NEWS IN BRIEF

Ousted leader in London

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Ousted President Yusufu Lule flew out of Uganda Friday for London, failing in his brief challenge to Godfrey Binaisa, the man selected to succeed him.

In a brief statement on Lule's departure, the official Uganda news agency said Lule, president for 2½ months, left for Britain to join his family. He reportedly was seen off at Entebbe airport, south of Kampala, by senior officials of the ruling Uganda National Liberation Front.

Lule, 67, was installed by the Liberation Front after Ugandan exiles and invading Tanzanian troops overthrew former President Idi Amin. He had vowed to remain in office, but apparently changed his mind after Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere said Thursday he viewed Binaisa as Uganda's legal president.

Syrian massacre reported

DAMASCUS, Syria, (AP) — Syria's interior minister said Friday gunmen from an extremist Moslem group attacked a military academy in the city of Aleppo last week and massacred 32 artillery cadets.

The minister, Gen. Adnan Dabbagh, called the grenade and submachine-gun assault a "merciless bloodbath."

Reports of the massacre last Saturday by more than a dozen gunmen had been circulating in the Middle East for several days — including accounts by the rightist Christian Phalange Party radio station in Dabbagh confirmed the reports Friday and blamed the attack on a group called the Moslem Brotherhood, which has been outlawed in most Arab countries.

Loans legal, lawyer says

ATLANTA (AP) — The advertising agency belonging to Gerald Rafshoon, President Carter's media adviser, did not make an illegal loan to Carter's 1976 campaign when it allowed the campaign to run up $617,000 in debts, Rafshoon's lawyer said Friday.

Atlanta attorney William J. Stack, who is handling Rafshoon's financial affairs, said he has given federal investigators a detailed report showing that much of the debt represented bills owed by the agency but not paid which were passed along to the campaign.

Stack said the report dealing with Gerald Rafshoon Advertising Inc. was "a more full and complete disclosure of this type of information than has ever been vailable anywhere."

The debts have caught the attention of the Justice Department, which has nearly completed a "preliminary assessment," and of special counsel Paul J. Curran, who was appointed to investigate loans to the Carter family peanut warehouse.

Refugees examined

KUALA LULMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian health officials have sent a dozen doctors to determine if bubonic plague has broken out among 9,400 Vietnamese refugees on the Pulau Island refugee camp. They also ordered that rats infesting the area be caught or shot, doctors working on the island said Friday.

The doctors said no cases of plague have been confirmed on Pulau, 140 miles southeast of here, but blood samples from 20 refugees were taken Friday. It will take a number of days for the tests to be completed, the

The investigation was ordered after some doctors working among the refugees noticed plague-related symptoms and the large number of rats on the island

Hijacker sentenced

CHICAGO (AP) — Nikola Kavaja, a Serbian nationalist returned to Chicago after a trans-Atlantic hijacking, was sentenced to 20 years in prison Friday for participating in a conspiracy to bomb Yugoslav diplomats.

Kavaja and five comrades were sentenced by U.S. District Judge Hubert L. Will for the 1975 bombing of the suburban home of the Yugoslav consul and plotting to blow up two Yugoslav receptions commemorating the beginning of Yugoslavia's Communist regime.

Kavaja, who could have received a sentence of up to 35 years and a $40,000 fine, was returning to Chicago from New York for the sentencing when he hijacked an American Airlines jet Wednesday. He released the passengers in Chicago, then later forced the airline to fly him to New York and on to Shannon, Ireland, where he surrendered.

Decision reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that President Carter can deny government contracts to companies that fail to follow the administration's wage-price guidelines.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia reversed a lower court decision that had declared the president did not have the constitutional authority to enforce his voluntary anti-inflation program.

The appeals court split 6-3 on the decision, which overturned a May 31 ruling by U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker.

Indictment discourage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Travis County grand jury once planned to indict a top aide of Comptroller Bob Bullock but was talked out of it by District Attorney Ronald Earle, the Austin American-Statesman said

"Earle told the grand jury that issuing the indictment would jeopardize the further investigation of Bullock, but assured the jury that the indictment would be returned later by the next grand jury. No indictment was returned," said the American-Statesman,

Earle declined comment on the report, citing the oath of secrecy of grand jury proceedings and the fact that Bullock has gone to court in an attempt to erase the final report made by the December 1978 grand jury.

Stays of execution denied

executions of their clients in Florida's electric chair.

Convicted murderers Robert A. Sullivan, 31, and Charles William Proffit, 33, are scheduled to die at 7 a.m. Wednesday in the small death chamber at the Florida State Prison near Starke.

Federal investigation into the death of Larry Lozano who died while an inmate in the Ector County Jail Jan. 22, 1978, has ended with no indictments returned. Some members of the Mexican-American community contend Lozano was beaten to death while in custody, but the report issued by Attorney General Griffin Bell Friday said there was not sufficient evidence to justify indictments.

Order may raise insurance rates

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

A Midland insurance agent said Friday automobile insurance policyholders in Texas probably will see an increase in insurance rates due to an order from the State Insurance Board ending insurance penalties for drivers convicted of traffic violations.

But County Attorney Leslie Acker said he believes his office will benefit from the change because more persons charged with traffic violations may plead guilty now.

The action by the state board followed a newly-passed state law prohibiting the penalties for all drivers, except those who obtain their insurance through the assigned risk or county mutual companies.

The most common violation for which penalties are added to insurance premiums is speeding.

Jim Schneider of Schneider Insurance Agency in Midland said, "I feel like it will affect rates overall. It could possibly make everybody's rates higher."

rates higher."
Insurance companies traditionally have assessed surcharges for drivers convicted of traffic violations and Schneider said the companies need a method of rating to make the system.

fair for every policyholder.

The assigned risk and county mutual companies may be "flooded" with additional policy-seekers following the state board's action, he said, but "I think they have the capacity to handle it."

Nonetheless, there probably will be "quite a few people who pay quite a bit more in premiums," Schneider predicted. And the median premium that the average person pays probably will increase in cost.

"I think one effect it might have is in the prosecution of traffic violations," opined Acker.

He said that under the current system many individuals have elected to plead innocent to traffic citations, not because of the fine assessed but because of the resulting higher insurance premiums.

"The concern is usually not so much the payment of the fine, but the insurance adjustment," the county attorney said.

One concern, said Acker, is how the change will impact the state's receipt of federal highway funds. He said some concern had been expressed that by making this change the state was not being hard enough on speeders.

Under the federally mandated 55 mile per hour speed limit, states that do not strictly enforce this limit run the risk of losing federal highway funds.

Acker said it remains to be seen how the insurance change will be viewed by the federal government. However, he said he did not foresee an increase in the number of speeders because of the change.

"Hopefully the average individual is not going to go out and violate the speeding law just because it won't go on his insurance premium," Acker said.

Major Ira Dees, regional commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Midland, agreed that he expects to see little, if any, increase in the number of speeders because of the change.

"It's really hard to say what is going to happen," Dees said. He said he believes people are too concerned about the gasoline shortage to begin speeding just because of this hange in insurance penalties.

"I think overall traffic has slowed down recently," he added.

Otherwise, Dees said he's just taking a wait and see attitude in regard to the change.

Other insurance agents contacted about the change said they do not have the necessary information to comment at this time.

Average weekend' due

The average beautiful summer weekend is in store for the Permian Basin, the weatherman said.

Skies should be clear to partly cloudy through Sunday with the high temperature in the upper 90s Saturday and Sunday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Low tonight is expected to be in the lower 70s.

Winds should be from the southwest at 15-20 mph today, the weatherman said.

No rain is mentioned in the forecast, so the monthly total of 2.75 inches and the annual total of 6.75 inches are likely to remain unchanged.

Friday was another clear summer day, with a recorded high nudging the century mark at 99 degrees. Recorded low was 71 degrees. Record temperatures for the date are 107 degrees set in 1951 and 61 degrees set in 1957.

Rationing plans aren't much help

By The Associated Press

It was stay at home or face a long and possibly futile search for gasoline for millions of Americans this week-

Odd-even sales systems and other forms of rationing instituted along much of the Eastern Seaboard this week generally failed to make much of a dent in gasoline lines by Friday and few service stations were expected to open on Sunday. The protest by truckers, seeking relief from rising prices for diesel fuel and from some government regulations, complicated matters for many, particularly in the South.

National Guardsmen in Florida began moving gasoline to the south-eastern part of the state, hard hit by the action of the independent truckers who, since Monday, have refused to haul fuel from storage depots at Port Everlades. Seven counties odéred some form of rationing and there were lines of up to two miles reported at Miami-area service stations.

Three counties in Texas, including the areas around Dallas, Houston and Fort Worth, prepared for the start of odd-even gasoline sales on Monday. Rhode Island Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy announced an odd-even sales system, starting at 6 p.m. Friday, for four towns along the state's border with Connecticut which began a rationing program on Thursday. The Rhode Island stations were swamped with people trying to beat the Connecticut system. Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, meanwhile, asked service station owners to open on Sunday, if possible, and she appealed to motorists to conserve fuel over the weekend so they could get to work on Monday. "Please limit extra travel this weekend," Mrs. Grasso said. "If you drive, make sure you leave enough gas in the tank so that you'll be able to get started

Two sentenced on heroin charges

ODESSA - Two Midlanders were sentenced Thursday after pleading guilty to charges of possession of heroin.

Felis M. Garcia, 34, received a 10- year prison sentence and his wife, Pabla De Garcia, 28, received a 10-year probated sentence from 244th District Court Judge Joe Connally.

The two were arrested by officers from the Odessa and Midland police departments, Ector and Midland county sheriff's departments and the Texas Department of Public Safety July 31, 1978. Officers found 12 ounces of heroin in the pickup truck the two were driving.

San Angelo man dies in truck crash

RANKIN - A 19-year-old San Angelo man was killed in a one-vehicle accident just east of Rankin early Friday morning. Icanor Leyva, 19, of San Angelo was pronounced dead at the scene on Texas.67 by Peace Justice Reba Price.

Leyva, a truck driver, apparently lost control of the vehicle, crossed the road and hit a tree after falling asleep at the wheel, said a spokesman with the Department of Public Safety:

The accident happened between 3:30 and 1 a.m. Friday.

Small spurt of radiation reported

PEACH BOTTOM, Pa. (AP) - A second small spurt of uncontrolled radiation leaked from the Peach Bottom nuclear plant Friday, but state and federal officials said it posed no health hazard.

"If the information we have is accurate, then the release is trivial," said HaroldDenton, operations director for the Nuclear Regulatory Commis-

The leak was the second in two days at the plant, located along the Susquehanna River less than 30 miles southeast of the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant and several miles north of the Maryland border.

"It doesn't appear to be any health threat," said Thomas Gerusky, director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Radiological Health. Based on figures provided by the plant operator, Philadelphia Electric Co., Gerusky said radiation concentrations were very low. "Iodine is the critical isotope and it

According to the NRC, both leaks occurred when technicians tried to start up the unit three reactor. The unit was shut down last Wednesday

Gerusky said the releases were all gases which are not absorbed by the body, and he estimated that radiation exposure would be well below one

Couple charged with selling child

BIG SPRING - A man and a woman from Louisiana were in custody Friday night after being charged with the attempted sale of a child at a Big Spring truck stop Thursday, said a spokesman with the Big Spring Police Department

Robert Lee Gibson, 32, and Yvette Wierson, 18, both of Leesville, La., were charged with the Class A misdemeanor after allegedly trying to sell a three-month-old girl at Griffin's Truck Stop here.

Ms. Wierson was thought to be the mother of the infant, a police spokesman said.

Ms. Wierson was in the city jail and Gibson was in Howard County Jail, the spokesman said.

In Danbury, Conn., Mayor Donald Boughton proposed that city employees work a four-day week - with longer hours each day - to cut gasoline consumption. He said that if the plan is accepted by union and department heads, it will go into effect the first week in July.

Massachusetts Gov. Edward J. King issued an order on Thursday prohibiting gasoline sales to people with more than half a tank of fuel. He also told local officials to make sure that gasoline is available somewhere in their area 24 hours a day, seven days a week. AAA spokesman Dick Hoover said the orders "should help, but if there's no gas, there's no gas." The AAA said survey showed only 12 percent of Massachusetts service stations would be open on Sunday, although supplies will vary widely from area to area. The AAA predicted that 21 percent of the service stations in New England would be open on Sunday; the availability picture generally will be brightest in northern areas. There were long lines, meanwhile, in New Jersey, despite the odd-even program which began on a statewide basis on Thursday. Many motorists whose plates ended in even num.ers feared that because the next even day is a Sunday, Friday was their last chance to buy fuel until Tuesday. 'When I came to work at midnight, cars were already lined up at the U Save station," said Sandra Smedlie, a police dispatcher in Pompton Lakes, N.J., where there were lines ranging up to 14 blocks long. The odd-even sales system in the Washington, D.C., area will not be in effect on Saturday or Sunday. Most service stations said the program, which began Thursday, brought some decrease in the number of waiting cars, but others said there was no change in the lines.

The shortage - which has prompted scattered fist fights and even fatal stabbings in gasoline lines - continued to bring out the worst in some people.

Two youths were caught stealing gasoline from a vehicle parked at a farm supply store in Bainbridge Township, Mich., and were sentened to 10 days in jail each. Judge Hugh Black said the normal sentence would have been a fine since neither youth had a previous larceny conviction.

Peach Bottom Nuclear Power Plant, located in southern York County, Pa., was the site of an uncontrolled release, the second in two days. Although the escaping radiation was 16 percent greater that federal standards allow, radiation levels in the area are normal. (AP Laserphoto)

More violence, change in fuel priority seen in trucker protest

By The Associated Press

Shots were fired, windshields smashed and produce and fuel deliveries blocked as violence flared again in the independent truckers' protest Friday. The White House, meanwhile, announced an order taking some fuel away from farmers and giving it to truckers.

Hershey Foods Corp. laid off 950 workers at its Hershey, Pa., chocolate factory. "More and more of our carriers are not accepting loads, that's what it boils down to," said spokesman Ken Bowers.

It was too early to tell if President Carter's action would succeed in getting trucks rolling again. But one truckers' leader said drivers need more than what Carter offered, and a farm official said the action was like "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Carter's order suspending a federal rule that gave farmers first claim on diesel fuel followed the worst day of violence so far in the protest by independent truckers. The truckers are upset by dwindling and expensive diesel supplies, load regulations and the 55-mph speed limit. National food and fuel supply networks have been disrupted.

To further pacify truckers, the Federal Highway Administration asked governors of eight states and the District of Columbia to-consider temporarily lifting the legal limits on the weight of trucks.

Driver Don Collins was shot in the arm early Friday in Tennessee when he stopped and got out of his truck to check a wheel.

Gunfire was also reported Friday in Louisiana and Minnesota. In Massachusetts, 18 persons were arrested Friday and Gov. Edward King called out National Guard troops to break up a blockade of 80 rigs at the New England Produce Center at Chelsea.

National Guard troops continued to escort fuel and produce trucks in Florida, Georiga and Kentucky Fri-in Oklahoma and South Carolina, and truckers in Connecticut blocked a regional distribution center ofthe Shop and Shop supermarket chain.

Officials at the ports of Mobile, Ala., and Galveston, Texas, said Friday that tons of bananas may be dumped into the sea if they can't be loaded into trucks and shipped.

At Galveston, about 350 tons of bananas was involved, and about 200 tons remained unloaded at Mobile on a ship from Central America.

Doug Olson of the Del Monte Banana Co. said at Miami that there already has been at least one dumping by another company

Jack Scott of the Castle & Cooke contracting company said at Galveston that his firm stood to lose about $104,000 if the shipment was destroyed. Some farmers in North Carolina began organizing convoys Friday to get their vegetables to market. They said tons of cucumbers were wasting in the fields.

Violence in gas lines explained

NEW YORK (AP) - A leading psychologist likens motorists on a gas line to animals in an experiment: Shock an animal, keep it mobile, and it will only be stunned. But shock it and confine it, and it becomes Arnold Lazarus, a professor at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., uses the parallel to explain the violent outbursts on gas lines across the Lazarus and his colleagues say the gas line violence will probably continue - at least until motorists get used to the frustrations that go hand-inhand with the shortage.

"You're taking away people's power, freedom and mobility and you're confining people with the gas shortage," he said in an interview this week. "That will just bring them face to face with their own anxieties, their feelings of ineptitude, of weakness, their own limits.

Confronted with feelings they'd rather escape and confined in slow-moving lines, motorists are more prone to violence, Lazarus says.

Scattered fist fights and even fatal shootings and stabbings have erupted from coast to coast as gas shortages spread.

A California motorist jumped out of his car and beat up a pregnant woman who cut into line in front of him. In New York, a man was shot and another was stabbed to death in separate gas station

Though no one knews exactly how many incidents have occurred or what sort of people are involved, most experts agree that violence is most likely to erupt in the overcrowded, tense atmosphere of big cities. They say no one is immune

"Threaten my daughter with a knife and I might get violent," Lazarus says.

Harvard University behaviorist B.F. Skinner agrees: "I don't believe people do things because of the kind of person they are. The (gas) situation is very aversive. You either escape from it or become

Stressful gas lines trigger the classic "fight-flight" response, says Dr. Kenneth Greenspan, a Columbia University psychiatrist specializing in stress-related disorders.

Stress produces physiological changes which cause a person to flee or become antagonistic. Aggressive instincts, says Greenspan, are heightened by the paranoia motorists feel because they're deprived of information about the gas situation.

Consider the motorist who searches for an open gas station and then spends hours waiting on line with no guarantee that the pump won't run dry: He feels resentful, anxious that he won't succeed and frustrated because he has little control over whether he'll be able to buy gas.

Any one of those feelings can trigger violence, the experts say.

Psychologist Morton Bard, director of the Center for Social Research at the City University of New York, believes the violence stems in part from the novelty of the situation - Americans are not accustomed to being told they can't have something they've always had.

As the novelty wears off, he says, the number of violent incidents will decline.

"If things continue to go as they are," he says, people will accommodate and adapt. They just

Midland pair wins at bridge

The first event of the Tall City Sectional Bridge in the Hilton, with Mr. and Mrs. Jack LaVigne of Tournament, played Friday afternoon in the Midland Hilton, was won by Mrs. J.T. Dickerson and Mrs. W.W. Roye, both of Midland.

The Midland bridge lifemasters amassed 214 points to sweep first place honors in the Unmixed Pairs event — far ahead of second place Hemant Lall of Dallas and Robert Preston of Abilene who scored 1971/2 points for second place. In third spot were Mrs. W.B. Smith and Mrs. R.E Hammond, both of Midland, with 194 points.

The next three finishing partnerships were Mrs. William H. Potts and Mrs. J.C. Williamson, both of Midland; G.A. George and Don Fraser, both of El Paso, and Gloria Dellenback and Mrs. J.L. Fortin, another Midland duo.

The Master's Pairs was completed late Friday. The tournament resumes at 1:30 p.m.today with the Open Pairs two-session event. The final round will be played at 7:30 p.m.

Also schedulded at 7:30 p.m. today is the consolation round for those players who do not qualify for the Open Pairs finals and for persons who do not play in the qualifying round.

The main event of the tournament, the Swiss Team of Four, is scheduled for Sunday, with the first session to begin at 11 a.m. The final-round time will be announced at the tournament.

The tournament is sponsored by the Permian Basin Duplicate Bridge Club and is sanctioned by the Greater Permian Basin Unit No. 209, headquartered in Midland, and the American Contract Bridge

Harry Clark of Dallas, with the ACBL, is director of the tourney play. A special warmup game was held Thursday night Midland winning first place.

94-year-old twin sisters remember stage, film career of early 1900s

By CHARLES HILLINGER The Los Angeles Times

LEMOORE, Calif. — In the midst of one of their old Ziegfeld Follies routines, the two girls kicked up their heels and laughed uproariously "We're a little rusty but we can still shake a leg," said Eloise Reed. At 94, she and her sister, Genevieve, are two of the oldest twins in the nation.

They agree that the one thing that has kept them going is their sense of humor.

We laugh a lot and always have a good time. We're not hypochondriacs," said Eloise to a visitor to their home in this small Central California farm

Born in Salem, Ore., the twins were 22 when they began their career as a song and dance team in 1907. They appeared in the follies, on stage and in silent films for the next 15 years. "We sang and danced our way across America in musical comedies, repertory companies and in vaudeville. And we played in pictures," Genevieve

Stacks of yellowed news clippings, scores of publicity photos and old programs remind them of their

"A lot of rich guys dated us. Some were millionaires. We had a good time," Eloise recalled.

They both married after leaving show business. Eloise was divorced. Genevieve is a widow. They moved back together 20 years ago and now use their maiden name

"It wasn't any fun," Eloise said. "I worried to death about you. You missed the boat and I sailed back to New York without you. "It was fun for me," Genevieve winked. "I had a boyfriend in Cuba. He made me miss the boat." They played lead roles in silent films such as "The as vivid as if they occurred last year instead of more than a half century ago. They do stay at home more these days.

'We have been sticks in-the-mud ever since Genevieve ran the stoplight," Eloise said.

"I made a slight error," the other twin explained. "I was driving our car a few months ago and was momentarily distracted. I forgot to stop for a red light. Thank God. I didn't hit anyone.

"But there was a cop at the corner at the time. They took my driver's license away. Ever since, a friend has been coming to the house once a week to take us grocery shopping.'

The twins confess to having vices. 'We each smoke three cigarettes a day," Genevieve said. "It's too late to quit now." 'We have a shot of whisky once a week with a friend who comes to visit." Eloise added.

They read a lot, watch the soaps on TV and still enjoy attention from a man.

When a photographer hugged Eloise as he left, 'Remember when we sailed to Cuba and played Genevieve jumped out of her chair and sang out:

Early ending of gaslights to mark end of lighting era

ters, the nation's 1.5 million surviving gaslights will be turned off for the last time by 1982, with a few exemptions for historical or other reasons.

With the end of the gaslight era approaching, an illuminating footnote has come to light in the archives of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co., a venerable institution still doing business on Wall Street, where it opened its doors in 1842.

Preserved throughout the years is a document dated Aug. 23, 1850, a petition by the clerks of Atlantic requesting their president to replace the flickering sperm-oil candles, in general use at the time, with gas. It reads:

Branded as energy was- dersigned clerks employed in this office, do most respectfully request that Gas Fixtures may be affixed to our respective desks, and that we may be permitted to use Gas in place of the Sperm Candles at present used.

'Aside from the injury to our eyes from the constant flickering of the light from Candles, it is believed, that after the first cost of the pipes, a great saving would be effected in the cost of lght of Candles and would tend to our convenience duties." Very Respectfully, Your Servants."

Fourteen signatures follow - each of them in a strong, distinct hand. A further search in the archives revealed that the petition was successful.

Adding that "this court does not intend and will not be a party to such irresponsible action," U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher ordered that temperatures in federal courtrooms in the eastern district of Texas not exceed 74 degrees.

Federal judges in Albuquerque, N.M., New Orleans and Fargo, N.D., have issued similar orders, setting courthouse temperatures at 70 degrees, 74 degrees and 68 degrees, respectively.

The General Services Administration, which manages federal buildings, has instructed its building managers to comply with the judicial orders and turn the air conditioners back up. But the agency is considering legal steps to challenge the orders.

Texas truckers still have questions

By The Associated Press

Texas truckers greeted their elevated fuel status with skepticism Friday. Many questioned the effectiveness of President Carter's decision to take away farmers' priority for obtaining diesel fuel so that truckers would have more fuel.

Ron Terzich, president of the Texas chapter of the Independent Truckers Association of America, said Carter's action was "a little bit misrepresent-

"They're not taking it away from the farmers because the farmers haven't had it," he said. "It just means that for as many crops that can be grown there will be trucks to take them to market.'

Terzich said, however, Carter's move was a good one because it makes truckers feel less ignored by the government. But the strike will not be affected, Johnny L. Pettigrew, owner of Lone Star Truck Brokers in Pharr, questioned Carter's motives in giving truckers more diesel fuel.

"I think he's trying to deregulate. If he does this, that will ruin everything," he said. Pettigrew said he's having trouble getting trucks. "Nobody seems to want to go because of the problems and violence. There's lots of produce and nobody to haul. Two truckers that work with Pettigrew ran into trouble in Van Horn and El Paso, he said. Other truckers "didn't want them to leave, and made a few threats," Pettigrew said. Doug Nelson of Detroit and about 20 other independent truckers have been stopped for two weeks at a information station. Nelson said Carter "is robbing Peter to pay

Mesquite truck stop that has been set up as an

"I think he's sidestepping the issue," Nelson said. "Farmers need fuel just as much as truckers, and they shouldn't be the ones to pay.

Nelson said his group is "trying to keep it peaceful around here" while representatives are in Washington. He said he had heard of no violence in Texas since last week, when someone shot a truck seven times in the cab in Fort Worth. The Texas Farm Bureau had asked Carter Thursday not to suspend the farmers' priority.

'Food comes first. America's farmers and ranchers will continue to provide food for all Americans, but we must have adequate fuel," TFB President Carol Chaloupka said.

Warren Newberry, TFB executive director, Friday called the order "a very, very serious adverse harvesting system.

'There's not going to be anything to haul if it's not harvested," Newberry said while warning of potential higher food prices.

Ron Hutler, spokesman for the Texas Farmers

Union, said the organization "denounces the whole Gerald McCathern, spokesman for the Texas-based American Agriculture Movement, said farmers could face problems in completing wheat and grain harvests if diesel supplies dry up. He said no severe shortage exists in the wheat-harvestig areas of the Texas Panhandle now.

"If we've got fuel needed by others, we don't want to hoard it." McCathern said. "But the nation should look to see if there are other places it (diesel fuel) could come from. Reagan Brown, state commissioner of agriculture, says Texas farmers face complete chaos if they can't get enough fuel. Without fuel there will be no harvest. At the time of planting they would receive all the fuel they need-

'Now billions of dollars are tied up in crops in the field, some of which are rotting right now because of the truckers' problems.

"This is a critical stage in food production especially for fresh produce.

'We are nearing a food disaster if legislation and regulation do not allow farmers to do their jobs." One potential problem with Carter's plan may be the availability of diesel fuel. In Edinburg, for example, there is no diesel fuel.

Chick Perez, of Perez Gulf Station, said his station situation" in the light of Texas' current wheat ran out of diesel fuel June 15 and will receive no more until the first of the month. He said other stations in Edinburg have met the same fate, and the nearest diesel fuel is five miles outside town.

Perez, who said his station is the largest in town. called the Texas Energy Resources Program in Austin for help. He said the department asked for a telegram giving the details of his problem.

"We'll get 7,500 gallons on the first, and that will last me four or five days," Perez said. Carter's plan is a "good idea," he said, "but what are they going to do if they can't find any diesel?"

group's president, also announced an attempt to provide more national guidance for the organization, which she claimed has between 11 million and 13 million followers.

"There's a revolution afoot in America," Dr. Gerster said. "The battlefield may be found in the courts, in the halls of Congress and at the polls."

SAN ANGELO - Fifty or more antique aircraft and experimental homebuilt "flying crates" will be performing aerobatic feats and fly-overs starting at 12:30 p.m. Sunday at Mathis Field in rounding out Fiesta del Concho here. The Flying Show will feature Confederate Air Force warbirds of 1939-45 vintage and Experimental Aircraft Association airplanes

"We'll put on a heck of a show, I'll guarantee you," said Carey Day, who is piecing together the air show.

The show will be dedicated to his father, the late Charlie Day, who was leader of the CAF's West Texas Wing, which includes the Desert Squadron of the Midland-Odessa area, the Fort Concho Squadron at San Angelo and the Big Country Squadron at Abilene. The CAF is dedicated to the preservation of now rare aircraft from the World War II

Aircraft at the show will include the P-38 Lightning, P-51 Mustang, P-39 Aircobra, P-40 Warhawk, F4U Corsair, B-17 Flying Fortress, B-25 Mitchell, Grumman Wildcat, Me. 109, Me. 108, T-6 Texans, the Stearman and Pitts Special biplanes, Taylorcraft, an Air Force F-4 Phantom jet, the durable C-47, De Havilland Chipmunk, and replicas of the Japanese Zero, Kate and Val fighters and dive-

Effects of the lobbying drive are expected to be felt

Right to Life hopes that by 1982 Congress will approve the amendment, which would prohibit abortion except to save the life of the mother. It would then have to be ratified by 38 states.

There is no specific mention of prohibitions against contraceptives, but Dr. Gerster said it could have the effect of prohibiting some forms of intrauterine devices and some kinds of birth control pills, since they are considered to terminate pregnancy by aborting a fertilized egg.

She said, however that the amendment would not prohibit the standard type of birth control pill taken

The pro-life leader talked of attempts to persuade congressmen, but emphasized that her group has no "hit list." She said, however, that her organization might make information on candidate's views available which could contribute to his defeat.

"I can summarize my feelings in one word optimism, unbridled optimism," she said. "We've turned the corner in the last year.'

Meanwhile, at a meeting of a pro-abortion group in riage ceremony aboard Cincinnati, Rabbi Balfour Brickner of New York critized Right to Life for allegedly taking the abortion issue to the public in emotional terms, evoking strations by Dane Jones confrontations and violence.

> The Freedom of Choice Coalition has been conducting activities simultaneously with the Right to Life convention.

> Brickner took issue with efforts to compare abortion with the Nazi holocaust of World War II, calling that comparison a "crude exploitation" and "totally

Takeover trend on rise again

By GEORGE WHEELER Newsday

NEW YORK - The takeover-fever chart is rising alarmingly again. The rate is not quite at the level it attained in the late 1960s; but the billion-dollar companies are out there waylaying the wary and the unwary. Exxon is reaching for Reliance Electric, Gould was set to trap Fairchild Camera only to have the prize snatched by Schlumberger, Fairchild Industries goes gunning for Bunker-Ramo and the Hoover Co. is in a tug-of-war between Fugua Industries and a divided Hoover family.

But there is another equally steep rising trend: the battle against the takeover. The fight waged by McGraw-Hill Corp. that succeeded in spoiling the offer by American Express was the shining example in the first quarter, but there were others. Of the 41 takeover bids reported during that three-month period by W.T. Grimm & Co., a Chicago firm that tracks mergers, 22 percent were contested by the targets' management, compared with only 13 percent in the same period a year earlier. And more of the battles are succeeding. The Grimm firm estimated that the merger-wreckers like McGraw-Hill prevailed against nearly 10 percent of the proposals announced in the first quarter; that compares with a success rate of only 6 to 7 percent in each of the three full preceding years.

SPOILING A TAKEOVER bid, however, is expensive. Harold McGraw told his shareholders that the cost of thwarting the American Express offer came to $3.4 million, half of it for legal services, $1.2 million to Morgan Stanley & Co. for investment banking services and $200,000 for public relations and advertising costs. Business was so good otherwise, though, he said, that $3 million of that was paid off and the firm still made a 26 percent profit increase during the first quarter. The cost of a more recently blocked takeover, the $1.13-billion offer by a Canadian firm for F.W. Woolworth & Co., has not been made public yet. Edward F. Gibbons, Woolworth's chairman, and "hundreds of thousands of dollars" were spent for a report by its investment bankers that was used to block the bid, but he has not divulged the cost for lawyers and press agents. he Canadian firm that made the bid, Brascan Ltd., had received at the time a $380 million check from the Brazilian government for an 83 percent interest in an electric utility it had formerly run in that country. After the strenuous battle mounted by Woolworth, Brascan withdrew its bid last month. In the course of the battle, which, in view of the relative sizes of the two could be likened to an attempt by a field mouse to swallow a boa constrictor, it developed that Brascan itself, the field mouse, was the object of still another takeover bid by a third company. ANOTHER ELEMENT IN the Brascan-Woolworth fight - the role of a big bank seemingly aiding and abetting the raider - has been common to many of the takeover battles and was a key element in two others that were blocked. Brascan could not quite afford the Woolworth bid and arranged to get an extra $700 million from Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce to help in the financing. Woolworth was outraged: Canadian Imperial was one of its major creditors and the bank's chairman sat on the Woolworth board. In the course of the fight, Woolworth dropped the bank, bounced its chairman from the board and raised questions about the bank's violating confidential lender-borrower relations in connection with the offer. A somewhat similar situation arose in American Express' attempt to take over McGraw-Hill when the creditcard company revealed that it too was short of the nearly $1 billion in ready cash it was offering and would be relying on a loan from a group headed by Morgan Guaranty Trust to help in the financing. McGraw-Hill pointed out that Morgan Guaranty had been its bank for ,50 years and questioned the propriety of its new role. Morgan Guaranty denied any impropriety.

In the third instance, Talley Industries tried to take over Washington Steel Corp. Tally, too, lacked the funds for the transaction and arranged to borrow $70 million from Chemical Bank, enough to cover the $52.5 million needed for the 1.5 million shares of Washington steel - outstanding at $35 a share - and presumably to provide a comfortable cushion beyond that. But Chemical was Washington Steel's bank; the steel company sued in a procedure that is still in court. Meanwhile, Talley withdrew and another suitor is in the process of taking over the steel company at a higher price.

BLOCKED TAKEOVERS win no friends on Wall Street or among shareholders. A successful merger usually means profits to individual holders and to the big institutional clients of Wall. Street brokers. A spoiled takeover.usually represents a paper loss, at least.

American Express, for instance, declared itself willing to lay out $40 a share to McGraw-Hill holders; the stock rose from the mid-20s to a high of 34 while the bid was in progress. Now it's back in the mid-20s.

Roloff agrees to move girls, remains opposed to licensing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -A three-day stalemate between Lester Roloff and state officials trying to close his South Texas youth homes apparently ended Friday night with the evangelist saying the girls will be moved elsewhere.

We're going to satisfy the demand of the court by not having over five girls in the dormitories," Roloff told a packed church.

"They're going to have to be placed somewhere, but not by the Texas Youth Council. They 'll be placed not by DHR (Department of Human Resources), but Brother R.'

Roloff said the agreement to move the girls from the Rebekah Home here was hammered out during an afternoon session with state Attorney General Mark White.

'The war is over. The task force has been dispersed," Roloff said of a 140-member state team assembled to carry out a court order to close the

Other goods may affect market

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - If the United States wants to buy natural gas from Mexico, it cannot try to restrict the importation of other Mexican goods, such as tomatoes, the U.S. ambassador to Mexico told a meeting of border state governors

Ambassador Patrick Lucey told the governors of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas that Mexican officials were very worried that southern Florida growers would succeed in their continuing effort to restrict Mexican shipments of tomatoes to the United States. Such shipments bring Mexico about $300 million every year.

"If this tomato problem doesn't turnout well, there will be renewed efforts (in Mexico) to find other markets for oil and gas," Lucey said at a meeting of the Southwest Regional Border Commission.

His comments came at the start of a four-hour meeting to discuss mutual problems facing the border states, especially drug trafficking, illegal aliens and energy development.

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, New Mexico Gov. Bruce King and Texas Gov. Bill Clements listened as Lucey described the tomato situation as a 'very dark cloud." Tom Hayden represented California Gov. Jerry Brown.

Lucey said that between 120,000 and 200,000 Mexicans work in the tomato fields and might join the ranks of illegal aliens seeking entry to the United States if Florida growers won their fight.

He urged the governors to ask their states' congressional delegations to oppose moves to restrict tomato imports favored by the Florida produce

Florida growers charge that Mexico competes unfairly by often selling its tomatoes on the U.S. market for less than production costs.

Mexico's energy development also came up before the meeting, when Babbitt criticized Clements' proposals on the issue as sounding like imperialism. Clements had passed out position papers on the meeting's three major topics, saying he hoped the group could develop a policy for further discussion at a later date. His paper on energy calls for a joint U.S.-Mexican corporation to provide financing for development of Mexico's burgeoning energy indus-

"The first thing you learn in Mexico is that they're not in the business of joint ventures in energy," Babbitt said

He said the suggestion that Mexico has the raw energy sources and the United States has the knowhow "sort of strikes me as the American imperial position.

Some people have put words in my mouth that I advocate imperialism and a return to colonialism and all that baloney," the Texas governor said, looking toward Babbitt. And Babbitt replied: "I am the originator of the word 'imperial' and I'm going to stick by it.' Clements also has suggested swapping energy generated in the United States for Mexican gas and oil, but Babbitt said he favored letting Mexico refine its own energy resources. "President Jose Lopez Portillo makes it clear he doesn't want to make Mexico a gas station for the rest of the world," the Arizona governor said. Babbitt said he would offer his own proposal calling for the use of traditional commercial loans to boost Mexico's economy. A stronger industrial base would help stem the stream of poor Mexicans who enter the United States illegally in search of jobs, he

The commission session was briefly interrupted by Texas farmworkers, who complained they did not have enough seats in the crowded meeting. They voluntarily left a short time later.

Hobby critical of some vetoes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements' veto pencil saved taxpayers far less than the $252 million he claimed, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Friday.

He said Clements vetoed items he had no constitutional authority to veto and cut from the budget $16.4 million in college and university spending the governor himself had recommended Hobby was asked his assessment of Clements during a Texas Press Association appearance and just happened to have with him an analysis of the governor's budget vetoes.

"Pretty good" he said of Clements' overall performance, then asserted that "you've got to give him an F' " on his vetoes of appropriation items.

"He told the press $252 million - he supposedly saved that money, right? Well, let's look at that,'

Clements blocked $50 million in college construction spending from the 10-cent state property tax. Hobby said the money was constitutionally dedicated to college construction, already had been collected and could not be spent for any other

'So he didn't (legally) veto that item," Hobby

He said Clements lacked constitutional authority to veto a rider directing the Department of Human Resources to build a $40 million office building. He predicted there would be a request for an attorney general's opinion on the legality of the veto. 'So there is $90 million that he purported to veto that he did not in fact veto," Hobby said. Another $12.3 million he said, was contingent upon passage of bills that did not pass and could not, therefore, have been spent anyway. Hobby also criticized the veto of $29.5 million for construction of new cells at state prisons, derisively calling it "incredible!

The cells are needed to cope with the rising prison population, and eventually must be built, he said.

"The governor's vetoes are of the second-year amounts for these major construction projects which will be initiated in the first year of the biennium. These funds, ultimately, must be spent to complete the projects; therefore, vetoing these items does not represent a real savings to state government," Hobby's written analysis said.

Hobby also criticized the veto of $989,000 for the University of Texas Center of Energy Studies.

He said he, Clements and Speaker Bill Clayton "all have made great use of" the center, which he said 'gives the data base that makes Texas the effective spokesman we are on energy matters at the national

Clements' veto pencil also struck a $269,000 solar energy study at UT-El Paso, which Hobby called 'the most significant solar research we have.'

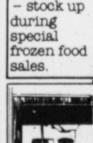

Hobby said solar energy in Texas could be analagous to hydro-power in the Pacific Northwest, where he said falling water generates over half the Clayton was on the program with Hobby and said Clements had "done very well" in his first legislative session as governor but "should have done a little more homework" on the appropriation vetoes.

Consumer group files action to change oil lease practices

By GLENN RITT

WASHINGTON (AP)

A consumer coalition sued the federal government today in an effort to halt and force changes in offshore oil and gas leasing practices they say are "a giveaway to the big oil companies.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, contended that an upcoming lease sale, if permitted to go ahead, could eventually cost the U.S. Treasury between $160 million and $480 million in lost revenues

The coalition, led by Energy Action, alleged that the Interior and Energy departments have disposed of "immensely valuable" offshore lands by a system that favors a few top oil firms, limits oil and gas production and surrenders public assets without return of fair value.

The suit charged that the departments have yet to implement regulations in response to a 1978 law aimed at reforming U.S. leasing practices to create greater bid competition and increase taxpaver réturns.

Stone by stone, New Yorkers build cathedral

By ROBERT BARR

NEW YORK (AP) - A six-ton chunk of limestone rolled into a churchyard Thursday amid music and solemn ceremony, bearing the weight of audacious dreams.

Dreams of finishing the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, the world's largest cathedral; of rebuiding a decayed neighborhood; of re-building, indeed, the whole city of New York

Big dreams for a church that is nearly empty most Sunday morn-

The Episcopal cathedral, a great Gothic pile looking down on Harlem from Morningside Heights, is officially building again after 38 years, raising a $20.8 million testament to faith in God — and the city of New York.

"The whole thrust is that this city is going to make it," says the Rev. James P. Morton, dean of the Cathedral. "The resumption of construction is a very positive sign for the city and the neighborhood, that the cathedral is here to help concretely."

Morton, 49, speaks with the impatience of a self-described "frustrated architect" who inherited an unfinished building, and with the resignation of one who will not see its com-

The question, Morton notes, is as old as Christianity: When a woman anointed the feet of Jesus with costly oils, his disciples protested that the oil should be sold and the money given to the poor, so that they could buy

Returning to medieval methods, the church has hired a British master stone mason, James Bambridge, to direct construction. He will teach his ancient craft to five apprentices three of them from Harlem - and if all goes well, the south tower will start to rise above the entrance next

Morton sees the construction as part of the church's involvement in residential rehabilitation, and he envisions teams of cathedral-trained masons someday going forth to rebuild the city's thousands of brownstones and stone-trimmed brick

THROUGH ITS federally-funded Urban Housing Assistance Board -UHAB — the Cathedral has helped low-income families take over 100 abandoned buildings since 1970 and rebuild them into homes. It is also just launching a job-training program for youths.

"If UHAB is not just a shot in the dark. If the city is serious about rehabilitation, then you will be rehabilitating stone buildings," Morton said. "We aren't training people in basketweaving, as some of our critics suggest. This will be one of the most coveted crafts in the city in the next 50

As in many European cathedrals, differing architectural styles clash at St. John the Divine.

The great choir, begun in 1892, is Romanesque, with round arches and cylindrical columns. After it was completed in 1911, the architect was fired and his successor designed a Gothic nave, with soaring pointed arches and fluted columns. The nave, completed the week before Pearl Harbor, was the last construction

WHEN THE TOWERS are completed, work will begin on the crossing, where raw uncovered arches link the choir to the nave. Still to be built are the north and south transepts, which form the horizontal arms of the traditional cross shape of the cathe-

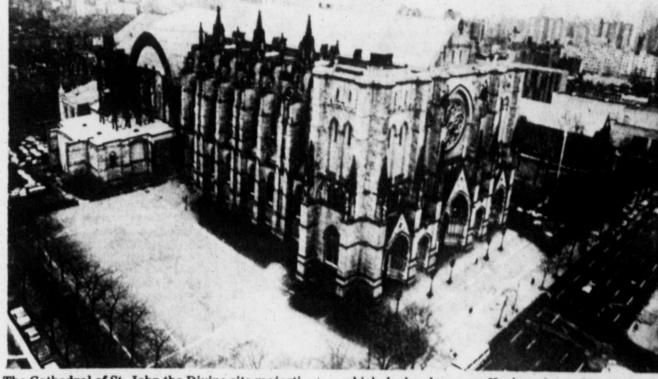

It is a daunting task for a church with fewer than 500 regular worshippers. Although it has about $2 million in its building fund, the church also has a list of 30,000 prospective donors, not all Episcopalians and not all residents of New York.

At 601 feet long and 207 feet across the front, the Cathedral of St. John has nearly three times the area of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. A note from the organ can reverberate as long as nine seconds through the 16.8 million cubic feet with the limestone walls.

St. John is about 10 feet shorter than the Basilica of St. Peter's in Rome, which is listed in the Guiness Book of World Records as the largest church. St. John, however, is listed as the world's largest cathedral. It is so monumental that it could not be completed even when it had access to the purses of J.P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller Jr. or when Franklin D. Roosevelt was chief fund-raiser.

In medieval terms, the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine is going up rapidly - Chartres took 312 years and Westminster Abbey 837 - but there is no target for finishing it.

A visitor recently told Morton he hoped to see the completed edifice. "Don't worry," the dean said confidently, "you won't."

Most church denominations record declining membership

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) - Most of the bigger American church bodies, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, report membership drops in newly issued statistics. Yet overall church membership in this country is again

It's now keeping pace with population growth, in contrast to recent years of falling behind that index.

However, with the exception of the Southern Baptists and Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), most larger denominations still are registering small, usually shrinking losses.

For Roman Catholicism, however, its drop of 233,144 last year to a total of 49,602,035 was its largest decline of this century, although it amounted to less than half a percent.

That church, the country's largest, thus fell into a pattern that has characterized most major mainline Protestant bodies for more than a decade of fractionally declining member-

However, general church membership recorded a .7 percent increase to a total of 132,812,470, according to new figures provided in the 1979 Yearbook of American and Canadian

That about kept up with population gains, holding active church membership at 60.8 percent of the U.S. population and giving an upbeat note to the present picture.

In comparison, the proportion of Americans belonging to churches previously had gradually edged downward from a peak of 64.3 percent in 1965. But now, it held steady.

'It has leveled off into a pretty flat line right now, with some gaining, some losing," observes Constant H. Jacquet, editor of the Yearbook, compiled by the National Council of Churches.

Southern Baptists, the country's biggest Protestant body, gained 1.24 percent to a total of 13,078,239, while Mormons in the U.S. increased 3.9 percent to 2,486,261, outstripping population growth.

Many of the generally smaller evangelical-style bodies also recorded solid gains, the collective upswings sufficient to keep church growth even

But for mainline Protestant bodies, such as United Methodists, United Presbyterians, Episcopalians and the three major Lutheran denominations, the trend still was slightly down, although less so in most cases.

Roman Catholicism's drop was only the second it had experienced in this century, and far larger than the minor loss of 1,149 in 1969. However, last year's decline in effect stemmed from one archdiocese, Detroit.

It lost 404,068 members last year, more than accounting for the overall church loss. Even though some other dioceses also had losses, combined increases in others cut the total loss. The Roman Catholic figures were reported in the Oficial Catholic Directory for 1979, published b P. J. Kenedy & Sons of New York.

Its business manager, Thomas S. Walsh, said the Detroit Archdiocese reported its decline resulted from roll-clearing to eliminate former members that had moved away or

Ecumenical tent revival to begin Sunday

An ecumenical tent revival will begin Sunday at 106 W. Dakota Ave., to continue through through June 30.

The revival is under sponsorship of Asbury United Methodist Church whose pastor is the Rev. Bob Netherland.

Other pastors and churches to be represented at the services will include the Rev. Layman Martin of Peoples Missionary Baptist Church, the Rev. S.L. Green of Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, the Rev. Glen Shoemake of Calvary Baptist Church, the Rev. Raul Infanti of El Calvario United Methodist Church, and the Rev. Leonard Gallegos of Emanuel Baptist Church.

The services will begin at 8 p.m. daily, preceded by special choral and gospel music at 7:45. A barbecue fellowship dinner is planned on the Asbury Church grounds from 5 to 7 p.m.

The revival services will be open to all residents of the city and surrounding area.

Program repeats

David Baker, a staff evangelist for the Jews for Jesus movement, will present a special "Christ in the Passover" program Wednesday night in the Christian Church of Midland, 2608

The program is a repeat of one presented several days ago before another congregation in the city.

Baker will be sharing why he believes it possible to be 100 per cent Jewish and 100 per cent Christian, said Robert Blazek, minister of the Christian Church of Midland. Blazek is inviting all interested persons in the community and surrounding area to attend the 7 p.m. Wednesday program. Baker will participate in a question-and-answer period following the service.

Kung lauds pope

MILAN, Italy (AP) - A widely influential but controversial Swiss Roman Catholic theologian, the Rev. Hans Kung, has praised Pope John Paul II's first encyclical as proclaiming a "new Christian humanism."

In "the light of Christ," it "places at the center man, his dignity, his fundamental private and social rights," Kung said in an intervew. He is director of the Institute for Ecumenical Research at the University of Tubingen, West Germany.

Priest shot dead

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest died in a hail of machine-gun fire in a small town nine miles east of San Salvador and right-wingers are suspected, Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero said.

The archbishop said the Rev. Rafael Palacios was visiting a sister when he was shot Wednesday. The prelate said someone painted the white-hand symbol of the ultra-rightist White Warriors Union on the priest's car several days before.

The union threatened several years ago to kill all priests, accusing them of inciting unrest among the peasants. The archbishop said Palacios was the fifth priest killed in the past two years.

Antichrist named

MILWAUKEE (AP) - A relatively small, conservative wing of Lutheranism, the 300,000-member Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, says the pope still is the "antichrist," and has assailed Lutheran scholars who seek reconciliation between Lutheranism and Roman Catholicism.

The synod, in its official publication, Northwestern Lutheran, said the "biblical doctrine which identifies the pope as the antichrist is a reminder to conservative Lutherans just how afar the liberal Lutherans ... have moved away from the faith of our fathers, including Martin Luther.' The term, "antichrist," stems from the Book of Revelation, which makes no explicit reference to the pope. However, the two were linked in the bitter polemics of the 16th century Protestant break from Roman Catholicism.

Drive for women priests gains momentum

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

Although the tactics have turned more diplomatic, the drive for admission of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood is gathering force, with a rising share of American Catholics favoring it.

While those doing so still are a minority, a new Gallup poll finds that they now amount to 40 percent, a figure that has risen steadily and swiftly from 36 percent in 1977 and 29 percent only five years ago in

At the same time, nuns and other groups of church women have joined in new, widely inclusive coalitions to press for official re-examination of the

As part of a "Second Argument Project," a petition bearing 13,000 signatures was presented to U.S. Catholic bishops at their spring meeting in Chicago, urging them to seek such reconsideration. It asked them to seek "withdrawal of the second argument" set forth in the 1977 declaration by the Vatican's congregation of doctrine that women cannot be ordained because they lack "natural resemblance" to Christ. "This argument demeans all women and priests by claiming that male physical sexuality is the fundamentally important element in the priestly representation of the church," the petition says. Its signatures were gathered by a newly formed Women of the Church Coalition, made up of 13 women's and social justice groups, and presented to Bishop Michael F. McAuliffe of Jefferson City, Mo., head of a bishops' committee on women.

He had copies distributed to the approximately 250 bishops present, who offered no formal response to it. Pope John Paul II has not specifically addressed the issue since becoming pope last fall.

Another coalition of eight national sisters organizations, called Sisters Uniting, urged continued dialogue on the issue, saying they question the "theological reasoning" and other aspects of the Vatican But "we are not without hope," the coalition said in a 300-word statement. They said they are encouraged by the "fact that the present practice in the

Meanwhile, the new Gallup poll, commissioned by Preists for Equality and the Quixote Center in Mt. Ranier, Md., found that while support for women priests is growing among Catholics, "strong opposition" has declined from 47 per cent in 1974 to 36 percent in 1979. It also found the proportion favoring such ordinations have topped the half-way mark in several categories, including college-educated Catholics (53. percent favor), Catholics under 30 (59 percent favor) and non-white Catholics (52 percent favoring). The survey, based on a cross-section of 1,291 Catholics, found the strongest resistance to women priests among those over 50 (70 percent opposed), those with only grade-school educations (71 percent opposed), and those not in the labor force (71 percent

The poll tended to uphold earlier projections made by Maureen Fiedler and Dolly Pomerleau, co-directors of the Quixote Center, a Catholic justice project, that support for women's ordination is rising at an average rate of 2 percentage points a year.

"If the trend continues," they said in a statement, supporters of women priests will outnumber those who oppose them by 1982." On the other hand, a recent reader survey by U.S. Catholic, a magazine published by the Claretian

Fathers in Chicago, found a majority already favored women's ordination - 57 percent. The 1977 Vatican declaration has been challenged

It is "not a definitive ruling, but may be revised in principle," he says. It was issued despite a finding shortly beforehand by the Vatican's Ponficical Biblical Commision that there were no Scriptural obstaces to ordination of women.

Some Vatican experts say the basic case against such ordinations actually is not Scripture or theology, but practicality — that it would hamper unity efforts with Eastern Orthodoxy, which strongly opposes women priests, and that it would have a negative impact in Third World areas of male-dominated cultures.

Coffee prices will go up, but not because there's a shortage of coffee beans. It's just that there's no surplus. (AP Laserphoto

Coffee supply just right?

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Coffee prices are going up this summer, not because there are too few beans to go around, but because there aren't too many

It's confusing, but true. Supplies have been relatively tight," said William C. Bowser of the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service. There has been an adequate supply of coffee, but there has not been the kind of surplus that would allow producing countries to rebuild the stockpiles they had before the 1975 frost in Brazil.

Industry and government experts had hoped that this year's crop would provide the surplus so coffee drinkers would once again have a cushion against catastrophe. But a late frost last year in Brazil - which produces a little less than a third of the world's coffee and about 15 percent of the U.S. supply - killed those hopes.

Expectations turned to next year's crop, but a May 31 frost intervened. Production estimates were lowered - not only for this year's crop, but for next year's as well. The height of the frost season lies ahead; there is the possibility of drought. Uncertainty has led some Central American countries to suspend exports temporarily. Prices already are higher. What happens next depends on weather and on demand. You have to wade through some numbers to understand it all.

Back in July 1975, frost hit Brazil. In 1976, Brazilian planters harvested only 9.3 million 32-pound bags of coffee. That was about 60 percent less coffee than Brazil produced in 1975 and it was almost 70 percent less than n expected to produce in 1976

Fears of a shortage sent prices skyrocketing. The shortage didn't develop. Stockpiles of beans were used to take up some of the slack and American consumers cut back on coffee. Retail prices peaked at about $4 a pound in the spring of 1977, then started dropping.

Last summer, supplies looked good. The worldwide crop was estimated at 75 million bags of coffee, only 7 percent less than in the year before the 1975 frost. Brazil's crop was estimated at 20 million bags.

Late in August, however, there was another frost in Brazil. It did not affect last year's crop, which already had been harvested, and it wasn't nearly so serious as the one in 1975, but coffee bean prices took a jump anyway because of uncertainty about the future.

Brazil had been expected to harvest up to 25 million bags of coffee this year. That would have allowed the rebuilding of stockpiles. Because of the August frost, however, the estimate for this year's production was lowered to just over 21 million bags.

After the initial flurry, prices settled down again. The prospects for the beans that will be picked next summer were good. Brazilian production for next year was estimated at 26 million pounds; again, it looked like the stockpiles could be rebuilt. By this spring, coffee was selling in the supermakets for $2.64 to $2.84 a pound on the average. In some stores, you could buy a pound on sale for under $2

Then came another frost. It affected both the beans ready to be picked this year and the crop due to be harvested next year. The already-revised 21-million-bag estimate for the current crop year was lowered again - to 19.5 million bags, according to the USDA's Bowser. And the estimates for next year were cut from 26 million bags to 19 million

The worldwide crop this year is still expected to top 78 million bags. But Fred Gray of the USDA has predicted that retail coffee prices will rise by 40 cents a pound this summer because of the frost. Roasters, anticipating that they will have to pay more for beans later on, already have boosted their prices.

The future could depend on whether consumers cut back again. When prices soared, consumption dropped. Analysts estimate that per capita coffee consumption in the United States went from 9.7 pounds in 1976 to 6.9 pounds in 1977. As prices eased, however, consumption inched back up to 7.3 pounds in 1978. Estimates for this year put per capita consumption at up to 7.5 pounds. And in the first four months of this year, Bowser said, the United States imported 6.8 million bags of coffee, up from 6.5 million bags in the same period of 1978.

Jaycees won't support national awards board

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The United States Jaycees are withdrawing its endorsment of a national awards board because of the inclusion of convicted murderer Benjamin Lach this year and other inclusions it considers improper, the president of the Texas Jaycees said Friday.

Jay Brim of Austin, in Nashville for the national convention, said the newly elected national president, Terry Bechtol of Pensacola, Fla., told him the national group will stop selling the Outstanding Young Men of America Advisory Board its mailing list and withdraw its endorsment of the Birmingham-based program.

"He said there had been a number of complaints other than this one, and because of that the U.S. Jaycees would not participate in the program in any way in the coming year," Brim

"I think they've taken a pretty strong step there to say we're not going to make our people available to

"I had never paid that much attention to it," Brim said of the board, which publishes an "Outstanding Young Men of America" directory with several thousand names of Jaycees in it each year. "Now that we've been dragged into something like this, I'm going to pay some attention to it,' Lach was convicted of the 1967 scapel murder of a Texas Tech University custodial employee. He has been a member of the state prison system's Huntsville Walls Jaycees and has been editor of the inmates' newspa-

Brim said he was still trying to find Doug Blankenship of Atlanta, who heads the "National Advisory Board" administering the awards and who signed an awards certificate sent to

The Texas Jaycees went to the national convention in Nashville Sunday with the intention of offering a resolution that the U.S. Jaycees withdraw endorsement of the program if its selections standards were not tight-

Brim said there had been no opportunity for such action during the past week but that he talked privately with Bechtal Thursday night after the first meeting of the newly elected U.S. Jaycees board of directors.

Boycott on bonds considered

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - First it was non-union grapes, lettuce, pants and beer. Now the labor movement is about to ask that you boycott another product: U.S. savings bonds.

Unionized federal employees, angry over attacks on their pay, pensions and free parking, are launching both a boycott and a militant lobbying campaign aimed at their employer,

Since bonds are about the only thing the government sells to the public, they have been targeted for boycott.

The aim is to protest 5.5 percent federal pay raises this year and last, President Carter's proposals to squeeze future pay raises to make federal compensation comparable with nonfederal compensation, his cancellation of free and subsidized parking for federal workers and moves in Congress to tinker with the generous civil service pension sys-

The dominant federal union, the American Federation of Government Employees, is already asking its own members to stop buying bonds and to cash in the ones they hold. Federal employees, civilian and military, bought about $1.1 billion of the $8 billion in bonds sold last year:

The AFGE has enlisted the support of the AFL-CIO leadership, and unless Carter modifies his stand the labor federation is prepared to put savings bonds on its "don't buy" list along with J.P. Stevens slacks, Coors beer and non-union iceberg lettuce.

Government workers would then follow in the footsteps of the farm workers championed by Cesar Chavez in the original boycott of nonunion grapes during the late 1960s.

The AFGE is sore about moves by Carter and Congress that would hit federal workers in the pocketbook. Union president Kenneth Blaylock says his members are under a "prolonged and vicious attack emanating from the White House and Congress and fostered by the media.

Federal pay now ranges from $6,561 per year for a beginning mail clerk to $47,500 annually for high-ranking executives, and higher for certain political appointees. Pensions are better than most others except military pensions

Carter held last October's federal pay raise to 5.5 percent as part of his anti-inflation program, and is determined to do so again this October. That is less than the 7 percent allowed in the private sector under Carter's voluntary guidelines, and far less than federal workers would get under normal procedures.

Carter also is proposing big changes in the federal pay system that would hold down future raises and save taxpayers an estimated $3 billion yearly. Blaylock figures this will cost each of the roughly 2 million civilian, non-postal federal workers $1,500 yearly in what they would have gotten in their paychecks.

Carter also has ordered, as a means of conserving energy, an end to the free and subsidized parking granted to thousands of federal workers.

And Congress has ordered the administration to study a merger of the civil service pension system with the separate and still-troubled Social Security system. Blaylock says this would "decimate" his members' pen-

Carter is unlikely to give on any of these issues and avoid a formal AFL-CIO boycott of bonds.

'We need a whole lot of concessions to call off the dogs," said AFGE spokesman Greg Kenefick. But he added, "I don't think anybody's kidding themselves" about Carter caving in.

Meanwhile the union is proceeding with rallies, fundraising and grassroots organization aimed at Congress. Its "Save Our Benefits" drive has raised a $30,000 war chest by, among other things, selling Tshirts bearing the slogan "I'm an SOB

Kenefick said the union had hired a skilled grassroots lobby organizer, June McMichael, and put together a list of 5,000 "activist" union members available for such chores as buttonholing congressmen and senators.

Kenneth Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, says his members are under a "prolonged and vicious attack emanating from the White House and Congress and fostered by the media." (AP Laserphoto)

The bond boycott itself has so far produced no measurable impact, except gaining publicity.

Carolyn Johnston, a Treasury spokesman, said "it's too early to tell" whether federal workers are avoiding savings bond purchases in any significant number this year.

"It's going to have zilch impact on any of the issues Blaylock is interested in," she predicted.

She said federal employees who cash in bonds would lose the advantage of deferring payment of tax on their interest earnings until retirement, when the bite would be lower.

She also said it would only worsen inflation if the public cashes in many of the $80 billion in bonds it now holds, because the government would be forced to borrow the funds elsewhere at rates higher than the 6.5 percent

Harvest of timber to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter's order to increase harvests from federal forests will not produce a sudden increase in lumber for the housing market but should mean ore will be available in the 1980s, administration officials said Friday.

In issuing the timbercutting directive last week, Carter indicated the proposal was aimed at trying to dampen inflation in the lumber and housing industry. Price increases in those industries have been worse than the overall inflation rate since 1969.

Despite Carter's order, actual sales of timber won't increase right away because "there is a substantial inventory of sold but uncut federal timber which firms are harvesting at a reduced rate because of uncertainties" over future supplies, said Thomas M. Leonard, senior economist for the Council or Wage and Price Stabili-

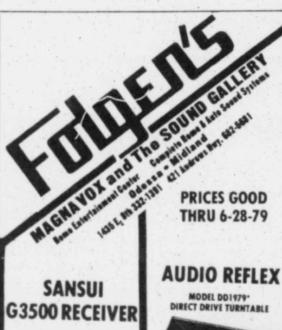

Leonard told the Senate Agriculture Committee's forestry subcommittee that "it is expectations of future supply limitations that are driving up...prices.' Lumber accounts for about 15 percent of the final price of a new single-family home, he said. Supply worries and high demand for new homes have jacked up prices enough to add $3,000 to the cost of a home without considering any other element of inflation, he said.

While Carter's plan is aimed at influencing next year's lumber harvest, Leonard said only "a sustained increase in federal timber sales over a decade or more would have a significant impact on lumber prices.'

In that length of time, he said, "An increase of billion board feet in federal sales would reduce standing timber prices by about 10 percent and lumber prices by over 4 percent. This would decrease the price of a new single-family house by about 0.6 per-

John R. McGuire, chief of the Forest Service, which oversees the 154 national forests, told the panel that his agency's policy now calls for no more timber to be cut in any one decade than can be sustained in future

NCAA committee rejects playoff

MISSION, Kan. (AP) - The Division I Steering Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association has voted unanimously against a proposed national championship playoff in college football.

The plan, adopted last January by the Division I Extra Events Committee, would have used the major bowls as a sort of "quarterfinals" and appointed a committee to pick four semifinalists from the bowl winners. The tentative plan called for the championship game to be played the Saturday before the National Football League's Super Bowl.

The Extra Events Committee's recommendation was passed along to the Steering Committee at its meetings last week in New Orleans. If the Steering Committee had endorsed the plan, it would have been put to a vote before the Division I membership at the NCAA convention next Junuary and could have been implemented following the 1980 season.

An NCAA spokesman said the 16man Steering Committee voted unan-

The meet continues today with preliminaries set for 9 a.m. and finals for 6 p.m. The thirty-second annual event concludes Sunday.

(Meet results on Page 3-D)

Although coach John Jordan's COM crew was far back in the team race, the host team did give the large and suntanned crowd something to cheer Especially Andrew Jordan, who battled Fort Worth's gifted Jeff Collison tooth and nail in the boy's 11-12 division. Young Jordan captured the 50-yard freestyle over Collison despite the Ft. Worth youngster's victories earlier in the day over Jordan in the 400 freestyle and the 100 backstroke.

Jordan was the only COM winner but several other team members fared well. Sam Perry took second in the boy's 10-under 100 backstroke while Sid Glenn was fourth in the senior boy's 400 freestyle. Gretchen Koch took third in the girl's senior 200 backstroke and Carrie Mayes was third in the girl's senior 100 breaststroke. Also, the COM girl's 13-14 400 freestyle relay was third.

Joining Collison as double-winners were Michelle Richardson of Hurricane in girl's 10-under, Mark Gladson of the Odessa Aquatic Club in boy's 10-under and J. D. Tucker of Dallas in the boy's 13-14.

Richardson bagged the 50 free and 200 free, Gladson collected the 100 back and tied for the 50 free with Urbano Zea of the El Paso Aquatic Posse and Tucker pocketed the 100 free and 400 free.

As expected, Tucker led a minor assault on the record book. He set a pool mark of 4:18.67 in the 400 free. Also setting new pool standards were Kevin Henderson of EPAP with a 41.71 in the boy's 10-under 50 breast, Gladson with a 1:20.13 in the 100 back, Lisa Woodman of the Hurricanes with a 1:18.46 in the girl's 10 under 100 back, and Susan Rapp of Starlit with a 1:18.43 in the girl's 13-14 100 breaststroke. ## NCAA hits Memphis St. with 2-year probation

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - The National Collegiate Athletic Association hit Memphis State University's football and basketball programs with a two-year probation Friday. But the NCAA took the unusual step of suspending the second year of the penalty because the university moved to halt violations of recruiting regulations even before the NCAA began its investigation almost three years

Dr. Billy M. Jones, Memphis State president, said the university has accepted the penalty which could prevent the Tiger football and basketball teams from appearing in postseason events and in televised games under been made. NCAA sponsorship.

However, the penalty will not prevent the Tiger basketball team from competing in the Metro Conference firm the committee's findings. championship tournament, nor will it keep the Tigers from appearing in basketball games televised under conference sponsorship.

Jones and Tiger Athletic Director Billy "Spook" Murphy were informed of the NCAA Infractions Committee's decision May 25. Formal announcement of the decision was held up to allow the university to appeal the committee's findings.

"To put the matter in perspective, we have accepted the ruling of the NCAA as final," Jones said in a statement issued after the probation announcment was released by NCAA headquarters at Shawnee Mission, Kan., Friday morning.

The NCAA, in announcing the probation, listed 15 rules violations its investigators found after published reports that at least one player had been offered cash to sign a Memphis State letter of intent.

The probe began after reporters interviewed members of the Tiger football team during a boycott by black players in 1976.

Some of the players said they were upset because cash payments which allegedly had been promised to the mother of one of their number had not

Martin may not be answer to Yankees' comeback

By THOMAS BOSWELL The Washington Post

NEW YORK - A reel in the history of the New York Yankees has been run. It is unlikely now that it can be

For the past three seasons, the Yanks grew and changed each year. Each chapter in their story elaborated some recurrent theme. Each season revealed new levels of character in their performers.

From freshly restored league champs in 1976, led by Billy Martin, they suddenly became wealthy and widely hated world hegemonists in

'77, symbolized by Reggie Jackson. Last season the pinstripes' meta-morphosis was complete. Injured but respected, they became stubborn underdogs worthy of an affectionate place in athletic folklore.

The Comeback Yanks of '78 were suddenly palatable for three reasons: Billy Martin was fired, owner George Steinbrenner buttoned his lip and slugger Jackson tried to blend with his team mates, at last,

Now the Yankees, wracked by iniuries, nine games behind in the lost column, old at key positions and desperately impatient in the front office. have tried to recycle their past.

In baseball, it seldom works that way. You move ahead, never backward. For a Yankee team that is as deeply troubled now as it ever was in '78, the rehiring of Martin has been a breath of stale air - exactly what the team did not need.

Some here in this decadent Apple think that S&M stands for sado-masochism. Yankee fans know it stands for baseball's perverse duo: Steinbrenner and Martin. .

That tandem is back: Steinbrenner who is so adept at dealing out lashes to his underlings, and Martin with his tight-lipped, bull-headed knack for constantly leading hismelf into selfdestructive impasses.

From Steinbrenner's viewpoint, rehiring Martin was both expedient and necessary. Bob Lemon, headed for retirement and admittedly a bit disinterested in games since the death of a son last winter, was not the best manager for a critically injured team that need a fire lit under it

Firebrand Martin hardly could make the team play more drably. As for loyalty to Lemon for services rendered, no Yankee employee is naive enough to expect such consideration. If Martin lights a fire under the

Yanks, then, from Steinbrenner's

vantage point, well and good. If Martin fizzles, then only one season has been damaged, not 1980 as well. In the bargain, Steinbrenner's disingenuous "promise" to rehire Martin has been As a bonus, Martin means money

The Yanks' huge payroll demands either victory or controversy: something to fill seats. Steinbrenner knows how to orchestrate a season, change a plot line, make an old show play like

It was no accident that Steinbrenner insisted that Martin coach at third base his first several games, then leaked the news. Who pays to see a manager stay in the dugout? Yankee officils estimate that Martin paid off his $100,000-plus contract with the 15,-000 extra fans who came to his homecoming game.

Despite all these Machiavellian advantages, the time hardly seems right .for Martin's return, even if he comes back as fresh and sharp-witted as he was in '76, rather than paranoid and sometimes potted, as the Yankees said he was when they fired him in

It is true that under Martin's jockeying in '76 the club developed a champion's style built on solid starting pitching, overpowering relief work, marvelous infield defense and contact-hitting laced with lefty

However, once Martin established that tactical overview, any manager - especially one more tactful - could have employed it just as well, or

The Yankees are well aware that they reached their highest achievement, their '78 comeback, without Martin. Many a Yankee nodded his head in their victorious World Series locker room and admitted, "We never

The New Yorkers reached full baseball maturity when they were left alone under Lemon's stewardship to play as a group of committed and veteran adults, rather than to bicker like children under Martin's despo-could have done it with Billy."

Th. Martin era, full of acrimony and tension, is part of Yankee history, not the Yankee future. And many a player knows it. When a team has won 53 of its last 74 games under incredible pressure, as the Yanks did in '78, without ever hearing a managerial yell, how is it likely to react to Martin's recurrent screams?

Unfortunately for the Yanks, their problems run deeper than issues of personality and morale. They also have problems with torn tendons and ripped muscles, back spasms and old

Watson, who has a chance to become the first man in PGA Tour history to win more than $400,000 in a single season, had a 36-hole total of 135, seven strokes under the difficult par on the hilly, 7,050-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

Jack Newton, the globe-trotting Australian who shot a course record 64 to set the first-round pace, went 10 shots higher in the brisk, chilly breezes and dropped back into a tie for second at 138 with two-time Canadian Open winner Lee Trevino and tour sophomore D.A. Weibring.

"Obviously I didn't play quite as well today," said Newton, who lost an 18-hole playoff to Watson for the 1975 British Open crown. "I hit four or five shots close to the hole and missed the putts. I think that was the turning point.'

Trevino rallied from a pair of double-ogeys to match par 71 while Weibring chipped in twice on the way to his round of 70.

It was another two shots back to Ben Crenshaw, Johnny Miller, Bob Gilder, Bob Lunn and Mike Reid, tied at 140. Crenshaw and Gilder had 70's, Reid 71, Lunn 72 and Miller 73.

Of the leaders, only Watson and Newton played in the afternoon when the winds were at their highest and the temperatures at their lowest. All the rest played in the relatively calm, mild conditions of the morning. "We got a big break playing in the

Overweight Young defeats Bailey

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Young, grossly overweight and ridiculed before the fight for his lackadaisical training, knocked young Wendell Bailey down once in the third round and stopped him at 2:37 of that round in their heavyweight bout Friday night

The 30-year-old Young, weighing 235 pounds and at least 20 pounds overweight, hit Bailey with a right to the jaw and sent him to the canvas for a two-count with about 45 seconds left in the round. Bailey, who had been hurt by a combination earlier in the round, staggered to his feet.

Young immediately moved to the attack, landing several combinations, and after landing a vicious right, referee Billy Graham stopped the Bailey, 25, weighed 2031/2. He hurt Young in the first round with a right to the face a little more than a minute before the bell. But Young survived the round by holding on.

Young of Philadelphia came into the fight with consecutive losses to Osvaldo Ocasio of Puerto Rico and he desperateloy needed this fight to remain in the heavyweight title picture. But the picture that Young painted in this fight was the opposite of the way in which he had painted his previous victories, including one over former heavyweight champion George Fore-

After a relatively quiet second round in which Young scored with several body shots and counterpunches, Young immediately went to the head in the third round. He appeared headed for a knockout early in the round.

Young's record now stands at 23-8-2 with eight knockouts, while Bailey of Baltimore suffered only his second defeat in 15 professional fight.

NBA looks at cable

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) - The National Basketball Association has begun negotiations for a national Game of the Week to be shown on cable television, Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Friday.

O'Brien, speaking at the conclusion of the two-day summer Board of Governors meeting, said the league hoped to have a national cable telecast one night a week during the 1979-80 season. No night has been selected for the game, although Thursday was mentioned as a possibility.

The cable plan, which still is in the preliminary stages of negotiations, was part of a report by the league's television committee, which also studied the ratings' problem experienced by the NBA's Sunday Game of the Week on CBS.

A proposal to restrict CBS to 25 telecasts next season was withdrawn and O'Brien told the television committee to continue studying the prob-

"It was obvious that we have to go back to the drawing board, do some more work, and come up with a comprehensive television plan," said O'Brien. "This is a top priority item that remains alive and will be on the agenda the next time we meet." Ratings of the CBS games showed a 26 percent decline during the 1978-79 regular season. David Stern, the league's general counsel, gave details of the cable plan.

"Cable is a growing area, and he hopes to deliver, on a league-wide basis, the best game available to the widest number of cable customers each week," he said. "We've already spoken with two companies that reach between 3 million and 41/2 million homes, and all the projections say these numbers will continue to grow. We want to reach that audience. In other actions, Irv Levin of San Diego was re-elected chairman of the Board of Governors and Jerry Buss was confirmed as the new owner of the Los Angeles Lakers. The vote on Buss had been scheduled for Thursday but was delayed pending receipt of additional papers that had to be forwarded from the league's New York headquarters.

Buss was kept waiting outside the meeting room for 21/2 hours Friday morning before he was welcomed into the fold.

'Maybe they're trying to teach me a little humility," the flamboyant 44-year-old millionaire re-

"Jerry has a great sense of humor," responded O'Brien. "There was never any real problem. It was just a matter of getting the file complete."

No action was taken on a proposal for a mre-compact playing schedule, although O'Brien aid this was something the league intended to achieve. The delay was caused by the Kansas City Kings, who have not yet submitted prospective playing dates because the roof of their home, the Kemper Arena, collapsed

"It is our intention to close the season by May 20," said O'Brien, noting that the last three years the season ran into June, "It is important that we tighten that up.'

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Warren Cromartie knocked in two runs with a single to pace the Montreal Expos to a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

The Expos sent nine men to the plate in the fourth inning against starter Randy Lerch, 4-5, and Rawly Eastwick to overcome a 2-1 deficit. They went on to beat the Phillies for the seventh time in as many meetings this season.

Larry Parrish led off the inning with a single and Chris Speier was safe on shortstop Larry Bowa's error. Pitcher Ross Grimsley beat out a bunt to load the bases and Cromartie delivered two runs with a single. Two outs later, Tony Perez bounced a single up the middle to put the Expos on top 4-2.

The Expos increased it to 6-2 in the fifth when Speier singled with one out and Grimsley sacrificed him to second. Cromartie was walked intentionally by Eastwick and Rodney Scott also walked before Dawson blooped a two-run single to center, scoring what proved to be the winning run.

The Phillies rallied for three runs in the sixth off Grimsley, 7-4. Garry Maddox slammed a one-out homer and Manny Trillo and Bob Boone followed with singles. An error by shortstop Speier on pinchhitter Jose Cardenal's grounder allowed another run to score, and Bake McBride, who homered to start the game, singled home Philadelphia's final run.

Pirates sink Cubs, 7-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Phil Garner and Bill Robinson drove in two runs each to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night for their sixth victory in a row.

The Pirates got eight-hit pitching from winner Bert Blyleven, 4-2, Grant Jackson and Kent Tekulve in beating the Cubs for the seventh time in as many meetings this season.

Garner's two-run double off loser Ken Holtzman, 5-6, helped Pittsburgh to a 3-0 first-inning lead. In the third, Tim Foli led off with a double and scored on Robinson's single to make it 4-0. Dave Kingman countered with a solo home run in the Chicago fourth off Blyleven, his 25th of the season and the fifth in his last six games.

Blyleven was chased in the seventh when the Cubs loaded the bases. Scot Thompson scored from third when a pitch by Jackson got by catcher Manny Sanguillen for a passed ball.

Braves nip Dodgers, 3-2

ATLANTA (AP) - Rookie Tony Brizzolara allowed seven hits in eight innings and drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth as the Atlanta Braves edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 Friday night.

Atlanta erased a 2-0 deficit by scoring all three runs off Bob Welch, 4-5, in the fourth. Bob Horner was hit by a pitch to open the inning and then Welch fielded a tap to the mound by Jeff Burroughs but threw wildly on a force attempt at second, allowing Horner to reach third.

After Joe Nolan fouled out, Glenn Hubbard singled, scoring Horner, and Pepe Frias doubled, scoring Burroughs. Brizzolara then lifted his sacrifice fly into center field to bring Hbbard home with the ru that broke a 2-2 deadlck.

Brizzolara, 2-2, struck out seven and walked three before giving way to Gene Garber in the ninth. Garber notched his 13th save.

Both Los Angeles runs were unearned. Gary Thomasson reached safely in the second inning when his grounder went through third baseman Jerry Royster's legs for an error. Steve Yeager walked and Welch dumped a run-scoring single into right field. Total 34.3.8.3 Total 34.2.7.2

Kobel yielded seven hits in six-plus innings, including a solo home run by Simmons in St. Louis' two-run first inning.

Garry Templeton opened the Cardinals' first with a single and stole second. He took third on a grounder and scored on Keith Hernandez' sacrifice fly to put the Cards on top.

Simmons followed with his first homer but New York got one run back in the second inning on John Stearns' solo homer, his fourth.

The Mets tied it in the sixth when Frank Taveras beat out a bunt, took second on a throwing error by first baseman Hernandez, went to third on a groundout and scored on Richie Hebner's sacrifice fly:

standings after every round, defending champion Mark Roth went ahead Friday afternoon and galloped away to a 376-pin lead after five rounds of the $70,000 Rose City Professional Bowlers Association open bowling tournament at Timber Lanes. Roth of North Arlington, N.J., practically assured himself of the top-seeded position for Saturday's finals as only eight more games remain until the top, five bowlers are determined for the stepladder TV rolloff.

Beginning the session in second place, 47 pins behind Dennis Lane, the 28-year-old Roth tossed a 268 game in the opening match to make up the difference. Roth followed with scores of 213, 265, 267, 199, 237, 244 and 257 - a 243 average with 8,339 pins while winning 13 of 16 games in all.

Midland's John Denton stands in 23rd place with a pin total of 7,460 and a 6-10 won-loss record.

Redskins' Starke won't miss Cowboys' Too Tall Jones

By DAVE KINDRED The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — George Starke is the Washingtonian most directly affected by Ed (Too Tall) Jones' decision to quit football and get his nose busted by professional fighters. As the Redskins' left offensive tackle, Starke went head-to-head with the Cowboys' defensive end. "I won't miss him," Starke said Wednesday. "It took me all these years to break him in.

Chuckle, chuckle.

"But if he is even moderately successful at boxing, he can make more money in one fight than he will in the next six years with the Cowboys. The Cowboys aren't famous for paying big salaries, and he has the moniker already - Too Tall, bigger than life, a superman - that will guarantee him one major bout even if he gets killed

Can Jones, 6 foot 9 inches and 270 pounds, make it as a fighter?

"I have to think boxing is as professional as football today," Starke said. "And I can't imagine a boxer starting over as a football player at age 28. But as I said, he can make a lot of money at it and then, if he gets killed, he can become a wrestler or come back to

Too Tall, it says here, should keep his face mask where he can find it. "Too Dumb, they ought to call him," a wise-guy editor said. At 28, he is Too Old to learn the cruelest game of all. "Ken Norton didn't start until he was 28," Jones said the other day by way of showing it is not impossible. Jones is wrong about Norton.

Norton was, indeed, 28 when he first fought Muhammad Ali, breaking the Lip's jaw and moving into our consciousness

But Norton by then had 30 professioal fights to get ready for Ali. He began hitting on people's noses and, more important, getting hit on his at age 20 in the Marines. He turned pro

Although the Ring Record Book says only seven men taller than Jones ever fought professionally - all anonymities - size alone is not reason to rule out Jones as a heavyweight contender two years from now (which is the defensive end's announced timetable en route to the championship).

The tallest champion, Jess Willard, was 6-7 in 1915, surely more a giant in those days than Jones today. Primo Carnera, champion in 1933, was 6' 5 3-4", 265 pounds, the heaviest ever.

Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, even believes Jones' move into boxing is the first step toward a new division.

"I see it as the beginning of a superheavyweight class," Dundee said from Las Vegas, where he is working with Sugar Ray Leonard for a weekend bout.

"In the old days, big guys were gimmicks, freaks. Now our big men are so well coordinated, and they move so well. What people don't realize is that our race is getting bigger. Jack Johnson was a big man in his time - in the early 1900s. And he was 6 feet 1-4 inch, weighing 205."

Dundee envisions a superheavyweight division of men over 200 pounds, with Too Tall Jones as the prototype, a giant with moves.

The question is: can Too Tall's football moves be translated into boxing

"I don't know," Dundee said. "I'd have to see him work out. You can put a guy through certain drills to see if he has the movements a fighter needs. But what we have to remember is that with Too Tall and these other big guys today, we're dealing with tremendous athletes.

"Muhammad ain't no little guy (6-3, 220 at fighting trim) and there was never anybody move like him. They said he could have been a great tight end. But that doesn't mean Too Tall can do it. I've got to see him first before I can say that.'

And Dundee posed the next ques-"Does Too Tall have the zest for

That means: Does Too Tall mind getting hit in the beak for his art? George Plimpton, the human race's proxy in big-time sports, once put his nose in front of Archie Moore, one of the greatest fighters ever. Plimpton did this foolishness in order to write about what it is like fighting a pro. Every time Moore tapped Plimpton's nose, the writer burst into tears. "A sympathetic response," Plimpton called it.

Almost certainly, Too Tall Jones' nose is harder than Plimpton's. The point remains, however, that unless a man has given over his proboscis to pummeling for years he simply isn't ready for the power, speed and unremitting hostility of what they call, with reason, the square jungle.

The best fighters, like the best football players, are those to whom the movements come naturally. For a decade, Ali avoided being hit by the seemingly simple device of leaning away from punches. Even on the ropes, he leaned away as punches whizzed by a quarter-inch away from his chin. Only extraordinary depth perception, astonishing reflexes and 20 years of dodging such punches let Ali get away with that. Lesser men would have suffered mightily.

On the offensive, nothing costs a fighter more dearly than a moment's hesitation in delivering a punch. The opening is there only briefly. Sugar Ray Robinson once said he saw an opponent on the canvas before realized he had delivered the punch that decked the poor fellow. That punch came from instinct, not from train-

Unless the brief Golden Gloves career of Too Tall Jones (two fights in high school, both first-round knockouts, wasn't it?) was more significant than expected (what high schooler wants to go two rounds with a kid 6-7 and 240?), we must assume Jones will now get busy training himself to be a professional fighter.

It can't be done. At 28, with no experience, with hands that look fast slapping a tackle's helmet but in the ring will be slow, Jones may move into the top 10 by the strength of his Cowboy publicity and a few victories over stiffs but, one fears, he will find it difficult, indeed, to be any more in the ring than Wilt Chamberlain might have been.

Wilt, in 1971, said he wanted to fight Ali for the heavyweight champion-

In his autobiography, "Wilt," the 7-2 basketball player said he was talked out of the Ali idea by his attorney, Alan Levitt, who told him, "Ali could make an absolute fool out of you in the ring. Is that what you've worked so hard for all these years to be embarrassed and humiliated and laughed at like some freak in a carnival sideshow?

Sneva's 'Litigation Special' sings in trials for Music 500

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) -Jerry Sneva, whose car picked up the nickname "the Litigation Special" at Indianapolis, was the only additional qualifier Friday in the final round of time trials for Sunday's Music 500. The Spokane, Wash., driver averaged 169.030 mph in his Offenhauser-powered Eagle and earned the 24th starting position in what was supposed to be a 33-car field.

Because of the shortage of cars, approximately $30,000 of the $375,000 purse will not be awarded.

Another driver, Jerry Karl, was permitte d to requalify his car Friday. A mechanical defect was found Thursday after he recorded a speed of 128.251 mph, some 54 mph slower than . A.J. Foyt's pole position winning Karl, of Manchester, Pa., improved to 172.463 mph, but retained 23rd starting position.

Officials of the U.S. Auto Club, the race's sanctioning body, said Eldon Rasmussen may be permitted to start his car at the end of the field without having qualified.

Rasmussen, of Indianapolis, was reported en route to Pocono International Raceway, but had not arrived prior to the close of time trials.

Thirty cars entered the Indianapolis car racing Triple Crown event. Of the five that didn't make the lineup, two were backup cars (for Foyt and Danny Ongais), Roger Rager's never arrived, Larry McCoy's never ran, and Sneva's original mount suffered a terminal mechanical breakdown.

Trevino, Watson dislike split golf format

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) - A major-minor league setup is fine for baseball, but Lee Trevino and Tom Watson say it wouldn't work for pro-

Trevino suggests, however, that the pro tour could be split geographically, with a playoff at the end featuring the top money winners from each re-

Suggestions have been made from time to time that pro tour be divided, with the top 100 money winners playing on a so-called "major tour" and the rest competing in "minor" tourBut both Watson and Trevino, who competed in a pro-am tournament here, see problems in that concept. "I think it would be very bad," Watson said of a split tour. "It would dilute the sport just like other sports have been diluted

'There would be a lot of problems to solve. These tournaments are big business. Which ones would you eliminate? What town wants a 'minor' league tournament?

Trevino said limiting the "major" tour to the top money winners would eliminate some of the biggest names in golf.

"How would you determine who goes to the majors and who goes to the minors?" he asked. "There are a lot of us around who have lifetime exemptions to these tournaments. "What do you do when you reach a certain point? Are you going to send players like myself and Arnold Palmer and other guys to the minors?

Watson agreed. "How are you going to eliminate Arnold Palmer (from the major tournaments)? He's not in the top 100 money winners. You can't do that." Sharing their views was former U.S. Open champion Lou Graham, who said he doubted a split tour could be supported. "There is more of a demand, I think, for an abbreviated seniors tour," he said. "If it was split, we would be playing for less money in quite a few satellite tournaments that wouldn't draw." Juluis Boros, who has been a playing professionally for nearly 30 years, saw merit in the idea of a senior tour.

There is a catch: First, you must accept the UCLA basketball head coaching job. But then, in just two says short seasons, you will receive a one-way expensespaid trip to either Alabama or Oregon. Gene Bartow took the southern option. In 1975, he

Bartow quit to become athletic director at the University of Alabama-Birmingham. That opened the door for Gary Cunningham. Cunningham lost only eight games in two seasons, then he resigned, too. Earlier this month, he accepted the athletic directorship at the Oregon College of Education. Larry Brown replaced him. Casual sports fans find Bartow's and Cunningham's desertions easy enough to explain. Wooden, who won 10 NCAA championships, cast an oppressive shadow. UCLA fans found it intolerable being No. 2 or No. 5. And Bartow and Cunningham therefore quit to save their sanity.

That, however, is only half right. All of the above did apply in Bartow's case. He is a tender man, sensitive to criticism. None of the above, though, applied to Cunningham

An assistant to Wooden for a decade, he understood the devils of the job. He never made excuses. He was one of college coaching's most decent men. That's why his resignation is cause for concern. College coaching doesn't have enough decent men. It

TV soccer looks like mismatch

By BARRY WILNER

AP Sports Writer On paper, it looks like a mismatch. But ABC's Bob Goodrich, producer of that network's North American Soccer League telecasts, isn't worried about a lopsided game Sunday when the New England Tea Men visit the Cosmos.

The Tea Men have been one of the league's most disappointing squads this season. They've languished at the bottom of the division they won last vear while their star player, Mike Flanagan, the NASL's Most Valuable Player in 1978, has been home in England, unable to work out a contract settlement with his club there that would allow him to return to New England. The Cosmos have been leading their division all season.

"Sure the Cosmos look like the better team," says Goodrich, who along with director Craig Janoff will be in charge of ABC's third NASL presentation of the season (1:30 p.m.). "But it doesn't always work that way. Lots of times you see underdogs raise their level of play, especially on national television.'

ABC has been satisfied with its soccer telecasts this year, even though the ratings haven't been ex-

'We're all still learning the nuances of televising soccer," said Goodrich. "The game is incredibly fast. Once Janoff turned to me and asked, 'What's next, it's halftime,' and I was shocked.

'There are so many things to do you never have a chance to catch your breath. It's two hours of absolute non-stop work.

"At least in doing football, you have a couple of minutes to catch your breath. Not with soccer. It never stops and we're trying to convey that to the viewer at home."

GOODRICH AND company ran into some unusual logistical problems in the earlier telecasts, especialfor the Kicks-Vancouver Whitecaps game.

"The field is off-center there," he noted. "We had to construct a special mount to square off the field for the viewer, make it look balanced.

"In Tampa for the game against the Cosmos, the Rowdies let us construct platforms in the upper deck stands because the camera positions were atop the stadium, which was too far away.

To avoid such troubles — or at least to know how to deal with them if they arise - the ABC people screened hundreds of tapes of foreign broadcasts and American telecasts "to learn the right way to do soccer," said Goodrich. Tey also did a "practice game" at Giants Stadium weeks before the network's first telecast and have surveyed the stadiums where each game will originate to get "the feel of the place for soccer.

"We also try to take the personal approach," said Goodrich. "We focus on the players, let the viewers get to know them. That gets them interested in the game even more."

ALL THREE networks, which chose not to televise Friday night's World Boxing Council title fight brtween champion Larry Holmes and challenger Mike Weaver, will carry other bouts this weekend. ## Amaya upsets Gottfried in grass court tourney

SURBITON, England (AP) - Victor Amaya won a first-set tie-breaker, 7-0, and went on to upset topseeded Brian Gottfried 7-6, 6-3 in the semifinals of a men's international grass court tennis tournament

"I have never won a tie-breaker 7-0 before," Amaya said.

In Saturday's final, the big serve and volley specialist from Holland, Mich., will meet Mark Edmondson, who downed Colin Dibley 7-6, 6-4 in an all-Australian duel in the other semifinal. Amaya was seeded No. 5 in this warmup event for Wimbledon, which begins Monday.

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) - Gerrie Coetzee, the be Spinks or Coetzee who will face American boxer John Tate in a planned World Boxing Association heavyweight title bout later in the year should present champion Muhammad Ali go through with his retirement.

The methodical, 24-year-old Coetzee said he only occasionally thinks of Tate these days, with Spinks as the immediate and more dangerous target. The 25-year-old Spinks, a former world champion whose record includes a win on points against Ali, is considered as the favorite.

But Coetzee insisted predictions didn't bother him and stressed they could be disproved. His manager, Hal Tucker, described Coetzee as the best heavyweight in the ring now.

'He can beat Spinks and Tate one after the other His fists can damage both quite badly," said Tuck-

Opponents could riddle SALT II with amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate does not customarily reject treaties outright — but it has been known to amend them to oblivion. And that is the administration's real problem in the campaign for SALT II.

If President Carter and his allies can guide the pact to the point of final approval without major changes — which would require new negotiations with the Soviet Union — they've probably won.

But getting it there is going to be difficult. Some of the people Carter most needs on his side, including Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., are saying the treaty will have to be amended in order to gain the two-thirds vote required to approve ratification.

Not even the most ardent critics of the treaty Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev signed in Vienna will confess to being against arms limitation in principle. But to a senator, they say they will oppose any pact that does not safeguard American security, and argue that SALT II does not meet that standard.

President Carter, of course, insists that it does. Indeed, he argues that SALT II would make a positive contribution to U.S. security.

But security, in the age of nuclear standoff, is in the eye of the beholder. When senators like Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., behold SALT, they see appeasement.

Carter told Congress Monday night the treaty "will become the most exhaustively discussed ... of our time, perhaps of all time."

The president said administration experts will discuss every detail, and he will personally "explain it throughout our nation, to every American who will listen."

The opposition will be doing the same thing. Because of its timing, the treaty debate will rapidly become blended with the politics of 1980, for the Senate will be considering it late into the fall, and it is not impossible that the final votes will come early in 1980, as the campaign for the White House begins in earnest.

So the president has political as well as diplomatic prestige at stake. Unless he can get the Senate to approve the treaty without significant change, he enters the campaign with another dent in his image as a lead-

By the time all the words are uttered and it comes time to vote, a good many people are likely to be thoroughly confused. The SALT treaty is long, complex, and contested on point after point. What one side calls a contribution to peace and American well being, the other side calls a sellout — and on the same set of facts.

It's enough to make an administration lobbyist yearn for the simpler days of the Panama Canal treaties, when the issue was as clear and simple as it was emotional.

The canal deal was yes or no, give up the waterway to Panama or refuse to yield it. The Senate said yes.

The arms accord is a collection of maybes, despite the fact that, as Carter noted, it puts equal ceilings on the strategic arsenals of both sides.

Just for openers, that equality can depend on what is counted as a strategic weapon. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., already has proposed an amendment to require that the pact include the Soviet Backfire bomber. "The Russians' argument that they have no intent to use it against the United States is, to me, just plain, unadulterated hogwash," Goldwater said.

There are more amendments to come, and perhaps other varieties of efforts at revision. The Senate has an almost unlimited range of options short of rejection if a majority wants a treaty changed.

Technically, the Senate does not ratify treaties. The president does that, but the Senate must give him permission, which takes a two-thirds yete.

That is done in a resolution of Senate approval.

The Senate can write into the resolution its binding instructions on points a majority wants altered, clarified, or interpreted in a specific manner. That can be done by majority vote.

The system can, and has, led to the virtual rewriting of treaties on the Senate floor. That kind of overhaul is not likely on SALT, but the Soviet Union already has said that it will not accept any significant changes.

In theory, if the administration has the two-thirds vote needed to approve ratification, it has more than the majority needed to block any changes in the treaty. But in fact, it may be a lot easier for some senators to vote for revisions than to vote against ratification of a treaty which, according to the polls, a majority of the American people favor.

the polls, a majority of the American people favor.

As a result, attempts at amendment probably will be the key phase of the Senate struggle over SALT II.

Amendment clearly would force renegotiation of the treaty on the affected point, unless the change were so minor as to be virtually meaningless.

Only three treaties that reached the Senate floor have been rejected outright since the Senate blocked the League of Nations treaty in 1920. And that League accord was voted down only after it was undercut by 14 Republican-sponsored reservations, which imposed terms so crippling that President Woodrow Wilson asked his supporters to vote against his own

Coast-to-coast air travel 50 years old

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP) — The Ford Tri-Motor sputtered down onto the freshly oiled airfield, bounced a couple of times, then came to a throbbing stop in front of the terminal building where a crowd of about a thousand waited.

A minute later, the oval door opened. Standing in the doorway, grinning and waving to the spectators, was Charles A. Lindbergh. Following Lindbergh off the plane was his bride, Anne, and aviator Amelia Earhart.

It was July 8, 1929, and the plane, the "City of Los Angeles," was making the initial stop on the inaugural journey of the nation's first coast-to-coast air-rail service.

Lindbergh made a short speech about the new transportation system. Then without further delay, the plane was refueled and the inaugural party reboarded for the continuing flight eastward, with Lindbergh back at the controls.

It was the beginning of a pioneering transportation venture that took travelers between New York and Los Angeles in 48 hours by using a combination of planes and trains.

Operated for 16 months, the service never made money, according to Alan Hogenauer, director of market research and planning for Trans World Airlines.

"The fares were too high and the time savings too limited relative to all-train alternatives to attract sufficient passengers," he explained.

"Moreover, the economic climate after the stock market crash of October 1929, and the many uncertainties of travel by commercial aviation in its infancy, did not help matters at all."

Ogenauer recently reported in a company newspaper on a trip in which he traced the route of the air-rail service and tracked down the 12 original sites involved in the cross-country operation. He suggested the sites are "national historic treasures."

"Since night flying had not yet been perfected to the point where it could be safely offered to the public, train service was used during two consecutive evenings of the total trip," he wrote.

The air service was offered by Transcontinental Air Transport, which through a series of mergers eventually evolved into TWA.

Hogenauer recalled that the westward-bound journey in 1929 began at New York's Pennsylvania Station and proceeded overnight to Columbus, Ohio, which was the easternmost point on the TAT route system.

"At Columbus, passengers detrained and enplaned, flying to Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, and Waynoka, Okla., before darkness," he related.

"From Waynoka to Clovis, N.M., the Santa Fe Railroad took over. On the second morning, air travel was resumed for the final legs from Clovis to Albuquerque, Winslow and Kingman, Ariz., and, at last, Glendale, serving Los Angeles."

Hogenauer reported that although eight of the 12 original points were still key cities on TWA's present system, three of the other four were no longer served by any commercial airliner.

In observance of the 50th anniversary of the inaugural flight, a TWA spokesman said the airline would present a full-scale replica of the propeller from the center engine of the plane used on the inaugural flight to each of the eight cities.

Ohio city moves slowly to collect its light bills

NILES, Ohio (AP) — The Fairhaven Sheltered Workshop for the mentally retarded had an electric meter installed when it was built eight years ago, but the city utility department apparently forgot to read it. Now the city says the workshop owes $200,000.

Fred Cleary, superintendent of the Fairhaven facility, said the workshop recently discovered its electric meter had been smashed, so it called the Niles utilities department for a replacement.

That was when the utility department realized the workshop had not been billed for eight years of electricty.

William Burgess, utility department superintendent, said the meter was installed when the workshop was built, but that it had never been read. Calling the oversight "impossible to believe."

Councilman Robert Leonard has asked the city law director to find out whether the city is entitled to collect the $200,000 in due electric bills.

Law Director Mitchell Shaker said the statute of limitations on collecting utility bills is seven years. Cleary said no one at the workshop was aware the facility was not being billed.

New medical expense plan being considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee is considering legislation that would permit some medical expenses of the elderly to be considered under food stamp eligibility rules.

The Senate Agriculture Committee and a House subcommittee approved bills Wednesday that would let low-income households with an elderly member have some medical expenses considered when applying for food stamps. The bills also would lift the ceiling on how much rent and utility costs could be deducted by such households. The changes would mean about $60 million in extra benefits, the Agriculture Department says.
