MX decision saved SALT pact, says Byrd

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's decision to build the MX missile has saved the proposed U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty from certain defeat in the Senate, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday.

Petitions to save Hill house to be presented to county

Hoping to halt the Midland Independent School District's condemnation proceedings against the Irene Hill estate, a group of Midlanders is expected to appear at Monday's meeting of the Midland County Commissioners' Court to present petitions opposing the condemnation.

Presentation of the petitions by Don McCarty, a member of a group which calls itself People Resisting Inminent Domain Exploitation, is the fifth item on the commission's 15-item agenda.

The meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in the Commissioners' Courtroom at Midland County Courthouse.

PRIDE surfaced recently in the wake of opposition to condemnation proceedings against the Hill property which includes the Hill house, built in 1902 by the Cowden family at Illinois Avenue and F Street.

The school district plans to use the Hill property and other land between Illinois and Tennessee avenues from the current Midland High School campus to F Street to build parking lots and athletic practice fields for MHS students.

But PRIDE members have said they do not believe destruction of the Hill house would be beneficial to progress of the community.

"We would prefer to have the Hill house preserved as it is a historical landmark of our city," the petition states.

Members of PRIDE have said they plan to present petitions with the signatures of at least 4,000 registered voters to the commissioners to gain their support before approaching the school district's board of trustees on Tuesday.

Opponents are seeking to halt the eminent domain action which allows the school district to purchase the property for public use without regard to the owner's wish to sell.

The group has criticized the school board for selling the North Elementary School campus two years ago, saying the action showed a lack of planning on the part of the school board because that property could have been used for MHS expansion.

The North campus, a square block across A Street from MHS, was sold to a Midland bank two years ago. Funds from the sale were used to construct a vocational building on the MHS campus.

Dr. James Mailey, MISD superintendent, has said the North campus administration officials said the MX, by being mobile, would enable the U.S. land-based nuclear force to survive a first strike by the Soviet Union and thus maintain the nation's so-called strategic "triad."

Byrd added that he was one of a number of undecided senators who would have voted against SALT if Carter had rejected the MX, a mobile intercontinental ballistic missile that is expected to cost $30 billion.

"Rejection of MX would have killed SALT," Byrd said. "You're looking at one vote that would have been lost."

The White House announced Friday that the president had decided in favor of full-scale development of the MX to replace the aging Minuteman missile, which is increasingly vulnerable to new, more accurate Soviet missiles.

Administration officials said the MX, by being mobile, would enable the U.S. land-based nuclear force to survive a first strike by the Soviet Union and thus maintain the nation's so-called strategic "triad."

However, some critics have accused Carter of announcing his long-awaited decision on the MX at this time to boost prospects for SALT. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, called the decision "transparent salesmanship" to buy votes for ratification.

Byrd, who remains officially uncommitted on the treaty, said development of the MX, while saving SALT from certain defeat, does not assure the two-thirds Senate approval needed for ratification.

The majority leader added that he called the president before the MX decision was made and advised him about the likely consequences if the new missile were rejected.

Byrd also said he would not attend the treaty signing in Vienna later this month, but was considering a trip to the Soviet Union in July to discuss SALT with Soviet officials.

The senator reaffirmed that the Senate should finish work on the treaty by the end of the year to prevent it from becoming a partisan election-year issue.

On another topic, Byrd said the administration "will have an opportunity to make its case" for its refusal to lift economic sanctions against the new biracial Zimbabwe-Rhodesia government before the Senate votes on the issue.

A military procurement bill containing a provision lifting the sanctions will be before the Senate Monday. HOWEVER, Byrd said a vote price. He is infuriating some by implying that those who are not blindly in favor of SALT II are "warmongers."

Irrespective of what the treaty embodies, this has been bad handling all around. At a time when Mr. Carter's relationship with the lawmakers is at ebb, anyway, it is disastrous to try to push the administration's most important program through the Senate by threats.

One cannot escape the belief that the Carter people are thinking of SALT II in almost exclusively political terms. There lingers the feeling that the president believes this pact will restore his dwindling image in Congress and throughout the nation.

The other side of that coin, of course, is that if he fails to get this through the Senate, it will be a crushing personal defeat and one that possibly he will not survive. Thus one questions the wisdom of his strategy in betting the entire pot on one throw of the dice.

The treaty, itself, is regarded by many as just plain bad. It castrates the one remaining example of U.S. technological superiority — the cruise missile. In addition, it grants the Soviets a powerful advantage over us in just about every weapons system.

The Soviet Union already has a slight superiority over U.S. weaponry in some areas. It has been building as rapidly as possible in the last half

WIPP key issues remain unclear after hearings

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — After two days of testimony by experts and citizens, issues raised by the location of an underground nuclear waste facility in southeastern New Mexico still remain muddled.

For example:

— How safe will it be to transport radioactive nuclear wastes to the site?

— Who will be responsible in the event of an accident?

— How safe is the site?

About 70 persons spoke on those subjects during hearings on the draft Environmental Impact Statement for the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant project which concluded here Friday. The project is an underground nuclear waste experiment which the U.S. Department of Energy proposes to conduct 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad near the Texas-New Mexico border.

The only items agreed upon that came out of the two-day hearing were that the WIPP project would either cause more problems than it solved or that WIPP guarantees a future of nuclear power.

WIPP REMAINS a controversial topic in this state where the Atomic Age began 35 years ago when Manhattan Project scientists split the atom.

Source of all that controversy is the DOE, which wants to begin construction on the project in 1981.

No one at the hearing could guarantee that nuclear waste transportation would be accident-free.

Speakers in favor of WIPP said hazards from accidents involving radioactive materials were no worse than hazards already in existence.

D. Graham Foster, a nuclear physicist, contended that sulphur-laden train cars already passing through southeastern New Mexico pose as much of a risk as nuclear material in the event of a derailment and fire.

On the other side of the coin, Dr. Charles Hyder, a geophysicist, said the containers which the government is developing to hold the wastes have failed the government's own tests.

A NUMBER OF anti-WIPP speakers threatened civil disobedience in the event nuclear wastes roll into New Mexico on trains or trucks.

"We started the nuclear arms and power race in New Mexico and we can stop it," Craig Simpson, an Albuquerque pacifist, said.

It became apparent that no one could say who would be liable in the event of an accident along transportation routes or at the WIPP site.

Normally, the Price-Anderson Act provides liability up to $560 million.

But Don Hancock, director for Southwest Research Information Center in Albuquerque, pointed out the act would expire in 1987.

Dr. John Cumberland, an economist and a hearing panel member, proposed taxing those who would benefit from the WIPP site.

CUMBERLAND SAID the proceeds would be used for compensation in the event of an accident, and for economic aid to communities near the WIPP site.

Questions of liability also were raised by representatives of the Texas Water Development Board and the Odessa League of Women Voters. They asked the DOE for assurance of an additional water supply in the event aquifers in the vicinity of the

UTPB faculty policy draws censure from teacher group

HOUSTON (AP) — Three universities were censured, while the same sanction was removed from another school, by the American Association of University Professors during its 65th annual meeting here.

The association, which is the nation's largest professional organization of college and university professors, voted Friday to remove a censure of Oklahoma State University imposed in 1970.

At the same time, it censured the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa, the University of Maryland and Wingate College of North Carolina for their faculty policy.

The association also released figures showing average salaries for university professors throughout the country continued to fall farther behind the cost of living, a trend that started in 1972.

The average pay increase for all faculty rose 6 percent, while the consumer price level climbed 9.3 percent, said W. Lee Hansen, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Why is President Carter in such a hurry to sign SALT II?

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH
HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK—A week from today

President Carter will be in Vienna preparing to sign the SALT II treaty with Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev, having given skimpy details of the document to a few congressional leaders.

It will then be up to the Senate to do one of three things: ratify the treaty; amend it; or reject it entirely. It will require a two-thirds vote to approve the treaty, either the original or an amended form, and on-the-scene professional observers for The Hearst Newspapers tell us it is doubtful the administration — despite great pressure — can round up the necessary votes.

Two aspects of the White House's handling of the SALT II agreement are both puzzling and disturbing to me.

Why, for instance, is Mr. Carter in such a big hurry to get the document signed?

And why has Secretary of State Cyrus Vance informed the Senate that the arms pact is too delicate to survive amendment on the Senate floor?

Were the words of the treaty handed down on stone tablets?

Mr. Vance's hard-nosed posture reminds old hands of Woodrow Wilson's intransigence in 1919 when he insisted that the signing of the Versailles treaty be tied inseparably to membership in the League of Nations.

Wilson staked his career on it — and lost.

Jimmy Carter seems to be repeating the mistake made by Wilson — he is making it Carter's treaty and Carter's view of what the world should be like.

Instead of convincing the senators that they should embrace his viewpoint, he is alienating them by causing them by causing them to infer that Mr. Carter wants peace at almost any price.

He is infuriating some by implying that those who are not blindly in favor of SALT II are "warmongers."

Irrespective of what the treaty embodies, this has been bad handling all around. At a time when Mr. Carter's relationship with the lawmakers is at ebb, anyway, it is disastrous to try to push the administration's most important program through the Senate by threats.

One cannot escape the belief that the Carter people are thinking of SALT II in almost exclusively political terms. There lingers the feeling that the president believes this pact will restore his dwindling image in Congress and throughout the nation.

Whalen Lake hearing postponed until June 25

AUSTIN — A hearing before the Texas Railroad Commission here on the issue of reopening Whalen Lake to oilfield brine disposal has been postponed until June 25, according to officials with the commission.

Whalen Lake is a shallow, isolated playa lake in Andrews County formerly used for the disposal of brine refuse from producing oil wells in that area.

The facility, owned by the Whalen Corp. of Dallas, was closed to brine disposal in October 1978, after complaints were lodged by a U.S. Department of the Interior agent and environmentalists that oil and sludge running into the salt lake was killing migrating waterfowl.

Oil producers have contended, however, that closing the lake to brines disposal could lead to premature abandonment of marginal production and an estimated loss of 20,000 barrels of oil per month.

Whalen Corp. had filed an application to lift the disposal ban.

Early in May the Railroad Commission left intact its ban on dumping at the facility while it continued to check into the controversy at the playa lake.

The reopening hearing had been scheduled for Tuesday, but was postponed until June 25 because one of the commissioners, who wants to be present for the hearing, will be away from Austin on Tuesday. No conference is scheduled for June 18.

If the commission denies Whalen's reopening request, the corporation can, within 15 days, reapply for another hearing.

Or the company may file for a new application any time it can present new evidence, according to officials.

Jury selection set in murder trial

Jury selection is expected to begin Monday morning in Midland's 142nd District Court in the murder trial of 20-year-old James Earl Whitlow of 1710 Butternut Lane.

Whitlow is charged in connection with the Feb. 18, 1979, shooting death of 14-year-old Poetry Lashan Brazell of Midland.

Attorneys for the state and the defense are expected to begin questioning of potential jurors at 9 a.m.

Pre-trial motions were presented Friday in 142nd District Court and action on those motions is expected at 8:30 a.m. Monday. One of those motions deals with admitting into the trial a statement Whitlow gave to police officers concerning the incident.

Police found the body of Miss Brazell, an eighth grade student at Alamo Junior High School, in Hogan Park about 8 a.m. Feb. 18.

Whitlow subsequently was arrested and charged with murder in the case. Shortly thereafter, he was indicted on the charge by the Midland County grand jury.

Whitlow is being represented in his trial by defense attorney Rusty Wall of Midland.

Presenting the state's case will be assistant district attorneys Charles Seltzer and Timothy Sloan.

Tech awarded management grant

AUSTIN — Texas Tech University in Lubbock has been awarded $3,326 to assist in the improvement of Odessa and Midland's personnel management system.

Announcement of the award was made by Omar Harvey, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

The program requires a local match of one-half the project's total cost and is to be completed by Aug. 31, 1979.

The Texas Department of Community Affairs will administer the grant made available by the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970 through the U.S. Office of Personnel Management.

Police release man in subway incident

NEW YORK (AP) — Police said late Saturday afternoon that a man they were holding in a Manhattan stationhouse no longer was considered a suspect in the pushing of a 17-year-old musician into the path of a subway train.

MCAA board to meet Monday

A change in the bylaws of the Midland Community Action Agency's board of directors, which would allow the board to operate with fewer members present, will be up for consideration at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The meeting will be held in the Justice of the Peace Courtroom at Midland County Courthouse.

During their last two meetings board members have discussed changing the bylaws to allow the board to operate if only half of the active, qualified members are present. Under present bylaws, eight of the board's 15 members must be present to constitute a quorum.

All members of the board were to be notified of the impending change. According to board President Alfredo Rey, if two-thirds of the members present at Monday's meeting approve, the bylaw change will go into effect.

Also at Monday's meeting, the board is expected to hear a report from new Executive Director Neva Cooper. Mrs. Cooper was hired in late May to fill the position vacated by Alexandra Morris.

MCAA also is expected to consider an audit, relocation of the main office, a bus and support for the agency.

The agency has been criticized by city government officials during recent months and has operated without city support for the past two years.

Homemaking classes begin at Midland High

Summer homemaking classes at Midland High School's Homemaking Department are scheduled to begin Monday, June 19-22.

Students will be offered ideas, and simple items will be sewn for the home.

Interested persons may register at Midland High School, Room 113, at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The classes will be taught by Darlene Hicks and Mary Lockhart.

A class on sewing techniques will be taught from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through June 22. There will be a demonstration of "Stretch and Sew" techniques will be on Thursday.

A class on "Sewing for the Home" will be offered from 1 to 3 p.m.

Soviets turning to neighborhood nuclear stations

By BARTON REPPERT
MOSCOW (AP) — Despite growing concern in Western countries over the safety of nuclear power, the Soviet Union is going ahead with plans to build atomic power plants right in large Soviet cities.

clear stations amount to a radical departure from the general practice followed here previously and in the West — of locating atomic installations at considerable distance from cities.

The Soviet program reflects the Kremlin's still-undaunted commitment to large-scale development of nuclear power, particularly in the U.S.S.R.'s European area where local fossil fuel reserves are dwindling.

The in-city plants would supply both heat and electricity.

THERE IS no organized, public opposition to atomic power in the Soviet Union. And Soviet officials and the government-controlled news media tend to ascribe the anti-nuclear movement in the West to uninformed hysteria or machinations by oil monopolies worried over a potential threat to their profits.

ALEXANDROV said that because the nuclear stations would generate energy more efficiently than conventional plants, "calculations show that their cost will be recouped within five to six years."

In the same Izvestia article, Alexandrov sought to minimize the significance of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident outside Harrisburg, Pa.

the in-city plants to provide "guarantees of radiation safety."

from the Soviet Union's policy up to now of locating nuclear plants no closer than about 6 miles from urban areas.

EACH PLANT would utilize two 500-megawatt reactors to supply heat to the vicinity through an extensive network of hot-water pipes, according to a report prepared by Teploelektroproekt, a division of the Soviet Ministry of Power and Electrification.

The report conceded, however, that "the proximity of nuclear heat-supply stations to large cities and connection of users with the stations through the network water poses very acutely the problem of assuring radiation safety."

Soviet cities already rely to a considerable extent — much more so than in the United States — on district heating systems, currently fed by fossil-fueled plants.

ANATOLY P. Alexandrov, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, discussed the basic concept behind the neighborhood-nuclear program in an article appearing earlier this year in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

He noted that "even if we were to switch over all electric power stations to atomic energy, we would reduce the consumption of fossil fuel by only 20 percent."

"Therefore we have decided to search for ways of applying atomic energy also in other areas of energy consumption — district heating of cities, heating apartment houses and in technological processes at industrial enterprises," Alexandrov wrote.

The academician said Soviet scientists and engineers have been able to develop nuclear reactors "so safe that it will be possible to place them directly in residential neighborhoods. The building of such atomic heat-supply stations has already been started."

"AS A MATTER of fact, small unpleasant consequences were described in an immensely exaggerated way" by the press, he said.

was considered as a site for the practice fields, but was rejected because of space considerations and it is not connected to the MHS campus. He said thrust of the MHS expansion program is to bring the school's facilities up to the level of those at Lee High School. Also at Monday's meeting, commissioners are expected to appoint appraisers for land to be acquired for the Midland North Loop Road and State Highway 191 between Midland and Odessa. State Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson and State Rep. Tom Craddock, both of Midland, are scheduled to present an update on the recently-completed legislative session.

Police 'sting' team sweeps two states for 92 arrests

NORTH ATTLEBOROUGH, Mass. (AP) — An undercover operation, in which police set up a phony fencing operation, ended Saturday in a two state sweep of raids and arrests. Officials said approximately $200,000 worth of stolen goods was purchased by an eight-man "sting" team which lived under assumed names for six months in this community on the Rhode Island border. Police expected to make 92 arrests before the day was over. "You've just witnessed the organization of probably one of the largest raids or strike forces in the Commonwealth," Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina said after 200 federal, state and local police made arrests. Busloads of state police met at the North Attleborough High School at 5 a.m. and began bringing in carloads of mostly young prisoners within half an hour. Those arrested on indictments issued by Bristol and Norfolk county grand juries were shuffled through all-day arraignment sessions at Wrentham District and New Bedford Superior Court.

Bush says he can defeat Connally

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Presidential candidate George Bush said Saturday he has never lost a Republican primary election in Texas, and "I don't plan to start now" — even though the opposition next year should include former Texas Gov. John Connally, as well as others. Connally, elected governor three times as a Democrat in the 1960s, switched to the Republican Party in 1973 and announced this year as a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Bush lost U.S. Senate races in 1964 and 1970, after winning the Republican primary in Texas.

Bush said he thinks President Carter will be the Democratic nominee in 1980. He said he did not think Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., would contest Carter.

Asked if Kennedy could win the nomination, Bush replied, "No — No. 1, I don't think he'd beat President Carter."

Bush described Kennedy as a "myth who is looked at by different standards. ... Kennedy is not being examined under the presidential lens. I think he'd be vulnerable."

Fair, warmer weather seen through Monday

Saturday's cloudy skies should be cleared by today and remain that way through Monday, the weatherman said.

Today should be a little warmer than the mild temperatures Midlanders enjoyed Saturday, with the high today and Monday predicted to be in the mid-80s. Low tonight should be in the upper 50s.

Winds are expected to be from the east to southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

Saturday's high reached an almost summery 82 degrees despite an early morning thundershower that left parts of the city with some rain.

The morning's low was recorded at 63 degrees. Record temperatures for Saturday's date are a sultry 104 set in 1964 and a cool 55 degrees set in 1955.

The National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport recorded 67 inch of rain Saturday, upping the monthly total to 2.75 inches and the annual accumulation to 6.75.

The showers left some 2.5 inches of rain in Andrews with about 1.2 inches recorded in Stanton. Big Lake and Big Spring, however, got only a little sprinkle early Saturday, weather watchers said, but held on to the humidity.

LULAC seeking 'justice' in Lozano death

ODESSA — With hints of impending indictments and threats of political retaliation if they are not forthcoming, a group of local and state Mexican-American leaders told the media and a few supporters Saturday that justice must be done in the death of Larry Ortega Lozano.

Lozano died Jan. 22, 1978, while an inmate in the Ector County Jail.

With street lights and neon signs reflected in Saturday morning's rain-filled streets, the downtown area remains asleep with the exception of one bicyclist taking a spin down Big Spring Street at dawn. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Issues still unclear after hearings on underground nuke waste dump

Albuquerque were opposed to the WIPP project. Future of the project remained unanswered by the close of the hearing. Hyder called it "a dead issue." Dr. Irwin Remson, a panel member, responded to charges that the hearing was rigged by saying the project's future would be based on information presented to the panel. "I have seen projects go under because of protests," Remson told a predominantly hostile audience. Meanwhile, panel members and speakers for WIPP charged that failure to develop a method of nuclear waste disposal would seriously hamper the future of the nuclear industry.

David Perkins, a vice president for Nuclear Engineering Services, said nuclear power would no longer be "a viable option" if the WIPP site failed. "The future of nuclear power is tied with the nuclear waste issue," he said. Perkins' comments along with those of the other speakers will be sent to Washington for the final environmental statement. An additional public hearing will be held in West Texas this summer.

California patrol officers stage sickout in pay protest
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Almost all California Highway Patrol traffic officers called in sick Saturday in a demand for higher pay, leaving sergeants, supervisors and local police to handle emergencies. The weekend sickout, the first in the patrol's 57-year history, was called to bolster the patrolmen's demands for a 20.6 percent pay raise. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has offered a 10.5 percent increase, with a threat of "no work, no pay." State workers received no pay raise last year because of the budget cuts brought on by the property tax-limiting Proposition 13.

Highway patrol information officer Kent Milton said 533 of 564 traffic officers scheduled to work the 6 a.m. shift did not report. He said, however, that there were 242 sergeants and supervisors who did report. Along with the 31 traffic officers who worked, the force was 49 percent of scheduled strength, Milton said. Sergeants and supervisors would be called into the case, Bonilla demanded prosecution before the end of the grand jury term July 9. "No Hispanic leader will ever allow this case to disappear from the files of federal cases without justice being done," he warned. The indictments Mexican-American leaders have called for should be handed down within the next two three weeks, according to Ruben Sandoval, attorney for the Lozano family. Sandoval said he had just returned from meetings in Washington, D.C., with officials from the offices of Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. Both sets of officials promised "to assist us in this matter."

"It's just a matter of time now until indictments are handed down," Sandoval predicted. He said a "substantial number, including several multi-count indictments" will be handed down within two or three weeks, although he would not name his source for the information. Sandoval said he was told the fourth pathologist's report on Lozano had been received by the U.S. Department of Justice, and that it was favorable to the group's cause.

Earlier pathology reports had been made by Dr. Kris Challapalli, an Odessa pathologist; Dr. Frederick Bornstein, an El Paso pathologist hired by the Lozano family, and by Harris County medical examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk. If indictments are not handed down within that time frame, both leaders agreed, President Jimmy Carter should make "wholesale changes in the Department of Justice. This should include the removal of Drew Days and Benjamin Civiletti," two men Bonilla cited as "bottlenecks" in the prosecution of the case. An Ector County inquest ruled Lozano's death as accidental, resulting from a crushed larynx sustained when sheriff's deputies tried to subdue him.

The Mexican-American leaders claim Lozano was beaten to death and that Ector County officials, including District Attorney John Green, have conspired to cover up the act.

Doctor restriction claimed

By SUSAN TOBH
Staff Writer

While Midland faces a growing shortage of general and family practice physicians, some critics of the medical community are contending that new doctors are being discouraged from coming here.

One young doctor, whose family lives here, decided last week not to set up practice in Midland because of restrictions he felt were placed on his hospital privileges.

Dr. Dan Stuckey told Midland medical officials last week he will take his family practice specialty elsewhere because he would not have been allowed to perform Caesarian sections and tubal ligations at Midland Memorial Hospital.

The restrictions, according to Dr. William Hibbitts, chief of staff at Midland Memorial Hospital, are not uncommon in most cities.

"None of the other family practitioners here do that kind of procedure," Hibbitts said. "That is one of the aspects of the bylaws designed to protect patients."

Hospital bylaws prohibit that type of procedure from being done by anyone other than a trained obstetrician or gynecologist.

However, Stuckey might have been given the privilege later after being observed by members of the obstetrics-gynecologist, or ob-gyn, staff while he assisted in such procedures, according to Dr. James McGee, head of the Midland County Medical Society.

Moreover, Midland physicians — through the county medical society — are actively trying to bring qualified doctors to the city, McGee said.

Perhaps the real problem with Stuckey's application, McGee said, was a lack of communication between the hospital staff and the doctor after his application for hospital privileges was received.

Any doctor applying for hospital admitting privileges must have an office in Midland County and his license registered here.

Once those two criteria are met, temporary privileges can be granted by the medical staff, hospital administrator or the board of trustees, McGee said.

However, a lengthy and fairly complicated process is necessary before permanent admitting privileges are granted, McGee noted. The doctor's application is presented to the hospital medical staff, then referred to the credentials committee of the staff. The committee checks his credentials through the American Medical Association, then makes a recommendation to the staff executive committee and finally to the staff at large, which meets every other month.

Once the medical staff has approved the application, the board of trustees and board of governors give final approval to the new doctor, who becomes a full member of the staff.

A new doctor unfamiliar with the lengthy process could become upset by the delay, McGee said.

Ironically, Stuckey's application was approved by the staff executive committee the week he decided not to come to Midland.

McGee said he plans to ask the county association to assign an established doctor to help explain and facilitate the move through the maze of approvals for each new applicant.

Despite the problems, new doctors are being attracted to Midland by the recruiting committees of the county association and the Chamber of Commerce.

Some 22 new physicians have been brought to the city in the past five years, Hibbitts said, through physician recruiting efforts.

Referring to an implication by some critics that young physicians were limited in their hospital privileges to keep highly paid procedures in the hands of established doctors, Hibbitts said, "None of us has enough time as it is. We would like help if it's competent."

Recruiting doctors to Midland sometimes is difficult, he acknowledged.

"We have felt by getting a first rate hospital with excellent facilities, we would attract physicians," Hibbitts said, adding that the prosperous economic atmosphere here also is an attraction for young doctors.

Efforts to bring new doctors to Midland will continue, McGee noted.

Members of the county medical association were polled this year to determine the needs they saw as most critical.

The number one priority is a thoracic surgeon, McGee said, followed by three more family practitioners and additional obstetricians and gynecologists.

Jackson to unveil new energy legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new package of energy legislation, boasting support from Democratic and Republican congressional leaders, will be unveiled early this week, the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee said Saturday.

Sen. Henry Jackson, chief sponsor of the legislation, said the package, which he termed "substantial," will contain incentives designed to boost U.S. supplies of oil and synthetic fuels, such as those derived from coal.

"It's an effort to marshal our resources to meet our energy needs," the Washington Democrat said, adding he would unveil the proposals Monday.

Although the senator declined to give details about the plan, an aide said the proposals will seek to increase domestic production of oil, natural gas, coal-related fuels and solar energy through new incentives administered by the Energy Department.

The aide, who asked not to be named, said the package will propose both short- and long-term responses to the nation's energy shortage.

Jackson's proposals apparently result from a White House meeting Wednesday between President Carter and congressional energy leaders in which Carter pledged to join force with Congress in assembling a major new energy package.

Participants at the meeting said the package would contain new government subsidies for coal-derived fuels and legislation expediting the building of new pipelines.

The measures would also stress production rather than conservation, the participants said. Many of Carter's past proposals to spur conservation have been rejected by Congress.

Jackson, who attended the White House session, said his proposals resulted from efforts by congressional leaders of both parties to "identify areas where we can get some agreement so we can push it through quickly."

He said all the legislation would be handled by his Energy Committee.

That means the proposals will not include tax incentives which would require approval of the Senate Finance Committee, where other tax-related energy proposals have run into trouble.

Earlier Saturday, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd warmly praised Jackson's proposals, saying they would show that "there is leadership here in the Senate to deal with the energy problems."

Area cancer center

An Odessa challenge has resulted in the scheduling of a rehearing by the Projects Review Committee of the Permian Basin Health Systems of Midland Memorial Hospital's application for a certificate of need for a $1.7 million cancer treatment center.

"Hopefully, the committee, which, at a meeting held last week, decided it had failed to follow its written procedures in an earlier session, will reaffirm its former favorable action on the Midland application at the rehearing. There is no reason to expect otherwise since conditions, facts and figures have not changed. The protest by our 'good neighbors' to the west thus, merely will delay the start of construction of the much needed facility.

It is strange, indeed, that a stumbling block would be tossed in the path of such a great and worthwhile project, the sole objective of which is to serve the health requirements of residents of this section of the Permian Basin Empire. The Odessa protest smacks of selfishness and the possible loss of a few pieces of silver.

It is even more confusing to many persons as to why, when someone is sufficiently interested to finance such a facility, that it cannot be accomplished without going through so many agencies and so much red tape. We do not have the answer, but this is the way it appears to be in this day and age. If state and federal funds were involved, it would be more readily understandable. But that is not the case in this instance.

You will recall that on May 30 announcement was made of a $1.5 million gift to Midland Memorial Hospital by Helen Y. Allison of Midland for establishing the Allison Permian Basin Center for Radiation Therapy. The gift was made in memory of Mrs. Allison's husband, James N. Allison Sr., and son, James N. Allison Jr., both of whom had been active in founding and developing Midland Memorial Hospital. Accrued interest from Mrs. Allison's $1.5 million gift is expected to provide the difference between the amount of the contribution and the $1.7 million estimated cost of the facility.

The treatment center, of course, will be a tremendous asset to Midland Memorial, but it would be of even greater and more lasting benefit to residents of Midland and surrounding areas. Yet, Odessa's Medical Center Hospital challenges Midland's right to have such a facility.

Odessa's Medical Center opposes establishing of the cancer treatment center, even with funds provided by a generous benefactor, because that hospital claims such a center would duplicate facilities already available in Odessa.

Proponents, however, point out that the Midland center would offer sophisticated treatments not now available in the Permian Basin. Factual data has been offered to substantiate Midland's claim. Certainly, the proposed center would be equipped with the very latest and most modern facilities for the care and treatment of patients. Odessa should withdraw its objection to the proposed facility in the interest of needed health care for residents of this area, provided in "near home" surroundings.

The Odessa opposition in no way, however, detracts from Mrs. Allison's kindness, thoughtfulness and generosity in making the contribution to finance the treatment center. Her generous gift symbolizes philanthropy at its very best, opening the way perhaps for other gifts to the Midland hospital and other worthy causes here and throughout the region. Midland and area residents certainly should be ever grateful to her for her interest and action in this regard.

We realize that under existing rules, certain requirements must be met, but, with the interest of cancer patients of the area in mind, it is hoped that approval of the Midland application will be granted as promptly as possible by local agencies and right on up to the Texas Health Facilities Commission at Austin. The need is that urgent.

NICK THIMMESCH

Columnist takes look at congressional privileges

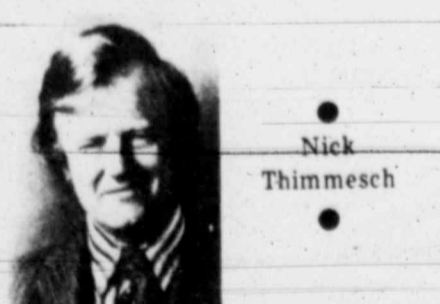

WASHINGTON — The other morning many a coffee cup was rattled and perhaps some orange juice spilled when a local print proclaimed that limousines used by the congressional leadership get fill-ups for 67 cents a gallon at exclusive pumps on Capitol Hill.

Egads, a gasoline scandal to rouse the citizenry anxious over this summer's motoring? No, it turns out that the government buys the gas, wholesale and actually saves taxpayers money. Besides, there aren't that many congressional big shots eligible for the limo privilege any more.

But then I got to thinking about some legitimate gripes the public should have against privileges Congress gives itself. Several years back, Congress enacted new, tougher legislation to enforce Equal Employment Opportunity Commission regulations on discriminatory hiring. I learned that Congress had exempted itself, naturally, from this law, and that some of the most liberal and civil righteously senators had few, if any, blacks on their staffs.

This privilege and others on the discrimination question were seriously challenged last week by a Supreme Court ruling that members of Congress can be sued by employees claiming discrimination. The case involved a woman who had been fired a few years back by her boss, now former Congressman Otto Passman, because he deemed it "essential" to replace her with a man.

Congress, for all its piety over civil rights, hasn't extended itself to hire minorities or advance women to better jobs. Indeed, the Wayne Hays syndrome still lives. Moreover, blacks could get ahead quicker in industry or on Sen. Strom Thurmond's staff than they could in the rest of Congress.

Congress huffs and puffs, and passes all manner of regulatory laws, creates EPA and OSHA, but exempts itself. The Clean Air Act has been transgressed plenty by the power plant providing heat and air conditioning to Congress, but its chief engineer refuses to accept a violation notice.

As the June 2 issue of National Journal reports, Congress would have trouble if OSHA inspectors came round. But they won't because the law won't let them. The whole battery of Labor Department regulations doesn't apply to Congress, either.

Nor do congressmen or their employees have to pay fast-rising Social Security taxes. Congress has its own retirement system, one more generous than other federal employees enjoy. And if a congressional staffer quits, he or she can draw out all payments to the retirement fund. We who pay Social Security are not allowed to do that.

An argument can be made that with a $1 billion budget and many many fringes, Congress is the absolute welfare state. Congress is overstuffed,

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Politicians help the Arabs

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — For the past decade, the Central Intelligence Agency has chronicled the sorry story of how the United States, the leader of the free world, has been reduced to petroleum dependency on a group of Arab rulers — only a generation removed from tribal feudalism.

The story is classified, of course, to protect the politicians who were manipulated by the international oil puppeteers. Through the connivance of people in high places, the abused American taxpayers helped to underwrite the oil industry's expansion into the Arab countries.

The secret CIA accounts show that later (1) the shah of Iran became the real power behind the drive for higher oil prices; (2) the United States had the clout to stop the shah from driving prices up; (3) Saudi Arabia offered to help hold prices down; (4) all the Saudis asked was for the United States to persuade the shah to cooperate.

Indeed, the Saudis were prepared to flood the world market with enough oil to break the price fixed by the cartel. But they were unwilling to stand alone. Just a word from Washington, apparently, would have averted the ruinous oil price rise. But the word never came.

Now the American taxpayers, who helped finance the exploration and drilling in the Arab desert, are victims of the oil cartel they helped to create. The plundering of their pocketbooks has brought undreamed wealth to the sheiks and emirs. The reserves of the 13 oil cartel countries swelled from $6 billion in 1973 to $145 billion in 1977. By 1985, the World Bank estimates these nations should accumulate $1.2 trillion.

This staggering transfer of wealth has produced an economic world turned upside down. Here are some stark evidences:

— These days, Americans are cramping themselves into compact cars to save on gasoline as it approaches the dollar-a-gallon level. In Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, the sons of camel drivers ride the streets of Riyadh in Cadillacs.

— Our poor and elderly are paying out one-third of their meager subsistence for energy costs. Their contributions are helping to provide the Arabs along the Persian Gulf with new housing, medical centers, hospitals and nursing homes.

— Our cities are decaying and struggling to stave off bankruptcy. In 1960, Abu Dhabi was a dry, squalid fortress and fishing village. Today because of the oil billions pouring into the United Arab Emirates it is a gleaming metropolis of luxury hotels, boulevards, marble mansions and shopping malls. Other modern-day Babylons are springing up from the desert sands.

— The once-dominant Wall Street banking houses and investment firms are now plagued with a sagging dollar as the U.S. balance of trade has plunged ever deeper into deficit. The tribute we pay for petroleum,

What's good for goose is good for the putter

WASHINGTON — A new chapter in the annals of justice — or is it golf — was written last week when a Washington physician was charged with beating a Canadian goose to death with his putter on the 17th green of the Congressional Country Club.

The charges brought by federal wildlife authorities were originally investigated by the country club's board of directors, but they came to no conclusion as to what really happened. Dr. Sherman A. Thomas, the accused golfer, said that his approach shot to the green hit the goose, one of two hanging around the 17th hole. In his medical opinion, the goose was in such agony from the blow of the ball that the doctor decided to put it out of its misery. Instead of pulling the lug on the goose, he struck it several times with his putting iron, thus performing the first mercy killing of a feathered bird on any golf course since the game was invented.

But there is another version, and this is the reason the wildlife people have preferred charges. Dr. Thomas, according to an eyewitness, was about to putt when the goose honked. This, the witness maintains, so enraged the physician that he attacked the goose with his putter and killed the bird.

The doctor is charged with "knowingly killing a goose out of season" and also with being "illegally in possession of a dead Canadian goose." Even had Dr. Thomas killed the goose when the hunting season was on, he would still have been in violation of the law as the Bird Act specifies you can only go after geese with shotguns, bows and arrows, falcons and goshawks.

Putters are out of the question. If the doctor is found guilty he could receive a maximum sentence of six months in jail and a fine of $500.

So much for killing one's goose.

The main question is how does this affect the game of golf? Every golfer I heard out gave me a different interpretation of the rules.

One said, "I believe that Dr. Thomas should have been penalized one stroke for each time he hit the goose." But someone else in the locker room disagreed. "No, you cannot be penalized no matter how many times you strike at the bird, providing you don't move your ball. From what I understand, Thomas approached the ball; the goose honked; he left the ball on the green, and started to swing his putter at the Canadian's head. It might be considered illegal bird killing, but it certainly is not illegal golf."

"Wait a minute," another duffer said. "Thomas' story was that his ball accidentally hit the goose on his approach shot to the green. Therefore, although he had to play his ball from the spot where it fell after it struck the bird, he was still under-par when he attacked the goose with his putter."

"But why the putter?" someone asked. "Wouldn't it have been more merciful if he had done it with a five iron?"

"It's all right for us to sit here in the locker-room and Monday-quarterback Thomas' choice of irons, but I believe you have to be in his golf shoes before you can say which club he should have used. I might have killed the goose with a driver. You might have killed him with a niblick, but Thomas was right there and decided a putter was all that was needed."

"I believe we need a club ruling on this. Today it's Thomas... tomorrow it could be one of us. I want to know exactly how many shots I am permitted before I get a birdie."

"As long as we're at it," another chap said. "I would like to ask the grounds-committee what a Canadian goose was doing there in the first place. Correct me if I'm wrong, but aren't Canadians forbidden from using the course during the hours when members are playing?"

"I believe there is a bylaw on it," someone replied.

"But let's find out the exact wording as to when you stuff a goose and when you putt it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Bonding process'

To The Editor:
I would like to air my opinions concerning what I believe to be a mother's right to be with her newborn child at any time she chooses following birth.

The medical profession, to its credit through improved technology, has made great strides in lowering the fatality rate for both mothers and infants. However, in this technological age, standard medical procedures can be harmful to the future mental health of the newborn and mother. Several studies have been done which indicate that the first hours, not just days, are critical to the relationship between a mother and child. These studies conclude that a mother, animal or man, should be in close contact with her newborn immediately following birth, and as much as possible thereafter. This assumes that neither the child nor mother has a medical problem which would preclude this.

When my first child was born in St. Lukes Hospital in Houston, I had access to my child at any time and the staff was very supportive in the "rooming in" process both day and night. My second child was born in Midland and to my regret, some of the hospital staff still cling to old standard medical procedures which discourage a mother's access to her child at any time she wishes.

I wish certain Midland medical staff employees could improve their attitude on the question of rooming in "both day and night" for newborn infants with their mothers, and that a more open-minded stance will be adopted. Has our society become so technocratic that we are willing to endanger the "bonding process" which takes place during the first hours and days of the infant's life by adhering to archaic feeding schedules and arbitrarily placing the infant in a nursery at night, when they could be in their mother's arms though the long night and the bonding begin there.

Thanks, Midland

To The Editor:
We are parents of a senior who graduated from Midland High School this year, and we want to say "Thank You Midland" for building the Chapparral Center.

It was a real pleasure to be inside, enjoying the commencement exercises, while the weather pulled its usual graduation night tricks. Although we had to do the backstroke to get across the Wadley river, it was far better to be comfortably seated inside than to be chased from Memorial Stadium as we have been in the past when our four older children graduated.

So, again, we say "Thank You Midland" for building the beautiful Chapparral Center of which you can be very proud.

Time for change

To The Editor:
I have long grown restive under the autocratic rule of Mayor Ernest Angelo. The mayor's two interviews have prompted my first letter to the editor.

I was appalled by the irresponsible, childish behavior of some of "our" state legislators. Such behavior smacked of the young ballplayer who picked up the ball and went home when his teammates refused to grant him special privileges. Mayor Angelo's condoning their actions made me shake my head in disbelief. The Democratic National Committee also approved of the legislators' actions. How true, the desire for political power makes for stronger bedfellows.

Now his proud statement that the city surplus has grown from $200,000 to $3,000,000 during his tenure. Three million dollars! He coyly states the property tax rate has been lowered mathematically. Correct, but higher property evaluations provided these obscene, windfall profits?

Mayor Ernest Angelo is like all politicians, in office too long. He knows better than the taxpayers how to spend their money. I trust when April 1980 arrives he will remember his quote in The Midland Reporter-Telegram: "I like variety. A person shouldn't stay in one position too long."

Good taste

To The Editor:
May I compliment you on your good taste in selection of photographs for your Saturday, June 2, 1979, front page and the delightful humor in the caption for the photos.

As the parent of one of the four boys, I have come to know the other three boys, they are a fun group. They belong to an Explorer Post that is very active in skiing, backpacking, repelling and canoeing. Some of their side interests are raising calves, helping one another keep their parents yards, motorbike riding and shooting pool. They all are good students at Lee High.

I have known the parents of these teen-age boys to handle difficult times (with the boys) with love, patience and a good sense of humor.

Mike Kardos captured four of America's finest having fun with out the use of drugs or alcohol, and you had the good taste to place it on your front page.

Funeral safety

To The Editor:
Two weeks ago a letter to the editor insinuated that policemen who escort funeral processions might be better used to control congested traffic areas. Not so! In my opinion, funeral processions should be much better escorted than they are at this time.

On Saturday, May 19, following my mother's funeral, the procession was traveling east on Golf Course Road toward the cemetery when one of the family cars was hit by a south-bound car at the intersection of Golf Course Road and Midkiff Street. My uncle was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital and his car was declared a total loss; my daughter and another granddaughter of the deceased could have been badly injured. At a time like this, you certainly don't need any more problems that you already have!

Needless to say, there was mass confusion. Part of the family in front of the accident proceeded to the cemetery, not knowing anything was wrong. Part of the family went to the hospital with the injured party, and part of the family had to find their own way to the cemetery after being lost from the procession and having to ask directions. And everybody was upset.

When one of the family members called the police department later in the day, he was told that if he had a problem it would have to wait until Monday when the chief of police was in his office. On Monday he was told that the city did not have enough money, personnel or vehicles to post a traffic coordinator at every traffic signal for every funeral — well, why not? People live in Midland for years and pay taxes that pay the policemen and when they die, the city can't afford to give them 30 minutes of their time in order that some other member of the family might not be run over and injured — or killed. Controlling the traffic would probably take less time than it takes to investigate an accident!

Don't our tax-paid officials owe something to deceased taxpayers — as well as to the living?

Time for action

To The Editor:
Again it all depends on what period of time and who is doing the reporting.

Mr. Ed Magruder, using the speech prepared for him reports 26.5 percent turnover of nurses at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Briggs, head of the personnel department, reported in the paper on May 3, 1979, a figure of 48 percent turnover as being correct.

As publicly stated recently the much discussed 78 percent turnover of nurses has been written in the minutes of the board.

One truth is apparent — many persons are unhappy, dissatisfied, and doing something about it.

Thank you, Mr. Cappadonna, for publicly agreeing that "Action Now" should be the watchword. Your influence, will help get action on all the problems of Midland Memorial Hospital.

To The Editor:
Now that Midland Regional Airport improvements are taking shape, things are really looking well out there. The sacrifices we all had to share in are proving to have been well worth our time and patience, and I join others in being very proud of this facility.

However, if you have parked in the new parking area, don't be in a hurry to get out (especially if an airliner has just arrived). This past Sunday our flight (which was packed) arrived at 7:30 p.m. The deplaning went well, the baggage arrived fine, however, it was 8:45 p.m. before we got home. The reason being that it took 30 minutes to get out of the parking lot.

It's amazing that there is more than one access to the parking area, but only one exit with one cashier. How can the designers of a 700-plus car facility expect one exit and cashier to take care of 30 to 50 cars at a time from one flight, let alone if two airliners arrive at the same time?

In short, don't be in a hurry to get home from the airport parking area after your flight arrives until this situation has been alleviated.

'Little business'

To The Editor:
Recently when we went on vacation, we dropped by The Reporter-Telegram circulation office and made arrangements to have our paper held in vacation pac. It was not. We returned two days early to find a cumulation of papers at our front door.

I realize that the carriers are "little businessmen and women" and are responsible — if the message is passed on to them. My husband even spoke to the "little businessman" who generally delivers the paper to tell him. His reply to my husband's request to hold the papers was, "Somebody else will have to do it. I'm leaving too."

Since living in Midland in the same place for seven years we have had one "little businessman carrier" to deliver the vacation pac in a bundle on the correct day as told to the circulation department before we left. The problem may be that area managers do not have sufficient contact and communication with their delivery people. If these "little businessmen" and their managers (instructors) are the businessmen of the future, I hate to think what our country is coming to.

As you advertise in your paper the vacation pac hold, I assume the carrier agrees to this when he accepts the "little business" offer to deliver the paper. I have about decided that it would be better to stop the paper entirely, thus cutting off the pay for the paper all together if the service continues to deteriorate.

Work together

To The Editor:
Thanks for your excellent articles on housing in Midland.

Your reporter portrayed accurately the tragic situation many in our city face as they try to find or afford decent housing.

Your "tell it like it is" editorial — let's praise the good about life in Midland, and get to work to improve the not-so-good — was also appreciated.

Since moving to Midland, I have been disappointed to observe public officials blocking, for reason of "philosophical objection" programs which would alleviate at least some of the human suffering caused by our housing situation.

In many ways, the opportunity to weigh complicated "philosophical considerations" or to worry about "abdication of our local responsibilities" seems to be the unique privilege of those of us who live in $60,000 or $80,000 or $100,000 homes.

Other folks have more immediate concerns — the retiree trying to survive on the half of his Social Security check which is left after he pays his rent, or the family trying to scrape together enough money to keep the water from being cut off.

We in Midland have much for which to be thankful. Perhaps one helpful way to express our gratitude is to support, today, concrete attempts to meet the needs of "the least of these" in our midst.

Let's work together to make Midland a city known not only for its affluence, but also for its compassion!

POSITIVE THINKING

Follow these three great thinkers

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Three men, in my opinion, probably did more to affect the American way of doing things than any others. They were Ralph Waldo Emerson, William James and Henry David Thoreau.

Emerson's basic philosophy was that an individual, through God's help, can do anything. He taught that this belief could breed a type of person nothing could defeat.

Thoreau, who withdrew from the life about him to a solitary retreat in the woods to better evolve his theory of living, taught that the way to accomplishment is to print on your mind a picture of yourself as succeeding, then hold the picture, think and work and you will develop the picture as fact.

And Prof. William James, father of American psychology, said: "Belief at the beginning of any undertaking is the one factor that leads to success."

This is the positive thinking which molded the American people. I do not know whether young people read Emerson, Thoreau and James in our schools today, but if not I hope that other writers with the same philosophy have been substituted. More than anything else, a study of their work teaches us how to approach a problem positively.

Shortly after the opening of school this year, a mother sent her 15-year-old son to me with a problem. The boy, she complained, couldn't get grades of over 70 in any subject.

"He's a wonderful boy," she told me. "He takes after me and I did well in school. I cannot understand his low marks. I want you to show him how to raise his grades to 80 and 90."

I'd never demonstrated any great ability to get that kind of marks when I was in school, so I didn't quite know what to tell the boy to do. "Son, what is the matter with you?" I started off.

"I don't know," he said. "I study and get the stuff in my mind, but when I go to class and the teacher calls on me, it all leaves me. I freeze up inside. In an examination I sit at my desk and while I know the stuff, just can't get it down on paper."

This boy's inability it seemed was, in part at least, due to being haunted by the fear that he couldn't attain the high scholastic standard demanded of him by his mother. He studied, but at the same time he kept in his mind a picture of failure, so he was failing.

"What can I do?" he asked me. "Whenever you study a textbook," I told him, "say to yourself that it doesn't matter two cents worth to you about the grades your mother got in school. Tell yourself that all you want 'o do is compete with yourself and not with her; that you just want to do your work honestly and creditably."

Then I added: "I suggest that you pray about the problem. Thank the Lord that you have a good brain, that you have sufficient ability, that the material that you are reading is being received and organized by your mind, and that it will be ready for capable giving back to the teacher when required. Then you will only need to read the passage once because your mind is going to absorb it and hold it.

"And when you are asked to speak in class, affirm something like this, 'Lord, you are with me and knowledge of this subject is mine, and it's going to come out now.'"

"When you start an examination, pray in this manner, 'Thank you God, for being right here, and Your hand is on my hand, guiding my pen and bringing out of my mind the information I need because with Your help I have mastered the subject.'"

In a short time that boy was equaling his mother's record. His marks are high enough now to more than satisfy her. What happened to him? He relaxed, he allowed himself to be properly motivated, he held a picture of himself as succeeding and, most important, he believed he would succeed.

There you have four practical and workable rules for formulating a positive approach to a problem. Try them yourself. Apply them to any problem. What happened to this boy can happen to anyone who really takes advantage of the teachings of those three great American thinkers.

Rain makes some things nice

"What do you think about this rain?" the fellow asked after he had settled down on the cafe stool. He came in to sip coffee on a no-rush Saturday morning.

"It's the best kind of weather," said his sipping friend.

"Sure makes the weeds grow."

"A favorable change in the weather tends to bring the soul at peace for awhile."

"This rain sure makes things a whole lot nicer," said J.R. Woolsey, who was out of earshot of the others.

Keith Hart is a pipeline pilot who flies slowly and low over much of the Southwest in his search for irregularities in the oil fields.

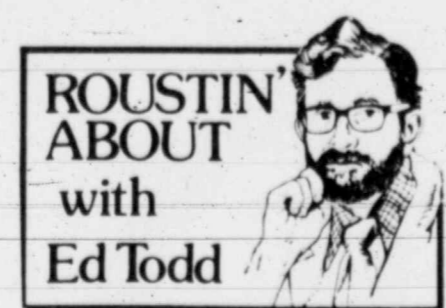

And fairly often Hart, who hails out of Borger, flies into Robert E. McClure's Trans-Regional Air flight service hangar at Big Spring Airport and does what pilots like best next to flying: hangar flying — spinning tales.

"I had an F-4 (Phantom jet fighter) try to run over me the other day," Hart said. He was flying around Robert Lee.

Why the close encounter? "You tell me," said the baffled flier.

He had more close calls to impart. Northwest of Roswell, N.M., "five Phantoms buzzed me." He was just putting along in his single-engine prop job, a Cessna-172 high-wing craft.

Then, up in the Panhandle, a Boeing B-52 jumbo jet bomber dipped down to 200 feet and passed within 75 feet of Hart's turtling (by comparison) airplane.

Hart just accepted the near mid-air crashes as hazards of his job, but now he's constantly on the lookout while he's upstairs. That B-52 crew apparently was single-mindedly practicing a low-level bombing attack.

"I've met so many B-52s, it's not even funny."

Another time, Hart was just minding his own business when, again in his amazement, F-105 Thunderchief jets streaked overhead.

"They were jumping tree tops, and I was jumping fence lines," he said. Hart said those anxious moments were all true.

By coincidence, he was leaning against a bookcase which, of all things, contained the book, "Strange Stories, Amazing Facts."

The Panhandle town of Borger was a rough-and-tumble town back in the wildcat boom days of the 1930s. Borger had a hellacious reputation.

"They had killings up there every night or two," said Hart. "That's what they say. Now, that's all cleared up. It's a nice, peaceful town. But they used to rip and roar."

Quote without comment: Over in Joe Mabey's office in his airplane hangar at the ranch in Martin County is the bumper sticker:

President Nixon. Now more than ever. 'Ole Joe has a sense of humor. By now, Nixon should, too.

Now, there is some benefit to not being your own boss. Joe Kirkland, after 20 years of running his own corner drug store in downtown Midland, will be re-experiencing that mixed blessing. The city is running him out of business, because it wants (and is getting) more downtown parking spaces for more cars spewing fumes.

"I'm not retiring," said Kirkland, "but I'll stop working 80 hours a week." He'll be a pharmacist's pharmacist.

San Marcos pilot Ron Iberg was watching Robb Satterfield of Midland fly off in Jim Hall's De Havilland Chipmunk piston-powered trainer over at Hobbs, N.M.

"Hell," said Iberg, who flies a Confederate Air Force P-39 Aircobra, which gained World War II fame as a tank buster, "it's just like a miniature P-51 (Mustang)."

"There's very little Chipmunk left in that airplane," remarked Midlander George Goebel, a pilot-aircraft mechanic who helped modify the monoplane.

British boast good nuclear safety record

By DONALD M. MENICHELL

LONDON (AP) — Britain has had a nuclear fuel and power industry since the late 1940s, but there have been only two major British nuclear incidents in that time, and nothing like the Three Mile Island breakdown last March in Pennsylvania.

The British incidents — at the Windscale plant in northwest England and the Chapel Cross plant in southern Scotland — required no evacuations as in the Pennsylvania emergency.

But the British incidents have helped keep alive the controversy over the safety of nuclear installations in this country.

THERE ALSO HAVE been a string of minor mishaps. Of these, a British Atomic Energy Authority spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press: "We wouldn't say they were serious incidents, but we take any incident connected with the nuclear part of a plant very seriously indeed, so that we may learn and profit accordingly."

The first major incident occurred Oct. 10, 1947, when one of two reactors producing plutonium for military purposes overheated at Windscale which overlooks the Irish Sea.

The Atomic Energy Authority explained in a statement the next day that some of the uranium cartridges in the center of Windscale's No. 1 pile, which had been shut-down for the routine discharge of spent uranium and for maintenance work, had become "overheated to the point of red heat."

SOME RADIOACTIVE material went up the chimney. Windscale crews injected water into the chimney from above and lowered the temperature.

The authority denied local speculation there had been an explosion and large amounts of radioactive substances released into the air.

"In the beginning there was a fire in the sense that the material glowed," the authority said. "But there was no flame. The amount of radioactivity released was not hazardous to the public, and what there was was carried out to sea."

However, the authority announced on Oct. 13, 1947, that tests of milk from cows in the Windscale area showed that the radio-iodine content had risen to six times the permissible level.

THIS WAS CONSIDERED of possible danger to children, but officials insisted that an adult would have had to drink the milk every day for a lifetime before coming to any harm.

Distribution of milk from nearly 1,000 farms around Windscale was halted, but resumed a few weeks later.

The British government ordered an independent inquiry into the Windscale affair. A committee led by Sir William Penney, a member of the Atomic Energy Authority who was responsible for weapons research and development, reported the following month that the accident had resulted from a routine maintenance operation known as the Wigner heat.

This is the release in the form of heat of the energy stored in graphite as the result of neutron bombardment.

THE IMMEDIATE CAUSE of the accident was the application too soon and at too rapid a rate of second nuclear heating to release the Wigner energy from the graphite," the committee said.

"This caused the failure of one or more cartridges in the pile, whose contents then oxidized slowly, eventually leading to fire in the reactor."

The authority concluded that the cause of the accident lay "partly in inadequacies of the instrumentation provided for the maintenance operation that was being carried out... and partly in faults of judgment by the operating staff."

Overheating was also cited as the cause of the 1967 incident at the nuclear electricity generating plant at Chapel Cross on the Scottish-English border.

FUEL ELEMENTS OVERHEATED in one of the 1,696 channels in the No. 2 reactor. The fault showed up on instruments and the reactor was immediately shut down.

No radioactivity was reported. The faulty reactor was repaired and is working along with the three other reactors at Chapel Cross, according to British Nuclear Fuels, the company that runs the plant.

The closed-down piles at Windscale were dismantled, and the buildings that housed them switched to research. It was decided the piles would require too much modification and they were nearing the end of their useful life, besides which defense nuclear requirements were being met from power-producing plants.

AT A NEWS CONFERENCE in Glasgow called following the Three Mile Island incident, Roy Beridge, chairman of the South of Scotland Electricity Board, said the risk of a serious nuclear incident in Britain's atomic power stations is "acceptably low."

"We don't claim that a serious incident can never happen," he said. "What we do say is that the probability of such an event is extremely low in relation to the risk to life and limb of other energy sources, and indeed normal hazards of everyday life."

He asserted that the difference between his board's advanced gas cooler reactor at Hunterston in Ayrshire and the pressurized water reactor involved in the Three Mile Island incident is so great that it is difficult to envisage an equivalent accident.

Kopechnes to keep silence on Kennedy

BOSTON (AP) — Nearly 10 years after the death of their daughter in Sen. Edward Kennedy's car on Chappaquiddick Island, the parents of Mary Jo Kopechne say they will not interfere if Kennedy runs for president.

"We know people will want to use us," Gwendolyn Kopechne, 60, told The Boston Globe in an interview from her Swiftwater, Pa., home in the Pocono Mountains. "They'll come to us to get at Kennedy."

"If he runs, we won't interfere."

But Mrs. Kopechne and her husband Joseph, 66, told the Globe in the interview published today they still have unanswered questions about the death of their daughter.

On the night of July 18, it will be 10 years since Kennedy drove his black 1966 Oldsmobile off Dike Bridge, between Chappaquiddick Island and Edgartown on Martha's Vineyard. The car sank in Poucha Pond, a tidal estuary.

The couple still wonders why the accident went unreported for more than 10 hours, while their 28-year-old daughter remained in the submerged car. They say they understand why Kennedy might not have reported it, but not why Kennedy's cousin, Joseph Gargan, and close friend, Paul Markham, failed to report the accident right away.

Did you know that a college education can be financed entirely with a First National HELP Loan?

If you're a student hoping to get started in a college or university...or if you've already attended but need some help in continuing your education...then First National's HELP (Higher Education Loan Plan) program may solve some of the financial problems you have in realizing these goals. HELP is a special service set up by First National to provide low-cost education loans to Midland County residents in need of financial assistance. Any parent, guardian, student or family member, may apply for the loan, and the applicant need only be a resident of the Permian Basin and meet the bank's normal credit requirements. Application may be made at any time, and repayment can be tailored to individual requirements with up to 6 years to repay the loan. The program is flexible...depending upon your personal needs...and it can be tailored to fit a variety of needs. If you need HELP come by and discuss the program with one of our HELP loan officers. We have a brochure detailing the plan and we'll be glad to explain the program and answer your questions. Talk to Bill Milby, Mike Sherrod, or Joe Moreno.

11 killed in Quebec bus crash

ST. LIBOIRE, Quebec (AP) — Eleven members of a senior citizens club were killed and 20 others were injured when a bus carrying them home from a night at the horse races slid off a rain-slick highway and crashed into a bridge abutment early Saturday, police said.

The bus driver was attempting to pass a car at a curve on the Trans-Canada Highway 34 miles east of Montreal when he lost control, police reported. It was raining heavily.

The bus skidded, smashed into three pylons supporting an overpass, and split in two. Police said they did not think the driver was exceeding the speed limit.

Four of the injured members of the Victoriaville Golden Age Club were in serious condition at a hospital in St. Hyacinthe. The driver, one of 39 survivors, was in shock.

Twirling classes scheduled

The Parks and Recreation Department is adding a baton twirling class to its summer program.

The class is scheduled for July 16-27 in the Parks and Recreation Gymnasium, 300 Baldwin St. Course times are 9 to 10 a.m. for beginners and 10 to 11 a.m. for intermediates.

Each class will be limited to 12 students 6 years or older, and the fee is $5.

Instructor will be Darcy L. Petzold, a twirler from Kansas State University. She is interested in teaching a group of young twirlers the basic tricks and putting the students together into a team.

Ms. Petzold has had 2½ years of experience teaching recreation twirling programs which included basic to advanced twirling tricks, flag baton, hoop baton, fire baton and some two-baton. She is associated with the U.S. Twirling Association. Ms. Petzold has a bachelor of science degree in child development.

Registration and further information on the course may be obtained by telephoning the Parks and Recreation Department, 683-4281, extension 280.

Pope proclaims 'new Polish evangelism'

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II proclaimed a "new evangelism" in his Polish homeland Saturday and told thousands of worshippers in this communist country that man cannot be viewed as just "a means of production."

"Christ will never approve of it," the red-robed pontiff said, speaking in a section of Krakow designed as a new Marxist community.

A church was constructed in the community, Nowa Huta, only after the pope, then Archbishop Karol Wojtyla, won a 20-year battle with Polish Communist authorities who had said a church was not needed.

The pope expressed hopes for reconciliation between Catholicism and the communist state, stressing his respect for human labor and saying that "the church wants to find a common language with all systems of labor."

"I only ask of the labor system that we be able to tell about Christ who loved man," he said.

"Now the cardinals finally know what kind of pope they chose," said the pontiff at the end of his speech.

obviously satisfied with his references to communism.

Cheers and singing broke out in the crowd.

"Long live the pope who knows what he's doing," a man cried.

"We want God, we are your subjects," the crowd sang, repeating a hymn whose words were chanted at the pope's first homecoming Mass in Warsaw a week earlier.

"We want God in books, in schools, in every hour of our day."

The pope spoke at an outdoor Mass, from a lofty gold-canopied platform erected beside a 13th century monastery church, in the community where as archbishop of Krakow he had won construction of another church following one of his most publicized conflicts with Communist authorities.

The raising of a cross at Nowa Huta means that in Poland "a new evangelization has begun... even if in reality it is the same as ever," the pontiff said.

"Where the cross is raised, there is the sign that evangelization has begun," he said.

He made frequent references to the church built with his help — the soaring modernistic Church of St. Mary, Queen of Poland. It stands a few miles away in the Nowa Huta steel mill community, built as a suburb and since incorporated into the city of Krakow.

Polish authorities refused to let the pontiff visit the church on this homecoming trip. He celebrated the Mass instead at Holy Cross Sanctuary in Mogila, a former village now also a part of Nowa Huta.

In 1956, a large wooden cross was erected on a site where the pope's predecessor as archbishop sought a church. But officials revoked the building permit and put a school there instead. It was not until two years ago that the man who is now pope could dedicate the church on another site several hundred yards from the cross.

WORLD NEWS

Astles flown to Uganda to face murder charges

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — British-born Maj. Bob Astles, one of deposed President Idi Amin's top aides, was flown from Kenya to Uganda Saturday and taken to Luzira Prison, police announced.

He was returned to this battle-scarred country less than 24 hours after Kenyan authorities ordered him extradited. The new Ugandan government had charged Astles with murder and asked for his extradition.

Astles, of Ashford, Kent, England, served as Amin's foreign policy advisor and purportedly organized Amin's secret police and terror agency, the State Research Bureau. Bureau agents have been accused of murdering thousands of Amin's opponents.

Egyptian leader arrives in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak arrived Saturday for a five-day visit which will include discussions with President Carter and top congressional leaders.

Mubarak was delivering a personal message to Carter from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. There was no indication what was in the message and Mubarak declined to make any statement as he stepped off his plane at Andrews Air Force Base outside of Washington.

The Egyptian vice president will meet with Carter on Monday and one topic of discussion is expected to be the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations to establish Palestinian autonomy in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan. Those talks were to resume Monday in Egypt.

German police capture suspect

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP) — Police on stakeout at a Frankfurt apartment shot and captured Rolf Heissler, one of six suspects in the 1977 slaying of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, it was announced Saturday.

Hans Piesker, a spokesman for the federal prosecutor's office here, said police cornered Heissler early Saturday at an apartment in Frankfurt's Sachsenhausen district and a policeman shot Heissler in the head as he pulled a gun.

Heissler was hit before he could fire, Piesker said, and was taken to a nearby hospital where it was determined he had suffered only a scalp wound. Piesker said Heissler would be flown to Karlsruhe to appear before a federal judge.

Israelis protest settlement

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Several thousand Israelis demonstrated Saturday against the new Jewish settlement of Elon Moreh, urging removal of the 2-day-old outpost in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The protest near the settlement site was organized by the Peace Now movement, which has vowed to oppose a campaign by the ultranationalist Gush Emunim group to increase Jewish settlements in the West Bank.

No incidents were reported. Israel Television estimated there were 4,000 demonstrators and said soldiers kept them about 100 yards from the hilltop outpost to prevent clashes with the settlers.

Russian musicians defect

TOKYO (AP) — Two members of the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra — a man and a woman declaring their love for each other — defected at the completion of the orchestra's tour in Tokyo and asked for asylum in the United States, Japanese news reports said Sunday.

They identified the man as Valentine Malkov, a 43-year-old trumpet player, and said the woman, who was not named, is a 42-year-old violinist.

According to the reports, the two approached U.S. authorities in Tokyo and told them they were in love and did not want to return to the Soviet Union. They said Malkov has a wife and child in Moscow while the woman is not married.

Midwest flood waters claim at least three lives

By The Associated Press

Flooded out for the second time in two years, Earl Schnakey of Augusta, Kan., watches silently as his house floats down the Whitewater River. Three states have been affected by rising river floodwaters in the wake of heavy, late spring rains. (AP Laser-photo)

Rising flood waters surging through Midwestern rivers in the wake of heavy, late spring rains claimed at least three lives and menaced property in Indiana, Kansas and Missouri Saturday.

A van pulling a camper-trailer and carrying four persons ran off a bridge into rain-swollen Dry Wood Creek, about eight miles west of the town of Nevada in western Missouri. Authorities had found three bodies by nightfall.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the bodies of a man, a woman and a child were found in the creek, which was running about 30 feet deep. A search was continuing for the body of a would-be rescuer swept away in the current.

Passing motorists rescued one van occupant, a man who had kicked out a window of the van and surfaced, then clung to a tree and yelled for help.

Authorities said the missing man had slung a chain over his shoulder and waded out to attach it to the submerged vehicle. The man's father, watching from the bank, was taken to a local hospital.

In Colorado, another storm system caused trouble for highway officials, homeowners and deer by dumping heavy rains and even some snow on the state.

Steady overnight rains flooded parts of southern Indiana and made an island of the Crawford County community of English.

Early Saturday, the National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings for parts of DuBois, Perry, Warrick and Crawford counties.

"We're surrounded by water," Crawford County Sheriff William Gilliland said, describing English. "The business district and some residences are full of water, between one and two feet."

Gilliland said some residents in low-lying areas began leaving their homes early Saturday. The evacuees were taken to homes on higher ground. The Camp Fork River left its banks overnight and was lapping at the north edge of the bridge that leads into town, he said. "It's started to go down, but it could come back up again."

In Kansas, hundreds of persons chased from their homes by a record flood on the Walnut River in the south-central part of the state began going home Saturday, and two downstream communities braced for high water expected today and Monday.

David Brandon, flood forecaster for the weather service in Topeka, said the water was receding in El Dorado and Augusta, but was expected to crest in Winfield today and in Arkansas city on Monday.

The waters that poured into the streets of El Dorado and Augusta Friday blocked roads and downed power and telephone lines. In Augusta, the municipal electric plant was knocked out. No deaths or injuries were reported.

City officials in Winfield, where a levee handles water up to 10 feet over flood stage, made emergency preparations Saturday.

The National Weather Service said clearing was expected to begin in western sections of the state Saturday night. Partly cloudy skies were forecast for most of the state Sunday.

Residents were evacuated from an estimated 1,500 houses in low-lying areas of Augusta Friday. With the help of National Guard troops, they were being escorted home Friday night and Saturday.

Colorado was cold as well as wet. Temperatures barely got above 50 in most of the state, and dipped below freezing in the mountains, where some points reported more than a foot of new snow since a storm began on Thursday.

Flash-flood watches for southern Colorado lifted early Saturday morning. Most of the precipitation fell along the Front Range, with accumulations of 2 to 3 inches from Fort Collins to Pueblo.

At Estes Park, Chamber of Commerce officials dusted the snow off their giant scissors, then canceled the Saturday morning ceremony that was to have formally opened Trail Ridge Road for the year.

More than 6 inches of new snow fell during the first two days of the three-day storm, with far more at higher elevations. Rocky Mountain National Park officials reported.

On the northeastern Colorado plains, the South Platte River had gone out of its banks in some lowland areas, although no homes were threatened. Deer that normally cross the river at some lower points had been kept on the south side this year, and state game officials blamed some deer deaths on the storm.

Board to face hot issues

Midland school trustees will face two controversial issues at their 1:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday; one on its way out, the other on its way in.

The board will take final action on Plan O, the proposal to consolidate the city's two high schools into a single school on two campuses. A non-binding referendum on the issue was soundly defeated in the April school board election, and board members are expected to follow the voters' wishes and dispose of the matter for now.

The board also is scheduled to receive petitions from PRIDE, a group formed to urge the district to drop its eminent domain suit against the J.E. and Irene Hill property, which includes some four acres of land between Illinois and Ohio avenues. The property includes the 12-room Hill house on the corner of F Street and Illinois Avenue. The home, target of the petition drive, was built in 1902.

The school district plans to take the property as part of a master plan to upgrade facilities at Midland High School to the level of those at Lee High School, a mandate the school board feels went hand in hand with the defeat of Plan O. The corner where the Hill house is located is planned for a baseball diamond.

The board also is scheduled to upgrade the pay schedule for some women's coaching positions to bring them in line with their male counterparts.

Also on the agenda is a preliminary report on the budget which must be completed by late August.

MC enrollment deadline nears

Monday is the last day for persons to enroll for credit courses being offered at Midland College during its first summer session.

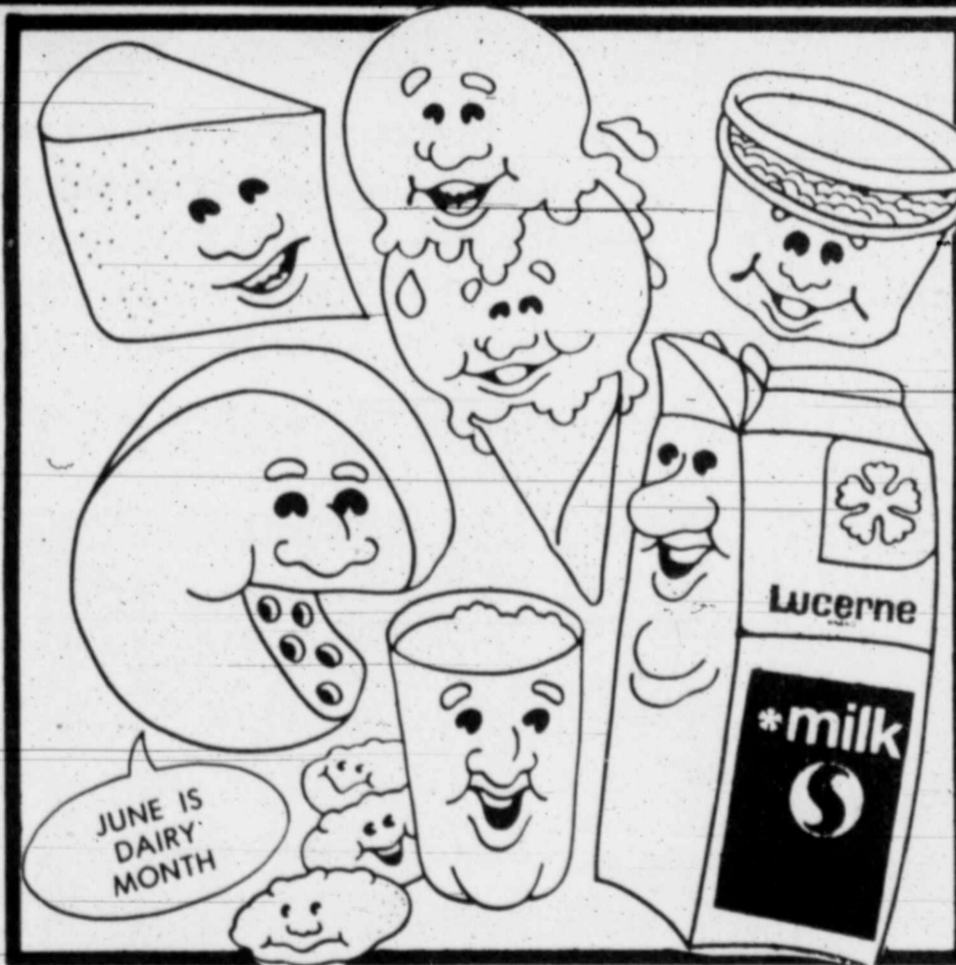

By Thursday afternoon, enrollment was almost level with last summer's record 898 students. The count Thursday was 878.

Persons wishing to enroll for the first summer session should visit the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building Monday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Both daytime and evening courses are available in more than 50 academic and vocational areas of study.

The first summer session classes are conducted Monday through Thursday. The session ends July 10.

Truckers block pumps, roads in diesel protest

By The Associated Press

Independent truckers blocked fuel pumps and some interstate highways Saturday in their protest over the high price and declining availability of diesel fuel — "go juice" in CB language.

In Los Angeles, Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association and editor-publisher of Overdrive Magazine, said he would announce Monday in Washington "whatever actions are necessary" in the truckers' fight. He didn't specify.

Some local leaders of the 30,000-member ITA organization, including Leonard Barnwell of Nashville, Tenn., have said a nationwide truck shutdown would be announced Monday.

Parkhurst said his organization was assessing the impact of the statement by Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock, who Friday telegraphed President Carter and endorsed the truckers' demands. Basically, the demands are more fuel and less regulation. Some drivers also have suggested speed limits for truckers be raised to 65 mph instead of the current 55 mph. Officials of the American Agriculture Movement have urged 2 million member farmers to withhold their products from markets to support the drivers, and Barnwell said trucker-farmer talks would be held in Washington.

The independent owner-operators have been tying up fuel pumps and slowing traffic since the middle of the week. The effects have shown up mostly in the South, Midwest and West.

In Fort Payne, Ala., two women were arrested Saturday for trying to block a non-striking truck driver as independent truckers shut down Interstate 59 across northeast Alabama from Fort Payne to Trenton, Ga. Authorities had ordered the strikers to allow the non-striker to pass.

Shirley James of Rossville, Ga., was charged with reckless driving in the incident in which police said she and another woman allegedly tried to block the truck with their pickup trucks.

The other woman, Evelyn Kittle of Henagar, was charged with speeding and driving with an invalid license. She is the wife of Wayne Kittle, a spokesman for the striking Alabama truckers.

A blockade of the Sun Oil refinery in Tulsa ended Saturday after five truckers talked with U.S. Rep. James R. Jones.

The blockade had halted shipments of gasoline and diesel fuel to service stations in Oklahoma and surrounding states.

Jones promised to meet with truckers next weekend when he is in Tulsa and said he would set up meetings between truckers and federal representatives.

Four die in crash of small plane

LONG BEACH (AP) — A small plane crashed onto the San Diego Freeway moments after take-off Saturday, struck a truck and burst into flames, police said. All four persons aboard the plane were killed and two men in the truck were injured.

"There was a crash west of the airport," said Pierre Collins, the airport's Federal Aviation Administration team supervisor. "It was a single-engine aircraft departure but we don't have much more information at this time."

Long Beach Police Department spokesman Dave Drake described the aircraft as a four-passenger Cessna. The accident occurred in the northbound lanes of the Interstate 405 freeway about 30 yards south of the Walnut Avenue overpass.

The old swimming hole used to be the only place to take a cool dip during the summer. Those, though, have been replaced by the modern swimming pool filled with bacteria-fighting chemicals. It may not have as much charm, but the contemporary pool is a lot safer. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershof) dozen years, while we have been cutting back on military expenditures in the wake of the Vietnam War. Guilt and parsimony have dominated our military budgets. We are all, therefore, responsible for our present plight.

Editor's Report

Paul H. Nitze, former deputy secretary of defense who was a member of the U.S. SALT negotiating team until 1974, lists four reasons why he is strongly opposed to SALT II:

—It does not provide equality in nuclear weapons capability.

—It will permit the Soviet Union to achieve, by 1985 or earlier, dangerous superiority over the United States in nuclear combat and destructive power.

—That superiority will give the Soviets the power of political coercion over the United States and its allies in potential crisis situations.

—The agreement will not reduce the risks of war. On the contrary, it can increase the risks of war if it makes Americans think that we are militarily stronger than the USSR when we are not.

I agree completely with Mr. Nitze. When Nikita Khrushchev planned to plant missiles in Cuba aimed at us, President John F. Kennedy took some risk in threatening a nuclear strike if the Russians did not desist immediately, but at that time the Soviets knew that we had the greater power — so the Red leader backed off.

We could not repeat that today, and we will be even less effective if SALT II is approved.

The question that also arises naturally is how are we going to verify the Russians' tests now that our Iranian listening posts are in the hands of the anti-U.S. leaders in that country?

We say that we can send U-2 aircraft to 90,000 feet over our ally Turkey and see all that we need to see, but our "friends," the Turks, say we must get permission from the Soviets to do so. That's not in the SALT II treaty, but it's so important it should be.

When one puts all of these objections together, plus the many more that space prohibits listing, the conclusion is that SALT II should go back to the drawing board. The Soviets can wait awhile longer. There need be no rush.

If negotiations are reopened, it will be necessary this time to insist that we be given the right to rebuild our second strike capability. Military strategists tell us that our ability to fire off a second strike is the greatest single deterrent to Soviet nuclear attack. So why isn't that in the agreement?

Another example of President Carter's peace-at-any-price attitude came with his announcement that he would not lift the trade sanctions against Rhodesia, despite the fact that a free election was held and that country is now under black rule.

He is insisting, among other things, that the guerrilla forces outside the country, led by communists, will wage war against the people living inside Rhodesia's borders. Both guerrilla leaders, Nkomo and Mugabe, were repeatedly invited to participate in Rhodesia's free and open election. Carter knows that.

Again, we play into the hands of the Soviets. How they must be chortling in the Kremlin.

Give Rhodesia a chance

President Carter says that many members of Congress will oppose him in his decision to retain trade sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia. He is right. Congressmen and many other Americans will be unable to understand this preposterous position.

Mr. Carter is challenging the pursuit of peace, conjuring up flimsy excuses — we shouldn't be alone in recognizing Rhodesia's new black government; Nigeria might cut off its flow of oil to the U.S.; some other South African nations might resent our action; a frustrated patriotic front composed of Marxist guerrillas might call on Russia and Cuba for more weapons, of which they have a goodly supply already.

Mr. Carter believes the recent elections in Rhodesia that ended white rule were not free or fair, though most observers said they were.

Should the politics of fear govern America's policy toward Rhodesia and its new prime minister, Methodist Bishop Abel Muzorewa? Should we try to block this orderly transition to black rule in a nation that has been under the thumb of whites for 90 years?

Myopic is the one word to describe Mr. Carter's policy.

The United States asked Prime Minister Ian D. Smith to step down. He has. The United States asked the blacks to step up and take charge of a black-majority government. They have done so by electing Bishop Muzorewa the first black prime minister in Rhodesia's history.

Just because Mr. Carter thinks the whites haven't stepped down far enough and the blacks haven't stepped up far enough is not an intelligent reason to block their progress in the direction we have urged. It's childish diplomacy. It's shameful and hypocritical diplomacy when you think we are still imposing sanctions on Rhodesia while still doing business with an Iran that has been thumbing its nose at the United States. We are still trading with Russia. It's anti-human rights diplomacy.

Prime Minister Muzorewa must have had this hypocrisy in mind when he said Mr. Carter's decision was an "inhuman decision by a committed Christian."

The Bishop has shown signs of strong leadership in his first few days in office. He deserves a chance to continue.

Today's pools safer, healthier

Daily maintenance vital to pool operation

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Today's swimming pools are not like the old swimming holes of yesterday.

According to a city ordinance, unsanitary pools are considered a public nuisance and may be subject to a $200 fine.

This means that all pools — including the private ones — are to be maintained better than the stock tanks most early West Texans were accustomed to for their daily dip.

Most health and cost problems with pools are caused by pool owners reducing daily maintenance, said Walter Teinert, a sanitarian with the City-County Health Department.

Daily maintenance is the cheap and healthy method to operate a pool, he said. This way owners will not have to spend extra money later to cure an unsightly pool problem.

Besides being an eyesore, Teinert said, poorly treated pools are foul smelling, demand more costly chlorine treatments and increase the possibility of an accident from slipping on algae-slick surfaces.

Daily pool treatments include maintaining a proper pH level of 7.2 to 7.4 in the water, a chlorine treatment range of 0.5 to 1.0 percent and daily vacuuming the pool, he said.

According to a local physician, skin-eye irritations and sinus-ear infections can result from swimming in a poorly maintained pool.

Storage of pool chemicals also poses another problem, Teinert said.

Combining and storing other pool chemicals with chlorine can cause fires, explosions or skin burns from contact with the chemicals, he said.

Last year, a few chemical fires were started in Midland when pool owners stored other chemicals with Besides being an eyesore...poorly treated pools are foul smelling, demand more costly chlorine treatments and increase the possibility of an accident from slipping on algae-slick surfaces.

chlorine, according to the sanitarian. When mixed with chlorine, the chemicals and water produce chlorine gas, which can be ignited by an open flame.

Besides being flammable, chlorine gas fumes are poisonous to breathe.

Most chlorine pool products have a fire retardant chemical mixed in with the product. That is why there is a white residue that floats on top of the water, Teinert said.

Chlorine is a chemical used to kill bacteria and algae in the pools. A residue of 0.5 percent should be left after a large portion of the chlorine has killed most of the bacteria and algae, Teinert said.

It also causes the water to have that bright, sparkling quality. The stinging sensation most people experience when they swim in a heavily chlorinated pool is not from the chlorine, but from the acid that is in the pool water, according to Teinert.

Bacteria growth is another problem that chlorine eliminates. But if there is too much algae in the water, the algae absorbs most of the chlorine, leaving an inadequate amount to kill the bacteria.

Most harmful bacteria enters the water from human wastes, the sanitarian charged.

The health department detects bacteria growth by taking a water sample and checking for coliform bacteria. Teinert said if there is an abundance of this bacteria, then most other forms of bacteria are likely to exist in the pool's water.

Soda ash is used to neutralize the water's acidity.

Sand and diatomaceous earth are used as filters in most pools. Filters get clogged when they are not cleaned two or three times weekly, he said.

Sun tanning oil residue is the main culprit with most pool filters, Teinert claimed.

The city of Midland pools probably are the best maintained public pools, according to Em Carnett, supervisor of recreation for the city's Parks and Recreation Department.

Each pool has a maintenance crew that cleans the pools daily. The cost of maintaining the city's pools is very expensive, she said.

Last year one of the city's pools was closed because of vandalism which involved broken glass containers thrown into the pool.

"If a pool supervisor feels that the pool is unfit for human use, a city pool will remain closed until the situation is corrected," Mrs. Carnett said.

The City-County Health Department inspects the pools every month, Teinert said, and most inspections are routine. But the health department will inspect a pool when the public files a complaint, he added.

Complaints are handled confidentially. In most cases, a warning is given to the pool operator to clean up the pool. After a series of warnings, the operator is ordered to close the pool until the situation is corrected, said Teinert.

The operators are required to attend a school on pool maintenance conducted each year in Odessa by the state Health Department, he said.

The old water tank may have been fun years ago for that cool dip, but today's pools are safer healthwise.

"Get a charge out of shopping Midland."

Actually, what Benjamin Franklin said was "The use of money is all the advantage there is in having it." If the noted statesman, inventor and author were alive and a citizen of Midland today, we feel sure he would endorse urging Midlanders to shop here at home.

It's the use of money that causes the wheels of commerce to turn, that creates jobs, and insures a wide selection of goods. Where we spend our money does make a difference.

It's time we all realized that the money we spend away from home never comes back. But the dollars we spend here in Midland circulate many times through our local economy, making life better for each of us.

The dollars we spend in Midland make Midland a better place.

Shop Midland. And make it grow.

She started her nursing career in Abilene and Rotan in 1944. She came to Midland in 1948 and worked several years at Midland Memorial Hospital. She was employed by Upjohn Co. when she became ill.

Survivors include two sons, James T. Childers and David L. Bishop, both of Midland; two brothers, James T. Raney of Midland and Gerrel B. Raney of Odessa; a sister, Ina Green of Midland, and a grandchild.

Workers take day off to greet Pope in Poland

NOWA HUTA, Poland (AP) — Production quotas at the vast Lenin steel works took a beating Saturday as thousands of workers took an unscheduled holiday to greet Pope John Paul II.

The Polish-born pontiff spoke in Krakow's industrial suburb of Nowa Huta, where he overcame the communist government's opposition 12 years ago and built the Mary, Queen of Poland church.

As archbishop in Krakow at the time, the pope campaigned for a church to be built in the Marxist-inspired workers' community, and it became a rallying point for anti-government sentiment.

In Vatican-Polish negotiations for the pope's nine-day tour of his homeland, it was agreed the pontiff would not visit the church, still a sensitive topic with the government.

He chose instead to say Mass at a nearby monastery, and the crowds turned out.

"My husband took a day's leave from the plant," proclaimed Zofia Gibeth, a volunteer who helped decorate the altar. "I sent a note to the teacher that Margaret would not be in school on such a day."

"The teachers are lenient, they close their eyes," said one woman standing nearby. "If not enough children show up for classes, they can come themselves."

Mary JoAlla Cox

Mary JoAlla Cox, 85, of DeQueen, Ark., died Friday in a Midland hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services for Mrs. Cox are pending with Wilkerson Funeral Home in DeQueen. Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home handled Midland arrangements.

Mrs. Cox was born Jan. 14, 1894, in Lockesburg, Ark. She had been in Midland about one month where she was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Eugene James of 4600 Leisure Drive.

Survivors include a sister, Annie Cobb of Nashville, Ark.; two daughters, Mrs. James and Mary Vaughn of Claremore, Okla.; a son, Charley Cox of Port Arthur, and 13 grandchildren.

Sarah E. Jones

LUBBOCK—Services for Sarah Elizabeth Jones, 89, of Lubbock, sister of Jim Hopkins of Stanton, are pending with Rix Funeral Home.

Mrs. Jones died Thursday following a lengthy illness.

She had been a resident of Lubbock since 1931. She was a Methodist. Other survivors include two sons, a stepson, a brother, four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Hugh W. Driskill

Hugh Watson Driskill, 71, of Midland died Saturday in a Midland nursing home.

Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Democrat Cemetery at Democrat directed by Comanche Funeral Home. Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home handled Midland arrangements.

Driskill was born Feb. 3, 1908, at Zephyr and was reared there. He came to Midland in 1975 from San Angelo where he had lived one year. Prior to that, he lived in McCamey from 1934 until 1973 and Iran from 1930 until 1934. He was a pumper for 33 years before retiring in 1970. He had been ill for several years.

Survivors include a son, Frank K. Driskill of Midland, two grandchildren, a niece and a nephew.

Jose M. Garcia

LAMESA — Services for Jose M. Garcia, 70, of Lamesa will be at 2 p.m. Monday in St. Margaret-Mary's Catholic Church with the Rev. Jerome Vitek, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Cemetery directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Garcia died Friday in a Lamesa nursing home after a long illness. He was born in Mexico and moved to Dawson County 53 years ago. He was a farmer.

Survivors include four sons, Lorenzo Garcia, Joe Garcia Jr. and Robert Garcia, all of Lamesa, and Juan Garcia of El Paso; two daughters, Emma Silva and Maria Gallegos, both of Lamesa, and a grandchild.

Sandinistas attack in Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas launched attacks in the heart of Managua Saturday, battling government troops within blocks of President Anastasio Somoza's fortified compound.

A broadcast on the clandestine Sandino radio station claimed Somoza had fled Nicaragua, but a presidential aide said Somoza was meeting with cabinet members at his headquarters in the compound known as "the bunker."

Bomb blasts and gunfire rattled the capital and a national guard jet strafed the western sector of the city. Officials said Managua was braced for a major assault.

In Washington, the State Department announced the United States is "actively considering" evacuating about 50 dependents of American diplomats, most of whom live in the Managua area.

Despite a night curfew and the government's declared state of siege, guerrillas launched hit-and-run attacks and ambushes of national guard patrols throughout Managua. There also was constant sniping. In a western zone of the capital, witnesses said local residents helped rebels erect street barricades that were strafed by a national guard T-33 jet.

A gunfight broke out after several food stands in the central market caught fire and at least two persons were killed, witnesses said.

here was no official estimate of the number of guerrillas in Managua, but political observers said they believed there were several hundred trained guerrillas in the capital, aided by hundreds of other rebels, mostly teen-agers.

Fighting was reported in most other major cities and both the national guard and rebels claimed victory in a battle near the southern border with Costa Rica.

The national guard issued a statement saying a guerrilla offensive near the frontier had been crushed, with 48 "members of the international communist mercenary brigade" killed and the others fleeing into Costa Rica. It claimed troops had seized "large quantities of arms in the operation, including 50-caliber machine guns."

In La Cruz, Costa Rica, a Sandinista platoon leader who identified himself as Manuel said guerrillas killed at least 50 guardsmen while suffering only five slain in the battle inside Nicaragua. He said about 500 guardsmen tried to storm guerrilla positions and were repulsed by "a furious barrage of mortar and heavy caliber machine-gun fire." La Cruz is about 12 miles from the frontier.

Some members of Somoza's Cabinet, including Foreign Minister Julio Quintana, moved into the Intercontinental Hotel next door to Somoza's headquarters, better known as "the bunker."

"The situation is very delicate. We're expecting a major attack in Managua," Quintana said.

In western Managua's poor neighborhood of Nicaragua, where the jet went into action, guard sources said uniformed guerrillas with automatic weapons manned the barricades.

A resident said he saw half a dozen guerrillas, "kids 14 to 22 years old" run past his house in a southeastern neighborhood. The man, who asked not to be identified, said national guard trucks arrived later apparently chasing the youths.

Ricocheting tracer bullets could be seen from the International Hotel early Saturday and residents who ventured out in the morning found some streets blocked by smoldering automobiles.

Automatic weapons fire crackled around the Associated Press office shortly before noon.

Managua and the rest of the nation were in the sixth day of a general strike that has shut down most businesses and transport facilities.

Park fire kills seven persons

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A fire broke out in the "Ghost Train" ride at a Sydney amusement park Saturday night and at least seven persons were killed, police reported.

Firemen searched the debris of the train ride, which went through a darkened tunnel, for other victims.

The fire at Luna Park, on the shore of Sydney harbor, sent thousands of persons fleeing from the flames and smoke.

Landmen's 25th anniversary meet to draw more than 2,000 persons

More than 2,000 persons, including landmen and their spouses, will convene at the El Paso Civic Center June 19-22 for the American Association of Petroleum Landmen's Silver Anniversary Meeting. The Permian Basin Landmen's Association, headquartered in Midland, is host for the convention. Ronald Reagan, former California governor and a possible Republican presidential nominee in the upcoming election, will address the energy explorationists at the 25th Anniversary Dinner on June 21. Top government, business and media leaders will take on the annual meeting general theme of "Free Enterprise and Your Future" during the

June 21-22 sessions. Dr. John J. McKetta, will-know energy advisor from The University of Texas, will lead off with "Don't Believe Everything You Read," and Mack Wallace, member of the Railroad Commission of Texas, will discuss "Energy Production and National Security." Elaborating on the military/national security topic will be Maj. Gen. Nathaniel R. Thompson who is with the Division of Transportation, Energy & Troop Transport, Office of the Chief of Staff, United States Army, The Pentagon. His presentation is entitled "Defining Our Country Under Our Free Enterprise System In an Uncertain Energy Environment." Albert Shaper, the William H. Davis professor of American Free Enterprise Systems at Ohio State University, will discuss "Entrepreneurship" — a subject for which he has achieved considerable recognition. Outside the petroleum and mining industry, two leading journalists — syndicated columnist and TC interviewer Nick Thimmesch and syndicated columnist Charles Reese — will discuss "The Domestic and International Political Scenarios as They Affect the Future" and "Steering the Future Toward Freedom," respectively. The Thimmesch and Reese columns appear in The Reporter-Telegram. Looking inwardly to the energy industry, Jayne Spain of Washington, D.C., businesswoman and public relations consultant, will present "You and Your Public Image." Honors and awards of achievement and recognition will be presented during the Friday afternoon business session. A traditional reception and dinner/dance Friday evening will honor outgoing President Harold D. Carter of Dallas and incoming President Donald L. Simasko of Denver and Anchorage. Midlander Gene Wentworth, president of the Permian Basin Landmen's Association, will take office as first vice president of AAPL. Sam Snoddy of Midland is co-chairman with Darrel Canfield of El Paso of the annual meeting.

Midland delegation finds favorable decontrol ideas

Congressmen and representatives of environmental and consumer groups told Midlanders in Washington last week they favor decontrol of oil prices and are opposed to any excise tax. The Midlanders, representing the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, were in Washington on a fact-finding visit and to help the Independent Petroleum Association of America present the independent's case in the price decontrol program. Making the five-day visit were Al Dillard, president of the PBPA; King Hughes, a member of the organization's Executive Committee; Charles D. Frazier, past president of the association, and Ed Thompson, PBPA executive vice president. "The consensus of those called on outside the Texas-New Mexico delegations was that they were for decontrol and are opposed to any excise tax, but would vote for the administration's proposal as a matter of political expediency," Dillard reported. He added that almost all of the persons contacted in the Texas and New Mexico delegations said they would vote their conscience for what they thought would be best for the country. "Even the environmental and consumer groups contacted indicated sympathy for decontrol, but said they felt some tax should be applied — especially on the major companies."

Dillard said that 19th Congressional District Representative Kent Hance "really gave us a big hand by putting together a meeting of freshmen Democratic congressional members Wednesday." Hance, IPAA President Jack Allen and Dillard held a mini-seminar on the independents part in the domestic oil and gas business. "Fourteen representatives and staff members and about 15 others attended the briefing, listened and asked questions for more than an hour," Dillard said. The fact that they came to the meeting, Dillard said, "was a real tribute to Kent Hance, a freshman himself. The fact that they stayed and asked questions at length points up BPBA's contention that energy, when presented in the proper forum by knowledgeable people, will get attention — even in Washington." The Midlanders called on Dick White, Phil Gramm, Joe Wyatt, Tom Loeffler, Bill Archer, Ray Roberts, Jim Wright, Ron Paul, Jim Collins, Charles Stenholm and Jack Hightower, all Texas congressmen, and Manuel Lujan and Harold Runnels of New Mexico. "We also visited with John Rousset of California; Steve Symms of Idaho; John Melcher of Montana, and Robert Garcia of New York. Rousset, Symms and Melcher indicated they would vote for the decontrol program," Dillard said. Thompson and Hughes called on Frank Pollara, AFL-CIO; Milton Stewart, Small Business Administrator for Energy; Jonathan Gibson, Sierra Club; Jonathan Deloss, Environmental Policy Center. Tom Cohen, energy co-coordinator, Common Cause; David Massell, Friends of the Earth, and Harvey Rosenfield, energy advisor, Congress Watch. "All of those gentlemen listened to what we had to say and seemed to appreciate our being there to present our side of the picture," Thompson said. "Several indicated they are in favor of decontrol but will back the tax phase of the program," Thompson said. Dillard pointed out that "this was our first direct contact with these long-time opponents of the petroleum industry, and our reception indicated it is something we are going to have to continue to do."

Official charges majors routinely break laws

DALLAS (AP) — A 33-year-old Department of Energy official says one reason gasoline prices are so high is that major oil companies routinely violate oil pricing laws — and the government allows it — by failing to enforce the laws. "Billions of dollars are involved — I don't know how many," in illegal price gouging eventually paid at the gasoline pump, DOE lawyer Joseph D. McNeill said Thursday. However, McNeill said he has been denied access to the files needed to prove his case. "The key files are locked up by the FBI, the Justice Department and the DOE," said the maverick DOE lawyer, who told a U.S. House subcommittee last week he could get a conviction against major oil companies for conspiracy and accused "individuals in the government" of collusion. HE SAID THE OIL companies sell cheaper, government-regulated "old oil" as more expensive non-regulated "new oil," using a middleman who switches invoices after the oil leaves the field on its way to the refinery, McNeill said. Oil company officials were not immediately available for comment. Oil already in production at time of the 1973 Arab embargo is subject to price controls, while the price of oil discovered afterward is not controlled. McNeill outlined his circumstantial case in an interview with The Associated Press, repeating his contention that if he were a federal prosecutor he could "present enough direct and circumstantial evidence to convict (some major) oil companies of conspiracy and certain individuals in government of collusion." He declined to name any of the government officials. McNeill, who was the DOE's criminal case investigator in Houston until his transfer last year to Dallas, said the FBI continually refused to prosecute alleged oil-pricing fraud cases, once seized incriminating files from

DOE offices, and did not assign enough agents to work the cases brewing in Houston. "THEY HAD ONE permanent agent and five temporary agents in Houston, and that's the hotspot," McNeill said. "When I showed (former Houston FBI chief) Dana Caro our best case was one against Conoco he was outraged," apparently by the implication that the Justice Department was not prosecuting the cases more vigorously. However, Caro said earlier that he interviewed McNeill at the request of the DOE attorney and found no evidence to substantiate the allegations. He said McNeill also appeared before a federal grand jury in Houston, but no indictments were returned. McNeill said that shortly after his talk with Caro, "FBI agents came in and removed those filing cabinets (containing the Conoco file) and now even congressional investigators cannot get to them." Conoco later pleaded no contest in the case. McNeill also claims the Justice Department prevented a witness — whom he contends had information about a "slush fund" set up to funnel money from oil resellers to certain DOE officials — from testifying last week before the House subcommittee on energy and power. "The witness was a former financial officer of an illegal oil reseller and he was to testify — with a hood covering his face — on (May 30). He was going to spill his guts on making payoffs supposedly to the DOE. I don't know if he was going to name names or what."

McNeill, a former Dallas County prosecutor, said he was transferred to Dallas and assigned only civil cases after he fed information to congressional investigators. He said the unidentified government officials involved in collusion with the oil companies had been around a long time.

Blowout shows huge potential

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The blowout at an offshore oil well in the Gulf of Mexico is showing the potential of one of Mexico's richest oil fields, officials of the government oil company say. The runaway test well has been spewing out about 30,000 barrels — 1.26 million gallons — of light crude oil a day and comparable amounts of natural gas in the worst blowout ever in the gulf. The well ran wild Sunday when a spark from an electric motor ignited leaking fuel escaping under pressure. "It goes to show how rich that oil field is," said Miguel Tomassini, a spokesman for PEMEX, the government oil monopoly. The test well is 50 miles offshore in Campeche Bay, one of Mexico's richest oil fields, and about 800 miles south of the Texas gulf coast. Tomassini said two collector boats with a capacity of 5,000 barrels each were scooping up about 15,000 barrels of the spilled oil daily and dumping it in a tanker anchored nearby.

"The other 15,000 barrels is either evaporating because of the intense heat or is being allowed to burn along with the natural gas," Tomassini said. Rogelio Cardenas, another PEMEX spokesman, said engineers are ringing the spill with a flotation collar made of a special plastic material to contain the oil spill until the collector boats can get to it with their suction pumps to scoop it up. The spill is now about 2 1/2 miles long and more than half a mile wide. Cardenas said Red Adair, the Houston, Tex., expert in fighting runaway wells and well fires, was in Mexico, but he could not immediately confirm that Adair had been hired by PEMEX to bring the well under control. Officials say a "relief" well will have to be drilled to cap the flaming runaway. The relief well would be drilled at an angle to the burning well and would link up with it so that oil and gas are diverted into the new shaft cutting off fuel to the flaming well. They say the operation could take more than three months.

Land support institute set

The Permian Basin Graduate Center, headquartered in Midland, will present an institute for Land Support Personnel, Phase Two, June 28-29. The institute will be held in cooperation with the national institute for Energy Development. It is designed for land clerks, rental clerks, division order and title clerks, land secretaries, contract personnel, paralegals and others dealing with the administration of Land development activities. The course will supplement matters covered in the Institute For Land Support Personnel, Phase One. Attendance at that institute is not a prerequisite for Phase Two. The institute will cover various aspects of real property and oil and gas law, the law of oil and gas leases, contracts, and contract law of significance to land support personnel. The sessions will be from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. June 28, and from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. June 29. The instructor will be Lewis G. Mosburg Jr., senior partner of the Oklahoma City law firm of Mosburg & Day. The tuition is $200 per person.

RRC names Midlander

Taylor Yoakum of Midland and William M. Fowler and Bill Roden, both of Odessa, have been named to a 12-member advisory committee by the Railroad Commission of Texas. The committee was formed for the purpose of reviewing and recommending alternate procedures for operators to follow in requesting well-categorization determinations under the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978. Rex White, general counsel of the commission, said the commission is exercising its option under NFGPA guidelines established by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission that allows for the state to design its own alternate procedural mechanism to process the four different NGPA classifications. Other persons named to the panel include Frank Douglass, Austin; B. D. St. Clair, Austin; Jack Warren, Houston; Lucian Flournoy, Alice; Paul Burnhart, Houston; Bob Force, Dallas; Rex Fuller, Lubbock; Dee Kelly, Fort Worth, and Joe Foy, Houston.

Barite may run short

HOUSTON — A serious barite crunch might be in the offing, according to Drilling Contractor, the official publication of the International Association of Drilling Contractors. And, unless the danger is averted, drilling contractors might be in a bind to carry out future commitments, the magazine said. Barite is a weight material widely used in drilling muds. The magazine reports that even though drilling contractors and operators say they haven't felt the effects yet, both major and independent mud companies currently are scrambling to supply the barite required for increased drilling activity around the world.

Midland firm opens office

Horace W. Kading of Midland announces the formation of Kading Enterprises as a personal service to oil and gas producers to determine ways to increase production. The firm's headquarters are in Suite 125, Midland Tower. Primary services offered are production log selection for individual well problems, wellsite supervision of logging operations, interpretations of production logs and recommended remedial procedures to increase production. Kading was the first employee of Worth Well Surveys in 1951. He served as president of the company the last four years. He resigned from that firm June 1. Kading is an honorary member of the "Five Mile Club" and has been directly involved in the development of frac evaluation logging, acid evaluation logging, production logging techniques, and logging tools that are in use throughout the industry as standard well diagnostic aids.

Expanded plant opens

ODESSA — Spincote Coating Co., a division of ICO, started plant operations this month in expanded facilities in Odessa. The million-dollar building project expanded plant operations space by more than 10,000 square feet. Spincote is one of five oil field service divisions of ICO. Other subsidiaries include Rodca in Odessa, Oklahoma City and Denver City; Universal Tubular Service in Houston; Spinning Pipe Service in Odessa and Oklahoma City, and Spray Metal Services in Odessa.

Backlog of gas flows into interstate system

TULSA, Okla. — Natural gas backed up in the U.S. intrastate market is finding its way into the interstate system via routes mapped last year by the Natural Gas Policy Act. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission estimates that 984.77 million cubic feet per day of interstate gas flowed into the interstate system during the week that ended May 19, the Oil & Gas Journal reports. And FERC estimates movements averaging 1.109 billion cubic feet per day for the week ended May 26. For the most part, interstate pipelines last winter supplemented their system supplies with traditional 60-day emergency purchases of intrastate gas. But recently they have been taking advantage of two vents for intrastate gas opened by the NGPA. One of those vents wasn't available until March. Use of the NGPA provision is at the core of Carter Administration efforts to replace imported fuel oil with U.S. natural gas as boiler fuel. Meanwhile, the intrastate deliverability surplus appears to be holding its own, despite the new outlets to the interstate market. Definitions of "surplus" vary, so most companies hesitate to qualify excess deliverability. —NGPA Section 311(B). Implemented by FERC during March, this section allows intrastate pipelines to sell natural gas to interstate pipelines or distribution companies for up to two years at a time. Intrastate lines can charge a price based essentially on weighted average acquisition cost of the gas plus a cost of service. —NGPA Section 312. This section allows an intrastate pipeline to assign gas purchase rights to an interstate line without compensation. It was designed to alleviate take-or-pay dilemmas of intrastate lines. Like sales under Section 311(b), assignments under Section 312 can be interrupted when intrastate lines need the gas to satisfy their own customers. —Emergency sales. When it implemented NGPA last December, FERC postponed implementation of Section 311(b) and left in effect 60-day emergency sales to give pipelines access to intrastate gas during the winter. Other regulatory developments should encourage further use of those provisions. FERC and the Economic Regulatory Administration have taken steps to encourage use of natural gas instead of imported fuel oil by industrial and utility boiler fuel users, the Journal points out. In a related move, the Texas Railroad Commission repealed its Docket 600 rule restricting use of natural gas as a boiler fuel. Those moves, coupled with rising prices of competing fuel oil, probably will boost demand for natural gas, which in turn will show up in increasing movements of intrastate gas in the interstate system. Industry sources, however, say it is too early to gauge this effect.

Geologists will meet

Members of the West Texas Geological Society will meet at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Midland Hilton. The speaker will be Joe Davis, a partner in charge of the Tax Department of Peat, Warwick and Mitchell in Midland. His topic will be "Current 'Windfall Profit' Legislation."

Another drop listed in rotary rig survey

Drilling activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico showed another drop as Reed Rock Bit Co. reported 218 rigs making hole in the two-state area. The previous weeks survey showed 227 rigs going and a year ago at this time the Reed survey counted 290 rigs. Lea County, N.M., reported 31 active rigs, losing three from the previous count of 34. Eddy County showed 23 rigs turning to the right, having kept all 23 rigs from the previous weeks tally. Ward County, the West Texas leader, reported 14 rigs. The previous weeks tally also showed 14. Pecos and Yoakum counties each reported 12 rigs going, each having gained one from their previous count of 11, while Crockett County followed with 10. Complete drilling activity as recorded on the Reed survey is listed in the table below.

Keep cool air in . . . with Mid-West windows

You may not think you need energy efficient windows on your home now that the warmer weather is here, but energy efficient windows are important both winter and summer. You will enjoy greater comfort in your home and will be conserving your national's fuel supplies. If your house is cooled by air-conditioning in summer, energy efficient windows are as effective in reducing heat gain in summer as they are in reducing heat loss in winter. Considering the rising cost of fuel for air-conditioning, your investment in energy-efficient windows will quickly pay for itself.

Let the professionals at Mid-West Door and Window Company, 904 West Front Street—insulate your windows with custom fitted energy efficient windows. Free estimates are given. Frames are available in white, bronze, or natural aluminum, silver color. Glass comes in clear, grey tint, bronze, or sunglass.

It's important that your insulating windows fit well. Only then will they keep heat outside in summer. The energy efficient windows from Mid-West Door and Window do fit. They make sure by custom-sizing each individual window in your home.

Mid-West Door and Window has enlarged its staff to serve their customers better. Mid-West offers a complete line of windows and doors for your selection. Call soon and have your home fitted with energy efficient insulating windows. Phone 682-4632

Petroleum Analytical Laboratory Service, (PALS), is an independent testing laboratory which has been serving the Permian Basin since 1958. Tommy M. Martin, manager, has been with the company for one and one-half years. Previously, he was in retail management for 15 years, with Montgomery Ward and Sears in the Midland-Odessa area.

PALS serving Permian Basin since 1958

PALS (Petroleum Analytical Laboratory Service) offers clients complete analytical, consulting, and research services. These services cover all phases of industrial analysis of hydrocarbons, water, minerals and solids. Sophisticated equipment such as the gas chromatograph with digital electronic integrator and atomic absorption unit is used. An electronic computer provides fast, accurate computation and print-out of results.

PALS chemists are available for consultation as well as special services in studies and surveys, as the client wishes.

PALS provides fast, efficient, and precise fractional analysis of gas and LPG for plant balance testing, individual well samples, settlement analysis, compliance with OSHA benzene regulations. DST gas, GPM, and BTU analyses. PALS can test oil from autos, planes, and other engines for diagnostic purposes.

Complete water analysis is offered by PALS. Formation or fresh water origin can be determined. Corrosion and scale evaluated, injection water quality established, and testing DST water. All water testing for any purpose can be done.

Effectiveness of corrosion inhibitors can be accurately tested by use of the "Fatigue Box". Corrosion rate is highly accelerated in the box, enabling the client to choose the most effective inhibitor for his particular situation.

Many other services, laboratory and field, are available at PALS. PALS is distributor of analytical supplies laboratories, including large petroleum labs in the area.

It is the PALS policy to provide its customers with professional, accurate service. They provide facts based upon complete analysis and interpretation. Reports shall reflect realistic answers based upon accepted technological and operating procedures.

All results of work will be presented so qualified personnel will be able to understand the procedures followed and the basis for interpretation. They pledge professional service, integrity and competence in all work undertaken.

Permian Basin Briefs

Thirty-seven Northern Natural Gas Co. employees were honored recently at a Safety Award Banquet held at the Midland Country Club.

The employees of Northern's Transmission Operations Division were honored for having achieved over 900 years of work without a disabling injury.

Ron Lloyd, area manager of the division's Midland office was the master of ceremonies.

The individual awards were presented to the employees by Don Iburg, division vice president, headquartered at Northern's home office in Omaha, Neb.

A.C. Dillard of Crane, a senior production supervisor in the Production Department of Gulf Oil Exploration & Production Co.'s Western Division, Southwest District, headquartered in Midland, has completed 35 years of service with the company.

He joined the company June 5, 1944 as a roustabout in the McElroy field near Crane. His entire tenure has been in that area.

John Wolfinger has been promoted to district sales manager in Midland by Oil Base, Inc. He was district sales engineer in Laredo.

Wolfinger has been with OBI three years.

Brenda K. Cunningham has joined American Trading and Production Corp. as geologist in the company's Midland District office.

Ms. Cunningham was previously associated with Enserch Exploration an exploration geologist. She also held positions with Energy Reserve Group, and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

She is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Permian Basin Section of the Society of Economic Paleontologists & Mineralogists, the West Texas Geological Society, and the UTPB Geology Society.

Fishing tools meeting topic

The Thursday meeting of The Desk and Derrick Club of Midland will feature a talk and demonstration of "Fishing Tools" by Gore Kemp, president of Davis-Kemp Tool Co., Inc. of Kilgore. The dinner meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the Midland Country Club.

Kemp holds a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering from Auburn University. Along with his capacity as president of Davis-Kemp Tool Co., Inc. he is vice-president, Petroleum Equipment Tools Co., Houston, as well as officer and director for six other companies.

Kemp is a member of several service and professional groups, as well as on the Educational Foundation Board, Texas Eastern University; has received Meritorious Service Award, Citation for Service and Certificate of Appreciation, American Petroleum Institute; and Section Service Award, Society of Petroleum Engineers.

10,000th gas form filed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has received its 10,000th application to set pricing standards on a natural gas wells under the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act.

Under federal Energy Regulatory Commission guidelines, the state agency must assign a price ceiling to all oil and gas wells in Texas.

62 new fields reported

AUSTIN — Texas operators reported 43 gas and 19 oil discoveries during the May 16-31, 1979 period, the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division announced.

In the year-earlier period 67 gas and 15 oil discoveries were filed with the state's energy regulatory agency.

Through the first five months of 1979, Texas operators have reported 550 gas and 187 oil discoveries, against 429 gas and 184 oil discoveries in the year-earlier period. Successful exploratory and field completions in the five months of 1979 total 3,233 oil and 2,342 gas, against 3,296 oil and 2,287 gas completions in the same period last year.

Gas discoveries in the second half of May 1979 included 16 in the Refugio area, 10 in deep South Texas, four each in the Southeast Texas and San Antonio areas, three each in the West Central Texas and Midland areas, two in North Texas and one in East Central Texas.

Oil discoveries included five in Southeast Texas, four in deep South Texas and West Central Texas, two each in the North Texas and Lubbock areas and one each in the Refugio and San Angelo areas.

In the May 16-31 period, operators reported 154 exploratory and field tests would up as dry holes.

New applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests totaled 963 in the second half of May, compared with 985 in the same period of 1978.

Applications to drill, deepen, plug back and for service wells in the May 16-31 period amounted to 1,151.

Gas pipeline completed

FORT STOCKTON — Clajon Gas Company of Fort Stockton has completed a gas pipeline connecting its 10-inch Maverick County Gathering System north and east of Eagle Pass to LoVaca Gathering Co.'s 20-inch Carrizo Springs to San Antonio pipeline north of Carrizo Springs, according to A.C. Atkins, executive vice president.

The gas pipeline consists of seven miles of 20-inch pipe, 31 miles of 12-inch pipe, and 1½ miles of 8-inch pipe connecting into the Maverick System which has 15½ miles of 10-inch and 12 miles of 6-inch and 4-inch gathering lines.

The gas pipeline has the capacity to move up to 125 million cubic feet of gas per day from the Maverick, Kinney, Zavala and Dimmit County areas to markets in Texas and elsewhere, according to Travis Lynch, Clajon's area manager.

Application approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has approved the application of Texaco, Inc., to operate the Blessing (F-15) Field in Matagorda County as a unit and to start secondary recovery operations.

Lingen names division boss

Jack Roche, formerly of Austin, has been named divisional geological manager for Lingen Exploration, Inc., of Midland.

He was located for several years in Roswell, N.M., as an explorationist for Sinclair Oil & Gas Co. for southeastern New Mexico. He later worked as an independent consulting geologist.

Recently, he has been active in real estate in Austin where he was the owner of Jack Roche Realtors.

Baker seeking change

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and his entire department should be replaced with a powerful energy czar who can deal with crisis, says Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker.

"The most serious failure of the Carter administration has been on the energy situation," Baker, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, told reporters Friday.

"It's real. It's a crisis. The odds are it's going to get worse and it's going to get more expensive."

Baker said he presented his proposal to fire Schlesinger to Carter Thursday. "I said I would do my best to make it a bipartisan effort if he would agree," Baker said.

The Department of Energy was created by Congress at Carter's request and Baker called it "the worst example of bureaucratic bungling."

"I think President Carter should not only consider dismissing Secretary Schlesinger but he should consider abolishing the Department of Energy," he said.

He suggested selecting someone like Gen. Leslie Groves, who headed the World War II Manhattan project to develop the first atomic bomb, with authority to make energy decisions.

Baker returned to Tennessee for a speech and his son's wedding today. Derek Baker, a graduate of Middle Tennessee State University, is marrying Sharon Trover of Murfreesboro.

Carter has wavered on energy policy "and I don't blame the American people for not believing him," Baker said.

Arab and other oil-producing nations raised their prices," he said, "because it was clear that we did not have and were not likely to have an energy policy."

If the nation adopted an energy policy, he said, world oil prices likely would drop because the oil-producing nations "would know then, for a change, that the United States would have the capacity to provide for its own needs. I think the Congress is aching to ... get this under control."

13 area teachers given fellowships

Thirteen teachers from the West Texas Oil Information Committee Area have been named to receive fellowships to attend the 22nd Annual Petroleum Institute for Educators June 11-29 at the University of Houston.

Richard P. Sevier, with Exxon Co., U.S.A. in Midland, area institute chairman for the OIC of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, released the names of the recipients Saturday.

They are Mrs. Annicee C. Baker, Snyder; Ronald E. Bell, Monahans; James H. Bird, Big Lake; Ken W. Burnam, Colorado City; Rickey Chandler, Odessa.

And, Mrs. Nancy Hollingsworth, Susan Howell and Mrs. Geneen Lannom, all of Midland; Mrs. Florence E. Lewis, Snyder; Mary V. Lund, Lamesa; Talty Robinson, Odessa; Ennis Shedwin, Odessa, and David M. Tipping, Big Spring.

Mrs. Hollingsworth teaches life science at Goddard Junior High School. She received her A.B. degree in Biology from Wesleyan College.

Miss Howell teaches government at Midland High School. She earned her B.A. degree in History from Angelo State University.

Mrs. Lannom is a physical science teacher at Edison Freshman School. She received a B.S. degree from Texas Tech University.

The Petroleum Institute, designed particularly for science, mathematics and social studies teachers, will be coordinated by Dr. Jack M. Sheridan, professor of Education, University of Houston.

Lectures, provided by experts from the oil industry, will include transportation, exploration, production, manufacturing, marketing and research.

Three hours of graduate credit in the field of education will be granted to those teachers successfully completing the course.

The Petroleum Institute, Sevier said, will provide a bordered understanding of oil and gas as important energy sources, and develop an awareness of the industrial importance of the petroleum industry in Texas.

Oil and gas producing and exploration companies and oil industry related firms contribute funds that make the Petroleum Institute possible.

The Oil Information Committee is headquartered in Dallas.

Oil Industry Notes

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Texaco Inc. announced it is participating, through its wholly owned subsidiaries, Texaco Japan Inc. and Texas Korea Inc., in the exploration for petroleum in Subzones II through VII of a joint development zone of an area of more than 13 million acres in the East China Sea which has been designated for activity sponsored jointly by the governments of The Republic of Korea and Japan.

HOUSTON — Anthony J. Setari and Ward W. Williams, senior exploration geologists and Jeffrey P. Smith, division landman, have joined Pogo Producing Co.'s Mid-Continent division office in Oklahoma City.

Setari has held various geological posts with Skelly Oil Co. and other companies and for three years was an independent geologist.

Williams joined Colorado Interstate in 1957 and held positions of increasing responsibilities in the Mid-Continent and Rocky Mountain regions.

Jeffrey P. Smith, Pogo's new division landman, is a native of Midland. From 1973 to 1976, he was contracts attorney and landman for Union Oil Co. of California in Oklahoma City. Later in Dallas he was land manager for Wessely Energy Corp. followed by a year as vice president, land and legal, for Serban, Inc.

SAN MATEO, Calif. — Flour Mining & Metals, Inc., announced the formation of a Geology & Mining Engineering Division to be based in Tucson, Ariz. The division will occupy 5,600 square feet at 5151 East Broadway.

The division was created to perform mining, geological and geostatistical engineering studies for clients in the Southwest.

Philip G. Morey, principal mining engineer at Flour Mining & Metals, has been appointed manager of the Tucson office.

HOUSTON — B.J. White has joined Superior Oil, the nation's largest independent oil and gas producing company, as general manager of manufacturing and sales.

White has been involved in the petroleum industry for more than 20 years and comes to Superior from Ashland Exploration, Inc. where he was vice president, Hydrocarbon Supply and Environmental Affairs.

HOUSTON — Blocker Energy Corp. announced the name of Choya Drilling Co., a Blocker subsidiary, has been changed to Blocker Drilling Co.

The 18-year-old contract-drilling firm will continue to operate in South Texas and the Gulf Coast with the same personnel and the same equipment.

DALLAS — Edwin L. Cox and Berry R. Cox, oil and gas producers of Dallas, announced the appointment of Don R. Boyd as Texas Gulf Coast exploration manager.

Boyd joins the Cox organization after a 20-year career in the industry. The last eleven years he spent as an independent in association with the late W.L. Sinclair of Dallas.

Joseph A. O'Brien, former exploration manager and long time associate of the Coxes has elected to retire from active management, but will maintain an affiliation with the organization in a consulting capacity.

HOUSTON — Gulf Oil Chemicals Co. announced plans to construct a 5-million-gallon-per-year polyalphaolefin (PAO) plant at Gulf's Cedar Bayou Olefins Plant. The new unit is expected to come onstream in late 1980.

Gulf's PAOs, which are synthesized hydrocarbon base fluids, are derived from linear alphaolefins produced at the Cedar Bayou facility. The largest single use for these fluids is in improved and high performance lubricants.

DENVER — Dietrich Exploration Co., Inc. of Denver announced that final agreement has been signed for its acquisition of all of the outstanding stock of Beta Exploration, Inc., of Denver for 4,900,000 shares of Dietrich common stock.

Beta will be operated as a wholly-owned subsidiary.

HOUSTON — Several promotions have been announced by Oil Base, Inc.

Ron Court has been named district sales manager in Houston. He was a district sales engineer.

Hap Cottell, a district sales engineer in Tyler has been named district sales manager in that city.

Larry Helvey was promoted to district sales manager in Oklahoma City where he was a special sales representative.

Rixby Trahan was promoted and moved to Lafayette, La., as district sales manager. He served in that capacity in Tyler before the transfer.

John Cleveland has been named assistant manager, Technical Services in Houston. He was serving as an assistant to the Technical Services manager.

Congress asked to let oil help social security

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to toughen President Carter's proposed tax on the oil industry to finance a rollback of Social Security taxes.

The tax, a version of Carter's bill to take away some of the billions of dollars that will flow to the oil companies as federal price controls end, would keep the Social Security system healthy without the higher payroll taxes on workers and employers now scheduled in 1981 and 1982.

Such an approach, claims the sponsor, Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., would "offset the inflationary impact of decontrol and ease the impact of higher oil prices on the economy."

Roth, a member of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, offered his plan as the House Ways and Means Committee began work Thursday on Carter's tax proposal.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of Ways and Means, said the panel expects to complete work on the bill by June 14 and get it through the House by the end of the month.

On other energy matters Thursday: —Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said gasoline supplies will be a little better in June than they were last month, barring any unforeseen disruptions in oil imports. At a news conference, Schlesinger said refineries are now operating at 87 percent of capacity rather than 84 percent as they were during the May shortage. And he said oil imports are expected to be up 200,000 to 400,000 barrels a day over what they were in May.

—The Carter administration endorsed legislation that would clear the way for construction of pipelines to ship coal across state lines. After being pulverized and mixed with water, the coal would be pumped from western mines to plants in the Southwest. Proponents of the plan say using coal in industrial boilers in the Southwest would allow oil and gas to be diverted to other parts of the nation. Similar legislation died last year, partially because of strong opposition from railroads that view coal pipelines as unwanted competition.

If Thursday's Ways and Means session is any indication, it will be almost impossible for energy-tax measures to work their way through the House and Senate by the August recess, the goal set by Senate and House leaders.

After the first few hours of questions about charts on declining oil wells, multiple tiers of price controls and rising revenues, Ullman asked the staff to move on to something else. "I doubt that if we had this chart up another hour that anybody would understand it anyway," Ullman said.

Carter already has begun phasing out controls that have held down the price of U.S.-produced oil since 1971. This action will result in at least $15 billion in new revenues for oil companies between now and Sept. 30, 1981. Carter's proposed tax would take away a part of the increase and use it to help the poor, mass transit and development of alternative energy sources.

Roth told reporters Carter's tax can be made tougher without denying oil companies the incentive they need to produce more. At the same time, he said, a heavier tax would bring in enough additional revenue to wipe out the Social Security tax increases due to take effect in 1981 and 1982, and to finance "a crash research-and-development project on alternative forms of energy."

A Social Security tax of 6.13 percent is levied on a worker's first $22,900 of earnings this year.

White seeks exemptions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White has called upon his counterparts in seven other oil-producing states to support exemption of states from the proposed federal windfall profits tax.

"The House Ways and Means Committee will have a mark-up session Monday on the windfall profits tax measure," White said in a telegram sent Friday.

"There is to be an amendment introduced exempting state-owned lands and royalty interest from such tax," he said. "This is consistent with the federal exemption now contained in the original bill. If passed, this amendment has been estimated to mean a savings to the states of $200 million by 1982."

White asks his peers to contact their congressmen and urge adoption of the amendment.

"Time is of the essence," he concluded.

Telegrams went to Attorneys General George Deukmejian of California, William Guste of Louisiana, Jan Eric Cartwright of Oklahoma, Steve Clark of Arkansas, Jeff Bingham of New Mexico, Charles Graddick of Alabama and A.F. Somer of Mississippi.

Copies also were sent to the Texas Congressional Delegation.

Estoril adds manager

Bobby M. Gleason recently joined Estoril Producing Corp. in Midland as Manager of Financial Reporting, where he will be responsible for various functions of the corporation.

Prior to joining Estoril, he was employed by Elmer Fox, Westheimer & Co. in Midland as audit manager.

Gleason, a Certified Public Accountant, holds a B.B.A. degree in Accounting and a B.B.A. degree in Management from Texas Tech University.

OMB objections halt alternate energy plan

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Objections by the Office of Management and Budget have torpedoed a proposal by the Treasury and Energy departments to set up a $10 billion international corporation for developing alternative sources of energy.

The proposal would have been made by President Carter to the economic summit in Tokyo later this month, as one way of meeting the challenge of the oil-producers' cartel.

"Nothing close to that, or as ambitious, is likely to be made in Tokyo," a high government source said Friday in confirming the story. Many officials, who refused to be quoted expressed disappointment that the Treasury-DOE plan "did not prosper at the hands of OMB."

Neither Treasury nor OMB officials would comment on the proposal. Privately, DOE officials reiterated it would have been a useful initiative.

Other sources said OMB had proposed an alternative program that OMB felt to be a better solution. But OMB officials would not comment on this either.

The proposal was put forward — with elaborate secrecy — about a month ago by Treasury officials who argued that private capital was not prepared to take all the financial risks involved in developing new sources of energy, such as oil from coal and shale.

They suggested what was essentially a "World Bank" approach — an international development institution started off with about $1 billion in initial capital, with $9 billion "callable" as needed. The oil "bank" would borrow money, as needed to fill the gap between existing research and development projects, and commercial operations. By the time new production was flowing, backers predicted, it might be unnecessary to subsidize the operation.

Advocates of the $10 billion plan thought that such a proposal, if ratified at an international meeting such as the summit, would shorten the time lag achieving alternative energy supplies. They also felt it would be an important psychological commitment to the often-stated object of oil-consuming nations to reduce dependence on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But the proposal, discussed by U.S. officials and their counterparts in six other nations that will attend the Tokyo summit, was conditioned on getting OMB support.

The U.S. share of the financial obligation was to run 30 to 40 percent of the total. The initial $1 billion would have cost the United States $400 million. The potential U.S. liability might be as much as $4 billion.

Without OMB support, at a meeting of summit planners two weeks ago, the plan was dropped. "The OMB decision," an administration official said, "must have reflected the president's own view to a certain extent."

Sources also said other nations were "cautious" about the U.S. plan. Concern was expressed about costs and the practicality of the scheme, but it was never rejected because of fears it might be considered "confrontational."

Sources here and abroad Friday agreed that, if Carter had come to Tokyo with the plan, it would have had a good chance of adoption.

One government official — not among the original sponsoring group — said Friday the plan "is not a dead issue, just because it won't be proposed at the summit."

The summit planners have a final meeting in Paris next week, at which various kinds of energy proposals will be discussed. "Some other ways" of dealing with energy, including the difficult problem of the stock market, will be examined, sources said.

Pogo acquires Sabine interests

HOUSTON — Pogo Producing Co. has acquired from Sabine Corp. all of its working interests in approximately 46,000 acres of non-producing oil and gas leases located in four counties of Southeast New Mexico and nine counties of West Texas.

Total purchase price, according to W.E. Gipson, Pogo president, was in the neighborhood of $4.3 million. Gipson said the Permian Basin acreage has favorable oil and gas potential in multiple producing formations.

The leaseholds in Eddy, Lea, Chaves and Roosevelt counties, N.M., principally cover federal or state lands, with minor amounts of fee acre leases in Lea County.

The leaseholds in Texas are located in Andrews, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Upton and Ward counties, are both fee lands and state university land leases. The leases covering approximately 150 separate tracts have staggered expiration dates with the longest term leases extending until 1987.

Gipson said currently five wells are being drilled nearby or offsetting various tracts, four in Eddy County and one in Reeves County. He said Pogo's purchase of the new leaseholds indicates the Company's expanding interest in the Permian Basin where Pogo had previously leased 30,000 net acres. Pogo established oil and gas production during the past year in Lea and Eddy counties and Glasscock County. Gipson announced that Kenneth R. Good, Pogo's division landman in its Houston office, is handling the processing of the newly acquired leases.

Bernard L. House, Sabine's West Texas district manager in Midland, was in charge of the sale for that company.

Nation's food vendors get mixed price reports

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — America's grocery shoppers got mixed signals on food prices this past week. On one hand they were told that food prices dropped in May and the price of pork and poultry are expected to lead a general decline in meat prices for the rest of the year. But they also heard that beef prices, which dropped in May, probably won't go down much further. And the price of coffee is rising again. The May report on food prices was part of a fairly good report from the government on the Producer Price Index. The May index of wholesale prices rose 0.4 percent in May, well below the 0.9 percent increase of April and the gains of a percentage point apiece in February and March. One of the biggest reasons for the moderation of the increase in May was a big decline in food prices. They dropped 1.3 percent in May, the biggest dip since February 1976. Among the biggest decliners were pork — off 10.1 percent — beef and veal — off 6.9 percent — and fresh fruits — off 4.5 percent.

IT TAKES A LITTLE while for decreases in wholesale prices to make it to the consumer level, so grocery shoppers shouldn't expect to see big declines in prices at the shelf for a few weeks. But once the prices start falling, they'll probably continue to drop, analysts say. According to the Department of Agriculture, sharp increases in the supply of pork and poultry are going to force prices down in the next few months, particularly as the slowing economy puts a damper on consumer demand.

Beef prices, however, will probably not continue to fall. "There's probably not much that can be done to thwart the beef price spiral," according to the Value Line investment survey. Analysts say that beef prices are not destined to go down for a while because cattle are in short supply. In 1975, faced with a surplus of animals, ranchers began thinning out their herds. Now, however, they are rebuilding them, a process that could take another couple of years. In the meantime, beef prices aren't expected to fall significantly.

The price of another staple, coffee, is headed upward after several months of decline. A FROST THAT struck Brazil, the world's largest coffee producer, wiped out part of this year's coffee crop, causing Brazil to raise its prices. Major coffee roasters followed that with increases first of 15 cents a pound and then, this week, of another 25 cents. That brought the price to $2.83 a pound, 16.5 percent higher than the price on May 1.

That will hit hard at the breakfast table after a two-year period when prices were dropping from record highs in 1977. And coffee analysts say the price could go higher, because winter is just beginning in Brazil. "There may be a price increase above these levels because of the possibility of another frost," said Fred Carlson, who analyzes coffee for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc.

IN OTHER business-related developments this past week: —The Federal Aviation Administration grounded the McDonnell Douglas DC-10 jumbo jet indefinitely, pending full investigation of the causes of the DC-10 crash in Chicago last month that killed 275. The grounding, which analysts said could last weeks or months, placed McDonnell Douglas' financial picture in jeopardy and caused widespread problems in flight schedules of the airlines that fly the plane. —The price of gold hit record levels, cracking the $280 an ounce barrier for the first time in markets in London, Zurich and New York. Analysts have attributed the metal's rise to world economic uncertainty centered around the specter of rising oil prices.

—The Carter administration relaxed clean-air standards for gasoline in an attempt to spur output of unleaded gas. Meanwhile, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger expressed optimism on the outlook for gasoline supply and the American Petroleum Institute said inventories of the fuel took an unexpected leap at the end of May, apparently due in part to a significant drop in consumption.

—The nation's automakers said new-car sales plunged 20.2 percent during the last 10 days of May, apparently the result of fears about gas supply and the general state of the economy.

—F.W. Woolworth Co., fresh from its triumph over Brascan Ltd.'s takeover attempt, said that Loew's Corp., which now owns about 2 percent of the giant retail store chain, had filed documents which would allow it to increase its Woolworth holding to 15 percent.

—The Council on Wage and Price

Stability said United Airlines' agreements with its mechanics might violate wage-price guidelines, so might price increases imposed by five oil companies and a labor agreement covering Portland, Ore., electrical workers. The actions were the first since a federal court said the Carter administration could not use government contracts as incentives for compliance with the guidelines.

—The Federal Reserve Board said it would allow banks to branch across state lines to conduct international business, but delayed a decision on what restraints would be placed on the operations of the branches.

Midland permits center around home activity

Most of the building activity last week apparently centered around new homes as the city's Building and Inspections Department issued most of the building permits for new residences.

Total in building permits for last week was slightly under the $1 million mark with $974,150 recorded. No permits for new commercial structures were issued.

One permit to W.C. Blanks at 310 W. Wall St. for interior finishing of several suites in that office building was for $75,000.

VFW Club at 401 Air Park Drive received a permit for commercial alterations valued at $6,000. Red Carpet Real Estate at 700 Andrews Highway was issued a permit for a $1,000 new sign.

Permits for new residences were issued to:

- J.B. Whiddle, 4506 Cloudercroft St., $48,000; Castle Construction, 3900 Bedford Ave., $66,000; R.J.R. Enterprises, 3801 Permian Court, $60,000; R.J.R. Enterprises, 4500 Placid Court, $60,000; Tabor Construction, 1103 McDonald St., $60,000; Grafa Construction Co., 3807 Crestridge Drive, $90,000; Clyde Brown, 1602 Tammy Cove, $49,150; Clyde Brown, 1603 Tammy Cove, $45,750; Clyde Brown, 1605 Tammy Cove, $48,950; Clyde Brown, 1607 Tammy Cove, $47,000; D.R.R. Construction, 804 Canonero St., $150,000; and D.R.D. Construction, 805 Canonero St., $150,000.

Permits for residential alterations went to Bill Darnell, 4605 Mercedes, $5,800; L.C. Slape, 1601 W. Kentucky Ave., $1,000; J.L. Gotcher, 4008 W. Michigan Ave., $2,500; and Collier McKinzie, 102 N. Lee St., $6,000.

Graduate center offers managerial accounting

"Managerial Accounting & Finance for Non-Financial Executives" will be offered by the Permian Basin Graduate Center from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. June 18-19 and from 9 a.m. to 12 noon June 20 at the PBGC Building, 105 W. Illinois St.

Charles H. Smith will be the instructor.

This seminar is designed for executives with limited background in managerial accounting and finance. It is particularly worthwhile for engineers, lawyers, geologists, independents, small businessmen, and other executives who have moved into positions requiring financial analysis and decision making for which they have had little or no previous preparation.

It will serve as a refresher for those who have degrees in business administration but who have not used their accounting and financial education in recent years. There are no prerequisites for this seminar.

Smith is Professor of Accounting, College of Business Administration, University of Illinois. He received his Ph.D. from Pennsylvania State University and his Bachelor's of Commerce from The University of Cape Town, South Africa.

Fee for the class is $325 which includes textbook and study materials. For further information or registration, call the Graduate Center at 563-2311.

John Neill has been named new plant manager for the Midland-Odesa Texas Instruments facility.

He is transferring here from Taiwan where he has worked for the past five years.

Neill is replacing C. W. "Bill" Steele who has moved to Sherman on a new assignment with Texas Instruments' equipment group. Steele had been plant manager in Midland since the start-up of the plant in April 1977.

Guidelines set on job layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is setting up guidelines for states to phase out thousands of workers in federal public service jobs instead of requiring the workers to be laid off all at once next October.

The department changed its regulations Friday to allow state and local governments to establish the phase-out programs, which could stretch up to 18 months.

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act was changed recently to limit employment under its provisions to 18 months. Labor Department officials said the limitation would mean as many as 300,000 persons might be laid off their jobs on Sept. 30.

Under the new regulations, state and local government will be able to request a waiver to the 18-month limitation rule as long as they begin a program over the following year to gradually phase out the workers.

New York exchange's blue chip stocks show only mixed results

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a bull market on Wall Street that has been running, almost without interruption, for 4½ years.

To the many investors who own shares of big-name blue chip stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange, that statement may sound like an unfunny joke. Prices of most of those issues are depressed, showing only mixed results so far this year after declining in 1977 and 1978.

But the 1,100 or so smaller stocks traded at the American Stock Exchange, just a couple of blocks west of the Big Board in the financial district, are behaving in a much different fashion.

In the past week the Amex market value index jumped 6.28 to 194.28, hitting record highs daily before pulling back a bit on Friday.

The index has more than tripled since the end of 1974, when it stood at 60.32.

BY CONTRAST, the Dow Jones industrial average's weekly gain of 13.94 to 835.15 left it far below its 1973 peak of 1,051.70.

The upsurge at the Amex still has a way to go to match the buying spree that swept the junior exchange in the late 1960s, before the "go-go" market of that era collapsed.

Trading volume on the Amex for 1979, which passed 400 million shares in the past week, is running behind the pace of 1968, when the full year's total was a record 1.44 billion. And the aggregate market value of Amex stocks — $45.7 billion as of the end of April — is still well short of the peak of $59.21 billion at the end of 1968, when there were fewer issues listed on the exchange.

Analysts also noted that the latest market-value figure for all Amex stocks is matched by a single NYSE issue — International Business Machines.

NEVERTHELESS, SOME of the statistics the Amex has piled up in the last few years are impressive. The market value index scored gains of 38, 32, 16 and 18 percent in the years 1975-78, and in the first five months of this year climbed another 21 percent.

A recent tabulation of individual Amex issues turned up 36 that had doubled or more since the start of 1979, against only three that had fallen by a half or more.

Analysts have given much of the credit for the prolonged rise on the Amex to a revival of investor interest in smaller companies, which has also made its presence felt in gains in the over-the-counter market.

RECENTLY, IT HAS picked up new impetus from another direction — a wave of enthusiasm for independent energy companies such as, domestic and Canadian oil and gas concerns that are heavily represented on the Amex.

"Lately all the action has been in the energy stocks," said Charles Jensen, an analyst at MKI Securities.

As of late last week Juniper Petroleum was trading at 9, up 6½ for the year, Howell Corp. at 24½, up 16½; Crown Central Petroleum at 80½, up 53½; Great Basins Petroleum at 11½, up 7½; and Canadian Homestead Oils, up 8½ at 16½.

A big chunk of Great Basins' rise — 4½ points worth — came last Wednesday when the company said it would explore a possible merger or other disposition of many of its assets.

The most spectacular gainer among the Amex stocks until recently was Tubos de Acero de Mexico, a producer of pipe and steel tube that does most of its business with Pemex, the Mexican government petroleum agency.

The stock, which one analyst described as "the easiest way to play Mexican oil," soared earlier in the year from less than 10 to above 40 before falling back to the high 20s.

Will the "Amex bull market" continue? The question can't be answered absolutely, of course, but some analysts argue that at least a temporary pause is due.

Jensen noted that, except for the energy stocks that exert a large influence on the market value index, broad measures of issues advancing and declining on the Amex lately have showed signs of leveling off — a possible portent, he said, of a "cooling-off period."

Meeting slated June 19 to study usury ceiling

AUSTIN — Members of the Savings and Loan Section of the State Finance Commission plan a meeting June 19 to work on rules and regulations for implementing the new floating usury ceiling for home mortgage loans — and for variable rate mortgages.

HB 409 by Rep. Jerry Donaldson, Gatesville, passed by the recently-concluded regular session of the 66th Legislature, provides for home-loan interest rates to "float" at up to two percent above the 10-year U.S. Treasury bill rate, under a 12 percent cap.

Officials at the Texas Savings and Loan Department report a number of queries have been received regarding whether a savings and loan association can quote a rate now based on 10-year Treasury note rates — but HB 409 won't go into effect until Aug. 27.

Under that bill, the department and section are to devise variable rate requirements.

Such proposals are under study on a nationwide basis by federal officials.

Section members have held one discussion already on variable rate regulations, concluding they may have to stay close to existing variable rate plans to enable Texas mortgages to be sold in the secondary market.

California's regulations are being studied, but those variable rate provisions are tied to a cost determined by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the department reports.

California allows a maximum increase of 2.5 percent in interest rates over the life of the loan, with a maximum adjustment of .5 percent for a given year.

Upward adjustments are optional and cumulative; downward adjustments are required, the department says.

The section also is looking to increase the amount allowed to be loaned for home improvement purposes — and at increasing the maximum limit on consumer loans as well.

Variable rate mortgages have been studied before by the section and department, but no serious attempt has ever been made at implementing them in Texas.

In the past, the state savings and loan industry has been receptive to the idea, but lawmakers, and labor

New service gets approval

Continental Airlines announced it has been awarded authority to fly to Singapore, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Manila via Guam by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The airline said the Midland Regional Air Terminal will have access to these major Pacific destinations through Continental's daily service to Los Angeles and Honolulu, according to C. R. Logue, regional director here.

Quillen named bank president

William L. Quillen has been named president, chief executive officer, and director of State National Bank of Odessa.

He has been serving as the bank's executive vice president, chief administrative officer and as an advisory director since January. He joined State National in 1974.

Texaco budget for 1979 increased

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Texaco Inc. announced the company's budget for capital and exploratory expenditures during the calendar year 1979 is being increased by approximately $150,000,000. The previously authorized budget was $1,561,000,000.

Most of the overall increase in the investment budget will be spent during the second half of this year, the company pointed out.

The bulk of the increase consists of approximately $125 million in new project investments. On a geographical basis, almost $100 million of the new project investments are earmarked for the United States.

This increase raises the company's 1979 budgeted expenditures within the United States to more than $1 billion.

On a functional basis, more than $80 million, or two-thirds, of the new project investments are allocated for worldwide exploration and production.

In addition, well workovers expenditures have been allocated an additional $14 million.

Elcor rated by Fortune

Elcor Corp., a Midland-based firm, has been listed by Fortune Magazine in the "Second 500 Largest Industrial Corporations" in the United States.

The standings of the domestic companies will appear in the June 18 edition of the business publication. Based on 1978 sales of $140,837,000, Fortune ranked Elcor as the 884th largest industrial corporation in the United States.

"This is the first time Elcor has been ranked in the top 1,000 industrial corporations by Fortune," Roy E. Campbell, Elcor president said.

Elcor manufactures roofing and industrial products and engineers and constructs processing facilities for the energy, chemical and mining industries. Each of Elcor's principal operating subsidiaries is the leader or one of the leaders within its particular market.

Homemade plane fills living room

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (AP) — Victor and Mary-Kate Sullivan's hobby cannot easily be ignored. It measures 16 by 22 feet and hovers in the living room of their home.

"It just never occurred to us to build it in a garage," said Mrs. Sullivan, as she ducked under one of the wings of their airplane to sit down at the dining-room table.

"We catch a few minutes here and there to work on it," added her husband. "And that's the advantage of having it in the house."

The Sullivans began building the experimental airplane in their 18- by 32-foot living room about two years ago. The craft is built from light-weight plastic with a glass fiber-epoxy skin.

Following a thick, step-by-step manual and monthly newsletters from the California company that makes the plane, the Sullivans have carved, glued and sanded their way to the final pages. With the installation of the engine, a used 80-horsepower model, and a coat of white paint, the plane will be ready to fly.

And, none too soon for Sullivan, an industrial arts professor at Pittsburg State University who makes job-related jaunts around the state. The plane should travel 1,000 miles on 24 gallons of gas, he said, which will "probably cost less than driving."

Other features of the two-passenger plane include solar cells to generate electricity to charge the batteries for lights and instruments. The plane also sprouts "winglets" which stand 38 inches high on the tips of the wings.

This was not the first building project undertaken by the Sullivans. The pair built their home and much of their furniture. Mrs. Sullivan said her background as a seamstress had helped in handling the fiberglass cloth and cutting around patterns.

Sullivan said the cost of the basic fuselage was less than $5,000 but that with radio gear and instruments it would be closer to $10,000.

The Sullivans hope to get the plane off the ground this summer and spend about 10 hours testing it.

Fortunately, the wings are removable. But as for the body of the plane, Mrs. Sullivan conceded that "we'll have to take the door apart."

RINGING THE BELL

Youth sessions held at Odessa

With BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience (Our Heritage): One of the largest youth conferences in history was held at the Carter Chapel C.M.E. Church, Odessa, June 1-2 with Rev. Johnny Wilson as host pastor. Rev. E.J. Lott presented the work and plans of the Abilene District and announced that the 45th session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the C.M.E. Church would convene at Pampa June 18-22, and that visitors from over the Southwest and the nation are expected to attend.

Presiding at most of the sessions was Ms. Theodora Phea of Lubbock, who urged the youth to accept the great challenges they face now and to put faith and work together for the moral cleansing of our great nation. Young people and representatives from West Texas and New Mexico participated in the seminar sessions, with Rev. Jonah Parker of Abilene serving as dean of the institute.

IT ALSO WAS announced that the 1980 session of the Youth Conference would be held in Midland (ST. Paul), and that Ms. Claudia Davis, longtime educator and civic leader of Midland, would be the featured speaker at the Layman's Awards Banquet at Pampa Wednesday evening, June 20.

It was noted that Bishop Ceasar David Coleman, who is presiding prelate of the 8th Episcopal District (five conferences in Texas) would present plans for the strengthening of the financial support for Texas College, an "A" class four-year institution at Tyler, which is owned and operated by the denomination.

Your correspondent served as noon speaker Saturday for Ms. Billie Sadler who, because of previous engagements in El Paso, could not be present at the young people's confab in Odessa.

FROM OUT OF THE Past (Our Heritage) "The Negro Industrial State Fair, has decided to hold its second annual state fair in the city of Boley, in Okfuskee County, Okla., beginning Wednesday, Sept. 5 and closing Saturday, Sept. 28, 1918.

"The object of this state fair is to show to the world at large what the Negro citizens of Oklahoma are capable of producing and their present progress. There is probably no state in the United States that excels or even equals the Negro population of Oklahoma, in wealth and progress....

"Boley being the largest Negro city in the United States (Note 1918) and being centrally located, has been chosen as the permanent location of this fair...You can come in your automobiles or your wagons and be independent of railroad travel. We are making preparations to entertain at least 15,000 people, and ample hotel accommodations will be provided...All kinds of amusements will be provided...You will be in the exclusive company of your own race and no pains will be spared to make your stay pleasant." (Signed) J. Coody Johnson, president, W.H. Twine, sec., J.H. McRiley, general manager. (From The Black Star Newspaper, 1918)

"THE WASHINGTON D.C. government recently estimated that there are 502,300 blacks and 173,000 whites in D.C. or that the area is 75 percent black. The discouraging thought about this situation is that we blacks buy practically no clothes, no automobiles, no groceries or anything else except caskets, from black business people. And although we hold scores and scores of conventions, banquets, etc., the one hotel we have here in D.C.—the beautiful new Harambee House, is in deep financial trouble. What is wrong with black folks? Are we really inferior, or just disadvantaged? Or is the hate for ourselves so deep that we refuse to do business with each other?...Are we slipping back? What do you think?" (Signed) Sherman Briscoe of D.C.

Skunk wins, loses

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — A hapless skunk slipped into Cottonwood School for the last day of classes and did battle with a deputy sheriff.

Deputy Dennis Davis, who was called to the scene, fired at the intruder, but his aim was off. The skunk fired back, with greater accuracy, and the officer had to take the rest of the day off because of the odor of his uniform.

The skunk finally got the worst of it, but not before leaving his special brand of perfume lingering throughout the school. It was so bad, in fact, that lower-grade students were moved to another building and older children were let out of school early.

DIRT, SQUIRT & QUIRT Tomatoes fail to set fruit in West Texas

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent—Agriculture

Planters were rolling early and late last week as farmers rushed to get cotton planted following the rainfall. All areas finally got planting moisture, although it was lighter in Greenwood, Valley View and Cotton Flat. About 30,000 acres of dryland cotton remained to be planted in Midland County, delayed because of lack of rainfall. Most of the irrigated acreage had already been planted and was up to a stand.

A few fields were flooded in areas of locally heavy rain and will have to be replanted, but most of the irrigated acreage in the county was not damaged. Depending on the season now and barring weather damage, agricultural prospects for a good crop are much improved.

HOME GARDENERS in West Texas find their tomato plants will often bloom profusely but fail to set fruit. Instead of a tiny fruit resulting from the flower, there will be a barren stalk where the fruit should be. If tomato plants are set very early the first cluster or two may set fruit, but the plant may stop bearing after warmer weather until cooler weather comes in September.

The tomato fruit is wind pollinated. The pollen grains in the anther (male flower part) are shaken off and land on the stigma (female part of the flower), where it sticks, germinates, grows down into the ovary and fertilizes the ovules within the ovary.

If fertilization occurs, seeds will begin to form and the ovary stays on the fruiting stalk. If fertilization does not occur, the ovary aborts, leaving a barren stalk. "Beating" tomato vines is not necessary with outdoor tomatoes to shake the pollen loose. The shaking of the plant by the wind is all that is necessary.

The basic cause of abortion is the drying out of the pollen grain, either in the anther or after it lands on the stigma due to low rainfall coupled with high temperatures.

EAST TEXAS IS HOT in the summer, but frequent rainfall raises the humidity so pollen grains do not dry out and fruit set occurs. Since we cannot increase the rainfall or lower the temperatures or cause the wind to abate in West Texas, we have to go another route:

Change the microclimate around the fruiting cluster, that is, we must increase the humidity in the immediate vicinity of the fruiting cluster. Following are methods which help in accomplishing this. Do not prune. Allow the maximum foliage to develop for shading and increased leaf surface.

Use wire cages. Before plant is 18 inches in diameter, place a wire cage over it, preferably 24 inches in diameter. If not caged, let it sprawl, however, a single plant may occupy a 12 foot circle rather than 3 feet as when caged. With a large mass of tomato foliage, humidity is built up inside the mass of leaves since each leaf is giving off water vapor, which tends to be trapped in the mass of leaves.

Plant on the east side of a wall or fence running north and south. Plant double rows of tomatoes to form a hedge. Using row centerlines 60-72 inches apart, plant two parallel rows of tomatoes 12 inches off centerline and 24 inches apart in each row in a staggered fashion. Then set posts in each end and fasten woven wired with 6 inch mesh to support the tomato plants on each side.

Shading. Some growers report good results from building a frame 6 foot high over their tomato row and attaching cheese cloth, burlap or other shading material. With individual cages, cover cage with burlap, cheesecloth or other shading material; spraying such a covered cage at noon, 2:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m. may help.

SOMETIMES A TOMATO flower can be made to set fruit without pollen by use of a hormone spray containing BNXA (beta-naphthoxyacetic acid). This spray substitutes for the pollen. These may be referred to as "blossom-set" sprays. Use as directed on the can and apply with an old "Windex bottle" or other similar mist type sprayer in early morning or late afternoon.

And finally, variety selection is important. A few varieties have been found to set fruit without help throughout the hot West Texas summers. These are Small Fry, Sweet 100, Red Cherry and the small Porter. These are the small (3/4 inch diameter) fruited varieties. Some medium fruited varieties will tolerate heat to some degree. These include Patio, Saladette, Plainsman, Red Cloud, Westernred, Hotset and Improved Summertime.

Factory finishes last big Lincoln

WIXOM, Mich. (AP) — The body of a Lincoln, serial No. 99Y5763622, dropped onto a chassis at 12:16 p.m. Friday, and the developing 2 1/2 ton "dinosaur" started its one hour, 24 minute crawl to completion.

No. 99Y5763622, a white two-door Lincoln Continental Town Coupe with a brown vinyl roof, was the last of the huge personal cars to be built in this country, except for Cadillac's limousine. The big Lincolns came in three body styles on one of two chassis.

The car is 19 feet, 5 inches long, is listed for retail sale at $11,467 and gets 12 miles per gallon in city driving, the lowest of any U.S. model. Ready to drive, it weighs more than 4,800 pounds.

Next year, the model shrinks as part of the auto industry's 4-year-old process of "downsizing" for greater fuel economy. Next week, the plant starts a month-and-a-half changeover for the new models.

Lincoln has not released details of its new models, but industry observers speculate they will be about 2 feet shorter and about 500 pounds lighter.

The eventual owner of the last of the big Lincolns may never be known. The work ticket was blank except for the computer-printed words "The End."

Company officials said there are enough of the new cars on hand to meet demand for better than 3 months.

During the last three years of producing the Continentals and Mark Vs, assemblers routinely worked overtime, 9 1/2 or 10-hour days.

Each week during this model year, they built about 3,800 of the cars — 168,539 of them in all. Demand for the cars during the 1977 model year was 7,000 to 8,000 higher.

Though the buyer of the last big Lincoln probably will not be known, purchasers of the last of the special-trim "Collector's Series" were on hand when that car came off the assembly line Thursday.

That car, a $21,452 midnight blue Mark V, is being leased to self-confessed "car nuts" Omar Thronsen and his son, Larry, who are partners in an insulation contracting firm in Lynnwood, Wash., near Seattle. They also restore cars built in the 1950s.

Midland brands burned in walls at Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION — Midland and Martin county cattle brands are among the 3,500 or more brands being burned in oak panels as a tribute to the Texas livestock industry.

The branding is being done in the Robert J. Kleberg Jr. Animal and Food Science Center at Texas A&M University.

Representatives of ranching families are using branding irons to burn imprints in the 254 panels representing Texas' counties.

Each County Extension Service's Livestock Committee in the state selects eight brands of "ranches with historical significance to the livestock industry" to be represented in the branding, said Midland County Agent Charles W. Green.

The branded panels was the idea of Dr. O.D. Butler, associate vice president of Texas A&M University.

"We felt that the branding ceremonies would bring about a closer tie-in between cattlemen and our animal science facilities on campus, as well as with research and educational work throughout Texas," Dr. Butler said.

Salt mine explosion kills Louisianans

CALUMET, La. (AP) — An explosion sent shock waves ripping through vast corridors of a salt mine here Saturday, killing four miners and leaving another missing and possibly trapped 1,200 feet underground, officials said.

The blast occurred shortly after a charge of explosives had been set off by miners blowing loose another section of salt, said Achille Boutte, one of 17 men who made their way to safety through dark, debris-clogged tunnels. Four miners were hospitalized in fair condition, and the others were treated and released.

"We're still searching and hoping for the remaining man," said Greg Lauser of the main office of Cargill Salt Inc. at Minneapolis.

Company officials in Calumet identified the missing man as Adam Sampay, 24, of New Iberia, and the dead as Richard Collins, 31, of Patterson; Donald Mayon, 38, of Baldwin; Herman Zimmerman, 48, of Franklin and Amedee Olivier, 23, of Jeanerette.

Boutte, a foreman, said he believed the miners hit a pocket of methane gas, a colorless, odorless, flammable gas formed by the decomposition of vegetable matter. It can be used as a fuel.

"You can't tell what happened until you go back and check," he said.

He said the 22 men working at the time of the explosion were holding a safety meeting in a corridor as wide as a city street.

"It was five or 10 minutes after we blasted," he said. "I didn't hear any sound, all we had was the pressure."

"It blew everybody from where we were standing. It threw me out of my jeep. I couldn't see anything. Everything was black, and there was dust and smoke all over the place.

"I heard somebody say, 'What are we going to do? Where do we go?'"

"I couldn't see him, but I kept telling him to try to get out. I kept talking as long as I could, but we were afraid of carbon monoxide, so we put our breathing masks on, and we couldn't talk any more.

Editorialist dies at 66 after illness

NEW YORK (AP) — William Frank McCullam, chief national editorial writer for the Hearst Newspapers for 12 years until his retirement in 1978, has died here after a short illness. He was 66.

McCullam died Friday at New York Hospital. A native of Eureka Springs, Ark., he was a resident of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.

McCullam started his career as a reporter for the Elizabeth, N.J., Daily Journal before going to work for the New York Journal American.

For the rest of his career of more than 40 years, he worked for Hearst Newspapers — as a police reporter, City Hall reporter, feature writer, rewrite man, editorial writer, nightclub reporter and columnist. His columns were written under the pseudonym "Gene Knight."

He served as president of the City Hall Reporters Association, and was a member of the Cum Laude Society and the Inner Circle. He was also a charter member of the American Newspaper Guild.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ingeborg Wendt-Wriedt, and a son, William Frank Jr. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

"Approximately 200,000 cattle brands are recorded in Texas, and they are a rich part of the livestock history and a prized possession of ranchers," he added.

Brands from Midland County burned into a panel include the "JK" ("J" connected "K") of the John King Sr. Ranch; "F" of the Midkiff Ranch; "9" of the Bryant Estate; "C" of the Foy Proctor C Ranch; "P" of the Parks Estate; little "a" of the Estes Ranch; drag "A" of the Arthur Judkins Ranch; the open "A" of the Aycock Ranch; the Scharbauer Cattle Co.'s figure "5" and Curtis Erwin's figure "4."

Brands representing Martin County include Bird's "7-bar," Mabee's open "6," Wolcott's anchor, C.C. Slaughter's lazy long "S," Mihollan's "M," Tom's "K," Sales "V-bar," Church's "O-bar," Glascock's lazy "7," Glass & Johnson's lazy "Z," Marion Glynt's square top "3," and Sam Cox's H-bar.

Twenty-one members of Midland County ranch families took part in the branding ceremonies. They included Bob Midkiff, John Midkiff, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Walton and daughters Julie and Jamie, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Walton, Marijo King Collins, John W. and Iva Aline Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Aldredge "Button" Estes, Clay Midkiff, Chauncey and Jessie Garrison, Anita Sue Wylie, Mrs. John Midkiff, Mrs. Bud Wylie and Green.

The Martin County delegation at the branding included George W. "Tee" Knox, Don Roper, Janie Roper, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cox, Roy Blocker and Martin County Extension Agent Preston Faris.

Other groups participating in the panel branding were officers and directors of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and other livestock associations, county historical societies and alumni.

Truck wreck, explosion kills four in Missouri

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — A tractor-trailer truck and a pickup truck collided Saturday, crashed into a gasoling station and set off an explosion and fire that killed four persons, including a 3-year-old girl, authorities said.

Three other persons were injured in the fire, which threatened the service station's underground fuel tanks for three hours before firemen could bring it under control.

"Bodies were scattered all over the place," said Austin Jones, 27, who was working on a house near the combination service station and store, Thurman's One-Stop.

A Butler County deputy sheriff said the victims were the elderly driver of the pickup, his wife, a second woman riding in the pickup and her daughter. Two boys also in the pickup and the driver of the tractor-trailer were injured.

Sharon Gill, a county resident, said she had stopped across from the intersection of U.S. 67 and Missouri 160 when the collision occurred.

"The little truck just pulled onto the highway. The big truck never had a chance. I don't think he even had time to hit his brakes," Mrs. Gill said.

She said the driver of the pickup, identified as William H. Meadors, 70, of Memphis, Tenn., "was thrown from the truck and was caught underneath and was dragged."

Authorities identified the other victims as Eva Meadors, 66, of Memphis; Dixie Hoerst, 37, of Keyser, W.Va., and her 3-year-old daughter, Pamela.

The injured boys were identified as Kenneth Meadors, 15, of Hayti, Mo., and his cousin, Richard Hoerst, 8, of Keyser, W.Va. Meadors was listed in fair condition with a broken leg and abrasions, and Hoerst was in fair condition with head injuries, a hospital supervisor said.

The tractor-trailer driver was identified as Clyde Goad, 51, of Potosi, Mo., who was in stable condition with minor injuries.

The deputy said the explosion and fire occurred when the tractor-trailer rig and the pickup truck, locked together, smashed across gasoline pumps into the front of the store.

Store-employee Eddie Cable, 21, of Harviell, Mo., and Shelley Thurman, who with her husband Jim owns the store, were working inside when the vehicles crashed into the storefront.

"We ran out the back and up to the accident and started pulling people away from the fire," Cable said. He said one side of the tractor-trailer was in flames, with the driver still inside.

Youth mauled to death by leopard

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled for Monday for a 5-year-old boy killed by a leopard last week while attending a local circus.

Jerome J. Vaccarezza of Byram Township died Thursday after he walked too close to the chained leopard and the big cat leaped, mauling the boy and puncturing his neck. He bled to death.

No criminal charges were filed against the Roberts Brothers Top Three Circus act, which featured the 175-pound cat. Nor were charges filed against Conny Dam, of Gibsonton, Fla., who owned the leopards, according to Morris County Prosecutor Peter Manahan.

TWC grants water request of Arrow Co.

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has granted the request of Arrow Investment Company, Inc., to change the use of 144 acre-feet of water from irrigation to municipal purposes.

Arrow diverts 288 acre-feet of water from the Rio Grande in the Rio Grande Basin, half of which will now be used for municipal consumption 11 miles southwest of Terlingua in Brewster County.

The remaining 144 acre-feet of water will be used to irrigate a maximum of 72 acres of land out of a 535.86-acre tract in Brewster County.

KKK, blacks march in South

By The Associated Press

Robed Ku Klux Klansmen, some armed with clubs, marched peacefully in Decatur, Ala., on Saturday to assert white supremacy, while 10 times their number of blacks paraded afterwards to protest rape charges against a black.

Hours later, the head of the Ku Klux Klan in Arkansas, Randy Howard, was arrested Saturday night and taken away by police about two hours before he was to kick off an organizational meeting. Five others also were arrested, but police refused to identify them.

Howard and another man were handcuffed and led away by state police after a brief fight in which Howard's peaked hat was ripped off as the Klan demonstrated along a busy street near the Little Rock campus of the University of Arkansas. Howard was released in time to attend the rally.

A man wearing a suit was arrested about an hour before the rally was to begin when he entered the area where anti-Klan demonstrators were assembled. State police asked him to leave the area. When he did not, he was taken into custody. His name was not released. The arrests occurred after about 30 Klansmen, clad in white robes and peaked hats and carrying signs, walked to University Avenue where they lined one side of the street. The Klansmen shouted "White Power" to passing motorists.

About 20 persons gathered to protest the Klan meeting in the auditorium. Some carried signs protesting the organization which said, "Death to the Klan," "Fight Racism," and "Ku Klux Klan, Scum of the Land."

Earlier in Mississippi, blacks marched in silence to protest the killing of a black jail inmate. In Decatur, there were no reports of violence as there had been two weeks earlier when a black-white confrontation erupted into a five-minute shootout that left two whites and two blacks wounded.

About 150 Klansmen, watched by more than 500 police, paraded three abreast Saturday under American and Confederate flags about a half mile to City Hall in Decatur.

A few Klan marchers were armed with clubs, but no firearms were visible.

Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, attacked government programs for minorities. "I got one am sick of Negroes and other minorities being given jobs that I deserve," he said.

Klansmen were boxed in by riot-equipped state troopers and city police, while 40 National Guardsmen stood by in the area. Sheriff's deputies and city police reported to work early, loading shotguns in case the two groups again crossed paths violently.

Shortly after the Klan march, some 1,500 black demonstrators paraded peacefully along the same route through downtown Decatur.

Real Estate Today. By DON HARVEY REALTOR. Owner, DON HARVEY REALTORS.

GETTING THE WORD. Last year was the most successful in real estate history. The nation's brokers sold 3.5 million previously occupied homes. This performance is considered amazing because this record is on top of a previous record of 3.0 million home sales recorded in 1976. This record was set in spite of expert predictions that sales would not approach the previous record. Rapid escalation in home values was expected to price a large number of would-be buyers out of the market. Many of the country's top sociologists were puzzled also at the rapid increase in sales. They too had anticipated a decline. The divorce rate was escalating to a record level and, in their opinion this had to curtail demand. But home sales continued to increase with divorced people. If the ex-wife retained possession of the family home, the ex-husband frequently ended up buying a home of his own. According to the experts, the record means that buyers have learned the value of owning versus renting. People see rental rates escalated while home loan payments remain unchanged. They now know that the value of their property increases each year as prices rise representing an increase in net worth which they are not able to accumulate any other way.  If you have any questions on this subject or any other aspect of real estate, feel free to phone or drop in at DON HARVEY REALTORS 702 Andrews Hwy. Phone 683-5333. Write here to help. Come in for your free copy of "Home for living" magazine.

Rough-in-buff camp makes planes fly lower

ALVORD, Texas (AP) — To take to the rough in the buff may not be easy, but after the initial shock, managers of Texsunair Camp say, its nothing to look twice at.

Texsunair, located about 65 miles northwest of Dallas, is a place where it is common to see six or more persons sitting around a picnic table. And even though no one wears a stitch of clothing, the grounds look like any other weekend camp site.

"There's only one purpose of this camp, and that's to be able to pull your clothes off," said Vernon, one of the camp's managers. "You've got your own personality when you're naked, and you can communicate better."

The 66-acre camp, one of seven chartered nudist colonies in Texas, was founded in the early 1960s by a retired federal judge who wanted a place to take his friends to relax. Today, there are about 275 members — from small children to grandparents.

For a mere $175 they can swim, dance, play volleyball and horse-shoes, and enter the Texas Amateur Nudist Olympics.

"It has nothing to do with how much money you make or your social position," said M. L., the camp's gatekeeper. "We have everyone from truck drivers to millionaires. What we judge people on is their personality and how they relate to other members."

Although the camp doesn't attract much attention from the ground, it gets a lot from the air.

"We get quite a few buzzers," said M. L. "People in helicopters and planes sometimes fly so low, they clip the tops off the trees."

Many people are uneasy about taking their clothes off, said M. L.,

"but after they've been here 15 or 20 minutes they loosen up and shed their clothes. Children are the easiest to make the transition because they don't have misconceptions about nudity and sex."

"We don't require anyone to take their clothes off except in the pool," he said. "But anyone who comes to a nudist camp and goes around with clothes on will be stared at like a nudist in the outside world."

The public is invited, physicians and nurses are welcome.

HYPOGLYCEMIA is perhaps the most misunderstood health problem in America today. Hypoglycemia is called the "great imposter" because it is often mistaken for other conditions. Common symptoms are: fatigue, nervousness, menopause, irritability, sinus conditions, loss of memory and lack of will power. In his fascinating lecture Dr. House will cut through the medical "mysteries" and help you understand WHAT hypoglycemia is, HOW to detect it in yourself, WHY you have it, and WHAT to do about it. You will hear actual case histories about people who dramatically changed their lives by changing their eating habits. Bad hippo rampages again

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Albert, alias Brutus, the marauding hippopotamus, has struck again.

The Adelaide Zoo, which bought Albert from an Australian animal park three years ago, knew he was a difficult creature.

But Albert became violent last week, crashing through a steel gate and killing a neighbor, a water buffalo.

That lifted the lid on the hippo's sordid past.

It started one night back in 1973 at the Bacchus Marsh Lion Park outside Melbourne when the 3-year-old hippo, then named Brutus, freaked out.

First, when a flood washed Brutus and his mate, Suzy, out of their pen, he ran amok, killing a goat, a water buffalo and a performing pig.

The rampaging hippo then escaped from the park through a hole in a fence. It took six armed men to capture him.

Several days later, Brutus got ornery. A sneaky camel popped his head over the side of the compound to poach some food.

Brutus bit off his head.

Vice arrest got Rossi his role

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You might say that it was a vice arrest that got Robert Walden the role of reporter Joe Rossi in CBS' "Lou Grant." An explanation: Walden played a vice cop who arrested Rhoda in an episode of that CBS show in the mistaken belief she was a streetwalker. Walden's vice cop was abrasive, and even when he was proved wrong about Rhoda, he couldn't bring himself to apologize. That was the element the people at MTM Enterprises were looking for as they cast the Rossi character, and they offered Walden the part in "Lou Grant," then in the planning stages.

"After the experience I had on 'Rhoda,' I told Jim Brooks and Allan Burns there was no one I'd rather work with than those guys," Walden said. "But I told them I was getting other offers for series and they'd better hurry. They couldn't make an offer then because the first script hadn't even been written, and a lot of people had cast approval. So they gave me holding money to turn down the other series. I took that as an act of faith. As it turned out, the role was offered to two other actors prior to my getting it. I think it's important to keep reminding people of that so they don't think this is a Cinderella-land where people don't get hurt," Walden said. "It's not smooth, and it's always painful. I still have the scar of being third — and keep in mind this was a role written for me." He said he may have inadvertently sent the producers looking for a younger actor because of a remark he made. Burns came to see him backstage at the Mark Taper Forum, where he was performing, and told him he was worried because the character was so unlikeable and overbearing. "I told him the only thing forgivable in someone that obnoxious is if he's young and has a chance to grow," Walden said. "But if he's in his 30s you may be in trouble. I may have hurt myself because they tried two younger actors. So I decided to play him younger."

Summer art classes to begin

The Museum of the Southwest is beginning its summer arts and crafts program. Classes in drawing, pottery and sculpture, weaving and painting will be offered during the summer months under sponsorship of Las Manos — "The Hands" — volunteer service organization of the Museum of the Southwest.

According to Mrs. Robert Bledsoe, chairman of Las Manos' summer classes and workshops committee, the art and crafts program will be initiated this week with drawing classes for young people aged 8 through 11. Stan Jacobs will teach the class which will have sessions from 10 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

Jacobs will teach another class in drawing, for students aged 12 to 15, the week of June 18 through 26.

Jacobs also will be teaching pottery and sculpture classes June 25 through 29 for students 8 through 11 years of age, and a similar series July 9 through 13 for students 12 to 15 years of age.

Painting with acrylics will be taught by Iona Vasicek July 16 through 20 for students 8 through 11 years of age, and July 9 through 13 for those in the 12 to 15 age bracket.

Weaving classes will be offered July 9 through 13 for students in the 8-11 age group, and July 16 through 20 for students who are between the ages of 12 and 15. Nancy Neely will be the teacher for both instructional series.

Classes in watercolor painting will be taught by Margaret Markham. The sessions for young people aged 8 through 11 will be offered July 23 through 27, while classes for 12 to 15 year-old students will be offered July 16 through 20.

Additional information on the various classes and on fees and registration procedures may be obtained from the Museum of the Southwest office, 683-2882.

Peterson named head of symphony society

By ROGER SOUTHALL
Staff Writer

The Rev. P. Douglas Peterson this month assumed the presidency of the Midland Symphony and Chorus Association.

At the same time (June 1) Peterson became co-chairman, along with Mrs. Eben Warner of Odessa, of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorus, Inc., the overall governing body of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra.

As president of the Midland arm of the orchestra and co-chairman of the joint governing board, Peterson succeeds John Ingram of Midland who held the dual positions during the past year.

Peterson believes that "the last two years have seen measurable improvement in the quality of our symphony," and he is confident that the orchestra is on the threshold of even greater advances. "It's an orchestra we can all be proud of, and can continue to be proud of in the future," he said.

"I think the next two years will see impressive consolidation of past gains," he declared, noting that recently completed studies of the Midland-Odessa Symphony by a Houston firm of consultants should result in the local orchestra's achieving an even greater measure of musical professionalism.

Peterson feels the coming season will be an especially exciting one, offering as it does a before-the-start-of-the-season concert in Chaparral Center in early October, to be conducted by world-famous Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Then, a short time later, the opening concert pair of the 1979-80 season will present acclaimed duo-pianists Ferrante and Teicher as guest performers.

Peterson, a native of Chicago, has just completed his third year as headmaster of the Trinity School of Midland.

After attending public schools in Kentucky, New York and Michigan, Peterson attended Cornell University where he was graduated with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering in

From 1960 to 1962, he was a student at Yale University, where he received a master's degree in English; he also held a National Science Foundation grant for study of physics there.

From 1967 to 1969, Peterson attended Cambridge University in England, receiving both B.A. and M.A. degrees from that institution.

Peterson was an instructor in the University of Michigan's department of engineering mechanics in 1962-63, and from 1963 to 1967 was a teacher of mathematics and physics at St.

Mark's School in Southborough, Mass. In the summer of 1965, he taught at the Waterford School in Swaziland, Africa.

From 1969 until moving to Midland in 1976, Peterson was chairman of the mathematics department at the Brooks School in North Andover, Mass., and also served on the curriculum and steering committees there. In addition, he coached the school's soccer and rowing teams.

Peterson was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church in June, 1972, and ordained to the priesthood in January, 1973. He served as associate rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Topsfield, Mass., and later as interim minister of St. Paul's Church in North Andover, Mass.

In Midland, Peterson serves as priest-consultant to the St. Nicholas Episcopal parish. He is a member of the Midland Kiwanis Club.

Professionally, Peterson is active in the Independent Schools Association of the Southwest, an organization with a membership including private schools and parochial schools in the Southwestern region; Peterson also is active in an organization of private school headmasters.

Peterson and his wife, the former Joanne Vickers of Burlington, Ontario, are the parents of four children: Andrew, who will celebrate his 10th birthday this month; Timothy, 8; Meghan, 7, and Sarah, 3.

The Rev. P.D. Peterson, headmaster of Trinity School, is the new president of the Midland Symphony and Chorus Association, the local "arm" of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorus. Peterson also serves as co-chairman of the symphony orchestra's joint management board. (Staff Photo)

O.J. Simpson cast as 'Detour' driver

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—O.J. Simpson goes from boxer to bus driver in his latest TV movie, "Detour," for NBC.

Simpson, who's just completed a starring role in "Goldie and the Boxer," plays the driver of a tour bus that's hijacked on the way to Las Vegas. Production is now under way in Albuquerque, N.M.

Arte Johnson, Anne Francis, and Gerald S. O'Loughlin also star.

Tryouts set at MCT

A third and final tryout session to fill parts in Midland Community Theatre's midsummer musical production, "Rogers and Hart, A Musical Celebration," will be held at 2 p.m. today in Theatre Midland.

Actors, singers and dancers are needed for the show which will open July 20 for an extended run. The musical salute will feature such famous Rodgers and Hart songs as "Thou Swell," "My Funny Valentine" and "Falling in Love With Love."

No parts in the show will be cast until after today's tryouts. Persons do not have to be MCT season members to qualify for a part, and newcomers on the Midland scene are given a special invitation to attend the audition session. The session will take place in the rehearsal room on the lower level of Theatre Midland.

NBC needs title for news program

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—NBC has been told that it can't use the title "Prime Time" for Tom Snyder's news magazine show scheduled to start in June, because the name has already been taken by an independent station in New York.

This could be serious. I think NBC is counting on this show. At the NBC affiliates meeting last month, network President Fred Silverman apologized to the affiliates for the failure of NBC's news mag, "Weekend," and promised:

"We are going to make it work. And I think you are going to be very pleased with our new series, 'Prime Time' with Tom Snyder."

Later, NBC Mike Weinblatt, president of NBC Entertainment, promised the affiliates more good things concerning "Prime Time" and Snyder.

"I've known and worked with Tom for years, and that man is magic," Weinblatt said.

PETROLEUM FACILITIES ENGINEERS
(Gas compression, crude dehydration, production, planning)
Join Aramco for up to 40% premium, job challenge, family and travel benefits.

lots more money. Unique professional experience. More vacation. Once-in-a-lifetime travel. Outstanding schools for your kids. This is what Aramco offers you right now. Read how you and your family can benefit as you help Aramco develop the energy resources of Saudi Arabia. As the largest oil-producing company in the world, Aramco is involved in many projects that are staggering in scope and complexity. Nowhere else is advanced technology being applied so widely.

Many talented people are needed, especially engineers who have the expertise needed to put large programs together and make them work. After looking over the job responsibilities and requirements below, we hope you feel that we're offering an opportunity that's just right for you.

Opportunities for Planning Engineers
This engineer will be heavily involved in many areas of petroleum-producing operations planning: budget preparation; manpower planning; accountability reporting; communications and vehicle requirement forecasting; productivity and cost studies; and contract administration.

You should have worked at least 5 years in the oil industry. Experience in offshore production, well service operations, production engineering, or other oilfield operations would be an asset.

Good benefits go with this good job
When we locate the engineers we need, we'll provide them with up to 40% tax-protected premium, 40 days paid vacation every 12½ months, good family living conditions, and excellent education for children. We also offer free medical care while you and your family are in Saudi Arabia.

Interested? Call to drop us a line
Think about it. Opportunities like this don't come along every day. The chance to make so much extra income. To have such impressive work experience on your record. To have so much paid vacation. We offer a lot more because you're worth a lot more to us in Saudi Arabia.

Call K. L. Patterson, toll-free, at 1-800-231-7577, ext. 4119. In Texas call collect: (713) 651-4119. If you prefer, send your resume in confidence to Aramco Services Company, Department MRT0610A, 1100 Milam Building, Houston, Texas 77002.

Come and Meet D. D. Lewis of the Dallas Cowboys on Saturday from Noon until 6:00

A special Open House at "Chanelle"

For some very special friends... You!

On Saturday and Sunday, June 9th and 10th from noon until six "CHANDELLE" condominiums at 2100 West Wadley will be showing off their new elegantly appointed resident models. We invite you to come out and view the finest condominium community in West Texas.

We will also be telling you about the benefits of condominium living, as well as discussing the details of our new financial arrangement that now makes it easier to call "CHANDELLE" home.

So, bring your friends and join us either Saturday, June 9th or Sunday June 10th. Complimentary refreshments will be served, along with a few other special surprises.

Spectacular Bid is upset

NEW YORK (AP) — Coastal swept into the lead with a little more than an eighth of a mile to go and won the $269,000 Belmont Stakes Saturday in a spectacular upset as Spectacular Bid finished third and failed to win the Triple Crown.

most of the 1 1/2-mile race and was ahead turning for home. Then, as the crowd of 59,073 cheered him on, Coastal stormed along the rail for his stunning upset.

Coastal, who was not nominated for the race and had to be supplemented for $20,000, made owner William Haggin Perry's gamble worth every penny as he won his second straight stakes and his fourth race in as many starts this year.

ished 3/4 lengths ahead of Golden Act, who was a neck in front of Spectacular Bid. Screen King was another 9/16 lengths back and was followed by King Celebrity, Gallant Best, General Assembly and Mystic Era.

Coastal carried scale weight of 126 pounds over the mile and a half in 2:28.5.

The winner, who earned $161,400, returned $10.80, $4.80 and $2.10. Golden Act paid $5.40 and $2.10. The millionaire Spectacular Bid, winner of 12 straight stakes going in, was $2.10 to show.

Before the race, Lucien Lauren, the trainer who saddled Secretariat to win the Triple Crown in 1973, said of Coastal, 'He's a fresh horse with great ability, racing on his home track (Coastal has raced four times at Belmont, winning three, and trains there regularly), he's comfortable and confident here and I just think he's going to be awfully tough to beat.'

He was impossible to beat — on this Saturday.

Ronnie Franklin broke Spectacular Bid third out of the gate and had him second into the clubhouse turn. Shortly after entering the backstretch, Spectacular Bid took the lead and the crowd roared.

The throng continued to cheer Bid on, but then just before the eighth pole as Coastal flashed by on the rail, the cheers of "an expected victory turned to a roar of disbelief. The king was dead.

Bid went into the race as the overwhelming favorite to join Secretariat, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Affirmed, 1978, as the fourth Triple Crown winner in this decade. Instead, he became the ninth 3-year-old to win the first two jewels of the Triple Crown, only to come up empty in the Belmont.

One of those was Coastal's sire, Majestic Prince, who failed in the Belmont one year after Stage Door Johnny came off a victory in the Peter Pan Stakes to win the Belmont and foil the Triple Crown bid of Forward Pass in 1968.

In Coastal's previous start, he won the Peter Pan at Belmont.

Hernandez had Coastal fourth through the first 1/4 mile. With a quarter-mile to go, he was a total of three lengths behind Spectacular Bid, then he went into his winning drive along the rail as Golden Act, ridden by Sandy Hawley, charged up from third to overtake the tiring favorite.

Screen King, the Derby sixth and Preakness third-place finisher, ridden by apprentice Cash Asmusen, was fifth with a quarter of a mile to go before closing for fourth. General Assembly, the Derby runnerup who was fifth in the Preakness, was second with a quarter of a mile left but faded to seventh under Angel Cordero Jr.

One of the attractions for this Belmont, besides Bid's bid for the Triple Crown, was the feud between Cordero and Franklin. The two had fought in the jockey's room after race last Wednesday and were made by the stewards to apologize to each other publicly.

Interest heightened when the two were placed together in the starting gate, an unforeseen circumstance brought about by the scratches of Quiet Crossing and Picturesque, who would have separated General Assembly and Bid.

But the feud was quickly forgotten Saturday when Coastal delivered his knockout punch.

It had to be a bitter loss for Harry, Teresa and Tom Meyerhoff, Bid's owners, and his talkative trainer Bud Delp, who had begun predicting the Turf Crown for the dark gray colt last fall. Delp looked like a prophet until the last eighth-mile of the Belmont turned out to be an eighth-mile too much.

Bean's sizzling 61 gives him great Atlanta lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Andy Bean, exhibiting the power and finesse that has established him as one of pro golf's young stars, lashed his way to an 11-under-par 61 and a 5-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Atlanta Classic.

"You didn't think I was gonna miss it," he said of the final birdie putt. "Those kids around the green would have killed me."

Bean, who won three tournaments in a five-week stretch at precisely this time of the season a year ago, said he's "never played like this before. Never."

Nelson at 207. Nelson matched par 72, while Jaeckel and Hatafsky had 68s.

"I made a couple of putts early and that seemed to get me going. The golf course played pretty well, but when you're hitting it close to the hole and making the putts, I guess it seems pretty easy."

BETTER SCORES have been posted only eight times in the history of the Tour.

Bean, packing enormous power in his 6-foot-4, 210-pound frame, finished 54 holes with a 198 total, a dizzying 18 shots below par, matching the best 3-round total of the Tour season.

His spectacular performance completely overshadowed a remarkable 64, 8 under par, that lifted Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller into a tie for second at 203. But that is a distant 5 shots behind the big guy with the curly red hair.

JOE INMAN, the second round leader, had a solid 68 and, incredibly, was beaten 7 shots by Bean. He shared second with Zoeller.

"I guess I gained a little bit of ground. I wanted to be closer to the lead. I guess I did that."

Inman agreed.

"I'm looking at the leader board as we're playing along and every time they put up another number he's another shot under par."

Willis, Zachry sign with Tech

Two Midland athletes have signed national letters of intent to play baseball at Texas Tech this fall, according to Kal Segrist, Tech baseball coach.

Midland Lee pitcher Terry Willis and Midland High shortstop Jimmy Zachry have agreed to play at Tech.

Zachry hit eight home runs in 14 District 5-4A games this spring while hitting at a .530 clip. Zachry was an all-district choice and has been picked to play in the Texas High School All-Star game in the Houston Astrodome June 23.

Willis recorded an 11-2 record with the Rebels this spring with a fine 1.34 ERA. He also carried a heavy bat with a .370 average. Willis was 10-2 as a junior on Lee's team that went to the state quarterfinals in 1978.

When the first four Midland Cubs he faced singled, and all came home to score, Brian Baldwin was beginning to wonder if he really belonged in the Texas League.

Called up from Lodi, California League where he was 4-1, three weeks ago, Baldwin was 0-0 in two previous starts, but had been shelled for four homers in one of the games by Shreveport...and now this.

"I was concerned because I felt good and was throwing strikes and they were hitting good pitches."

Baldwin was to recall later. "Nothing went right."

As it turned out, the Cubs were to get only six hits the rest of the way and two of those were bunt singles as San Antonio rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to pull out a 7-5 decision before 1,144 fans at Cubs Stadium Saturday night.

That gave the Dodgers a two-game lead in the Texas League West and stretched their winning streak to 10 games.

The nines resume the five-game series at 6:30 p.m. today with Brian Holton, also a newcomer from Lodi, while Manager Ducky LeJohn while Manager Randy Hundley will go with Bill Earley, 5-3.

AFTER the first, the only run Midland managed off Baldwin came in the fifth when Dan Rohn, who had three Cubs hits, beat out a bunt, stole second, went to third on the over-throw and faked Baldwin into a fatal balk.

"I saw him going, I knew he would be doing that, but I just lost my concentration," said the 6-3 right-hander from Lansing, Ill., via Dayton University.

As a result, Mark Parker nursed a 5-4 lead into the eighth when Gary Weiss hit the hole in left center for three bases and scored on Ron Roenicke's line single to right. Exit Parker, enter Darrell Turner, who had three saves on the Eastern swing. However, Saturday night it wasn't to

Kansas City tops Yankees in 13th

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Willie Wilson's inside-the-park home run leading off the 13th inning gave the Kansas City Royals a 9-8 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

Wilson-pounded the first pitch of the inning from Ken Clay, 1-2, up the alley between left fielder Roy White and center fielder Mickey Rivers. White retrieved the ball but his throw got past Fred Stanley at shortstop while Wilson roared home.

Marty Pattin, 3-0, got the victory. In all, the teams used nine pitchers and got 29 hits.

The Yankees went ahead 8-7 in the top of the ninth when Willie Randolph singled to left off Al Hrabosky and Graig Nettles ripped a two-out double off the wall in left-center field. Kansas City tied it in the bottom of the inning when Wilson singled, was bunted to second and scored on George Brett's two-out single up the middle off Ron Davis.

Lou Piniella's single in the seventh inning scored Rivers and Randolph and gave the Yankees a 7-6 lead. But Brett's RBI double drove Wilson home in the bottom of the seventh to tie it 7-7.

Ray Burris replaced New York starter Tommy John with two on and one out in the sixth and John Wathan, snapping a 1-for-16 slump, tripled to put Kansas City on top 6-5.

Chris Chambliss' eighth home run of the year gave the Yankees a 2-0 lead in the second and New York made it 5-0 with three runs in the third.

McCovey sparks Giants

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Willie McCovey broke the record for career National League homers for a left-handed hitter when his three-run pinch homer in the eighth inning snapped a tie and powered the San Francisco Giants to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night.

The homer was No. 512 in McCovey's distinguished career, moving him ahead of Mel Ott, a left-handed hitter. It also tied him with Ernie Banks, the right-handed hitter for the Chicago Cubs, and Eddie Matthews of the Braves. Matthews, a left-handed hitter, however, hit 503 homers in the NL and the other nine in the American League.

McCovey, batting for Johnnie LeMaster, hit his 18th career pinch homer off reliever Grant Jackson.

Pinch-hitter Terry Whitfield opened the eighth with a single and scored on Bill Madlock's double. Darrell Evans was intentionally walked by Bruce Kison, 3-2, before McCovey came to bat.

Vida Blue, 7-6, fired a five-hitter, striking out six and walking five.

While the winners gathered for the victory celebration, the 46-year-old Delp walked with his beaten favorite back to his barn, which just happened to be Barn 13.

The trainer had no doubt that Bid's efforts had been below par. He said that "we've beaten Golden Act twice before so you know he didn't run his best race."

Stone pitches Birds over Texas

BALTIMORE (AP)—Steve Stone won his first game in nearly a month, limiting Texas to seven hits over eight innings while pitching the Baltimore Orioles to their fourth straight victory, a 4-3 decision over the Rangers Saturday night.

Stone, 4-5, obtained in the free agent marketplace during the off-season, snapped a personal four-game losing streak. Don Stanhouse pitched the ninth inning for the Orioles and gave up a two-run homer to Pat Putnam, his second of the game and sixth of the season.

Losing pitcher Dock Ellis, 1-5, had allowed just one hit before the fourth inning when, with one out, Eddie Murray, Ken Singleton, Gary Roenicke and Lee May struck singles together for a pair of runs.

After Putnam's solo homer in the fifth cut the Baltimore lead in half, the Orioles jumped on Ellis for a run in the sixth. Murray doubled after an intentional walk to Singleton, then scored on May's second straight run-scoring single. Doug DeCinces then scored Singleton with his first base hit since returning to the lineup three games ago following a 39-day hiatus with a back injury.

Cardinals topple Padres by 7-4

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ken Reitz smacked a two-run single to spark a four-run first inning and Ted Simmons belted a two-run homer, leading the St. Louis Cardinals past the San Diego Padres 7-4 Saturday night.

Pete Vuckovich, 6-3, survived a four-run Padres' sixth, including a three-run homer by Jerry Turner as St. Louis moved into a first-place tie with Montreal in the National League East.

Padres starter Eric Rasmussen, 3-6, who left the game in the first inning because of a bruised right forearm, took the loss.

Rasmussen retired the first two Cards batters before Keith Hernandez smashed a liner that hit

Phils bomb Braves, 9-3

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Garry Maddox had three hits and knocked in two runs as the Philadelphia Phillies broke out of their hitting slump with 18 hits to beat the Atlanta Braves 9-3 Saturday night.

Larry Bowa, playing his first game since breaking his thumb against St. Louis May 22, collected two hits and an RBI and scored twice.

Larry Christenson, 1-3, who had seen the Phillies shut out in his last two decisions, pitched an eight-inning and aided his own cause with two hits, including a rally-starting triple in the second.

The Phillies, who had scored only 59 runs and dropped 16 of their last 21 games since their 23-22 slugfest victory in Chicago May 17, erupted for eight runs on nine hits in the first two innings.

Starter Mickey Mahler, 2-6, gave up six runs on six hits in 11-3 innings. The Phillies weren't any kinder to Mahler's brother, Rick, scoring three runs on five hits in one inning.

million, had gone into the race with 14 wins in 16 starts and earnings of $1,123,587.

For Coastal, who does not have full vision in his right eye because of an ulcer he had there as a 2-year-old, was starting only for the ninth time. He went into the race with two stakes victories, the Peter Pan and a division of the 1978 Tyro at Monmouth Park—Bid had finished fourth in the other division. The richest first-place prize from the richest purse in 111 Belmonts boosted Coastal's earnings to $343,740.

It was the first Belmont victory for Perry, a prominent thoroughbred owner and breeder for over 30 years and also the first for the colt's 28-year-old jockey and his 34-year-old trainer David Whitely, son of Hall of Fame trainer Frank Whiteley Jr., who won the 1967 Belmont with Damascus.

While the winners gathered for the victory celebration, the 46-year-old Delp walked with his beaten favorite back to his barn, which just happened to be Barn 13.

The trainer had no doubt that Bid's efforts had been below par. He said that "we've beaten Golden Act twice before so you know he didn't run his best race."

Tony Hudson, pitcher for California State University at Fullerton shows elation after being named Most Valuable Player in the College World Series which was completed Friday night in Omaha, Nebr. when his team tripped Arkansas, 2-1 in the finals. (AP Laserphoto).

Dream comes true for Tony Hudson

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Tony Hudson had a dream when he was growing up in California. He wanted to be the next Willie Mays. Hudson was a center fielder and he was captivated by the skills of the San Francisco Giants' star. Mays was the greatest and Hudson wanted to be just like him. But as Hudson grew, so did the strength in his arm. He became a pitcher instead. And for that, Fullerton State Coach Augie Garrido has to be thankful. Hudson, a sophomore right-hander, was voted the outstanding player as Fullerton won the NCAA baseball title at the 33rd College World Series. Fullerton won the championship by beating Arkansas 2-1 Friday night. Hudson didn't pitch in that game, but he was superb as a reliever in four others. He recorded three saves and in 11 2-3 innings of work, gave up only four hits and no earned runs. Hudson's relief work was important because Fullerton had to bounce back from a 6-1 loss to Mississippi State in its opening game and win five straight to claim the title. "When we got into the series, my goal was to be the most valuable player," Hudson said. "I didn't know if I could do it or not, but I was hoping. If I didn't, that would have been O.K." "I was just going to use the talents God gave me and do the best I could." His best was pretty good. A lanky 6-foot-3, 180-pounder, Hudson finished the year with a 10-4 record against top-flight competition. His earned run average of 2.67 was the best on the team and he pitched three shutouts in 20 starts. Pitching hasn't always been Hudson's game, however. "I always wanted to be a center fielder. I wanted to be another Willie Mays," he said. "I used to go to Candlestick Park to watch him every time they played. He was my hero. "Then a guy asked me to come out for baseball. I was playing center field and one day he asked me to try pitching. So I pitched and found out I could throw strikes. "But I really didn't start pitching a lot until I was 13 or 14. I still wanted to play center field, but they said I was going to be a pitcher. I've been pitching ever since then." Hudson went on to star in football and baseball at San Bernardino High School. In football, he was an excellent option quarterback in a veer offense and attracted the attention of several major colleges, including UCLA, Southern Cal and Indiana. But "I just knew I wanted to play baseball," Hudson said, so he headed for Fullerton. "The only reason I played football was because my friends played," he said. "I had no idea I was going to be good at it." "I loved to run. We were known as a speed team. We had some guys in the backfield who could go 9.6 (seconds) in the 100. Those guys could really run." "When the defense would key on them, I'd fake a pitch and away I'd go," he added, doing a slow-motion imitation of a high-stepping runner. Hudson was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals last Tuesday, but he said he's going to play at least more one year at Fullerton. "I know I can play major league baseball. I know I've got the talent," Hudson said confidently. "But I have to get the mental part down first. I have to learn to really concentrate and bear down." "Once I do that, I'll be ready."

Tampa signs four draftees

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers have agreed on contract terms with four more 1979 draftees including Pittsburgh receiver Gordon Jones and Penn State quarterback Chuck Fusina, the team announced Friday. The other two players to reach agreement were defensive lineman Eugene Sanders, an eighth-round choice from Texas A&M, and David Logan, a 12th-round pick from Pitt. Jones was picked by the Bucs in the second round of the May National Football League draft and Fusina in the fifth round. Bucs spokesman Rick Odioso said only one of the Bucs' 10 draft choices has not agreed to on contract terms — Nebraska running back Rick Berns, a third-round pick.

Young shares LPGA lead with Britz

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Two-time U.S. Open champion Donna Caponi Young fired a 2-under-par 70 Saturday and surged into a tie with non-winner Jerilyn Britz for the 54-hole lead in the 25th Ladies Professional Golfers Association championship. Young, 34, fired her second straight 70 and became the only player in the field to register three sub-par rounds in a row over the Nicklaus Golf Center course. Meanwhile, Britz struggled to a 1-over-par 73 and dropped back into a tie with Young at 209, 7-under par on the 6,313-yard layout just north of Cincinnati. Five players were within two shots of one another headed into the final round Sunday, and the defending champion, Nancy Lopez, was a menacing four shots off the pace. Britz, 36, who did not turn pro until she was 31, ran into three bogeys and carded two birdies for her only over-par round of this, the first of three major tournaments for the women. Young, who has been in the top 11 in her last eight tournaments, was the most consistent of the contenders in the muggy, 90-degree heat. She played bogeyless golf, ramming in birdie putts at 4 and 12 to earn a share of the lead in her bid to win her first LPGA championship. Amy Alcott, the runnerup here last year, was tied with Britz and Young until she missed a 3-foot putt for par on the 15th hole. Alcott had 69 for 210, 6-under-par and good for third place. JoAnne Carner, still fighting an injured right hand from a 1968-old motorcycle accident, matched par of 72 and shared fourth place with Australian Penny Pulz, who had a 69. Lopez, chasing her fourth consecutive victory this year, also fashioned a 69 and predicted she would be in contention for the first prize of $22,500 in the $50,000 event. "Tomorrow's the pressure day and I like a lot of pressure," she said. The 22-year-old sensation who has won five tournaments and more than $118,000 in 1979. "I like a lot of pressure. I'm on my toes then," she said. She was in a logjam for sixth place with four other players. They were left-handed Bonnie Bryant, Jan Stephenson, Judy Rankin and Jo Ann Prentice. Stephenson fired a 68, the best performance among the top contenders in the third round. Prentice and Rankin had 70s while Bryant settled for par 72.

Hogan Park Golf Pro

Hogan Park Golf Course welcomes a new member to the staff this month. Robert W. Campbell has assumed the duties of Golf Course Superintendent, replacing Paz Brito who resigned in April. Campbell received his B.S. degree in Agronomy with a minor in Horticulture from Texas A&M University this past May. Campbell is a Midland product. Robert's father is employed as a Division Landman for Exxon, presently connected with their exploration department in Denver, Colo. His parents lived in Midland for several years prior to their move to Denver. Campbell worked in general golf course maintenance during the summers while he attended college, under the direction of Carrol Kiser of the Midland Country Club and Marvin Perry of Metairie, La. We feel extremely fortunate to have Robert on the staff, and hope that all Hogan Park golfers will cooperate in helping Robert bring the golf course into top notch condition. Repair ball marks, repair divots, keep riding carts on the cart paths and out of the roughs and keep hand carts and golf bags away from the tees and greens.

THE HOGAN Park Junior Golf Program will begin Monday, June 18, and continue each day through June 22. A golf tournament for the participants will be conducted June 29. The schedule for the session will begin Monday at 9 a.m. for ages 4 through 13 and at 10 a.m. for ages 14 through 17. All interested youngsters are encouraged to register at the time of the first session. Class times will remain the same for the rest of the week unless the size of either class dictates additional times. The subject matter will be the grip alignment, stance, vertical balance, finish and the game of golf. Fee for the program will be $10 per student. The Hogan Park Men's Golf Association has a two-man partnership scheduled for today. Format for the event is low-ball, flighted by total handicap with three club limit. The pairings are as follows: 11:20 Muntel, Hamblin, Standley, Robbins; 11:27 Wilkie, Peters, Higgins, Reese; 11:34 Callaway, Price, Albart, Cogan; 11:41 Thorne, Howie, Anthony, Thurston; 11:48 Combs, Higgins, Glenn, Jackson; 11:55 Foster, Elder, Lewis, Wright; 12:02 Deramus, Ocker, Hayes, Schlyer; 12:09 Hernandez, Moreno, Overcash, Sanborn; 12:16 Brittain, Foster, Hooker, Thomas; 12:23 McCrane, Valencia, Hudgins, Hudgins; 12:30

THE HOGAN Park Women's Golf Association held their monthly Trophy Day event Thursday with Peggy Parkins taking top honors in the nine hole division with a low net of 31. Tied for second were Renee Beique, Betty Reimers, Evelyn Guidry and Char Richter all with net 35s. Dottie Turk took top honors for the 18-hole division with a low net of 61. Bernice Cox was second with a net 64 while Anelle Mack and Diane Rankin tied for third with net 65s. The 18-hole division will hold a Flag Tournament Thursday. For pairings see the bulletin board at the golf shop.

This Thursday the nine hole division will hold a Guess Your Score on the Back Nine. Pairings are as follows:

Lois Guthrie, Ginny Plette and Jean Connor; Margaret Phelps, Peggy Parkins and Bernice Cox; Evelyn Guidry, Clara King and Evelyn Ballard; Wilma Allen, Jeanne Green and Kathy Hamblin; Ernestine Browning, Frances Stahl and Mary Davis; Rita Bee, Peggy Barry, Margaret Rhea and Margaret Moore; Renee Beique, Leah Sutcliffe and Patti Frizell; Betty Reimers, Char Richter and Marjorie Cardwell; Ruby Pennington, Betty Williams and Dorothy Coons; Jeanne Allen, Dot Pringle and Barbara Larsen.

Evert nabs tennis win

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd patiently mowed down Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-2, 6-0 Saturday in the most one-sided final seen in the French Open Tennis Championships since World War II. In just over an hour in hot sunshine on the center court of the Roland Garros Stadium, Lloyd gave another lesson in playing on slow clay. It brought her a first prize of $30,080 and bright prospects for Wimbledon later this month. "When I first won the French title in 1974 I went on to win Wimbledon," Lloyd said. "We will have to see if it helps this time." Wimbledon's faster grass courts need a different style of tennis and Lloyd will have to get past defending champion Martina Navratilova.

Schoolboys crown five baseball champs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state schoolboy baseball tournament started with a 24-2 game that broke a scoring record and ended with a dramatic 1-0 contest in which a bunt in front of the plate spoiled a no-hitter.

For the first time since it began in 1949, five state champions were crowned as the two-day tournament was expanded to include Class B, A and AA.

Spring, north of Houston, won the AAAA title on a one-hitter by Kenny Crafton, a 5-foot-10 junior who hits .430 as an outfielder when he is not pitching.

Spring edged Baytown Sterling, 1-0, Friday night, with only two singles — both clean shots to the outfield — while Bill Beauchamp's bunt as the leadoff hitter in the seventh and final inning was Sterling's only hit.

In winning over Carrollton Turner, 2-0, and Sterling, the new AAAA champs collected a total of only five hits.

DeSoto managed just seven safeties but edged South San Antonio-West, 3-2, and Cleburne, 2-1, for the AAA championship.

Kermit won AA over East Chambers, 3-1; Riviera beat Ore City, 9-3, in A; and Palmer defeated Colmesneil, 6-3, for the Class B title.

Palmer set the scoring record against Windthorst, compiling 24 runs on 10 hits, 17 walks — including five to third baseman Jimmy Wilt — and six Windthorst errors in a game that was stopped after five innings because of the "10-run rule."

The previous record for most runs by a team was 17 by South San Antonio in 1964.

Shortstop Mario DeLaPaz of Riviera also had his troubles in the tournament, making four errors on four chances in 1-13 innings of the championship game before his coach sent him to left field. The exchange worked as leftfielder John Cordaway played errorless ball at short.

Two schoolboys — Lloyd Hollister of Sterling and Scotty Self of Cleburne — managed to pound balls over the fence at spacious Disch-Falk Field, the home of the Texas Longhorn baseball team.

Paul James of Palmer also tallied an inside-the-park home run when his line drive bounced high on the artificial turf and rolled to the right centerfield fence, nearly 400 feet away.

Apparently getting the attention of college scouts was senior shortstop Spike Owen of Cleburne, a .412 hitter with speed.

Pitcher Lloyd Gardner of Riviera displayed extraordinary stamina in pitching both of his team's games — 14 innings — and striking out 21, which gave him a season total of 202 strikeouts in 105 innings.

The most intriguing baseball man, however, belonged to the shortstop for Colmesneil — Roger Hornsby.

He may not be a future Hall-of-Famer like Rogers Hornsby, but the 5-7 senior batted .500 — 4 for 8 — stole three bases and played flawlessly in the field.

What happened to everybody? What happened to all those teams that started the season with such high hopes? Those supposedly well-funded juggernauts that were supposed to run the competition out of town? Those seemingly unbeatable combinations?

Where's Buddy Baker? Donnie Allison? David Pearson? Lennie Pond? A.J. Foyt? Dave Marcis?

They sure aren't here this weekend. Neither are a lot of their lesser known, but still regularly competing, fellow drivers.

A full field of 35 starters is expected for today's $145,000 event, thanks to a number of West Coast regulars competing, but their collective absence is felt.

One needs to look no farther than the front row of rookie Dale Earnhardt and Jimmy Insolo to realize that.

Baker, winner of the pole position for last week's Texas 400, said his team is taking a breather.

"We've got to catch up on a lot of things," said Baker, who only has one victory in 14 starts. More was expected of him. "We've torn up so many cars, it's going to take four months before we've got everything back together like we should be super-competitive again."

His superspeedway Oldsmobile "was almost 100 percent destroyed at Talladega." His new Chevrolet Caprice "was demolished in its first race" at Rockingham. In the big money races, Baker has been among the first to drop out — 36th in the World 600, 40th in the Daytona 500.

"It's been an expensive season," added Baker, whose losses far outstrip his winnings of $145,000 so far.

Donnie Allison, who like Baker planned to run all 31 events this season and try for the lucrative national championship, also is parked temporarily. The team has only one start so far in the second third of the season, and has faded to 17th in points.

"Donnie and Hoss (Ellington, his car owner) just got wore out by the schedule," commented Richard Petty. "They just weren't ready to go five, six, seven weeks without a break."

Allison, who has never run more than 21 races in his 14 seasons on the circuit, expects to return for next week's 400-miler at Cambridge Junction, Mich.

David Pearson, who started the season once again with the Wood brothers team, left the circuit in April and hasn't been back. And no one seems to know when or if he will return. His absence is especially felt here, perhaps even by the Wood brothers, since holds the track record in qualifying and has won three races on the 2.62-mile road course.

Things just haven't worked out this season for Lennie Pond, who lost his ride to Buddy Baker, despite a brilliant victory in last year's Talladega 500, the fastest race ever run. Pond has only eight starts so far.

The once wide-open battle for the championship is realistically down now to only Darrell Waltrip, Bobby Allison, Cale Yarborough and Richard Petty.

Behind them was another Gelo Porsche driven by Briton John Fitzpatrick, German Harald Grohs and Frenchman Jean-Louis Lafosse.

And an unexpected fourth was film star Paul Newman, 54, with Dick Barbour of San Diego, Calif., and German Rolf Stommelen, in yet another Porsche 935. Newman was matching the speed of his more experienced co-drivers and Barbour said the actor was thrilled with the race.

The early leaders were the two factory 936 open speedsters from the two Mirage-Fords of Harley Cluxton of Phoenix, Ariz.

All had problems, and after eight hours, the Mirage of Britons Derek Bell and David Hobbs was the best-placed of the four pre-race favorites, lying fifth but overhauling Barbour and Newman.

Early leaders Bob Wollek and Hurley Haywood were fighting back up the field after fuel injection problems in their works Porsche, and were closing on Bell and Hobbs.

The other 936 driven by four-time winner Jacky Ickx of Belgium with Brian Redman, had a long stop after a tire blew, and was working up from 20th spot overall.

With many hours still to go, the race still was one of the most open and exciting in many years.

Smooth Alfaro handles glove like old-timer

The first thing most opposing players ask when they see Chico taking infield is "How old is that guy?"

He won't be 21 until September, but Jesus Antonio Alfaro plays shortstop like a guy who has been around a long time. In fact, he plays the short field like the Cardinals expect Garry Templeton to and the Dodgers could have used his glove in the last World Series.

The record shows that the 5-11, 160-pounder from Maracaibo, Venezuela, is in only his third season in Organized Baseball. And unbelievably, at least for those who have watched him perform his glove magic at Cubs Stadium, Alfaro drew his walking papers in 1976 from the Philadelphia Phillies, the club that first signed him. Chico's crime apparently was that he didn't hit for Pulaski in the Appalachian League, which probably makes the Phillies the only organization in baseball that can afford to throw away a shortstop who hit .280.

Last year, Alfaro batted .270 for the Cubs' A farm at Pompano Beach, which was good enough to earn him a promotion to Midland. He is rapidly demonstrating that he belongs with a .329 batting average. What's more he already has stolen 11 bases, three more than he had last year, and his 29 rbis this season compares with 49 in 118 games last year.

Chico says his greatest thrill was his first pro home run, one of two he hit a Pompano last year. This year he already has hit six.

In 1978, Alfaro led the Florida State League shortstops in assists, chances handled and double plays.

A graduate of Romulo Gallegos High School, Alfaro has completed his first year of college.

Alfaro's older brother Jose pitched in the Houston organization from 1973-77 and is now with Tampico of the Mexican League.

Foyt gains pole position

MILWAUKEE (AP) — As expected, four-time Indianapolis 500 champion A.J. Foyt Saturday won the pole position for today's Rex Mays 150-mile speedway car race at State Fair Park.

Driving a bright orange Parnelli-Cosworth, Foyt circled the mile oval in 28.312 seconds for a speed of 127.154 mph.

And, had he not been a bit under the weather with a sore throat, Foyt said he might have done even better.

"I was real happy with the run, all things considered," Foyt said. "I think if I'd felt better I could have got another 10 or 20 hundredths easy."

Sheldon Kinser, the Bloomington, Ind., racer who drives for Ralph Wilke of Milwaukee, was the only one close to Foyt. Kinser qualified his Watson-Offenhauser at 28.457 for a speed of 126.546 to share the front row of the 18-car field — two cars fewer than the U.S. Auto Club had hoped for.

Most of racing's top names — Foyt excepted — are in Trenton, N.J., for a Championship Auto Racing Teams event. Nevertheless, the Mays is to be nationally televised starting at 3:30 p.m. CDT.

Preceding the Mays will be a 63 lap mini-Indy race at 2 p.m., with a special 25 lap championship dirt car race to be run immediately after the Mays race.

Sons of two famous drivers made up the second row of the Mays field. Gary Bettenhausen, driving a King-Offy, qualified at 126.346, and Billy Vukovich, driving a Watson-Offy, was fourth fastest with a time of 28.535 and speed of 126.160.

Foyt said he wished the CART drivers were still in USAC and running here today.

"If they want to go somewhere else, that's fine," he said. "But they're just hurting themselves in the long run. I've said before, they've set championship racing back 10 years with all this."

Foyt originally was one of the drivers who jumped from USAC to CART, but he switched back in a disagreement with CART policies.

"You can't make the rules and drive cars in the same races," Foyt said. "You can't just run by your own rules. You've got to have a separate governing body. That's like me setting the rules for a race I run in."

"You notice the guys who are making the rules over there are the ones winning the races," he said. "That's exactly what's happening. Sooner or later, the little guys are going to wise up."

Real battle in Le Mans race

LE MANS, France (AP) — The Le Mans, 24-hour road racing classic developed into a thrilling battle between rival private German teams Saturday night as the favored Porsche and Mirage-Ford teams hit trouble.

The lead changed six times in the first seven hours, and as darkness fell over the 8.6-mile circuit, two Porsche 935 coupes were battling only seconds apart for the lead.

American brothers Don and Bill Whittington with German Klaus Ludwig in a Kremer car and a Gelo racing entry driven by Manfred Schurtl of Lichtenstein and Hans Hayer of Germany, were swapping the lead as each stopped to refuel.

is to be nationally televised starting at 3:30 p.m. CDT.

Preceding the Mays will be a 63 lap mini-Indy race at 2 p.m., with a special 25 lap championship dirt car race to be run immediately after the Mays race.

Sons of two famous drivers made up the second row of the Mays field. Gary Bettenhausen, driving a King-Offy, qualified at 126.346, and Billy Vukovich, driving a Watson-Offy, was fourth fastest with a time of 28.535 and speed of 126.160.

Riverside 400 set for today

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — As the Grand National stock car racing season reaches roughly its halfway point with today's 400-kilometer race at Riverside International Raceway, it seems like a good time to ask:

What happened to everybody? What happened to all those teams that started the season with such high hopes? Those supposedly well-funded juggernauts that were supposed to run the competition out of town? Those seemingly unbeatable combinations?

Where's Buddy Baker? Donnie Allison? David Pearson? Lennie Pond? A.J. Foyt? Dave Marcis?

They sure aren't here this weekend. Neither are a lot of their lesser known, but still regularly competing, fellow drivers.

A full field of 35 starters is expected for today's $145,000 event, thanks to a number of West Coast regulars competing, but their collective absence is felt.

One needs to look no farther than the front row of rookie Dale Earnhardt and Jimmy Insolo to realize that.

Baker, winner of the pole position for last week's Texas 400, said his team is taking a breather.

"We've got to catch up on a lot of things," said Baker, who only has one victory in 14 starts. More was expected of him. "We've torn up so many cars, it's going to take four months before we've got everything back together like we should be super-competitive again."

His superspeedway Oldsmobile "was almost 100 percent destroyed at Talladega." His new Chevrolet Caprice "was demolished in its first race" at Rockingham. In the big money races, Baker has been among the first to drop out — 36th in the World 600, 40th in the Daytona 500.

"It's been an expensive season," added Baker, whose losses far outstrip his winnings of $145,000 so far.

Donnie Allison, who like Baker planned to run all 31 events this season and try for the lucrative national championship, also is parked temporarily. The team has only one start so far in the second third of the season, and has faded to 17th in points.

"Donnie and Hoss (Ellington, his car owner) just got wore out by the schedule," commented Richard Petty. "They just weren't ready to go five, six, seven weeks without a break."

Allison, who has never run more than 21 races in his 14 seasons on the circuit, expects to return for next week's 400-miler at Cambridge Junction, Mich.

David Pearson, who started the season once again with the Wood brothers team, left the circuit in April and hasn't been back. And no one seems to know when or if he will return. His absence is especially felt here, perhaps even by the Wood brothers, since holds the track record in qualifying and has won three races on the 2.62-mile road course.

NO GAS!

"People all over the nation have grown accustomed to seeing this daily! We in West Texas have been fortunate enough not to have been confronted with this situation. But it seems to be coming. Exxon Corp. has announced that there will be shortages all across the nation this summer with price increases to $1.50 possible. The price of gasoline now has reached 80¢ per gallon in our area with no end to the increases in sight. Now, more than ever, it makes sense to invest in your means of transportation to decrease fuel consumption both due to price and conservation! We at Superformance have many means of increasing your mileage whether you drive a station wagon or a welding rig, a motor home or a hot shot truck. Call or come by and lets discuss your vehicles possibilities."

Poor Dick's wrecked cars fading landmark

By J.L. SCHMIDT
MINATARE, Neb. (AP) — As historic Nebraska landmarks go, a scattering of wrecked automobiles with the words "Poor Dick" scrawled on them ranks somewhere near the top.

The shelled-out cars, some standing on end, others on their sides, have been a roadside phenomenon since 1951, when Minatare salvage dealer Dick "Poor Dick" Nerud placed them as an advertising gimmick as far as 300 miles from his place of business in this tiny Panhandle community.

Poor Dick once had 23 of the roadside wrecks, "merchandising ingenuity," as he calls them, scattered as far away as Grand Island.

But government agencies "really put the skids to that operation," he said. Today only six remain, and their existence may be in jeopardy.

The state charges Nerud $15 per car every year. "Landowners keep raising their easements and I may just have to pull some of the remainder," he said.

Many of those which have already disappeared were "stolen right out from under me throughout the years," he said. But the few which remain grace the beauties of such intriguing places as "Moo-maw's Corner" and "Angora Hill." One even stands near Bayard, within eye-shot of historic Chimney Rock.

Nerud has found compliance with other junkyard obligations to be no problem. "I fenced my yard in 1952, covered up the whole darn mess so you couldn't see what it was unless you noticed my sign," he said. The sign is an old four-door Chevy, high up on two large poles in the middle of the yard, looking down over a neatly stacked array of tired iron which has been categorized by car companies.

"Yep, you come to me for a Chevy part and I can take you right out to the rows and rows of that fine General Motors product," he said. Parts which have been stripped from the cars fill three large sheds adjacent to the yards. "You want an H-12 manifold for a Ford, I can take you right to it," he added.

Computerization? "Well, I suppose it's comin' to that, but the only computer I have in my head for now," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Women's liberation has problems, too

Dear Dr. Solomon: Ever since I started moving up in the business world as an account executive for an advertising company, I've had trouble with my stomach. My doctor says I may have an ulcer. I know I'm capable of handling my job, but I also know that when thousands of dollars are on the line, I often feel my stomach tightening up. By the time I get home to my family in the evening, I'm completely worn out. Is this feeling common among women who have taken over executive positions?—Mrs. F.C.

Dear Mrs. C.: The movement for women's liberation has brought many benefits in terms of job opportunities and monetary rewards, but it has also brought some health problems. Job-associated anxiety and stress take their toll on women as much as they do on men, with illnesses ranging from mild, such as headaches and insomnia, to severe, including ulcers and heart attacks.

Dr. Hans Selye, an endocrinologist at the University of Montreal, says that women who assume jobs that formerly were male-dominated are increasingly subject to what previously had been known as male diseases—cardiac infarctions, ulcers and hypertension. Similarly, Dr. Ruth Moulton, a psychoanalyst, reports that 25 or 30 years ago, the problems expressed by her female patients dealt mostly with their private lives—their marriage and their children. Today, the conflict between their domestic and professional lives predominates.

Dr. Moulton has also noticed a change in the physical illnesses suffered by her patients. Today several women have peptic ulcers, a condition formerly confined mostly to men, as well as migraines and allergies, particularly the asthmatic and bronchial kind in which coughing and wheezing are aggravated by anxiety.

Another problem associated with the women's liberation movement is an increase in alcoholism. There are an estimated five million female alcoholics in this country, an increasing number of whom are employed outside the home. It appears that while working women are feeling the pressures of their careers, many housewives feel stigmatized because of the lack of a career. Either way, the conflict may create anxiety, and many women turn to alcohol as the most easily available drug.

Women who work do encounter special problems. They are just beginning to find their way into many fields, and often are subjected to hostility along the way. They may experience difficulty in establishing power relationships and in effectively exercising authority.

A married woman with both a career and a family to care for faces an almost inevitable conflict regarding the time she can devote to each. Often she tries to do too much in both areas and ends up feeling inadequate.

Dr. Sidney Lecker, director of the Stresscontrol Center in New York City, says it's rare to find a woman who does not feel a little guilty, usually because of some conflict over her femininity. She may even feel guilty because she commands a higher salary than her husband. Dr. Lecker urges women to learn to compromise, to cut corners, set priorities, learn to say "no" to people, including their children, and to stop trying to be all the things to all people.

Health insurance coverage rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of persons covered by health insurance continues to increase, says the Health Insurance Institute.

In 1967, some 146 million Americans were protected by one or more forms of private health insurance, it says. Ten years later, nearly 179 million persons had private health insurance — an increase of 22 percent.

The figure included some 165 million persons under age 65 — 87 percent of the U.S. civilian population in this age group. In addition, more than 14 million persons 65 and over held private policies to supplement benefits available through Medicare.

Winner of a $250 scholarship from the Uptown Business and Professional Women's Club is Barbara Garrett, a graduate of Lee High School. At LHS, she was president of Quill and Scroll for two years and was ad manager of the Dixie Dispatch, Lioness of the Week and treasurer of the Office Education Administration. She plans to study business administration and accounting at Midland College.

Crop insurance bill 'still not satisfactory'

LUBBOCK — Lamesa banker-farmer Lloyd Cline said the proposed Jones-Madigan all-risk crop insurance bill "has been improved some, but is still far from satisfactory."

Sul Ross schedules workshop

ALPINE — An environmental education workshop for teachers will be offered July 12-27 at Sul Ross State University in Alpine, according to Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Midland.

Area farmers appointed

LUBBOCK — Dawson and Martin county farmers are among the 11 new members of the Plains Cotton Growers Inc.'s finance committee.

Pecan trees good timber source

COLLEGE STATION — While pecan trees are highly valued for shade and nut production in Texas, they can also produce valuable timber. "Pecan trees are highly valuable for veneer and sawlogs in areas where such markets exist," said Alan D. Dreesen, area forestry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Farmers redeeming more wheat

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Wheat redeemed by farmers from stocks stored under the government's reserve program continue to edge higher. About 36.1 million bushels were redeemed in the first three weeks since farmers were given permission to do so, U.S. Department of Agriculture officials said Friday.

Wheat futures prices jump

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Winter wheat futures prices at the Kansas City Board of Trade jumped about 25 cents this week amid speculation that a hot spring in the Soviet Union has adversely affected the wheat crop there. Trading Friday led the rally with 16-cent increases posted across the board.

USSR's crop to be smaller WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Soviet Union, after enjoying a record grain crop in 1978, may have a much smaller harvest this year, says the U.S. Agriculture Department.

CORRECTION

The No. 33721 Power Miser "60" Gas Water Heater that was in the Sears Leadership Sale insert in Tuesday's newspaper was described as having 4 times the insulation as our standard model. It does not. This is an error. It should have been fiber glass insulation. We sincerely regret any inconvenience caused by this error.

Higher than usual Texas rainfall continuing

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas' dry-as-a-bone image had already taken a bath in higher than usual rainfall amounts before the heavy deluges of May and early June left their soggy mark.

A large number of big, slow moving upper level disturbances combined with moisture from the Gulf of Mexico to drench almost every section of Texas with spring rainfall amounts 20 percent to 50 percent higher than usual, said Kenneth Brundidge, head of meteorology at Texas A&M.

Higher oil costs may increase Nigeria's use of ag products

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Higher petroleum prices are expected to help revitalize oil-rich Nigeria, the most heavily populated African country, and stimulate further imports of U.S. agricultural products, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

triggers the rain. We don't know why there are more of these slow-moving upper level disturbances, but they're the cause of the precipitation," said Brundidge.

Before the May rains, which pelted some areas with as much as 10 inches of rain, only two of the 15 weather reporting regions showed less than normal rainfall for February through April. And the state climatologist's office said most stations reported readings at least 20 percent higher.

And those percentages should float significantly higher when May and early June rains, which flooded some areas of the state, are calculated with the rest.

The National Weather Service forecast for next week indicates all of Texas and a slice of the United States extending from the Rio Grande to Maine and south to Georgia should continue to receive above normal rain.

Heavy downpours last month ranged from 1.5 inches in South Texas to 10.1 inches in Southeast Texas and are sure to boost current figures above average. But any long summertime dry spells could erase The Flood of '79 from the record books before it even finds a place, say the weathermen here.

During the last week of May and first week of June, several stations in Texas reported heavy rainfall totals including 9.1 inches at College Station, 8.8 at Valley Junction in East Texas; 8.2 inches at Smithville in Bastrop County and 7.7 inches at Georgetown north of Austin.

Data from the state Climatologist's Office shows last week's rainfall in East Texas was 3 to 4 inches above normal and 2 inches over normal totals in Central Texas.

Other unusually high totals for the May 21-June 4 period included 5 inches for Floydada, 4.8 in Lubbock; 4.4 for Matador, 6.8 inches at Bridgeport, 5.4 in Waco, 5.6 for Longview, 6.7 in Tyler, 5.3 for Wink, 3.3 in Alpine, 1.4 inches at Pecos, 6.2 in Austin, 5.2 at Columbus, 6.8 for Beaumont, 6.6 for Richmond and 7.2 inches, at Wharton.

Brazil to increase price of coffee

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil will raise the price of its top-quality coffee exports from $1.50 to $1.81 a pound Monday when shipments begin after a week-long suspension, the Brazilian Coffee Institute announced Saturday.

Exports were halted last week after frosts hit the coffee growing region. Brazil is the world's largest coffee producer and exporter. The United States is Brazil's top customer and the price increase is certain to push up U.S. retail prices.

Houston chief raps shooting charge

HOUSTON (AP) — Officers of the Houston Police Department statistically did much less shooting in 1978 than the police in New York, Baltimore or Philadelphia, Police Chief Harry Caldwell said.

Caldwell said the 37 shootings by Houston policemen last year, which resulted in the deaths of eight persons, represented 2.5 per 100,000 population based on 1.5 million in the city and a police force of 3,000 officers.

That figure is "significantly lower" than the three East Coast cities, he said Friday in a news conference.

Caldwell conducted the conference to counter statements by the Public Interest Advocacy Center that criticized the number of persons shot and killed by Houston officers, as well as the department's response to requests for information in those cases.

"The implication that (Houston officers) are killing disproportionate numbers of people is one that's simply not true," Caldwell said.

The advocacy center, which was financed with a $138,000 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, opened last year to "develop information that will be given to people who come to the center to ask about police cases," said state Rep. Ben Reyes, D-Houston.

Reyes, who is president of the center's board, said it would not be used to monitor police action.

In comparison with Houston's 1978 shootings, Caldwell said, New York, with a population of 7.5 million and a police force of 24,000 officers, had 273 shootings. That figured to 3.64 shootings per 100,000 population, he said.

Philadelphia had 58 shootings. With a population of 1.9 million and 6,400 officers, the shootings equaled 3 per 100,000 population, he said.

And Baltimore, with 861,000 people and 3,000 officers, had 23 shootings, or 2.67 per 100,000 population, he said.

Caldwell said even though Los Angeles had just 22 shootings per 100,000 population, 20 persons were killed — 2 1/2 times the number killed by Houston officers.

The Houston police chief said if the shootings are counted per 100 officers, however, Houston ends up ranked higher than the other cities because the department "has fewer officers per thousand population."

Congresswoman says VA ignores radiation disabilities

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., says the Veterans Administration refuses to deal properly with the death and disability claims of Marines exposed to radiation in Japan after World War II.

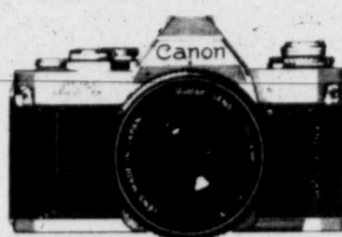

Mrs. Schroeder's comments came at a news conference Friday in Washington at which she was joined by two ex-Marines and the widow of a third ex-Marine.

Wichita Falls folk cope with tornado's aftermath

By KATHLEEN CARROLL

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A 5-year-old boy wishes he could die. Reported incidents of reported wife beating have gone up almost 500 percent. Welfare officials are predicting increases in child abuse.

These are the things the City of Wichita Falls now must learn to live with in the wake of a tornado that chewed up more than a quarter of the city two months ago today, killing 45.

The survivors, the 100,000-plus people left behind, are trying to cope. But flooding rains, endless paperwork and hassles with the federal government, insurance companies and contractors and the ever-present threat of another tornado aren't making it easy.

"Some of my children were badly affected," said Mrs. A.D. Hannah, director of the University Academy Day School and Kindergarten. One girl's father was discovered dead several days after the tornado. And one 5-year-old lay with his mother and brother outside while the monster screamed above them. His brother died.

"ONE MORNING about a month ago, he crawled up in my lap and said, 'Mrs. Hannah, I sure wish you and I could die.' I said, 'Why would you?' He said 'Because if we would go up to heaven, we could play with Chris.'

"We just let 'em talk and talk and talk. We talked tornado for over a month. We even played tornado. They would build their little town with houses and fences and a store or two, then yell 'Here comes that old tornado!' "It took a lot of loving from all of us to help them get over it." It will be years before residents get over the killer twister. There is too much to remind them of April 10. Or rather there is too much missing.

TWO MONTHS AGO today, there was virtually nothing in Faith Village, a subdivision on the southwest side after a giant tornado flipped from the blackened skies and mowed a mile-wide path around one of the most populated areas in the city.

More than 7,000 homes were damaged or destroyed. Eight thousand cars were hit. Seventy-nine businesses were demolished.

Today, Wichita Falls is a city under construction. Literally thousands of building permits have been issued by the city, enough to fill a half-page in the local newspaper every day. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has spent $2 million dollars scraping away debris, and they say they've cleaned up about 85 percent of the rubble.

It looks like less.

THE DISASTER area is thick with contractors and do-it-yourself homeowners. The residents figure they can structurally put their lives together in a year or two.

Emotionally, they will never be the same. Dr. Don Boulware of Wichita County Mental Health-Mental Retardation said talking is the best therapy and indeed, the subject creeps into every single conversation.

"I think talking about it is a way to try and comprehend it, to understand the incomprehensible.

"WE ARE GOING to be more cautious of severe weather for the rest of our lives, but it will subside and become a little more realistic," he said. "The main things we are going to see are frustration for the people trying to rebuild. And some people are going to have trouble asking for help."

A team of psychologists who specialize in post-disaster depressions held several seminars telling employers, school administrators and city officials what to expect from tornado victims. People are reassured, Boulware said, when they know everyone else is feeling the same frustration, rage, depression and guilt.

"The psychologists told us what to look for, but we haven't found it to be true," said Johnnie Ozee, principal of McNeil Junior High School. The school was destroyed and students will be doubling up with Rider High School next year.

"(ADOLESCENTS) protect themselves really well," Ozee said. "The talking seemed to be a cleansing thing. We were looking for more emotional problems, for kids to use the tornado as an excuse for not passing, for not keeping up their grades.

"But we're just not seeing that." But adults, for whom the losses have been much more real, are suffering. Jim Jones, supervisor of the Wichita County Child Welfare division, said he expects incidents of child abuse to go up as the strain of living in tiny trailers and with neighbors begins to take its toll on parents.

And First Step, a wife-abuse counseling and support agency, said the number of battered women seeking haven increased 400 percent to 500 percent in the first weeks after the tornado.

"MOST THINK THEY can work it out as soon as things get back to 'normal,' whatever normal will be from now on," said Linda Weber of First Step. "A lot of these were first-time things... they (the husbands) overreact and hit out at the closest possible person."

The destruction is inescapable, and sometimes overwhelming for even those who were not damaged by the monster tornado.

"I go home through it every day, and every day, I find myself preparing to go through the Twilight Zone," said one woman. "I feel so guilty because I wasn't damaged. And here are these people who've lost everything and they just talk about it like it was the weather."

BOULWARE SAID people's expectations may only add to their emotional adjustments. Most of us are bred on television, where families are brought closer and marital problems miraculously solved in the wake of a crisis. And that just doesn't work in Real Life.

In Real Life, there are hundreds struggling with life in a cramped mobile home. In Real Life, apartment rents go up at the whim of a landlord and the inflation rate in the real estate market is 15 to 20 times higher than the rest of the country.

"It's just plain ugly," said one woman, driving through a park where 300 identical trailers are being moved in to stand not more than a few feet apart.

"How depressing," nodded her companion.

"IT'S AN OBVIOUS problem," Bill McAda of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said of some residents' reluctance to live in a mobile home. "Ordinarily, we do not like to use mobile homes. But because of the magnitude of this thing, there is virtually nothing else to rent."

McAda said 637 of the 2,203 families eligible for housing assistance have been placed in apartments or homes, another 39 in government-assisted homes and the remainder will be housed in the trailers "hopefully by July."

The mobile homes rent for $190 per month for a two-bedroom and $210 for a three-bedroom. McAda said federal law requires half of the Emergency Living Expenses portion of a person's insurance claim for shelter expenses. When that money is exhausted, the trailer is rent-free for one year.

THERE IS ANGER and confusion over red tape and wrong information handed out in the days immediately after the tornado.

"I don't think they would be as angry if they hadn't been promised things in the first place," said Dellwood Lee, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association. "Some took their money and bought necessities, clothes, food, and didn't set aside anything for the trailers because they were told they would be rent-free."

"There was quite a bit of confusion at first," said Judy McConnell of the Small Business Administration. "I imagine there was a lot of misinformation, but now we're down to a one-on-one situation where people are talking to a loan officer."

IT DIDN'T HELP matters any last week when the SBA announced it was out of funds.

"It happens all the time," Ms. McConnell said. "It's an appropriation that has to be renewed. But in view of... the State of Texas coming apart this spring, they had no idea we were running so short."

She said Congress should approve new appropriations in another few weeks. Meanwhile, gun-shy tornado victims are leaving nothing to chance.

"Nearly everyone in Wichita Falls has doubled their insurance coverage, or at least brought it up to the maximum," Lee said. "And those that didn't have insurance bought it."

HE SAID BETWEEN $150 and $180 million of the projected $224 million in claims already have been paid.

But five inches of rain and heavy flooding in portions of Faith Village Tuesday night sent many residents back to the insurance offices for additional claims this week.

"We got a tornado. Why not a flood?" said Mrs. Jackie Luna, whose home was destroyed by the twister. "I guess I'll probably get pregnant next."

It's not that the citizens think they are jinxed. But as they kept an eye on the cloudy sky Wednesday evening, a brilliant clear rainbow formed a perfect arc over Faith Village. It was a good sign.

Texan plans to reproduce Sitting Bull's death mask

By ALAN SAYRE

WACO, Texas (AP) — The "ghost dance" had cavalry officers worried.

The Sioux Indians, following the vision of Wovoka, an Indian leader who said a "ghost dance shirt" could stop speeding cavalry bullets, were ready to reconquer the American continent that once had been the Red Man's exclusive domain.

The cavalry officers believed Sitting Bull, the Sioux medicine man, was behind the uprising. A tribal policeman known as Red Tomahawk was told to arrest the spiritual leader.

Perhaps knowing how Sioux tribesmen watched over Sitting Bull, Red Tomahawk loaded a pistol and set forth on his hazardous task.

Although the policeman was armed, Sioux tribesmen gathered around Sitting Bull as Red Tomahawk attempted to carry out the cavalry orders. Tempers flared.

In the ensuing fracas, a single gunshot rang out and fatally pierced the medicine man's skull.

Sitting Bull was dead. The enraged Sioux, fueled to frenzy by the shooting, rampaged. When word got back to cavalry officers, armed horsemen were called to put down the Indian insurrection.

History records the event as the Wounded Knee Massacre of 1890, a confrontation in South Dakota that still remains a source of bitterness for native Americans.

Almost 90 years later, a Texas artist plans to honor both the memory of Sitting Bull and a fellow writer and artist who devoted much of his life to the history of the Indian and the United States Cavalry.

Bronze reproductions of Sitting Bull's death mask soon will be available, according to Gene Deveney of Waco.

The plaster death mask came from the collection of Randy Steffen, "a leading authority on Plains Indians," Deveney said.

Steffen, who died in 1977 at the age of 59, was born in Eagle Pass. After living much of his life in California and Florida, he bought a ranch near Dublin, Texas, in 1970.

Deveney, a longtime friend of the late artist and historian, said he does not know where Steffen obtained the plaster mask.

But two features of the death mask — a bullet hole over the right eye and a scar across the nose — positively identify it as the face of Sitting Bull, Deveney said.

History records that the fatal bullet entered behind Sitting Bull's left ear and exited over the right eye, Deveney said. The nose scar also is documented by events in Sitting Bull's colorful life.

"Sitting Bull was kicked in the nose by a horse when he was with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show," Deveney said.

The death mask — a method of recording historical faces before photography — probably was made by a contract surgeon with the cavalry, Deveney said.

"We know for sure it wasn't the Indians," he said. "They would not think of doing anything like that."

Gems big at shows

PARIS (AP) — Fall will not be the season for quiet, simple jewelry if French designers have their way.

At the recent showings of the fall collections, big, attention-getting pieces were the rule, with designers zeroing in on long, tassel necklaces, wind-chime earrings, beaded chokers and bright enamel pins.

Official blames health alone for early retirement

By SUSAN STOLER
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Burt Risley has cited health problems and not charges of mismanagement as forcing his early retirement after 15 years as executive director of the State Commission for the Blind.

Risley's decision came after Gov. Bill Clements called his agency "a mess" and release of a highly critical state auditor's report.

The 59-year-old agency head also was asked to resign in January by three of the six commissioners who accused him of mismanagement.

But Risley said Friday his decision to step down Feb. 6, 1980, was not influenced by outside criticism.

"I wish to emphasize that my health is my only concern at the present time," he said in a statement read to reporters by his secretary.

Risley has been hospitalized in the past year for hepatitis and pneumonia. He said he would immediately begin extended sick leave and vacation.

Charles Sapp of Houston, commission chairman, released a statement afterward through the Austin agency office praising Risley. Sapp did not say when the board would name a new director.

Commissioners Sam Millsap Sr. of San Antonio, John Turner of Dallas and Walter Musler of San Antonio accused Risley of mismanagement in January and asked for his resignation.

State Auditor George McNeil recently released a report on the commission for 1977-1978. It was the second, consecutive state audit to criticize the agency, which had a $16.5 million budget this year.

McNeil questioned transactions involving the commission and the private Visual Research Foundation in Fort Worth. Risley was an agent for the foundation's incorporation in 1970 and is its treasurer.

"In two cases of which we are aware, third-party entities receiving payments from the commission have subsequently made contributions to the Visual Research Foundation equal to certain percentages of the payments received from the commission," the report said.

"In one instance, the commission made annual payments of $21,000 for rehabilitation services, of which the recipient organization ... then contributed exactly 25 percent (5,250 per year) to the Visual Research Foundation," the report continued.

McNeil is not alone in wanting answers to the commission's complex transactions.

The special crimes division of the Travis County district attorney's office is investigating the commission and is expected to present findings to the grand jury later this month.

The U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department is contemplating its own audit of the agency, which receives 75 percent to 80 percent of its funds from federal coffers.

William C. Conner, president of the Fort Worth foundation, has ordered an extensive audit of his organization. Conner, a wealthy Fort Worth businessman, said he thinks any of the foundation's possible problems are due to inept management, not improper handling of funds.

Three die of heat

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Three young children, left unattended in the cab of a tractor-trailer rig parked in the midday sun, died of dehydration as temperatures climbed into the low 90s Saturday, a pathologist said.

Nancy Lynn Fisher, 5, David Martinez, 3, and Marcella Marie Martinez, 19 months, were discovered by their mother about 3:30 p.m.

It's 10 p.m. and you, a woman, have just finished a long day's work at the office. You leave the now-deserted building, making tracks for that haven of safety, the automobile. But first there's an empty street, dark corners and poorly lighted parking lot to conquer.

What to do if approached or attacked? An unexpected attack can come at any time, any place. Every day, innocent victims are attacked at night, in broad daylight, on city streets and even in the privacy of their own homes.

It's a familiar scene all over and Midland is no exception. Many persons are doing something about it, however, and some of the larger corporations here have sponsored self-defense seminars for their employees, emphasizing self-defense techniques for the women.

Several Midlander women have taken the route of learning a martial art, such as karate, judo or, particularly, taekwon-do.

Translated literally from Korean, taekwon-do means "art of hand and foot fighting."

This martial art is the scientific use of the body in methods of self-defense, a body that has gained the ultimate use of its facilities through intensive physical and mental training.

Taekwon-do is unique in that a woman does not have to be muscular, large or aggressive. She can use her balance and her ability of speed against a man's weight, and be successful in self-defense.

"A well-trained student who has developed an instinctive conditioned reflex should stand a fairly good chance of blocking or at least deflecting a blow," said Master Lee Yoo Sun, seventh degree black belt, instructor of Korean Taekwon-Do here, and an affiliate with the International Taekwon-Do Federation.

"Utmost purpose of taekwon-do is to eliminate fighting by discouraging the stronger's oppression of the weaker with a power that must be based on humanity, justice, morality, wisdom and faith, thus helping to build a better and more peaceful world," he added.

And he emphasizes physical fitness, self-defense and methods of using the body as a weapon without abusing the privilege.

More than just a method of self-defense, taekwon-do is an art that implies a way of thinking in life, particularly in instilling moral civilization and generating the power for justice, he said.

Jenice Miller, fifth degree black belt under the American Karate Black Belt Association, learned self-defense in Dallas when her employer, Texas Instruments, offered a free program for its women employees.

The company initiated the program as a result of several attacks being made on women in the 26,000-car parking lot during the night work shift.

"I took the course and was thrilled with the feeling I had of exercising and getting in physical shape," she said. "I knew that I was also learning something useful and that in the event I was attacked, I would be able to defend myself."

And she did. During a visit to New Orleans some time ago, she was attacked by three men holding knives. She was a third degree black belt at the time.

"I knew I was good, but was taken by surprise," she said. "The guys struck me one time before I got going, but my karate worked. I defended myself against them and wrestled one man to the ground before the other two ran away." She pressed charges against her one remaining attacker.

"Learning taekwon-do doesn't mean that a woman has to be masculine. I am a lady, but I think everyone should have the right to be able to defend themselves."

What to do in case of attack? The Midland Police Department says there are two choices—passive or active resistance. They do not recommend which choice a woman should take.

"It is up to the individual as to what she should do," said Steve Otto, a member of the Crime Prevention Unit of MPD. It just depends on her particular situation and only she can decide what is the best thing to do at the time. Either way, she can end up being killed."

Most importantly, however, a woman should be aware of the situation before she gets into it," he added. "Avoid walking alone at night, keep away from the dark corners and unlit alleys, etc. Using common sense and preventive measures is the best self-defense method."

Jan Mitchell has never been one to shy away from danger, having been a motorcycle stuntwoman and flagpole painter at one time. But she enrolled in taekwon-do recently for several reasons, one of which was to gain confidence in knowing that she could defend herself, if necessary.

"I also wanted to learn good body control and build a good exercise program for myself," she said.

More than just self-defense, taekwon-do builds self-confidence, according to Sudi Krause, a geologist.

She became interested in taekwon-do initially because of her interest in dancing. A friend of hers in Dallas recommended that she enroll in karate after he saw her do a choreography.

"Taekwon-do is a tremendous personal growth process," she said. "The amount of concentration in doing the forms is enormous. The exercises raises your energy and with each new form and movement, your energy changes. As you go through the ranks, you can turn around and see your own progress and the changes you have made. You walk differently, even sit differently and are more alert."

Before Charlotte Morris, secretary for a downtown law firm, learned taekwon-do, she would "crouch to the car" at night after work. Now she leaves with a little more confidence than before because of her year's knowledge gained in self-defense. She has also obtained the rank of blue belt with red stripe.

She feels that she could defend herself and would take an offensive role if attacked. "I've never been passive in my life and wouldn't begin then," she said.

But she agrees that her knowledge of the martial art has made it just a little easier for her to make her decision.

R. Brandon, Guy T. Tabor repeat vows

HOUSTON — Rebecca Jo Brandon of Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Brandon, also of Houston and formerly of Midland, and Guy T. Tabor of Houston exchanged double ring wedding vows at 7 p.m. Saturday in John Wesley United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Herbert R. Rohloff Jr. officiated the vows. The bridegroom is the son of M.T. Tabor Jr. and Jo Ann Gaston, both of Dallas.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father. Her candlelight silk organza gown was a George Maurer original of exquisite design.

Pearls embroidered on peau d'ange lace trimmed the bodice and bishop sleeves. The gown's skirt was embroidered with the same lace and formed a chapel-length train.

Her veil of silk illusion fell to elbow-length with matching pearls embroidered on the peau d'ange lace.

The bride wore her maternal great-grandmother's wedding band and carried a cascade of yellow roses and baby's breath entwined with candlelight ribbon.

Debbie Parmer of Austin served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Diann Brandon of Houston, sister of the bride, and Karen Crowley of Houston. Claudia Ofield of Midland was her sister's bridesmatron.

Best man was Gary Dell Long of Dallas. Groomsmen were Mark David Hemphins, David Ernest Hall and Steven Paul Hamm, all of Dallas.

Seating the guests were Greg Alan Tabor of Dallas, brother of the bridegroom, and William Paul Ofield of Midland, brother-in-law of the bride.

Wedding music was provided by Luanne Jay, organist, and Les Hill, soloist.

A reception was held in the Brandon home.

After a wedding trip to the Cayman Islands, the couple will live at 6100 Elm St., Apt. 1718, in Houston.

Mrs. Douglas Richard Hillman

Couple wed

Charla Ann Gregory and Douglas Richard Hillman, both of Midland, were united in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gregory Jr. of 3534 Imperial St. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ross of Aransas Pass.

The Rev. Jerry Wyatt read the vows. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Best man was Jim Hillman, brother of the bridegroom, of Midland. Maid of honor was Sharla Feagan of Lubbock.

Flower girl was Brandy Waldrep of Midland. Candelighters were JoAnn Hillman and Donnie Hillman of Aransas Pass.

Ring bearer was Brent Waldrep of Midland. Ushers were David Waldrep, Jack Waldrep, and John Davidson, all of Midland, and John Hillman of Aransas Pass.

Organist was Carol Hall and soloist was Copper Butnman.

The bride wore a formal empire silhouette organza gown with silk Venise lace, a full skirt with triple flounce hemline had an attached chapel train. Flounces were edged at the scooped neckline. She wore a lace covered cap which held the two tiered fingertip length veil of imported illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of Jafette orchids and stephanotis with natural foliage.

Reception was held at the Midland Hilton.

Following a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the couple will reside in Midland.

Mrs. Guy T. Tabor

Mom's hit more here than fathers

Midland and Odessa area mothers committed almost twice as many acts of child abuse and neglect last year than did fathers, the Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR) reported.

Of the 604 confirmed reports of abuse and neglect in the 17-county region of West Texas, which includes Midland and Ector counties, natural mothers were responsible for 337 child abuse incidents compared to 183 attributed to natural fathers during 1978.

Officials attribute the high incidence of maternal abuse to the large number of single-parent families headed by mothers. Also, mothers spend more time with their children, resulting in more child-related stress leading to abuse and neglect.

Statewide, 15,770 cases of abuse and neglect were confirmed in 1978, DHR said in an annual report of child abuse statistics.

Bruises were the most frequent type of abuse committed in the Midland-Odessa area last year, comprising 315 cases. Sixty-five cases of emotional abuse and 36 cases of sexual abuse also were confirmed by DHR.

Other types of abuse perpetrated in the region included eight cases each of welts and wounds, three cases each of suffocation and malnutrition, two cases of bone fractures and one case of poisoning.

In addition to natural parents, stepfathers were responsible for 38 cases of abuse and neglect and stepmothers were blamed for 10 cases in last year's statistics.

Grandparents were cited in 11 cases. Aunts and uncles were responsible for five cases. Brothers and sisters of abused children were cited as perpetrators in three cases.

The largest number of child abusers in Midland and Odessa, both male and female, were between the ages of 26 and 35. Ethnically, child abusers in the region reflected the ethnic composition of the general population, statistics showed.

Statewide, neighbors of abused children were responsible for reporting the largest number of abuse and neglect reports to DHR. Relatives constituted the second largest group making reports to authorities.

Mary Niblett, Barber read wedding vows

Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church was the setting for the exchange of vows at 6 p.m. Saturday between Mary Ann Niblett and Willie Tim Barber. The Rev. Robert E. Lathan officiated the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Niblett of 413 E. Pine St. Parents of the bridegroom are Nathalene Barber of Lockhart and Tim Barber of Midland.

The bride, when presented in marriage by her brother, Edward Niblett of Albuquerque, N.M., was wearing a full-length ivory gown of Qiana and Venise lace, pleated to a ruffled flounce, which edged the skirt. A lace cape formed the sleeves. Her short veil was of Qiana and Venise lace.

Pink carnations and baby's breath made up the bridal bouquet.

Lillie Niblett of Midland served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Paula Daugherty of Hobbs, N.M., cousin of the bride, and Sandra McDonald of Midland was the matron of honor.

Best man was George Ellis of El Paso. Groomsmen were Michael Barber of Midland, brother of the bridegroom. Ushering the guests were Michael Gunn and Willie Ross, both of Midland.

Flower girl was Yushica DeShe Niblett of Midland, daughter of the bride. Anthony-Tyrone Clater of Midland, nephew of the bride, carried the rings.

Wedding music was provided by Odell Niblett, cousin of the bride, organist, and Carolyn Jones, soloist.

A reception was held in the church parlor immediately after the ceremony.

The couple will take a wedding trip to California in July. The newlyweds will live in Midland.

Gayle Darnell Rowan marries Stephen Mark Jones Saturday

Gayle Darnell Rowan and Stephen Mark Jones were married in a double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Ray Riddle officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rowan of 3200 Apperson St. are the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith D. Jones, Farmington, N.M.

After a trip to San Antonio and Padre Island, the couple will reside at 910 N.W. 4th St., Andrews.

Cindy Harrison was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Anita Shipman, Tammi Sweet and Suzy Gibson of Midland and Sally Reavis of Austin.

Doug Darby of Odessa was best man. Groomsmen were David Palmer, Paul Freeland and Morris Palmer of Odessa and Brad Jones, brother of the bridegroom. Ushering were A. B. Moore of Dilly, Lewis Fincher of Midland and Travis Hughes of Andrews.

Music was by Robert Poer, organist, and James Bates and Suzy Graham, vocalists.

Mr. Rowan gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal white gown of silk organza and Venise lace, featuring a Queen Anne neckline, Empire bodice and full bishop sleeves. The sheer bodice and sleeves were adorned with Venise lace and seed pearls. A chapel-length veil of sheer illusion edged into Venise lace was caught into a seed pearl headpiece, also covered in Venise lace.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of bridal pink roses, Golden Wave roses and white butterfly roses with baby's breath and yellow and white pink satin streamers.

The reception was held in Midland Country Club.

The rehearsal dinner was held in the backyard at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Darnell.

Out-of-city guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jones of Iowa Park, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Pre-nuptial parties included a personal shower given by Mrs. E. F. Motter and Liz Motter, a kitchen shower hosted by Mrs. Randall Gibson and Suzy Gibson, display shower given by Mrs. C. C. Oxford is employed with End De- vices, Inc., and Mrs. Oxford is cafe- tery manager for the Midland Inde- pendent School District. She is a member of the Church of God.

Readers to enroll

Registration for the In Search of Texas Treasures Reading Club starts Monday at 9 a.m. at the Midland County Library's Young People's Department. The Texas Treasures program is free and sponsored by the Texas State Library.

Joan Threlfall, children's librarian, said that this program enables the child to participate in the program while visiting in other Texas cities also using the program.

The summer club helps children retain their reading proficiency for the fall school year and all school children are encouraged to join, she added.

Each child joining the club will receive free Texas Treasures book marks and a reading log with games and puzzles on it. Books must be checked out of the library and read by the children themselves, said Mrs. Threlfall, and a certificate is awarded for reading 15 books.

from the department are hardback and paperback books, filmstrips, magazines, puzzles, records cassettes, books and cassettes, books and records and young adult books.

Filmstrips will be shown during the summer, and a pirate will visit the Young People's Department Monday and Tuesday.

A child can receive a free library card when he or she is six years old, if accompanied by a parent or guardian, said Mrs. Threlfall.

The library's hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Hooper bride of C. Fell

The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity was the setting for the marriage at 4 p.m. Saturday of Deborah Lynn Hooper and John Chadwick Fell. Officiating the double ring service was the Rev. Sam Hulsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry L. Hooper of 2313 Stanolind Ave. are the parents of the bride. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. David C. Fell of San Antonio.

The couple will reside in San Marcos, after a trip to San Antonio. Mrs. W. B. Perry was the matron of honor. Shana Hickey of Dallas was the maid of honor, and Dolli Byron of Roswell, N.M., cousin of the bride; Melanie McIntosh of Austin; Nancy Trapp of Dallas; Mrs. Walter Bunge of Houston; Mrs. James Cauthen of Midland and Paula Worley of El Paso were the other bridal attendants. The flower girl was Candice Diepraam.

James MacFadden of San Antonio was the best man. The groomsmen were David Fell Jr., brother of the bridegroom, and David McCoy, John Hasse, Rubin Villereal, Keith Tab-bert, Robert San Miguel and Robert Hatley, all of San Antonio. The ushers were Michael T. Hooper, Robert G. Hooper and Jack P. Hooper, brothers of the bride, and Lance Fell of San Antonio, the bridegroom's brother. John Hooper of Roswell, N.M., cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organza gown designed in Southern Belle styling. The fitted bodice was highlighted with pearl embroidered Venise lace, scrolls and flowers and featured a deep scooped neckline of draped organza and puffed sleeves scattered with Venise lace daisies. Her full skirt supported by hoops billowed from a natural waistline and ended in a deeply draped hemline flowing into a train. Chapel-length silk and illusion fell from a pearl embroidered Venise lace hat. She carried a custom designed parasol of organza to match her gown. The parasol and hat were accented with yellow roses.

The reception was a garden party at the Racquet Club of Midland.

Mrs. John Chadwick Fell

Mrs. Redford Charles Hazlewood Jr.

Miss Secret repeats vows

PAMPA—Stephanie Secret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newt Secret of Pampa, and Redford Charles Hazlewood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hazlewood of Midland, were married at 2 p.m. Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Joe Turner officiated for the double ring ceremony.

The couple will reside southeast of Midland, after a trip to Colorado.

Renee White of Big Sandy, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaid was Becky Secret of Wilton, N.H., also a sister of the bride. Leona Hazlewood of San Marcos, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Donald Hazlewood of San Marcos, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The groomsmen were John Huesth of Lubbock, and the ushers were Oza Whitten and Randy Storte of Midland. Andy Hazlewood of San Marcos, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Jan Page of San Angelo was the organist, and Bill Davis of San Angelo and Cindy Taylor of Shreveport, La., were soloists.

Mr. Secret presented his daughter, in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown which featured a scoop neckline and long bell sleeves. The neckline, waist, hem and train were accented with beaded lace appliques. She also wore a fingertip veil of illusion, and carried a cascade of Sonia roses and Stephanotis.

A reception was held in the church parlor.

PDAP spells relief from chemicals

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

Midland parents that have teenagers who abuse drugs may soon have a place to take them to find a new way of life.

Some citizens concerned about the rising problem of drug abuse in the Tall City have banded together in an attempt to bring to the city a program that helps teenage drug addicts and alcoholics to kick the habit. It is called the Palmer Drug Abuse Program.

Bob Meehan of Houston, the founder of PDAP, was in Midland Wednesday night to explain the program to a group of Midlanders, including top city and law enforcement officials and representatives of the Midland school system. The meeting was held in the First Presbyterian Church.

Another meeting with Meehan is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church, with the public invited.

PDAP began in mid-year, 1977, when Meehan, a heroin addict and alcoholic, decided that there should be a way for young people to keep from going through all of the misery that he went through with the problems of drug abuse.

He began talking to kids around the church in Houston where he worked as a janitor and drew the attention of the rector to what he was trying to do. His enthusiasm convinced the rector Meehan had an idea worth trying. Palmer Church opened its facilities to Meehan and the youngsters he attracted to his idea that "it would be more fun and more 'real' to live life free from all mind-changing chemicals."

Today, PDAP is located in 15 cities, including San Angelo. Meehan also is working in Odessa to get a facility located there. So far, the program has helped 21,000 young people "clean out their minds and lives," said Meehan.

Meehan, who is violently opposed to the legalization of marijuana, told the group that $50,000 would have to be raised for initial operating expenses before the program could be brought here. The money will be collected through private donations and a fund-raising campaign now is underway.

It is hoped the program will begin in September.

The coordinating committee is made up of Beverly and Giffort Alstrin, chairman; Sarah Nei-sig, secretary, and Jack Steele, treasurer. Committee chairmen are Ron Britton, finance; Joan Weir, public information; Gloria Dubose, telephone; Betty Kempf, correspondence; Larry Grimm, pastoral liaison, and Tricia Shelton, communications.

The initial interest in PDAP was generated when Rick Gonzales, director of PDAP in San Angelo, spoke to the Midland Junior Woman's Club on his facility in May.

Believing that the use of drugs has become the accepted social norm and convinced that mind-changing chemicals have the potential to destroy a young person's life before it really gets started, the Palmer Drug Abuse Program specializes in giving young people a second chance.

The average length of stay in the program is from nine months to a year, said Meehan. "There is a way if the drug addict is willing to make some changes," he added.

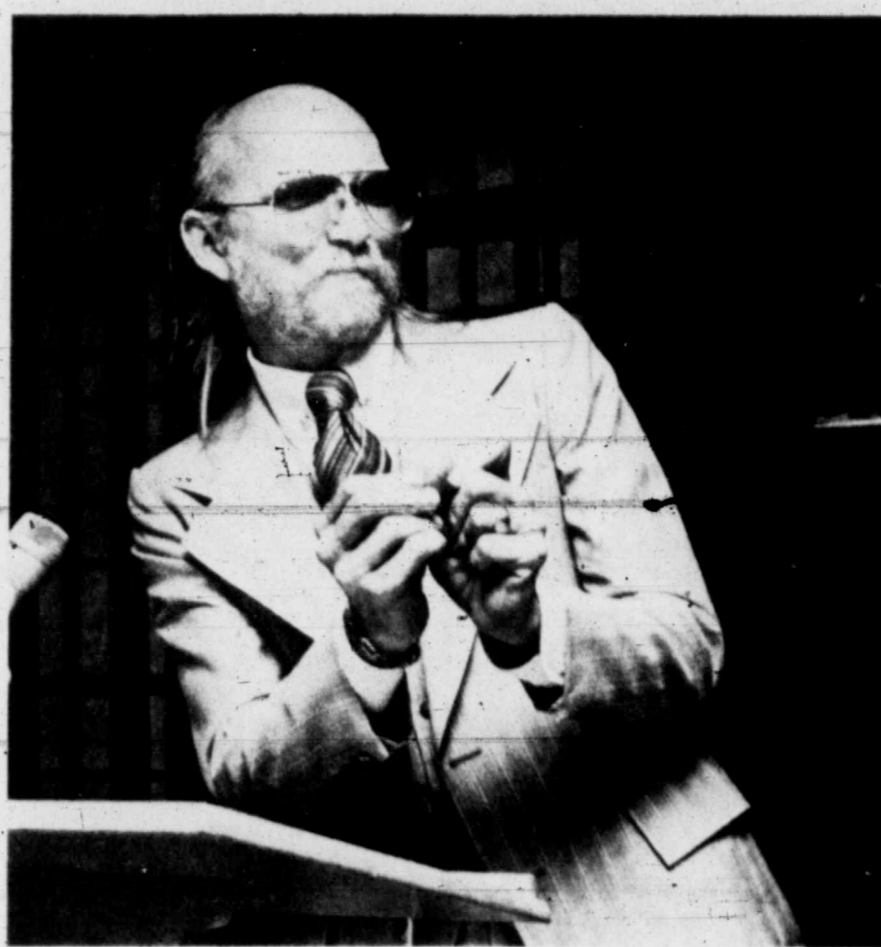

If someone comes to the program and needs more help than PDAP can provide at the facility because they have serious psychological problems, they are referred to the right place, said Meehan.

"Marijuana is the most insidious chemical in America today. Even heroin does not affect the way you think like marijuana does. You're no longer you with marijuana," said Meehan. He also believes there is a difference in drinking intoxicating beverages and taking drugs. The laws on marijuana, said Meehan, do not concern the youth.

The program's technique involves five basic actions, expressed in 12 steps, on the part of the participant. They include staying sober for 30 days, admission and definition of the problem, confession of wrongs, making amends and helping others.

The PDAP satellite in Midland also would have a parent group that would offer support to the families of the participants in the drug program.

Since recognition that they, too, are a part of the total problem is the first step in the road to recovery under the PDAP concept, parents would meet once a week and discuss their respective family situations; possible causes of their child's drug problem and ways to help each other establish a sober, healthy and happy family unit.

"First you take the chemical and then it takes you."

Bob Meehan

"We must close the generation gap and understand what's going on," said Meehan.

"The healing power of love, AA and a forgiving God is the basis of the program," explained Meehan. But he hastens to add that the program is not a religious one, although the PDAP will be housed in a church.

If and when the program is a reality in the Tall City, national headquarters of PDAP will send two counselors, former addicts themselves, to provide one-to-one counseling. Regularly scheduled evening and weekend meetings would be held to give a group therapy situation for the participants.

The program is geared to handle two groups, one for teenagers between the ages of 13-16 and another one for young people between the ages of 17-25. However, Meehan, who said there are addicts as young as six years old, stressed that any one with a drug problem would be accepted.

Services of the drug addiction treatment center are free, except for medical treatment such as detoxification, psychological testing, and etc., which must be paid for by parents.

Counselors from PDAP also would be available to the courts for youths with drug-related crimes, and juveniles on probation would be referred to PDAP.

At the end of one year of operation, the center would be granted a charter by PDAP's national headquarters located in Houston.

How bad is the drug problem in Midland?

Sgt. Joe Carr of the Narcotics Division of the Midland Police Department said, "It is a noted fact there has been a steady increase in narcotics traffic in this county in the past five years, both juvenile and adults."

According to Officer Steve Otto of the Crime Prevention Unit of the MPD, his office works on the theory that "if we have one teenager that is on drugs, we have a problem."

Mrs. Alstrin has this to say about PDAP. "I have seen the program work in Houston. I've seen and heard happy, loving teenagers enjoying life without mind-changing chemicals. I've seen and heard parents who came in shocked, bewildered and totally at a loss as to how to cope with a child on alcohol and/or drugs find some answers and peace of mind. It's a beautiful, loving program that offers a lot of hope to some unhappy people and relationships."

How about it Midland? Our children are our greatest resource. But if the day comes, and it is rapidly approaching because of the wide-spread use of drugs, when our country will be populated and managed by emotional cripples. What will be our excuse then?

PDAP's 12 steps

One — Admit that mind-changing chemicals have caused at least a part of your life to become unmanageable.

Two — Stick with winners, positive people, so that you may grow.

Three — Realize that a Higher Power, expressed through our love for each other, can restore you to sanity.

Four — Make a decision to turn your will over to the care of God, as you understand him.

Five — Make a searching, fearless and honest appraisal of yourself and past behavior.

Six — Admit to God, yourself and to another human being the exact nature of your wrongs.

Seven — Become willing to allow our Higher Power to help you change your way of life and humbly ask for His help.

Eight — Make a list of persons you have harmed and be willing to make amends to them all.

Nine — Take responsibility and make direct amends to such people, whenever possible, except when to do so would injure them, others or yourself.

Ten — Continue to look at yourself and when wrong, promptly admit it.

Eleven — Seek through prayer and meditation to improve your conscious contact with our Higher Power, that we have chosen to call God, praying only for knowledge of His will for you and the courage to carry that out.

Twelve — Having had a spiritual awakening as a result of these steps, carry your love and understanding to others and practice these principles in your daily life.

It's time for our summer

Lively, Pate exchange vows

Janelle Lively and Cary Malcolm Pate were united in holy matrimony at 7 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Ben Walker officiated the vows.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. B.A. Lively of 3217 Boyd St. and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Pate of Lubbock.

The bride was escorted down the aisle and presented in marriage by her father. She wore a moon glow silk organza gown of Victoria design, fashioned with a molded bodice featuring a high wedding band neckline encircled with Cluny lace. The bodice front had a yoke of heirloom lace enriched with pearl beadwork. Long, slender candlestick sleeves of heirloom lace were enhanced with pearl beadwork and Cluny lace ruffles at the cuffs. The A-line bouffant skirt, appliqued with matching lace florets, fell into a chapel-length train. The entire hemline of the skirt was encircled with a deep ruffle of heirloom lace.

Her veil of illusion was held by a blousy bandeau headpiece. The bride carried a Colonial cascade bouquet of orchids and stephanotis. Jama Hawk of Lubbock was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Lea Hunt, Lisa Burrow and Mary Mathis, all of Midland.

Best man was Dennis Pate of Lubbock. Groomsmen were Ron Anders of Lubbock, Greg Hoch of Dallas and Danny Amaro of Odesa.

Ushering the guests were Buck Lively and Mark Lively, of Midland and brother of the bride, and Scott Pate of Lubbock, brother of the bridegroom.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Wayne Matthews, organist. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Europe, the couple will live in Slaton.

Garden setting for ceremony

AUSTIN—Michael Scott Muhlbauer married Kevlie Lee Williams in a garden ceremony at 8 p.m. Saturday at the home of the bride's mother, Betty Meriwether Williams of Austin. Dr. Tom Cutting and Rabbi Stuart Davis officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride also is the daughter of Clayton W. Williams, Jr. of Midland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Muhlbauer of Austin.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pale ivory gown of English net and imported French lace. It was styled in an Empire silhouette with Queen Anne neckline. A Camelot headpiece of matching lace held her cathedral-length veil.

Allyson Gaye Williams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Mary Gail Holland of Houston. Chicora Modesta Williams of Midland, sister of the bride, was the flower girl.

James George Atkins was best man. The groomsmen were John Iliya of Dallas.

Music was by Betsy Warren, organist, and Mrs. Robert Pollard and David Kehr, vocalists.

A reception followed the ceremony.

After a trip to Jamaica, the couple will reside in Dallas.

DEAR ABBY

Disability isn't inability

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A repairman who was obviously crippled by multiple sclerosis or cerebral palsy came to my home today. My 4-year-old daughter asked loudly, and in front of the man, "Mommie, why does that man walk so funny?"

I was terribly embarrassed and totally unprepared for her question, so I said, "The man wasn't as lucky as Mommie and you." I didn't mean to sound patronizing or condescending, but I didn't know what else to say. Later I told my daughter that it wasn't nice to mention a person's handicap in front of him or her. My question is, what do you tell children when they ask what is wrong with a crippled or disfigured person in the person's presence? — AT A LOSS FOR WORDS

DEAR AT: You tell them the truth in language they can understand. ("The man had a sickness that made his leg crooked. It's a little harder for him to walk, but he can still do his job as well as anybody else.") Very young children will not understand why it isn't "nice" to mention the obvious. They are naturally curious, eager to learn and shouldn't be discouraged from asking questions. Bless those disabled who anticipate a child's curiosity and come right out with why they are in a wheelchair, wear a brace, or have difficulty talking, seeing or hearing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and my husband is 25. We've been married for three years. When I was first married I weighed 130. Now I weigh 189!

My problem is my sex life. My husband refuses to touch me until I lose 40 pounds. I'm trying, but it's not easy. What should I do? — HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Keep trying. In the meantime, ask him if he'll KISS you if you lose 25.

One to slander you and the other to get the news to you. Forget it.

Living with poverty:

Human suffering commonplace in Brazilian town

By SUSAN RUTHERFORD
Lifestyle Writer

It takes a special kind of person. For a year it was Mary Hellinghausen's job to find the poorest of the poor.

Death, sickness and starvation gradually became commonplace in her job in the small Brazilian town of Telemaco Borba in southeastern Brazil. There she worked at a Catholic social service center dispensing food, clothing and medicine to those in need. In order to tell who was most deserving she and other workers made house inspections, because it was not unusual for people to lie to get more than the next person and to fight over who was getting what.

Yes, she has changed, she said, having been back in Midland only since April as she rejoins her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hellinghausen, in a family of eight children. "The poverty there was so shocking, so overwhelming. But we got used to it. It became an everyday thing. Now that I'm home I'm shocked at the comfort. The atmosphere here is even luxurious. We have too much and we waste too much."

A 1977 graduate of St. Mary's College in Notre Dame, Ind.,

Mary went to Brazil in April of 1977 as a lay missionary on a college-sponsored program. With two months of intensive Portuguese language study behind her, she arrived in Telemaco Borba to meet an American nun, another American student and two Brazilian women. The five comprised the Human Promotion Center where U.S. and Brazilian donations of used clothing, food and medicine were stored and distributed to those in need. The needy would come to the center and make out an application for what they needed and then the workers would visit their houses to determine how much in need they were.

There was a paper factory in a neighboring town which attracted poor people from all over Brazil. The men would come seeking a job, bringing with them their wives and throngs of children. Sometimes there were factory jobs available, paying $65 a month, but often there were not. Either way it was hard, and when there were no jobs the families had to struggle to get enough food to keep themselves alive and to get the materials to build a shack. These wooden shacks were often covered with sheets of thin plastic, the kind of plastic that bags are made of, to keep the rain out.

Music and art are not part of these people's lives, says Ms. Hellinghausen. They were so intent on survival they had no time for cultural luxury time. "Their only goal was to get enough to eat. They were simple people, but they were generous. And they were happy people—happy with what they could get from life," she said.

So what did she do for fun? "We would go to a restaurant in the town, or we would visit with engineers and their families who worked at the paper factory."

The town smelled like sewage and a big pot of beans cooking, she said with a laugh. Transportation was almost all by foot. "The people looked fairly well clothed but they would go through trash cans looking for clothes or would steal for clothes. Most of them had only one dress or one shirt."

In order to cope with the life they lived the people talked a lot about their religious beliefs. "They were content to suffer believing there was a better life ahead," she explained. "Their attitude was 'if God wills it.' That was their only way to rationalize their existence."

Given the opportunity, she would go back, she said. "You say, 'What can one person do?' And you can't answer, 'nothing.' Everything does help some."

A rivers flows past some squatters' shacks in a poor Brazilian village where begging for food is a way of life. With almost no middle class poverty in Brazil is prevalent in both cities and the countryside.

Every month food supplies were handed out to the 100 poorest families in Telemaco Borba. On right in white sweater and scarf Mary Hellinghausen of Midland helps give out the food allotments.

He gives up longshoring for ballet lessons

By JOHN J. MULLINS
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A few years ago, Mark Dovey would finish work for the day as a longshoreman on the Vancouver, British Columbia, waterfront and head for his ballet lessons.

It's a formula that's paid off. He's danced with Rudolf Nureyev, and today he is dancing, singing and acting the role of Greg in "A Chorus Line" at the Shubert Theatre.

The Vancouver native is 27 years old, 5-foot-11 and 155 pounds "of solid muscle." He began studying ballet when he was 21, seven or eight years later than usual for a male.

His first classes were with girls 5 and 6 years old, "and they were so scared of me," he said in a recent interview. "There were days when he didn't have time to clean up between work and ballet, and he'd arrive for classes grimy and grease-covered.

"They were so much looser than I was," he added. He was 25 pounds heavier than he is now. The dancing built up his legs; his job built up his chest and arms. It began when he was a fourth-year student at the University of British Columbia—studying geography, history and English ("nothing to do with the theater,") tending to become a secondary-school teacher. He joined an amateur musical production of "West Side Story" at the university "to relieve the boredom. It was the best thing I ever did," he said. He gave himself three years to make good as a dancer.

Denise McTyre, Eschberger wed in Dallas

Mrs. Mark Eschberger

DALLAS—Denise McTyre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. McTyre of Dallas, was married Saturday to Mark Eschberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Eschberger of Midland. Fredrick B. Elliott III performed the ceremony at West Shore Presbyterian Church here.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal-length white gown of silk organza featuring a double flounce of embroidered lace from a scoop neckline. Venice lace circled the waist and accented the skirt which was trimmed with a flounce of embroidered lace flowing to a chapel train. The Venice lace cap of her fingertip veil held two layers of illusion trimmed in lace. She carried a Bible presented by her parents covered with lace, lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Sarah Annette Hendricks of Dallas was the maid of honor. Craig Eschberger of Odessa, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. The ushers were James "Bucky" Ritchie of Midland, John Mays Hyllin of Tulia, Steve Hardaway of Midland and George McTyre of Dallas, the bride's brother. The bride's brother also sang selections. Sherry Rowe, flutist, played.

The bride is a graduate of The University of Texas-Austin. She has a degree in journalism. She was president of Spooks, an honorary spirit organization, Texas Relays Student Committee executive, member of the Public Relations Society of America and was sports information intern for UT Intercollegiate Athletic Department. She has worked as North Texas program co-ordinator for the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness.

The bridegroom is a petroleum engineering graduate of UT-Austin. He was a petroleum department representative to the student engineering council and member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of American Institute of Metallurgical Engineers. He will be working for Cities Service.

The couple, after a trip to Florida, will reside in Midland.

Wilson, Avery say vows

Becky Wilson and Bradley Robert Avery exchanged double ring vows in a 6:30 p.m. Friday wedding ceremony held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scooter Jenkins of 2618 Noel St., uncle and aunt of the bridegroom.

Justice of the Peace Robert Fine officiated the service.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Sue Wilson of Route 4, 109 Perrie Lane, and Frank Wilson of Amarillo. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. R.M. Hill of 2111 Auburn Place and Edward L. Avery of Lafayette, La.

Attending the bride and bridegroom were Phillip Bailey of Pleasanton, best man, and Tammy Wilson, of Midland, sister of the bride, maid of honor.

A reception was held in the Jenkins home.

The bride is employed by Elmer Fox, Westheimer and Co. She is a Midland High School graduate and attended Midland College.

The bridegroom is employed by Steward Electric in Midland. He attended Midland High School.

Mrs. Steven Robert Moncrief, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

Newlyweds leave Lubbock for Colorado honeymoon

LUBBOCK—Mr. and Mrs. Steven Robert Moncrief, who were married at 2 p.m. Saturday in Trinity Church, will reside here at 1302 42nd St., after a trip to Colorado.

The bride is the former Barbi Lane Traeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. G. Traeder of 1601 N. Midkiff St., No. 108, Midland. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elmer Moncrief of Dallas and the late Mr. Moncrief.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal white gown of Venice lace and pleated chiffon net. The lace covered bodice with sheer yoke had cap sleeves and natural waistline. The pleated skirt was lace edged with attached chapel train. Her walking mantilla veil was scalloped with matching lace trim and was attached to a lace covered cap. She carried a cascade of miniature white roses and white and blue carnations with sprigs of baby's breath and lily of the valley trimmed with blue and white satin ribbons.

Church of Christ minister Lewis Moncrief, brother of the bridegroom, officiated the double ring ceremony. Marilyn Arland was the organist, and Sherri Whadford was vocalist.

Vicki Tension of Midland was the bride's honor attendant. The bridesmaids were Carol St. Clair of Baytown and Susan Haines of Lubbock. Martha Bardin of Midland was bridesmatron. Shauna Gomez of Albu-

Party fetes bride-elect

A miscellaneous display bridal shower was held recently in the home of Mrs. Jim Prince at 3611 Sinclair Ave. in honor of Revis Joan Courtney, bride-elect of Guy Wayne Fitzgerald. The couple will be married June 23 in St. Nicholas Episcopal Church.

H.R. Courtney of Midland and Mrs. Jack Gibbs of Hobbs, N.M., are parents of the bride-to-be and Mr. and Mrs. Ike Fitzgerald of 1112 Mogford St. are parents of the future bridegroom.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of silk flowers in earth tones flanked with blue candles in silver holders. A blue bow with the couple's names inscribed in gold letters decorated the door.

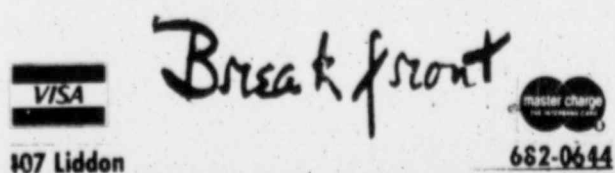

Co-hostessing with Mrs. Prince were Mrs. John Stanley, Mrs. A.M. Stanley, Mrs. Leonard Shepherd, Mrs. Bill Stovall and Mrs. S.W. Lawson.

The Oriental ambience, expressed by Gordon's.

Gordon's inspired collection of tables with a Far Eastern influence. For the discerning, from Store Name.

Descended from the Ming dynasty, China's most fruitful era of artistic achievement. Creations were to be coveted by generations for centuries to come. At Gordon's, the graceful designs of that time have been faithfully reproduced. With painstaking attention to authentic proportions and delicate details, Gordon's own Ming finish has richly darkened the solid maple and maple veneers, dramatically counterpointed with olive ash burl veneers. Glass inserts are softly tinted bronze with beveled edges. Subtly scaled hardware is solid brass. This is the Oriental ambience. Serene quietude. Unpretentious. Yours, from Gordon's.

- a. Sofa table with olive ash burl top. 31 1/2" x 54" x 27" high
- b. Lamp table with bronze tinted glass top. 29 1/2" x 21" high
- c. Chest cocktail table with olive ash burl top. 18 1/2" x 18" high
- d. 2 chair commode with olive ash burl top. 29 1/2" x 21" high
