

Panel toughens 'windfall profits' tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A toughened "windfall profits" tax is on its way to the full House where anger over long gasoline lines and high fuel prices is expected to lead to prompt approval.

The beefed-up tax, which would cost oil companies about $6 billion more over five years than President Carter's original plan, cleared the House Ways and Means Committee on a 20-16 vote Tuesday.

The bill is scheduled for House action next week. After clearing whatever hurdles it encounters in the House, the tax proposal is expected to face a stiff challenge when it goes to the Senate Finance Committee, which is headed by oil-state Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

In related developments: —Three congressional committees are considering legislation to promote development of synthetic fuels, such as oil extracted from coal, and other alternatives to foreign oil.

—Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., chairman of a House energy subcommittee, said Tuesday home heating oil may be in such short supply in the Northeast this winter that people may have to leave their homes and go to public shelters to keep warm.

—Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal outlined to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday the Carter administration's proposal to raise $500 million a year by limiting the oil companies' use of the foreign tax credit. Liberals on the committee are expected to press for their own proposal to eliminate the foreign tax credit for oil companies altogether and thus raise an estimated $2 billion a year.

The Ways and Means Committee's "windfall profits" tax bill would raise an estimated $27.8 billion between 1980 and 1984, compared with $21.8 billion under the president's bill. The revised version would allow the oil companies to keep 17 cents to 23 cents of each dollar gained from oil price decontrol. Those pennies would total about $13 billion in extra oil company profits through 1984.

The committee adopted the president's plan for a special energy trust fund, paid for by the "windfall" taxes, but put off until later a decision on what types of projects the fund will support.

Carter has recommended using the fund to help finance improved mass transit and development of alternative energy sources and to help pay for the fuel bills of low-income Americans.

The committee rejected most efforts Tuesday to tamper further with the proposed "windfall" tax. However, it voted to exempt from the tax revenues contributed by oil companies to state educational funds.

Committee members said that exemption would reduce the revenue raised by the tax by about $700 million over five years. However, some congressional tax experts indicated they believe the figure might be closer to $1 billion.

And by an 18-17 vote, the committee approved a so-called closed rule for floor action on the bill. A closed rule would bar floor amendments aimed at toughening or weakening the tax when it goes to the full House.

The "windfall" tax accompanies the president's action to slowly lift price controls on U.S.-produced crude oil, a process that began June 1 and will continue until mid-1981 when domestic oil prices will have reached world levels.

Under price controls, U.S. oil prices have been averaging about $11 per 42-gallon barrel — compared with world prices averaging about $18, including surcharges. The nation imports roughly half of the petroleum it uses.

Old building 'tucked away'

Structure, its history 'hidden'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Nestled away from busy streets in a commercial section of Midland is an odd-looking and yet elegant old building which motorists can see only if they're looking for it.

The two-story, cream-colored wooden structure trimmed with teal blue has the appearance of another time.

And apparently it is from an early period in the city's history, said Fred Hansler, who owns the building and lot at 2004 W. Wall St.

The house sits on the back of the West Midland lot, which also contains a business building fronting on Wall Street.

Hansler said he has been told the strange-looking building was a carriage house built in downtown Midland in the early 1900s, but he doesn't know the exact date of its construction or original location.

He said the structure may have been used to house carriages before cars became popular in West Texas.

The building was moved to its current spot and placed on a concrete foundation in 1923, he said. Bricks were molded into the ground in front of the door, forming a kind of porch framed by an iron railing. In the building's functional heyday, the upstairs likely was used as living quarters by the person operating the carriage house, Hansler said.

Not long after the building was moved to Wall Street, sometime in the mid-1920s, it was used by some Catholic nuns as a residence, according to Hansler.

The nuns then were operating a hospital in Midland, he said.

Since that time, the "carriage house" has been used as a real estate office, artists' studio and storage room — with the upstairs section rented as a small apartment at various intervals.

The problem now, Hansler said, stems from the fact that he needs the space now occupied by the building for more parking. But if the house does have significant historical value, he said he would prefer moving it to another location instead of tearing it down.

Or it may be that someone would prefer restoring the building to its original design, noted Hansler.

Trying to unravel the building's history before 1923 has led him nowhere, he said.

Hansler, whose telephone number is 563-0159, indicated he would like to hear from anyone having firm knowledge about the building's history.

Demand for water studied by council

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland's water demands by 1990 will exceed the supply if no action is taken in the near future, the Midland City Council was advised Tuesday during a regular session in City Hall.

The meeting was 15 minutes late getting started so four members could show up, giving the council a quorum. Missing were Tom Sloan and Doris Howbert.

Dr. James Glasser with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., an engineering firm in Lubbock, said Midland's three water supplies have a current capacity of 37.5 million gallons per day.

This includes 13.5 mgd from the Colorado River Municipal Water District, 5 mgd from McMillen Field west of the city and 19 mgd from the Paul Davis Well Field about 30 miles north of Midland.

For 1979, the projected peak load is 31 to 34 mgd; for 1985, the projected peak is 37 to 40 mgd, and in 1990, it will be 42 to 46 mgd, Glasser said.

"By 1990, the demand will exceed what now is available from the three water sources," he added.

The most feasible idea is to increase the amount from the Paul Davis field because "there are a number of undeveloped well sites," Glasser said.

The transmission line from that field into Midland is designed for a maximum of 27 mgd, but is now only pumping 19 mgd. With booster pumps and an auxiliary line, it could be increased to 37 mgd, he recommended.

The council approved recommendations made by John Lowe, director of public utilities.

These included employing Ed Reed and Associates to design five well sites and five pumps for those wells; employ Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc. to design and write the specifications for new system lines and construction of a booster pump halfway between the city and the Paul Davis field; replace antiquated control equipment, and install an interconnecting line between the Paul Davis and McMillen fields.

In other action, Magnatex Corp. cleared the final City Council hurdle with approval on second reading for its zone changes. The requests deal with a shopping center and housing development to be built on the southeast corner of FM 868 and Midkiff Road.

Moving the 911 emergency system to the new Central Fire Station when it is completed was approved by the panel. That OK also included installation of a new emergency system in January.

Other action included approval of a contract with Nolen and Hemphill Architects to draw plans for a new Municipal Court Building.

The structure will be located on a vacant lot across the street from the current Public Safety Building and should have about 4,000 square feet of space.

Where the money will come from for the construction has not been decided by the council, but options include revenue bonds or a bond issue.

Parking fee at airport to buck pricing trend

Fees for the new two-story parking garage at Midland Regional Airport will be changed, but unlike most prices nowadays, they will go down.

Midland City Council Tuesday approved changes in the parking lot rates during a regular session in City Hall after Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation, said the covered parking area is not being utilized because of its higher price.

Currently, charge for parking in the covered area is 50 cents per hour or $5 per day. The council has lowered that to 30 cents for the first half hour, 20 cents for each additional half hour, up to $4 per day.

The 30 cent half hour would be cheaper than the remaining parking areas and could be utilized by persons needing a place to stop for a short time.

The new uncovered area will carry a fee of 35 cents for the first hour and 15 cents each additional hour up to $3 per day. The old lot west of the building will be reserved for long-term parking, with the charge to be $1.50 per day.

"People have told me they won't use that covered parking area because of the high prices," Banks said in presenting his arguments to the council.

Even though the remodeling at Midland Regional Airport officially was dedicated Friday, more changes were approved by the council.

Another computer for the second toll both at the exit of the parking lot was approved for purchase. One al-

Will gasoline sales plan reach Midland area?

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

Midland gas suppliers and service station operators today were divided over whether the odd-even day gasoline sales plan mandated by Gov. Bill Clements for Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston will spread to the Midland area.

Some said it won't. Some said it won't until later this summer. And at least one said such a plan will be in effect here within 30 to 45 days.

Gas suppliers and service station operators in Midland also seemed divided on the merits of the plan. Several were definite about not liking it. Others said they thought it might be beneficial.

And, depending on who one talked to today, there either is or isn't a need for such a program here.

A few noted gasoline supplies are tight and claimed an odd-even rationing program would help in keeping that gas evenly distributed. However, that opinion wasn't unanimous by a long shot.

"I don't see any need for it. I think there's plenty of gasoline available in this area," said Jack Walcher, president of Eddins-Walcher Company, which supplies gasoline to three stations in Midland.

Saying Midland has not been plagued with the extremely low supplies of gas and long lines at stations experienced in Texas' metropolitan cities, Walcher said, "We will not experience any shortage in June."

Walcher said motorists will face higher prices for gasoline, but that gasoline will be available.

He did note that the stations his company services have begun closing on Sundays — at least through June — but said that was mainly because other companies closed on weekends to conserve supplies.

Of recent, Sunday closings have forced drivers to seek other stations at which to buy gasoline. Now some of those "alternate" stations, too, are closing on Sundays to conserve supplies, Walcher said.

Terming gasoline supplies "very tight" currently, Dave Messer of Gulf Oil said, "If this continues, I would say yes (Midland will be placed on an odd-even day system)...sometime this summer." He said that was contingent on the situation remaining as it was today.

Messer said Permian Basin motorists should not "top off" their tanks because that depletes gasoline supplies. Car-pooling would help the situation, he observed.

He also said drivers should use their vehicles wisely and that he believes people "do a lot of unnecessary running around."

Ernest Graham of Graham's Exxon, 1008 N. Big Spring St., said he believes Midland will be placed on an odd-even rationing program "within the next 30 to 45 days. I think there is definitely a good chance of it."

Gasoline supplies are getting tighter each month, said Graham.

Asked what would be his reaction to the odd-even system of selling gasoline, Graham said, "I wouldn't appreciate it, but I don't appreciate the

Somoza's guard continues effort to drive rebels from Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's national guard attacked Sandinista guerrillas in the slums of eastern Managua today in a drive to clear the rebels from the capital.

"It's going very well for us," said a high-ranking government source. "We expect to finish the operation in Managua today."

The sounds of rocket, machine-gun and mortar fire mixed with heavy explosions through the night. The government source said convoys of troop reinforcements left the infantry training school at intervals through the night.

Smoke rose from the barrios on the east side of the city, which the guerrillas had controlled for more than a week.

The rebels' clandestine Radio Sandino said an attack was imminent on Somoza's heavily fortified headquarters, known as the Bunker, inside the infantry training school. But reliable sources said some guerrillas were pulling out of the capital and possibly heading for Rivas, 30 miles north of the Costa Rican border, which the Sandinistas have vowed to capture and make a capital for the provisional government they named last weekend.

The Sandinistas announced Tuesday night that their forces in the south resumed their attack near La Virgen, south of Rivas. But Maj. Pablo Emilio Salazar, the 35-year-old commander of Somoza's forces in the south, denied the rebel claim in a television appearance.

"We have stopped them at the Rio Pita," said Salazar. "We figure there are now 400 to 600 guerrillas there. We are planning a major offensive."

The Pita River is five miles north of the Costa Rican border.

A Sandinista spokesman in neighboring Costa Rica said there were 600 guerrillas at La Virgen "with the heaviest weapons we have. We have also moved up for the battle all the armored cars and other weapons taken from the national guard."

La Virgen, on Lake Nicaragua, is 12 miles from the border.

The Sandinista commander in the south, Eden Pastora, told a reporter the guerrillas had overrun several barrios in Rivas and were battling the national guard garrison there late Tuesday.

There was no estimate of rebel casualties in the three weeks since the Sandinistas launched their second offensive in 10 months to try to end the 42-year rule of the Somoza family dictatorship. But reliable sources said 80 national guardsmen have been killed and 215 wounded, two of the guard's four Sherman tanks were disabled in Leon, and only five of its 10 rocket-firing Cessnas were still flying.

Foreign embassies continued to sponsor evacuation flights. More than 800 persons have left on U.S. Air Force C-130s. National guardsmen stopped a busload of Venezuelans and political refugees from the Venezuelan embassy and threatened to shoot them as Sandinistas, but the Venezuelan foreign minister arranged their release and departure from the country.

The Sandinistas control a number of cities in northwest Nicaragua, including Leon, the country's second largest, and in most of them have the national guard garrisons under siege. The government says no attempt will be made to recover those points until the rebels in Managua and the south have been defeated.

EPA criticized for role in water agreement

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

The role of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in a joint state of Texas-EPA agreement drew fire from oil industry officials Tuesday in Midland.

Simultaneously, a San Angelo environmentalist claimed the EPA is not doing enough to protect consumers.

The comments came during a public hearing on an agreement between the state and the EPA, which addresses water quality and waste management in the state of Texas.

According to information supplied at the hearing, the state and the EPA will enact stricter standards for water quality beginning in 1980 under the current proposal.

The goals also promise stricter standards for maintaining the state's water supply and for licensing and permitting in waste disposal and water treatment.

Those regulations also promise tighter restrictions on underground injection wells.

About 30 persons attended the hearing at Midland College, one of five across the state this week.

Three of them, including two members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, addressed the proposal during public testimony portions of the hearing.

Al Dillard, president of BPBA, said existing state agencies had been doing an adequate job protecting the environment from industrial threats.

"I find the EPA regulations are not nearly as good as the ones the states of Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma have enforced over the years," he said.

Dillard told the hearing panel, composed of officials from the Texas Department of Health, the Texas Department of Water Resources and the Railroad Commission, that state agencies should intervene between the oil industry and the EPA, with the state enforcing the regulations.

Dillard was joined at the meeting by Arthur Densmore, an oil engineer and EPA chairman for the BPBA.

Densmore criticized EPA regulations for being unrealistic.

"Mother Nature violates some of the mandates set out by the EPA," Densmore said.

However, Harold Tabor, a self-employed businessman from San Angelo, disagreed about the effectiveness of state agencies in enforcing regulations.

Tabor, reading a prepared statement from the Lone Star Sierra Club, criticized the water quality and management plan for ineffectiveness in guaranteeing a clean environment.

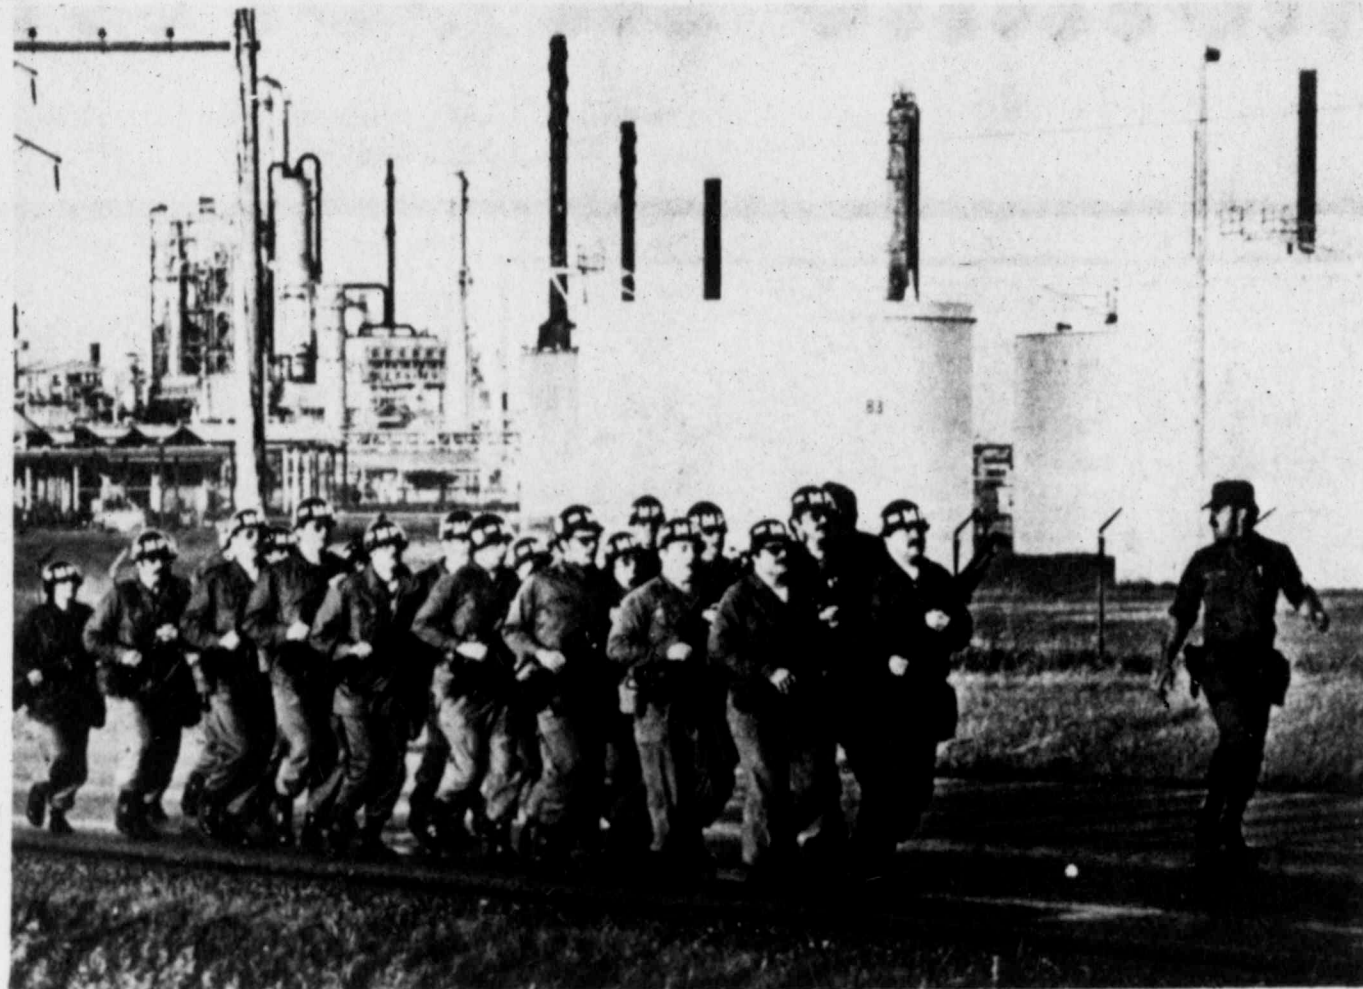

"We need some action here, we don't need any more studies," he said.

Tabor asked that the authority of the regulations be "as strong as the law will allow" on enforcing the management of hazardous wastes.

The environmentalist contended "state agencies do not have the concern for the citizens of this state that they should have."

"The Railroad Commission is oriented to oil production, not to water quality," he charged.

Tabor asked that the EPA increase its penalties for violation of pollution standards, holding industries economically responsible for any damages.

Alabama trucker shot, killed as protest violence continues

By The Associated Press

An Alabama trucker was shot and killed today as violence flared up again in a nationwide protest by independent drivers. The head of the American Trucking Association appealed to President Carter for action to assure peace on the highways.

Vegetables were rotting in fields, meat remained in packing plants and motorists lined up for tightening gasoline supplies. Several states beefed up National Guard and police protection for trucks still on the road.

Bennett C. Whitlock Jr., president of the trucking association which represents 16,874 trucking firms, urged Carter in a telegram to use the FBI and Justice Department to "keep the highways open for commerce and for safe use by truck operators and motorists alike."

The leader of a loosely organized coalition of truckers organizations in the East — called the Independent Truckers Unity Committee — urged the nation's 100,000 owner-operators to stop driving at midnight to protest high diesel fuel prices and the 55 mph speed limit. They want a higher speed limit so they can complete hauls in less time and make more money.

On orders of Minnesota Gov. Al Quie, 200 National Guardsmen were deployed to gasoline terminals in 15 cities and tank trucks resumed deliveries to service stations whose supplies had been choked off.

Alabama state troopers said Robert Tate of Birmingham was shot and killed while standing in a cotton field beside his disabled tractor-trailer rig which had jack-knifed off U.S. 72 near Tuscumbia. The officers said Tate bled to death when a shot fired by a medium calibre rifle severed an artery in his left leg.

State trooper Lt. Roy Smith said authorities were searching for a late-model pickup truck.

Alabama Gov. Fob James posted the maximum state reward of $10,000 for information leading to an arrest and conviction in the shooting. He posted a similar reward in the case of a Georgia truck driver's wife who was shot near Tuscaloosa while riding in her husband's rig last week.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol said two truckers were treated for injuries overnight during an outbreak of shooting and windshield smashing. Officers said Curtis Bowling of Milford, Ohio, was shot in the right arm as he drove along U.S. 11W in Hawkins County. Randy Smith of Alton, Ill., suffered cuts when rocks hit his rig on Interstate 24 near Clarks-ville.

President of Uganda resigns

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's President Yusufu Lule resigned today after a dispute with his political opponents and an exile who lived in New York was named to succeed him, political sources said.

Ugandan factions struggled to keep their provisional government together just two months after they united to replace ousted dictator Idi Amin.

The sources said Godfrey Binaisa, a politically conservative, pro-Western figure, would be sworn in as president later today. Binaisa, exiled during the Amin years, had been practicing law in New York City. He is a former Ugandan attorney general.

Lule yielded to his political enemies when it became evident he could no longer maintain national unity.

Lule's resignation was reported in a statement distributed by the official Uganda News Agency and broadcast by Uganda government radio today. A spokesman for the agency who gave details of the statement said the capital, Kampala, remained calm after the midday broadcast.

"I did not wish to see any conflict developing around my personality ... We now hand over to our colleagues," Lule's statement said.

A spokesman for the news agency said Lule "definitely has resigned."

Kampala remained calm after the midday broadcast, despite a spate of rumors of plots, planned detentions of Cabinet ministers and the possible return from exile of Milton Obote.

Senate hears cancer plight of uranium miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. John Taylor Howes remembers when her late husband would come home from work at the uranium mine at Marysville, Utah.

His stepfather would be waiting at the door with a geiger counter, she recalled Tuesday at a Senate hearing, and John Taylor "would light up like a Christmas tree."

Her voice occasionally dissolving into sobs, Mrs. Howes told how her husband worked 10 years mining uranium, how she noticed years later he was becoming weaker and grayer and losing strength and how one day he entered a clinic for exploratory surgery.

The diagnosis was inoperable cancer.

On Aug. 26, 1966, he died, one of hundreds of uranium miners to succumb to lung cancer since the dawn of the atomic age. Now, 13 years later, Mrs. Howes is still waiting for the state of Utah to honor her claim for survivor's benefits under workers' compensation.

Mrs. Howes and other witnesses told a joint hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a health subcommittee she recalls no warnings, official or otherwise, that uranium mining could be hazardous to her late husband's health.

"To my knowledge they never were told," Mrs. Howes said. "If he were told, I'm sure he would have mentioned it to me."

A former miner, George Val Snow of Salt Lake City, was asked whether his employer, or the government, or perhaps union officials had warned him.

"They never mentioned it," he said.

But government officials said that as early as 1944, it was generally believed that radon found in uranium mines was associated with lung cancer.

One witness, Joseph K. Wagoner of the U.S. Public Health Service, said white uranium miners stand a four or five times greater risk of dying from lung cancer than average white Americans. Indians who work in the mines in the Southeast also face a higher risk of death from cancer.

Wagoner said a public health study launched in 1950 showed 200 former miners out of 3,500 surveyed have died of cancer. Normally, officials would expect about 40 lung cancer deaths from a sample of that size over the same time period, he said.

Despite such evidence, Wagoner said in a brief interview after testifying, the government waited until 1971 before placing into effect the first comprehensive health standard to protect workers. Similar standards now in effect in Czechoslovakia apparently have reduced the threat to workers to double the normal risk of dying from lung cancer, he said.

Several witnesses were critical of the federal government for failing to promote health precautions in the uranium industry, which was developed to provide the military and Atomic Energy Commission with material for atomic tests.

Merrill Eisenbud, a former Atomic Energy Commission employee, said he had recommended in 1948 that the AEC write "requirements for health protection" into its procurement contracts, since the government was virtually the sole purchaser of the uranium.

His recommendation was rejected, he said, and "the decision was made at Washington headquarters that uranium mine safety would remain the responsibility of the states."

Meanwhile, an interagency task force President Carter ordered to study the health effects of radiation published its final report today and went out of business calling for more open regulation of radiation policy by a high-level interagency council.

The panel, most of whose findings and recommendations already have been published in draft form, called for the National Institutes of Health to take over from the Energy Department long-range health research into the effects of low-level radiation. The panel says the Energy Department has a potential conflict of interest because it both promotes nuclear projects and studies their safety.

American Airlines jetliner hijacked

CHICAGO (AP) — An American Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner carrying 137 persons was hijacked Wednesday en route from New York to Chicago, the Federal Aviation Administration said. The FAA said the plane later landed at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

The FAA said the plane was Flight 293 destined for Chicago, Oklahoma City and Dallas-Fort Worth.

The FAA said in Washington that there were 129 passengers and eight crew members aboard the flight.

The pilot reported the hijacking at 12:29 p.m. EDT when the aircraft was near Flint, Mich., on its way from New York to Chicago.

The FAA said it had no details on the hijacker or any demands.

Council to lower parking fee ready is on order, Banks said.

Additions to the terminal building for Braniff International's ticket booth and to the air cargo building for Braniff and Texas International finally got off the ground Tuesday during the meeting.

Bids for both projects were accepted by the council.

Awarded a contract for the Braniff addition was Stewart and Clark Construction Co. of Dallas who had a bid of $681,000. The bid is subject to the approval of Braniff.

A contract for the air cargo building went to Sneed Construction Co. of Odessa, which bid $275,880.

Both projects had been out for bid earlier in the year, but council members rejected the bids on the basis they were too high. Comparing Tuesday's bids with the earlier ones, the council was told it had saved about $290,000 by going out for bids a second time.

Plans for a new entrance road to Midland Regional Airport, drawn by Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., of Lubbock, were approved. Redesigning of LaForce Boulevard calls for traffic leaving the airport building to enter LaForce Boulevard by the Post Office. A second phase of the project includes a spur road connecting with FM 1788.

Season marks no weather change

Summer will officially begin Thursday at 6:56 p.m., but there should be nothing special in the way of weather to celebrate the occasion.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts summer probably will get off to a lackluster start with fair skies and temperatures in the mid-90s. Southerly winds 10 to 15 mph should complete summer's opening act.

The high Tuesday was 95 degrees and the overnight low was 67 degrees. Record temperatures for the area remain at an overnight low of 52 degrees set in 1973 and a high for today of 107 degrees set in 1951.

Area weather watchers reported all the signs of a hot day ahead.

situation already."

Although gasoline supplies are not holding up "very well at all," according to Bruce Stanley of Stanley Exxon, 3210 N. Garfield St., he does not believe Midland will be placed on an odd-even system "in the very near future unless things just radically change."

"Our problem is just with having gas," he said, noting that waiting lines are not long.

More people are topping off their tanks now, he said, hunting for places to fill their vehicles' tanks when their tanks get below a half or a quarter full.

Stanley did not oppose an odd-even rationing of gasoline and thought it might be beneficial.

"It wouldn't bother me at all. I think it probably would be a good deal."

But there are those individuals, he noted, such as workers in the oil industry, who need gas every day and must have it to do their jobs. An odd-even gasoline allocation system might work a hardship on them, Stanley said.

Horses occupy Senate

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in the good old days, before we ran out of gas, a favorite joke when Americans saw someone with a disabled automobile was, "Get a horse."

Maybe that's not such a bad idea.

Based on some debate in the Senate last week, a return to the cavalry could go a long way toward solving the gas crunch as well as balancing the federal budget.

The Senate was debating whether to approve purchase of a $1.8 billion aircraft carrier, when attention turned suddenly to cavalry horses, which sell for between $500 and $1,000, with no cost overruns.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., was arguing that the aircraft carrier was a bad idea. It takes a lot of fuel to run an aircraft carrier.

"Where will that oil come from 20 to 30 years from now?" asked Bumpers.

He said the aircraft carrier would last 30 years and over that period would cost the government about $42 billion. His figure included not only the price of oil, but the cost of the airplanes, the crew, the spare parts, etc.

Sen. John Tower, a Texan and a Republican, who supports aircraft carriers, turned to Bumpers and said, "Maybe, the gentleman from Arkansas would prefer that we substitute horses."

Of course, Tower wasn't serious. But he offered some figures that sure make horses sound a lot more attractive than aircraft carriers.

"A good cavalry horse probably can be purchased for $500," said the Texas senator. "And if you turn him out to pasture and buy the feed for him, that would cost about an additional $400 a year."

"So the life cycle of a good cavalry horse, which is about that of a good tank, is about $6,500. ... Incidentally, during peacetime, the horse would be much more useful for ceremonial purposes than the tank."

Tower went on to argue in favor of the carrier. But Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., also comes from horse country.

Melcher said he wouldn't argue with Tower about carriers.

"But I challenge his expertise on the price of cavalry horses," said the Montana senator.

"I think the senator has correctly estimated the cost of feeding a horse at about $400, but he has not included the cost of waste disposal. ... I think the senator should properly re-adjust his estimate another $600 or $700 just to handle the waste disposal of that stabled horse for an entire year."

Tower replied as a Texan he felt "humiliated that a senator from Montana should correct him on the cost of a horse. I was, of course, figuring a very low-cost horse."

IT'S SAFE to assume Congress won't opt for horses and the defense budget will never again drop below $120 billion. But don't think the congressional committee that passes on defense spending isn't looking for ways to save money.

Each year, the hearing record on the defense appropriation bill runs about eight volumes at 500 pages each. This year, the following notice appeared at the start of the first volume:

"To save the expense of printing, all prepared witness statements in excess of 20 typewritten pages are not reprinted in these volumes. All such statements have been made part of the permanent committee records and will be retained in the committee files."

Sheer fantasy, indeed

For sheer hypocrisy, not to mention misinformation, it would be difficult to match President Carter's stated rationale for refusing to lift economic sanctions against the new, black government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

Mr. Carter's prim legalisms and moral posturing measure Zimbabwe Rhodesia's progress toward democracy by standards observed only in the breach by that beleaguered nation's enemies.

The president, reluctantly we assume, conceded that the new government came to power via elections conducted "in a reasonably fair way..." But Mr. Carter found fault with a constitution which grants whites a temporarily disproportionate share of power.

Has the president forgotten that the settlement urged on Salisbury by London and Washington just about a year ago would also have granted whites a disproportionate share of administrative responsibility as the price of continued stability and economic progress? He apparently has.

President Carter contended that the exile guerrilla groups were "banned from the election."

In fact, however, the guerrillas banned themselves. Guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo were repeatedly invited to participate in the elections and to submit their political fate to the voters.

The sole condition on this invitation was that the guerrillas renounce the use of violence and terrorism during the electoral process. This they refused to do.

Instead, Mugabe and Nkomo denounced the elections, threatened death to those who voted, and shunned participation just as they had refused to share power in the transitional government or join in last year's negotiations over a new constitution.

It's almost unbelievable that the president of the United States yet contends that the guerrillas were "banned from the election."

Mr. Carter's contention that Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's government refused to negotiate with the guerrillas stands the facts on their head. Bishop Muzorewa's government, like the transitional government which preceded it, has signaled its willingness to participate in an unconditional, all-parties conference to end the war.

But what have Mugabe and Nkomo done? They consistently have rejected such a conference — and they continue to do so today.

Quite recently, Mugabe ruled out any possibility of negotiations with the new government.

Furthermore, President Carter indulged in fantasy when he maintained that continued sanctions against the duly elected government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia will help achieve "genuine majority rule... based on constitutional processes that exemplify the very principles on which the United States has been founded."

The maintenance of sanctions can only serve to lessen Zimbabwe Rhodesia's ability to resist Marxist guerrillas backed by Cuba and the Soviet Union and further diminish future prospects for any kind of human rights in that war-torn land.

How in the world Mr. Carter and his close associates can continue to support the guerrillas who are backed by the Communists, we will never know. Have we sold out to them, or just what?

We can only hope and expect that Congress understands enough about the realities of Zimbabwe Rhodesia to override Mr. Carter and lift economic sanctions without further delay. It is time for wisdom and right to prevail, and Congress holds the key to the important issue.

Senator Percy works hard to heed people's 'message'

WASHINGTON - No politician in the republic made more of a show of sackcloth and ashes during the 1978 campaign than Charles Harting Percy of Illinois. Down 18 points in the polls eight days from the election, Percy was a walking mea culpa.

Harassed by a wild-punching, well-financed challenger with Percy's kind of money, Percy virtually begged voters to let him mend his ways so that he could change their perception of him as a free-spending liberal.

His opponent's excesses and Percy's penitence combined to elect him to his third term. Grateful and much relieved, Percy promised on election night to heed the people's "message" which he understood to be their disgust with big federal spending, overregulation, inflation and high taxes.

Well, it's eight months later, and what has the man done? A fair amount, really, considering that this Congress is pretty much content to swat flies and read the papers. Percy, being a diligent sort, even as he approaches 60, regularly holds lengthy staff meetings to determine whether "we are meeting the objectives of my commitment."

Shortly after the election, Percy gathered his staff and somberly announced that anyone who didn't want to go his new (conservative) way "could resign and go to work for another senator." None did.

Nick Thimmesch

Regulatory reform is not as politically sexy as the issues of energy or inflation. But the feds spend $5 billion a year to fund regulatory agencies, and industry spends another $60 to $130 billion annually to comply with what these 32 agencies demand.

Excessive regulation contributes to inflation and cuts productivity. It makes business managers go cross-eyed with anger. Mention OSHA, and even the strong weep in anguish. President Carter had no trouble eliminating 1,000 of OSHA's choice nit-picking regulations.

So Percy pushes for a bill creating a legal mechanism to regulate the regulators. It puts the burden on the President to submit thoughtful plans to Congress every two years to gradually (over a period of 18 years) reform all regulatory agencies.

If the President and Congress balked, then the agencies would be required (ah, another regulation) to stop issuing new rules and eventually end enforcement of existing rules. This is the now popular "sunset" device.

"From our hearings, there is a sense that programs can be ended, and that the market mechanism can go to work," Percy told me. "The

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Center of great Iranian puzzle

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Some fascinating documents, including a secret message from Henry Kissinger to the shah of Iran, have turned up in Washington. They were left behind by the shah's urbane ambassador, Ardeshir Zahedi, after he vacated the Iranian embassy.

The documents add some new jigsaw pieces to the great Iranian puzzle. They indicate that Kissinger, after leaving government, continued to advise the shah; that Kissinger recommended the return to prison of the dissidents whom President Carter had encouraged the shah to release and that Kissinger worked behind the scenes with the Rockefeller brothers, Nelson and David, to assist the shah.

These startling allegations add to the puzzle that we have been piecing together from top-secret documents and exhaustive interviews. In past columns, we have established that the Rockefeller brothers had close financial ties to the shah and that he had ordered his subordinates to channel Iranian oil funds through their Chase Manhattan Bank.

Significantly, Kissinger began his international career as a foreign policy director for the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. He is now back with the Rockefellers, at least nominally, as a consultant to the Chase Manhattan Bank.

There is also suppressed, secret documentation that the shah was the driving force behind the astronomical 500 percent leap in oil prices and that Saudi Arabia had offered to block the price rise in 1974 if the Nixon administration would intervene with the shah. But Kissinger had stubbornly opposed any interference with the shah, who was left free to continue agitating for higher prices.

This persuaded the other oil-selling nations that the United States secretly supported the shah's drive for the moon. Soon the oil billions began pouring into the shah's coffers — much of it by way of the Chase Manhattan Bank.

Banking sources in New York City, Paris and Geneva have told us that the shah, escaped with a staggering $25 billion, which he still controls through a maze of corporate fronts and bank accounts.

In two interviews, Kissinger angrily denied the insinuation that his attitude toward the shah was influenced in any way by the Rockefellers' financial dealings. His present services for the bank, he insisted, are strictly advisory. He also denied evidence that he has continued to advise and assist the shah.

But among the documents that the shah's ambassador left behind in the Iranian embassy were copies of cables he had sent to the shah. One of them, classified top-secret and dated Nov. 5, 1978, contains reactions to the shah's decision to install a military government.

Translated from the Persian, the cable, written by Zahedi, begins with this salutation: "I kiss your feet thousands and thousands of times and beg you to allow me to report to His Imperial Majesty the following..."

Among other tidbits, Zahedi reported: "I talked to Kissinger at 6:30. He said he was glad to hear about the shah's decisions and congratulations. He also said: 'You have to stay strong against all these critics. I believe that you have to get the prisoners you released earlier and put them in jail again. Your work will be easier if you put them in jail.'"

There was also a message for Nelson Rockefeller: "I would like to convey to your majesty my warmest congratulations and respect for the

ART BUCHWALD Signing of the very first SALT treaty set pattern

WASHINGTON - The first SALT treaty talks were held in about 750 B.C. As reported by the Prophet Isaiah, they took place between King Hezekiah of Judea and King Sennacherib of Assyria. The original draft of the agreement read: "All swords will be beaten into plowshares, and all spears into pruning hooks; nation will not lift up sword against nation and neither side will learn war any more."

When the wording of the treaty reached Hezekiah, there was an immediate outcry from his hawk advisors.

"We can't give up our swords. How do we know the Assyrians will not turn their plowshares back into weapons as soon as the treaty is signed?" said one general.

"The throw weight of the Assyrian spears is far superior to ours," another one cried. "This is a trick of the Assyrians so they can launch a first-strike capability against us."

A third advisor to the king said, "I cannot support a SALT B.C. Treaty of this kind. If we turn all our swords into plowshares, the Assyrians will have twice as many land-based plowshares as we have. Each plowshare could be mounted with 10 pruning hooks, and be turned into offensive weapons which would bury every man, woman and child in Judea."

King Hezekiah was impressed with the arguments. He knew there wasn't a chance in Gomorrah of getting the treaty approved by his people, unless there were guarantees that their sword and spear arsenals would remain intact.

He sent word to Sennacherib in Damascus that he wanted a limitation on the number of offensive swords each side could have, and he demanded the dismantling of defensive shields that the Assyrians had developed to deflect Judean steel.

Sennacherib, who had stockpiled thousands of swords and shields and had developed a new SS-18 spear which could be launched from a ditch, met with his advisors and worked out a strategy.

"We will tell Hezekiah," he said, "that as part of detente each side will be able to double the number of swords and spears in their arsenals, and both parties will be permitted to develop one more weapon of its own choosing. Even with this we will still have superiority over them."

"What about the plowshares?" "We will insist at this time that plowshares not be included in the arms limitation agreement. As you know, our new Backfire plowshare will be ready in six months. It will be an answer to their Minuteman pruning hook."

Hezekiah received the Assyrian proposals which he knew would be rejected by the hardliners in his court. "What about verification?" one of them said. "How do we know the Assyrians will not put six blades on one sword?" another asked. "What would prevent them from turning their pruning hooks back into Mirved lances?"

Hezekiah knew he'd have to promise his army something in exchange for a SALT B.C. Treaty. "If you support me on this," he told them, "I will authorize the building of an MX system costing 30 billion sheep. This will enable us to hide our mobile spear throwers underground so the Assyrians will never know where they are. It will be the ultimate deterrent to prevent a surprise attack."

The Judean generals reluctantly agreed and King Hezekiah and King Sennacherib met to sign the SALT B.C. protocols.

It was the first SALT treaty negotiated by civilized people in history, and it has been the model for arms limitation agreements ever since.

Mark Russell says

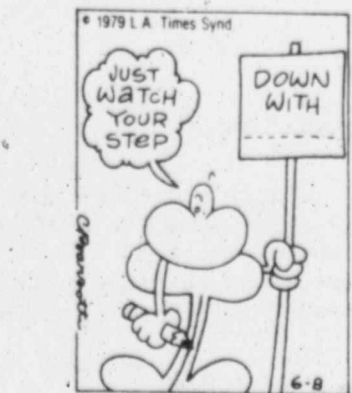

The latest presidential candidate, Congressman John Anderson, has a bit of a recognition problem. Even Lowell Weicker never heard of him.

Anderson is the first presidential candidate this year whose power base is smaller than his campaign bus.

President Carter refused to lift the sanctions against Rhodesia for fear of losing Nigerian oil. If OPEC so desired, we wouldn't recognize Hawaii and Alaska.

The way Carter's luck is running, he could solve the energy problem, lower inflation, settle the Middle Eastern problem and beat Teddy Kennedy — and at that very moment he would be hit by Skylab.

'Eagle Lady' says she'll leave her perch in tree-top nest

OVIEDO, Fla. (AP) — "Eagle Lady" Doris Mager says she'll climb down reluctantly from her aerie home of the past six days — the straw-and-stick cradle of an abandoned eagle's nest atop a tall, swaying pine tree. She chose today to come down because it's the 197th anniversary of the congressional designation of the bald eagle as the nation's symbol. "I'm somewhat sad that it's almost over," said the 53-year-old woman who carried out the stunt to draw attention to the plight of the endangered bald eagle. "She hates to come down but knows that those of us down here are starting to get tired," said Janet Roth, spokeswoman for the Florida Audubon Society, whose members have been keeping an around-the-clock watch at ground level. The silver-haired Mrs. Mager acquired her nickname as a result of 17 years spent in caring for injured birds of prey. She is a vice president of the Audubon Society and is considered an authority on the American bald eagle. Besides always having wanted to spend some time in an eagle's nest, she thought her "nest-in" would be a good way to dramatize her contention that stronger measures are needed to protect the dwindling eagle population. And it seemed a good way to raise money for a new aviary the society is building for sick and injured birds. The organization appears to have fallen short of its goal of $20,000 in donations, but a final accounting is not expected for a week or two. Mrs. Mager began her six-day adventure by partially climbing a rope ladder and then being hoisted into the huge nest atop the 50-foot tree by a pulley contraption from a tree and landscaping firm. That was shortly after 1 p.m. last Thursday, Flag Day. Her first plan after getting back to her normal environment, Mrs. Mager said, was to go jogging.

Hearing slated for Wayne's will

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A probate hearing has been scheduled for July 10 on actor John Wayne's $6.85 million estate, which excludes his third wife and a son-in-law. The will provides for a special bequest to his two children under 18, in the amount of $5,000 multiplied by the difference between 21 and the child's age at Wayne's death. This provision applies to John Ethan, 17, who will get $20,000, and Marisa, 13, who will receive $40,000. Also, when Wayne's three youngest children — John Ethan, Marisa and 23-year-old Aissa — reach age 30, they will receive one-half the principal in their trusts, then at age 35 they'll get the remainder. It was not known how much was in each trust. Wayne has four children over age 35. They are Michael, 44; Toni, 43; Patrick, 42, and Melinda, 41. Each of those four was bequeathed a trust sum, which will go to the qualified spouse upon death. Warren declined to say why Wayne made that provision. Warren also said that the trustees continue to administer Toni's share, which will go to her children after she dies and they reach age 21. Wayne also left $10,000 to former secretary Mary St. John, and $30,000 to Pat Stacy, his secretary at the time of his death. All of Wayne's art objects — paintings, sculptures, and American Indian artifacts — were given to organizations that can provide his estate with tax deductions. The remainder of Wayne's estate will be placed into trust accounts, one of which will provide his first wife, Josephine, with monthly checks of $3,000 for life. Upon her death, the funds will be divided among her four children by Wayne. Wayne's second wife, Esperanza, died soon after their divorce in 1953. They had no children. Lewis Johnson, Wayne's Arizona ranch partner, also is a trustee of the estate. The ranch is included in Wayne's personal property. Other major land holdings include his Newport Harbor home and property on Puget Sound in Washington. Wayne bequeathed preferred stock in his movie production company, "Batjac" Productions Inc., to his eldest son, Michael, the third named administrator of the estate.

Young Southerners take up Yankee speech patterns

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mothers and fathers of the South take heed — there's a trend among yo' young 'uns to abandon the southern dialect and adopt the speech patterns of the Nawth.

"This isn't a new idea — that Southern-American English is disappearing in the South," Kenneth Shields, an associate professor of English at Memphis State University, said in a recent interview.

But Shields and a group of graduate seminar students believe they are among the first to identify an age grading.

They surveyed 75 Shelby County residents, breaking them down by age — over 55; 26-to-55; and 25 or younger — and asked them to choose from five regional dialects.

The dialects used were North Midland, which is prevalent in Shields' home state, Pennsylvania; Inland North, the Great Lakes area; Eastern New England; South Midland, which includes Middle and East Tennessee; and Southern-American English, which takes in West Tennessee and the Deep South.

"Field workers played tapes of the five regional dialects and people were supposed to rate them," Shields said.

"The over-55 group rated the southern dialect significantly higher than the others. It dropped to second in the second group and it dropped clear to third in the youngest group."

Shields said neither education, occupation or race had much influence on a person's preference.

"Age was the only one," he said.

North Midland dialect rated highest overall, he said, followed closely by Inland North.

Shields, 27, believes one of the main reasons young southerners lean toward the northern dialect is radio and television.

The theory is that young southerners who have been exposed daily to northern-speaking broadcasters and actors most of their lives, tend to mimic what some linguists call "network English."

"Probably, too, a nationally-oriented education system might have something to do with it," Shields said.

The most pronounced change in the southern speech pattern, Shields said, is the return of the letter "r." It's now car instead of cah and poor instead of po, he said.

But he said he didn't mean to imply that one day there'd be an entire nation of Northern-sounding people.

"I don't think we'll ever reach a time when we have complete uniformity. That would be a shame," he said. "But we are all going to talk much more similarly."

Olympics skater, wife teach ballroom dancing

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — Cherrie Stroukoff, whose husband went from Olympic skating to ballroom dancing, recommends a dance floor for enhancing domestic harmony.

"One couple openly told us it definitely saved their marriage," says Mrs. Stroukoff, who runs the Fondy Academy of Dance with her husband Peter. "Now they have candlelight dinners and go out together again."

Stroukoff, a member of the U.S. Olympic team in 1968, and his wife met about five years ago in Tulsa, Okla., while both worked at a dance studio there.

Stroukoff later managed a Fred Astaire studio franchise in Nashville, Tenn. Then, three years ago while visiting relatives here, the couple decided to open their own studio.

The Stroukoffs, both 30 and parents of a 7-year-old daughter, say dancing is both a hobby and their profession. They tell anyone who asks that it is a main ingredient in a happy household.

"Dancing makes you aware of the other person," Mrs. Stroukoff said. "When dancing, you constantly are thinking of what can make your partner's part easier."

"We are both always trying to make the other person look better," Stroukoff said. "Our whole day is spent this way."

The Stroukoffs, whose studio is a 25-by-28-foot room in their home, specialize in teaching adult couples ballroom dancing, polka, discotheque routines and even belly dancing.

When they find time, they travel to Chicago and as far as California in search of professional trainers who can expand their repertoire. They occasionally compete in dance contests.

Stroukoff is from a family of ice skaters — his brother, Andy, was the nation's No. 2 ice dancer last year.

Dancing by itself, said Mrs. Stroukoff, isn't guaranteed to save a deteriorating marriage.

"Most professional dancers I know who have married their partners eventually split up or at least go out and get another partner," she said.

But she said she had yet to see marriage spoiled by dancing, and had never known a reasonably sound marriage that wasn't improved by it.

"It's a great way to get people back together again, or closer together," she said, acknowledging it might not be the first thing a marriage counselor would recommend: "It's something most people wouldn't think of."

She said she and her husband tried to suggest that idea to their customers by dancing for them.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Shhhhhhh!

The above, more or less, is about all folks are saying to each other these mornings at an innovative — and very quiet — Commerce Department outpost in a Virginia suburb of Washington.

Between 7:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m., the controller's office of the National Technical Information Service more resembles a library or a white-collar religious order than a busy, profit-making government outfit. Idle chatter, loud noises or other interruptions of thought processes have been officially outlawed, early morning, as of last week.

Instead of talking about the previous night's adventures, sports, or answering telephones, the 50-plus workers of the controller's office have been encouraged to quietly get their acts together so they can have a more productive day. A couple of employees are assigned to respond to telephone calls or visitors. But the rest, in hushed tones, go semi-silently about the business of getting ready for business.

The "Daily Quiet Period" has been ordered by assistant controller Allan

Betts who advised employees in a memo entitled "DAILY QUIET PERIOD IMPLEMENTATION" that early morning silent-running will be tested for a month to see what happens.

The NTIS is a unique operation in several ways. Located primarily in Springfield, Va., it collects technical reports on government-funded research, digests and compiles them, and then sells the material to business and the public. It pays its own way, also unique.

Employees come in anytime from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., and talking — except to conduct outside business or in an emergency — is taboo during the quiet time.

Guiding principles of the quiet-period were outlined in a sub-memo called "Guiding Principles." They are:

- 1) No outgoing telephone calls.
- 2) No visitors, other than public sector customers, are to be entertained.
- 3) No unnecessary talking.
- 4) No excessive movement.
- 5) No meetings should be planned. If it becomes necessary to schedule or to attend a meeting, please arrange to meet away from your office area.

'Daily Quiet Period' advised for workers

Interest in catapultry having slingshot effect in United States, world

By JOHN HARTZELL

WHITING, Wis. (AP) — Interest in catapultry is on the increase in this country and elsewhere, says Rodney Wolf, president of the National Catapultry Association.

Visions of medieval soldiers lobbing flaming objects into castles — but it's not that kind of catapultry.

To Wolf and other enthusiasts, catapultry means slingshots.

Wolf cites low cost, the benefits of exercise, increasingly sophisticated equipment and the knowledge that other adults still use slingshots as among the reasons for the resurgence.

"Catapultry is about the least expensive sport to get involved in now, other than kite flying," he says.

Basic models can be purchased for $2 to $8. Wolf says steel balls have become the most popular ammunition for accurate shooting, and if used indoors for target competition, they can be retrieved easily with magnets.

"The sport helps develop hand-eye coordination and muscle tone," he says.

Wolf says that, contrary to the slingshot's hooligan image, one line is being developed specifically with the exercise needs of the handicapped in mind.

Slingshots were not actually developed until the mid-19th Century, after the development of vulcanized rubber. Wolf says, although David used a sling, a stone and the power of centrifugal force to slay Goliath centuries earlier.

Wolf says catapults now come in three basic models. There's the original forked stick-type, and a variety that uses tubular bands rather than flat rubber. He says the most modern device employs molded, tapered tubing with an offset carriage designed for shooting accuracy, has the lowest drawing weight and produces the highest velocity for the ammunition.

"It's just an awful lot of fun," he says of the newest model.

"A lot of interest has come about because people are finding out about various catapulting activities," Wolf says. "They are finding out that other people are doing this, too. It is rekindling an old interest."

Wolf says many physical education and recreation instructors have expressed interest in the sport recently, since publication of an article in a professional journal aimed at them.

He says he'll teach a course in catapultry at the YMCA in nearby Stevens Point, and that several others are being taught elsewhere.

It's hard to explain, but in China there's Hope

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

PEKING (AP) — How do you explain to a bewildered Chinese animal keeper that an American television crew wants to lock something called Big Bird in a cage at the Peking zoo?

"It isn't easy," said producer-director Bob Wynne, who begins shooting next week. "They don't know who Big Bird is and locking him up is a ridiculous situation anyhow."

Explaining Big Bird to Chinese who have never seen "Sesame Street" is just one of the cultural hurdles on the "Road to China," the three-hour TV show that Bob Hope has come to China to make. The script calls for Hope to come upon the hapless muppet, unlock the cage and set it free to sing to Chinese children.

There also was a problem persuading officials to close off part of the Great Wall of China so Hope can emerge from a tunnel, stroll down the wall and sing, "We're off on the road to China."

It took a while to arrange, with Wynne asking for security guards to divert the streams of sightseers for half an hour and the Chinese pointing out that that would be difficult. The Chinese finally agreed, Wynne said.

Makeup man Don Marando has his own set of problems. He wants to exchange tricks of the trade with his Chinese counterparts.

"I told them I would put a Western makeup on one of their people, but they don't want me to," said Marando. "They want to watch me put makeup on one of ours, not one of theirs."

He said the Chinese were very curious about American makeup appliances, like wrinkles and jowls, and he has sent for a special shipment from Hollywood. He plans to leave behind all his equipment and eight hair dryers.

"It's going to be a great show," said Hope, adding that he hopes to do a live performance for the Chinese and is awaiting the communist government's permission.

"It's hard to get over all the people here," said Hope as he practiced his golf swing in the Peking Hotel. "I think it would be great if we took some shots of all the people in the street and on bicycles and then sang, 'People, people who need people.'"

Stafford lawyers withdraw

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma County District Judge Jack R. Parr has granted an attorney's request that his firm be allowed to withdraw as counsel for mass murder suspect Roger Dale Stafford.

Lawyer Gary Dean of Pryor, Okla., during a hearing Tuesday, also made a formal entry of appearance on behalf of Garvin A. Isaacs, the Oklahoma City attorney who successfully defended the late Gene Leroy Hart in the slayings of three Girl Scouts. Hart's death at the state prison in McAlester on June 4 has been ruled a heart attack by medical officials.

Dean said Isaacs had a binding commitment in Houston and could not attend Tuesday's hearing. But he said the Oklahoma City criminal lawyer met with Stafford over the weekend and agreed to take his case.

Judge Parr granted Dean's request after the attorney told him that Stafford's relatives in Chicago had been unable to pay fees agreed on earlier.

Stafford is accused of one count of first-degree murder in the July 16, 1978, killing of Terri M. Horst, one of six persons whose bodies were found in the meat locker of a south Oklahoma City steakhouse.

Police also have listed Stafford as a suspect in the June 22, 1978, slayings of three members of the Melvin Lorenz family in San Antonio, Texas. Their bodies were found strewn along I-35 near Purcell in central Oklahoma.

Stafford was alert and courteous when questioned by Parr about the change in attorneys. He answered "yes sir," when asked if he understood the proceeding and "not at all, sir" when asked if he had any objection to Isaacs representing him.

Lawyer has lead in Ghana

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Victor Owusu, a lawyer, took a 23,535-vote lead today over the early leader, diplomat Hilla Limann, as the vote count continued in Ghana's first presidential election in seven years.

With the vote counted in 71 of 140 voting districts, Owusu's middle-of-the-road Popular Front Party had also taken the lead in balloting for Parliament with 29 seats in the 140-member legislature. Limann's People's National Party, after an early lead, had 22 seats.

Limann's PNP is a center-left party that traces its beginnings to Kwame Nkrumah, the country's leader from 1952 until he was ousted by the military in 1966.

If neither candidate wins a majority, election rules call for a runoff vote within two weeks. There was no estimate of when the tally would be complete.

The voting was held Monday on schedule even though there had been another coup two weeks before, the third in eight years, led by Flight Lt. Jerry John Rawlings.

The new 14-man Armed Forces Revolutionary Council has promised to turn the country over to the elected civilian government by Oct. 1, but council spokesmen have said the transition could come sooner.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon has canceled plans to attend a moon-walk anniversary festival in Las Vegas next month, but he'll have his own party for the nation's astronauts at his Casa Pacifica estate.

Jean Magowan, a spokeswoman for the Dunes Hotel and Country Club where the astronauts' Las Vegas party will be held July 11-15, said Nixon had planned to attend the Las Vegas gathering marking the 10th anniversary of the first landing on the moon.

Now, however, about 100 persons — including astronauts, their wives and dignitaries — will attend Nixon's Mexican-theme poolside cocktail party and luncheon July 15, said Ms. Magowan. She said the party is apparently the final function Nixon will host at the Spanish-style seaside estate, which the Nixons have sold.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The court with final jurisdiction over the Jagger vs. Jagger divorce case has yet to be determined, but that fact hasn't stalled legal action in the case.

Bianca Jagger's attorney has filed a motion here asking that rock singer Mick Jagger be held in contempt for failing to pay his estranged wife $3,000 a week in temporary support as ordered by Superior Court Judge Harry T. Shafer. Marvin Mitchelson said Jagger, 35, has also failed to obey the court's order to deposit $35,000 in trust for attorney's fees for Mrs. Jagger, 25.

Mitchelson said Jagger would be served with a subpoena to appear in Los Angeles when the contempt motion is heard Aug. 9. A British court has scheduled a hearing for July 6 to decide whether the marital battle should be waged here or in London.

Mrs. Jagger is seeking half of the $25 million she estimates Jagger earned during their seven-year marriage. She testified at a recent hearing that Jagger spends about $450,000 a year on personal expenses and made $13 million on a recent American tour by the Rolling Stones.

Big drop in traffic deaths attributed to 'luck'

Traffic deaths in Midland County dropped by 50 percent in 1978 from the previous year, according to a recent Department of Public Safety report.

That figure translates to 12 fewer deaths from traffic accidents — 24 in 1977 compared to 12 in 1978.

DPS officials said Tuesday that luck accounted for the drop.

"It's hard to put a finger on any one reason for the difference in (traffic fatality) totals," said Lt. Jimmie Rhoads of the DPS safety education division in Midland.

Rhoads said many factors could contribute to a rise or decline in traffic accident fatalities.

"What it probably boils down to," said Rhoads, "is luck."

Deploying troopers in different areas and concentrating on roads that experience a higher frequency of accidents might account for the difference in highway deaths, explained Rhoads.

Public awareness might also cause a drop in traffic fatalities, he said. Television, radio programs and billboard campaigns sponsored by groups like Petroplex Alert may have caused people to slow down and drive more safely, he said.

However, measuring the actual effect of such efforts is difficult — if not impossible, Rhoads explained.

Trooper James Ashwood agreed that deployment of troopers might affect the number of traffic fatalities under certain conditions.

"If there was one particular highway or stretch of road that had a lot of accidents," he said, "then concentrating our efforts in that area might stop some of the problem."

But the theory doesn't apply in this case, said

Ashwood.

In 1978, Midland County did not have a road or highway that could be singled out as a hazardous spot and no major changes in trooper deployment were made in 1978 from 1977, he said.

The real difference in 1977 and 1978 traffic fatality totals appears to be the number of fatal accidents in which more than one person was killed.

In 1978, there were 12 accidents in which a total of twelve people were killed, according to DPS figures. There were 17 fatal accidents in 1977, resulting in 24 deaths.

"There were three accidents in 1977 in which two people were killed and one accident which resulted in four deaths," said Ashwood. "There was no big reduction in fatal accidents," he said, "but a big drop in fatalities."

"Some of that you have to attribute to luck," Ashwood said.

Statewide figures released recently by the DPS show Texas motor vehicle traffic deaths in 1978 reached a record high of 3,980, an increase of 8 percent above the previous high of 3,698 in 1977.

Traffic accidents for Midland County totaled 2,613 for 1978. The city of Midland had 2,340 traffic accidents recorded, the DPS report indicated. Of those, 518 resulted in injury.

Big Spring had a total of four fatal accidents accounting for four deaths in 1978, according to the report. A total of 863 accidents were recorded for the town, resulting in 241 injuries, DPS statistics indicated.

Odessa had 12 fatal accidents resulting in 12 deaths, DPS statistics showed. The city had a total of 3,815 traffic accidents in 1978.

A Texas record high of 321 motorcycle deaths in 1978, in comparison to 270 deaths in 1977, was attributed by the DPS report to a revision of the state statute dealing with the use of helmets.

The statute, revised in August 1977, permits motorcyclists age 18 or older to ride without protective headgear. During 1978, there were 232 motorcyclists killed who were not wearing helmets, the report indicated, compared to 89 such fatalities in 1977 and only 12 in 1976.

Motorcycle deaths in 1978 represent a 19 percent increase in motorcycle deaths above 1977, and a 73 percent over the 186 motorcycle deaths in 1976, according to the report.

Other statistics in the DPS report indicate:

— Rural accidents in Texas during 1978 resulted in 2,316 deaths, 58 percent of the statewide death total.

— Saturday, April 8, 1978, with 30 deaths, was the deadliest day in Texas traffic during 1978.

— In June 1978, 331 fatal motor vehicle accidents occurred, resulting in the death of 338 people.

Lester Roloff in the rotunda of the Capitol in Austin Tuesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Roloff deadline today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — One more signature from State District Judge Charles Mathews today and Lester Roloff's three South Texas youth homes will be closed after years of court battles.

Mathews gave Roloff until Tuesday to apply for state licenses, which the evangelist says would invite anti-Christian control over his facilities.

The judge must sign final papers, or writs, before state welfare workers and state police carry out orders to remove the homes' 400 children. The youths will be returned to their parents or placed in foster care settings.

"We intend to enforce the order tomorrow morning," Assistant Attorney General David Young said Tuesday.

Roloffs' attorneys Tuesday unsuccessfully asked two state courts and a federal appeals judge to keep Mathews from closing the homes.

The Texas Supreme Court and the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin refused to interfere with Mathews' order. Judge Tom Gee of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals also rejected Roloff's request.

While lawyers for the Corpus Christi preacher scrambled from court to court, parents with children in Roloff's homes told Gov. Bill Clements they want their sons and daughters kept in the facilities.

But Clements told them he lacked power to stop the closings.

"I have no recourse at this point," Clements told 200 parents and ministers gathered in the Capitol rotunda.

"At this point, it's in the hands of the attorney general's office. He's in charge of enforcing the law," the governor said.

Clements told the group his efforts to help Roloff resist state licensing laws failed in the 1979 Legislature. The governor said the issue would be back before the next legislative session and parents asked him to call a special session to help Roloff.

Spokesmen for the parents and ministers said the group came from 26 states and attended a rally in Corpus Christi Monday night. They said they drove to Austin in cars and buses to protest violation of their parental rights.

Signs proclaiming, "Lester Roloff Today, Your Church Tomorrow" dotted the crowd.

Black teens

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roving bands of black youths hurled bottles at police and stopped traffic in a racially tense neighborhood of southwest Philadelphia, police said.

No injuries were reported, but three youths were taken into custody Tuesday night. Police said one was charged with disorderly conduct and the other two were released in the custody of their parents.

The incidents followed a church meeting of residents concerned about security in the neighborhood following a sniping incident Sunday night that left one black teenager dead and two others wounded.

'Jittery' parents prompt closing of Anchor Home

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A beleaguered Lester Roloff, saying parents of boys in one of his youth homes were getting "jittery," said late Tuesday that the Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata had been closed without his approval.

"It's closed up I guess. They sent the boys home," Roloff said, adding that there had been about 35 residents at the South Texas home.

The evangelist's six-year battle against state licensing drew towards a close Tuesday. Last week, State District Judge Charles Mathews of Austin gave Roloff through Tuesday to get licenses for his three youth homes. By early this morning Roloff still had no licenses and said he had no plans to get them.

"I never would have closed it. I'd have kept them there," he said of the Anchor Home.

The fundamentalist preacher said the decision to close was apparently made by Herman Oxford, superintendent at the home. He said the decision might have been prompted by nervous parents.

"All the stuff they have been hearing, the parents get jittery and decide to take their children home. Some of them were not ready to go home," he said.

Oxford could not be reached for comment late Tuesday. Roloff said the homes are in the total control of the superintendent.

Meanwhile, Roloff's Rebekah Home for Girls and Park Avenue Day School here prepared for usual business today despite the judge's promise to close the facilities.

The Texas Department of Human Resources huddled in Kingsville to plan the state closing of the two facilities here.

Antiwar activist surrenders

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nine years of hiding are over for Mary Assumpta Moylan, an antiwar activist convicted as a member of the Catonsville Nine.

Ms. Moylan, 43, is being held in Baltimore's Women's Detention Center awaiting assignment to a federal prison where she will begin serving a two-year sentence that was scheduled to start in 1970.

The registered nurse was convicted along with Daniel and Philip Berrigan and six others on charges of bringing napalm and setting fire to draft files at the Catonsville office of the Selective Service System in 1968.

Ms. Moylan surrendered to federal marshals Monday after contacting her former attorney, Harold Buchman, who said she refused to discuss her years as a fugitive. The FBI said the last reported sighting of Ms. Moylan was in 1972 when she was seen in the Southwest.

Elizabeth McAlister, a former nun now married to Philip Berrigan, had said she had received messages from Ms. Moylan through others attending anti-nuclear protests.

Ms. McAlister said Tuesday she had not known about the surrender in advance.

Search fails for sniper

FORT WORTH (AP) — Heavily armed law enforcement officers searched a vast area at Greater Southwest International Airport, but could not find any trace early today of a sniper who reportedly fired on a utility crew and passing cars.

The sniping incident was reported to police late Tuesday by a Texas Electric Service Co. crew working near the airport.

Police, including special weapons squads, were sent to the scene from Fort Worth, Hurst, Euless and Bedford following the report.

JULIE A. NORWOOD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Norwood, 2501 Shell Ave., has been graduated from The University of Texas School of Nursing at Galveston. She also attended Midland College and Texas A&M University.

Her medically related jobs include working as a nurses aide for Dr. John E. Terry of Midland and for Midland Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Hospital at Odessa. Before graduation from Midland High School, she was a member of the City of Midland Swim Team.

EX-STUDENTS OF Leonard High School will return to their alma mater July 14 for a reunion held in conjunction with the week-long activities of the 100th annual Leonard Picnic and Old Settlers Reunion slated July 9-14.

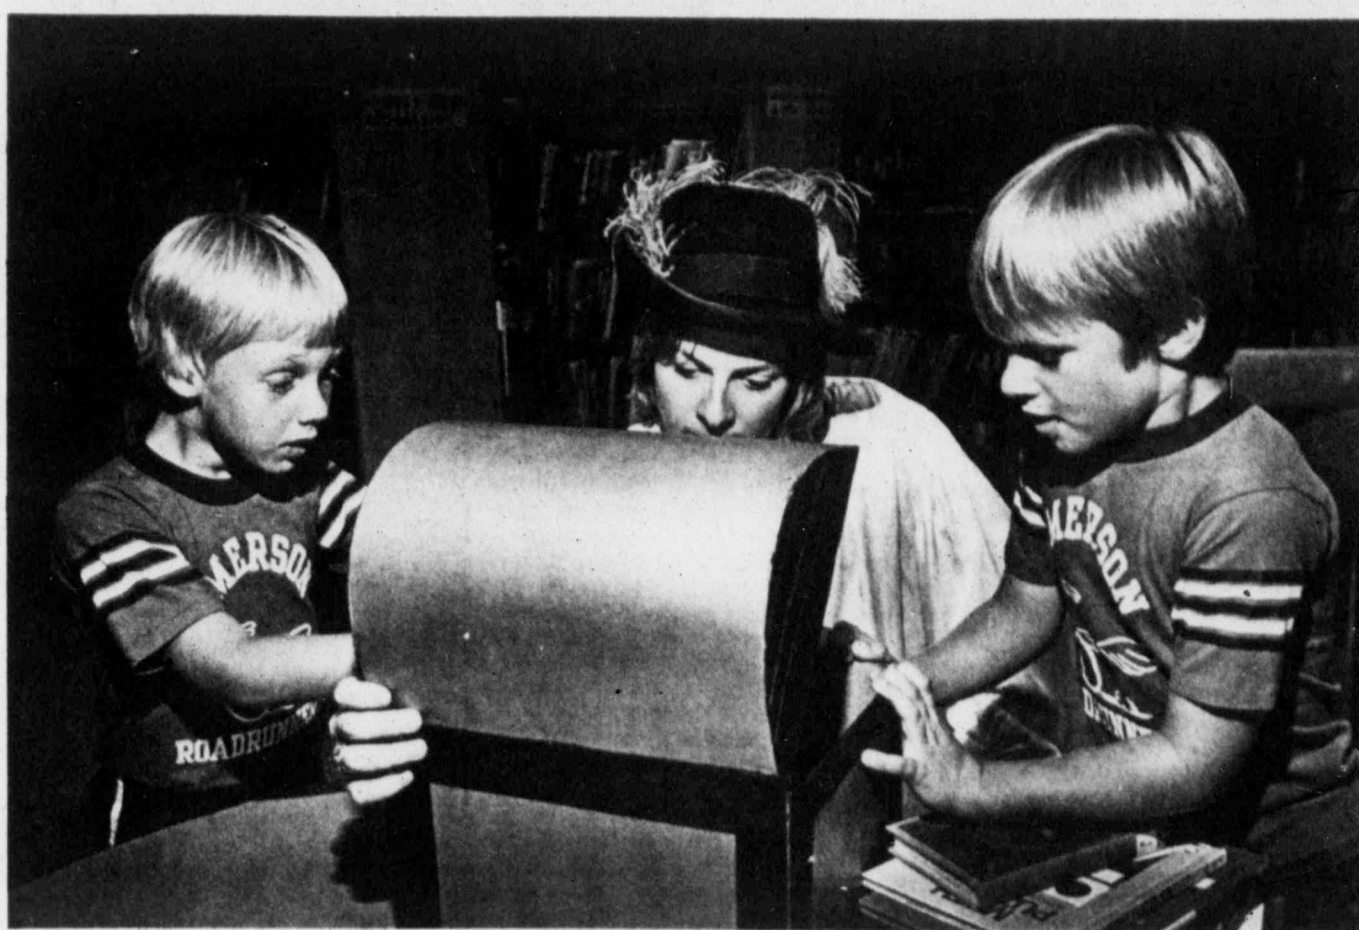

Registration will be from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the school cafeteria, followed by an assembly program from 3-4 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

Classes will be recognized in five year spans, with the class of 1929 being honored as the 50-year class.

Immediately following the reunion, a Texas historical marker commemorating the 100th anniversary of the town will be dedicated on the town square.

A barbecue sponsored annually by the Leonard Volunteer Fire Department will be held on the square.

Midlanders who are former students of Leonard High School can obtain more information by contacting Patricia McCraw, publicity chairman, at 214-587-3303.

How globetrotters pack

By PADDY CALISTRO
LOS ANGELES (LAT) — When Phyllis Diller travels she takes a set of pots and pans and, occasionally, her own stove. Shari Lewis says people look at her strangely when she boards a plane carrying a mini-violin and a suitcase bulging with puppets. Betsy Bloomingdale never goes anywhere without her special pillow.

Packing pans, puppets and pillows demands feats of on-the-go engineering, but so does packing even ordinary travel necessities such as clothes, shoes and toiletries. How do experienced travelers do it? What are their suitcase secrets? The Los Angeles Times surveyed several globetrotters and found a trunkful of luggage logic.

Lewis' puppeteering and conducting talents take her out of Los Angeles each weekend. "Before I go away, I fantasize every aspect of my trip and I pack based on my fantasies. I keep a check list that I made a number of years ago. It has categories of things I need like show wardrobe, daytime wardrobe, rehearsal clothes, dinner outfits, shoes, bras, jewelry, blouses and sweaters, hats and scarves and a couple of categories most people don't need, like puppets and puppet props," she explains, adding that she prepares the list days in advance of her actual trip.

"I'M DOING MY packing on paper so it's really kind of fun. The day before I go I pull out everything on the list. Because it's on paper, I never forget anything. There's nothing worse than getting somewhere and realizing you've got the perfect outfit, but no bra to wear with it," says Lewis, who admits she won't travel with clothes that require pressing. "I take a steamer along, but I'd never again be a slave to an iron."

Unlike Lewis, socialite Betsy Bloomingdale won't sacrifice her love for natural fiber, so she always carries an iron. "I've even traveled with a crisp organdy blouse and you know how organdy wrinkles. I stuffed it with tissue paper, wrapped it in plastic and packed it at the top of my case. All it needed was a slight touch-up with the iron," she says.

Bloomingdale tries to pack so she can carry her luggage on board. "Naturally if I'm going on a long trip it's not always possible, but when I go for a few days I pack everything in a hanging-type bag and a shoulder bag. I also carry a handbag with a shoulder strap so I can hang it around my neck if I have to. Sometimes I'm really a sight getting off a plane, but I'd rather have two arms pulled out of the sockets than wait for luggage," explains the seasoned traveler, who carries her pillow with her everywhere because "traveling is bad enough. At least you can sleep well in a strange hotel if you have something cozy with you."

DILLER TAKES A different approach to travel — the multi-trunk route. On the road all but two and a half months of the year, Diller has whittled her vagabond wardrobe down to fit in 40 suitcases in warm weather, but she can't seem to fit cool-climate clothes into fewer than 50. In less than two days she can fill all the luggage. "We're organized around here," she claims. She totes all of her kitchen utensils (yes, she leaves out the kitchen sink) in a special trunk for road trips that demand renting a house.

Casablanca recording artist Donna Summer sometimes travels with 13 suitcases, but she still plans her wardrobe carefully. "Most of my suitcases are filled with stage clothes. For clothes I wear when I'm not performing, I try to pack as simply as possible. I bring things I can wash out and that dry quickly. I take several pairs of Lycra stretch pants and leotards. You can wear them everywhere and they always look great. Stretch clothes are comfortable and never wrinkle."

Sallie Morton, president emerita of the American Gem Society, is away from her San Jose, Calif., jewelry store almost as much as she's there. Her travel log shows that she's traveled enough air miles in the last 20 years to circle the globe 17 times. Her tips?

"I always buy things that don't need to be ironed. Most of my travel wardrobe is polyester. For a 14-day trip I usually take along three suits, two pair of slacks that can mix with the jackets of the suits, and two evening outfits. I take five pair of shoes so I can change them often," says Morton, who packs her wardrobe in a wheeled suitcase.

CHRISTINA RENTERIA, a Hollywood fashion stylist, jets often to South America and Europe so she has assembled what she calls a workable traveling wardrobe. "When I board the plane I usually wear comfortable pants with a drawstring waist and an oversized top. I take my cosmetics case on board with me, so I can freshen up anytime I want to. I also make sure I have a book and a couple of magazines to pass the time on a long trip," Renteria says.

Inside her suitcase Renteria stashes her traveling basics. "I never go anywhere, even to the snow, without a bathing suit. You never know when you'll meet someone who has a pool or hot tub and most hotels have pools, too. A visored cap is a must and so are sunglasses. I buy plenty of film before I go away because it's so expensive overseas. And I always take a warm blazer that will go over everything, in case it gets cold," explains the former model who, at 5 feet 9, says she prefers to travel with comfortable leather-soled flats.

Both Bloomingdale and Renteria carefully color coordinate their wardrobes before anything goes in suitcases. Says Bloomingdale, "I usually have a color scheme to my travel wardrobe. Black and white works especially well. On my last trip to San Francisco, I took a black wool skirt for day, a black pleated silk skirt for evening, black and white silk camisoles, a blue silk blouse, a white jacket, a checked jacket and a knitted jacket with skirt that matched. The combinations were really wonderful and they all fit into one suitcase."

AND MORE TIPS from top travelers:

Morton: "Never take more suitcases than you can handle yourself. You can't always get help in airports."

Renteria: "Carry all of your toiletries in plastic bottles that are the same size and wrap each bottle in plastic zip-lock bags. Pressure in airplanes sometimes causes bottles to leak, so the bags can prevent a mess."

Bloomingdale: "When I hang clothes in my suitcase I cover every other piece with a plastic bag from the cleaners. You don't need a bag on everything if you alternate them."

Lewis: "Because I travel every weekend there are some things that I need on every trip that I keep permanently packed. All my toiletries stay in the suitcase."

Women Voters League selects yearly projects

Midland League of Women Voters met recently in the home of Diane Rhoden to elect officers, choose local program items for study in 1979-80 and to approve the budget for the coming year.

Charleen Rosebery was elected president. Other officers are Mickie Waters, first vice president; Shirley Watts, second vice president; Nancy Cassin, secretary; and Bonnie Walbel, treasurer.

In choosing local programs, league members shared community concern for quality pupil services in the public schools. Members voted to add to the existing school positions of the league "A study of pupil services offered by the Midland Independent School District." This would include vocational counseling, personal counseling, programs for the pregnant student, programs for the exceptional student, and preparation of both college-bound and vocational students for future careers: Reports of this study will be presented at the unit meetings in September and the first part of October.

League members also adopted a new local study item, "A survey of Midland city and county government, with publication of the resultant information in a local government handbook..." The league plans wide distribution of this booklet in the community.

In addition to local program items, the league will study governmental issues on the state and national level.

Elected directors of the Midland League of Women Voters Board are Diana Olien, Tricia Boyd, Barbara Greene, Marge Hellinghausen, Carolyn Wallace and Charlene Kullman. Appointed members are Mary B. Dunn, Sheila Billingsly and Pat Stanley. Chosen to serve on the nominating committee are Diane Rhoden, chairman; Midge Erskine and Mary B. Dunn. Mattie Chenoweth will be budget chairman.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization open to all citizens of voting age who believe in representative government. The purpose of the league is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

Contact Charleen Rosebery at 685-0564 or Barbara Greene at 683-2016 for further information about the League of Women Voters.

Make check of tire pressure

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Department of Transportation advises careful checks of tire pressure if you have purchased the new P-metric tires for your car.

These new tires must be inflated to three pounds per square inch over than the tires that originally came with your car. They are designed to run at higher pressure to improve gas mileage and if they are soft, they overheat and wear excessively.

Veterans ask

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Among the questions often asked of the Veterans Administration, and the answer is:

—Can a female veteran claim her husband as a dependent?

Yes. When drawing compensation, pension of education benefits from VA, a female veteran may claim her husband as a dependent.

Miss Dally will attend Southwestern University at Georgetown in the fall, as a freshman.

Blind woman shakes false pride

By ELAINE HOOKER
Associated Press Writer

BELCHERTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Sally Dodge — blind since she was 8 years old — apologized profusely when she bumped into an elderly gentleman who was pouring coffee. "I should be more careful," said Mrs. Dodge, who volunteers about 20 hours a week at the Belchertown senior citizens' center. "It's my job to make other people feel comfortable," she explained. The people she works with are just as likely to tease her about it and say, "Ah, Sally, watch where you're going," according to Bessie Getlin, an aide at the Council on Aging's center. Mrs. Dodge loves it. She remembers the first time she walked down the streets of Belchertown carrying the white cane which distinguishes a blind person. "I cried. But that was my last bout with false pride," she said. For the past four years she has had little time to worry about being blind. She answers the telephone, relays messages onto her tape recorder and uses her Braille address book to call elderly people who live in town. She visits people who are losing their vision with age, and she talks to them about how to perform everyday chores, such as writing a letter, baking a cake and cleaning the house. Mrs. Dodge, 46, is a victim of retinitis pigmentosa — a progressive deterioration of vision which for a time "makes it seem like you're looking through a telescope." When she was 8, she could read only very large print. When her youngest child, 14-year-old Sandy, was born, Mrs. Dodge could see "a head of golden curls." Now a person standing in front of her appears as a shadow. Although Mrs. Dodge has raised five children, she didn't think four years ago that she had anything to offer. "I didn't think other people wanted me around." "But, you've got to look life in the eye and say, 'Here I am, life, I'm coming,'" she said. So she "took a chance" and answered a radio advertisement requesting volunteers for the newly formed senior citizens' center. "They love her," said Clare Oberly, one of the center's directors. "At luncheons she's our best dishwasher, our chief cleanup person. She acts as receptionist, and she gets coffee ready ... We feel very inadequate when we see how much Sally can accomplish," she said. Recently, Mrs. Dodge was honored for logging more hours at the center than any other volunteer, and the staff plans to take her to Boston for the day as a reward. "I really don't think what I'm doing is all that great," said Mrs. Dodge. "I'm doing it for them now. For a while it was just for me. I've got serenely now, and I am working very hard to hang onto it. Since I've been giving of myself I've had an inner peace."

Tape recorder used to treat vandalizing dog

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vincent's family knew he wasn't a bad boy despite his arrest for breaking into and vandalizing a neighbor's home. So Vincent is seeing a shrink. That's not an uncommon sequence, except that Vincent is a dog — a pure-bred Vizsla with all the intelligence and sensitivity associated with those Hungarian hunting dogs. Unfortunately, Vincent is particularly sensitive to thunder, and his owner has spent many a sleepless, stormy night soothing and restraining him. The depth of his problem became evident recently when the 75-pound animal broke from his chain-link run-way and careened around the neighborhood, frantically seeking shelter from a storm. He found it in a nearby home, where he tore through an outside screen, crashed through the glass behind it and rampaged through the house. Police found the house a shambles and the culprit cowering in a bathtub. His owner was fined and Vincent was signed up for sessions with Dr. Ceile Washington at the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School's "Companion Animal Clinic." Dr. Washington decided on a "desensitization" program using a tape recording of a storm. Vincent, who begins to shiver and hide before humans even hear the distant rumble of thunder, is being forced to face his phobia. "We will first have the sound barely audible and have the owner pat the dog. Then we will turn it up slowly. When the dog shows anxiety, we will turn it down again," she explained. "Vincent will be rewarded with petting as long as he is calm. As soon as he shows anxiety, the 'reward' is removed." Dr. Washington says Vincent's problem is likely to have begun when his owner, trying to calm his fears, inadvertently "rewarded" him for neurotic behavior. "It started out probably as an innate fear," Dr. Washington said. "Vincent likes attention ... and he has learned over the years that he gets a lot of attention when he reacts to the thunder." Vincent's treatment is 10 minutes, twice a day, of the tape recording. "It's going to take weeks," Dr. Washington said. One of the main areas being explored by animal behaviorists is the interaction between pets and owners.

"People have a tendency to treat dogs as people," the doctor said. "They are not people. We want people to treat dogs as dogs ... What we are trying to facilitate is healthy, rewarding relationships between people and their pets." The most common complaint at the clinic is aggression. "An aggressive dog runs the household," Dr. Washington said. If teaching him to obey commands doesn't make him more submissive, he can become a problem. Treatment for pets may take various courses — behavior-modification techniques, drug therapy, or surgery. The clinic's services are free, Dr. Washington said. Last year, the National Institute of Mental Health gave the veterinary school a $300,000 training grant to explore the importance of animal companions in human life. The clinic is used for study — and for helping pets and people with problems.

'Warm Fuzzies' read to club

The June meeting of Gamma Sigma chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha was hosted by Mrs. Rick Alderman. Mrs. Charles Ambrose read a story entitled "The Warm Fuzzies" and then led a discussion concerning the necessity of individuals to be touched, to feel loved and to express love to others. This is demonstrated by stroking, she said.

'Senility' often depression

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Many old people are classified as senile when they actually are suffering from emotional depression that could be treated, a University of Chicago psychologist says. Memory loss in the elderly, the psychologist said, is exaggerated and often may be associated with depression rather than senility, a condition that affects only 5 percent of the elderly population. Dr. Robert Kahn tested 153 persons over age 50 at the university's Gerontology Clinic. These included 113 psychiatric outpatients and 40 others of similar age for comparison. He said in an interview Tuesday that many of the patients complained of memory impairment but performed well on memory tests. Those who were depressed tended to be the ones who complained about being unable to remember, Kahn said. The psychologist said because the symptoms are similar, depression often is misdiagnosed as organic brain disease. He pointed out that it is a common myth that memory loss comes with getting old. But he said persons of all ages have memory lapses and that the elderly tend to exaggerate their significance. He said they have more to remember so there is sometimes a problem in sorting it all out. Kahn said the unstimulating environment of nursing homes and sheltered-care facilities contribute to depression and its consequent memory loss, apathy and inability to concentrate.

Dental screening now available for older people

The First Christian Church Senior Services Office and the Junior League of Midland are co-operating to provide the second summer dental screening clinic series for senior citizens. The free clinics will be held during the remainder of June and July and Wednesday of each from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in the dental examining room at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Began as a pilot program in 1978, the clinics are staffed entirely with volunteers, and offer older Midlanders, some of whom have not seen a dentist in many years, an opportunity to have their teeth checked and get current information about dental hygiene. The clinics are for screening purposes only, and no dental work such as extractions will be performed. Volunteers participating in the project are Dr. George Ulvestad, Dr. Joe B. Warren, Dr. Charles Gaines, Dr. James A. Holman Jr., Dr. Lewis Tanner, Dr. Michael Lewis, Dr. E.M. Farha, Dr. Phillip Everett and Dr. Vincent Bash, dentists; Mrs. Kay Tom, Junior League member, and Mrs. Mae Attaway, Mrs. Lochia Hubbell, Mrs. Marilyn Mauldin, Mrs. Gretchen Parsley, Mrs. Ada Spivey and Mrs. Kay Fields, receptionists. Interested senior citizens may get additional information and make clinic appointments by calling the Senior Services Office at 682-7577 from 9 a.m. to noon weekdays, at least a day before the scheduled clinic. Transportation will be arranged with the Casa de Amigos senior bus service, when needed.

Beth Griffith marries McGuire

COLOGNE, Germany—Beth Jeanne Griffith and John Howard McGuire, both of Cologne, recited wedding vows at 11 a.m. May 29 here. Officiating at the single ring ceremony was N. Wellem.

Carrying a bouquet of yellow roses and babies breath, the bride was dressed in a white silk suit.

A reception was held in a country house in Saal, Germany. The house is over 200 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Griffith, 1423 Lanham St., are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Eugene Hubert McGuire of Long Beach, Calif. and the late Mr. McGuire.

The bride is a performer of classic and avant-garde opera and is presently engaged by Mauricio Kagel for performances of his pieces in Paris. She received a BA degree from St. Marys of Notre Dame, Ind. and did graduate study at Southern Methodist University, North Texas State University, Wayne State University, and at music conservatories in Munich and Cologne.

Mrs. John Howard McGuire

The bridegroom received a BA degree from Occidental College in Los Angeles and an MA in composition from the University of California at Berkeley.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RICHTER
Thursday, June 21

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now likely to feel impelled to spend more money than you can afford but it would be wise not to do so. Follow the advice of one who understands finances very well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more practical and stop spending money foolishly or you will regret it later. Show more consideration for others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take steps to improve your appearance before attending an important social event later in the day. Be poised.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consult an expert in your line of endeavor before going ahead with a plan you have in mind. Know where you are headed.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can come to a better understanding with family members at this time. Don't neglect to pay your bills on time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to use orthodox methods if you want to get ahead faster in the business world. Take no risk with securities.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You may want to engage in new interests now but make sure you study them well. A new friend can be helpful to you now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day for contacting good friends and good things can result. Know exactly where you stand with an associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to resist ideas of associates with fixed ideas, but cater to them for best results. Take it easy tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to study a new project you have in mind. Listen to what a fellow worker has to say and gain the benefits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to spend too much money where pleasure is concerned at this time. Show more affection for your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study conditions not to your liking at home and do whatever you can to improve them. Take needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy at regular routines early in the day for best results. Use extreme care in motion and avoid possible mishap.

DEAR ABBY Ruptured disco

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The house is finally quiet. My husband and two teenagers are in bed, but I am so upset I can't sleep.

Our marriage has been so wonderful, plus we are blessed with two healthy children who have always been well-behaved.

We were an exceptionally happy family until about a year ago. So what's the problem? LOUD MUSIC!

Abby, why must music be played so loud today? The only answer we get from our children is, "Because."

The words exchanged between my husband and son tonight were terrible. My husband asked our son politely to please turn down the stereo. Our son ignored him, so his father turned the stereo off and announced that neither of the children would be allowed to play music again until they agreed to keep the volume at a level that was comfortable for us.

I've never seen my husband so angry. The kids are mad and I'm upset.

Do other parents have this problem? And how do they handle it? — AM-FM

DEAR AM: Yes, many parents have that problem. And they handle it the same way your husband handled it — by exploding and then finally laying down the law.

The upsetting scene could have been avoided had you laid down the law as soon as the kids started playing music at a volume that was disturbing to you.

Loud music is "in" but the price one pays for constantly assaulting his eardrums with loud sounds is impaired hearing.

DEAR ABBY: My son has a lot of friends, and lately they have been getting married one after the other. Here is my gripe. He has to lay out $48 every time he rents one of those fancy tuxedos the bridegroom has picked out for him to wear to the wedding.

I think if the bridegroom wants his attendants to wear tuxes, he should pick up the tab for the rental. What is your opinion? — PINE BLUFF, ARK. MOM

DEAR MOM: It would be nice if the bridegroom could afford it, but most cannot, so it's customary for each attendant to pay for the rental of his own tuxedo.

DEAR ABBY: I'm expecting my first child in four months. All the beauty of pregnancy and motherhood are slowly being destroyed by the horror stories of other women.

Ladies I hardly know have told me how the doctor had to break the baby's arm for delivery, cords choking babies during delivery, etc. And as though that weren't bad enough, I've been hearing how "dangerous" hospitals are. (Unclean, mistakes made in the lab and pharmacy.) It's all so frightening.

These stories are entirely unsolicited and very unnerving.

Abby, how can I stop these horror stories? — FIRST TIMER

DEAR FIRST: You can't stop them from being STARTED, but you can stop them from being FINISHED by saying, "Thanks, but I'd rather not hear it."

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Write Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

DEATHS

R.C. Maxson

R.C. Maxson

R.C. Maxson, 78, 1700 Community Lane, died Tuesday in a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the First United Methodist Church with Dr. Charles Lutrick, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. J.B. Stewart. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Maxson was born Nov. 1, 1900, in Edna, Kan. He lived until 1944 in Coffeyville, Kan., where he was in the real estate and oil business. He moved to Midland in 1949 from San Diego, Calif. He was married to Iva Noyes June 10, 1950.

The Maxson Co. was established in 1955 and dealt with real estate and mortgage banking. Maxson retired a year ago due to ill health.

He was president of the Midland Board of Realtors in 1958. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church and the Downtown Lions Club. He was listed in Who's Who in Texas.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Embree W. Maxson of Charlotte, N.C., and Gordon H. Maxson of Los Angeles, Calif.; two stepsons, Jack Noyes of Arlington and Billy Noyes of Wichita Falls; three sisters, Amber Metcalf and Carolyn James, both of Coffeyville, Kan., and Ester Hine of Altamont, Kan.; nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to the First United Methodist Church or the Downtown Lions Club.

Pallbearers will be Bert Hotchkiss, George Doyle, W.G. Ray, Oliver Jacobson, John McFarlane and John C. Burleson of Clyde.

Air Force officials decline to discuss Higgs charges

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Air Force authorities have not specified what charges Staff Sgt. Wilmer W. Higgs Jr. — declared legally dead after disappearing 18 months ago — might face following his surrender to Lackland Air Force base officials.

"Higgs just walked up and turned himself in" Monday to his squadron commander at Lackland Air Force Base, where he had been a marksmanship instructor before vanishing New Year's Eve 1977, a base spokesman said.

Officials declined to say what charges the 33-year-old serviceman might face. However, the spokesman, who asked not to be identified said servicemen who turn themselves in after being absent without official leave usually face only AWOL charges, instead of more serious desertion charges.

Higgs was reclassified a deserter earlier this month after FBI agents reopened the investigation into his disappearance.

Higgs vanished from his part-time job at a northside San Antonio service station and police feared he had been the victim of a robbery-abduction. The Air Force declared him legally dead and paid his wife military death benefits.

Higgs made his surprise appearance late Monday afternoon and was immediately placed under military arrest. He is restricted to his squadron area pending a complete investigation of his disappearance.

The 12-year Air Force veteran was moonlighting in an all-night Exxon station at the time of his disappearance. Police discovered an empty

Big Spring. Mrs. Curry died Sunday in Big Spring.

She was born Lillie Barrett Feb. 11, 1929, in Texarkana. She was a resident of Big Spring for 25 years and was a retired civil service employee. She was a member of Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church. She was preceded in death by her husband, Jesse P. Curry Sr.

Survivors include a son, Jesse Curry Jr. of Big Spring; a brother, Emmett Barrett of Texarkana; three sisters, Mrs. C.D. Cawthorn of Texarkana, Mrs. F.A. Johnson of Fauke, Ark., and Glenda Beardon of Hope, Ark., and several nieces and nephews.

Mamie W. Jones

SAN SABA — Services for Mamie W. Jones, 81, of Lometa, mother of Vernon Jones of Ozona, were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in Lometa Methodist Church here. Burial was to be in Lometa Cemetery directed by Howell-Doran Funeral Home.

Mrs. Jones died Tuesday in a San Saba hospital.

She was born Dec. 17, 1897. She was married to Steve T. Jones April 4, 1919, in Goldthwaite. He died Jan. 28, 1951. She was a member of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Jones lived in Lampasas County most of her life.

Other survivors include two sons, two daughters, a sister, eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Gilbert Carter

BIG SPRING — Gilbert Wayne Carter, 82, of Midland died Tuesday in a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel in Big Spring, with the Rev. Neil Easter of the First Assembly of God Church in Midland and the Rev. David Pohl of Ropesville officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring.

Carter was born Oct. 6, 1896, in Scotts Hill, Tenn. He was married to Bertha Lerah Jacobs June 14, 1925, in Taylor County.

He was a resident of Pyote from 1947 to 1955 where he worked for the Pyote Army-Air Force Base before moving to Big Spring, where he was employed by the Veterans Administration Hospital until his retirement in 1965. He moved to Midland in 1976.

Carter was a member of the Birdwell Lane United Methodist Church in Big Spring. He belonged to International Order of Foresters Lodge No. 117 in Big Spring. A veteran of World War I, he was a member of the Disabled American Veterans.

Survivors include four sons, George W. McKinney of Wichita Falls, Harry J. McKinney and William G. Carter, both of Big Spring, and Joe B. Carter of Midland; a daughter, Mavis Glass of Big Spring; a brother, Alton Boyd Carter of Tuscola; three sisters, Eula Allen of Lawn, Bessie Walden of Abilene and Tempa Newby of Houston, 17 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild.

Manuel Cuellar

Manuel Cuellar Jr., 29, of Midland died Tuesday in an Odessa Hospital.

Rosary will be said at 8 p.m. today in the Thomas Funeral Home Chapel. Funeral Mass will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with burial in Fairview Cemetery.

Cuellar was born Nov. 16, 1949, in Big Spring. He moved from Knott to Midland in 1967. He was employed as a truck driver.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Cuellar Sr. of Midland; a son, Danny Cuellar of Odessa; three brothers, Maximo Cuellar, Louis Cuellar and Jesus Cuellar, all of Midland, and three sisters, Rosa Zapata, Linda Sandoval and Janie Barala, all of Midland.

cash register in the station's blood-spattered office.

The sergeant's car was later found partially submerged in the San Antonio River south of downtown. Police reported signs of a struggle.

A statewide search, bolstered by a $1,000 reward offered by Exxon, failed to turn up a trace of the missing sergeant. He was declared legally dead in January 1978 and a memorial service was held for him four months later in Vidor.

But a recent FBI investigation, sparked by a tip, showed Higgs worked at two jobs in Southeast Texas and had received a traffic ticket in Vidor last June under his real name.

Only last Friday, Higgs' father, W. W. Higgs of Vidor, made a public plea for his son to surrender. Higgs revealed to authorities that his son had called him from Galveston last month.

Carolyn Hall Higgs, the serviceman's wife who now resides in Hawaii, said, "I'm relieved to know Bill's still alive. I'm happy, but I was shocked when all of this came out."

She said she never knew her husband was alive until reports surfaced earlier this month that the FBI and Air Force had reopened the investigation.

Mrs. Higgs said she thought her father-in-law's plea last Friday led Higgs to give himself up. She refused to discuss what benefits she received after her husband was declared dead.

Panel must rule as to kidnap

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A three-judge federal panel, asked to reinstate abduction charges against a South Texas prosecutor, must determine if an alleged scheme to lure an intended murder victim into Mexico violated kidnapping statutes.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor had dismissed abduction and perjury indictments returned a year ago against suspended Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis and Patricia Parada, 23.

The government appealed that ruling to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, where attorneys argued their cases Tuesday.

McInnis and Parada were accused of plotting to have Miss Parada's former husband, Noe Villanueva, decoyed across the border and killed by a Mexican policeman. The justice department contends it intervened and stopped the alleged plot before it could be carried out.

O'Coner, in his decision to dismiss the indictments, ruled no kidnapping occurred on United States soil. And he ruled the perjury indictments resulted from entrapment and unfair treatment of the pair by investigators.

"It is our contention that all you have to do is inveigle or decoy a victim across an interstate or international border for the purposes of holding him for the crime to have been committed," argued Assistant U.S. Attorney John Potter of Houston.

"The statute reads for ransom, reward or otherwise," and murder is certainly otherwise."

"If there is no question these people are guilty, why were they charged under these statutes?" asked Judge Peter T. Fay.

"Couldn't you have charged him with a violation of civil rights? If nothing else, conspiracy to deprive him of his civil rights by killing him?"

Potter, interviewed after the hearing, said he hoped to lodge civil rights complaints against the pair if the appeals court upholds the dismissal.

Frank Maloney of Austin, representing McInnis and Miss Parada, said federal laws had not been violated. Villanueva willingly agreed to meet Miss Parada in Mexico and planned to use his own car to do so, he said.

That he was supposed to be arrested and killed by a Mexican policeman after crossing the border was not part of the case, he said.

"Your proposition is two-fold then. The holding has to come before the transportation, and the holding has to occur in this country," Judge Fay commented.

"All evidence shows that the holding did not take place at all in this country," said Maloney.

"He was going to be held in Mexico," said Fay.

"He was going to be killed," Maloney said.

"He was going to be held in Mexico, wasn't he? Then, killed?" Fay asked.

"I don't think you can have a holding in Mexico and say there's been a kidnapping in the United States," Maloney said.

Judge Alvin Rubin then interjected, "The question is whether 'hold' means 'hold in the United States.'"

That question and the matter of whether McInnis and Miss Parada had been tricked into perjuring themselves was taken under advisement by the three-judge panel, which gave no indication of when it might rule.

Senators don't want to hear from ex-presidents on SALT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee says it wants to hear from Henry Kissinger, but not Richard Nixon or Gerald Ford, during its televised hearings on SALT II.

Negotiations for the new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union started under former President Nixon, continued under former President Ford and culminated in the signing of a treaty by President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Committee staff aides said it had been recommended that the two former presidents be called to testify. But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman, said most members felt that, because neither Nixon or Ford are familiar with the exact terms of the present treaty, they have little to add.

"It was decided the principal impact former presidents would have would be political in character and that we should concentrate on the terms of the treaty," Church told reporters.

Senate sources, who requested anonymity, said some Republican senators feared political embarrassment if Nixon appeared at a public hearing. His testimony could have come near the fifth anniversary of his resignation.

Great grasshopper war now under way in South Dakota

BELVIDERE, S.D. (AP) — The battle begins today in the great grasshopper war with three crop-dusting airplanes dropping insecticides on what South Dakota farmers say is the worst grasshopper infestation in 45 years.

"I think they're as thick as they were in the '30s," F.H. Ireland, a Belvidere farmer, said Tuesday. "But I remember them moving around more then."

In the early 1930s, grasshoppers, which thrive in dusty, dry conditions, devastated a 200-mile area from Pierre to Rapid City, eating everything in sight.

Today as much as a million acres of South Dakota grassland may have to be treated with Sevin 4 Oil, a common home garden insecticide in the news recently because of objections to its use in Maine.

Spraying in South Dakota was to have begun Tuesday, but was delayed a day by the first rain here in five weeks.

Agricultural specialists say crop losses so far have not been appreciable. But the grasshoppers must be sprayed within the next three weeks, the experts say, or the bugs will lay eggs and present an increased threat next year.

"They're just to the point where they're going to develop wings," said Gene Christensen, who ranches 10,000 acres up the White River near Kadoka in central South Dakota. "And if we don't get them now, they're going to be everywhere."

After multiplying for two years, the hoppers have increased to 250 per square yard on Christensen's ranch. The Agriculture Department says eight grasshoppers per yard in an acre eat as much grass as a cow.

"Look at this," Christensen said, pointing to the bustling stubble that several days ago was a thriving alfalfa field. "I can count five in an area about as big as my hand."

Christensen and 15 of his neighbors have put up about $30,000 to spray a two-mile strip along 24 miles of the White River, where the insects have congregated.

The federal government will pay one-third of the cost and the state Legislature this month appropriated $286,000 for programs throughout South Dakota.

The insecticide to be used, Sevin 4 Oil, may cause birth defects in dogs, tests have shown. Its label warns users to avoid streams and lakes. Despite environmentalists' objections, however, it recently was used in Maine to control the spruce budworm, an insect that threatened timber used by paper companies.

Christensen said the $4,200 he will invest in the spraying project will be the least of his expenses because hay production will be sharply reduced.

That means Christensen will have to sell many of his 1,000 cattle this fall and truck the remainder to rented pastureland in Texas or Oklahoma because he can't feed them through the winter.

Hansen twins undergo more plastic surgery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Separated Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen were in fair condition today after undergoing further surgery for what a hospital spokesman described as "wound revisions."

University of Utah Hospital spokesman John Dwan said the twins, who were joined at the head until separated in a 16½-hour operation 20 days ago, underwent a minor operation involving plastic surgery and restitching Tuesday.

Dwan said it was the first of what are expected to be several surgical procedures designed at aiding the girls' recovery and development.

Woman dies as bus slides off highway

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — One person was killed and ten hospitalized when a Pacific Trailways bus carrying 24 people slid off rain-slick road and ripped out 60 feet of guardrail and slid down a 40-foot embankment, coming to rest on its side.

The highway patrol today identified the fatal victim of the Tuesday afternoon accident as Elizabeth S. Planalp, age unknown, Myrtle Point, Ore.

Two remained in critical condition today at Brigham City Community Hospital, and eight were in fair or satisfactory condition. The other passengers were treated and released.

Trooper James E. Lindsey said the woman was killed when thrown from the bus as it spun out of control. Other passengers also were thrown from the bus.

Several, some elderly, crawled from the bus and made their way to the highway.

"I know what the cause is, slick roads," Lindsey said. "Every time it rains out there, we lose one." He said there was a downpour just before the accident.

He said driver Daniel L. Clegg, 29, of Boise, Idaho, told him the bus started hydroplaning on the slick road and he could not control it.

A hospital spokesman said Arthur Sabinski, 35, Eugene, Ore., and Victor Peterson, 85, Salt Lake City, were still in critical condition today, but were stable.

The others hospitalized included four members of Sabinski's family: wife Edna, 23, Mike, 6, Kerry, 3, and Tammy, 1½. The others were Enrique Garcia, 61, La Salle, Texas; William Abblitt, 63, Grants Pass, Ore.; Frankley Hopkins, 66, Glendale, Ore.; and Elizabeth Rannebarger, 67, Centerville, Ohio.

Vince Bruno, vice president of Pacific Trailways, Bend, Ore., said the bus was en route from Boise to Salt Lake City. It originated in Seattle and passed through Portland before drivers were changed in Boise, he said.

Highway Patrol spokesman Tim Reeder said the accident occurred in a southbound lane of Interstate 15 south of the Corinne overpass.

Children will miss their four 'Grandmas'

MASON CITY, Ill. (AP) — "Grandma" Velda List always hid a piece of candy in her clothes before her daily visits to the home for mentally retarded and handicapped children.

She was always greeted by the same little girl who searched — always with success — for the candy.

"This little girl wouldn't do anything for anybody else but Velda, and now I don't know what's going to happen," said the Rev. Robert Padack, pastor of the First Christian Church.

On Monday, Mrs. List and three other foster grandmothers died when their van was struck by a freight train as they returned from their last morning with the children at the Lincoln Developmental Center.

Five mornings a week, they rode in a van 12 miles to Lincoln and then back in the early afternoon.

The four were, as Velda List said once, "four peas in a pod — four elderly women who have lost their husbands but not their capacity to love."

They were alike in so many ways: all farmers' daughters, all raised in small towns, all widows on fixed incomes, and all foster grandparents to a group of handicapped and mentally retarded children.

"It was a terrific shock, a terrible thing," said Anita Bingham, who administers the foster grandparents program at the center. "These children, some of them who can't walk or talk, they loved their grandparents so much. We'll never be able to replace these women, not really."

Dixie Couch, 40, of Lincoln was driving. She was in stable condition Tuesday at Abraham Lincoln Hospital in Lincoln. Ms. Couch works for the Central Illinois Economic Development Corp., which owned the van and sponsors the grandparents program.

The victims included Anna Skaggs, 71, a housewife who had become a foster grandparent nine years ago, and her sister Nora Losey, 69, a former cook who joined the program six years ago.

Thelma Marcum, 67, a jolly and ever-smiling woman, had stayed on as a volunteer after retiring as a dietitian at the center. Mrs. List, the fourth victim, was 73 and had been a foster grandparent for 11 years, almost as long as the program has been in existence.

She was "a little woman, very sweet, who never complained about anything and who had so many friends," said Mrs. Bingham.

Both mother, baby survive heart failure, bypass surgery

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Doctors thought they had a choice between saving the life of an unborn child or that of its 30-year-old mother, who grew progressively weaker after five heart attacks in less than a month.

But after a Caesarian section and quadruple bypass surgery, both mother and two-pound baby girl are alive.

"The decision was made to terminate the pregnancy in the interest of the patient," said Dr. Ronald M. Abel of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center. "It was a desperate maneuver, and the baby happened to survive."

Doctors said the Caesarian section was done to ease the strain on 30-year-old Patricia Isla's already belabored heart, but she suffered a coronary one hour after delivery.

"She had been given all the medicines known to prevent cardiac arrests and they didn't work," Abel said. "By all indications, that means she had a 100 percent chance of mortality unless something was done."

Abel said the recent operation was unusual because Mrs. Isla gave birth while on a device called an intra-aortic balloon pump, a machine that decreases the heart's work and improves circulation.

"The balloon pump kept the baby alive too," Abel said. "To our knowledge, there has never been a baby born to a mother in shock on a balloon pump."

Mrs. Isla, of Stanhope, N.J., is in critical condition, a hospital spokesman said, and the baby is in good enough condition to be seen by her mother.

Service station attendant Ed Faught displays Midland's reluctant escapee — a trunk-traveling turtle named Six.

Maybe he was tired of going slow, steady

By BRUCE PARTAIN
News Staff

In these days of spiraling gas prices, having that "tiger in your tank" is getting to be more and more desirable.

Turtles in your trunk, however, still aren't too popular.

"It's been a terrible six days," said Mrs. Ralph Cramer, 4202 Dawn Circle.

From last Thursday until Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Cramer was the unwilling chauffeur of a small passenger — a snapping turtle.

How the terrapin got into her car trunk, however, is no mystery.

"I was on my way to play tennis early Thursday morning when some neighborhood boys brought me the turtle to keep," said Mrs. Cramer, who has corralled five other snappers in her patio area as pets.

"I put him in the trunk during the time I played and when I came back he was gone."

While Mrs. Cramer volleyed and served, the terrapin crawled into a small hole in the framework of her 1977 Lincoln Continental, dropping into an almost inaccessible spot behind the rear seat.

That's when the fun began.

"We tried almost everything to get him out," said Mrs. Cramer. "I baited a fish hook with bacon and attached it to a coat hanger, but I couldn't get it to him. We thought of sliding down a piece of carpet so he'd crawl out. We even thought of sticking a water hose in there and floating him out, but I didn't want to ruin my car."

Worried that the critter might not survive the ordeal, Mrs. Cramer left water and lettuce near the hole in hope the animal might have some sustenance.

"I was so scared he was going to die," she said. "But I heard him scratching around so I knew he was alive."

Unable to free her scaly prisoner, Mrs. Cramer took the car to her favorite mechanic to see if he could get turtles out of trunks as well as he works bugs out of engines.

"We removed the seats and an interior quarter panel and all the trim around the door," said service station operator Ray Lindsey. "But we weren't having any luck."

Finally, the stuck snapper was poked out the same hole he went in.

The successful effort came from one of the station's customers, who, like the Lone Ranger, did his noble deed and then left without giving his name.

Mrs. Cramer is happy. She's named the turtle "Six," not because he was "in the slammer" that many days, but because her five other turtles have similar names — One through Five.

And as bad as the ordeal was, she knows it could have been worse.

"Just think," she said Tuesday, "what if it had been a snake!"

Hiring right person gains tax credit

Basin employers can qualify for up to $3,000 in tax credits by hiring skilled people from certain disadvantaged groups under a new Internal Revenue Service program.

The new program, called the Targeted Job Tax Credit, is an expansion of the existing New Job Credit program, which limited total employer tax credits to $100,000.

The new program does not have a ceiling on the tax credit.

Representatives of the Internal Revenue Service and the Texas Employment Commission will conduct a three-hour workshop on the program beginning at 1 p.m. Thursday in a site to be announced by the Midland

Businessmen may reserve seats at the workshop by calling the chamber at 683-3381.

Under the program, employers may claim exemptions of up to $3,000 during an employee's first year and up to $1,500 in the second year.

Targeted disadvantaged groups include those on Supplemental Security Income, handicapped individuals from Vocational Rehabilitation programs, youths between the ages of 18-24 who come from economically disadvantaged families, Vietnam Veterans under 35, welfare recipients, youths in Cooperative Educational programs and ex-convicts.

'Geronimo' suspects arrested

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — City police and FBI agents arrested early today a father and son who allegedly took $400,000 from a Wells Fargo armored truck in Kentucky because they were unhappy with their wages.

Hugh Higgins, FBI agent-in-charge in Rochester, said it appeared all the money stolen Monday in the so-called "Geronimo's Revenge" heist was recovered. The money was being counted.

Howard T. Kalsbeck, 49, surrendered in a friend's apartment where he had holed up with his son, Howard Dennis Kelly, 28. Kelly was captured earlier as he fled out a back door.

FBI Agent Clinton Van Zant said both men, originally Rochester residents who moved to Cincinnati, were "heavily armed" with handguns, shotguns and ammunition. But no shots were fired in the arrests.

Police and FBI agents had surrounded the house and sealed off a six-block area around the building with a dozen cruisers. The police department's 12-man SWAT team was brought in.

Van Zant, who arrested Kelly in 1977 on a charge of interstate transport of stolen motor vehicles, said he was on the verge of negotiating a peaceful surrender when Kelly bolted.

The father and son, both Wells Fargo employees, were arrested on a fugitive warrant. They were wanted in the robbery of an armored truck in which an estimated $400,000 was taken.

Authorities said the robbers left a long letter, pierced with an arrow and titled "Geronimo's Revenge," on the front seat of the truck after abandoning it in northern Kentucky on Monday.

The unsigned letter reportedly contained complaints that $4 an hour was not an adequate wage for Wells Fargo employees. Kalsbeck was a security guard for Wells Fargo. Kelly, also known as David Peter Preston, was an armored car driver.

FBI agent John Kelly said the armored truck's driver, Lester Addis, told authorities the robbery began when he and Preston were in the truck at a shopping mall just across the Ohio border.

Perrin murder trial begins today

ODESSA — The murder trial of Steven P. Perrin got under way in Odessa's 161st District Court Tuesday and defense attorneys were expected to begin presenting their case this morning.

Perrin is charged with murder in connection with the June 1977 shooting death of 41-year-old Raymond Carl White of Odessa.

White's mother had reported him missing on June 15, 1977, and his body was found in a grave southwest of Odessa Jan. 5, 1979.

Perrin was indicted by an Ector County grand jury earlier this year.

Ector drug suspects arrested

ODESSA — Ector County Sheriff's office officers picked up 12 of 14 suspects on drug charges Tuesday night.

The suspects were charged with delivering drugs ranging from marijuana to heroin.

The arrests were the result of more than a month of undercover work by an Ector County Sheriff's Department officer, Lt. Bill Anderson said.

Eleven sheriff's officers began the roundup about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the last of the suspects arrested about 2 a.m. Wednesday, Anderson said.

Sheriff's officers still were seeking two suspects today.

Those arrested and charged included Joyce Jones, three counts of delivery of marijuana, one count of delivery of cocaine; Hollis Wayne Hill, Eddie Fuller, Jerry Schooley, Sammy Wright, one count each of delivering marijuana; James Wilson, two counts of delivering marijuana; Patricia Parks Hester, two counts of delivering cocaine; Marcos Segovia, delivery of heroin; Terry Ward, delivery of cocaine and methamphetamine; Kelly Gerald Grandstaff, delivery of cocaine; Bill Thompson, delivery of methamphetamine, and one man for possession of alcohol with the intent to sell.

BIG TOP

Jerry Lewis and Bernadette Peters are two of the ringmasters on the "3rd Annual Circus of the Stars," a two-hour special to be rebroadcast Wednesday, June 20, on CBS.

More than two dozen of the most popular stars of television, stage, motion pictures and sports temporarily abandon their careers to become daring circus performers. With only a few weeks of rigorous training they perform dangerous feats on the high wire, the flying trapeze, as human targets and in the cages with wild animals.

Scientists to learn how grass grows

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's back to the grass roots at Ohio State University where workers are completing a $50,000 underground laboratory that scientists will use to watch grass grow.

"The most important part of the plant is the root and that's the part we know least about," said OSU agronomist Dr. Keith J. Kernock, who will be in charge of the lab. "Scientists only have a general idea now when and how much to fertilize."

Kernock said the lab, called a rhizotron, will be used to learn how much cold, heat, fertilizer, water, mowing and other practices make grass thrive.

The lab, which opens early next month, is Kernock's brainchild. He said its proper name is a rhizotron-lysimeter and it is perhaps the only one of its kind in the world because the lab is equipped to accurately measure how much water is being utilized by the plants.

Despite a plethora of pamphlets, gardening books and video advice on how to treat your lawn, Kernock said there is relatively little exact information about how turf grass develops, especially the roots.

Kernock said more detailed growth information is needed by golf course managers and groundskeepers, as well as by a few fanatical homeowners who are all part of Ohio's $300 million turf grass industry.

Kernock says $15 billion is spent on lawns each year in the United States.

He said watering and fertilization can be made to work better by knowing when and how much to put on.

The rhizotron is a space-age name, but the idea is simple. Scientists walk underground into a long hallway in the lab and observe the roots of grass growing on the surface in 30 glass-fronted compartments. The lab has time-lapse microscopic photography equipment. On the surface is a complete meteorological station used to keep tabs on wind speed, direction, rainfall, humidity and other weather factors.

Arguing With a Fool

By Alfred Sheinwald

When you differ with your partner, remember the old rule: Never argue with a fool—people might not know the difference.

East played the discouraging deuce of clubs at the first trick, but West continued with the queen of clubs before switching to diamonds.

East took the first spade but couldn't get the lead to his partner for a diamond ruff. South managed to draw trumps and make the game.

HOT DISCUSSION

"Didn't you see my deuce of clubs?" East demanded. We can skip the rest since we have all heard such discussions.

East should not rely on his partner. He should overtake the king of clubs with the ace at the first trick in order to return the singleton diamond without delay.

East wins the first round of trumps with the ace and returns a club to the queen. West then leads a diamond to defeat the contract.

Municipal politics usually ignored in coal mining village

BLACKSVILLE, W. Va. (AP) — The wheels of democracy turn slowly in the tiny town of Blacksville, if at all.

There hasn't been a municipal election since 1973 and town officials stay in office by default even though the town charter calls for an election every two years.

The town council is supposed to meet twice a month, but often doesn't.

"We can't hardly have a meeting. Nobody comes," complained Grace Harker, who has been town recorder of this Monongalia County coal town — population 260 — for 17 years.

When council meetings are held, they are almost always short.

"They don't last long unless we have an argument, but most of the people in Blacksville are too tired to argue," she said.

When they do, it is usually about the water system. And Mrs. Harker, 70, is right in the middle. As town recorder, she does the collecting and billing.

Public service stirs little interest.

"Nobody wants these offices up here. They don't pay anything," says Mayor C.R. Harker, 74, who is married to the town recorder. He and his wife are each paid $25 a year, but the five councilmen serve for nothing.

So instead of holding an election, the councilmen, mayor and town recorder merely remain in office another term.

There was supposed to have been an election June 5 but no one was nominated, "so we all just went back into office," said Mrs. Harker.

"They're supposed to have an election, but nobody wants to run," said S.J. Angotti, who is paid $100 a year to look after the town's legal interests.

"They don't print out a ballot or anything — they just hang in there," he said, talking about the incumbents.

Angotti said he tried to interest local people in holding political conventions to nominate people to run for office but no one showed up at the conventions.

Bill Harrington, deputy secretary of state, said the situation seemed similar to one recently in the town of Coalton. The secretary of state's office finally supervised an election there.

Mrs. Harker said all this is going to change soon. The Morgantown, W.Va., water system is expected to extend its lines into Blacksville within the next two years.

"Then I'm going to get out," she confided. "I'm tired. I'm tired of all the rat-racing around for poor pay and lots of headaches. Serving the public is no easy job."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Most fad diets are unwise

Dear Dr. Solomon: If being overweight is as harmful as all the experts say it is, what's the difference what kind of diet you follow as long as you lose weight?—Russ

Dear Russ: It is possible to lose weight on many different diets, but you may be risking your health at the same time. For example, a high-protein, high saturated fat diet can increase cholesterol levels. In addition to helping you lose weight, a diet should be nutritionally sound. Fad diets teach bad eating habits which are difficult to change. A sound diet, on the other hand, develops sensible eating habits which will remain with you throughout your life.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know you've written about the importance of avoiding empty calories, but isn't it ever permissible to let a child have a snack of this kind?—Mrs. D.B.

Dear Mrs. B.: I never say never. An occasional empty-calories snack for a child who has a well-balanced diet is certainly all right; young children and teenagers often have some calories to spare. However, the same cannot be said of many adults, particularly those who are not physically active. Any empty calories they consume generally will add to the excess number already being taken in above the amount expended, and result in unwanted, unnecessary, and unhealthy additional weight.

The best snacks for children obviously are nutritious ones such as fruits, vegetables, cheese, peanut butter sandwiches, custard, yogurt and unsugared cereal with milk.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When my children were babies, a high spot was the monthly weighing in at the doctor's office. The more they gained, the better we liked it. I now have a beautiful 10-month-old grandson, and my daughter-in-law worries that he's putting on weight too fast. She won't believe it's just good, healthy baby fat.—Mrs. C.A.

Dear Mrs. A.: Chubbiness in an infant is not a guarantee of future health. When a baby gains too much weight, it can result in the production of many potentially harmful fat cells. These cells increase and decrease in size in accordance with the need to store excess fat or as existing fat is used up. The total number of these fat cells in the body is fixed during a

FBI conducting probe

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — The FBI has joined an investigation of apparent arson in a fire that destroyed a house being built for a black family in an all-white community.

The blaze last Saturday in Winfield Township, a community of about 5,000 people just east of Crown Point, leveled a half-finished $130,000 house being built for Dorris E. Swope, 38, who operates two service stations in nearby Gary.

Willie Jackson, a black contractor working on the house, said he was harassed by carloads of whites who insulted and cursed him and threatened to burn the house.

UTPB reports summer gain in registration

ODESSA — Almost 900 students have registered at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, marking a 1 percent increase over the same time last summer.

Wermann noted that each summer, a number of area students attending other colleges and universities throughout the state transfer to UTPB to take one or two courses while they spend the summer at home.

Wermann said more students are taking full-time class loads this summer, particularly on the graduate level.

"We're finding more graduate students doubling up to complete degrees in shorter periods of time, particularly in the engineering and management areas," he said.

"Registration for UTPB's second summer term is slated July 16 as another 38 courses are being offered. Enrollment at the upper-level university is open to students who have completed 60 credit hours of coursework at any accredited community college, senior college or university.

the number of summer offerings, and we had expected a slight drop in summer enrollment, but this simply was not the case," he said.

person's teen-age years.

During infancy and early adolescence, rapid weight gain can cause the number of fat cells to increase considerably, possibly two to five times the normal amount. Once these cells are established, it becomes more difficult for a person to lose weight.

The ideal time to begin a program of weight control is with the infant. When you bear in mind that approximately 10 to 40 percent of school-age children are overweight, and that from 50 to 85 percent of overweight children become overweight adults, childhood obesity obviously should be avoided.

Saints preserve us from bread & breakfast — no pets

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

GALWAY, Eire (AP)—On the road north from Shannon Airport an arresting litany of the saints tests the faith of the passing pilgrim.

St. Clare's Bed & Breakfast. St. Theresa's Guest House. Holy Innocents Tourist Accommodations: children welcome. St. Francis of Assisi B & B (bed and breakfast) — No Pets. St. Benedict's Seaside Cottage: Rooms by the Day or Week.

Saints preserve us from some of the accommodations being inflicted on the public in their names. One won-crush Sister Worm, may have felt at home with Brother Roach and Sister Flea in the hostel named in his honor but certainly would raise his voice in righteous anger at the no-pets policy.

Crossing the River Liffey into Dublin's business district, one notices that the beatification rites for tourist accommodations have become more common and varied.

St. Simeon Stilites B & B is located on the top floor of an old brick warehouse, which is appropriate enough since the saint being venerated here spent 30 years of his life atop a pillar chained to a large iron ball to draw attention to his message of the need to renounce the comforts of this world.

St. Helena's Tourist Court should be comfortable enough since the elderly lady who was the mother of the Roman Emperor Constantine lived a life of refined luxury before setting out on her great journey to Jerusalem in quest of the true cross.

St. Francis Xavier's Rooms to Rent ("vacancy") might remind the faithful of his epic journey to Goa and Japan and his lifelong battle to curb his fondness for food and mortify the flesh with long periods of fasting.

St. Kevin's Bed & Board might also be taken quite literally since at Glendalough in the nearby Wicklow Mountains they have on display the board he slept on and the rock he used for a pillow.

Irish Airlines still names all its planes for popular Irish saints although it is understood that St. Finbar has been grounded after crashing in the Irish Sea on a test flight.

The Irish are not alone in this tendency to pass off their human faults and foibles in hospitality to the company of the saints. All of Italy offers, the tourist an endless procession of pensions and albergos named for the saints.

Near the Via Veneto in Rome there is St. Andrew's Piano Bar. Andrew, the brother of Peter, venerated as the first Pope, lived 1,600 years before the invention of the piano. It is not known if he frequented any bars in his quest for converts from the highways and byways, but like the other original 12 apostles he may have favored an occasional flagon of sweetish kosher wine.

This, however, cannot give any historical validity to the Bierria di S.S.

Apostoli, the beer hall of the Holy Apostles located just off the Corso, Rome's big shopping street.

And not far from there is the Pizzeria di S. Ignazio, the pizza house of St. Ignatius, across the square from the large Jesuit church. Now, St. Ignatius was a Spanish Basque who may have had a pizza when he came to Rome to launch the counter-Reformation but there is no statuary in any of Rome's 400 baroque churches commemorating his addition to this dish.

In France, St. Julien presides over one of the lushest vineyard areas near Bordeaux, and across the river is the commune of St. Estephe, St. Stephen, not in the premier grand cru class perhaps but certainly one of the most blessed beverages ever to grace a goblet.

Reclining and dining in the company of the saints may shock some people as a terrible irreverence, but as the poet Hilaire Belloc once wrote:

"Wherever a Catholic sun doth shine, There's Always Laughter and Good Red Wine. At Least I've always found it so: Benedicamus Domino."

Man withdraws offer for Woodstock II site

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — A Canandaigua property owner has passed up a deal for $1 million and withdrawn his offer to let the promoters of Woodstock II stage a rock concert on his land in August.

Richard Wyffels, owner of a 500-acre farm in the western Finger Lakes community, told the Canandaigua Town Board on Monday he withdrew his offer because of public opposition. More than 300 citizens attended the board's meeting.

Wyffels said he was going to give the $1 million to the town to enable it to avoid tax increases. The town itself would have been given $1.25 million for allowing promoters to locate the three-day concert in their community.

Steve Ryan, who approached Wyffels in behalf of Woodstock II's organizers, said promoters were considering other sites in Ontario County, including Honeyoe and Naples.

Attempts by the promoters of Woodstock II to find a location in central New York were stymied last week when Seneca County officials rejected a proposal to stage the event in Lodi.

The original Woodstock festival was held in the summer of 1969 near Bethel, N.Y., and attracted some 300,000 persons who came to hear Jimi Hendrix, Arlo Guthrie, Sly and Family Stone and other rock and folk groups.

Art collection given to library

SAN MARINO, Calif. (AP) — A collection of art, including works by Rembrandt, Van Dyck and Watteau, worth an estimated $7 million has been donated to the Huntington Library, according to its curator, Robert Wark.

The collection was the bequest of the late Mildred Browning Green and her husband, Judge Lucius Peyton Green, and was the largest made to the museum since 1927, Wark said Monday. The gallery also will receive the entire Green estate, estimated at between $2 million and $2.5 million.

Mulligan's Stew

ders what miracles of the hotelier's art St. Clare performed to have a bed and breakfast establishment in a particularly dreary Irish seaside resort named after her.

Hagiographers, those who write the lives of the saints, tell us she was a devout woman who founded an order of nuns professed to the vow of poverty. That may account for it. We know that St. Theresa of Avila, the great Spanish mystic, spent most of her life in those narrow cubicles allotted to members of the Carmelite Order.

St. Benedict, the one called "the tramp of God," scavenged in garbage dumps for food, and another St. Benedict dotted Europe with great monasteries like Monte Cassino dedicated to his rule, which curbed some of the more excessive pious practices like flagellation and hair shirts but for amenities never posed a threat to the Hilton or Hyatt chains.

St. Francis of Assisi, the barefoot beggar who reasoned with Brother Wolf and could not bring himself to

Civil rights suit prompts string of prison reforms

By BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience: (Prison Reform) Bobby Battle, who is black and 42, is a former inmate who set Oklahoma corrections on its ear, through a civil rights suit prompting the most extensive prison reforms in Oklahoma history, is getting ready to file suit against the federal corrections system, according to bellringer sources.

Battle, who filed the controversial prison suit in 1972, leading to a string of prison orders harshly critical of Oklahoma prisons, is a resident of the Leavenworth, Kan., federal correctional institution. He says he is vigorously preparing a suit he hopes will become a class action on behalf of all federal inmates against the federal system when it is filed this month.

"It will be a class action suit," said Battle, who was paroled from the McAlester state prison by former Gov. David Hall in December in 1974. He has followed U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon's parade of orders culminating recently in a compromise ruling allowing the state Corrections Department until October to provide each state inmate a single cell.

WHAT BATTLE is attacking in his suit against the federal system includes allegations of unsanitary conditions, overcrowding of prisoners, faulty medical care, lack of religious freedom and the unnecessary use of drugs to control inmates.

Battle, who founded the Committee Against Prisoners Exploitation during his short respite outside the prison walls, was sentenced to Leavenworth in February 1975 after pleading guilty to selling heroin. American Civil Liberties Union attorney Lou Bullock, who engineered the state prison suit through the Oklahoma federal courts, thinks Battle has a chance to do on the federal level what he did at the state level. Historically, most federal prison suits have failed, but in light of recent inmate victories in Oklahoma, Alabama and Arkansas, the federal prison system is appearing less invincible, Bullock added.

HUNGER AROUND THE WORLD: According to press reports, hunger and starvation are stalking parts of the world. They never disappeared, but news about them has been pushed into the background by politics, violence and bloodshed. The paradox is that world grain stocks are larger than ever before, and American farmers are being asked to cut acreages. The European Economic Community has 250,000 tons of butter in public storage, plus millions of tons of wheat, barley and other surpluses.

Yet in Africa, for example, the population explosion, spreading drought, war, unstable governments and economic or political changes due to racial adjustments contribute to millions of deaths by starvation. The African population has grown from 360 million 10 years ago to 436 million, according to recent reports, but the continent's food production has declined 10 percent in the same period.

In Asia, and elsewhere, Relatives arriving in threes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — At 2 a.m. recently, the Craig Drouillard got a telephone call that they had a new nephew. A son was born to Drouillard's brother, Joseph. At 5 a.m., the telephone rang again, this time announcing the birth of a daughter to Mrs. Drouillard's sister, Mrs. David Murray. At 6 p.m., word came that Mrs. Drouillard's other sister, Mrs. Richard Malone, had just given birth to a son.

'Caveman' beats energy costs

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

ARMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Several winters ago, Andy Davis got a monthly bill of $187 for heating his three-bedroom rented home with gas. He told his family, "I've had enough. We're going to move into a cave." And they did.

Five of Davis' nine children still were living at home when Davis, a son and a son-in-law began digging into the side of a hill. Davis, who is in the construction business, eventually finished an energy-saving, eight-room underground home with gleaming stones embedded in concrete walls, large oval front windows, a fan system for even-flow ventilation and a Franklin stove.

For all of last winter, one of the worst in central Illinois history, Davis heated his home for $1.29. "That's what it cost me for gasoline to run my chain saw to cut up some logs into fire wood," he said.

"We're 15 feet underground and there's 5 1/2 feet of earth on top of the specially constructed concrete roofing.

"The temperature varies very little. It's a natural constant 57 or 58 degrees, regardless of what it is outside, and this easily can be raised to the desired comfort level. And our ventilation system and construction and insulation methods do away with moisture," said Davis, 50.

"I have no roof to patch, no gutters to clean, no painting to do and we're storm proof, fire proof and quiet. We might have to mow the roof now and then."

If this sounds like a sales pitch, it is. Davis has incorporated into Davis Caves Inc. — "Energy Efficient Earth-Powered Homes."

In two years he and his top assistant, Mel Wilcox, have sold 70 franchises in 25 states for "earth-powered homes."

"For years, we've been working against Mother Nature instead of having her working for us," said Wilcox. "Our homes are 5 to 10 percent less costly to build than the conventional home, but the big savings start when you live in it.

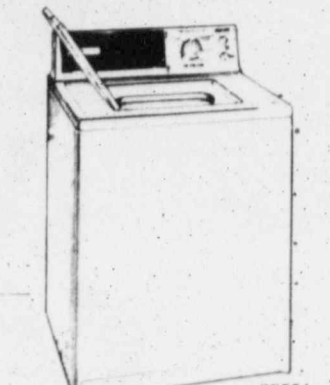

"The homes should last for generations and provide a stable environment," he said. "Most people who come to us are getting ready to retire, or are younger people who can see down the road.

Tracy powers Cubs victory

EL PASO — The Midland Cubs took a half game lead over the idle San Antonio Dodgers in the Texas League West Division Tuesday night with an impressive 11-4 victory here over the El Paso Diablos.

The triumph in the lidlifter of the five-game series left the Cubs at 36-30 for the first half of the season. The teams renew hostilities tonight with Bill Earley expected to meet the Diablos' Bob Border.

Jim Tracy, who powered his ninth homer of the campaign and collected two runs-batted-in, led the Bruins' offensive charge Tuesday as Henry Mack, with relief assistance from Lee Smith and Tom Butler, raised his pitching record to 6-2. Also contributing to the balanced Midland offense were shortstop Chico Alfaro, who had three hits, designated hitter Eric Grandy, who had two hits, leftfielder Brian Rosinski, who had three hits and knocked in two runs and Mike Turgeon and Carlos Lezcano, who had two hits apiece.

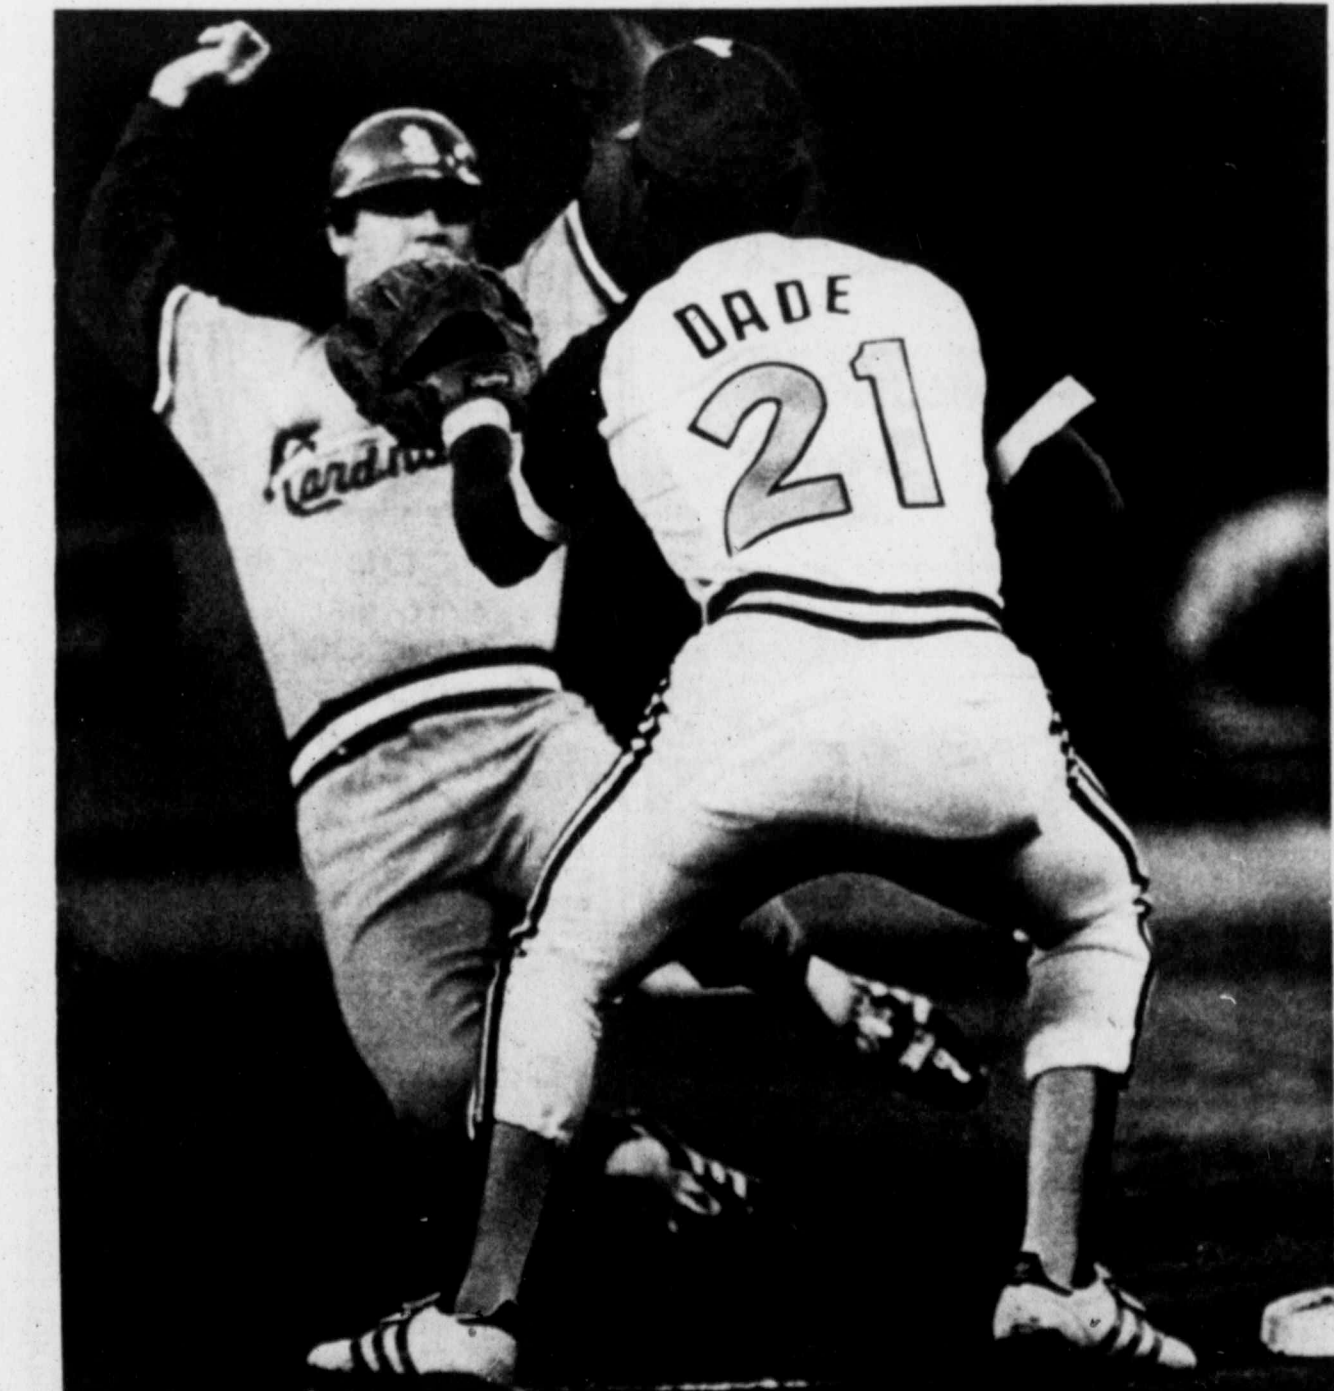

Actually, both teams hit the ball well as each squad got at least one hit from every player in the lineup. Midland finished with 16 safeties while the Diablos notched 12. Midland did most of their damage with five run outbursts in the first and third frames. The visitors also added a lone tally in the seventh. For the contest, the Bruins stranded 14 runners. El Paso's scored two runs in both the second and third. Midland was also aided by an airtight defense. The Cubs didn't allow an error during the contest and in addition, pulled off three double plays in the first seven frames.

The Cubs return to the Tall City Monday and open the second half of loop play against the Amarillo Gold Sox.

Evert wins Grand Prix crown

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd says her need for grass court play helped motivate her to come from behind and beat Anne Smith in the $100,000 International Grand Prix tennis tournament.

The former Wimbledon champion survived a match point Tuesday before going on to win 4-6, 7-6, 6-0 over the 19-year-old former student of religion from Dallas.

"I kept telling myself that two matches on grass were not good enough preparation for Wimbledon," Evert Lloyd said.

"There is a big difference between playing matches and just practicing," she said. "It was vital I won, because until I got a few matches I don't know just how I am playing."

This is the first grass court tournament Evert Lloyd, ranked No. 1 in the world by the computer, has played this year.

"I'm really discouraged," Evert Lloyd said. "Anne was serving so well. Up to that point she deserved to win."

Evert Lloyd was not the only seed to struggle Tuesday. Virginia Ruzici of Romania, seeded eighth, was taken to 22 games in the final set before overcoming the strong serving Barbara Potter 6-3, 4-6, 12-10.

One seed did fall by the wayside. America's Ann Kiyomura, seeded No. 16, squandered two match points and allowed South African Ilana Kloss to win 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

The rest of the top players had a relatively easy day, although fourth seed Virginia Wade saved a set point in the first set against Pam Teeguarden before winning 7-6, 6-4.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova, ranked No. 1 in the world, defeated Britain's Jo Durie 6-2, 7-5, while 16-year-old Tracy Austin, seeded third, dined Betsy Nagelsen 6-2, 6-3.

The tournament is part of the Colgate series.

Tom Landry 'Too Tall' Jones shocks friends

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The usually unflappable Tom Landry admitted he was surprised when he heard that Ed "Too Tall" Jones plans to pursue a career as a heavyweight boxer.

"Well, this one is different," said Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League for 19 years. "It should be interesting to watch."

The 6-foot-9, 265 pound left defensive end broke the news to Landry Monday night.

Landry was stunned by Jones' boxing ambitions although he wasn't surprised the five-year veteran wanted to try something other than pro football.

"I was surprised he went that direction (boxing)," he said. "He called me last night and told me about it and I appreciated it. He said that's what he always wanted to do. I left our conversation feeling that is what he wants to do."

Landry believes that Jones could have become the best at his position in the NFL, but lacked the desire to do so. "Too Tall had great ability but limited desire," he said.

Second-year man Larry Bethea would be moved to Jones' spot, Landry said.

Teammate Larry Cole commented, "There really isn't big money in football and it's a long six-month haul each year. Who knows? Ed is young enough. He could market himself into quite a product."

"I only hope he knows a little bit about boxing."

White Sox Prolly has bad elbow

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have placed right-handed relief pitcher Mike Prolly on the 21-day disabled list, retroactive to Monday.

Prolly, 1-3, had been the team's most effective relief pitcher early in the season when he piled up seven saves. However, he has been bothered by a strained right elbow and has made only one appearance since May 19.

The White Sox did not immediately name a roster replacement for Prolly.

Five former greats join Sports Hall of Fame

DALLAS (AP) — The country's winningest junior college basketball coach, Floyd Wagstaff, along with golfer Don January, former tennis pro Bruce Barnes, ex-football coach Catfish Smith and 1952 Olympic silver medalist Darrow Hooper have been elected to the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Also named was Al Vincent, who managed three different baseball clubs to Texas League championships.

The five were elected by a 19-man selection committee from the Texas Sports Writers Association.

The honorees will not be enshrined until Dec. 31 during a luncheon featuring the Cotton Bowl week.

During his 30-year coaching span at Tyler Junior College, Wagstaff's basketball teams won 734 games against only 221 losses. His teams won 10 conference titles and tied four times and captured national championships in 1949 and 1951 and was runners-up in 1960 and 1961.

He also coached football and his 1948 team won the Junior Rose Bowl. His record in football was 130-36. He suffered a heart attack in September of 1974 and after a triple bypass operation, recovered in time to coach the team in 1975. He retired after that year.

January, a graduate of North Texas State in 1953, joined the pro tour in 1956 and his career earnings passed $1 million this year.

Few golfers have ever played so consistently well over so long a period as January. Don, who will turn 50 in November, had a banner year in 1976. His winnings of $163,622 were nearly $100,000 more than in his next most lucrative campaign. In addition to winning the Tournament of Champions for the second time, January tied for second in two events and tied for third in three others.

Barnes won the SWC singles and doubles championships while at Texas in 1929 and 1931 and the singles in 1930. He was the national doubles champion in 1931. After turning pro, he won the worlds doubles championships in 1932, 1934, 1939, 1943 and singles championships in 1938 and 1943. He coached the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1939.

Smith developed outstanding high school teams at Carey, Borger, Longview and Mt. Vernon and had a string of 26 straight victories over a three-year period. His Carey team won a state title. His basketball team at Mt. Vernon in 1948 won the state crown and was undefeated.

His teams at East Texas State also distinguished themselves and his consecutive winning record of 29 straight games wasn't snapped until Texas did it against Arkansas in 1979.

Hooper pulled off a great shot put upset as a sophomore at Texas A&M in the 1952 Olympic Trials when he beat world champion Jim Fuchs and National AAU and NCAA champion Perry O'Brien. In the Olympic Games at Finland, he suffered a disappointing loss when O'Brien beat him by three-quarters of an inch for the Gold Medal.

Hooper, who set a national high school shot put record in 1948 that stood for four years, won the SWC shot and discus three consecutive years, setting records each time and took the Triple Crown twice.

Tangerine is warned

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The 33-year-old Tangerine Bowl has been told to pay participating college football teams more money or risk being eliminated.

In a June 11 letter, the National Collegiate Athletic Association told sponsors of the post-season bowl to pay participating teams at least $150,000 each this year or risk losing NCAA certification for the event, the Orlando Sentinel Star reported in Wednesday's editions.

Loss of certification apparently would mean that the bowl would go out of business and could be taken over by another city.

The letter to Tangerine Sports Association President Jeff Clark said the game's 1978 payments to participating teams were $127,509, the lowest for any bowl.

The letter said the Tangerine Bowl also scored lowest in paid attendance.

The Tangerine Bowl paid a record $178,000 to Florida State and Texas Tech in 1977 with an announced crowd of 44,502.

Gorman draws Borg next in Wimbledon tourney

SURBITON, England (AP) — "You had better not regard me as cannon fodder," said tennis star Tom Gorman, celebrating his 33rd birthday. "You might think I am, but I'm not."

He was talking about the draw for next week's Wimbledon tournament. He has to play Bjorn Borg, winner of the title for the past three years, in the first round on the famous Center Court Monday.

That was the last draw any player wanted in the field of 128 in men's singles.

"But it doesn't worry me," said Gorman, who reached the Wimbledon semifinals in 1971 and last played on the Center Court in 1974.

"I must give myself a flicker of hope, otherwise there is no point in turning up for the match," Gorman said.

"I'm certainly not afraid of him, and the fact that I have beaten him once will boost my confidence. That was in 1977.

"I'm looking forward to the match and I am not overawed by it."

The bookies make Borg a 5-4 favorite to win Wimbledon for the fourth straight time. At odds like that it's hardly worth betting on him.

Gorman was beaten by fellow American Vic Amaya 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 in a first-round match Tuesday in the Debenhams tournament on the grass courts at Surbiton, the last men's event before Wimbledon. But several of the top stars, including Borg, are missing this event and concentrating on private practice before the big one.

"I believe Borg can be caught in the early stages of any match, and this is what I will be aiming at," Gorman said.

Borg often starts a tournament slowly. He was taken to five sets by Amaya in the first round at Wimbledon last year and trailed by two sets to love before overcooming Mark Edmondson of Australia in the second round in 1977.

Midland shooters fare well in Austin tourney

AUSTIN — Five members of the Midland Shooters' Association recently placed, including two firsts, here in the National Field Archery Association's Southern Sectional Tournament.

Sherrie Vogel and Trina Whitefield took first place honors. Sherrie won the women's bare bow competition while Trina captured top honors in the girl's freestyle limited action.

Brian Vogel placed second in the boy's bare bow event. Cynthia Savage and Holly Whitefield brought home two third place finishes. Cynthia was third in the women's amateur freestyle limited while Holly was third in the youth girl's freestyle.

Ali to retire in July?

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The statement was in a letter that Mike Mortimer had received from the camp of World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali. It read:

"I, Muhammad Ali, agree to stage my retirement party at Los Angeles Forum on the evening of July 5, 1979."

A spokesman for the Forum said he was not aware of any such event scheduled for the arena.

Mortimer, chairman of the Championships Committee of the WBA, said here that the letter he received arrived with notification from Barry Frank, senior corporate vice president of International Management Group, which officially represents Ali.

"I am enclosing Mr. Muhammad Ali's agreement to retire his heavyweight championship as of July 5, 1979," Mortimer quoted the letter as saying.

When asked to confirm if he indeed sent a letter to Mortimer which contained a letter of resignation from Ali, Frank told The Associated Press in New York on Tuesday: "I have no comment on that. He (Ali) will make the appropriate announcement at the appropriate time. All I can say at this point is his retirement plans are his own."

Baltimore Colts release back-up quarterback Troup

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bill Troup, who started at quarterback for Baltimore in place of the injured Bert Jones much of last season and took the brunt of criticism for the Colts' drop in the standings, was given his unconditional release by the National Football League team Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Colts said Troup had been waived "and will not report to our camp" which opens July 7.

"We're giving him his release now and allowing him the chance to make his own deal, rather than bring him to camp and then cut him, possibly too late to get with another team," said Jim and Landry, the spokesman. Troup became expendable when the Colts signed veteran quarterback Greg Landry earlier this year as a backup to Jones, who played just three games last season because of shoulder injuries.

Jones has reported that his shoulder is sound and is being counted on to start the season for the Colts, who slipped to a 5-11 mark last year after three consecutive AFC East championships.

Armed Forces News

Capt. Bill McKelvey

Sgt. Thomas H. Neill

Sgt. P.R.Y. Carmona

Sgt. Joe C. Rodriguez

Ensign Paul T. Killins

Several Midland-area servicemen have been in the news recently.

Senior Master Sgt. Thomas H. Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Neill of Big Spring, was graduated from the U.S. Air Force Senior Non-commissioned Officer Academy at Gunter Air Force Station, Ala.

He has returned to the Boeing Company, Seattle, Washington, where he is an electronic computer systems maintenance superintendent with a unit of the Tactical Air Command.

Capt. Bill McKelvey of Odessa, commander of the Army's Midland-Odessa Recruiting Area, was promoted to the field rank of Major. McKelvey assumed command of his recruiting area two years ago.

He is responsible for 21 counties in the Pecos and Midland-Odessa areas and four counties in New Mexico.

Staff Sgt. Placencio R. Y. Carmona, son of Mr. and Mrs. Taide P. Noveron of McCamey, earned the distinctive service ribbon as a member of an organization which recently received the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

Carmona is a life support specialist at Tinker AFB, Okla., with the 552nd Airborne Warning and Control Wing, where he earned the award for meritorious service.

Sgt. Joe C. Rodriguez, son of Mrs. Manual B. Pineda of Big Spring, also earned the distinctive service ribbon as a member of 552nd Airborne Warning and Control Wing. He is an administrative specialist at Tinker AFB.

Airman Andrew B. Smartt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack B. Smartt of Crane, has graduated from Lackland AFB after air force basic training.

He will remain at Lackland AFB for specialized training in the security police field.

Paul T. Killins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Killins of Midland, was commissioned in the Navy at a Louisiana State University ceremony recently.

Pvt. David Nunez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raul Nunez of Andrews, recently completed a wheeled vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. Army Training Center, Fort Jackson, S.C. Nunez entered the Army in January of this year.

Lee R. Fulcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Fulcher of Crane, was promoted to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force. He serves with a unit of the Strategic Air Command as an administrative specialist at March AFB, Calif.

Airman Howard K. Watkins, son of retired Air Force Master Sgt. and Mrs. Calvin Watkins of Big Spring, has received a new assignment following graduation from the aircraft maintenance specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command at Sheppard Air Force Base.

He will go to Dyess AFB for duty with a unit of the Military Airlift Command.

Pvt. Cynthia Ed Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Crawford of Midland, recently completed a personnel records specialist course at Fort Jackson, S.C.

She entered the Army in October 1978.

Airman Cynthia S. Moll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Moll of Lamesa, was selected for technical training at Sheppard AFB in the Air Force medical service field. She recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB.

Senior Airman Damon W. Bloom, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Bloom of Andrews, recently was presented the Air Force Commendation Medal for meritorious service. Bloom is an aircraft maintenance specialist at Langley AFB, Va.

Navy Seaman Jeff M. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon and Pat King of Big Lake, has completed the Navy's Basic Electricity-Electronics Course at Navy Service School Command in Orlando, Fla. He joined the Navy in January 1979.

Airman Virginia C. Rodriguez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregorio R. Rangel San Antonio, was selected to receive specialized instruction as a communications systems operator at Air Training Command at Keesler AFB, Miss.

She is a 1975 graduate of Big Spring Senior High.

Technical Sgt. Ricki S. Hasting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Hasting of Elkmont, Ala., son-in-law of Rev. and Mrs. Claude N. Craven of Big Spring, was named Outstanding Non-commissioned Officer of the Quarter in his unit at Columbus AFB, Miss. Hasting is a aerospace physiological supervisor.

Staff Sgt. Bob Glover, a recent graduate of the Army's Recruiting and Career Counseling School, has joined the Midland Army recruiting team as a representative for Midland and Martin Counties.

Dean-Paul Martin flies in real life, fantasies

By BURT BERLINER

NEW YORK (AP) — If Dean-Paul Martin had his way, he might star as a flying ace in his next film, opposite Jane Fonda.

"I'm a flying nut," says Martin, 27, son of entertainer Dean Martin.

The young Martin currently is starring in Robert Evans' $6 million production of "Players," a tennis love story. He's cast as Chris, a tennis player — his real life profession. All McGraw is his leading lady.

Not bad for his first film. "I probably wouldn't have done this film if it hadn't focused on tennis the way it does," says Martin, who spent last year on the World Team Tennis circuit with the Phoenix Racquets.

"I strongly identified with Chris' efforts to make it up through the ranks," says Martin of the character he plays. "Of course he rose much faster than I have."

Tanned and casually dressed in jeans and an open-neck shirt, Martin is winding up a publicity tour for "Players." Then it's back to California to practice for the Wimbledon tournament later this month. "I get to Wimbledon in 'Players,' you know. I play Guillermo Vilas in this emotion-packed match. You can't choreograph action like that. We played five sets with as many as seven cameras capturing the excitement."

Martin hopes to qualify for Wimbledon. He's tried twice before, unsuccessfully. "I have to work at my tennis," he says. "It's not all autographs and songlasses."

"Publicity tours sure cut into my tennis game," he admits. To add adventure, he took the wheel of a twin-engine turbo-charged plane and flew from city to city.

"The studio semi-panicked. Asked me to take a co-pilot along to keep me from getting too burned out," he says of his flying.

Martin flew the plane from Los Angeles to Portland, Ore., then to Seattle and Salt Lake City. From there, he bowed to studio concern and took commercial flights.

"I'd like to fly in airshows and promote aircraft I believe in," he says when asked about what he wants to do in the future. Playing a flying ace in another movie is an appealing thought. "And what guy wouldn't like to star opposite Jane Fonda?" he asks.

He started out flying a helicopter in his teens, got his rotor-craft license when he was 16 and his fixed-wing license shortly after that. He touches down every so often at his one-bedroom apartment in West Hollywood, but not for long.

"I enjoy traveling. I get antsy if I stay too long in any one place," he says.

The 170-pound athlete says he's more at home on the tennis court than a movie set, but filming "Players" was a stimulating experience.

"Players" is a simple love story, without the murders and violence that characterize so many films today," he says. "And playing tennis with Vilas — it may have been for a movie but it was real-live tennis — what a thrill!"

Tat Rogers and Junior McElroy will sponsor competitive roping at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the Sandyland Arena.

Events will include open roping, man-and-woman roping, father-and-son roping and barrel racing.

The roping is open to Midland County residents who have lived here at least six months. The roping will be dedicated to Benny Johnson, a roper who retired due to a mishap several years ago.

Those interested in entering the roping should dial 682-9087 or 684-5972.

The arena is south of Midland and is just off County Road 117, which intersects Cotton Flat Road.

Actors go to bat Thursdays

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Every Thursday, they forego the smell of the greasepaint and the roar of the crowd for the crack of the bat, the cry of the umpire and maybe a few brews between innings.

Behold the fabled Broadway Show League, manned and womanned by softball-playing show biz folk. They'll celebrate the League's 25th year of Central Park combat Thursday with an Old-Timer's Game.

The BSL has such stars as Len Cariou and Robert Klein of "They're Playing Our Song." But most of the regulars are little-known actors, backstage workers and even rock acts.

This intelligence comes from league commissioner France Lewin, who last week noted the league's top team, with a 6-0 record, is the tribe led by Meat Loaf. Mr. Loaf is a rock star.

Mrs. Lewin, a Manhattan housewife, theater buff and softball nut, says there was time when teams not entirely in the performing arts — like the 1970 champs, from the Associated Press — could play. But now the league "is restricted to people who earn their living in show business," she adds. This is because at one point the league had swelled up to 44 teams from all walks of life.

"I couldn't manage that," says she. "I decided we had to get back to its original purpose — for people in show business."

It currently has just 20 teams, some representing two shows, like "Da" and "Gemini." They're "Playing Our Song" and "Beatlemania" and "Eupie" — "Whoopie" and "Eubie."

The league — its first champs hailed from "Silk Stockings" — was begun by a stage manager, John Effrat, who died 14 years ago.

Only elite need apply to get on this list of top 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — Making the FBI's list of most wanted criminals these days is a little like winning admission to a top-notch graduate school.

There are few openings and only those with outstanding qualifications get accepted.

There is even a complicated quota system. For example, the FBI frowns on having more than one representative of a Puerto Rican terrorist group on the list of its 10 most wanted fugitives. There's also one airline hijacker, one drug smuggler, one police killer, and one woman.

"We're after the best fugitives," said Raymond A. Connolly, who has headed the FBI's fugitive unit for four years. "We select the ones who are most violent prone and who have demonstrated high mobility."

The idea is to use publicity where it can be most effective, by increasing the visibility of a particularly dangerous suspect to make capture more likely.

However, highly publicized cases are left off the list to leave room for those who have gone unnoticed. For that reason, Patty Hearst was never on the top 10.

The list plays another role, Connolly said, in raising the morale of agents by giving them a trophy to shoot for.

"Most agents never capture one of the top 10," he said. "But when you do, you can go home and tell your wife the job was worth it."

The list was created in 1950, and FBI officials say it has undergone significant change since the death in 1972 of the bureau's first director, J. Edgar Hoover.

Critics have said over the years that to enhance the bureau's reputation, some names were placed on the list just as the FBI was closing in. (The record short stay on the list is two hours.)

In the early 1970s, some said the list overemphasized left-wing radicals and others charged it always made too much of second-rate holdup men and others whose threat to society was exaggerated.

The new emphasis on quality was adopted by Clarence M. Kelly and carried on by the current director, William H. Webster. The two have attempted to shift the focus away from routine bank robberies and toward white collar crime, organized crime and terrorism.

Now is also the time, Webster says, to deflate FBI rhetoric and stress quiet professionalism and political detachment. To a degree, the most-wanted list reflects that goal.

But now, Katherine Ann Power, the list's only woman, also is the only one whose reputation is inseparable from radical ties developed in the early 1970s. The FBI says she was in "a small, revolutionary-type organization which advocated violent attacks against established society and contribution of its robbery proceeds to such organizations as the Black Panther Party."

Now 30 and on the list since 1970, she allegedly took part in a Boston bank robbery that resulted in the death of a policeman.

Two others on the list have ties to terrorist groups, according to the FBI.

Raymond Luc Leveseur, 32, added in 1977, is said to belong to the so-called Sam Melville-Jonathan Jackson Unit of the People's Forces. The FBI regards him as an expert on making bombs. He too is accused of taking part in armed bank robberies.

Carlos Alberto Torres, 26, was added to the list in 1977. The FBI says he headed a bomb-making operation in Chicago for the FALN, a terrorist group advocating Puerto Rican independence.

The most recent addition to the list indicates the FBI's new focus.

Despite ruling, Laetrile will still be imported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earlier this week, the Supreme Court said the government has the authority to ban the purported cancer treatment Laetrile. But the Food and Drug Administration says that does not spell an immediate end to the use of the substance in the United States. Eugene M. Pfeifer, an FDA lawyer, said Tuesday that for the time being the agency will follow a lower court order and permit users to continue importing the apricot pit derivative. In order for the substance to be brought into the country, it must be accompanied by an affidavit from a physician "certifying that a patient is terminally ill with cancer and the Laetrile is intended for the personal use of that patient," Pfeifer said. Those conditions were outlined in a 1977 decision by U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon of Oklahoma. His ruling prohibited the FDA from enforcing its ban on interstate shipment of the product. Another condition was added when the ruling was appealed to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. That court said the lower court order could apply only to Laetrile that was going to be used intravenously by dying cancer victims under the supervision of a physician. The lower court order remains in effect pending further consideration of the case by the appeals court in Denver. The appeals court upheld Bohanon's ruling once, but it never ruled on his reasons for the order. Under the Supreme Court's ruling Monday, the Denver court now must consider those reasons in light of its decision that Laetrile can be banned by the federal government. It could take months to resolve the issue. While the appeals court is reviewing the case, the FDA is considering whether to ask for an order that would eliminate Bohanon's affidavit system until the issue is settled.

Two killed as severe weather lashes Midwest

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes, heavy rain and hail pounded the upper Midwest, uprooting trees and power lines, smashing buildings and light airplanes and destroying crops.

The National Weather Service in Kansas City, Mo., called the storm "the most widespread outbreak of severe weather over the northern Plains for this time of year that can be recalled."

Two people were killed Tuesday and several others injured.

Nebraska took the brunt of the storm, which swept eastward Tuesday with winds gusting up to 90 mph. Its main force stretched 140 miles from the Kansas border to the South Dakota line. Damage or injuries were also reported in Iowa, Minnesota and Kansas, and the Dakotas.

Tornadoes caused an estimated $500,000 damage in Watertown, S.D., about 100 miles from the Minnesota border.

At least 23 Nebraska counties were hit and tornado warning sirens wailed in 10 of them at various times Tuesday afternoon.

Antelope County authorities said Randy Schwarting and Clarence Strahm were killed when 75-80 mph winds and three-quarter-inch hail struck a farm shed about a mile and a half from tiny Oakdale.

There were reports of downed power lines, property damage and uprooted trees throughout the eastern one-third of the state.

In Omaha, the state's largest city, 60-mph winds blew down a house under construction. In Tilden, Neb., a tornado ripped the roof from a fertilizer plant and tore a catwalk off a grain elevator.

In southwestern Nebraska, hail damaged corn, wheat, bean and sugar-beet crops in Perkins, Keith and Deuel counties. A dust storm briefly cut off visibility at Cairo.

In Iowa, several funnel clouds were reported Tuesday night, and at least four people were injured. Gusts up to 90 mph were reported in western Iowa and heavy rains sent one stream out of its banks.

Six light planes at the Spencer airport were destroyed by a tornado and two persons were injured when strong winds whipped through a campsite near Anita.

One of the hardest hit areas was Merville, Iowa, a community of 1,200 in north-central Woodbury County, where a tornado-like wind damaged several homes and businesses and caused at least one injury. A garage was ripped from its foundation at one residence and dropped on the other side of the house.

"There was no warning," said Mrs. Gene Belknap, whose husband is the town's mayor and police chief. "Usually we get a call from the Woodbury County sheriff's office to sound the alarm, but this came too fast."

High winds, heavy rain and hail in Sioux City downed power lines, causing spotted power outages.

Dozens of funnel clouds were reported in Minnesota, downing power lines and trees. At least 40,000 Northern States Power company customers were without electricity today and utility spokesman Wayne Kaplan said it would be several days before all service was restored.

Tornadoes and high winds swept through eastern Kansas, injuring two occupants of an overturned mobile home near Hartford and damaging a grain elevator and bins near Courtland.

Elsewhere across the nation, thunderstorms continued today over southern Florida as well as across the Carolinas, and showers have moved from southern Arkansas into Mississippi. Skies were partly cloudy or clear across much of the rest of the nation this morning.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 41 in Houlton, Maine, to 84 at St. Louis and Fort Worth, Texas.

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 80 clear; Cincinnati 68 fog; Cleveland 60 clear; Detroit 62 clear; Miami 80 clear; New York 62 clear; Philadelphia 59 clear; Pittsburgh 63 clear; Washington 65 clear.

Western U.S. — Anchorage 56 clear; Los Angeles 61 clear; Phoenix 82 clear; Salt Lake City 57 partly cloudy; San Diego 64 clear; San Francisco 54 clear; Seattle 53 clear.

Canada — Montreal 57 clear; Toronto 54 clear.

Atlantic spawns tropical depression

MIAMI (AP) — A swath of the Atlantic Ocean known for breeding hurricanes in August and September has produced a rarity — a tropical depression in June.

"I've never seen one form that early out in that area," said Gil Clark, a 24-year forecaster for the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Of course, we'll be watching it because it's unusual," Clark added.

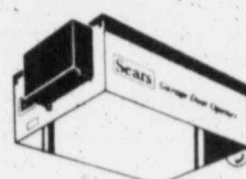

"But it's not likely to be any big hurricane."

Clark said the last tropical depression he remembers developing in the central Atlantic in June was in 1933. That one became a hurricane that swept into Mexico.

The new depression, with 30 mph winds, was about 900 miles east of Trinidad Tuesday night.

Former ITT lobbyist enjoys quiet, retired life

By BOB ROBINSON

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va. (AP) — Dita Beard says she no longer yearns for the political excitement she knew so well as the chief Washington lobbyist for International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

"It took me a long time to break out of it. But once you do break away from it, you never want to go back," says Mrs. Beard, 62, who found a home here after retiring from the Washington political scene in 1974.

The daughter of a career Army officer, Mrs. Beard made her debut in 1939, modeled for a time, then went to work for the Red Cross during World War II, driving a mail truck on the island of Corsica.

After the war, she bore five children in two marriages, then went to work as a lobbyist. Her mother had been active politically, and her years growing up and living in the capital made an impression.

"I was always surrounded by politicians," she said.

Today, she leads a quiet life, visited only by close friends and relatives and protected by neighbors who respect and guard her privacy.

"Last Stand," her ranch-style home overlooking the Potomac River, is well hidden from public view. The only reminders of her former life are the many autographed pictures of political leaders that cover her living room walls.

"If you live up here for a while you begin to feel... you will last a lot longer," she said.

Mrs. Beard's troubles began in 1972 when columnist Jack Anderson published an ITT memorandum purportedly written by her that alleged the Nixon administration would settle a minor antitrust suit against ITT in return for $400,000 from ITT's subsidiary Sheraton Hotel chain for the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Beard denied writing the memo. She still does.

"No one in Washington who knew what was going on thought for a minute that I'd written that memo," she said in a recent interview. "It was misspelled, it was badly punctuated... it wasn't even my initials — not the way I write them."

It was never clearly established whether Mrs. Beard had written the memo. After Anderson's column appeared, Mrs. Beard turned up in a Denver hospital, where she was being treated for angina pectoris.

There were claims that Mrs. Beard was spirited out of Washington to prevent her from testifying before a Senate committee. She denied that claim.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee investigating the nomination of Richard Kleindienst as U.S. Attorney General flew to Denver to question her at the Rocky Mountain Osteopathic Hospital.

But the senators were not the first to reach the ailing lobbyist. Watergate figure E. Howard Hunt Jr. later said he was dispatched by Charles W. Colson, the president's special counsel, to interview Mrs. Beard before the senators arrived.

When subcommittee members did question Mrs. Beard in March 1972, she collapsed.

She says she believes she knows who wrote the memo, "the story of which has never been put together and probably never will be."

Who?

"It was nobody of any importance, believe me," she said.

California 'think tank' sinks

The Los Angeles Times

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — The financially troubled Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, founded here by educator Robert Maynard Hutchins 20 years ago as one of the first "think tanks," was taken over Monday by the University of California at Santa Barbara.

University Chancellor Robert A. Huttenback said he hoped to relocate the center, with a staff that has shrunk to a handful from its past days of glory, to the Isla Vista campus within eight weeks.

Huttenback said the center, which is to be renamed after Hutchins, will continue the interdisciplinary dialogues it made famous, but that academic research would be strengthened in the new program.

"I don't think research was their big thing," Huttenback said of the procedures at the center, which were both hailed as sagacious and condemned as irrelevant by the outside world.

"But that's all right," he went on. "It was a different kind of center. We're not taking it over just to duplicate what was there. We're taking the good traditions and adding to them."

The new center will be provided facilities on the campus, but the university administration is hoping that it will be otherwise financially self-sufficient through the sale of its ocean-view property, through continued sale of its bimonthly magazine and through dues of about 24,000 members.

"We're getting all the assets," Huttenback said. "We're also getting a tradition and a reputation and we're also getting a pretty damn good magazine."

Personal income up 0.7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The personal income of Americans rose a modest 0.7 percent in May, recovering slightly from the strike-depressed level of the previous month, the government said today.

"Well, it's better than April," said a Commerce Department analyst. "But it's not particularly strong."

The $13.2 billion increase in May followed a sluggish $7.5 billion, or 0.4 percent, rise in April, when wages and other income were reduced by the trucking strike and some flooding, the report said.

As with other government indicators, however, the figure did not rebound to the March level. In that month personal income grew $22.5 billion or 1.2 percent.

It also failed to match last year's average $16 billion increase per month. And, if adjusted for inflation rates of some 1 percent a month so far this year, it would show a decline.

Changes in personal income affect consumer spending and reflect overall economic activity, said the Commerce analyst, who asked not to be identified.

Consumer spending has been falling off, and government officials say this will be in large part responsible for the economic slowdown forecast for the second half of the year.

The May increase put income at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.877 trillion.

The report said that wages and salaries increased $7.1 billion in May, or 0.6 percent, compared with $1.9 billion in April.

"The faster growth in May reflected, in part, the ending of the work stoppage in the trucking industry, which had reduced wages and salaries about $5 billion in April in transportation and manufacturing," the report said.

Anthropologist says skulls far more than naked bones

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — When Dr. Michael Charney looks at a skull, he doesn't see just a piece of naked bone. He sees the key to unlocking lost or hidden identities. Charney can take a skull, reconstruct a head that looks like the deceased, tell you the race, age, sex, height within an inch or two and how much he or she probably weighed. All this with a connect-the-dots sort of technique taken from a 19th-century German manuscript. That study charts the depth of tissue at 18 specific points on the skull. "I can't say if someone had a mustache or a mole on their chin," he said, "but all you need to do is get in the ballpark so someone can say, 'Yes, that's Joe Blow.'" In his 40 years as a physical anthropologist-turned-detective, Charney has used the technique successfully in at least four states and one mass disaster. Now, with the establishment of the Center for Human Identification at Colorado State University here, he hopes to "bring some order" to the field of body identification. It's definitely needed, he added, explaining that "at least 20,000" bodies go unidentified each year — just in the United States. Charney expects the center to be used mainly by law-enforcement agencies, he said, because "body identification is primarily a law-enforcement duty." The FBI specializes in fingerprints, he said, but there is no place in the world where several disciplines are combined to help identify bodies. "Too many bodies go nameless to the grave, he added, because of coroners, especially those who are also morticians. "Not all of them do it for money, of course — many just are reluctant to say they don't know what to do," Charney said. "And, of course, they usually don't even know that anyone besides a dentist can help."

House Texans back school prayer

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 7 through June 13.

HOUSE
PAY RAISE: By a vote of 186 for and 232 against, the House defeated a bill (HR4390) providing $953 million for congressional operations during the next fiscal year. Essentially, this was a vote to reject a 5.5 percent pay raise proposed this year for congressmen and 15,000 other top federal officials. There was no direct vote on the raise because its supporters used parliamentary tactics to avert one. The bill will return to the House floor, most likely without the pay-raise provisions.
Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., a pay raise supporter, said: "Since 1969, the raises Congress has begrudgingly allowed itself have lagged at least 14 percent behind the increases in the cost of living. Do we not belittle ourselves and our institution if we perpetuate and aggravate that disparity?"
Rep. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, an opponent, said: "The rate of inflation is one reason to give more emphasis to not having a pay raise for Members of Congress... It just is not going to set a very good example for the public if we are not willing to bite the bullet here and now."
"Virtually all members voting 'yea' supported the bill and thus the pay raise."

R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "nay."

SCHOOL PRAYER: The House adopted, 255 for and 122 against, a legislative amendment in favor of prayer in public schools. The measure seeks to counter the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that school prayers violate the constitutional separation of church and state. It was attached to a bill to establish a U.S. Department of Education. The bill (HR2444) was headed for a final vote.
Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., the sponsor, said: "We are a people who pray, and prayer should be a part of by the Judiciary Committee to the $11.37 million level requested by the Administration.

The commission was set up 21 years ago to monitor and advise Congress on race discrimination. Its jurisdiction recently was expanded to cover discrimination against the aged and handicapped.
Members voting "yea" wanted to cut the U.S. Civil Rights Commission budget.

Hall, Collins, Gramm, Leath, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul and Kazen voted "yea."
Mattox, Pickle, de la Garza, Leland and Gonzalez voted "nay."
Wilson, Roberts, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt and Frost did not vote.

U.S. to stop using a trade embargo to penalize the Zimbabwe-Rhodesia government.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D, and John Tower, R, voted "yea."

SNAIL DARTER: The Senate declined, 43 for and 52 against, to exempt the Tellico Dam in Tennessee from the Endangered Species Act. Because it is said the dam would destroy the habitat of the snail darter, a threatened species, its well-advanced construction is blocked by the act. The vote came during consideration of a bill (S 1143) extending the act for three years.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., sponsor of the exemption move, said: "The dam was begun in 1967, six years before the Endangered Species Act became law. The snail darter species... was not discovered in the Little Tennessee River until 1975, eight years after the project had begun."

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, an opponent, said Congress should allow applications for exemption to be considered by a special executive branch committee set up last year for that purpose.

Senators voting "yea" want construction of the Tellico Dam completed.

Tower voted "yea."
Bentsen voted "nay."

ROLL CALL REPORT

school life so that it can be a more important part of each child's life."

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., an opponent, said: "Let us get on and decide whether we want to establish a Department of Education and leave the question of prayers in the public schools to the proper forum and to a more fitting occasion."

Members voting "yea" favor prayer in public schools.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Leland, Hance, Loeffler, Paul and Kazen voted "yea."
Mattox, Brooks, Gonzalez and Frost voted "nay."
Eckhardt, Pickle, Wright and de la Garza did not vote.

RIGHTS COMMISSION: By a vote of 130 for and 168 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut the budget of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. The amendment sought to lower the agency budget in fiscal 1980 from the $14 million figure approved

Texon completes flowing opener

A flowing Strawn reef discovery has been completed in Glasscock County, 3.5 miles east and slightly south of Garden City.

The discovery, Texon Petroleum Corp. of Dallas No. 1-1 Underwood (formerly John Hill of Dallas No. 1 Underwood) was completed for a daily potential of 260 barrels of oil, no water, through an 18/64-inch choke and perforations from 9,296 to 9,318 feet.

Gravity of the oil was not reported. The gas-oil ratio is 1,384-1.

Operator acidized the pay with 12,000 gallons. Flowing tubing pressure on the potential test was 840 pounds.

The sample top of the Strawn reef is at 9,296 feet on ground elevation of 2,611 feet.

Hill drilled the project to 9,694 feet and plugged it in 1978. Texon re-entered the hole, cleaned out to 9,531 feet and set 4.5-inch casing at that point.

The discovery is one and seven-eighths miles west of the Garden City (Strawn) pool and 660 feet from south and west lines of section 10, block 33, T-3-S, T&P survey.

MITCHELL WILDCAT

UV Industries, Inc., of Salt Lake City, Utah, spotted location for a 7,500-foot wildcat in Mitchell County, eight miles northwest of Silver.

The test, No. 1 Ellwood Estate, is 660 feet from northeast and 1,980 feet from northwest lines of section 7, block 15, SPRR survey, abstract 305.

It is two and one-eighth miles west of the Dixon (Odom lime) pool and two miles northwest of the Jameson (Strawn) field.

WARD DISCOVERY

Amoco Production Co. No. 6-ER University (formerly No. 1-FG University), a re-entry project in Ward County, nine miles northwest of Pyote, has been completed as a Cherry Canyon oil discovery.

The well, a former Wolcamp gas producer, was completed from the Cherry Canyon for a daily pumping potential of 7 barrels of oil and 283 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,149 to 6,158 feet after 1,500 gallons of acid and 20,000 gallons of fracture solution.

The well flowed at the rate of 12,000 cubic feet of gas per day during the potential test.

The gravity of the oil is 38.8 degrees.

Total depth is 20,457 feet and the plugged back depth is 7,700 feet.

Location is 990 feet from north and west lines of section 18, block 18, University Lands survey.

GARZA EXPLORER

Oklahoma Oil Co., operating from Dallas, announced location for a 9,400-foot wildcat in Garza County, 13 miles southwest of Post.

It is No. 1 J. B. Slaughter, 660 feet from south and 1,988.5 feet from east lines of section 18, block 30, T-7-N, W. L. Henry survey.

The site is 1/2 mile northwest of a 9,100-foot dry hole and two and one-eighth miles west of the Coulter (Spraberry) oil pool.

LEA WELL

Union Oil Co. of California No. 2 Pipeline Deep Unit-Federal has been completed in the Quail Ridge, North (Morrow gas) pool of Lea County, N.M., 33 miles west of Hobbs.

Operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 6,080,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 13,388 to 13,402 feet, natural.

Total depth is 13,501 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Wellsite is 760 feet from north and 2,050 feet from east lines of section 18-19S-34E.

ANDREWS OILER

Hanley Co. of Midland No. 1-5-12-A University (formerly No. 1-C University) has been completed from the Dean sand in Andrews County, 18 miles northeast of Andrews.

Although it is five miles north of the Hutex (Dean oil) pool, the well has been assigned to that field. It is seven-eighths miles northeast of Florwill (Strawn oil) production.

Hanley reported a daily pumping potential of 15 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil and two barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 267-1.

The completion was through two sets of perforations — from 9,637 to 9,711 feet and from 9,435 to 9,562 feet. The lower set was acidized with 3,500 gallons and the upper set with 500 gallons.

Total depth is 11,481 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set at 11,411 feet. The plugged back depth is 9,773 feet.

A re-entry project, it originally was drilled by Greathouse, Pierce & Davis as the No. 1-C University and plugged in May 1964.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 2,203 feet from west lines of section 12, block 5, University Lands survey.

TOM GREEN REOPENER

Energy Reserves Group, Inc., of Midland No. 3-A J. W. Johnson has been completed as a Canyon sand well to reopen oil production in that zone in the Christoval (5,100) field of Tom Green County.

The operator reported a daily flow of 40 barrels of 35-gravity oil and 54 barrels of water, through an open choke and perforations from 4,648 to 4,669 feet, from 4,740 to 4,752 feet and from 4,762 to 4,766 feet. The pay was fractured with 30,000 gallons.

A re-entry project, it originally was completed to open the field's 5,100-foot Strawn pay.

Total depth is 6,28 feet and plugged back depth is 5,000 feet.

The Canyon sand was topped at 4,648 feet on kelly bushing elevation of 2,162 feet.

Other tops include the Saddle Creek at 2,996 feet, and the Palo Pinto at 4,507 feet.

Location is six miles northeast of Christoval, 5/8 mile southwest of the original Canyon sand discovery, and 660 feet from northeast and southeast lines of A. D. Neill survey No. 176-3/4.

MIDLAND RE-ENTRY

Wood & Locker, Inc., of Midland announced plans to re-enter a Phillips Petroleum Co. dry hole in Midland County and cleanout for tests of the Spraberry at 8,650 feet.

Originally drilled in the Germania field and abandoned in 1960, the project is No. 1 Keeter, 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 32, block 36, T-2-S, T&P survey and 18 miles east of Midland.

IRION PROJECT

Tucker Drilling Co., Inc., of San Angelo No. 2 Ida Nutt is to be dug as an east offset to Tucker No. 1 Ida Nutt, recently completed Divide sand well in the multipay Lucky-Mag field of Irion County.

The new test, scheduled on a 6,650-foot contract, is 2.5 miles north of Mertzton and 1,000 feet from the southeast and 700 feet from the southwest lines of O. Gerstenberg survey No. 923.

CROCKETT CHANGE

Adelante Petroleum Co. of Midland has amended its No. 1-73 Hudspeth from a discovery to the fifth Canyon gas well in the Hudspeth (Canyon and Strawn gas) pool of Crockett County.

It is one and seven-eighths miles southwest of other Canyon gas production and 27 miles south of Ozona. The well was finished June 8 for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 1,275,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 4,161 to 4,316 feet.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 73, block O, GH&SA survey.

Clements makes rules

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Here in brief are the gasoline purchase restrictions laid down Tuesday by Gov. Bill Clements for Harris, Dallas and Tarrant counties (Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth), effective next Monday.

Gasoline will be dispensed into vehicles with license plate numbers the last digit of which is an even number and, if only letters are on the plates, the last letter which is the first half of the alphabet (A to M) only on even days of the month. Gasoline will be dispensed into vehicles with license numbers which end in odd numbers or, where there are only letters, those which have N to Z plates on odd days of the month.

The minimum purchase price for any single transaction of gasoline is to be $6 unless the total tank capacity of a vehicle is 10 gallons or less.

The maximum purchase for any single transaction will be 20 gallons.

Filling of auxiliary containers in excess of two gallons will be prohibited.

Emergency, out-of-state and identifiable commercial vehicles may purchase gasoline any day of the week.

Supply and type of gasoline available should be prominently displayed through some flag system.

Rationing plan starts Monday

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Motorists in Houston and the Dallas-Fort Worth area will have to look at their license plates Monday to see if they can buy gasoline.

Gov. Bill Clements declared Tuesday the state would try odd-even gasoline purchase restrictions in Harris, Dallas and Tarrant counties in an effort to ease long lines at service stations.

He said the restriction might be applied to other cities later.

The Republican governor also called on Texans to raise their air conditioner thermostats to 76 degrees, instead of the 80 suggested by President Carter, and to abide by the 55 mile-per-hour speed law. He also asked for more car pooling.

"Let's make this a 'No-Tie Summer,'" Clements said in an official proclamation, taking off his coat and tie while it was read at a news conference.

"None of these gas restriction actions will bring additional supplies," Clements said, "but the regulations are needed to preserve good order and make the limited supplies available in an optimum way."

Houston and the Dallas-Fort Worth area have 38 percent of the state's vehicles, Clements said.

"I have considered this fact carefully and am doing what I feel is the minimum required at this time," he said, adding that he expected the restrictions to last at least until September.

"It is my intention to remove these mandatory rules as soon as the situation eases. Conversely, should the situation worsen, I will not hesitate to develop further restrictions."

The odd-even plan would let cars with a license plate number ending in an even number, or a last letter from A to M, to purchase gasoline on even-numbered calendar days. Licenses ending in odd numbers, or letters from N to Z, could get gasoline on odd days of the month.

Other features of the plan for the three counties, effective June 25, would:

— Set the minimum purchase amount at $6, unless a vehicle's tank held less than 10 gallons.

— Set the maximum purchase at 20 gallons, including any boats pulled on trailers.

— Limit filling of any auxiliary containers to two gallons.

— Give emergency, out-of-state and "identifiable commercial vehicles" the right to purchase fuel on any day.

— Require stations to prominently display flags indicating the supply and type of gasoline available.

Clements said he was ready to assist local governments in expanding traffic signal timing programs, long-range mass transit programs and "to develop appropriate local plans to help deal with these spot shortages" in gasoline.

The governor said that strict enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit could realize a five percent fuel saving in addition to keeping down the traffic death toll. He admitted he had to rely on the "enthusiasm" of highway troopers to issue more speeding tickets, instead of hiring more troopers.

Clements and Ed Vetter, the governor's chief energy advisor, said they would rely mostly on public opinion in the enforcement of the gasoline restrictions.

Connecticut, New York start gasoline rationing

By PETER MACKLER

Gasoline rationing came to New York and Connecticut today and was set for midnight in New Jersey as officials in other states dealt with the eastern swing of the Gas Crisis of 1979 with minimum gas purchases.

Rhode Island hoped minimum gasoline purchases — $5 for small cars, $7 for large models — would discourage "topping off." Massachusetts energy director Joseph Fitzpatrick said minimums were likely in that state as well.

But officials were to make a final decision today whether to go ahead with plans for "odd-even" rationing in Maryland, Washington D.C., and northern Virginia, where minimum sales requirements have failed to shorten lines at pumps. They have said they will begin rationing at midnight unless the situation improves.

"I think people have finally adjusted to the fact that this is a gasoline crisis," said Kathy Godzik, spokeswoman for the Automobile Club of Maryland. "It used to be a crunch; now it's a crisis."

Other states like Pennsylvania and Georgia held off on any measures but kept an eye on gasoline supplies and the success of rationing elsewhere.

The odd-even rationing system — which alternates days on which gas can be bought between motorists with odd- and even-numbered license plates — began at 12:01 a.m. in the New York City area, where gas prices were over $1 a gallon in many places.

The plan, announced by Gov. Hugh Carey of Monday, also includes a minimum-purchase requirement, limits sales to drivers with half a tank or less, and requires some stations to stay open on weekends.

Many service station operators were not happy at the scheme, which Carey said would be extended to other parts of the state if needed.

"If the governor thinks we're going to stand around like a bunch of corner cops looking at license plates and gas gauges, he's got something else coming," said Russell Murway, president

Judge rules for oil firms in price case

HOUSTON (AP) — The Department of Energy's interpretation of a price-control regulation that led it to charge several oil companies with overpricing their petroleum products has been invalidated by a federal judge.

In a ruling issued June 8 in Dallas, U.S. District Judge H.O. Woodward struck down the interpretation and told the DOE to refrain from making any future reinterpretations, Exxon Co. USA said Tuesday.

Although Exxon's announcement made no reference to any overcharge figures, company spokesmen who asked that they not be identified said the interpretation had a "substantial impact" on the oil industry.

Woodward's ruling was the result of a suit filed against the DOE by Exxon, Shell Oil Co., General Crude Oil Co., Coastal States Gas Corp., Coastal States Marketing Inc., and Union Petroleum Corp.

The court also ruled illegal the DOE's attempts to enforce the interpretation without giving the companies an opportunity for public hearings or comment, Exxon said.

The oil company said the dispute involved DOE's interpretation of the method petroleum refiners, resellers and retailers should use to decide base prices for virtually all petroleum products.

Exxon said the DOE issued the interpretation in March 1977, four years after the original regulation became effective.

The company said DOE's interpretation prohibited oil refiners and marketers from using the prices of products sold under contracts with setting base prices despite "clear language in the regulations permitting them to do so."

The suit filed in August 1977 by the oil companies asked for the authority to set base prices as the law allowed.

Crockett test site moved

Odessa Natural Corp. of Odessa has replaced its No. 2-4 Odessa and others in Crockett County with No. 2-X-4 Odessa and others.

The project, scheduled as a 1/2 mile east outpost to the Ingham (Devonian gas) field, was junked at an unreported depth and the location moved 150 feet to the east.

The site now is 990 feet from south and 4,350 feet from east lines of section 4, block FFF, GC&SF survey.

It is contracted to 8,800 feet. The ground elevation is 2,642 feet.

The location is 24 miles west of Ozona.

of the 1,200-member Long Island Gasoline Retailers Association.

"We have more regulations than we care to handle," Murway said. "We can't tolerate any more violence at the pumps. The answer is more gas."

Gov. Ella Grasso began odd-even rationing in her state today after New York and New Jersey announced their programs. She said the state faced a 20 percent shortfall in gas supplies this month and "there was no community that was comfortable."

"It seems to me there was absolutely no way to avoid this," Mrs. Grasso said in announcing the rationing plan Tuesday.

While all of New Jersey goes on the odd-even system at midnight, its Garden State Parkway was already rationing gasoline at pumps, the first spot in the East to do so.

Rationing was slated to begin Monday in Texas' three most populous counties.

In California, which began odd-even rationing May 9, state officials said Tuesday the program had helped ease panic and cut down lines of gas-hungry motorists.

"What I think odd-even did... was make people realize they had to change some habits," said Stephanie Bradford, spokeswoman for the state Energy Commission. "They are driving less. They aren't buying as much gasoline."

Elsewhere, Montana's News-Press and Journal asked its newspapers to carry the hours service stations are open. Florida officials looked for ways to keep people from buying unneeded gasoline — possibly with rules against topping off.

Officials in Massachusetts and the Washington, D.C., area complained they weren't getting their allocation of gasoline promised by the federal government.

In some areas, particularly Indiana, by blockades at fuel depots set up striking independent truckers aggravated gasoline problems.

And gasoline retailers threatened to strike June 28 to protest federal pricing policies and owner-operators of taxicabs in New York City said they'd stay off the job this weekend to protest gas allocations.

Details of odd-even gasoline rationing vary from state to state, but, generally speaking, motorists whose license plates end in odd numbers — 1,3,5,7,9 — can buy gasoline on odd days. Those with plates ending in even numbers — 0,2,4,6,8 — are allowed to purchase on even days. Rules about plates composed entirely of letters vary from area to area.

Estes' lawyer alleges payoffs made to LBJ

DALLAS (AP) — A lawyer defending Billie Sol Estes in his fraud trial said in federal court here the paroled swindler made payoffs totaling upwards of $10 million to former President Lyndon Johnson.

Defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin did not introduce evidence to back up his claim, but he did play a secretly recorded conversation between Estes and an undercover Internal Revenue Agent in which the alleged payoffs were discussed.

Estes, in the tape made in the summer of 1977, confided to undercover IRS agent Walter Perry that he gave the late president about $500,000 in exchange for multimillion dollar government grain contracts.

Irwin contended he could show $10 million went to Lyndon Johnson as business expenses.

But U.S. District Judge Robert Hill sustained a prosecution objection that any payoffs Estes may have made were irrelevant to the charges against him.

Estes, and his Midland business associate Robert K. Horton, are accused of concealing assets from the federal government and conspiracy to defraud investors in an alleged scheme involving investments in non-existent oil field cleaning equipment.

Irwin has maintained that Estes has been a "political prisoner" since his fraud conviction in 1963, and the target of over-zealous prosecutors.

The unusual terms of Estes' 1971 parole prohibited the Abilene promoter from self-employment or from engaging in promotional activities.

During his cross examination of Perry, the defense attorney tried to show the agent used shady methods to trick Estes into revealing his business dealings.

Irwin claimed that Estes told Perry more than 30 times during their association that he did not want to "do anything illegal" that would send him back to prison.

Perry had testified earlier that he had no documented evidence to show that Estes had concealed assets from the IRS.

Henley's attorney predicts third murder trial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — While prosecutors tried to convince a judge that Elmer Wayne Henley voluntarily told police about his part in the Houston mass murders, a defense lawyer was boldly predicting that Henley will get a third trial.

"I would wager money on it if I had any," Will Gray of Houston told reporters Tuesday.

Henley, 23, is being re-tried here on six murder counts stemming from the homosexual torture and death spree that left 26 boys dead. He had been convicted of the killings at a 1974 trial. But Gray successfully argued on appeal that the defense had been improperly denied a change of venue hearing. The conviction was thrown out.

"We've got all the record we need (for a successful appeal)," Gray said. "The rest is just window dressing."

Gray believes State District Judge Noah Kennedy has committed an error that could force a third trial if Henley is convicted. He claimed that several jurors were improperly seated. He forecasted that "we'll do it again in two or three years."

But Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance said that he found nothing wrong with the jury selection process.

"The judge was very cautious in the jury selection. It's not the easiest thing to get a jury in a case with world-wide publicity."

Kennedy Tuesday began hearing testimony in a pretrial hearing to determine the admissibility of a written statement Henley gave police after his 1973 arrest. The defense wants the statement suppressed.

After the eight-man, four-woman jury was sequestered, Vance began calling witnesses in an attempt to show that the statement was not coerced.

Pasadena policeman J.B. Jamison and Dave Mullican testified that Henley had been advised of his rights and did not ask to see a lawyer. The two men were among the first to arrive at a Pasadena home where Henley said he had killed Dean Corll. Henley claimed the 33-year-old Corll masterminded the death spree.

Mullican said Henley voluntarily led police to burial sites in Houston, San Augustine and High Island where the bodies were dug up.

"He did tell me in fact that he had been involved in killing some of these people," Mullican said.

Condemned men's lawyers predict delay of executions

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Lawyers for Charles W. Proffitt and Robert A. Sullivan, whose death warrants have been signed by Florida Gov. Bob Graham, say they are confident neither man will be put to death as scheduled next week.

Sullivan's attorneys Tuesday asked the Florida Supreme Court to delay the executions scheduled for 7 a.m. June 27. Proffitt's lawyers said they would file a similar request in Tampa circuit court this week.

If appeals fail, the men will become the second and third to die in the electric chair in little more than a month. On May 25, Florida State Prison inmate John Spenklink became the first man executed unwillingly in the United States since 1967.

Proffitt, 33, was sentenced to death for the 1973 murder of a Tampa high school wrestling coach. The coach, 23-year-old Joel Medgebow, was asleep when Proffitt plunged a breadknife into his chest.

Sullivan, 31, was sentenced to death for the 1973 shotgun slaying of motel and restaurant manager Donald Schmidt, who was abducted and murdered in the Everglades.

"They're not at the end of the road," said Proffitt's attorney Jack Boger of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Legal Defense Fund. "Neither of these cases should result in execution anytime soon."

Both men lost appeals after their trials, but are allowed by law to try a second round. Neither has completed those appeals, which lawyers said generally deal with whether a trial met certain constitutional standards.

When those appeals end, the two men could press similar contentions in federal court. That approach spared the life of Willie Jasper Darden Jr., who had been scheduled to die along with Spenklink.

"It's pretty easy to say it's not an imminent thing, but it's difficult for my client to contemplate that they're going to execute him in a week," said Sullivan's lawyer, Roy E. Black of Miami. "He's got to take it seriously. And I do, too."

Proffitt, a slightly-built man, has said he would rather die in a hospital as a guinea pig for research than "cook" in the electric chair.

"I mean, you stick a guy in a chair, he's hot. He can't help anybody," Proffitt said in a 1977 interview.

Sullivan, a former law student, once said if he had to die in the electric chair he wanted it shown on television.

"If people see what they want, they won't want it," the articulate, heavy-set man said in an interview two years ago.

Graham would not comment on his reasons for signing the death warrants. And lawmakers were divided in their reaction.

State Rep. David Lehman of Hollywood said two death warrants a month weren't enough to deplete the Death Row population of 133. "I think two a week would be better," he said.

Rep. Andy Johnson of Jacksonville, who watched Spenklink die, said he had no real sympathy for those on Death Row.

"I just hope with the continued signing of these death warrants the people of Florida look at our capital punishment law and think about it and see that we don't need this law," he said. "As a matter of mercy, there's no reason why we can't have life sentences."

Ormandy hospitalized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eugene Ormandy, music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, was "resting comfortably" in Pennsylvania Hospital after suffering chest pains, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Ormandy, 79, was hospitalized Tuesday after he was stricken at his apartment in the downtown Barclay Hotel.

"His doctor said he's

It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $18,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is $24,700 due to additional sales commissions: 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:

Please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification:

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or out of town work).
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extraordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer candidates to us.

Chandelle is a Nice Place to Call Home...*

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM? *

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs.

"CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems - of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.

With just $2750 down for a 2 bedroom-2 bath "D" model, and a monthly payment of $600... You can have all the economic benefits of "Chandelle", plus enjoy convenient living with a "Touch of Class". That $600 monthly figure includes your mortgage, taxes, insurance, water, sewage, and association fees.

* The 37 people who have decided to call "CHANDELLE" home will tell you why.

The map shows the location of Chandelle at the intersection of Wadley and Big Spring. Landmarks include Oak Ridge Square Shopping, Theatre Midland, Plaza Shopping, Midland College, Midland Airpark, Imperial Shopping, San Miguel Shopping, Midland Club Stadium, and Midland Memorial Hospital.

The photograph shows a two-story brick house with a large front porch and a gabled roof.
