

Angelo engineers resolution from mayors favoring decontrol

Compiled from wire service reports

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Ernest Angelo Jr., a part-time mayor from Midland, and a Republican, says he doesn't have much in common with President Carter. However, they found a major point of agreement here this weekend — Carter's phased decontrol of domestic oil prices.

And Angelo's view prevailed when the Conference of Mayors resolutions committee gave approval Sunday to an energy plank that endorses Carter's embattled effort to deregulate domestic crude oil prices and impose a tax on the windfall profits it is expected to bring energy producers.

The deregulation portion was passed by a 23-8 vote and the final package, including the windfall profit tax, passed in a voice vote.

The energy resolution is expected to pass easily when it goes before the full conference Wednesday. Because of conference rules, amendment from the floor is very difficult, although some debate is expected.

Representatives from the White House and the Department of Energy scurried around the corridors of the Pittsburgh Hilton, lobbying against a resolution that would have put the Conference of Mayors on record as opposing Carter's decontrol plan.

That resolution, written by John Hutchinson, the Democratic mayor of Charleston, W.Va., called also for the strengthening of Carter's proposed excess profits tax, which accompanies the decontrol plan. Decontrol has already started, with the first phase opening June 1. It is to be in full effect by Oct. 1, 1981.

The resolution opposed decontrol on the grounds that it would cost consumers $17.6 billion in higher prices for gasoline and home heating oil, that much of these costs would be borne by local government, that decontrol would increase the leverage of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries on the U.S. economy and that it would achieve only a negligible increase in domestic oil production.

However, Angelo called the resolution "punitive toward the private sector" and said that "decontrol will reduce demand and increase supply" of oil. Angelo, a petroleum engineer, was joined in support of decontrol by the mayor of Port Arthur, Texas, a center of oil refinery activity, the mayors of San Bernardino, Alameda and Fresno and several other mayors from cities with populations of less than 100,000. Margaret Hance of Phoenix was the only mayor from a city of more than 200,000 to favor decontrol in the meeting of the energy and environment committee.

After voting 10 to 5 to allow a substitute motion by Angelo favoring decontrol to replace Hutchinson's original resolution, the committee went even further and adopted by a 7-6 vote Angelo's motion against the other part of Carter's proposal, the excess profits tax.

Angelo acknowledged that lower-income persons, particularly the elderly on fixed incomes, were hard hit by rising fuel costs, but he said, "Congress should deal with problems of the poor as a separate issue."

Carter has said that the excess profits tax must accompany decontrol.

Republican presidential candidates begin their pitches to the country's mayors today. Former Texas Gov. John Connally was the first of three Republican presidential candidates scheduled to speak to the mayors. Coming later on the agenda were House Republican Conference Chairman John B. Anderson and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker.

But it was all Carter in the preliminary sessions. Despite early grumbling about White House neglect of the cities, the mayors appeared ready to back the President on key issues rather than lose ground to Washington's new vogue of fiscal restraint.

Mayor John Hutchinson of Charleston, W.Va., the energy committee chairman who led the decontrol and profits tax measures to passage, called it a victory for the president.

"We're supporting the president's position," Hutchinson said.

Although the mayors' measure goes beyond Carter's formal proposals, the president has said he would gladly accept a stiffer tax if Congress passes one.

Nuclear protesters arrested, then praised for their behavior

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Demonstrators used ladders Sunday to scale a fence and enter the ground of a nuclear power plant under construction and were so orderly they drew lavish praise from officers who arrested them.

enforcement, they cooperated better than anyone else I've ever arrested," said Alcoholic Beverage Commission officer Ray Young. He drove one of two buses that carted the 48 anti-nuclear protesters into town for booking.

mervell County Sheriff Frank Larramore, who ordered the arrests. "They've done everything they said they would do. They've done what we wanted them to do."

While about 30 reporters watched, the demonstrators worked in two groups.

Separating from the main group of about 100, the 48 gave media representatives time to get into position, then charged the fence with a cry of, "No Nukes!"

Once on the grounds of the Comanche Peak Power Station, the 48 red-shirted demonstrators sang to the accompaniment of their supporters' chanting.

Plant security officers told those on the plant's grounds to leave immediately or face prosecution for trespassing.

The arrests were made without resistance.

Larramore asked the 48 to form two lines and give up their back packs. They did, and were ushered aboard the buses.

In town, each was booked on charges of criminal trespassing and released on personal recognizance.

Radioactive steam escapes from plant in Connecticut

WATERFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Millstone II nuclear power plant was being shut down today after "mildly radioactive steam" was found spewing from a leaky valve in the reactor core water system, officials said.

The shutdown, begun Sunday, did not pose any radiation hazard to the public or workers at the plant, according to Anthony Neruccio, a spokesman at Millstone II, owned by Northeast Utilities, of Berlin, Conn.

Neruccio said he did not know whether there were any unusual levels of radiation inside or outside the plant.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Karl Abraham described the leakage as routine.

A valve seal ring had been suspect after a recent inspection and was being monitored, Neruccio said, adding that employees were tipped to worsening of the leak by a computer printout showing the water level had dropped.

He said he did not know why the repair was not made during Millstone II's periodic refueling shutdown earlier this spring, except that it was not necessary then.

Truckers' protest against rising diesel fuel prices continues amid violence

By The Associated Press

Truckers blockaded truck stops and tied up traffic in scattered incidents today during a protest over fuel prices that touched off some gunfire and arson attacks over the weekend.

And police in the Chicago area reported truckers were broadcasting "threats" over CB radio against drivers still hauling goods.

About 75 trucks formed a convoy along the interstate highway system in Omaha, Neb., at rush hour this morning but police reported no major problems.

Other truckers blocked pumps at stations in Hampshire, Ill., and Little Rock, Ark.

In the meantime, the 400-member Michigan Independent Truckers said it would join a nationwide shutdown if it is proposed by the national Independent Truckers Association.

Over the weekend shots were fired at truckers in several states and a cattle truck was burned.

Six reports of sniper fire were under investigation by state police near Salt Lake City, where nails were found strewn over a canyon road Sunday. Weekend shootings also were reported in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Truck traffic was off significantly in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Utah, Tennessee and Montana by Sunday, protesters claimed.

In Montana, dozens of truckers stopped traffic on Interstate 90 west of Missoula. Some truck stops have been blockaded since last week, said strike organizer Bob Whalen.

In other states, blockaded truck stops created fuel shortages and discouraged many other haulers, organizers said.

"It's all closing down," said Herman Hediger, president of the Wisconsin Independent Truckers Association.

The scattered shutdown has already been felt in some areas of the Midwest, where grain elevators were reported filling up and two meat-packing plants closed last week as haulers became scarce.

Bob Brasorup, executive secretary of the Montana Wheat Research Committee, said elevator storage space for wheat was dwindling because a shortage of trucks had curtailed grain shipments.

Meanwhile, Mike Parkhurst, president of the national Independent Truckers Association, said he will announce today what action his organization representing a 30,000 drivers will take.

The ITA, which claims to represent about a third of the nation's independent haulers, has not sanctioned blockades, rush-hour convoys and acts of violence. However, it is being pressed to lead a shutdown to protest rising diesel prices and the 55 mph speed limit.

Washington television station WTTG said Parkhurst met with truckers in Pennsylvania to plan a convoy to Washington today. Parkhurst said the truckers might chain themselves together at the White House to symbolize their "financial slavery," the station said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of loosely-organized truckers' groups around the nation have shown no desire to wait for ITA to make up its mind.

Among the more serious incidents Sunday:

—In Sioux City, Iowa, a woman trucker brandished a pistol when a truck stop attendant refused to sell her fuel. "No blankety-blank is going to tell me how to operate my truck," a station spokesman quoted the woman as saying.

—A trucker who braved the blockades had his windshield shattered by sniper fire as he passed through Iowa.

—An empty cattle truck was burned by four men after the driver was run off a lonely stretch of Wisconsin highway, police said.

—About 15 big rigs rolled past the California Capitol and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s apartment in Sacramento, with horns blaring before south to help out with other demonstrations.

Another convoy was reported in North Carolina.

Managuan fighting rages

U.S. Embassy evacuating dependents

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The American Embassy was evacuating wives and children of its staff members from Nicaragua today as heavy fighting raged in Managua between President Anastasio Somoza's troops and Sandinista guerrillas trying to oust him.

The guerrillas also were reported battling Somoza's troops in the northern cities of Matagalpa, Esteli and Leon and harassing them in the south near Masaya and the Costa Rican border despite national guard claims of victory in the south.

State Department spokesman Tom Reston announced in Washington that embassy staff members had been ordered to send their dependents out of the country, and non-essential employees of the embassy also would leave. He said there were about 60 dependents, that some have already left and about 30 would go today.

Reston said the embassy would inform the other Americans in Nicaragua of its action, "but we are not advising them to leave." He said there were about 3,000 Americans in the country when the rebels launched their current offensive two weeks ago, but American officials believe many have left.

Heavy machine-gun fire and the explosion of tank cannon could be heard coming from the area of the embassy in western Managua. Power at the embassy was knocked out late Sunday afternoon, but the embassy's own emergency generator kept vital systems functioning, an official said.

Firing continued into the night Sunday there and in other areas of the city. Tracer bullets from .50-caliber machine guns arcing across the sky could be seen from the Intercontinental Hotel next to Somoza's fortified military headquarters, called The Bunker.

Lights were out in large parts of the city. From the hotel roof, large sectors in the west and southwest were dark except for the occasional streak of tracer bullets.

Sandinista sources said many civilians had been killed in heavy fighting with the guard in 10 barrios, or poor neighborhoods, of the capital.

The Red Cross said it had heard reports that many bodies were in the streets, but it could not send its ambulances out to pick up the wounded and dead because it was too dangerous.

The Red Cross station in Belmonte, in western Managua, held more than 100 refugees who had fled the fighting in the barrios of San Judas and Allagracia, both less than a mile from the U.S. Embassy.

Heavy fighting was also reported in Matagalpa, 80 miles north of Managua. Sandinistas in the city told journalists that they had captured the national guard compound, but guard snipers in the area made it too dangerous to take the reporters there.

Sandinista sources in Panama said an attack had been launched in the northern city of Esteli and that guerrillas had killed 20 guardsmen by midday Sunday. Telephone lines to Esteli were cut and it was not possible to verify the report.

The guerrillas continued to hold Leon, the nation's second largest city about 55 miles northwest of the capital. A photographer reported by telephone that the guerrillas control all but the national guard compound and the cathedral, where the guard has put snipers in the bell towers.

Foreign ministers from Venezuela and Ecuador, representing the Andean Pact, were expected to fly to Managua today from Costa Rica, where they spoke Sunday with President Rodrigo Carazo.

The two were expected to meet with Somoza and emphasize the alliance's support for Costa Rica if Nicaraguan troops should cross the border and also to propose a plan for opening a political dialogue leading to a peaceful solution of the Nicaraguan crisis.

Pope John Paul II begins rest

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II began a well-needed rest today after returning from Poland, where he left behind a groundswell of hope among Polish Catholics that his triumphant homecoming strengthened their church in its battle with the communist regime.

The pontiff went by helicopter to the papal retreat at Castel Gandolfo, 15 miles south of Rome, for two days of relaxation following his grueling nine-day visit to Poland. The 59-year-old pope is scheduled to return to the Vatican Wednesday.

In an emotional close Sunday to the Polish visit, a million or more of the pope's countrymen and women turned out for a farewell Mass in a park in Krakow, the pontiff's former diocese.

"Never lose your trust, do not be discouraged, do not be discouraged; do not cut yourselves off from the roots from which we had our origins," John Paul — "this Polish pope, this Slavic pope," as he described himself, told his countrymen.

At least six million of Poland's 35 million people saw the pontiff along the route of his pilgrimage through Warsaw, Gniezno, Poland's first capital; the shrine city of Czestochowa, Auschwitz and Krakow. Crowds of 300,000 to a million prayed with him as he celebrated Mass in city squares and open fields. The government television service gave the visit extensive coverage, enabling millions more to see him and follow his triumphant progress.

Although the trip was billed by the Vatican as a "spiritual pilgrimage," the pope from the outset spoke up for human rights and religious liberty.

Addressing the Polish bishops at Czestochowa, where he prayed at the shrine of the Black Madonna, he set forth the church's conditions for normal relations with the government: full respect for believers and the right of the church to conduct its activities without government interference.

Speaking Saturday in a "model socialist workers' suburb" of Krakow where he and public opinion forced the government to allow a new church to be built, he denounced the Marxist view of man as a "means of production."

At his farewell Mass on the outskirts of Krakow Sunday, the pope challenged the official atheism of the communist government, asking the vast throng: "Can one refuse Christ and all that he has brought into human history? By virtue of what rational argument, what value close to one's will and heart would it be possible to stand before yourself, your neighbor, your fellow-citizens, your country, in order to cast off, to say no to all that we have lived together for one thousand years?"

"Be strong with the strength that comes from faith," he exhorted the huge crowd, his voice hoarse and wavering after nine days of speeches, Masses and other appearances before enthusiastic and adoring crowds.

At Auschwitz, the group of Nazi concentration camps where 4 million persons died, the pope said Mass on a platform where victims for the gas chambers were chosen. He pleaded for "no more war, only peace," paid tribute to the Jews and other victims of a "crazed ideology" and took note of the Soviet contribution to the defeat of the Nazis.

Over and over he emphasized the historical links between Poland and Roman Catholicism, intertwined for 1,000 years including the last 35 under communism.

"The faith of Poland is a living and vibrant reality, a reality which I would like to enable you to share in; like all genuine expressions of faith, it contains a message of optimism and hope," John Paul said on returning to Rome.

"Farewell to Poland, farewell to my country," said the pope, his voice breaking with emotion, as he knelt at the Krakow airport to kiss the runway, just as he kissed his native soil on his arrival in Warsaw.

"I say goodbye to the land, but it is so hard to part," he added.

On his return to Rome, he said his visit brought him "ineffable happiness" and he brought back "a message of optimism and hope."

Ohio's governor retains official neutral stance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes still is officially neutral in the crowded race for the Republican presidential nomination, even though his former campaign manager, campaign treasurer and lieutenant governor are all members of the Connally for President Committee.

The committee has announced that Rhodes' 1978 election campaign chairman, Edward Mulligan, campaign treasurer Jack Chester and former Lt. Gov. John W. Brown all are members of Connally's national steering committee.

Also on the committee are Senate Minority Leader Paul Gilmore, R-Port Clinton; Assistant Senate Minority Leader Thomas Van Meter, R-Ashland; Senate Minority Whip Stanley J. Aronoff, R-Cincinnati, and Rep. Michael Fox, R-Hamilton, who also is Connally's regional coordinator for Ohio.

Despite Rhodes' official stance of neutrality, The Cincinnati Enquirer reported Sunday that sources in the Connally campaign organization say the four-term Republican governor's support for Connally is solid.

"Rhodes is strongly in support of Connally," the newspaper quoted one Connally campaign official, who asked not to be identified, as saying.

Besides meeting with Connally last March in Indianapolis at the Midwest Republican Leadership Conference, the Ohio governor has reportedly talked to Connally on the telephone on a fairly regular basis, including one reported conversation this past week, The Enquirer said.

"Rhodes wants to see how well Connally does in the first few primaries before he steps out front. He won't come out for a loser," the newspaper quoted the Connally aide as saying.

Supporters of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination concede it will be difficult to counteract Rhodes' influence if he declares for Ohio.

"If Rhodes is against you, he can make life miserable," a Reagan campaign aide said. "It's better to have him for you than against you."

Brown's chances hurt, governors' host feels

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — California Gov. Jerry Brown probably has hurt his presidential chances by staying away from the Western Governors' Conference, which opens today, host Gov. John Evans of Idaho says.

"I think his absence will weaken his position. He could have built a solid base of support among the governors," said Evans Sunday.

Only Brown and Arizona's Bruce Babbitt are not attending three days of talks that have drawn 15 western governors to Elkhorn, a plush resort near Sun Valley.

Evans, chairman of the conference, said he didn't think fellow Democrat Brown has much support among western governors. "We really don't know much about him. He's not held in high esteem by the other governors, because he never attends conferences such as this," he said.

Evans said it's unlikely the National Governors' Association has much support for Brown. He said Brown usually attends sessions only long enough to get media exposure, then leaves.

Fuel, energy and nuclear waste were expected to be key topics in meetings through Wednesday. But even as the conference opened, a conflict developed over diesel shortages.

Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado and Utah's Scott Matheson were working on resolutions to allocate more diesel fuel to truckers.

If that happened, it might be at the expense of farmers, and Evans said Sunday night that he opposes that.

Matheson said a federal order that agriculture must get 100 percent of its diesel needs this spring is disrupting the market.

As a result, he said, diesel prices have doubled in the last six months. He's urging some form of mandatory allocation that will keep suppliers from taking advantage of the present system.

Evans said his farm state opposes anything that will limit diesel supplies to farmers. "Obviously, I'd be against that," Evans said. "We've got to strike a balance between the needs of various groups, but I think food and the production of food products should have the highest of priorities."

Oregon Gov. Vic Atiyeh is trying to get the governors to back some form of national forum on disposal of nuclear waste.

Man's condition remains 'serious'

Eloy Gonzales, 35, of Sonora today remained in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Midland Memorial Hospital with head injuries he received in a two-vehicle accident near Midland late last week.

According to Department of Public Safety officials, the accident occurred Thursday eight miles east of Midland on Interstate 20.

Officials said Gonzales' car ran on to the shoulder of the highway and struck a semi-truck operated by Melvin Bates of Colorado City.

Midlander injured in fight at bar

A 30-year-old Midland man was listed in serious condition in Midland Memorial Hospital following a fight at a bar Sunday afternoon, officials said.

Willie Teler, 1208 E. Jax Ave., was stabbed in the neck with a broken beer bottle while apparently trying to break up a fight at the Texas Bar, 805 E. Texas Ave., according to police reports.

No arrests had been made early today in connection with the incident, police said.

Governor names Midlander to oil compact commission

He is the past president of the Texas Manufacturers Association. He has served as former president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. He also served on the board of governors at Rice University from 1973 to 1977.

Moore presently is serving as the Director of Commercial Bank and Trust Co. and as an advisory director for Citizens Savings & Loan.

He'd probably run if Carter withdrew, Kennedy reveals BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he would probably run for president in 1980 if President Carter withdrew, the Boston Globe reports.

The remark came in an interview with Globe associate editor Robert Healy, a long-time Kennedy acquaintance, and was published in the newspaper's New England Sunday magazine section.

Asked whether he would run if Carter were to withdraw, the Massachusetts Democrat answered, "Probably." Kennedy added: "I'd certainly have to think about it terribly seriously."

When the subject of "draft Kennedy" movements was raised, the senator said, "We try to discourage it," and then shrugged, the Globe reported.

Kennedy has repeatedly said he is not a candidate and that he expects to support Carter for re-election next year.

Kennedy told the Globe that he had not promised his mother not to run and added that the possibility of another Kennedy assassination "would not be a factor" in deciding whether to run for president.

But the article said, without quoting the senator directly, that "the state of his immediate family is a factor."

By BURT BERLINER

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach gets some mighty personal letters from his fans. "They want to know all about my operations," says Keach, Broadway's star schemer in the thriller "Deathtrap."

Keach has undergone four operations for cleft lip, a disfiguring facial affliction often coupled with a more severe condition, cleft palate.

Rated as the most common birth defects of the head and neck regions, the twin afflictions call for many operations reaching into adulthood. Victims require surgery to rebuild the palate, or roof of the mouth, the upper lip and nose, plus extensive dental work and speech therapy.

"I never experienced the kind of teasing that kids with cleft palates get. The affliction isn't familiar to the public, although one out of 700 infants is born with it," says Keach.

"Historically infants born this way were thought to be instruments of the devil. They were put to death or shunned. Today, they may feel like social outcasts."

Keach underwent surgery at 6 months, 1, 2 and 4 years of age, to join the upper lip area which was split, or cleft.

"I remember the anesthetic — ether — the smell of it was horrifying. I identify that with hospitals," says Keach, who sports a moustache that all but covers his scar.

"The moustache isn't cover-up," he says. "You can't hide the condition. You have to deal with it all your life. There's no way to avoid other people's reactions." Born in Savannah, Ga., Keach grew up in California, where an agent once told him, "You've got to fix your face if you want to get into the movies."

"I didn't let that stop me," Keach says. He studied at the University of California at Berkeley, the Yale School of Drama and the London Academy of Dramatic Art.

His roles have ranged from a much-acclaimed Hamlet for New York's Public Theater to a "red-neck narc" in the movie, "Up in Smoke." He also starred in the short-lived television series, "Caribe."

"It was a dreadful experience. During tapings in Florida, I worked without a moustache. When the ratings dropped, I was asked to wear one. I couldn't grow it overnight, so I had to wear all that makeup in the heat. The idea that they felt the ratings were down because of my scar was not very pleasant."

Keach has become active as a spokesman for the American Cleft Palate Educational Foundation. He films public service advertisements to help increase public awareness of the little-recognized birth defect.

Keach shuffles through a stack of fan letters and pulls one out. It's from a youngster in Pound Ridge, N.Y.

"I have been bothered by my cleft lip and nose," the child writes.

Balloonist says sport soaring

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hot-air balloonist David Eastland says last year's flight across the Atlantic by three Americans gave the sport its biggest lift in years.

"This will probably be one of ballooning's biggest growth years in history," the 40-year-old, nine-year veteran of pleasure and commercial flights said.

The first successful trans-Atlantic balloon flight ended in the summer of 1978 in France, where the sport had been born 195 years earlier.

Eastland teaches a non-credit course in hot-air ballooning at the University of Tennessee-Nashville.

It's the fourth time he has taught the course. He has 20 students, 11 of them women.

"Most of them are a little different from average folks. They are looking for something a little different, something more exciting, to do," he said.

The course, which usually includes a flight, is often filled by mail-in registration weeks before classes begin.

Eastland said the sport of hot-air ballooning had originated in 1783 in France, but had died out in the early 1800s because there was no easy-to-use fuel source available to keep the balloons inflated.

"There were some balloons used for observation in the Civil War, but since it isn't a steerable aircraft, it wasn't possible to go from Point A to Point B with any degree of accuracy," he said.

Not that the early balloonists didn't try. Eastland said early pilots had experimented with pedals, sails and hand cranks to steer the aircraft.

A breakthrough for the sport came in the 1960s, when manufacturers developed synthetic fabrics such as nylon for the balloon "envelope" and propane for a fuel.

Nylon is sturdy, lightweight and able to withstand the ultraviolet rays of the sun. Propane was cheaper and safer than hydrogen or helium as a fuel.

There are 1,500 to 2,000 balloons in the United States today, Eastland said.

Eastland flies commercially for companies which have advertisements on their balloons. He also owns three of his own, each towering about seven stories when inflated. He said balloons cost about $9,000 each.

Federal directives

Federal Judge Raymond J. Pettine of Providence, R.I., ought to be embarrassed by his ruling that Donald Gomes, a six-foot, 19-year-old male, must be allowed to play on an all-girl high school volleyball team.

But the embarrassment should be shared by authors of federal directives and other court rulings which have injected such Alice in Wonderland logic into athletics. In fact, all of us should be ashamed for allowing such rulings and directives to be effective in the first place.

The Rhode Island Interscholastic League receives federal funds, and it is a no-no to discriminate by reason of sex in such a program. There are not enough boys interested in volleyball to form a team at Donald's school, so his constitutional rights demand that he be allowed to join the girls team.

Or so Judge Pettine has reasoned, with an unusual apology to women who fear that his ruling will lead to male domination of athletic programs.

He sympathizes, but says an unemotional interpretation of the law leaves no choice if schools are going to receive government funds for athletics. And that is where the mistake was made in the first place — the acceptance of government funds.

The judge's observation that Donald is a volleyball player of only "limited ability," and thus won't put opposing all-girl teams at a disadvantage only evades the issue. Can competitive athletics survive if there is no distinction between the physical size and strength of males and females?

It is easy to argue that athletic programs for women have been short-changed because of a heavy investment in male-dominated sports at many schools. But it is no compromise with the cause of sexual equality to say that the effort to set things right has limitations.

If Justice can't peek out from her blindfold to see what a unisex policy can lead to on the playing field, awkward court decisions like Judge Pettine's are exactly what we can expect.

Joan sees the light

Joan Baez, believe-it-or-not, is proving a rare consistency of conscience and principle.

After being a central figure of the anti-war movement of the 1960s, the folk singer has launched a new protest, this time against the brutality of the government of Vietnam.

Her Humanitas-International Human Rights Committee has announced a campaign against the long-term imprisonment and maltreatment of thousands of "prisoners of conscience" by the Hanoi regime whose cause she so ardently championed a few years ago.

"Instead of bringing hope and reconciliation to war-torn Vietnam, your movement has created a nightmare that overshadows significant progress achieved in many areas of the Vietnamese society," Ms. Baez has written in an open letter to the Vietnamese government.

It is a sad reality that a ferocious and repressive Communist dictatorship has given the Vietnamese few fruits of the peace she so idealistically visualized for them.

Instead, their rulers impose the most rigid thought controls upon them at home while leading them in bloody adventures to subjugate neighboring states.

Ms. Baez' protests against the tyranny under which they now labor shows a rare consistency of purpose.

Where, at the end of innocence, are the other activists of yesterday who so violently condemned the use of U.S. power to hold that tyranny at bay?

Some of them yet are voicing unfounded, unwarranted opposition to various worthwhile programs and causes: Few of them have the courage as has Joan Baez, to admit that the outcome they so urgently worked to achieve has only brought new tragedy upon the Vietnamese people.

So, although we never thought such would come about, Joan Baez merits a round of applause for finally seeing the light — and doing something about it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Reports of brutality revealed

By JACK ANDERSON

in the torture chambers of the most repressive police state.

Formal complaints led to two internal investigations into the charges. The official finding was that no unnecessary force had been used on the protesters. A department memorandum states that no eyewitnesses, police or civilian, could be found to substantiate Snyder's and Splaine's allegations.

But our reporter Bochele Sharpe interviewed nine fellow prisoners who said they witnessed the rough treatment. They claimed Splaine was shoved down a flight of stairs in her wheelchair and Snyder was trampled underfoot like a doormat.

Here is the witnesses' account of what happened: Snyder, a veteran of several earlier protest arrests, refused, quite peacefully, to cooperate with the police in any stage of the arrest procedure.

When his name was called to go for fingerprinting and photographing, he refused to answer. He simply explained to the officer that he would neither cooperate nor resist. If they wanted him moved, the police would have to carry him, he said.

According to his cellmates, Bob Venezia and Patrick Conway, one officer grabbed Snyder in a stranglehold, wrapping his left arm around Snyder's neck and pressing his fingers on the throat near the jugular vein.

When the officer tightened his grip, they said, Snyder's face turned purple and he cried out in pain. He was dragged out while his two friends yelled to the officer to stop.

Two other protesters, John Bach and Tim Siegal, saw Snyder dragged into the processing room. "Mitch was limp and consequently all of his 'dead weight' was supported by the pressure of the officer's arm around Mitch's neck," Bach wrote in a signed statement. "Mitch's face was very red and he was gasping, obviously having a hard time breathing."

Snyder was then flung into a corner, and an officer asked, "Have you had enough?" Then one of the officers grabbed Snyder in a stranglehold and rammed his thumb under his chin into his windpipe," Siegal said.

Snyder was then dragged out, this time with his arm twisted behind his back. Another prisoner said he heard Snyder yell, "You're breaking my wrist!" A voice replied: "Well then, cooperate."

Snyder told how he was put in the patrol wagon a short time later. "They came into the cell and walked on my chest," he said. Then they dragged him out to the short staircase leading to the parking area.

"An officer asked me once again if I was going to walk," Snyder said. "I told the policeman my conscience would not let me." Then, he said, an officer threw him down the stairs and two of them stood on his arms.

Finally, Snyder said, after the officers had kicked him repeatedly, they handcuffed him behind his back and carried him by his manacled hands to the wagon.

At D.C. General Hospital, the doctors suspected that Snyder's vocal cord had been ruptured. His physician, Dr. Jack Bressette, said Snyder's ribs were so painful he was put on Demerol for 10 days.

Meanwhile, Splaine, who is handicapped, decided to adopt passive resistance to protest Snyder's treatment. Wiktor said she saw an officer shove Splaine down the stairs in her wheelchair.

The chair didn't turn over and an officer grabbed it at the bottom of the stairs. Then two policemen threw Splaine and the wheelchair into the wagon.

Footnote: Capt. Michael Carney, the watch commander for the First District at the time, denied that unnecessary force was used. He said he thought Snyder would have been permanently scarred if he had been jumped on as he claimed and offered to test his theory by jumping on our reporter. She declined the offer.

INSIDE REPORT:

Secret letter from Joint Chiefs on SALT II revealed

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — A secret warning in writing that "the interest of the United States will not be served" unless "ambiguities" are removed from SALT II has been sent President Carter by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at least suggesting possible military opposition to the treaty.

The new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT) most likely will be endorsed, however unenthusiastically, by each of the four service chiefs and their chairman, Air Force Gen. David C. Jones, when they testify during Senate ratification hearings. By that time, all five of the chiefs will owe their jobs to Jimmy Carter, who has amply demonstrated his refusal to accept independent judgments from the Pentagon brass that conflict with his own.

Nevertheless, the confidential letter the chiefs sent Carter March 12, via Defense Secretary Harold Brown, is an anti-SALT warhead at the Pentagon. It could explode if Senate critics of the new treaty obtain a copy of this letter and many earlier communications between the chiefs and the president.

This complete record of questions raised by the uniformed military leaders about the treaty — privately called an "audit trail" by one member of the chiefs — was referred to by retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of Naval operations, on NBC's "Meet the Press" May 20. Zumwalt said the Senate would be "shocked at how far their (the chiefs') views have been watered down" if the record is Phrased in most respectful tones, the letter raised serious questions about five different parts of the intricate SALT II treaty, discussing them under the general heading of unacceptable "ambiguities." In brief, the chiefs:

— Warned that U.S. ability to monitor and verify Soviet compliance is by no means assured; even if arrangements could be made with Turkey to replace the lost monitoring bases in Iran, the "fragility" of depending on foreign help is dangerous.

— Hinted that Moscow will insist that the protocol limiting the range of ground-launched and sea-launched cruise missiles must be extended beyond its 1981 termination. This reflects fear by the chiefs of a worldwide Soviet propaganda outcry letting the protocol expire, with Moscow possibly threatening to "abrogate" the treaty unless the U.S. agrees.

— Warned that without full presidential backing for financing the new MX missile, along with a quick decision approving a mobile basing system for it, the Soviet missile threat against American land-based missiles will soon endanger this nation's safety.

— Stated that as drafted, the treaty and its protocol are open to risky and contradictory interpretations on whether the U.S. can help its European allies build cruise missiles under what is called the "non-circumvention" clause.

Much of the March 12 communication, as have prior letters to Carter, dealt with Soviet cheating. The chiefs are not satisfied with the latest treaty version giving the Soviets the right to encode — or withhold from U.S. monitors — missile test data needed to verify compliance. The letter also repeats one of the chiefs' long-standing treaty grievances: not counting the Soviet Backfire bomber, which has an intercontinental range, as a strategic weapon.

The nation's military leaders are convinced that the president will try to deal with some of these "ambiguities" by the simple expedient of "unilateral" U.S. statements before, during and after the Vienna summit between Carter and Leonid Brezhnev. Such statements about SALT I proved worthless because they did not bind the Kremlin. But the chiefs will attest to this fact publicly only if pressed.

Senate critics of the treaty will find little volunteered help from the military chiefs. But they will discover much informed concern if they dig deep enough and ask the right questions. A good place to start is the March 12 letter.

CHARLEY REESE

Our minimum deterrence policy presents hazards

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — The United States has been placed in an intolerable position by the Congress and the president — not just the current Congress and the current president, but the past several.

The intolerable situation is our dependence on foreign oil. Look at naked facts. We import close to 50 per cent of our daily consumption. The loss of that amount of oil, or even a sizeable portion of it, would precipitate an economic disaster and seriously impair our military strength.

No amount of conservation or rationing could compensate for that much oil and avoid the terrible consequences.

This situation is intolerable because it occurs in a world which grows increasingly hostile and at a time when our principal foe, the Soviet Union, has surpassed us in military strength.

If the Soviet Union should gain overwhelming superiority in nuclear forces, then quite conceivably the United States could be pounded to defeat and surrender without a single nuclear detonation.

Without our nuclear weapons, we simply lack the military means to keep the Soviet Union in Europe, deep the sea lanes open, or defend the Middle East. All of that oil comes to us by sea.

The Soviet Union has 954 ships in its active fleet compared with our 398. It has 270 attack submarines compared with our 77. It has 761 medium bombers compared with our 66. It has 4,690 fighter and attack aircraft compared with our 3,400. It has 1,305 transports compared with our 936. It has 169 divisions compared with our 10. It has 53,000 tanks compared with our 10,500. It has 40,700 artillery pieces compared with 17,500.

In all of these categories, the Soviet factories and shipyards are outproducing ours. In the Yom Kippur War in 1973, the Soviets easily replaced all of the Arab losses while the United States was forced to rob NATO depots to resupply Israel's losses.

All that is required to neutralize our nuclear weapons is for the Soviets to reach the point, which SALT II will help them reach, where they can present an American president with a choice between national suicide if he resorts to nukes or "limited" defeat if he agrees to fight with conventional forces.

By continually keeping a president on the horns of a dilemma — accepting 100 million American casualties or loss of the Middle East or of Western Europe, the Soviet Union could quickly cut our economic throats and accomplish its goal of taking over the United States with all its assets and labor force intact.

This is one of the risks of the insane minimum deterrence policy followed by the Carter administration. The least that should be done, if minimum deterrence is to be the policy, is make the nation self-sufficient in energy and greatly strengthen its conventional forces. The present and past administrations have done neither.

There is no question that we can become energy self-sufficient. The resources — oil, gas, shale, tar sands and coal — exist in sufficient quantities. What is required to develop those resources is the freeing of private sector from government restraint.

Federal policies and laws have actually worked against the goal of energy self-sufficiency.

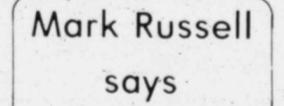

Item: federal price controls on American crude oil — in effect a political decision to penalize American producers for Arab sins — caused a serious drop in production and exploration. Belatedly, they are to be lifted unless the Democrats in Congress rebel.

Item: the new federal legislation on natural gas actually extends federal controls to intrastate gas and has resulted in a reduction in the number of rigs searching for gas.

Item: Environmental Protection Agency which has just decided mud and brine produced by drilling are "hazardous wastes" is in the process of formulating elaborate rules for its disposal which will further hamper exploration.

Item: U.S. refinery capacity is low because of elaborate and expensive permit processes and because of legal harassment by environmentalists.

We had better wake up and change our government before the Soviet Union changes it for us. I figure we have two years, maybe three.

I'll believe the oil companies will plow back their profits into exploration on the day Mobil strikes oil in the sports department of Montgomery Ward.

I didn't mind when an oil company wanted to buy Ringling Brothers Circus, but if it had, I guarantee within six months this country would have been suffering from a shortage of clowns.

Is our energy problem the Administration's fault? Is it Congress' fault? Is it the oil companies' fault? You can't separate them — it's like trying to break up the Three Stooges.

Alfred Kahn tells us we're going to have to lower our standard of living. How far? Well, you've heard of the Waltons? They'll be the rich ones.

Efforts to put out the burning Mexican oil well blaze in the bay of Campeche in the Gulf of Mexico are being directed from the ship "Tolteca" as the oil and gas fire burns on the surface of the sea about 400 yards from the ship. The fire is 50 miles off the coast. (AP Laserphoto)

Specialists predict Mexico offshore oil blaze can be extinguished soon

By JOE FRAZIER

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (AP) — Specialists fighting an eight-day-old oil well fire in the Gulf of Mexico 50 miles east of here say they may be able to put out the blaze sooner than they anticipated.

Engineers on the Tolteca, a tender ship anchored a few hundred yards from the blaze and now being used as a base for examining the underwater well, say the well's pipe is intact and that a submarine crew has located blowout control valves.

Klaan de Vries of the Netherlands, superintendent of operations on the Tolteca, said if the valves are still functioning, hydraulic lines can be attached to them and they can be activated to shut off the flow of oil and natural gas.

However, he warned that such attempts had often failed previously on other runaway wells.

Decontrol to hike take

SANTA FE — New Mexico can expect to receive an estimated $20 million in additional direct taxes and royalties during the first full year of President Carter's phased decontrol of crude oil prices, according to Peter Hanagan, executive vice president of the New Mexico Oil & Gas Association.

Hendrix finals Devonian opener

John H. Hendrix Corp. No. 1 Pennoil-Tubb, a former Tubb producer in the Crawley multipay pool of Crane County, has been re-entered and completed as a Devonian gas discovery.

The project was finalized from the Devonian for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 1,875,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations of 6,140 to 6,156 feet. The pay was acidized with 500 gallons.

The gas-liquid ratio is 156,250-1, with gravity of the liquid at 60.4 degrees.

Total depth is 6,300 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

The Gorieta was topped at 3,848 feet, the Tubb at 4,586 feet, the Wichita-Albany at 5,134 feet and the Silurian at 6,212 feet.

Ground elevation is 2,560 feet. Wellsite is 467 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 23, block B-20, psi survey.

Amoco stakes Winkler test

Amoco Production Co. No. 11 Blue Estate is to be dug in the Wheeler (Wolfcamp, Devonian, Silurian and Ellenburger) area of Winkler County.

The project, four miles southwest of Notrees, is 2,001 feet from south and 1,947 feet from west lines of section 15, block 46, T-1-S, T&P survey. It is to drill to 11,000 feet.

Drive starts to increase growth area gasoline

HOUSTON (AP) — The chief energy adviser to Gov. Bill Clements says he is taking action to bolster gasoline supplies in such Texas urban growth areas as Houston, Dallas and Austin.

Edward Vetter, in Washington to discuss long-range Texas energy plans, said today his order involves about 14 million gallons of gasoline, "plus or minus a couple of million."

He acknowledged, however, that the quantity involved will amount to "only a drop in the bucket" toward relieving long lines at service stations in the state's growth areas.

"It's not going to change night into day but it should help," Vetter said.

Under federal allocation programs, 3 percent of the nation's gasoline production has been set aside since the Arab embargo for distribution by governors on a priority basis during

Leak causes shutdown of Alaska oil pipeline

By SARAH OVERMYER

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A leak has forced the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. to shut down the 800-mile trans-Alaska oil pipeline, halting the flow of 1.2 million barrels of crude-oil daily, a spokesman said.

The size of the leak, which was discovered Sunday, was "something less than 500 barrels" said Alyeska spokesman Sam Akin. About 200 barrels had been recovered from the site, in a mountain pass 165 miles south of Prudhoe Bay, he said.

The leak was located in Atigun Pass by a pilot flying for Alascom, a telecommunications company, Akin said. The seepage was later found to be centered in a buried portion of the pipe.

About 50 members of a containment and cleanup crew were dispatched to the area in the Brooks Range, he said. At about 4,600 feet, Atigun Pass is the highest point of the pipeline route.

Fred Gunther of the state Department of Transportation said the North Slope haul road which parallels the pipeline from Fairbanks to Prudhoe Bay also was closed at the Yukon River bridge for a few hours to provide exclusive access for Alyeska work crews.

The line which began pumping North Slope crude from Prudhoe Bay to the marine terminal at Valdez in June 1977 has been shut down on four other occasions because of leaks.

The flow of oil was halted Sunday soon after the leak was reported to Alyeska. Akin said oil north of the line was pulled back and placed in holding tanks at nearby pumping stations.

It could take "days or weeks" to determine how much oil seeped out before the line was turned off, Akin said.

But Akin said it was too early to say how severe the oil spill was.

"I don't think at this stage there will be serious environmental damage, but, then again, I wouldn't want to stake my reputation on it," he said. "All in all, if you have to have a spill, it looks like this one is not that damaging."

Excavation crews were working to locate the hole in the pipe near the summit of Atigun Pass, under less than ideal weather conditions, Akin said. Temperatures were near 30 and high winds were blowing sleet and rain.

Pipeline monitors at the terminus in Valdez and at various pump stations did not notice any change in the flow of the oil after the seepage began.

Crusade planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements told the state's congressional delegation today he planned a crusade to spread the state gospel of energy production to the nation.

"We have been evolving and working diligently on a so-called Texas position of energy," the governor said. "We do not believe that from a very parochial view this represents a solution only to Texas — quite the contrary."

Clements said the state's congressmen have not been speaking loudly enough for energy production plans and a 100 percent plowback provision on any windfall profits tax.

"If they have been talking about it, I want them to quit whispering and start yelling," the governor said after the meeting he requested.

Clements said he was not meeting any open resistance to his plan for state officials to take a national role in the energy debate. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, two of the three railroad commissioners responsible for oil and gas regulation and his top energy advisers were also present. U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, said the energy position the state officials brought to the meeting represented nothing new.

"This is about the second or third copy we've received," he said of an analysis prepared by the Council of Energy Resources at the University of Texas.

Hightower said proper protocol should be maintained in the governor's campaign.

"In dealing with other members of Congress, I think the delegation is going to have to take the lead. I think it's fine for him to talk to the governors and the other people."

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, spoke first for the delegation.

"I want to emphasize one thing — we're on the same side," he said. "When we speak for Texas, we're often suspect because we are a producing state."

The senator said members of the Texas delegation in Congress have fought hard over the years for provisions contained in the state officials' plan.

"We're delighted to have you helping sell the cause and pleased to cooperate with you," Bentsen said. "The delegation is totally committed."

Clements, millionaire head of an oil drilling supply company before becoming governor this year, said he did not believe the voice for the production plan were as strong as the delegation apparently believed.

"That's just not so," he said. "They haven't been talking about this for years."

Blaze hits refinery

CARSON, Calif. (AP) — Production loss of six million gallons of gasoline could result from an Atlantic Refinery Co. refinery explosion and fire which severely damaged a chemical processing plant, refinery officials say.

The pre-dawn blaze on Sunday was confined by Los Angeles County firefighters to a 5,000-square-foot area around the unit's compressor, allowing the fire to burn itself out in about two hours.

Refinery manager Norm Pennels predicted the unit, a catalytic desulfurizer that processes naphtha, would be out of service for up to 18 days — a potential production loss of six million gallons figured at the plant's daily gasoline production of 20,000 gallons.

"I have no idea why this happened," said Pennels, who estimated damage to the unit at $100,000 to $300,000.

Israel, Egypt open new talks

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Israel and Egypt opened the second round of talks on Palestinian autonomy in Alexandria today in an atmosphere clouded by the chief Israeli negotiator's anger about a Cairo newspaper's criticism of Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Israeli Interior Minister Yosef Burg said he objected to an editorial today in the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar which accused Begin of trying "to set fire to the negotiations on autonomy to break them down at the moment of truth." In Tel Aviv, Begin, responding to growing criticism of the Israeli policy of establishing Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territory, denied the controversial outposts are obstacles to the peace process. A statement from his office said circles in Israel and abroad "falsely charged that the presence of Jews in Judea and Samaria was in effect a provocation." Judea and Samaria are the names Begin uses to refer to the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. "I leave you here with mixed feelings," Burg told reporters before leaving Tel Aviv's Ben-Gurion International Airport. "We want the momentum to keep on. But on the other hand I have to say we are very, very angry." Calling the Egyptian editorial a "personal attack" on Begin, Burg said, "These are contrary to the things necessary if we want to advance peace. I won't hesitate to express this opinion in Egypt." The editorial apparently was prompted by the Begin government's controversial decision last week to build a new Jewish settlement on confiscated Arab land on the West Bank of the Jordan River. It was the first settlement approved since Israel and Egypt signed their peace treaty on March 26 and brought sharp protests from Egypt and the United States, which consider such outposts as obstacles to the peace process. Burg heads a six-man negotiating team that includes Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman.

Shah of Iran moves to Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Shah of Iran and his wife have moved on from the Bahamas to Mexico, and the deposed monarch says they will be here for several months. The Washington Post said former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arranged the stay with the Mexican government and that Chase Manhattan Chairman David Rockefeller also did some lobbying. Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, Empress Farah and two boys in T-shirts and blue jeans arrived in Mexico City Sunday afternoon with five aides, a Great Dane and a French poodle. They came in a jet belonging to a Mexican bank. One of the boys was believed to be a son of the royal couple. The group left the airport in three black limousines, and the state TV service said it was believed they were staying at a private home on the outskirts of Cuernavaca, 45 miles south of Mexico City. There was speculation that they would go to Acapulco, the Pacific Coast resort where one of the shah's sisters has bought a palatial villa. "I don't know how long I plan to stay here," said the 59-year-old shah in a brief TV interview at the airport. "This has not been planned. But it will be several months." "Thank you very much for your interview," he added. "We have such pleasant memories of our visit to Mexico (in 1975). We enjoy your beautiful scenery and your very hospitable country." Sources at the airport said one member of the party carried an Iranian diplomatic passport, but the shah, the empress and the rest of the group were traveling on ordinary Iranian passports.

Astles returned to Uganda after suicide attempt

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Idi Amin's former right-hand man Bob Astles tried to jump from a third-story balcony in a suicide attempt after it was confirmed he was to be extradited from Kenya to face murder charges here, Nairobi police said. He was transferred here Saturday, and today the 55-year-old British-born former aide of the deposed dictator stood before a Kampala magistrate to be charged with murder in the 1978 death of a Ugandan fisherman. Ugandan authorities said they are investigating Astles in connection with seven other killings. In Nairobi, Kenya, where a magistrate ordered Astles returned to Uganda for trial, police said he tried to throw himself off a third-story balcony Friday, in what they called a suicide attempt, minutes after the extradition order was confirmed.

Guatemalan chief assassinated

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — The chief of staff of the Guatemalan Army, his chauffeur and his bodyguard have been killed in the third assassination of a prominent Guatemalan this year. Unidentified men opened fire with machine guns on Gen. Jose David Cancinos, 52, as his car was passing a fire station in the southeastern part of Guatemala City on Sunday night. A police spokesman said the general was killed instantly. Firemen rushed from the station at the sound of the firing, but they were too late to help.

Three publicly whipped in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Three people, including a man and woman accused of having "an illegitimate relationship," were publicly whipped in the town square of the north Iranian city of Shabsavar on the Caspian Sea, the newspaper Ayandegan reported today. In addition to the flogging Sunday, the couple received 18-month prison terms, the newspaper reported. It said the man got 100 lashes and the woman identified as "his lover" received 88 strokes. The third person was identified as a policeman, but it is not known why he was whipped. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's staunchly Moslem revolutionary region, which seized power in February, has introduced flogging as a punishment for violations of religious or criminal law.

Senegalese nationals hit by train

PERPIGNAN, France (AP) — Two Senegalese nationals attempting to enter France illegally by walking through a railway tunnel on the Spanish border were hit by a train and one was killed, police said. The accident Sunday killed a 30-year-old and seriously injured his 23-year-old partner, police said.

Volcano spoils weekend carnival

KINGSTON, St. Vincent (AP) — Dust and steam belching from this Caribbean island's Soufriere volcano rained down on islanders at a weekend carnival leaving them looking like "cement factory workers covered from head to toe with white dust," witnesses said. Authorities said there were no injuries. Dr. Keith Rowley, a geologist monitoring the volcano which exploded with a fury seven weeks ago, said it "may not erupt violently again for some time, but we cannot be positive it won't." Rowley said the steam and dust coming from the crater are normal post-eruption occurrences.

Israeli's sentenced extended

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Shams Badran, Egypt's war minister during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war has had an additional 10 years tacked on to a prison sentence already totalling 66 years, the official Egyptian Middle East News Agency reported. The latest sentence was handed down Sunday by a Cairo court martial that convicted Badran and a wartime aide of order the torture of several former army officers accused of corruption in 1965, the news agency said. The same court had earlier handed down the 66 year term after convicting Badran of similar charges.

Preservation

can be learned

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There's one thing unsuccessful gardeners don't have to worry about. That's what to do with all that ripe produce when the family can't eat another tomato, zucchini, peach or pear. But successful gardeners don't have to worry. They can learn how to handle those huge harvests with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's free 100-page booklet, "Home Food Preservation." To get your copy, just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 664G, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Vegetarian diet
found lacking

Serious malnutrition in infants and toddlers fed strict vegetarian diets was reported by physicians in England, Israel and the U.S.

As described in the medical publication, "MD," the medical group in London treated four infants for severe nutritional problems and rickets, and said that "the disorders were due to parental food faddism which should be regarded as a form of child abuse."

The Israeli group treated four severely malnourished infants of a vegetarian religious group that emigrated from the U.S. The U.S. group found rickets in 4 of 54 children on a vegetarian diet.

Congress to study grounded DC-10s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is beginning to take its own look into what is wrong with the now-grounded DC-10, asking the Federal Aviation Administration to explain its response to the crash that took 275 lives.

In the hearing today, a House subcommittee headed by Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., planned also to look into the process by which the government decided eight years ago that the jet was airworthy.

"I think Burton will express people's feelings about the DC-10, now it's up, now it's down, up-down, up-down," a member of his staff said in advance of the hearing.

Scheduled as an opening witness was Langhorne McCool Bond, who last week became the first government official to ground an entire fleet of jets. Burton long has been at odds with Bond, who was appointed by President Carter.

"He's a disaster," Burton said of Bond last week. "His constant changing of mind about this DC-10, for instance, had endangered lives. This and other evidence shows that he just doesn't know what he is doing."

Another witness expected to be called was Philip A. Hogue, who until Thursday was a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, the agency that investigates airplane accidents.

On Friday, the day after Hogue's three-year term ended, the Airline Passengers Association — an organization of air travelers which sued to ground the DC-10 — announced he was taking over as director of APA's newly created Washington office.

At an NTSB briefing after last month's crash of an American Airlines DC-10 in Chicago, Hogue said he would ground the DC-10s if the choice were his and that he wouldn't fly on the plane until some questions were answered.

It's business as usual for McDonnell Douglas

PARIS (AP) — McDonnell Douglas is conducting business as usual this week at the 33rd Paris Air Show, and company officials say they have not had to defend the grounded DC-10 because of its crash in Chicago.

"The reason for coming to the show is to see our customers, both civil and military, and there has been no change from that," said Geoff Morris, a spokesman for the company.

"On the commercial side, our existing and potential customers all have studied the DC-10 very closely, and we have found we do not have to defend the DC-10. They may ask what is happening, but they are not coming in needing re-assurance."

Other manufacturers expressed sympathy for McDonnell Douglas, saying they believe Federal Aviation Administration chief Langhorne Bond had insufficient justification for grounding the DC-10, and that the company has been made a political football. They said that feeling generally is echoed among the airlines.

"We can see no reason at all for grounding DC-10s," Morris said. "Nothing has pointed to any design defect in the DC-10."

Lockheed spokesman Bill Perreault said he doubted customers would base any decisions on the Chicago crash. He added that Lockheed has sold all its available L-1011s through the middle of 1981 and that the company anticipates selling the remainder of that year's production within the next few weeks.

Lockheed has confidence in its own engine mounting, he said, "but as a prudent measure we have issued to all carriers a set of inspections."

10, and there is especially no reason for grounding Series 30 and Series 40 planes."

"The DC-10 in which 275 people were killed May 25 after it lost an engine and crashed was a Series 10 model. The Federal Aviation Administration withdrew the design certificate from all DC-10s, grounding the 138 planes flown by U.S. airlines and barring those owned by foreign lines from U.S. airports.

"Any cracks found were found in Series 10 planes, none in Series 30 or Series 40," said Morris.

Other manufacturers say McDonnell Douglas' problem with its engine pylons has been a hot topic at the air show, but it does not appear to have disturbed customers or caused any serious re-evaluations in current or future aircraft designs.

Officials of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., whose L-1011 TriStar is a competitor of the DC-10, say they expect to gain nothing commercially from the tragedy.

Lockheed spokesman Bill Perreault said he doubted customers would base any decisions on the Chicago crash. He added that Lockheed has sold all its available L-1011s through the middle of 1981 and that the company anticipates selling the remainder of that year's production within the next few weeks.

Risk of war in Korea will increase if U.S. withdraws its troops: Aspin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The risk of war breaking out between North and South Korea could be increased if the United States goes ahead with plans to withdraw its troops from South Korea, says Rep. Les Aspin.

The Wisconsin Democrat based his prediction on new U.S. intelligence information confirming earlier reports that North Korea has more ground troops, tanks and artillery than South Korea.

Because of that, Aspin said Sunday he believes the pullout of U.S. soldiers from South Korea should be postponed.

In the past, Aspin supported plans for the early withdrawal of the soldiers. But in a letter to President Carter, he said he has changed his mind. He added, however, that the United States should eventually withdraw the troops.

A White House spokesman declined to comment on Aspin's letter but noted Carter has said publicly he is hiding up plans to withdraw all U.S. ground troops by 1982.

Leaders honored at 4-H Roundup

COLLEGE STATION — Dolly Calhoun of Midland and Bud Burney of Andrews were honored at a special luncheon held during the State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University last week.

Both are area 4-H leaders and were named top adult volunteers in District Six of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, 4-H's parent organization.

Mrs. Calhoun, an assistant treasurer at Citizens Savings and Loan Association, is active in the 16 member Cotton Flat 4-H Club. As an adult leader for 10 years, she has advised 4-H'ers competing at the state levels in foods, horses, clothing and method demonstrations.

She has also chaired the Midland County Adult Leaders Association. She is presently chairman of the Adult Leaders Association 4-H Expansion and Review.

Burney, an oil field pump salesman, serves organizational and project leader of the 49 member Andrews county 4-H Livestock Club. As an adult leader, he is the president of the Andrews County Adult Leaders Association.

During the 1979 county stock show, he initiated special fund raising projects that raised $1,500 for the county 4-H fund.

Two area 4-H adult leaders were honored at the State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M last week. Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, left, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, presents a plaque to Dolly Calhoun, Midland County adult leader, while J.L. Hays, Texas 4-H Foundation trustee, looks on.

Carter to reveal health plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will get a chance this week to see what kind of national health plan President Carter has in mind for them.

Carter is expected to disclose details of the plan, which administration sources say would cost about $20 billion annually in new federal spending. The plan would take effect in 1983.

Most of the money would be used to take over and upgrade state Medicaid programs for the poor, said the sources who asked not to be named.

Medicaid, offered in every state but Arizona, is designed to provide medically necessary care to the poor. The federal government now pays 55 percent of the total cost of the program.

In addition to improving Medicaid, the first phase of Carter's plan would require public and private insurance programs giving general protection for catastrophic — or long-term — illnesses, said the sources.

Some benefits for Medicare recipients, such as those covering catastrophic illnesses, also would be upgraded, the sources said. Currently, payments to Medicare beneficiaries are reduced for lengthy hospital stays.

The health plan, as outlined by the sources, falls far short of the comprehensive program Carter called for during his presidential campaign.

The president's plan no doubt will be compared with one proposed earlier this year by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The Kennedy plan, which has the backing of labor groups, would cost $28.6 billion in federal funds and $11.4 billion in payments by private industry and its employees.

All physicians, hospitals and other health-care providers would essentially be required to negotiate their fees in advance under the Kennedy plan.

The plan also would give the government tight control over private insurance companies, requiring them to offer a basic benefit plan to all Americans to assure that doctors, hospitals and other health-care providers would be paid for their services. Insurance premiums for the poor, the elderly and the unemployed would be picked up by the government, under Kennedy's proposal.

Administration officials have labeled the senator's plan as politically unrealistic.

More than 60 blazes being battled

By REYNOLDS R. RAST

Exhausted California firefighters toiled in record 100-degree temperatures as furnace-like winds raged through tinder-dry brushy canyons and whipped up more than 60 weekend fires that devoured at least 70,000 acres.

Selection of Henley jury to continue

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Lawyers resume the cat-and-mouse game of jury selection today in the retrial of Elmer Wayne Henley, accused in six of 27 deaths that were part of a sex-torture spree in the Houston area during the two years before 1973.

Henley was 18 when he told police he shot and killed a 33-year-old electrician, touching off a grisly search that eventually turned up the bodies of the 27 young people slain.

Henley told police he killed Dean Corll after a night of terror during which a teen-age boy and girl were handcuffed to a "torture board" where they were to be sexually abused by Corll.

The shooting of Corll was ruled self-defense after Henley disclosed his relationship with the older man, who would pay youths to attract boys to his Houston Heights home.

Henley led police to the burial sites of the 27 victims.

The Henley-Corll relationship is expected to play a key part in the new trial, ordered after an appeals court said a venue change hearing should have been ordered before the first trial in Houston. Henley was convicted of six of the deaths and given six 99-year prison sentences.

During the first week of jury selection, defense attorney Will Gray asked prospective panelists, "What if he (Henley) told you that he had been dominated and brainwashed by an older man when he was 15 or 16 years old? Would it be mitigating in your decision of punishment?"

The first week of jury selection ended Friday. Lawyers had picked 20 prospective jurors out of 52 veniremen. Attorneys for both sides must agree on 32 prospective jurors, and then each side will be allowed to strike 10 names, leaving a jury of 12.

Arthur Fiedler in hospital after mild heart attack

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler was resting comfortably today in the cardiac care unit at Tufts-New England Medical Center after suffering a mild heart attack, a hospital spokesman said.

Fiedler has not conducted since early May. He collapsed backstage after his last concert six weeks ago and spent several days in the hospital suffering from what was described as exhaustion.

Wilson said the conductor was brought to the hospital complaining of chest pains and examination confirmed that he had suffered what physicians described as "a mild heart attack."

The 84-year-old maestro was in stable condition. A hospital spokesman called the heart attack "mild" but said Fiedler would probably stay in the hospital for several weeks.

Fiedler was stricken at home Saturday night and taken to the hospital by ambulance, said hospital spokesman Henry Wilson.

TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY

"The fires are breaking out so fast we can't keep up with them" said Dave Dowling, senior dispatcher at San Bernardino County's Central Valley Fire District. His fire crews fought more than 20 fires in the Fontana-Rialto area alone Sunday.

Smoldering embers and intense heat necessitated a return to the firelines today for hundreds of men working on blackened hillsides.

The largest blaze — a 57,540-acre conflagration near Fresno, 250 miles north of Los Angeles — was reported under control after roaring through dry grasslands.

Some 300 fresh workers today joined a weary army of firefighters who were battling a major brush blaze in the Otay Mountain area, 17 miles southeast of San Diego near the U.S.-Mexican border.

The fire had scorched 1,500 acres by late Sunday and was "moving rapidly" toward an area where an endangered species of Tecate cypress trees grow, said a state Department of Forestry spokesman.

Raging 150-foot-high flames devoured valuable watershed of Rodriguez Dam, which supplies water for Tijuana, Mexico. If the blaze jumps the international fuel break, it will burn the upper and lower watershed for Otay Reservoir, which supplies water for several San Diego-area cities, the spokeswoman said.

A fire that began near Etiwanda along Interstate 10 just north of Ontario was out of control late Sunday and had scorched at least 150 acres near the Mira Loma Space Center, the spokeswoman said. No structures were reported threatened and the cause of the blaze was unknown.

A 3,016-acre fire on the Morongo Indian Reservation 125 miles east of Los Angeles was also reported 80 percent controlled late Sunday. Two firefighters died fighting the blaze Friday.

Another San Bernardino County fire consumed 10 homes, several cars, garages, chicken coops and other buildings Saturday as it raged across 600 acres in the Fontana area.

Despite the soaring temperatures, firefighters battling a 100-acre blaze in a mountainous area south of Hemet reduced the fire to 50 acres Sunday evening and predicted control by early today.

At Cabazon, near Palm Springs, firefighters remained on the scene of a 325-acre blaze. Northeast of Los Angeles, other workers mopped up a 1,200-acre fire in the Texas Canyon area.

Record heat hits California

By The Associated Press

Furnace-like heat hampered firefighting efforts in California today while a cold front that sent rivers over their banks in the Plains and Southwest this weekend eased into the lower Great Lakes region and south into the Mississippi Delta.

Sunday was the hottest June 10 in Southern California history. The mercury hit 102 at the Los Angeles Civic Center, passing the 1918 mark of 93. Dry desert winds, aided by 100-degree temperatures, took their toll on hundreds of weary firefighters battling the annual summer brush blazes in the badlands around Los Angeles.

The Santa Monica Lifeguard station reported that area beaches attracted more than 400,000 persons Sunday, prompting station spokesman Joe Horne to say, "I'll bet we have a million people at the beaches today."

Meanwhile, residents in Kansas, Indiana and New Mexico were spared further onslaught from the elements. Weekend flooding in the three states sent damage estimates into the millions.

But the rains moved on, and today heavy thunderstorms were reported in Mississippi, Alabama and north up through the Appalachians. Biloxi, Miss., recorded nearly 1 1/2 inches of rain by early today. Tuscaloosa, Ala., received more than one-half inch. Roanoke, Va., received more than an inch Sunday night.

Thunderstorms also pounded Michigan and Ohio with damaging winds. The storms moved into Pennsylvania, where power lines were downed and the roof of a building was damaged in the town of Washington, south of Pittsburgh.

Scattered showers were also reported across the northwestern Gulf of Mexico through the Atlantic Coast states into New England. However, fair skies and mild weather covered over the remainder of the nation.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 45 at Arcata, Calif., to 87 at Yuma, Ariz.

Cubs stay alive with 3-1 win

By TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

Brian Holton, making his first start for San Antonio since reporting from Lodi of the California State League, might want to submit an amendment to the hawking vendor's familiar "You can't tell the players without a scorecard" chant.

Going into the sixth inning, Holton may have wondered who was for him and who was against him. There was legitimate cause for doubt. Midland hadn't yet smote a ball in anger. In fact, they didn't have anything faintly resembling a hit. Yet the righthander who was 5-0 at Lodi was behind 3-1 as the Dodgers had contributed seven errors to his predicament.

That's the way it wound up, even though the Cubs were to spoil the no-hitter with four late-inning safeties and Midland trimmed a game off the Dodgers' Texas League West Division lead to trail by one with two games left in the showdown series at Cubs Stadium, tonight at 7:30 p.m. and again Tuesday.

Lost in the suspense of the no-hit bid, even more significant than Holton's flirtation with fame was the guy who pitched what just could be the Cubs' biggest victory of the first half.

WITH A CUPBOARD bare of starting pitchers, Manager Randy Hundley reached into his bullpen and discovered little-used Jack Ledbetter, who hadn't had a start since April 25.

All the 6-3 righthander from Clearwater, Fla., did was snap the Dodgers' 10-game win streak with the best Cubs Stadium pitching effort by a Midland hurler since Mark Parker blanked Jackson 3-0 on May 23. And before that, there hadn't been another performance that strong since Herman Segelke beat Amarillo 4-1 April 29.

A 12-game winner in 1977 only to be plagued by arm and back miseries in 1978, Ledbetter had pitched only 12 innings since that last start back in April, but responded in the Cubs' hour of need with seven innings of eight hit ball. The lone run allowed was unearned.

When Tack Wilson opened the eighth with a single, Hundley summoned Mike Allen from the bullpen, and the Pennsylvanian nailed down Ledbetter's second win in four decisions with a sterling fifth save.

And while he went hitless, third baseman Mike Turgeon was a major factor in Ledbetter's success, instigating three trouble-avoiding double plays, including a snappy game-ending.

MIDLAND EXPLOITED Dodger miscues for a second-inning run when Eric Grandy grounded to short, but was safe when Gary Weiss' throw pulled John Shoemaker off the bag. Grandy then pilfered second and continued to third on the overthrow and sliding home under a wild throw to the plate on Carlos Lezcano's grounder to third.

San Antonio tied it in the fourth when Weiss singled to center and raced to third as second baseman Dan Rohn bobbed Gary Roenicke's double play grounder. Mark Bradley's shot, deflected off Turgeon's glove at third, got the run home. Turgeon, however, turned a sharp rap by Ed Santos, the hero of the Dodgers' victories in the first two games, into a double play to take the heat off Ledbetter. As it turned out, it was the last serious threat the Dodgers were able to muster.

Midland broke the tie in the home fourth as Grandy walked, stole second and scored on third baseman Mike Zouras' errant throw to first on a Lezcano grounder.

The Cubs third run in the fifth was equally tainted, but the way things have been going, they weren't about to toss it back. Holton whiffed Turgeon to open the inning, but the ball broke into the dirt and rolled to the screen. Brian Rosinski fanned, but Bill Hayes walked and when no one was on second to take Holton's pickoff throw, Turgeon moved to third and scored on Jared Martin's fly to right. It was 3-1, but the blushing Cubs were still looking for a hit. And by now the fans wanted a Cub victory, but they also wanted Holton to get his no-hitter.

Grandy broke the spell in the sixth when Zouras couldn't backhand his sharp rap, a scoring decision that raised a few eyebrows, not to mention a catcall or two. However, Jim Tracy left no question, lining a single to right and Lezcano then followed with a bad-bounce single past the beleaguered Zouras. Unfortunately, both Grandy and Tracy had been erased trying to steal, so all that hitting accomplished nothing.

Jesus Alfaro got the Cubs' other hit in the eighth. CUB CLOUDS—It was a good night for catchers: San Antonio's Dave Richards threw out four Cubs trying to steal and Hayes nailed four larcenous minded Dodgers. Grandy, however, did get two swipes to raise his total to 30 for the year. Grandy's hit also stretched his consecutive game string to 14. Henry Mack, 5-2 and winner of his last three starts, probably will go for the Cubs tonight while Doug Harrison, 3-2, is the Dodgers' probably starter...

FNB takes 1st

Midland First National Bank defeated Three-Way Construction 11-1 and 8-7 to win the USSA Class C Slow Pitch Softball Tournament at Pecos Sunday to qualify for the national tournament at Cincinnati later this summer.

Donna Caponi Young wins LPGA.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Young shuns bogeys to claim LPGA title

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Two-time U.S. Open champion Donna Caponi Young, stringing together 50 bogey-less holes, captured her first Ladies Professional Golf Association championship, felling Nancy Lopez's bid for a fourth straight victory.

Young shot a final round of 2-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 279, 9-under-par over the storm-whipped Nicklaus Golf Center and three strokes better than Jerilyn Britz.

Borg staves off Pecci

PARIS (AP) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg recovered from a third-set assault by surprising Victor Pecci of Paraguay to win the French Open tennis championship 6-3, 6-1, 6-7, 6-4. It was Borg's fourth French Open title in the last six years. Chris Evert Lloyd beat Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-2, 6-0 in the women's final.

In the men's doubles finals, Sandy and Gene Mayer of the United States defeated Phil Dent and Ross Case of Australia, 6-4, 6-4.

In the mixed doubles finals, Turnbull and Bob Hewitt of South Africa defeated Ion Tiriac and Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-3, 2-6, 6-1.

BECKENHAM, England (AP) — Peter Fleming defeated Roscoe Tanner 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 to win the men's singles title in the Beckenham grass court tennis championship. Defending champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia took the women's title by trouncing 16-year-old American Pam Shriver 6-3, 6-2.

Bean storms through Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Andy Bean fired a front-running 5-under-par 67 for a record-setting victory in the Atlanta Golf Classic.

Bean, who set up his triumph with a magnificent 61 including 11 birdies during Saturday's third round, won easily. He was never tied or even threatened over the final 18 holes.

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Jay Sigel staved off a determined challenge from Scott Hoch to win the British Amateur golf championship 3 and 2 in an all American final.

U.S. brothers win at LeMans

LE MANS, France (AP) — American brothers Don and Bill Whittington, with German Klaus Ludwig, scored a triumphant but tension-racked victory in the 47th Le Mans 24-hour road racing classic.

Film star Paul Newman, racing here for the first time at 54, finished second with Dick Barbour of San Diego, Calif., and German Rolf Stommelen in a similar Porsche 935 twin turbo coupe.

Foyt captures Mays 150

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A.J. Foyt took another big step toward an unprecedented seventh U.S. Auto Club driving championship by capturing the Rex Mays 150 mile championship car race.

Foyt, driving a Parnelli-Cosworth, finished 13 seconds ahead of Billy Vukovich, who drove a Watson-Offy.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Bobby Unser broke a three-year victory drought, sweeping both ends of Championship Auto Racing Team-sanctioned Trenton Twin-Indy at Trenton International Speedway.

Unser, whose last victory came in the 1976 Ontario 500, finished 1.5 seconds ahead of his brother, Al Unser, in the first leg of the twin 100-mile races around the 1 1/2-mile oval.

He was six seconds better than runner-up Wally Dallenbach in the second race.

New conference formed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The athletic directors of seven universities have agreed in principle to form a new athletic conference which will highlight college basketball.

The athletic directors who were party to the agreement Sunday were from Detroit, Loyola, Oral Roberts, Evansville, Butler, Oklahoma City and Xavier.

Six of the athletic directors attended the meeting here and Larry Geraciotti, Detroit's athletic director, spoke with the participants by telephone. A spokesman for Detroit said the conference is "close to forming" and that Geraciotti "is one of the motivators behind the conference."

The athletic directors were to recommend to their universities that they join the proposed conference for the coming fall season and were to discuss the subject with their administrations. The universities must make a final decision by Friday.

Astros' Sunday magic works again

NEW YORK (AP) — The almost always on Sunday Houston Astros were for the eleventh time on the sabbath. This time, helped by a strange four-run fourth and three pitchers, they managed to hold off the New York Mets, 5-3.

Craig Reynolds knocked home two key runs after a balk by Mets starter Kevin Kobel gave Houston the go-ahead run.

"So far this season we have been finding a way," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "We have gotten this far because of consistent work by our starters and good relief from our lefty short reliever, Joe Sambito."

Sambito relieved George Throop, 1-0, who had taken over for starter Randy Neimann. When Throop came in there were none out and Mets on first and second as a result of leadoff singles in the third inning by Joel Youngblood and Frank Taveras.

Throop, a right-hander, fanned Lee Mazzilli and forced John Stearns to hit into an inning ending double play.

He gave two unearned runs in the fifth, when Mazzilli doubled home Bruce Boisclair who reached on an error by right fielder Jeff Leonard, and Stearns grounder drove home Taveras who had walked.

Sambito came on in the sixth and pitched the rest of the way for his fifth save. He loaded the bases in the eighth on a single by Steve Henderson, and walks to Trevino and pinch hitter Gil Flores, but he fanned Youngblood with two out to end the threat. "I started coming up and sailing my pitches to the right-handed hitters," said Sambito. "That usually gets me into trouble, but this time it didn't cost us."

A key mistake by Kobel, 2-2, cost heavily. With the bases loaded, and one out in the Houston fourth, Kobel balked home the go-ahead run, breaking a one all tie. Reynolds followed with a two-run single to center field. He then advanced to second on a passed ball by Stearns, and scored on Cesar Cedeño's single to center.

Joe Torre, the Mets manager who warned last week that a shakeup was imminent, admitted he had no present trade prospects. But the Mets are working on more than one deal to shore up their weak pitching staff as the June 15 deadline approaches.

"We are talking all the time," said Torre. "You never know what will materialize."

As for the Astros, leading the NL West, after 12 wins in their last 15 games, Virdon was hoping for more of the consistent frontline pitching which had given them 23 complete games.

"You never know what's going to happen," said Virdon. "But if our bullpen holds up, and we get Cedeño, who has been struggling, back hitting, we could be up there all year. Another player who was struggling, Bob Watson, still is on the bench. If he can come back and hit, this club could be all right in the long haul."

Orioles rally in ninth to defeat Rangers, 5-4

BALTIMORE (AP) — When the count reached 2-2 on Terry Crowley, an idle thought raced through the mind of the Baltimore pinch hitter.

"I wondered who was going to play shortstop in the 10th inning," Crowley recalled after delivering a two-out single on the next pitch which gave the Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Texas Rangers Sunday.

Helped by a throwing error by Texas reliever Jim Kern, the Orioles scored three runs in the ninth inning to win their fifth in a row and give Dennis Martinez, 9-2, his ninth consecutive victory.

"When you've got good players, you can make a lot of moves," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, whose use of three pinch hitters and a pinch runner during the rally would have set up a patchwork infield alignment had Crowley not delivered.

"The greatest thing," Weaver chortled, "was Lee May's bunt. He's probably bunted 10 times in his life, but he put it in a great spot and caused a lot of indecision."

The bunt by the slugger, down the third base line, came after Eddie Murray's double chased starter Jon Matlack and Kern walked Gary Roenicke.

Kern quickly fielded the bunt, wheeled and threw past an uncovered bag as third baseman Buddy Bell also moved toward the ball. Murray scored on the play, pinch runner Al Bumbry reached third and May continued to second.

An intentional walk to Doug DeCinces preceded a double play pinch grounder by Pat Kelly, which tied the score. Another intentional pass to pinch hitter John Lowenstein set the stage for Crowley.

"I take full credit for messing up the bunt," said Kern, who suffered his first loss after posting seven victories and nine saves in relief.

"The bunt was in such a position," Kern said, "that Buddy couldn't stay back and wait for it. But I tried to throw in one motion, and by the time I saw he wasn't at the bag, the ball was out of my hand."

Baltimore's only other run came on solo homers by Benny Ayala in the fourth and sixth innings off Matlack, a former teammate with the New York Mets.

Oscar Gamble homered for the Rangers, who also scored on two sacrifice flies by Al Oliver and a run-scoring single by Pat Putnam which broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth just before Bell lined into a triple play.

With Oliver and Putnam running on the pitch, DeCinces leaped to grab the ball and threw to second baseman Rich Dauer. A relay to Murray at first completed Baltimore's eighth triple play in history.

Martinez, unbeaten since April 18, also was helped by two double plays. He allowed seven hits, but ended John Grubb's 21-game hitting streak, the longest in the major leagues this season.

Jack Ledbetter...wins big one.

Eric Grandy...stretches streak to 14.

Bobby Unser edges Al

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)

Bobby Unser went almost three years between appearances in the winner's circle, but when he finally broke the string, he did it in a big way.

Unser, with 24 previous championship victories to his credit, including a pair of Indianapolis 500 successes, swept both ends of Sunday's Trenton Twin-Indy at Trenton International Speedway.

"I've had a lot of frustrations the last couple of years," the 45-year-old Unser conceded. "I've had some awful good people working with me, but it takes a team to win races, just like it takes a team to win football games. I had good people, but I didn't have a good team."

Unser beat his younger brother, Al, to the finish line by 1 1/2 seconds in the first 100-mile race. Ninety minutes later, he was on his way to a virtual wire-to-wire victory in recording a 6.5-second margin over Wally Dallenbach.

Unser credited his resurgence to the Roger Penske team, one of the most respected in auto racing.

"The car was good, the crew did a fantastic job. I had a pit stop in the first race that I have to thank Roger for. He wanted me to have an unobstructed stop, so I went in earlier than anybody else. When I came out I was somehow in first place. I asked him, 'Where is everybody?' How the heck did you arrange that? That's what I call teamwork," Unser laughed.

"Roger runs an efficient organization," Unser continued, mentioning teammates Al Unser, Gordon Johncock and 1979 Indy winner Rick Mears. "He keeps everyone happy. I can't remember when I've had so much fun racing cars, although I've been losing."

UNSER OVERCAME Johncock on the 45th of 67 laps in the first race and led for 66 of 67 laps in the second race to capture a total of $20,110 in prize money.

Unser is one of the hard-line backers of the recently formed CART organization, and he made no bones he resents long-time competitor A.J. Foyt for sticking with the U.S. Auto Club. Foyt was the winner of the USAC race Sunday in Milwaukee.

"Let's see if he (Foyt) is racing the same kind of races. This is where all the good drivers are. I'm sorry Foyt is over there."

he's a good driver," he said.

USAC announced recently drivers must compete in three designated USAC events during the year to be eligible for next year's Indianapolis 500.

The first comes June 24 at Pocono. CART drivers are contemplating organizing another race at Trenton to display their defiance.

"Not one of us is going to be at Pocono," Unser said. "I don't give a darn about Indy. Everyone agrees there is a conspiracy going to try and put CART out of business."

I'm not making any threats, but we're going to do what we have to do. It will either be a CART race or we won't race."

Griffith's corridor oozes with baseball memorabilia

By WILL GRIMSLEY
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — To reach the office of Calvin Griffith, president and board chairman of the Minnesota Twins baseball team, one is compelled to walk down a corridor lined with photographs of a dozen presidents — starting with bulbous, mustachioed Howard Taft — tossing out the first ball.
A near life-sized portrait of the legendary Walter Johnson hangs to the left of the door that transmits you into a wonderful world of diamond memorabilia — a world the game will never see again.
In a room festooned with souvenirs representing the great and near great of politics, show business and sports, Griffith is proudest of baseball bearing the fading autograph of one Fidel Castro.

It represents a chapter that could have changed the history of the continent.
"Castro was a left-handed pitcher at Havana University," Griffith recalled. "He wrote us at the Washington Senators applying for a job. We had our Latin American scout, Joe Cambria, look at him. Cambria wired us back, 'Forget it.'"
The rebuffed Castro turned revolutionary and became the driving force in the Communist takeover of Cuba. The Washington Senators subsequently moved to Minneapolis. Castro never lost his love for baseball and maintained ties with such transplanted major league stars as Tony Oliva, Camilo Pascual and Pedro Ramos.

"One time after a visit to Cuba, the guys came back with a baseball for me," Griffith said. "It was signed by Castro. This is it."
SOMEWHERE along the line, the U.S. government discovered it had no signature of the Cuban leader.
"The FBI came around, asking some of the players if they had a Castro signature. They didn't, but I did," Griffith said with obvious relish. "The FBI took pictures of it. Now it's a part of the FBI files."
The paunchy, frank-speaking Griffith is a rare throwback to the days when baseball franchises were more than a tax writeoff or a hobby pursued by millionaires with their main wealth invested in other interests.
"This baseball team is all I have —

I have to operate it as a business," he says. "I don't have any shippers, hamburger-empire or movie residuals to fall back on. Our total income amounts to about $8 million a year. Some of these rich clubs, like the Yankees and Angels, pull in $22 million a year."
"They call me conservative. I have to be. I can't throw money away. We must build from a farm system. It's like breeding thoroughbred horses."
In his 18 years at Minnesota, Griffith produced teams that led the league 10 years in attendance, won the pennant in 1965, nearly beat out Boston in 1967, won the division in 1969 and 70 and last year led the division for 40 days.
BORN IN Montreal, Calvin and his sister were adopted by Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, in 1920. Calvin found himself thrust immediately into a baseball atmosphere.

"Bill McKechnie and I were ball boys when Walter Johnson pitched," Griffith said. "He was the fastest pitcher who ever lived. He threw nothing but fast balls. He could pitch for four hours but if he rested for five minutes his arm would stiffen and he would be no good."
Calvin became president and operating officer of the Senators when the elder Griffith died Oct. 27, 1955. It was then that he began rubbing elbows with the men who run the country and show business personalities.
His office reeks with mementoes of Charlton Heston, Cary Grant, presidents and other high government officials.

"The first president I remember throwing out the first ball was Calvin Coolidge. He was very stiff and austere. Dwight Eisenhower loved the game, as did Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson. I have a glass-enclosed score card which I kept at our last opening game in Washington, April 18, 1960. We won 10-1."
"Jack Kennedy came to the game often with Jackie while they were courting. I remember Kennedy always wore a white shirt with long sleeves which were always rolled up. Jackie came in a flaring Mexican skirt. She was still doing photography then and was around the ball park quite often."
"Those were great days."

Sunday's Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — The Kingpin three-year-old at Ruidoso Downs, Fols Native, left his foes in shambles once again while running off a 2 1/2 lengths win over the six furlong opening of the Memorial Day handicap.
With the Aspen Stakes now in his account, Fols Native holds a career record of eight wins from nine starts. So far this season at Ruidoso he's two for two having pulled off the Memorial Day handicap by 3 1/2 lengths last time around.
Sunday's romp was part of a winner's streak of 14, which peaked his 1979 bankroll to $9,800 and his total earnings to $37,500.
Lafayette Princess ridden by Charles Mueller as the 5 to 1 second favorite was a distant fifth in the early going, but made it as the runner-up horse.
My Spanish Lady, a hard fighter who tried to make up ground on the rail at the turn for home, got in third.
Here are the results of Sunday's races at Ruidoso Downs:
First—4 furlongs, Sunny's Shadow 1:30.20, Joe Mel 1:30.30, Cherokee Fern 1:30.70, Joe Mel 1:30.70, 2000.

Brooks wins Texas Amateur with 15-footer

Mark Brooks, a Fort Worth high school senior, drilled home a 15-foot birdie putt, on the second hole of sudden death Sunday to win the 70th annual Texas Amateur Golf Championship. Brooks and Steve Hill, a University of Houston senior, were tied at 292 at the end of regulation play over the par 71, 6,700-yard Wichita Falls Country Club course. Brooks under the knot with a two on the par-three second overtime hole. Finishing behind Brooks and Hill were James Johnson, Dallas, 294; Bob Gibbons, Dallas, the defending champion, 294; David Sann, Dallas, 296; Wiley McIntire of Pampa, 296; Larson, 297; Biff Jackson, Richardson, 297; Ray Barr Jr., Brownsville, 297; and Andrew Magee, Dallas, 297...

Abercrombie, harness racing's Horse of the Year for 1978, continued his comeback this weekend by winning the $110,000 American National Pace for 4-year-olds at Sportsman's Park in Chicago. Abercrombie, who lost his first three starts of 1979, how has won two in a row. Abercrombie moved wide down the backstretch, going the final half in 59.4 seconds to win by 2 1/2 lengths in 1:58.15. Second to Abercrombie was Racy Thought, and Race to Win was third. Abercrombie paid $2.60, $2.60 and $2.40...

Stephen South of Britain, driving a March-BMW, won both heats of the Formula Two race at West Germany's Hockenheimring before a crowd of 20,000 Sunday. Derek Daly of Ireland, also driving a March-BMW, was second in both heats and overall during the eighth race in the world championship series...

The injury-ridden California Angels announced that pitchers Frank Tanana and Chris Knapp would not accompany the team on an eight-game road trip which begins tonight in Cleveland. Tanana, who started Sunday's 10-7 loss to Detroit, will have his left shoulder examined by Dr. Robert Kerlan on Monday. Tanana has been bothered by arm problems since midway through the 1977 season. He allowed six runs in two innings to the Tigers. Knapp, who has pitched only one inning since May 24, will be placed in traction...

Frustrated outfielder Elliot Maddox of the New York Mets is so desperate to play he is willing to take a pay cut if he is traded. Maddox, 30, signed with the Mets before the 1978 season as the team's first significant free agent. He has appeared in only 25 games, many as a defensive replacement or pinch hitter, this season. He is hitting .229 with only two runs batted in. Mets Manager Joe Torre said...

The Oakland A's, who have drawn only 117,000 fans to their 33 home games this season, certainly plan to take care of those half-price discount coupons being offered by airlines. Traveling secretary Bobby Hoffman, the team's traveling secretary, made that clear before the A's left Sunday night on a seven-day road trip. "He'll be picking them up as soon as we're on the plane," relief pitcher Dave Haverlo predicted. The A's, who very seldom use charter flights, had a United flight from Oakland to Detroit Sunday night, and they'll get more coupons later this week on a short hop from Cleveland to Toronto. The coupon offer ends next Sunday...

"Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach won the Byron 'Whizzer' White Award for public service..."

No quickness, strength, Suhey natural linebacker

By RON BRACKEN
Centre, Pa., Daily Times
The rookie was busy working out when the rather ordinary looking person wandered into the weight room of the Dallas Cowboys' facility in Irving, Texas.
"Are you quick?" the intruder wondered.
"No," was the reply.
"Are you strong?" the stranger wanted to know.
"Nope," answered the rookie.
"Well, you'll make a good linebacker then," decided D.D. Lewis, the leathery Cowboy veteran at the position.
Penn State's Paul Suhey laughed when he recalled his meeting with Lewis. It was a bright spot in the cloudy period that came after he wasn't selected in the National Football League draft.
As a free agent, the 6-foot-1, 230-pound Suhey listened to representatives of four or five teams but wasn't satisfied.
"They called and said they were interested but they wanted me to sign right away," he said. "When I wouldn't, they dropped out. I was still talking to Winnie [of the Canadian League], I had school to finish up and I wanted to get this over with so I made up a list of teams I was interested in and took them up to Coach (Joe) Paterno."

"HE CALLED me back and gave me a number to call in Dallas. I called and they said they would be happy to sign me."
"But you know, it's funny. I may not see Dallas again. The Cowboys have their (rookie) training camp in California, so I'll have to make the team to get back to Dallas."
"I know the odds aren't with me, but the way I look at it, this is all a bonus. I got to go to Dallas. I'm going to California. I got some bonus money and this is something I want to do."
"And D.D. Lewis told me that the free agents get a good shot with the Cowboys."
SHEY NEGOTIATED his own contract, following some advice from Bob Mitinger, an attorney who played for Penn State and later the San Diego Chargers.
"Winnipeg was a nice area; they offered me more money than Dallas, and from what I can see the competition up there is great. But I just wanted to try the NFL."
Suhey comes from a Penn State football family. His later father, Steve, was an All-American guard. His older brother, Larry, played fullback, and his younger brother, Matt, is a running back on the current team.
"I don't make it, then I'll probably come back here in the fall, become a graduate assistant and help out with the football team. And I'm still interested in going to medical school," Suhey said.
"But right now, I want to give this a shot."

McRae to take a rest

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Hal McRae, a central figure in Kansas City's domination of the American League West the past three years, has asked to be removed from the lineup and will probably go on the disabled list.
McRae underwent shoulder surgery last December and was hitting only .241 when he last played, in Baltimore last Friday night.
"I finally came to the conclusion it wasn't going to work — not the way it is now," he said Sunday.

Effects of Pope's visit difficult to forecast

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II's triumphal visit to Poland unleashed an outpouring of religious and nationalist fervor impossible for the communist government to ignore. But the long-range effects are difficult to forecast.

The extraordinary coverage given the pope in Poland's government-controlled media is certain to cause repercussions throughout Eastern Europe for some time to come.

The audience in Poland for the pope's words was far, far greater than that ever obtained before by a religious leader in a communist country. There were four reasons for this:

Nearly all religious meetings in communist countries must be held on church property. When Billy Graham was in Poland last October, all his meetings were held in churches, and his biggest crowd was about 6,000. The pope held outdoor Masses at virtually every stop, with the crowds ranging from 300,000 to a million.

Some Soviet Bloc countries, notably East Germany and Hungary, broadcast weekly church services, but generally religious leaders have little or no access to radio or television in communist countries. However, Polish TV gave the pope the prime spot on its evening newscasts and along with the national radio service carried some of his services live.

Religious leaders receive scant coverage in the communist-controlled press. But the pope was on the front page of Poland's papers every day, even in the Communist Party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu.

The pope is a chief of state, the head of the Vatican City State. The Polish government's communist leaders could accord him the same treatment they would give a president or prime minister. Because he also is a Pole, he was treated with special deference.

Catholic delegations from Czechoslovakia, Romania, Yugoslavia and Hungary took part in the celebrations, and the visit was reported in the official media of other Soviet Bloc countries. But the reports were much briefer than the coverage in Poland.

In Yugoslavia, which has some 6 million Roman Catholics, the visit was reported more like it was in Western countries, with the radio and television services broadcasting reports by Tanjug, the official news agency, as a routine matter.

"The Polish Catholic church has emerged strengthened from the visit," Tanjug said. "The visit has also affirmed that there can be no ideological compromise between the church and the party, but that there are areas for cooperation between the state and the church."

The Polish church has no illusions about sweeping away the communist system, but it clearly hopes the visit will pressure the government into granting such concessions as an end to censorship of religious publications, access to radio and television and an end to discrimination against its members.

During his stay in Czestochowa, the pope expressed the church's willingness to normalize relations with the government if the rights of its followers are respected. The Polish government does not appear ready to go that far. But Kazimierz Morawski, a TV commentator, said the fact that the pope was allowed to visit his homeland showed the willingness of "the socialist world" to engage in a dialogue with the church.

For both church and government officials in Poland the chief initial reaction seemed to be pride and perhaps a little relief that the visit had gone smoothly.

"We have shown the world that Poland is a country of dignity, order and tolerance," said Morawski.

Gold hits new record high

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit a record $282.875 an ounce today, pushed up by alarm over oil supplies and high prices. The dollar registered slight gains and losses.

The gold record was set in Zurich, where the metal closed Friday at $280.125, the previous all-time mark.

In London, gold also opened at a record — $282.125 — and within an hour was trading at $282.625, a new high for that bullion market.

The value of gold, traditionally a hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, has skyrocketed in recent months in a major boom fueled by the oil crisis. It was pegged at $193.25 an ounce Nov. 30.

Dealers reported that fears the oil crisis will trigger another inflationary surge in the industrialized economies has been a major spur in sending gold prices up.

The dollar held fairly firm, despite mounting pressures on it. Its only significant dip was in Tokyo, where the markets close before Europe's open.

It closed in Tokyo at 218.825 yen, down from Friday's close of 220.225 yen.

In London, the U.S. currency was virtually unchanged at $2.0614 to the British pound.

Here's how the dollar fared in early trading in other European money markets compared to Friday's closing quotes:

Paris—4.4250 French francs, up from 4.4235.

Frankfurt—1.9105 marks, slightly down from 1.911.

Zurich—1.72875 Swiss francs, slightly down from 1.73.

Milan—853.0 lire, down from 853.50.

Amsterdam—2.0925 guilders, up from 2.0920.

Four killed as drag racer hits spectators

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A modified Camaro racing car, traveling at more than 100 mph, went out of control and crashed into spectators, killing four and injuring six at a drag strip in this Dallas suburb.

Dallas County deputy sheriff David Johnson said the car driven by D.C. Thomas, 35, slammed into a group of about 100 spectators Sunday who were standing in a prohibited zone at the edge of Yello Belly Drag Strip. Thomas suffered lacerations on his arm.

Johnson said the case will be referred to the Dallas grand jury.

Of the six injured, one was listed in serious condition and the others in fair condition.

Stella Taylor defeated by sea for third time

MIAMI (AP) — Bloodied by salt water and pounded by 12-foot waves, Stella Taylor prayed for strength during her third attempt to swim from the Bahamas to Florida.

"Please, dear God, help me through this night," she pleaded.

The 48-year-old marathon swimmer from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., did get through that first night. But once more, the sea finally defeated her.

Her crew delivered the bad news Sunday. After 20 hours, Miss Taylor was only 22 miles west of her starting point at Orange Cay, an uninhabited island in the Bahamas chain that lies about 55 miles off the Florida coast. The swim was stopped.

It was a bitter setback. And Linda Rodriguez of radio station WINZ, on a boat accompanying the swimmer, reported Miss Taylor cried after she was hauled aboard the crew boat.

"We would have to have been in the water another two days and two nights," she explained after docking here late Sunday. "I didn't want to put my body through that agonizing pain."

It took until Christmas to recover from her record-setting attempt last October to accomplish the unprecedented feat, she said.

Her coach, Bob Uenkel, said he didn't understand why Miss Taylor fell behind the 1 1/2 mph pace she hoped to maintain over the course estimated at 80 miles due to currents and winds.

"We had big swells behind us, pushing us east — the direction we wanted to go," he said. "She was swimming well."

"I guess it just wasn't to be," Miss Taylor said. "The Gulf Stream is so fickle there's no knowing where it's going to push you."

After three failures, including a 51-hour attempt in October that set a world endurance record for women, Miss Taylor said she would not try the swim again — "at least not this year."

Debate on draft to open this week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' first major debate this year on military draft legislation is expected to open this week as the Senate begins work on a bill authorizing $40.1 billion in arms purchases and research.

The bill also will provide the first test of President Carter's decision to retain trade sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia. And, it is expected to spark a fight over the MX mobile missile system that Carter has scheduled for full-scale development.

Draft registration is not actually part of the weapons authorization bill. However, a measure to require the sign-up of all men between the ages of 18 and 26 was passed by a Senate Armed Services subcommittee last week and is expected to be offered as an amendment to the weapons bill, perhaps on Tuesday.

Elsewhere in Congress this week: —The House scheduled a vote today on a bill that would create a Cabinet-level education department.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Education Committee, said the bill, similar to legislation already passed by the Senate, would "improve the management of our federal education program." Most education activities are now handled on the federal level by the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

—A new package of energy legislation, with backing from Democratic and Republican congressional leaders, was to be unveiled today by the Senate Energy Committee chairman, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

Jackson, the package's chief sponsor, said Saturday it would contain incentives aimed at boosting U.S. supplies of oil and synthetic fuels, such as those derived from coal.

An aide said it is also designed to increase domestic production of oil and natural gas and would contain both short- and long-range responses to the nation's energy shortage.

—The House Ways and Means Committee plans to complete action this week on a bill imposing a "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry. The tax is designed to take away some of the billions of dollars that will flow to the oil companies because of Carter's decision to phase out price controls on domestic oil.

The bill is Carter's most important piece of energy legislation this year.

—The House is to take final action Tuesday on legislation to implement treaties giving the Panama Canal to Panama.

House leaders are concerned that an amendment may be approved to make Panama — not the United States — pay the full cost of implementing the treaties. The leadership had planned to postpone the vote but scheduled it for Tuesday at the insistence of the White House.

—The Senate is scheduled to take final action sometime this week on a non-binding resolution saying the Senate must concur before a president can terminate a bilateral defense treaty. The measure is a symbolic protest of Carter's decision to sever relations with Taiwan and establish full diplomatic ties with Peking.

Senate debate on the weapons bill is expected to span several days because of arguments over draft registration, the MX and Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

The measure would require Carter to lift the trade sanctions first imposed against Zimbabwe Rhodesia in 1965. Carter said last week the sanctions should be retained on grounds the country's recent elections were neither fair nor free and that Zimbabwe Rhodesia has not made sufficient progress "toward legitimate majority rule."

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., who supports the sanctions, plans to offer an amendment to delete the Zimbabwe Rhodesia language. However, his staff says he doubts he has enough support to win.

The bill authorizes $670 million to develop the MX missile, which the White House said Friday Carter had approved. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., called the program "the biggest single waste of public funds since the Vietnam war," and was expected to offer an amendment to delete the money.

The Armed Services Committee was to meet today on draft registration. Committee approval of the bill would clear the way for floor debate. Under the subcommittee's bill, registration would start on Jan. 2, 1980. It would not apply to women.

Two prisoners killed when city hall burns

BETHANY, Mo. (AP) — Firemen and investigators searched the rubble of the Bethany City Hall after recovering the bodies of two prisoners killed when fire raced through their cells in the unattended building.

The fire broke out late Saturday, destroying the two-story city hall which housed the city offices, jail and museum of Bethany, in northwest Missouri.

City Administrator Mike Roscoe said Sunday a preliminary estimate placed damage to the contents of the second-floor museum at $250,000 and to the building at $200,000.

The victims were identified as Robert Eugene Graham, 43, and Richard Eugene Maxwell, 34. Graham's last known address was Rockford, Ill. Maxwell's Polo, Ill. Police described both men as "drifters."

Harrison County Sheriff Leon Riggs said a deputy picked up the two men about 5:30 p.m. Saturday when they were fighting on an entrance ramp to Interstate 35. The men were turned over to Bethany patrolman Bill Wright.

Wright said the deputy did not know what to do with them and was reluctant to put them in the county jail, a block away.

Wright and the deputy put them in the seldom-used cells to sober up. They told Wright they were just passing through town on their way to find work, possibly in Minnesota or Michigan.

Wright took away matches and cigarettes from both men, though he did allow them to have one smoke, which he extinguished himself. Wright then left the men unattended to go to dinner, a procedure he said has been standard for years.

Wright said he was gone no more than 40 minutes, and when he returned to the building about 7:10 p.m. to fill out a report and release the men, "It was too late."

Ambulance attendants remove the body of one of the four victims killed when a drag racer went out of control and plunged into a row of spectators at a Grand Prairie drag strip Sunday. Four were killed and six others were injured. (AP Laserphoto)
