3 a.m. today.

The Inn of the Golden West at 4th and Lincoln streets downtown and a 7-Eleven store at 10th and North Grant streets were robbed within half an hour of each other this morning.

A man wearing a white hard hat and sunglasses entered the Inn of the Golden West about 2:30 a.m. carrying a .22-caliber rifle and demanded money of the three employees behind the front desk, according to Odessa Police Det. Houston Seabolt.

After the man fired a shot, the employees turned over an undisclosed amount of cash to him, Seabolt said.

While police were investigating that robbery, a report of a robbery at the 7-Eleven store came in, Seabolt said.

A man fitting the same description and carrying a .22-caliber rifle allegedly held up the 7-Eleven store, firing two shots at an employee to gain cooperation, Seabolt said.

An Odessan saw the robbery in progress and followed the man down an alley when he fled from the store on foot, Seabolt was told.

The store manager intercepted the man behind the building, Seabolt said he was told.

Both day and evening courses are being offered this summer in a variety of academic, vocational and technical fields.

Three jurors seated in Henley trial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Three prospective jurors have been seated in the retrial of Elmer Wayne Henley, 23, accused of participating in a two-year spree of sex torture and death.

The beginning of the trial was delayed 1 1/2 hours Monday when defense attorneys who thought the defendant looked too shaggy for court sent him to the jail barber. Henley reappeared with a short haircut and without his mustache.

The three prospective jurors were chosen from nine who were questioned during Monday's opening session. After 32 prospective jurors have been seated, attorneys for each side will be allowed to strike 10, leaving a jury of 12.

The case was moved to this South Texas coastal town after a new trial was ordered by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Henley was charged for his involvement with Dean Corll, a 33-year-old power company worker who allegedly sexually abused, tortured and killed more than two dozen youths.

Nuclear accident releases gas

PARIS (AP) — Radioactive gas escaped into the atmosphere after an experimental nuclear reactor in southern France developed a leak in its cooling system, the French Atomic Energy Commission said today.

But it said the escape was "very minor" and the research center was controlled by automatic procedures involving immediate shutdown of the pressurized water reactor and emergency refrigeration.

At no time was the reactor core deprived of cooling, and tests showed there was no damage to the core at the plant at Cadarache, about 30 miles from Aix-En-Provence, the Commission said.

LA officials hunt infected squirrels

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ground squirrels — and the plague-infected fleas they are believed to carry — are being hunted by health officials who have set traps in the hills east of Los Angeles.

The effort began in Riverside County when a 15-year-old boy was stricken with bubonic plague after visiting a campground near Idyllwild, some 90 miles east of Los Angeles.

Lawsuit filed against Craddick

A Florida corporation that claims it was deprived of at least $1.8 million in a land transaction in Midland has filed a suit for damages in federal court here naming State Rep. Tom Craddick, Craddick, Inc. and Jack Biscoe as defendants.

The suit, filed Friday, contends that on Sept. 12, 1978, Blawar Investments, Inc. of Florida agreed to buy 158.58 acres of land valued at $550,000 from Craddick, his company and Biscoe, a Midland Realtor.

According to the petition, on March 12, 1979, Biscoe advised Blawar the defendants would give the Florida firm a two-week extension on the March 15, 1979, closing date on the purported land deal.

Blawar contends in its petition that it had been relying on the "representations" of Biscoe.

Then on March 14, the petition claims, the defendants informed Blawar they would not honor the two-week extension of the closing date.

The petition also says title to the land has been conveyed to Citizens Savings & Loan Association and that a $20,000 down payment on the land made by the plaintiff was forfeited.

Blawar's petition says the company has been deprived of the reasonable value of the property of $1,896,000 and has been forbidden the use of the property or income from it.

According to the petition, Blawar is seeking to recover the difference in the value of the property and the contract price for which the corporation could have bought the property, exemplary damages three times the actual damages and $50,000 in attorney's fees.

New report submitted on Lozano

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A fourth pathologist's report in the death of Ector County Jail inmate Larry Ortega Lozano has been submitted to the U.S. Department of Justice, a department spokesman said today.

John Wilson, a public information officer for the Justice Department, said the report was submitted to the department within the last week. He would not disclose the findings of that report nor the name of the pathologist.

The criminal section of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division had asked for a fourth pathologist's opinion early in May.

Previously, pathologists' reports were given in the case by Odessa pathologist Dr. Kris Challipalli, El Paso coroner Dr. Frederick Bornstein and Houston medical examiner Joseph Jachimczyk.

Dr. Challipalli originally had found that the 22-year-old jail inmate died from a sharp blow to the back of the head.

Dr. Bornstein said Lozano died from a "massive blunt trauma" and, during an inquest held in Odessa in April 1978, termed the death "homicide" in the broad definition of the term.

But Jachimczyk said Lozano died from a crushed larynx and that the death was accidental. The inquest jury agreed with that opinion and ruled the death accidental.

Lozano died in Ector County Jail Jan. 22, 1978, and his death has been the subject of controversy since.

Mexican-American groups have contended Lozano was beaten to death by deputies for the Ector County Sheriff's Department, an allegation staunchly denied by the department and other Ector County officials.

The Justice Department entered the case in July 1978, and held a federal grand jury investigation in Midland.

According to Justice Department officials, the department now is attempting to determine whether Lozano's civil rights were violated.

Results of the department's probe may still be some time in coming, Wilson indicated today.

The case still is going through the review process, he said.

Wilson could not specify when results of that investigation will be announced, but said, "I think we will have a decision before too long. I don't think it will be months."
