So far, Basin has no shortages to blame on striking truckers

The Permian Basin thus far remains free of any shortages spawned by the nationwide independent truckers' strike, according to a spot survey of local grocers and retail store owners.

Truckers nationwide have vowed to slow the delivery of goods primarily foodstuffs — in a protest against high diesel prices, low speed limits and load restrictions.

Yet Midland grocers say that deliveries of foodstuffs to area retail outlets have not yet been affected.

Theta Hawkins, a retail buyer and office manager for Martin Distributing Co. Inc., a Midland grocery wholesaler, said that her firm had not felt the effects of the strike despite being 100 percent reliant on trucks for Ms. Hawkins said she hadn't noticed any shortages at this time.

"If it continues, we probably will. We might feel something in a few weeks," she said.

Ms. Hawkins said her firm was expecting delays on some deliveries and some shortages of products if the strike continued.

The wholesale company sells to hospitals, schools and grocers. Ms. Hawkins said she was sympathetic to truckers' demands.

"It may take a strike to lower prices," she said. "One reason consumer prices are so high is because of packaging and transportation Most of the large retailers in the Midland area say that they, too, have yet to experience any ill effects from the strike. Troy Hunt, an assistant manager for Safeway Stores Inc. in Midland, said Safeway warehouses are well-stocked at this time, and that most of the deliveries to warehouses are by train. Hunt said Safeway employs its own truckers who, as union members, are not participating in the strike.

Hunt said the company supplies diesel fuel to its truckers.

Safeway in Midland receives its foods by truck from a warehouse in El

'The warehouse is so big that two trains pull into it and unload everyday," Hunt said. "It covers miles and miles. Some retailers seem almost oblivious to the strike.

Lester Hendrick, a division manager at Furr's in Midland, said he was not worried at this time about the impact of an independent truckers'

"It hasn't affected us yet," Hendricks said. "We handle most of our own transportation.

Meanwhile, Gene McClintick, a store manager for M System on Midland Drive, said that he did not expect any problem with supplies despite

"I haven't noticed any problems so far," he said. "We get a lot of our food from warehouses in San Angelo by truck. The only problem might be with deliveries to the warehouse, but a lot (of those deliveries) come in by

Few counties following lead in rabies control

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

Midland County's recently-enacted rabies vaccination program is operating smoothly in helping to prevent the dreaded disease, an official said late last week. But there aren't many of Texas' 254 counties that have such countywide rabies vaccination ordinances, even though state health officials have said this year the state is experiencing more confirmed cases of the disease than anytime previously. Noting that the Zoonosis Control Division of the Texas Department of Health in Austin has confirmed 484 rabies cases through May, compared with 260 confirmed cases in the same period in 1978, Dr. William R. Bilderback, director of the division, said, "I don't anticipate it slowing down." He attributed his belief to the small number of counties in the state that have effective rabies control programs and to 1978 being a "bumper year in the proliferation of skunks"the state's main rabies-carrying ani-

A BILL PASSED in this year's legislative session giving counties authority to develop rables control programs is expected to be signed into law this week by Gov. Bill Clements, Dr. Bilderback said.

Dr. Bilderback said he believes that law will be a step forward in controlling the disease statewide. He said that at present "you can count on both hands" the number of Texas counties having rabies control pro-

Midland is one of those counties. Midland County Commissioners on April 23 enacted an ordinance which requires the vaccination of dogs and cats outside the Midland city limits.

That action came in the wake of rising concern about this year's incidence of rabies and the fact the county could not legally require a pet owner to quarantine his animal for. observation in the event the pet bit

Neither could city animal control officers go into the county to answer calls concerning possible rabid animals because of possible legal liabilities, Midland Animal Control Officer Dalton Byerly said.

"I feel like it (the ordinance) has helped us considerably," Jewel Smith, chief sanitarian for the Midland City-County Health Department,

Since April, Smith said, the heads of two animals have been sent to Austin's zoonosis laboratory for analysis, but results of those tests have been negative. "We've just been fortunate," Smith

"ALL WE'RE worrying about is when we have a bite," the sanitarian said. When a bite does occur, the animal outside the city limits can now be quarantined and observed for symptoms of the disease. The ability to enforce that ordinance is available now, said Smith. It wasn't before

If an individual pet owner wants an animal quarantined for observance, Smith said, the owner must pay expenses. If the county wants an animal quarantined, it will pay up to a maximum of $40 to have the animal quarantined for 10 days.

Animals are quarantined by private veterinarians, said Smith.

Cost of vaccinations mandated by the county ordinance ranges from $6 to $10, Smith said. He also estimated that total cost of the program to the county for one year will be $400 to

The ordinance doesn't specify a time period for county pet owners to have their pets vaccinated, he added.

To the west, Ector County also has been concerned with this year's outbreak of rabies and currently is contemplating an ordinance similar to Midland County's.

Carter, Brezhnev sign 'sweeping' SALT agreement

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev signed the SALT II treaty today, embraced and kissed each other on both cheeks and promised continuing efforts by their nations to limit the nuclear arms race. Carter termed the treaty a victory

In a joint communique issued later, the two sides committed themselves to continue top-level meetings "on a regular basis.

The two leaders also confirmed in the communique that agreement has been reached on major elements of a treaty banning radiological weapons, and lauded "definite progress" that has been made in negotiations to ban underground nuclear test explosions. The SALT agreement is the most sweeping thus far limiting the nuclear arsenals of the United States and the Soviet Union. It puts ceilings on the numbers of long-range missiles and bombers the two superpowers can deploy through 1985.

The signing ceremony climaxed a three-day summit here between the U.S. and Soviet presidents and almost seven years of negotiations: Carter boarded Air Force One and headed for home just over two hours later to address Congress and the nation on the treaty. An hour later Brezhnev headed back to Moscow aboard his

Then he faced his own microphone and, addressing "fellow citizens of the world," asserted, "We cannot interrupt or endanger" the arms limitation process - a phrase apparently directed at the treaty's foes in the U.S. Senate, which must ratify the

Carter also seemed to have senators in mind when he said:

"I am entrusted with the security of the United States of America. I would never take any action that would jeopardize that sacred trust.'

He said the prospect of an unrestrained arms race "is a challenge to our courage and our creativity.' "If we cannot control our power to presidents shaking hands with each member of both summit delegations. Helping to keep the ceremony close to its half-hour schedule, Carter and Brezhnev signed some of the treaty documents in advance. There were four documents in all: the treaty, a protocol, footnotes and a statement of principles for pressing ahead in the future toward a SALT III agreement.

In a dinner toast Sunday night, Brezhnev also issued a warning to the treaty's foes in the U.S. Senate. He warned that if there was "any attempt to rock this elaborate structure which has been so hard to build, to substitute any of its elements,...the entire structure might then collapse, entailing grave and even dangerous consequences for our relations and for the situation in the world as a

Some senators demand changes in the provisions of the treaty. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Sunday he would ask Carter to renegotiate parts of it.

The 22-page treaty limits each country to the deployment of 2,250 launchers for intercontinental weapons, a reduction from the 2,400 allowed by the SALT I treaty. It also limits to 1,200 the number of ballistic missiles that can be armed with multiple, independently targeted warheads.

The treaty is accompanied by a two-page protocol, expiring at the end of 1981, banning deployment of mobile and cruise missiles and air-to-surface ballistic missiles and limiting each country to the development of only one nev. intercontinental missile.

One issue that will figure in the Senate battle is the absence from the treaty of any limits on the Soviet Backfire bomber, which the Russians claim is not a long-range strategic weapon but which U.S. military men say could reach the United States from the Soviet Union by refueling in

It was learned that Brezhnev personally promised Carter the Soviet government will not produce more than 30 such bombers each year. However, a Soviet statement being handed to Carter only promises limitations on the bomber without setting a production ceiling.

Carter will name ex-IBM head as Soviet ambassador doning a longtime tradition, President Carter is reported preparing to name an ambassador to the Soviet Union who is neither a career diplomat nor an expert on Soviet affairs. A high-ranking State Department official said Sunday that Carter would name Thomas J. Watson Jr., former head of International Business Machines Corp. and the 65-year-old son of IBM's founder, to succeed Ambassador Malcolm Toon.

An old friend of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Watson does not speak Russian and is not a specialist in Soviet affairs. But one U.S. diplomat said the Russians might welcome his appointment.

"They don't want a man there meddling in political affairs," he said. "They want a man who will push for increased trade and so on. Toon, considered a hard-liner by the Russians, has been expected to leave the Moscow post this summer. Watson declined to comment on the report until an official announcement made. He is in Vienna for the U.S.-Soviet summit conference because he is chairman of the president's General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and met casually

Four arrested after officer stops pickup

A sawed-off shotgun and "little less than a pound" of a substance believed to be marijuana led to the arrest of four men and possibly a minor early today, according to police reports.

A police officer who stopped a "suspicious" pickup about 2 a.m. said when he approched the truck he smelled marijuana.

On closer investigation, the officer said, he found a sawed-off shotgun on the floorboard of the truck and a substance believed to be marijuana in several bags. The officer said he stopped the truck because it had been observed by him driving up and down the street several times, had out-of-state tags and because the people in the truck were not known to him!

with top Soviet officials Friday night when the summit delegations attended the opera. Watson was president of IBM from 1952 to 1961 and chairman of the board from 1961 until he suffered a heart attack in 1971. He then became chairman of the board's executive commit-

He lived there for several months in 1942, piloting an Air Force B-24 and flying a U.S. general around the country. He has visited the country several times since then as an IBM representative.

His late brother, Arthur, was a U.S. ambassador to France.

Toon has praised Watson as "a fine man" but has also expressed opposition in the past to the appointment of anyone other than a professional diplomat to the Moscow post.

"We can't let the post fall into the hands of a non-careerist," he has

Radioactive canister recovered by deputies

SNYDER, Texas (AP) - Scurry County deputies have safely recovered a missing canister of radioactive material that apparently fell from a truck.

An unidentified butane driver from Big Spring found the unopened canister lying along the roadside and apparently thought it was an electrical motor, deputies said.

ment, said a committee has been assigned to look into the possibility of such an ordinance.

He said his office already has sent the heads of 17 animals suspected of having rabies to Austin this year. That compares to only 12 heads submitted for all of 1978.

SWEETMAN ATTRIBUTED the increase to the public's awareness. "The public is more aware of this rabies hazard now than it was in the past," Sweetman said.

Ector County has had one positive case of the disease confirmed this year and that was in a dog.

While reports of rabid animals in the Midland-Odessa area haven't been too common this year, concern over the disease in other parts of the state is strong. And the possibility continues to exist for this area, too, officials have said.

Dr. Bilderback said an 8-year-old child died June 1 in Juarez, Mexico, and that death has been attributed to rabies. Another 8-year-old child, bit-ten by a dog May 10 in Piedras Negras, Mexico, is in "serious" condition in a San Antonio hospital.

Although tests have not confirmed he has the disease, officials have said his symptoms are compatible with Juarez is just across the Rio Grande from El Paso and Piedras Negras is just across from Eagle Pass. El Paso and Eagle Pass currently are two hotspots in the state for rabies, Dr. Bilderback said.

HE POINTED OUT Austin's zoonosis laboratory has been so flooded with animal heads sent in for analysis that officials have asked that only the heads of animals such as skunks, dogs and cats be sent.

The lab has been receiving 70 to 80 heads a day, he said, and while it is not refusing any heads, workers cannot analyze quickly all the heads being submitted. People particularly should watch for and avoid contact with any animals out of their normal habitat, Dr. Bilderback said "For example, if you see a skunk running around in broad daylight, that's unusual," he said. Bilderback and local officials also urge having pets vaccinated against the disease.

Animal count program set in Midland

Midland's Department of Animal Control was to embark today on an animal count program - possibly a "first" for a city this size.

Assisting the Department of Animal Control in the program will be the State Department of Health and the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Manpower

"To my knowledge, this is the first enumeration of its kind to be done by a city of this size," said Dalton Byerly, director of Animal Control.

Starting today and continuing for about eight weeks, surveyors provided by CETA will be canvassing the city to determine what expansions the Department of Animal Control should make in its manpower, facilities and educational programs.

Through the program, the Department of Animal Control also hopes to learn how close Midland is to the recommended percentage of rabies vaccinations. According to Byerly, 70 percent of the animals in any given area must be vaccinated against rabies to prevent the disease from becoming widespread.

Information from the survey also will give the department knowledge about the number of stray and owned dogs in the city limits.

According to Byerly, "If a dog is found in a certain neighborhood, Animal Control personnel will be able to look through the records from the enumeration and determine fairly often where that dog lives and then notify the owner or determine if that dog is new to the area.

Once the count of animals in the city limits is completed, the State Department of Health will sort out and publish the results, thereby making the statistics available to other cities, which will be able to estimate needed changes, based on Midland's findings, officials said.

Truckers take protest to White House; More violence reported

Protesting independent truckers took their complaints to the White House and several state capitals today while others blockaded some major fuel refineries and trucks stops. More vandalism against working truckers also was reported.

Fire broke out in a tractor-trailer rig parked at a Nashville, Tenn., truck stop and tires were slashed and air hoses were cut on several others. Stuart Eizenstat, President Carter's domestic affairs assistant, said government officials scheduled

Malaysia denies refugee shootings

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - Prime Minister Hussein Onn today denied that Malaysia had any intention of shooting at arriving Vietnamese refugees as it had threatened to do last week

In a major restatement of government policy, Hussein said stern measures his administration had in mind towards the Vietnamese boat people did not include shooting them. The statement contained in a cable to United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim contradicted the announcement of Malaysian Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad Friday that apart from expelling all the 75,540 boat people, the government would arm itself with the legal power to shoot on sight new arrivals.

Home Minister Ghazali Shafie, who introduced and explained government policy at a news conference tonight, said the cable, in response from an enquiry from Waldheim, is the clearest statement of government policy towards the refugees.

Hussein was to have released the statement himself earlier today but decided against it for reasons that have yet to be disclosed.

The cable said: "As for the people who are already located in our camps, we have granted them temporary stay only in the expectation that they will be resettled elsewhere and that there are definite pledges and programs that this would be so within a reasonable time frame."

Diplomatic observers tonight said the cable, which essentially restated what had been government policy all along, removed the sting from Mahathir's Friday statement, which created an international outcry. Mahathir had said all refugees would be sent out to sea in boats and government forces would "shoot on sight" any refugees trying to land on Malaysian shores. On Sunday, Mahathir accused foreign correspondents of misinterpreting his announcement, but he did not specify how he had been misinterpreted. But after two days of silence, Hussein assured Waldheim: "I wish to state that our measures to prevent further inflow of the boat people do not include shooting them. Malaysia reportedly shipped about 500 refugees out to sea on Sunday. Eyewitnesses said Malaysian authorities herded the refugees, most of them women and children, onto a repaired boat stocked with food, water and fuel and towed it into the South China Sea from the port city of Kota Bharu, 250 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur.

There was no official confirmation of the report and no word today on the fate of the boat. Other unconfirmed reports said as many as 2,500 refugees may have been towed out to

The move appeared to be part of a standing government policy of giving refugees temporary asylum for the time it took them to repair their boats and not the beginning of the mass expulsion of all 75,000 refugees in the country, as announced Friday.

Shafie said 267 boats carrying 40,450 people have been towed out to sea since January.

Foreign Minister Tunku Ahmad Rithauddeen said Malaysia was justified in taking stern measures against the refugees because they posed economic, social, political and security problems to the country.

Water supply in Texas to be subject of workshop at MC

Threats to the water supply in Texas - and how to avoid them - will be the subject of a workshop to be held 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College. The subjects are addressed in two reports developed by the state of Texas as part of a joint agreement with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency The workshop in Midland is one of five which will be held across the state this week. A study assessing current water quality considers problems faced in each of the 15 river basins in the state as well as the eight coastal basins. A second study on water quality management will address strategies for avoiding any existing or potential problems including the establishment

Discrimination to be discussed

ODESSA-Two members of Odessa's Mexican-American community will discuss charges of racial discrimination against local schools in a 7:30 Tuesday night meeting of trustees of the Ector County Independent School District.

The meeting will be in the school administration building at Eighth and Lee streets here.

Last month, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare accused the district of racial segregation, unequal educational opportunity, inferior educational facilities and services and discrimination in discipline procedures and counseling serof goals in water quality management.

The documents were prepared through a cooperative effort of the State Department of Health, Texas Department of Water Resources and Texas Railroad Commission. Among problems dealt with in the agreement between the state and the EPA are proposed regulations for public water supplies, hazardous waste threats and threats from underground injection and pollution. The documents also take up such areas as wastewater treatment plants, disposal of wastes, potential threats to the water supply and threats to health from the environment posed by toxic pollutants, hazardous waste and surface mining of

Following the five workshops, a public hearing relating to the documents will be held in Austin.

Judgeships see some opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's choices to fill a record number of federal judgeships are beginning to run into opposition.

So far this year, the Senate Judiciary Committee has held hearings on Carter's nominations for 18 of 117 newly created district judgeships and four of 35 new circuit judgeships. There has been no substantial controversy about any of them. Today, however, Sen. Gordon J. Humphrey, R-N.H., was to testify against confirmation of Assistant Attorney General Patricia M. Wald to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washing-

Humphrey has criticized Mrs. Wald for a magazine article advocating expanded rights for children. He said he did not want her in a position to make "judicial decisions that would further erode the institution of the family.

Other controversial nominations coming up include:

-Bailey Brown, chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Memphis, Tenn., to a vacancy on the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals. The committee holds a hearing Wednesday. Elaine Jones, head of the Washington office of the NAAGP Legal Defense Fund, said the organization has indicated it is interested in testifying about Brown's civil rights record. He presided over a Memphis area school desegregation case.

-Albert J. Henderson Jr., chief judge of U.S. District Court in Atlanta, and R. Lanier Anderson, a Macon, Ga., attorney. The committee plans a hearing next Monday on their proposed elevation to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. Questions are expected about their statements, in responses to a committee questionnaire, that they belong to private social clubs that exclude blacks.

-Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. The National Rifle Association has been lobbying against Mikva, who is a sponsor of handgun control legislation. Neal Knox, head of the NRA's lobbying arm, the Institute for Legislative Action, has said Mikva would use his judicial post to promote the interests of "ban-the-gun extremist

-Edward C. Reed Jr., a Reno, Nev., lawyer, to be a district judge. Reed has aroused controversy among. Indian groups because of his role as chief counsel for the state in a suit involving Indian fishing rights.

-Charles Winberry, manager of the 1974 senatorial campaign of Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., nominated on Morgan's recommendation to a new district judgeship. Critics charge the appointment is inconsistent with Carter's pledge to name judges on the basis of merit rather than politics. The article by Mrs. Wald that prompted Humphrey's criticism appeared in the fall issue of Human Rights magazine and was an edited version of a speech she had given at the University of Minnesota.

Worshippers watch as leader rushed during Sunday rites

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Hundreds of stunned worshippers watched as a bearded man screaming "I need help" rushed the Rev. Dr. Adrian Rogers while the new leader of the Southern Baptist Convention deli-

Rogers, who remained calm, was not injured in the disturbance, part of which was televised live during the Sunday broadcast of Bellevue Baptist Church services.

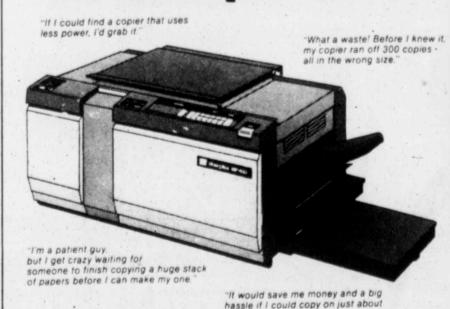

Rogers, 48, talked to the young man as deacons held him down on the stage, and embraced the intruder before he was dragged away.

The minister could not be reached for comment. Choir member Samuel Garland, 52, was one of those who rushed to block the man from Rogers.

"I was going to grab and hold him, but he hit me with the fist right smack in the nose and in a reflex action, I hit him on the jaw and knocked him flat, then several of us subdued him, Garland said. "He was growling like an animal and it looked like he was trying to imitate a werewolf."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Benefits plus risk

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the publicity about the dangers of contraceptive pills, I stopped using them several months ago. However, some of my friends have continued. If the pill is as dangerous as we have been led to believe, why isn't it banned?-Tessie

Dear Tessie: As with many other drugs and medical procedures, the risks associated with use of the pill have to be weighed against its value. Birth control pills do appear to pose some hazard of circulatory disease for long-term users. It is estimated that, for this reason, from 500,000 to one million American women have stopped taking the pill, and the same trend holds true for British women.

On the other hand, Dr. Michael Smith, chief medical officer of the Family Planning Association, says the pill remains the most effective contraceptive method for younger women. For some women, particularly those living in the developing nations of the world, the pill presents a much less serious risk to health than the possibility of an unwanted pregnancy and birth.

The World Health Organization reports that 80million women in 150 nations continue to use the pill, and its use is increasing. This figure comprises approximately one of every 12 women of childbearing age.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Both my father and grandfather suffered from ulcers. Is this just a coincidence, and is there any way I can avoid following in their footsteps? - Mr. K.G.

Dear Mr. G.: Recent research concerning the cause of ulcers appears to confirm theories about the involvement of a hereditary component. While the evidence is still tentative, the New England Journal of Medicine recently reported a link between heredity and peptic ulcers. Specifically, people with high levels of pepsinogen in their blood are said to be five times as likely to develop an ulcer as other

These findings stemmed from a study of two large families with histories of duodenal ulcers. Researchers discovered that 40 percent of the subjects with high levels of pensinogen had ulcers, but none of the other subjects developed the disease. The value of this study to those with a family history of ulcers is that the fimdings may emable physicians to identify people who are predisposed to ulcers and, by controlling emvironmental factors, prevent their development. It should be understoodassuming heredity is a factor-that what is inherited is not an ulcer, but a predisposition to one, and that some environmental factor is required to trigger it. Proper diet and avoidance of stress to the extent possible are the kinds of steps a person may take to negate a hereditary tendency.

Customer wins battle on hot dog price hike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Ron Gordon, a Don Quixote against the windmill of inflation for nearly a year, is a happy man — hot dog prices at Candlestick Park are going back down to 75 cents.

It is only a nickel drop, but for 11 months Gordon has been telling anyone who would listen that every nickel counts, especially if you are Stevens California Enterprises, hot dog vender at the home baseball field for the San Francisco Giants.

On Thursday, he finally persuaded the San Francisco Park and Recreation Board to roll back the nickel surcharge it allowed Stevens to get for its hot dogs starting last July.

"I can't believe it took this long," an elated Gordon said after a unanimous vote by the board. "A friend of mine's wife was pregnant when this began and now they have a 10-month-old baby.

The long fight began when the board granted Stevens' request for a nickel increase on vended hot dogs and beer to pay for equipment and labor necessary to wrap the dogs in paper, as ordered by the state health code.

When Gordon saw a newspaper story about the surcharge, he reached for a pencil and paper. He says a quick tally showed that Stevens could make more than $60,000 over its costs with the extra

Initially rebuffed by the board, the 33-year-old Redwood City biology teacher took his case to the news media. He made the local papers, local TV, the Wall Street Journal, Sports Illustrated and CBS, He wrote to Stevens, the Giants, the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability and even President Carter himself.

In all, Gordon figures his one-man crusade cost him nearly $1,500 - and that he will have to eat 30,000 hot dogs at the ballpark to make up for it. "I'm a Dodger fan," Gordon admits, "and I only come out to Candlestick a couple or three times a year. But I figure that the money I spent was an investment in justice.

After a fast start some six years ago, Eurocommunism has fallen on relatively hard times, which should be pleasing to the Free

Parliamentary elections in Italy, in which that country's Communist party suffered sharp reverses, was only the latest of a series of defeats for the official Marxist-Leninist parties throughout Western Europe. Since 1976, voters in France, Portugal, Spain and Italy have turned back determined Communist campaigns for power.

In the case of Italy, the ruling Christian Democrats outpolled the Communists 38 percent to 30 percent. In 1976, the Italian Communist party came within a whisker of sharing power with the Christian Democrats by piling up almost 35 percent of the popular Italy's Communists remain a potent political force and the party controls municipal government in most of Italy's larger cities. But for now there is virtually no chance that the Christian Democrats will be forced to yield cabinet portfolios to Communists in any new government.

In France and Italy, the disciplined Communists have demonstrated a certain efficiency in running local governments, which is why voters fed up with corrupt bureaucracies have been willing to vote for the left in municipal elections.

Yet, nowhere in Western Europe have the Communists been able to persuade a majority that even "democratic" Marxist-Leninism provides a rational model for economic development. Nor have Eurocommunists succeeded in convincing sufficient numbers of voters that Marxist rule in Western Europe would be possible without the totalitarian trappings which attend it everywhere else.

And a healthy majority of Western Europeans yet perceive a need for collective security against the threat from the Soviet Union.

Taken together with the recent Conservative party victory in Britain, the recent elections in Italy offer new hope that the NATO alliance can be strengthened in the interest of that collective security.

CHARLEY REESE Proposals of HEW crew enough to horrify one

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - Let's explore some ways to reduce the cost of health

We could lobby for laws which would allow mercy killings. Old people consume a large portion of health care costs. After all, the older we get the more we tend to wear out, just like an automobile. If we could junk peo-ple like we do cars, we could save a lot of money on repairs.

We could also encourage abortion. Babies also tend to require more medical care than youth and adults; especially babies with minor defects (the Federal Trade Commission has been unsuccessful in persuading God to issue warranties). We could, of course, combine the two concepts and eliminate not only old people and unwanted babies, but also cripples and mentally retarded people. This would save a lot of money.

Still another way to reduce the cost of health care is to ration available services. It's rather silly to allow patients and their doctors to decide if some expensive procedure like open heart surgery should be performed. After all, they have a selfish interest in the decision. No, such decisions should take into account society's needs. Criteria could be established by HEW to determine which people could qualify for such services. It is foolish to waste a very expensive procedure or treatment on a person past his prime or on a person whose social value is minimal. A committee should be established to review requests for expensive medical procedures and make such decisions on the basis of cost-benefit ratios.

Does the above horrify you? It does me, but I am not just pulling your leg for the fun of it. According to Sen. Jesse Helms, R.-N.C., when HEW Czar Joe Califano asked his underlings for recommendations on ways to reduce health care costs, they came up with: rationing, abortion, and euthanesia.

And if government further intrudes into the private health care system that is exactly what you will get, because there is no way on God's green earth for the federal government to: (1) pay the bill for the present standards of health care provided by the private sector, or (2) provide those same standards at less cost.

The Kennedy plan and the Carter-Califano plan will both ultimately result in the government putting itself into the position of: (1) making decisions now made by individuals, their doctors and their families; (2) deciding who in effect will live and who will die, and (3) adding tremendously to the tax burden of the healthy.

You should think about this problem and not be conned by the bureaucrats and the politicians or by your own wishful thinking. There is no such thing as a free lunch — or a free aspirin. There is no such thing as a government you can trust. In 1966, the stalwart statesmen who proposed and passed the Medicaid program insisted it would cost only $200 million a year. It is now 13 years later and President Carter has just asked for $12.5 billion to pay for Medicaid. He is asking $32 billion to finance Medicare. That's $44.5 billion a year to provide care for the poor and the elderly. What do you think it will cost 10 years from now to include eyeryone in between.

Furthermore, there is no such thing as "the nation's health care bill." The nation is not a living entity. "Nation" is only verbal shorthand for designating what exists in reality - 220 million individuals.

By far, a majority never need the more expensive forms of care and treatment, but those who do at least have the right to make the decision themselves.

You can naturally find examples of individuals struck by devastating illness and injuries who are bankrupted. There is no system, public or private, or a combination, that will totally eliminate such examples. People die in England for lack of services and treatment even though they have a total national health insurance program.

What the demagogues fail to point out, when they drag out examples of catastrophic illnesses, is that quite often it is not a case of health services being denied, but of health services being provided and then not paid

One sensible approach to handling catastrophic illnesses would be to provide a tax credit to doctors and institutions for bad debts.

At any rate, it's time we realized what our forefathers knew for a fact: government is a dangerous, potentially destructive force and not a fairy godmother who can kiss our "boo boos" and make them all well.

WASHINGTON - The catchword in the debate over the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty is "verification." Will we be able to tell if the Russians are cheating?

An equally important word - but one that is rarely if ever mentioned by supporters or opponents of SALT - is 'enforcement." What will we do if we catch the Russians cheating?

A law that's not enforced is no law at all. Drivers will speed at will if police never make arrests. But there is no impartial traffic cop to flag down violators of SALT II. Each side must be its own enforcer.

As a practical matter, the enforcement options are limited and tricky. We can complain, of course, but the Soviets have a long track record of shrugging off complaints. We can go to the brink of nuclear war, as we did in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. But the implications of such saber-rattling in the nuclear age are grotesque.

Provisions of both SALT I and II call for disagreements to be settled by the Standing Consultative Commission. The history of SALT I, however, suggests that the SCC carries about as much weight with the Russians as a Little League umpire.

Top-secret documents and intelligence sources reveal a few Soviet tricks that President Carter will not disclose to the Congress when he delivers his address on the SALT talks. The Soviets "drove trucks through the loopholes" of the first

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The "don't-get-tough" policy came right from the top. A secret Defense Department memo in 1976, titled "SALT Contingency Planning," advised against flexing too much muscle on "ambiguous" or "minor" violations of SALT.

"In the event Soviet actions were ambiguous, then it would seem that the U.S. response would be to keep our options open in case of future abrogation and conduct those activities which are consistent with the letter of the agreement," the memo states. "This is basically our current

In other words, the Soviets were allowed to cheat a little, but we played by the rules. It didn't take the Russians long to catch onto this pussycat policy, and they cheated their way blithely through the first arms treaty.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger approved of this appeasement, and attempted to rationalize it in the secret National Security Decision Memorandum 283 to the Central Intelligence Agency and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"The U.S. Commissioner (SCC) should inform his counterpart that the U.S. Government is not accusing or implying that the USSR is in violation with existing SALT agreements," Kissinger wrote. "(The issues) involve questions concerning compliance and related situations we consider ambiguous. The purpose of raising these issues is to resolve these questions, and, as necessary, to bring about corrective action.

Kissinger suggested that if the Russians were unresponsive, we might offer to back down on some of our own "ambiguous" interpretations - in effect, proffer the Soviets a bribe to obtain compliance.

The only alternative to complaint or confrontation would be to disavow the treaty altogether. Kissinger would never have done that - he and President Nixon had gotten too much political mileage out of SALT I.

For the same reason, President Carter is unlikely to scuttle SALT II. one of the few concrete achievements of his administration. And that's why you will hear little about enforcement, the insoluble dilemma of SALT, when Carter addresses Congress on the treaty.

BAYHING TIME: Big Business lobbyists are engaged in a quiet but determined effort to sneak through Congress a controversial amendment that would save corporations many millions of dollars in price-fixing

Sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., as an addition to an important anti-trust bill, the amendment ostensibly protects small businesses from potentially ruinous damages in multimillion-dollar price-fixing suits.

But the real beneficiaries, our Capitol Hill sources say, would be the nation's corporate giants, whose price fixing picks the consumer's pockets on a vast scale. By limiting corporate liability, the Bayh amendment would encourage Big Business to drag price-fixing cases out indefinitely. This practice lines the pockets of the big-name law firms representing the corporate giants, but adds millions to the costs of punishing the guilty in price-fixing conspiracies. Under the current system, the victims can often obtain relatively quick settlements - and thus stop the gouging - by using the threat of increasing damage awards if the case Lobbying for the amendment, according to our sources, has been spearheaded by Time Inc., whose subsidiary, Inland Container Corp., is based in Bayh's home state. Inland has a price-fixing suit pending. Heavy hitters from the "Fortune 500" list have been twisting arms in Capitol cloakrooms on behalf of the little-publicized amendment, which one knowledgeable source said would 'completely screw up settlements in antitrust cases."

The Big Business amendment may endanger the entire antitrust legislation. Several senators may vote against the bill if the cushion for corporate fatcats is included.

At one point in the tapes, Estes refers to Horton as "a complete crook."

Estes was convicted in 1962 of engineering a scheme that defrauded investors through mortgages on non-existant anhydrous ammonia fertilizer tanks. Under the unusual terms of his parole, he was prohibited from self-employment or engaging in promotional activities.

Horton's attorney, Billy Ravkin, refers to Estes as a teller of "can you top this?" lies. Ravkin says his client was just a wealthy, good-hearted Texas oil man victimized by Estes.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government put off for at least a year a decision on whether to tighten restrictions on Darvon and other drugs made from the chemical propoxyphene

But Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. urged people never to use the potentially deadly drug "unless there is really no alternative, and then only

Califano said he wants more research on abuse of the widely prescribed drug, marketed primarily by Eli Lilly and Co., and the "extent of physical and psychological dependence which may result from the use of Darvon" before he decides whether to restrict its sale. Ralph Nader's health research group had asked Califano last November to ban the drug as an imminent hazard to health, or at least recommend that it be put in a special category, known as Schedule II, reserved for drugs that have legitimate medical uses but are prone to abuse and can only be produced in limited amounts and prescribed in person by physicians.

After hearing information deve-loped by a Food and Drug Administration advisory committee of outside experts, and data submitted by Lilly and Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of Nader's health research group, Califano said:

"This review indicates that Darvon may well satisfy certain of the legal criteria in the Controlled Substances Act for inclusion in Schedule II, and that it has chemical properties more similar to the drugs in Schedule II than to those in Schedule IV (its present classification as a substance with little potential for abuse or addic-

"I have concluded, however, that. we need more research on Darvon to make a reasoned and legally defensible judgement on rescheduling.'

Califano said he has asked Surgeon General Julius Richmond to coordinate more studies and report back within a year - or longer, if Richmond decides the work will take more time to complete.

In the meantime, the secretary said

Protect eyes with good sunglasses

WASHINGTON (AP) - Even if you can't find the gas to go to the beach you can still find plenty of sunshine in your backyard, and that means you probably need sunglasses.

The American Optometric Association, the American Association of Ophthalmology and the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness are unanimous in recommending purchase of good glasses to protect your

The experts recommend neutral gray or smoke colored lenses because these cause the least distortion and allow good color perception. This tint is difficult to produce, however, and is generally available only in the better quality glasses.

Green or brown lenses are also a good choice, but the experts suggest avoiding blue ones, which can cause problems in color perception, especially at traffic lights.

While rose, orange, yellow and similar colors have fashion appeal, they are unsuitable for sunglasses because of color interference.

Good glasses should screen out 75 to 90 percent of the light and a good test is to put them on and look in a mirror. If you can see your eyes, the glasses aren't dark enough.

This test won't work with the newer sun-sensitive glasses that change tint however, because they are light indoors, only darkening when exposed to sunlight

If you buy these lenses remember, they need to be broken in by being subjected to a number of lightening and darkening cycles. Also, your car windshield can interfere with the lightening-darkening process and these lenses may not reach their maximum darkess in a car.

If glare bothers you, polarizing or mirror coated lenses may be the answer. Polarizing lenses, however, also allow you to see the stress lines in some automobile glass, and this may be distracting.

The mirror coated glasses are intended primarily for extreme glare situations and may be too dark for general wear by some people, the eye doctors warn.

A good test for non-prescription lenses is to hold them at half an arms length and look through them at an object with strong vertical or horizontal lines, such as a door or window frame. Then move the glasses up, down and sideways and see if the lines

Physicians taught bedside manner

NEW YORK, NY - "Courses to improve bedside manner are being taught to medical students," according to an item in "Modern Medicine." A California psychiatrist has instituted a course at the University of California at San Francisco to orient the students to the human side of practicing medicine.

"Students will learn how the appropriate approach, attitude and bedside manner can accelerate healing." The psychiatrist, Martin R. Lipp, MD, says the course is designed to help future doctors deal with the complexity of their own emotions including the anger, frustration and depression often experienced when treating a difficult patient.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

ROME (AP) — There's something about a tourist bus, winding its way among the castles and palaces of far away places or past the ruins of past civilizations, that makes me act out my Walter Mitty dreams.

Somewhere in the back of my mind an instant replay camera begins making that whirling, purring sound that home movie cameras make, and the long suppressed fantasies come trippingly to the tongue.

It's not that I long to be someone else, but I long to be from somewhere else. Just for this moment in time or really out of time, since the bus already is carrying me into another world, I want to create a different geographical background for myself.

THIS HARMLESS hallucinating takes over my normal thinking process the moment the tour guide gets on the microphone up there in the front seat behind the driver and asks where everyone is from.

"Macon, Georgia." "Texas: Lubbock." "We're from Uniontown, Pennsylvania; it's near Pittsburgh.' "Denver the mile high city." "Larchmont, New York.'

All around me, the road map of America is unfolding. Since no one aboard knows me. I unfold with it.

The man across the aisle is from Brooklyn, which still gets a laugh. The couple in front of me are originally from Scituate, Massachusetts, but they just retired to Hilton Head, South

NOW IT IS my turn.

"Whitehorse, Canada," I announce matter-of-factly. "It's in the Yukon, you know." And then I add modestly, "We have a dry goods store there."

I never try to pass myself off as an arctic explorer or a fur trapper or a bush pilot or even an oil driller working the North Slope. Somehow a humdrum occupation adds to the fascination of my exotically remote home-

I have never been in Whitehorse, Canada. I know Robert W. Service, the Klondike Kipling, worked as a bank clerk there, stamping people's pass books while dreaming up "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," "The Cre-mation of Sam McGee" and other frosty classics.

The dull routine in the teller's cage didn't detract from his image as a rugged rhymster laughing at the worst nature had to throw at him. My imaginary dry goods store seems to have the same effect on people

"MUST SELL A LOT of long-Johns up there?" someone is sure to sug-

"Yes," I chuckle appreciatively, "you could say we have a handle on the long handle business." Then I tell them that actually this was a pretty mild winter by our standards: "Only got to 40 below once, and that was on the day before Christmas Eve." I'm an instant celebrity by virtue of the postal guide. The loud mouth from the mile high city wishes he was on another bus.

I suppose one of these years going down the Rhine or through Death Valley or along Mount Rushmore, I'll run into a bank teller or maybe even a dry goods dealer from Whitehorse. Then I'll have to get out of town in a hurry and move back to Dry Prong, Louisiana, which is where we used to be from before Whitehorse. We had a small insurance business there. Before that, we lived on North Uist, in the Outer Hebrides, where my conglomerate bosses had sent me to revise the bookkeeping procedures of a small fish glue factory the firm had came to play a different role and I couldn't resist. A photographer and I were checking into Nof Ginosar, a kibbutz on Lake Tiberias that operates a well appointed tourist hotel. The registration form asked the guest's occupation.

"Gynecologist," I put down, figuring my silver locks and furrowed brow radiated a professional aura. Sure enough, that evening I got a phone call from our London editor and heard myself paged on the loudspeaker in the dining hall: " "Call for Dr. Mulligan." The other diners eyed me with respect as I made my way to the phone booth. Next morning, checking out, the photographer got a 20 percent discount on his bill, as required by law for all journalists. We gynos had to pay the full freight. Role changing brings other unexpected problems, which is part of the challenge. To get into Cambodia during the Vietnam War, journalists were required to chose a new occupation. The Australian Embassy in Saigon, which handled consular affairs for the Sihanouk government, could issue visas to anyone except media people, who were denied entry. So we all became bankers, anthropologists, tool makers, organ grinders or whatever came to mind. One day, to be different, an NBC friend put down "air-conditioning engineer.

HE SHOWED ME the visa entry as we handed in our passports to the desk clerk at the old Royale Hotel in Phnom Phen. Next morning, about 4 a.m., he received an urgent call from the hotel's night manager:

Way, way out in far-away places 'Diana' again graces Garden

NEW YORK (AP) -The city has a new but once-controversial treasure on view this summer, recapturing a page of its history.

As part of its centennial celebration, Madison Square Garden has put on display in its Mall a 13-foot-high bronze duplicate of the statue of. Diana that used to grace the tower of a former Madison Square Gar-

A nude, Diana caused considerable controversy when she first appeared in 1893. One publication of the time, the New York Mercury, complained that because of Diana, "elderly gentlemen, Delmonico agents, Casino Johnnies and every other variety of local dude linger in listless idleness."

But the city came to love the statue, the work of sculptor Augustus

Saint-Gaudens. By the time it was sent in 1932 to the Museum of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, where the original still remains, the New York World lamented:

"Diana is going into exile. But she's in exile no longer. The statue on view now was loaned by Peter White, Stanford White's grandson.

The Garden is having its own statue made, and when it is finished White's will be returned and the new statue installed as a permanent part of Madison Square Garden.

Khomeini unveils constitution based on 'spirit of Islam'

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime unveiled a draft constitution today for Iran stating that "all political, social and economic affairs will be based on the draft for one month before it is turned over to an elected 75-member assembly that can amend it before approving the draft. Then it will go back to the public for a yes-or-no vote in a referendum.

The new constitution retains a provision of the 1906 constitution authorizing a Council of Guardians of the Constitution composed of five Moslem clergymen and six legal experts empowered to nullify laws passed by Parliament if they conflict with Islamic precepts.

The council, to be appointed by Parliament, was never organized during the monarchy. The clergymen would be appointed from a list submitted by the country's religious leaders, while the legal experts would include three professors of law and three judges of the Supreme Court.

The draft says the courts will administer justice on the basis of "Islamic regulations." Political parties will be allowed to operate "provided they do not violate the independence, sovereignty, national unity and principles of the Islamic republic.

The press will be barred from "publishing opinions and material contrary to public morals and insult-

Trial gives glimpse of 'justice' in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The trial of two members of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's secret police is giving foreign observers a good look at the Islamic revolutionary justice of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime

Courtroom spectators say they have little doubt that Bahman Naderipour, a 34-year-old senior SAVAK agent, and Fereidun Tavangar; a 25-yearold reputed to be one of the police agency's most feared torturers, will be sentenced to death by a fir-Naderipour is charged with nine murders; Tavangar, with several forms of brutal torture. The trial opened Thursday in the Qasr Prison mosque and is expected to continue for several more days. There are no defense attorneys, only a three-member panel of judges consisting of a turbaned Moslem lergyman and two civilians. One of the judges also functions as the prosecutor, reading out the charges.

The sessions begin with the recitation of verses from the Koran and shouts from spectators - and the accused - of "Allah akhbar" - God is great. The verses from the Koran, the Moslem holy book, speak of retribution against those who "war against God and his emissaries," a common charge in the death sentences given 279 persons since the overthrow of the shah in mid-February. Most of them were soldiers and members of SAVAK, the shah's hated secret police.

Men and women spectators sit separately in the courtroom on folding chairs. Most of the women, including the mother of an anti-shah activist allegedly slain by one of the defendants, huddled in black 'chadur' veils. Poster pictures of SAVAK victims are on the walls.

Birds sang from beneath the echoing, ornately tiled ceiling and television lights blazed as the two lanky defendants, dressed in pale shirts and dungarees, were led into the courtroom an hour and a half behind schedule. They were greeted by murmurs and a few hisses from 300 spectators.

Naderipour appeared calm, even cheerful. The bearded Tavangari, reputedly a master at torture with broken bottles and blows of sharp-pointed shoes, sat hunched and gloomy, rarely looking up.

In two hours of testimony, Naderipour read part of a 600-page confession he had prepared on his SAVAK activities. He recalled in particular being ordered to kill two "martyrs" — presumably anti-shah activists — with a machine gun.

Earlier press leaks of the constitution have already touched off considerable public debate, with liberals and leftists objecting to the 75-member assembly. They demand instead the election of a 450-member constituent assembly to make any changes and approve the text.

Hart's attorney will defend Stafford

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The lawyer who won an innocent verdict for the late Gene Leroy Hart on charges of murdering three Girl Scouts will represent mass murder suspect Roger Dale Stafford, Stafford's brother-in-law said.

Garvin Isaacs "will definitely be his (Stafford's). attorney," Roy Denning said in a telephone interview Sunday from his home in the Chicago suburb of North Lake, Ill.

Isaacs could not be reached for comment. Stafford is charged with the murder of one of six Oklahoma City steakhouse employees found shot to death in a walk-in restaurant freezer on July 16, 1978. The mass murder was the worst in Oklahoma history.

The 27-year-old Alabama drifter also is labeled by authorities as the prime suspect in the June 1978 murders of three members of a San Antonio family whose bodies were found along Interstate 35 near Pur-

Evidence examined

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - Engineers for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. are poring over evidence which they hope will help determine the cause of two leaks in the trans-Alaska oil pipeline. Cracks in "wrinkled" sections at both ends of the 800-mile, $7.7 billion pipeline caused two oil spills in less than a week. What caused the wrinkles has not been determined.

The latest spill was found Friday by an Alyeska surveillance pilot near Pump Station 12, 65 miles north of the line's Valdez terminal The spill was found shortly after the Interior Department announced it planned to investigate the line due to an earlier leak which occured in the Brooks Range

The latest leak, a three-inch hairline crack, was clamped by company workers Saturday, said Alyeska's John Ratterman. However, about 300 barrels of oil escaped through the crack before it was repaired.

The flow of oil was not stopped while the Pump Station 12 crack received its temporary repairs. Ratterman said stopping the flow would have increased the pressure and the amount of oil

The Brooks Range spill was located June 10, 160 miles south of the oil-rich Prudhoe Bay field. A five-crack in a buckled section of pipe was determined to be the cause of the spill. Alyeska said an estimated 1,- 500 barrels of crude seeped out at Atigun Pass. But the state Department of Environmental Conservation said the estimate is about 2,400 barrels. The crack was temporarily repaired, and oil began flowing 64 hours later Both wrinkles were found in buried sections of the line's 48-inch steel pipe. Ratterman said engineers were at Atigun Pass, Pump Station 12 and Anchorage searching for the answers to the cause of the wrinkles.

"We don't know if the problems are construction related or not," he said. "They may be." Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond told a group of Alaska editors and publishers Saturday in Girdwood, Alaska, that both cracks appear to be due to a design problem.

Spill closes NC beaches

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) -Beaches along scenic Nags Head were closed today as crews worked to clean up an oil spill on the Outer The spill last week left balls of tar-like oil scattered on beaches from the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse at Buxton to Duck, north of Kitty Hawk. 6The source of the oil and its volume has not been determined, but the Coast Guard said it believed the oil came from a passing ship cleaning its Guard officials said Sunday the Jennette and Jockey's Ridge beaches would be closed today so the crews could work unimpeded. About 20 miles of the 50-mile spill was cleaned by late Saturday, and beaches near the lighthouse were reopened Sun-

By Sunday, some 6,100 bags had been filled with the oily sand, a Coast Guard spokesman said. "I think all the local stores are sold out of brooms," said Chuck Kern.

Kern said he could not estimate how long the cleanup operation would take. He said it would be necessary to cover the strand from one end to the other to prevent the spread of any unremoved oil waste by tide or wave

"The workers are going to check our all areas, because tidal action could move it somewhere else," said No damage to marine or wildlife was reported.

Hot months ahead for oil

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. oil industry, considered by some the villain in the gasoline shortage, may be in for a long hot summer on Capitol Congressional liberals want to broaden their fight for a tough "windfall profits" tax on deregulated oil into an assault on the industry's major tax breaks. The push to change the oil tax structure has been fueled by the long lines at gasoline stations. Work on the "windfall profits" tax is expected to be wrapped up Tuesday in the House Ways and Means Com-

President Carter proposed the tax on excess profits the oil companies make as a result of his decision to phase out price controls on domestically produced crude oil.

Price of gas could top $1 level by Labor Day

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - The average price of a gallon of gasoline could top $1 nationally by Labor Day, months before the government had predicted gas prices would hit that level, according to a leading gasoline industry newsletter.

"Barring an easing of gasoline supplies to a degree not now in prospect, national average retail prices on some gasoline grades - starting with premiums and then going to regular unleaded - should have no trouble at all, (this summer), hitting a dollar, according to the current issue of the Los Angeles-based Lundberg Letter.

The newsletter notes that gas prices have risen about 18 cents since the beginning of the year, almost 4 cents a month. At that rate, the current average price of 86.6 cents a gallon would increase to $1 by October.

Should the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries decide at its meeting in Geneva next week to approve a large increase in the price of crude oil — as many analysts are predicting - that timetable could be

Rationing to make debut in Northeast

By The Associated Press

The odd-even system of gasoline sales born more than a month ago in California makes its debut at midnight on one of the major highways in the Northeast, where getting gas evokes memories of the crunch Californians hope to forget.

'Even date, even plate," said Earl McGregor, a spokesman for New Jersey's 173-mile Garden State Parkway, where gas sales are already limited to State highway officials said they were using emergency powers to impose the system to try to prevent a recurrence of the long lines that developed over the weekend. Some cars ran out of gasoline while waiting in lines of up to 150 cars along the parkway on Sunday.

In New York, where only 15 percent of the gasoline stations were open Sunday, Mayor Edward Koch suggested that Gov. Hugh Carey impose an odd-even system and minimum purchase requirements for the state. A Carey spokesman said that while the system was not ruled out for the future, the governor was emphasizing voluntary conservation.

Gas lines were practically non-existent in California, where an odd-even license plate plan has been in effect for 40 days. Despite the ready availability of gasoline, however, tourism industry officials said fewer travelers were visiting such coastal attractions as Morro Bay and the Hearst Castle at San Simeon.

Meanwhile, a leading gasoline industry newsletter said the average national price of gasoline could top $1 a gallon by Labor Day, rather than next spring as government officials had predicted.

The Lundberg Letter said gas prices have risen about 18 cents since the beginning of the year - almost 4 cents a month. At that rate, the current average price of 86.6 cents a gallon would rise to $1 by October. While long lines were the rule in the Northeast, no major problems were reported Sunday in the Chicago area and other parts of the Midwest and In Alabama, where independent truckers have focused their protests on fuel distribution points, National Guardsmen were put on standby alert to begin moving fuel supplies. Tony Williams, executive director of the Independent Oilmen's Association of Alabama, said the state could be closed by late Tuesday because of the shutdown by independent truck-

Gov. Fob James has pledged to keep the gasoline flowing, even if it means using the guard's 55 tankers to deliver the supplies. Station owners in Washington, D.C., where motorists waited at pumps for three hours or more earlier in the weekend, said about 5 percent of the 1,500 stations were open for business Sunday. Lines stretched for blocks in the Baltimore area as motorists waited in line at the handful of stations open. Gov. Harry Hughes put a minimum purchase plan into effect Thursday. Although gasoline supplies were reported plentiful in Texas' smaller cities, drivers in Dallas and Houston were less fortunate. One Dallas worker described driving to the office Sunday and passing more than 50 gasoline stations, none of which was opn. And in Delaware, police arrested a service station owner on public nuisance charges Sunday after neighbors complained about traffic problems caused by long gas lines.

the price of a gallon of gas. Other factors in the potential gas price rise are changes in government price regulations, increases in dealer markups and inflation.

Department of Energy officials have said that the average price of a gallon of gasoline would not reach $1 until next spring, at the earliest. And earlier this year, they were saying that no gasoline price would reach $1 a gallon until late this year. But that was before the full effectsof the crude-oil shortage and rising oil prices reached the retail market, and before gasoline dealers, faced with curtailed supplies of gas, began boosting their mark-ups to maintain profit levels. Dollar-a-gallon gasoline first appeared on premium grades in Hawaii and New York City earlier this spring and has since spread to many other areas, including Chicago, Boston, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco. Varying supply, tax and competitive situations account for the differences in prices

"Retail gasoline prices over $1 a gallon are busting out all over," said Mark Emond, the Lundberg Letter's from one area to another.

editor. "Dollar-a-gallon gasoline has arrived...more is coming

According to the Lundberg Letter, the average price of a gallon of premium unleaded gasoline in the Chicago area was slightly more than $1 last week, the first time the biweekly Lundberg survey of more than 16,000 gas stations nationwide has found an average of more $1 on any grade of gas in any market.

Although the newsletter points out that gas prices in Chicago are traditionally higher than in other areas. because of high tax rates on gasoline there, "other markets are closing the Emond noted that psychological resistance to $1 a gallon gasoline could slow a nationwide move above that price, although many dealers might just use 99.9 cents a gallon as an alternative.

"The question of when retail gasoline prices will reach a national average of a dollar a gallon depends in part on how much of a barrier $1 really is," said Emond. "Or rather, how much of a barrier it will remain under pressure....Like a dam, it holds only until it breaks, and then lets

Midland was trailing by a 6-2 count heading into the ninth, thanks to a three-run homer in a four-run fourth inning for the Sox by Paul O'Neill. Midland, however, sent 11 men to the plate in the ninth for a seven run uprising to turn what looked like a sure defeat into a storybook finish.

Tracy's bases loaded double got Midland back in the game at 6-5, and Rohn's bases loaded triple was the game winner.

Herman Segelke started for the Cubs and looked like he might absorb the loss, but the ninth inning rally and a relief performance by Lee Smith, who retired six of the seven men he faced got Segelke off the hook. Smith, 3-2, picked up the victory general manager.

NEW YORK (AP) - New York Yankees Manager Bob Lemon says his team "will be all right." But it looks like Lemon won't be managing the club if and when that happens.

Both New York morning newspapers have reported that Billy Martin will take over Tuesday as manager of the Yankees. Martin, reached in Iowa City, Iowa, admitted that he and owner George Steinbrenner are scheduled to meet following Martin's appearance in a pro-am golf tournament today. But he has denied that an agreement between him and Steinbrenner was made Sunday in Columbus, Ohio, as reported by The New York Times.

"That is absolutely not true," said the fiery Martin, who resigned last July after leading the Yankees to two pennants and a World Championship. "I'm just listening to you guys (the press) rattling on about it. "I have not met with George at all" this weekend, Martin said earlier Sunday in Columbus. "We have not reached any agreement on anything. George isn't even here. I'm down here strictly for scouting purposes." However, Doug Newton, Martin's agent, said his client and the Yankee owner were "supposed to be getting together today (Sunday) in Columbus." Steinbrenner was unavailable for comment.

The Associated Press reported earlier this month that Martin would take over as manager of the Yankees before the All-Star break in July. Originally, Martin was to return as manager beginning in 1980, when Lemon would become general manager. Apparently, that timetable has been speeded up.

Rumors that Steinbrenner planned to reinstate Martin this week surfaced Sunday in a report published by the New York Daily News. Steinbrenner, who accompanied the team during part of its just-completed road trip, reportedly was spurred to action as the Yankees fell eight games out of first place:

Lemon was taking things calmly. "I've heard rumors all my life," he said. "Nothing surprises me in this game. If I'm gone, I'm gone.

"So far, all I know is that we have a day off tomorrow. Whatever the organization thinks is right is okay with me. If they want to change, well, "I've been in this game 42 years and this talk doesn't bother me. Lemon replaced Martin after the former Yankee infielder resigned July 24, 1978. That morning, Martin had uttered his now-famous statement that Reggie Jackson, with whom he often feuded, was "a born liar," and that Steinbrenner was a "convicted" one, referring to the Yankee owner's case involving illegal political contributions. Five days later, at the Yankees' Old Timers Day, the team announced that Martin would return to manage in 1980 and Lemon would then become

Martin's return seemed to be jeopardized when he was involved in an argument Nov. 10 with Reno, Nev., sports writer Ray Hagar. Hagar sued Martin, claiming Martin had punched him. The lawsuit was settled out of court on May 24 and Martin made a public apology to Hagar.

conduct while waiting to reassume field command of the Yankees would determine whether he actually managed New York again. About a settlement of the Hagar case, Steinbrenner said in February that "would be the same as being guilty.

Not much left for Danny Lopez

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -After seven consecutive title defenses, what could be left for World Boxing Council featherweight champion Danny "Little Red" Lopez?

"I'm going to take a little vacation, about three weeks and go up to Utah and do a little fishing," Lopez, 41-3, said Sunday after he knocked out No. 1 contender and hometown favorite Mike Ayala at 1:09 of the 15th round in a nationally televised fight. It was Lopez' 39th knockout in 44 pro fights. "After the fishing trip, I don't know

The fight Sunday, however, was Lopez' toughest title defense since he won the WBC crown with a 15-round decision over champion David Kotei. No challenger had taken the champion past the seventh round before Ayala.

The 5-foot-4, 125-pound Ayala, 21, cheered on by 13,000 hometown fans, had kept the slugfest even through the first six rounds.

The 5-8 Lopez, using his 11/2-inch advantage in reach, had broken Ayala's nose, however, in "either the second or third round," said Ayala. The challenger's nose bled profuse-

AAU meet part of big timetable

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) - The Moscow Olympics may be slightly more than a year away, but there was little question what was in the thoughts of the hundreds of American athletes who competed in the National AAU Track and Field Championships over the weekend.

While the nation's best were shooting for victories in the annual AAU competition, most considered the meet - and meets upcoming between now and the 1980 Games in Russia as part of a timetable.

'Moscow has of course been my goal all along," said Steve Scott, the United States' top hope in the 1,500 meters. "All my time and training are geared to beating Steve Ovett (Great Britain) in the Olympics. When I train, I pretend I'm running against him - he's the best."

"I'd love to win the gold," said Evelyn Ashford, who scored a double in the AAU sprints for the second time. "I'd love to win any medal. My timetable is geared step by step for Moscow. I want to beat the East Germans, and I feel like I can do Ashford, a 22-year-old who ran fifth in the Montreal Olympics 100 meters, shattered the American record in that event Saturday during the AAU meet with a time of 10.97 seconds. She came back Sunday to run a 22.07 in the 200, a wind-aided mark that would have rewritten the American standard.

Scott, three-time AAU 1,500 champion, whipped Don Paige in Sunday's final, clocking 3:36.40 to Paige's 3: 37.33.

The outlook for America in the Moscow Olympics is generally bright, based on the three-day AAU meet at Mount San Antonio College. The United States apparently will be strong in the men's sprints, both men's hurdles, the 1500 and various field And, according to signs from the AAU competition, the American women may be much improved over their showing in Montreal in 1976.

In addition to Ashford, Deby La-Plante stamped herself as world caliber with an American record time of 12:86 in the 100-meter hurdles. Francie Larrieu scored an impressive AAU double, taking the 1,500 in 4:06.53, then coming back to edge defending champion Jan Merrill in the 3,000 with a time of 8:53.79.

"Since I was 13, I've been pointing toward the Olympics," said Larrieu, a two-time American Olympican. "I'm doing all I can to be ready next

In two of the AAU meet's featured men's events, world record-holding hurdlers Renaldo Nehemiah and Edwin Moses — both won their events easily, Nehemiah with a 13.19 in the 110 hurdles, and Moses with a 47.89 in the 400 hurdles.

Olympic discus champion Mac Wilkins, still perfecting his new form, threw an impressive 231 feet, 10 inches to win the discus. Dwayne Evans, the bronze medalist in Montreal in the 200, proved he's still to be reckoned with by winning that event in a time of 20.28.

And in the 100, Southern California sophomore James Sanford clocked an impressive 10.07 in an event that drew the best sprinters in the nation.

"I'm trying to do things right. This treatment helps to give people a negative attitude towards me.

The 20-year-old left-hander had had a turbulent weekend on the tennis courts of London's Queen's Club.

He won three matches in two days to reach the final of the $125,000 Stella Artois tournament. But he was in deep trouble with umpires and was given two penalty points for miscon-

One of the players he defeated, Sandy Mayer, said McEnroe should have been disqualified.

Against Vijay Amritraj Saturday, McEnroe refused to start the match because he said he needed more service practice. He got one penalty point for that.

Against Mayer Sunday, McEnroe quarreled with a line call, demanded to know the umpire's name and said he would see they were never on the same court again. He got another penalty point.

Both incidents will be reported to the Professional Tennis Council for possible fines or other disciplinary

"Any player who insults an umpire should be immediately disqualified," Mayer said.

"The only way to treat players like Nastase and McEnroe - or their names should now be in reverse order — is to disqualify them for five or six tournaments in a row. Penalty points mean nothing to them, nor does loss of prize money.

Mayer chided McEnroe for holding up play because spectators were moving about, and for continually breaking off to tie his shoelaces.
"He is so calculating, and he has worked out a routine. Every time we changed ends and I was ready to serve he held me up," Mayer said.

"All this tying of shoelaces is unnecessary. I am perfectly willing to tie his shoelaces for him before a match, and I guarantee they will not come undone. Once during the match when McEnroe was signalling for spectators to take their seats, Mayer called to him across the net: "You've mistaken your calling. You should have been an usher."

Afterwards Mayer said: "It is perfectly easy to play tennis well with people screaming and moving about.

I did it in team tennis for five years. "People have paid for their seats and have the right to have fun, not to sit there like zombies.'

Mayer said that in spite of everything he enjoyed playing againstg McEnroe.

"That's because he is a great play-er, and an innovator," Mayer said. "I enjoy playing anyone who is above me in the rankings. The rest are just part of the week's work."

McEnroe claimed he did not deserve either of the penalty points.

"Maybe I should not have said what I did to the umpire," he said, "but it was in the heat of the moment."

McEnroe dropped the first set Sunday against Mayer but gradually quietened down and got his tennis together as the day went on.

He defeated Mayer 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, and later tamed the big-serving Roscoe Tanner 6-4, 7-5.

The other finalist is Victor Pecci of Paraguay, who served and volleyed well to down Arthur Ashe 6-3, 7-5.

Al Parker, a 45-year veteran of the newsroom of the Wichita Falls Times and Record News prior to his retirement 12 years ago, is the author of a recently published book, "People Do the Darndest Things-Don't We?" Parker describes his new book, his second since retirement, as a "strictly entertainment piece-long on trivia and short on philosophy. It is a 136-page hardback containing a collection of 80 stories, short and long. His previous book, "Baseball Giant Killers" in 1976, was placed in a time capsule to be opened 100 years later. On the flyleaf he wrote:

"Greetings from 1976 to 2076. If you think you have lived through the greatest of all generations, it is because you were not fortunate enough to have lived through my time."

This pretty well sums up the philosophy of Al Parker, as expressed in his writings.

Parker, who has visited in Midland on several occasions, was born at

Balie Griffith Firestone

Honey Grove (Fannin County). He launched his newspaper career on the Pine Bluff, Ark., Graphic, and later worked on the Galveston News and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat before moving to the Wichita Falls newspaper in the early 1920s. He was sports editor at Wichita Falls for many years and was widely recognized as one of the Lone Star State's top sports writers. He concluded his yers with the Wichita Falls newspapers as a managing editor. A sampling of the titles of the book's wide-ranging stories include: "When Justice Went Astray", "The Unluckiest Deer Hunter", "Golf Shots Never Forgotten", "How Times Do Change", "Bartender to Oil Editor", "A One-Man Track Team" and "A Calf Bawls for Its Mama.'

The book can be ordered from Al Parker, 3306 Kessler, Wichita Falls, 73609. The price is $7.65, which includes taxes and shipping charges.

market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market retreated today as the previous week's faltering rally ran into new resistance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, at noon, was off by .87 points at 842.43. Declines held a 6-5 edge over advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

NYSE volume came to 14.49 million shares in the first two hours of trading, off from 14.96 million at noon Friday.

Last week's 8.15-point advance in the Dow average was fueled by the round of prime rate reductions that began on Tuesday. But the rally steadily lost steam as the week wore on and as worries began to build again about an economic slowdown. UAL, owner of United Airlines, fell

1 % to 23 %. Its DC-10 fleet, the nation's largest, remained grounded along with all other DC-10s. An activelytraded Sears, Roebuck was off 1/4 at 19%. Among gaming issues, Caesars World led the NYSE most-actives and gained 1% to 33.

The NYSE's composite commonstock index fell .10 to 57.75; at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .60 to 197.79.

Fight goes on in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -Sandinista rebels battled for a provisional capital in southern Nicaragua today, overran the national guard garrison in the country's second largest city and held large parts of Man-

The rebel commander in the south, Eden Pastora, said his forces would take the city of Rivas, 30 miles north of the Costa Rican border, by Tuesday and establish a provisional government there.

The Sandinistas named a five-member junta over the weekend and said their aims were to overthrow 40 years, of Somoza family rule, hold free elections and install a "government of international unity. Maj. Pablo Emilio Salazar, 35, who commands Somoza's forces in the south, said there were about 700 men in the guerrilla force and they would be encircled and destroyed. Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, the spokesman for Somoza's 13,000-man national guard, said the guerrillas had taken the villages of Penas Blancas on the Costa Rican border and Sapoa, about two miles north on the Pan American Highway

Aranda said the guerrillas were blocked there, but Pastora, in an interview on Costa Rican television that was filmed in Nicaragua, said his forces were advancing toward

In Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city 54 miles northwest of the capital, Sandinistas were still fighting pockets of guardsmen who hid in buildings after their garrison was overrun and the building set on fire.

AP photographer Richard Cross was in the city Saturday and Sunday and reported some members of the garrison still held a fortified command post on the southern outskirts and were shelling the city with mortars while Somoza's planes rocketed and strafed rebel positions.

25-year-old truck driver injured

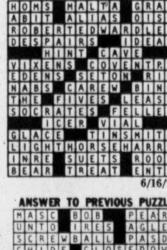

A 25-year-old truck driver from San Antonio suffered broken arms and legs and sustained multiple cuts Saturday when a trailer he was pulling broke loose from his truck south of Midland, Department of Public Safety officials said. David Council was listed in satisfactory condition early today in Midland Memorial Hospital. The trailer apparently broke loose from its connection with the truck and rolled on to its side, DPS officials

Council then lost control of the truck, which also flipped on its side, according to DPS reports. The accident occurred about 2:30 a.m. Saturday on Texas 158 about 17 miles south of Midland, according to DPS authorities

BUSINESS MIRROR

Mutual Club of Detroit compiles unusual record

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - As a member of the Mutual Investment Club of Detroit. Tom O'Hara has invested $6,425, mostly in monthly $10 or $20 amounts, over a 39-year period. The investments now are valued at $71,-

That's not the whole story. With funds he withdrew, O'Hara paid off the mortgage on a home, sent his two boys through an exclusive private school, and has just given one of them $10,000 to buy a house.

What remains, he says, is far underpriced. In the next few years he is confident the club's holdings will double, which would mean of course that his holdings would double too. Club members win or lose together. The club's investments during this span totaled $121,668.91 at the end of April. At the same time, the 16 members counted assets of $628,000. An interviewer didn't insist on including the precise penny amounts. Did members possess extraordi nary investment skills? They were bright, obviously, and they had a deep interest in the market. Two of them are investment analysts, but the others pursue various callings. "You don't have to be sophisticated," said O'Hara. "You simply follow your principles and be consistent.' By that he means you don't "play" the market, but invest on a regular schedule for a long time

You also reinvest all dividends. And you don't worry about market fluctuations; values are recognized and prices adjust themselves over a period of years. Moreover, the companies chosen grow with the economy. Choice rather than trading skill is emphasized. The club picks some big institutional favorites, but it also searches out smaller, fast-growing companies - companies whose prices should double in five years. O'Hara, an accountant and one of the founders of the club, now is ad-ministrative head of the National Association of Investment Clubs, which provides materials and advise to 4,300 independent clubs. Working from an office in Royal Oak, a Detroit suburb, O'Hara can call on the expertise of many analysts committees. And all benefit from the wisdom of George Nicholson. Nicholson, along with O'Hara a founder of the Mutual Investment Club, is also recognized as founder of the national-and now international-investment club movement who serve on the board or on advisory

He is also a professional investment advisor.

Most members of the Mutual Club, however, consider themselves to be amateur, part-time investors. As openings occur because of death or geographical transfers, they purchase shares in order to join.

One writes automotive manuals, another runs a small-town store, two are retired. A factory owner, an insurer, a doctor, a veterinarian, another analyst, a salesman and a business manager complete the list.

Some members, past and present, owe more to the club than a healthy personal portfolio. One parlayed his investments into ownership of four restaurants. Another founded a factory employing more than 100 work-

In most instances, club members also maintain private portfolios, some worth much more than their club investments. The give and take of club meetings, they find, keep them informed and stimulate their inter-O'Hara doesn't claim that other clubs can do as well. In fact, many clubs have disappeared in recent years. At it's peak, association membership exceeded 14,000 clubs. Then the bad days came. What O'Hara and Nicholson and others in the association maintain, however, is that a club that endures is one that succeeds. That is, bad times represent only a buying opportunity. Perseverance pays, they say. In the past week, for example, some clubs have lost assets because some institutional investors have temporarily soured on International Business Machines. But sound clubs are likely to hold out.

The primary reason for such assurance in long-term success is that stocks are chosen for basic reasons their history, management, consistancy, price-earnings ratios.

What happens over a matter of weeks is of little concern to clubs; what happens over years is. And the same philosophy applied to the National Association. While membership is down, O'Hara and others are certain it is temporary. Unfortunately, they say, when the market regenerates some of the bargains will be gone for clubs that are formed at that time. Now, they say, is probably as fine an opportunity as has existed in many years. Much, much better, at least, than in 1940, when the Mutual Club was beginning and the world was plunging into a great world war.

Iranians departing country outnumber those returning

By FERESHTEH EMAMY

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Thousands of Iranians have come home to join Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution, but thousands of others are pulling out, preferring an uncertain future abroad to the economic and political uncertainty at home. Iran Air, the national airline, brought 8,151 people from abroad to Tehran in the first two weeks of May but took 9,376 out of the country. The demand for passports has increased 66 percent since the revolution, with 2,000 people lining up every day to receive old imperial passports overstamped with Islamic Republic of Iran. Cars are parked four deep outside the passport offices. Instant-photo merchants are doing a brisk busi-

"We have worked for this country for many years, but no one seems to care," said an elderly woman as she and her husband waited at the airport for a flight to London. 'Now we are too old to fight for what we want, so we are leaving for Europe to have a comfortable and carefree life." Another woman, identifying herself only as Mina, said: "We don't want to live in an Islamic republic. Although no one is certain what an Islamic republic is, it doesn't sound very

She said she and her family were going to Spain.

"At least in California, we will have good programs on television," said the young daughter of a departing

Some arriving travelers are enthusiastic, some wary about the Islamic revolution. Most of those returning to the country say they want to give their time and effort to the government. A few women are already clad in anklelength veils as a sign of loyalty to Islam.

"I had a grant from the Ministry of Finance to study in England," said a young man loaded down with presents for his sisters. "I stayed in England until the former regime was overthrown. I didn't want to come back and work for them. I will work for these people with pleasure because they are a people's government.

Another young man said he had been studying in the United States on a grant from the navy.

"I don't know what to expect," he said. "I don't know if I want to work for these armed forces. I have to stay for a while and find out. It may turn out worse than I think, in which case I will return to the U.S.

"We are all anxious," said a welldressed girl arriving from Vienna. 'We want to sit around for a little bit to find out what will happen. I have my passport ready at all times in case I have to fly out.

DETROIT (AP) - Ford Motor Co.'s tractor business, a billion-dollar enterprise intimately linked with the name of founder Henry Ford, will not be sold, according to company officials.

A statement issued Friday by Louis R. Ross, executive vice president in charge of diversified products, said Ford directors had agreed with management that "the company's interest will be served best by continuing aggressively in the tractor busi-

A sale had been considered because of the heavy capital demands facing the automaker in the next few years, but Ford's statement said directors approved new spending to develop tractor products. A spokesman said the sum was "obviously in the multi-millions.

Roloff seeks support of other church homes

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff, preparing for what may be the last battle in his six-year legal war with the state, has called for all church youth homes to turn in their state licenses.

"Let's all get in violation together," the fiery preacher said at a Sunday night prayer meeting in his People's

An Austin state judge has given Roloff until Tuesday to seek state licenses required for the three South Texas youth homes. But the 64-yearold preacher, who has been jailed before for failure to have licenses, says he will not obey the judge.

"When they put a license on the church, they put a license on the pastor," he said.

About 2,000 supporters filled the circular church Sunday night. During the prayer session, Roloff said he has heard from churches from across the state that plan to turn in their li-

Roloff has longed claimed that state licensing of a church-related facility is a violation of the separation of church and state doctrine.

He reiterated his claim that Tuesday will be rememberd as a big day in American history. "Tuesday will write the story of another Alamo," he said from the pulpit.
"If Brother (Wylie Cameron — an official at the home) and I could have the privilege of being another Travis and Bowie, it would be a real joy," the fundamentalist preacher said:

He told his followers that the resistence will be marked by song - not by "We'll put to rest any thoughts of violence. There'll be none," he said. "The heavier the burden, the more you ought to sing. It confuses the

He said the court order that may close the homes is "murder for the hopes of these young people." He said there about 400 youths in his homes.

"If their plan should succeed, you put one thing down. We did not die a naural death, we were killed," he said. But the irrepressable Roloff maintained that his faith in the Lord will keep the homes open.

He talked about Noah and the ark. "He was outnumbered. So are we. But 30 days after that first clap of thunder, he was in the majority," he Roloff, who appeared on an hour-long television special Sunday, is expecting a massive crowd tonight for a rally. He said preachers from around the nation are expected here to voice their support. And despite the possibility that the children will be taken from here Tuesday and the chance that he will be jailed, Roloff talked of long-range

The red-velvet collection pouches made their way up and down the aisles as usual.

"We've got $10 million worth of plans, and they say Brother Roloff, how are you going to do that when you are supposed to be closed?"

"Well, I guess I forgot about that,"

Airman wants right to carry his Bible

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP) — Airman Steve Ristau says he'll refuse to accept an honorable discharge and will sue the Air Force to allow him and other born-again Christians to carry Bibles while on

The Air Force decided to discharge Ristau, 20, instead of taking him through a court martial, which Ristau had demanded.

Ristau, a Southern Baptist, disobeyed an order from his commanding officer to stop carrying and reading his Bible while standing guard at Mountain Home Air Force Base in southwestern Idaho.

"We're going to court and battle it out," Ristau said Sunday. "They've got to prove that there is something wrong with me, that I deserve a dis-

The San Mateo, Calif., man quotes Air Force documents as saying "he is the most vocal of approximately six security policemen" who insist on carrying Bibles on base.
