Assassination of judge lacks 'professional' look, federal agents reveal

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. bore few of the trademarks of a professional killing, several federal agents involved in the investigation have been quoted as

Wood, 63, was killed Tuesday by a sniper who fired a single .243-caliber bullet into the judge's spine. He is believed to be the first federal judge

A .243-caliber bullet is usually fired from a high-powered deer rifle, although FBI officials have refused to speculate on the type of weapon used in the slaying. FBI lab technicians have said they cannot determine from how far away the shot came. It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official connected to massive West Texas narcotics smuggling cases has been ambushed. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped serious injury when his car was riddled by bullets Nov. 21 as he drove to work.

FBI officials have refused to comment on whether they believe the two assaults are connected. Wood was nicknamed "Maximum John" because of his stiff sentences in drug cases.

Kerr and U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd have said they feel Wood's assassination is connected to the massive drug smuggling investigations and have vowed to accelerate the crackdown.

Sources from the FBI, U.S. Marshals Service and the Justice Department told the San Antonio Express-News over the weekend that the assassination did not apear to have been a contract killing.

"We're not ruling out any possibilities, but it certainly doesn't appear to be the work of a professional killer," one investigator was quoted as saying.

"The small caliber of the murder weapon — which appears to be a type of gun not favored by hired killers - and the fact that there are far better guns for the purpose seems to make it doubtful it was a pro," he

Wood was stooping over his car when the bullet hit him in the lower back, splintering on his spine and sending fragments upward into the judge's vital organs. A professional, a source said, would have aimed for the head or heart rather than the lower percentage shot to the back.

"There is no way they could have relied upon the fact that the bullet they used would have done the job," another investigator said. Wood was killed in front of his townhouse about 8:30 a.m. as he and

Americans still don't believe gas shortage

NEW YORK (AP) - Americans say they would cut back significantly on driving if the gasoline shortage were real, but they remain overwhelmingly convinced the shortage is just a profit-making ploy by the oil companies, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows

This is not to say people are treating current energy problems as minor. In fact, they now say energy concerns are just about as serious a national problem as the rising cost of

It's just that Americans are deeply suspicious of the major factors in the energy situation — the oil-producing countries, the oil companies and the

This suspicion and deep concern about how their lives could be changed by energy problems combine to give the public a split personality

On the one hand, three out of four Americans haven't had any difficulty getting gasoline in recent weeks. But that hasn't stopped millions of drivers from "topping off" their tanks in fear of possible shortages, the poll found. The special AP-NBC News poll on energy matters interviewed 800 adults across the country by telephone May 29, after the Memorial Day weekend. The poll indicated nearly three out of four American drivers - 74 percent - would cut back their driving significantly if they were convinced the gasoline shortage were real. Twentythree percent would not and 3 percent were not sure. But the public doesn't think the gasoline shortage is real.

Sixty-five percent said the shortage is a hoax to get consumers to pay higher prices, while only 25 percent said it is real. Ten percent were not

Despite this suspicion about the sources for the current gasoline situation, Americans say energy is one of the nation's top problems.

Asked what is the nation's top problem, 32 percent named the cost of living, leaving it in the top spot it has held for many months. Energy was picked by 29 percent. That's up from the 18 percent who chose energy in the AP-NBC News poll taken at the first

Of those who have had trouble, 19 percent reported being unable to find gasoline or spending time hunting for a station with a supply. Eleven percent said they have waited in line to up and 6 percent said they have been restricted in the amounts of gas they could buy at one station. One percent were not sure. The percentages add to more than 100 because some people mentioned more than one problem.

The mere fear of shortages has caused millions of drivers to "top off" - fill up their gas tanks more frequently than normal. Industry experts have said that such topping off can make a tight supply worse.

Twenty-six percent of the nation's drivers said they have been topping off. Seventy-three percent said they are not and 1 percent were not sure. One of five of those who have had no problems getting gas admitted to topping off. But 43 percent of those who have faced problems getting gasoline said they have been filling up more

For polls with 800 interviews, the results should vary no more than five percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than 5 percent-

These tires, under the left wing of a Los Angeles-bound American Airlines 727, burst into flames this morning as the plane attempted a takeoff at Oklahoma City's Will Rogers

'Deeper conflicts' may be aired

By SUSAN PAGE

An engine fell off, the plane crashed and 274 persons died. On that, the two federal agencies concerned with air safety agree. But beyond that, the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board have had direct and public disputes over the nation's worst air disaster.

For instance, why did the American Airlines DC-10 crash? The FAA has said the wide-bodied jet crashed on takeoff at O'Hare International Airport May 25 because its left engine fell off. "There is no reason to think that once that engine came off the airframe that it would fly," FAA chief Langhorne Bond said last week. But the NTSB disagrees. "That plane should have continued to fly," spokes-man Robert Buckhorn said. "We want to know why it didn't." And, for instance, what should be done until the NTSB completes its probe? Bond allowed other DC-10s back in service following rigorous inspections of their engine mounts. But at least one safety board member, who says he is backed privately by some staff members, called the response "not good enough for me" and said that all the planes should be

The conflicts over the Chicago crash - which may indicate deeper conflicts over the regulation of airline safety in general — has caused tension and testiness between the two agencies as the investigation into Flight 191 continues.

Over the weekend, a NTSB team was working with a computerized cockpit simulator at the American Airlines training base in Fort Worth duplicate the deadly takeoff. "We're going to program into it the same variables we had in Chicago," safety board spokesman Ed Flattery said, 'and see if the plane is controll-

What may have caused the tragedy in Chicago, the head of the NTSB investigation there said, was not the loss of the engine itself but the damage it did to the wing as it fell. Douglas Dreifus said that as the engine and its mounting ripped from the wing, it may have damaged hydraulic

If the hydraulic fluid then drained - and witnesses on the ground said they saw liquid streaming from the wing - the pressure keeping the leftwing flaps deployed would have dropped. The flaps would have retracted and the left wing would have lost the lift they provide. But the right wing still would have had its full lift, and the plane would have been tipped into an uncontrollable roll.

"The aerodynamicists we checked with said the plane still should have been controllable, provided there was no damage to the wing...," Flattery said. "I don't think anyone has the known experience of what happens to a DC-10 if it loses an engine. The FAA believes one thing. We don't know. We're trying to find out."

In fact, the dispute between the two agencies may turn out to be one of semantics and timing, not substance. FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman said that Bond's statement, based on the findings of FAA investigators, included damage to the wings as part of the crash's cause.

But Flattery cautioned that the NTSB was not "anywhere near" stating the probable cause of the Chicago crash'- and he emphasized that it was the NTSB, not the FAA, that would finally decide what the cause

The NTSB investigates accidents and recommends safety changes to regulatory agencies like the FAA. The FAA oversees the design and testing of airliners, certifies that they their daily operation.

The safety board has become particularly aggressive under its new chairman, James King, while the FAA traditionally has been sympathetic to the aviation industry. Despite recent efforts to make the FAA more independent, it is an organization with an entrenched bureaucracy. And Bond, who has been responsive to consumer interests during his two years in the job, has been criticized as a political appointee who lacks the technical expertise for his post.

Without citing Bond by name, Brit-ish Caledonian Airlines on Friday blasted FAA remarks about the Chicago accident as "irresponsible" and "premature" and said it was "appalled that a number of official bodies and unqualified individuals particularly in the U.S.A. have seen fit to make suppositions and put forward unfounded theories.'

And at a briefing Thursday, safety board member Philip Hogue critic-ized the FAA decision to allow DC-10s back in the air, saying he would hesi-tate to fly in one. 'Until we have wrung out the load-carrying design features of the pylons," he said, "I don't think the airplane should be in

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) -President John Vorster, accused of covering up a major government financial scandal, resigned today, Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha announced to Parliament

The resignation of the 64-year-old Vorster came after the release of an investigative report on the scandal, which involves the alleged misuse of $60 million to $120 million in secret government funds earmarked for clandestine propaganda projects.

"I regret to inform the House that the state president has tendered his resignation with effect from June 4, 1979," Botha told a stunned Parlia-

Vorster had been prime minister for 13 years until his resignation last September, and the cover-up allegedly occurred toward the end of his prime ministry. South African news-papers had confidently predicted that he would resign as president, a largely ceremonial post, when the report was released today.

The secret propaganda projects were aimed at bettering the white-minority government's image, tar-nished by international criticism of its apartheid policies of racial segregation.

Among the projects was the clandestine financing of a pro-govern-ment newspaper here, an alleged attempt to buy the Washington Star newspaper and alleged payments to foreign politicians.

The final report of the governmentappointed commission headed by retired Judge Rudolph Erasmus said Vorster shared responsibility in the scandal with others because he did not reveal irregularities that came to his attention, concealed them from the Cabinet and delayed taking steps to end the irregularities.

The Erasmus Commission issued two interim reports before its final 70-page document today. In the first, Vorster was cleared of any involvement in the scandal. In the second, the commission was more critical. claiming that he had withheld certain information from his Cabinet minis-

Former Information Minister Connie Mulder and the former director of the South African Information Department, Eschel Rhoodie, resigned from their posts when the scandal first began to break. The secret funds had been funnelled through the Information Department.

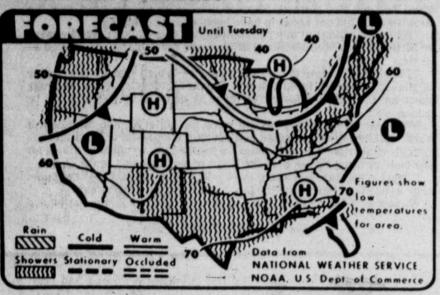

Mulders - once considered a potential prime minister - has been all but destroyed while Rhoodie, now wanted by South African police on fraud and theft charges in connection with the secret funds, is in hiding somewhere in Europe.

Botha, who succeeded Vorster as prime minister, told Parliament that the resigned president would be succeeded by Marais Viljoen, the president of the Senate, who would be inaugurated later today.

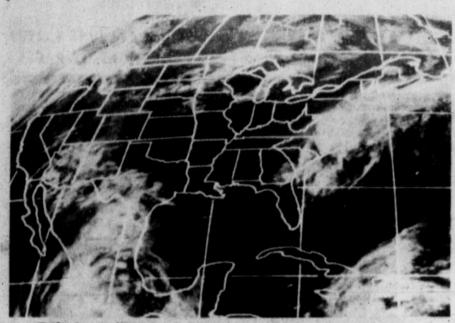

The commission also claimed that U.S. publisher John P. McGoff has not returned more than $6 million in secret funds he allegedly received to buy newspapers in the United States. The supposed plan was to make these newspapers, including the Washing-ton Star, editorially friendly to South

The report said that though the attempt to buy the Star eventually fell through, secret South African funds were used to buy the Sacramento (Calif.) Union and a 50-percent share in UPITN, a London-based television newsfilm service operated in conjunction with the U.S. news agency United Press International.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecast until early Tuesday calls for rain over most of Texas, New Mexico and part of Arizona. Showers are also forecast from the Ohio River Valley to Maine, for the Pacifice Northwest into Idaho and for parts of the North and South. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Today's satellite cloud picture, recorded at 3 a.m., shows cloud cover over much of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. A band of clouds associated with rain covers most of the East Coast, while cloud cover over North Dakota is a result of cooler air moving down from Canada. (AP Laserphoto)

Operators at some truck stops shut down diesel pumps today and truck blockades impeded traffic at other service stations as independent truckers acted on a threat to shut down rigs

A convoy of 15 to 25 trucks, led by driver Robert Somers of Colorado planned to leave Frederick, Md., today for a protest drive into Washington, D.C.

Somers said that when the trucks reached they capital they would disperse, with only three continuing into the city.

"We don't want to tie up the city's traffic," he said.

A 6-week-old organization of independent truckers, which claims about 2,500 members, mostly in the Southeast, called for a nationwide shutdown beginning Friday. A note on a bulletin board at a truck stop in Ontario, Calif, said:

"Attention: National shutdown June 8, 1979. Please go home and shut down and contact your local represen-

Dave Edwards of Greensboro, N.C., head of the union, wrote, "We want everybody to be home. We want them to have their loads off. We don't want them to block any truck stops or any fuel pumps.

"Our idea is to get the general public behind us because they're getting the shaft as well as us when they pull up to get gas."

And about 350 truckers from 13 states vowed Sunday in Sioux City, Iowa, to park their rigs indefinitely to protest high diesel fuel costs.

The truckers are seeking an end to the high cost of diesel fuel and fuel surcharges, uniform length for trucks and suspension of the 55 mph speed limit which they say is not fuel-efficient for big trucks.

Somers said he and two other truckers left Colorado two days ago and were joined by others along the way. He refused to estimate their numbers, saying "it looks like a bunch."

But some of the early results of the drivers' action were reported in states not represented at the Iowa meeting.

About two dozen truckers blockaded a Calumet, Ill., Union 76 Auto-Truck Stop at midnight, according to Ken Kramer, a manager of the station south of Chicago. He said the peaceful protest prevented independent truckers from leaving.

In Oklahoma, truckers shut down the four major Interstate 44 truck stops in Tulsa and the four largest in Oklahoma City. Some closed voluntarily; others were victims of block-he'd go to court today to seek an injunction to emove the blockades. In Sioux City, strik supporter Eldon Goldsmith, told drivers: "if any of you have perishable loads, you have until midnight Wednesday to get that

"We're busier than fleas out here." he said, adding that many independent drivers had not even mentioned the action.

But Betty Bennett of the 707 Truck Plaza on Interstate 70 in Blue Springs, Mo., said some independents were buying little fuel.

He also told association lawyers that its members are not "irreparably harmed" because they can choose to fly planes other than DC-10s.

The crash prompted the FAA to order all U.S. airlines to visually inspect their DC-10s for any problems in the engine mounting systems. The inspections found that nearly half the 137 DC-10s in service on the domestic airlines had defects ranging from "serious to minor," the FAA said. Many of those in which problems were discovered did not fly over the weekend. But attorneys for the passengers association argued that the visual inspections were not enough as long as the FAA could not determine exactly why the left engine on the ill-fated Flight 191 fell off

"Since the design of each of these (DC-10) aircraft and their engine mountings and pylons is substantially the same, there is no reason to believe that the loss of American Flight 191 is an isolated occurrence," said asso-ciation lawyer Windle Turley. The group is comprised of 50,000 frequent airline passengers. Charles Foster, the FAA's associate administrator for aviation standards, said he was "satisfied that all of those aircraft which have been inspected and repaired in accordance with air worthiness directives are in a safe condition for operation.' In related developments:

-Consumer activist Ralph Nader renewed his call for the government to curtail all DC-10 flights. In a statement, he contended Sunday that even before the Chicago accident, the jumbo jets were "plagued by defects in design and structure.

He also said that FAA personnel, rather than the airlines' mechanics. should inspect the engine mountings on the DC-10s

-Thirteen passengers aboard an American Airlines DC-10 were slightly injured Sunday when they slid down the plane's chutes after an emergency landing at Kennedy International Airport, authorities said. The jet returned to the airport after a telephone caller said a bomb was aboard the San Francisco-bound plane. No bomb was found, police

-Another American DC-10 turned back to Chicago Saturday night after a cockpit warning light indicated a problem in the plane's hydraulic sys-

Airline spokesman Art Jackson said "a valve cap came off a valve and drained one of the jet's three hydraulic systems." The plane could have continued to San Francisco, he said, "but usually the crew goes to the nearest airport.

-A United Airlines DC-10 returned to San Francisco Saturday after a faulty cockpit light indicated a problem with the plane's cargo door. The crew found the door was secure and the plane took off a short time later for Washington, D.C.

Tight security ordered in Henley trial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -District Judge Noah Kennedy has ordered tight security for the second murder trial of Elmer Wayne Henley, 23, accused in a two-year homosexual torture and death spree in Houston.

The case, which gets under way today, was moved here after a new trial was ordered by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Henley was 18 when he was convicted of murder the first time and sentenced to six 99-year terms. He won a new trial when the appeals court ruled the judge in that trial should have allowed a defense motion for a change of venue hearing.

Prosecutors have said they do not anticipate much difference in their strategy from the first trial.

Kennedy said spectators will be allowed in and out of the courtroom only during recesses. The judge also said

The murders of 27 youths came to light in August 1973 when Henley called police to tell them he had shot and killed Dean Arnold Corll, a 33year-old Houston Light and Power employee.

Henley told police the shooting came after a night of terror during which a teen-age boy and girl were handcuffed to a "torture board" where they were to be sexually abused by Corll.

The Corll death was ruled self-defense after Henley disclosed his relationship with the older Corll. It began, Henley said, when he was 15 and was told that Corll would pay youths to attract boys to his Houston Heights company executives are thumbing their noses at a challenge from the federal government's No. 1 health sters' decisions to smoke. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., in an April 26 speech in San Francisco, challenged cigarette makers "to put some of their advertising dollars where their corporate rhetoric is."

He suggested that the companies spend 10 percent of their ad budgets on a campaign to urge children not to smoke and to warn young women of the danger smoking poses to their unborn babies.

Responding to that challenge, one tobacco executive, Lorillard President Curtis H. Judge, quoted a passage from the recent Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health that said "the influence of the mass media in the initiation of smoking is" difficult to determine.

Tobacco execs reject Califano's challenge

"Mass media advertising makes an easy and tempting target, but its influence is uncertain," Judge wrote

"Everyone, including Lorillard, agrees that children should not smoke. However, to our knowledge, nobody knows why children begin to smoke, including experts in the field," Judge said.

Although the new government survey released April 26 showed the percentage of teen-age smokers had fallen since 1974 from 16 percent to 12 percent, Califano said there were 1.7 million girls and 1.6 million boys between ages 12 and 18 who were regular smokers.

Raymond J. Mulligan, president of the Liggett Group, responded to Cali-fano that it should be left to mothers and fathers to use "their own free will in discouraging their children from starting to smoke or continuing smoking.

Russia's motorists hold tempers: Long lines just matter of course

By HARRY DUNPHY

MOSCOW (AP) - When long lines build up at Soviet gasoline stations, tempers don't flare. Waiting in line is a way of life here and drivers know the problem is more a shortage of stations than a lack of gasoline.

Moscow is a city of 8 million people, but has fewer than 150 gasoline stations. That is despite the fact that the Soviet Union is now the largest petroleum producer in the world, although Saudi Arabia is said to have bigger

Soviet wells are yielding an average of 11 million barrels a day, almost a fourth of which is exported

The entire nation of 262 million people is believed to have only a few million private cars and the demand their owners make on the country's fuel resources is substantially less than in the West. Only 5 to 6 percent of gasoline goes for private needs.

The remainder of the nation's gasoline goes to the public sector and the Driving habits in the Soviet Union differ from those in the United States and other Western countries. This is not a mobile society where private transport is essential. Most urban Soviet workers go to jobs on buses or subways. Travel between cities is usually by train or airplane.

Those who own cars use them for recreation, like a spring weekend escape from the city or a drive to a forest locale to forage for mushrooms, among other popular Soviet pasttimes. Because of the severe winters, many motorists put their cars up

Swearingen predicts 15-cent gas price climb

NEW YORK (AP) - Gasoline prices will have to hit around $1.50 a gallon before U.S. oil companies will embark on an all-out effort to develop coal and shale resources and draw oil from old wells, the chairman of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana said Sunday

John Swearingen, who also serves as chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, also said he expects the

Saudis not for embargo

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) -Saudi Arabia rejects the idea of an Arab oil embargo against America, Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani was quoted as saying in Sunday's edition of the Rivadh newspaper Al Jazirah.

Iraq and a Marxist Palestinian group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, demanded last month that Arab oil exporters impose an oil embargo against the United States for its sponsorship of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

The newspaper quoted Yamani as saying also that Saudi Arabia, the world's largest exporter of crude oil, will not reduce its production rate of 8.5 million barrels a day.

"Saudi Arabia will define its oil policy in coordination with the member states of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries," Yamani told the newspaper. "Our primary objective will be to curb profiteering by a handful of international oil companies and also to combat the energy crisis in the world."

price of gasoline to rise 10 or 15 cents in the next year, depending on the actions of the oil-producing nations. He said that before domestic oil producers could afford to make an all-out effort to increase production, prices would have to rise to the world price level, which he said would boost the price of gasoline to around $1.50.

In an interview on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program, he said he expected that more gas will be available in June and July than there was in April and May, but noted consumption also goes up during vacation periods and therefore supplies will be even tighter.

He defended the oil industry and rebutted charges that the oil shortage was contrived.

"As far as I know, there is no company in the business that is withholding gasoline or other stocks from the market today." he said. 'The primary concern has to be to make sure that nobody goes cold this winter because of a shortage of heating oil. We can either make heating oil or we can make gasoline out of the crude oil that's available. And right now, our stocks of heating oil are at very low levels." "All of the companies that I know anything about are intensifying their efforts" to find more oil, he said, but added that federal controls on the price of oil have hindered these ef-

He said President Carter's plan to gradually remove oil price controls was a "good deal for consumers." noting that because of taxes, "the federal government is the biggest beneficiary of any price increase that on blocks and cover them with tarpaulins from December to April.

Gasoline prices are higher than in the United States but lower than many West European countries, some of which have prices exceeding $2 a gallon. Car models available here are smaller and average up to 23 miles a Premium octane tosts the ruble equivalent of $1.32 a gallon. Regular octane is $1.20 a gallon and a lower grade sells for 90 cents. So a Soviet driver can fill his car for around $12. The average monthly wage is $255.

Prices were substantially lower until March 1, 1978 when they were doubled in the most sweeping retail price change in years.

The State Price Committee chairman, Nikolai T. Glushkov, said then that the price of gasoline went up because production costs had increased and because "tens of hundreds" of people had asked that give-away gas prices be ended. He did not identify these poeple. But some Western economic analysts saw the move as an effort by authorities to restrict use of private transport. Costs for car repairs and spare parts increased at the same time by 35 percent. Still, there have been government campaigns to conserve energy. The government reportedly wants to keep up its oil supplies for export, since petroleum sales to foreign countries account for 50 percent of the nation's hard currency earnings. One half of the oil exports goes to other communist nations and the other half is sold

But some Soviets do not appear to take conservation measures serious-

According to the official press, there is far more waste in the staterun organizations. It is common in Moscow to see government trucks and cars running idle for 10 minutes or more. Newspapers have accused rural tractor drivers of selling surplus gasoline

Studies by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and Western oil companies, which have been disputed by the Soviet Union and some Western experts, say the country is headed for an energy crisis in the mid-1980s.

These studies say it is doubtful whether Soviet oil production will be able to satisfy fully both domestic requirements and export demand. Soviet oil reserves are kept secret, but they are not believed to exceed Saudi

But the Soviets are developing alternate energy sources such as coal and hydroelectric power and hope to press ahead with oil exploration in Siberia and other areas in an effort to increase supplies. At the same time they have told East Bloc countries to start looking elsewhere for some of

New Yorkers find few gasoline stations open

By The Associated Press

New Yorkers could find only one in five service stations open Sunday, but the long lines at California pumps had

On the whole, there seemed to be no serious gasoline problems although automobile clubs in most states reported that between 40 percent and 60 percent of the stations were closed.

The Auto Club of New York said less than 17 percent of the service stations in the metropolitan area were pumping gasoline on Sunday. About the same percentage were open in neighboring Connecticut.

A club spokesman said that indicated distribution of June gasoline allocations probably were a bit late.

The Automobile Club of Southern California predicted that just 30 percent of the stations would be open on Sunday in the southern part of the state, while 38 percent would be operating in the north.

But despite the number of closures, the long lines that have been familiar the past three weeks in California were not to be found early Sunday.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said Sunday his state could institute a California style odd-even gasoline rationing plan "overnight," if it becomes necessary. But Carey expressed fear that rationing might lead

Car-repair delays seen

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Fuel industry expert Dan Lundberg says the gasoline shortages which led to long lines at gasoline pumps may lead to even longer delays in getting cars

Lundberg, whose Lundberg Letter has become the authoritative oracle of conditions in the fuel industry, says many smaller service stations are closing, and that could result in long delays in motor vehicle repair work.

"You think you've seen frayed tem-Lundberg, 66, said until you're told you've got to wait two weeks to get your car running or your brakes fixed, brother!"

Lundberg was the first to predict on March 9 that California faced a serious gasoline shortage. Subscribers to his weekly newsletter were warned gasoline supplies would fall 8.9 percent short of demand for March. That turned out to be the exact March shortage, as confirmed much later by federal Department of Energy fig-

Lundberg also said gasoline lines that began forming in California at the end of March could spread across

His staff of 300 "reporters" takes surveys of at least 16,700 of the nation's 170,000 service stations each month, and the information goes into a computer at Lundberg's headquar-

The letter started about six years as an outgrowth of a service Lundberg established in the mid-50s to oil com-

A onetime radio show writer in the 1930s, Lundberg became a CBS correspondent in Mexico City during World War II, with a sideline writing U.S. propaganda plays for use on Mexican

His Washington boss on that sideline was the late Nelson Rockefeller, who became vice president 30 years

When the war ended, Lundberg said: "Rocky tells me that I'm a public relations expert, to find an industry and go into it. When I ask how, he says: 'You're a writer. Write.

a scenario and star yourself.' Hockefeller also told him to "pick the stupidest industry in the world." So he found the "fragmented" oil industry and decided to be its independent expert, he said.

Rate hike requested

'CHICAGO (AP) - Natural Gas-Pipeline Co. of America has requested a 3.4 percent rate hike that would affect customers in the Midwest, including Illinois, Wisconsin and Mis-

The wholesale supplier of natural gas has asked the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to approve the rate increases for Dec. 1.

Natural Gas Pipeline also serves customers in Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Wis-

A company spokesman said new rate schedules filed with the commission are designed to increase annual revenues by $44 million. He said the money is needed to offset increases in operating, maintenance and interest

The rate increase to homeowners and businesses hasn't been calculated, he said. The company is still waiting for a rate case filed in June, 1978 to be made final.

New Yorkers to believe incorrectly that there is enough gas to go around, and would hurt efforts to get people to conserve fuel. Carey also warned of a heating oil shortage in the fall.

Elsewhere, the petroleum shortage was being felt in different ways. Some boat builders in Spokane, Wash., say short supplies had dealt them a double blow. Petroleum shortages have driven up costs of petrochemical base products which go into fiberglass used in making most pleasure boats, spokes-

At the same time, tight supplies of motor fuel apparently have scared off some buyers and stalled dealer

The two biggest boat builders in Spokane have cut their payrolls nearly in half, officials say

William Carroll, vice president of Apollo Boat Manufacturing Co., said his work force has been cut by at least half from the normal 200 employees for this time of year.

"We're in limbo," Carroll said. "We'd like officials to set the price of whatever - so that people know it's available at a price and can decide for themselves that they want to buy for what price.'

And in Minnesota, safety officials are concerned that motorists are storing dangerous containers of gasoline in their cars and around their homes, while others are installing auxiliary tanks in their cars.

Safety officials do not object to the use of auxiliary tanks that meet federal standards and are properly installed. But they see danger in carrying double and triple the normal amount of gasoline.

"Many people are pulling into selfservice gas stations and filling seven or eight containers, putting them in their trunks, slamming the lid down and thinking they have a safe condition for their family," said Wally Collins, assistant director of the state Fire Marshal's office.

"I'm appalled by it. I know that sometime down the road we will have a fire problem. We will have someone

FORT MCMURRAY, Canada - This old fur trading post, now the fastest-growing town in Canada, has not exactly obliterated its past, but it has set it aside

If a visitor wants to see a little bit of what Fort McMurray was like in the old days, before the oil boom, he has to climb a hill outside town to what is known as Heritage Park.

There he will find a few antique wooden buildings, the old branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police post, Hills's drugstore and the

These have been plucked from the town in the last few years and put on the hill. Caught up in an awesome attempt to wrest oil from the tar sands of northern Alberta. Fort McMurray has no room for its past. Only a few weeks ago, a 40year-old hospital, the last old public building left, was demolished.

When that went," said Merle Rudiak, who grew up here before the oil people came, "some of us felt that was the last chance. That's progress, guess.

Progress, for Fort McMurray, has meant growth from a village of a little more than 1,000 in 1961 to a town of almost 25,000 at the end of 1978. The rapid growth has brought problems, among them alcoholism, and a reputation, like the Klondike's, for easy riches. It is a reputation that can be disappointing. 'If you come here with nothing," a frustrated taxi driver said, "you go away with nothing."

It is also a reputation that irritates Ted Mason, a retired Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer who is now chairman of the town board, the equivalent of mayor. This town has been painted as a kind of Klondike boom or bust town, and I really resent it," Mason said the other day in his office. "At no. time was this a rough and ready frontier town. It's been a busy, hardworking town. Fort McMurray, 270 miles northeast of Edmonton, likes to describe itself as the second oldest settlement in Alberta, but the description is something of a distortion. Fur traders picked the site, at the juncture of the Clearwater and Athabasca rivers, 200 years ago and set up a post for collecting skins from the Indians. But it never amounted to much and sometimes lapsed into disuse.

The fort did not become a permanent settlement until 1870, when Henry John Moberly of the Hudson's Bay Co.'s set up a post here and named it after his friend left. Everything had ray, a company inspector. Fort McMurray soon been picked over. Merchants had mono became the Hudson's polies and charged dear-ly, fostering the tales Bay Co.'s port for ship-about easy fortunes made in Fort McMurray. In the last two to three years, however, many new shops have opened and the lines and monopolies have dwindled.

"Now, oddly enough," Mason said, "there's a little sweating among rebuilding a mine and tail people.

Alcoholism is a major problem. The people who have come to Fort sticky tar sands of Alber-McMurray did not know ta have the potential to each other before, and they feel isolated here. rels of oil if ways are More than half have found to extract all of it come from outside Aleasily and cheaply. In the 1977-78 fiscal year, the average adult resident of Fort McMurray bought $800 worth of liquor, about twice the average for the rest of Alberta. Arrests for drunken driving were twice the rate for the province. Hospital officials reported a growing number of women admit ted for depression and alcoholism. Divorce was more prevalent in Fort McMurray than in the rest of Alberta.

Sandinista troops prepared for uprising in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas mobilized for an uprising in Managua today and a nationwide general strike after overrunning a town in the northwest and battling President Anastasio Somoza's troops in the south. Somoza took a helicopter tour of the southern front wearing camouflage fatigues and a pistol he was too. high up to use.

Heavy firing was heard in Managua Sunday night. Tracer bullets could be seen from the Intercontinental Hotel next to Somoza's headquarters. Seventy-five percent of the stall owners in Managua's main market said they planned to close today. A number of moderate opposition groups endorsed the guerrillas' call for a general strike. Lines formed at supermarkets, banks and gasoline stations over the weekend as jittery residents stocked up. The West German Embassy evacuated 74 persons, mostly women and children, from Managua Sunday night on a chartered Panamanian plane that flew them to Costa Rica. A U.S. Embassy source said the State Department has issued no new advisories, but a warning against travelling to Nicaragua for other than essential business has been in effect since last March. Fighting was reported in the northwest in the cities of Leon, Chinandega and Chichigalpa, and the guerrillas overran Chichigalpa Sunday.

Five foreign journalists who entered the town found the national guard, Somoza's army and police force, bottled up in its garrison. The rebels, carrying mostly small arms, barricaded the streetsand set up

A C47 airplane circled overhead. The rebels said the plane, which mounts a .50-caliber machine gun, had strafed guerrilla positions. Most residents stayed in doors as the guerrillas.

many wearing red and black bandanas, roamed the streets.

Somoza flew by helicopter Sunday to the hamlet of Sapoa, near the Costa Rican border, for a look at the fighting in the south.

The president had his helicopter fly down the Pacific coast to the Costa Rican border. The chopper spiraled in slow circles over two Nicaraguan gunboats in the Bay of Salinas as Somoza observed the

A national guard aircraft was seen rocketing just inside the border, but the presidential helicopter stayed well above the reach of small arms.

Somoza said the guerrillas were well trained, dug in and "their mortar fire is very accurate." The president, whose family has dominated this Iowasized nation for 42 years, said, "We probably will launch a major offensive in the south within 48 hours.

One government commander in the south said 55 guerrillas and five national guardsmen had been killed in the fighting.

Somoza, wearing five black stars on his right collar, said the rebels lobbed mortar rounds into the Penas Blancas border station earlier Sunday. Penas Blancas is one mile south of Sapoa, which is on the shores of Lake Nicaragua.

Somoza said the rebels continued to hold positions near the Pacific coast and extending about two miles into Nicaragua. He said they were being supplied at night by truck convoys from Costa Rica.

The guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front take their name from a rebel leader who fought the U.S. Marines who put Somoza's father into power in the 1930s. They led a two-week rebellion in September in which an estimated 1,500 persons died. Another 1,500 have died in clashes since.

Israelis sink Palestinian boat

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - An Israeli navy patrol boat sank a Palestinian commando craft early today off Israel's northern coast and apparently killed several guerrillas, the military command said.

In Cairo, meanwhile, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan arrived for talks on details of opening the Egyptian-Israeli border but was immediately summoned to an surprise meeting with Anwar Sadat. at the Egyptian president's villa at Ismailia on the Suez Canal. There was no immediate indication what was behind the unscheduled meeting. Israeli press reports said the navy patrol spotted a rubber boat near the Lebanese border and opened fire, apparently detonating explosives carried by the guerrillas. First reports said several bodies were floating in the water where the boat sank, but it was not immediately known how many there were. On April 23, Palestinian guerrillas landed a rubber boat in northern Israel and raided an apartment building in the coastal resort of Nahariya in an attack that killed four Israelis and two of the raiders. Two others were captured. In the West Bank Arab town of Ramallah, meanwhile, Israeli security men demolished one house and sealed four others belonging to suspected Palestinian terrorists, Israelis authorities said

The officials said the four suspects, including a university student and three women teachers, were arrested last week and accused of eight bombings or attempted bombings since September 1978, that killed four Israelis and wounded 50. Authorities said the suspects were trained in Syria and belonged to Al Fatah, the largest military group in Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

Dayan was met in Cairo by Butros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs, and the two men flew by helicopter to Sadat's villa. Asked about the meeting, Dayan told reporters, "I know nothing about this. It came as a nice surprise. I am glad that I will be seeing President Sadat." Dayan had been scheduled to meet only with Ghali to work out such details of the border opening such as visa requirements and the number and location of border checkpoints.

On Sunday, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's

government overrode opposition from Cabinet doves and voted to seize a piece of Arab-owned land on the West Bank of the Jordan River for a new Jewish settlement near Nablus. After the 8-5 Cabinet vote, Begin told a convention of his Herut Party Israel will continue settling Jews on the West Bank despite sharp opposition from the United States and Egypt. Jewish settlement within Israel's biblical borders is "a right and a duty," Begin said. He considers the West Bank, which he calls by the biblical names of Judea and Samaria, part of Jewish birthright the Old Testaments says God designated to the patriarch Abraham for the Jewish state. Israel occupied the area in the 1967 war. The Cabinet voted to go ahead with the new settlement near Nablus, the largest Arab city on the West Bank and a caldron of Palestinian national-

The Cabinet rejected an appeal from Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Yadin that the site of the settlement be moved so Arab property would not have to be confiscated. Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman were among those siding with Yadin Weizman recently refused to sign an order for the military expropriation of privately owned West Bank land. He said the seizure of private Arab land to build Jewish settlements complicated the talks with Egypt on autonomy for the 1.1 million Palestinians on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip. Washington and Cairo have attacked Begin's settlement policy as an obstacle to the peace process.

Iranian oil directors resign

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - All seven directors of the National Iranian Oil Co. submitted a symbolic resignation in support of their chairman's charge that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is trying to put Iran into an Islamic straitjacket, informed sources said.

They said the directors told the revolutionary government "the atmosphere was not conducive" to the proper performance of their duties. But their resignations were symbolic and they are continuing to work, the sources said. All seven were appointed by the company chairman Hassan Nazih, who was named by the revolutionary regime. Last week he told the Iranian bar association, which he also heads, that Iran's political, judicial and economic affairs cant be forced into an Islamic mold.

The Natonal Democratic Front, a coalition of liberal and democratic parties led by a grandson of the late Prime Minister Mohammad Mossadegh, on Saturday blasted Khomeini for "mingling clergy and politics.

It said in an open letter to the Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime four months ago: "Every problem from meat, electricity and water to the more important internal and foreign policies is under your discretion.

"You've said that all those who picture the Islamic republic as not conforming with your views are counter-revolutionaries....It is our moral and humanitarian duty that we should fight against all excesses and not let tyranny overwhelm us yet again."

A firing squad executed three more members of the shah's SAVAK secret police in Tehran today for corruption and killing and torturing innocent people. This raised the number executed to 259 since Febru-

Radio Tehran said those executed included Mohammad Karim Baserinia, the SAVAK chief in the holy city of Qom, Khomeini's residence. The broadcast said three other men were tried at the same time, one hanged himself in his cell after he was found guilty and the two others were sentenced to jail terms of 12 and two years.

Streaking Grubb carries Rangers into first place

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - They were calling John Grubb one of the more reserved, withdrawn members of the Texas Rangers earlier this

A couple of weeks or so ago, they began to wonder. And Sunday night, Grubb removed all doubt when he hit a homer and two singles and bounced off the left field wall to make a razzledazzle catch inleading Texas to a 4-2 victory over Baltimore.

Grubb has a 16-game hitting streak. that began when he decided he needed "to be more aggressive" and the Rangers in the process rose out of the pack to take the lead in the American League West with Sunday night's tri-

"I hope I'm not known as the quiet man any more. The last three weeks, I've been trying to pump up a little extra. I've always given 100 percent, but some people said I didn't look aggressive enough," the 30-year-old lefthanded outfielder said.

On a mid-May road trip against Minnesota, Grubb got caught up in things when the Ranger dugout exploded in mass jeers and taunts of former Ranger pitcher Mike Mar-shall, the Twins' relief ace. Texas swept the series, beating Marshall twice, and Grubb has been out of his shell ever since.

On the first day of the ensuing road series with Seattle, the once-shy Grubb walked onto a bus that had a woman driver and exclaimed, to the shock of his teammates, "Wow! A

"I'd like to play every day, but that's up to the manager. This is the first contending team I've ever played on, and I'm not going to rock the boat," Grubb said.

"I've always felt confident against either a righty or a lefty, and I'm preparing myself to play every day, if it should happen. If not, I'll pull for the guy in there and hope he does the

Grubb got three of Texas' nine hits off Jim Palmer, 6-3, who went the distance for the Orioles. His seventh

The two teams renew hostilities tonight as the Cubs' Herman Segelke, 5-1, will tangle with the Mets' Greg Harris, 3-5. Midland leads the season Rohn wasted little time as he ignited the Cubs' first inning uprising with a single to right. The scrappy second sacker hustled to third on Jared Martin's hit-and-run single and tallied when the Mets' Bob Grote uncorked a wild pitch. The Mets scored their lone run of the game in the fourth when Howard slapped a base hit to right, swiped second and tallied from the keystone after Mack's wild pitch rolled to the edge of the Bruin dugout.

Midland put the contest away with two runs in the seventh and one in the ninth. In the seventh, Bill Hayes opened with a double to left, went to third on Rohn's bunt single and came in on Martin's fielder's choice which forced Rohn.

Jorgensen showing progress

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Doctors say Mike Jorgensen of the Texas Rangers, recovering from a head injury, may be released today from the intensive care unit and placed back in a private room, at Arlington Memorial Hospital.

Jorgenson was reported improving improving Sunday. "He is doing very well," said ICU nurse Mary Hide.

Jorgensen was hit in the head by a pitched ball one week ago. He was hospitalized Friday after suffering, headaches and dizziness.

Miss Hide said his condition had improved since Saturday night when the 30-year-old vetern was placed in intensive care. His condition remained "fair and sta-

CFA votes against football playoff

IRVING, Texas (AP) - By an overwhelming margin, the major universities that comprise the College Football Association voted Sunday not to support a National Collegiate Athletic Association proposal to hold a four-team national championship playoff after the bowl games.

The CFA's third annual meeting heard representatives of the Cotton, Orange and Sugar bowls predict that any kind of playoff would put the postseason bowls - there were 15 involving Division I-A teams last season — out of business.

Frank Broyles, athletic director and former football coach at the University of Arkansas and a member of the NCAA Extra-Events Committee which proposed the plan, called a national championship playoff "inevitable" and said it would provide "a tremendous surge of interest which is needed at this time in college football."

Of approximately 100 coaches, athletic directors, faculty representatives and conference commissioners in attendance, only five voted in favor of a playoff. The NCAA plan calls for four playoff teams to be selected after the bowl against a playoff, with only Vince Dooley of Georgia in favor. Fred Akers of Texas, once a playoff proponent, opposed it for fear it would ruin the bowl games. The bowls' major concerns are that they would be reduced to the equivalent of quarterfinal games by a playoff and their lucrative television contracts would suffer accordingly, as well as their live gate. Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, projected an increase in overall bowl revenues of 35 percent in the next five years and a "conservative" 80 percent in 10 years through stadium expansion, raised ticket prices and new TV pacts. But he said a playoff would slice current revenues from 25 to 60 percent. Holmes said the 30 teams in last year's 15 bowl games made more than

Field Scovell, exeutive director of the Cotton Bowl, said, "TV contracts aren't based on quarterfinal games."

Bill Ward of the Ornge Bowl said an elimintion setup would Change any bowl games "from a rewarding experience and teams left in the series.

IN A Saturday meeting, more than a dozen coaches voted. vacation enjoyed by the participating institutions to just an-

BROYLES, HOWEVER, said a playoff would boost college football TV ratings, which he said dropped 8 pecent during the 1978 regular season and 20 percent for the bowl games. He also said the extra events committee doesn't think a playoff would hurt the bowls.

He pointed out that Notre Dame and Houston, neither with a shot at the national championship as selected by The Associated Press, filled only about one-fourth of the Cotton Bowl on a miserable day last Jan. 1.

"If the winner had a chance for the playoffs, they would have had a full house," he said.

He said the revenues for three playoff games - two semifinals and the championship game - could equal that of the current 15 bowls. He called Jan. 1 - traditional date of the Cotton, Orange, Rose and Sugar bowls -"the No. 1 attraction in all sports."

The NCAA must approve any playoff plan at its convention next January.

Caps Dodgers whip

By The Associated Press Mike Zouras' two-run single highlighted a four-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday night to give the San Antonio Dodgers a 4-3 Texas League baseball victory over the Shreveport Captains. In other Texas League action, Tulsa beat El Paso, 6-3, and Midland defeated Jackson, 4-1.

Zouras' two-run single came after the Dodgers had scored two other runs in the ninth inning to erase a three-run Shreveport lead. Shreveport took a 3-0 lead on a three-runhomer by outfielder Mark Woodbrey. Jeff Albert, 1-1, was the winning pitcher. Pat Roy, 2-2, was the loser.

Rick Lisi had a two-run homer in the sixth inning and an RBI single in the seventh to pace the Tulsa Drillers to 6-3 victory over the El Paso Diablos. Dave Crutcher, 2-5, was the winning pitcher. Keith Comstock, 0-4, was the loser.

Carter gains revenge

the disappointment he felt when, as a junior college baseball player, the University of Arizona ignored

So when Carter saw a chance to get back at the Wildcats, he made the most of the opportunity. Entering the game in the sixth inning, Carter ignited two rallies with hits to help Arkansas come from behind to beat Arizona 10-3 in the second round of the College World Series Sunday night. The victory puts Arkansas, rated seventh nationally, into a Tuesday night game against Southwest Conference rival Texas, the nation's No. 1 team. The Razorbacks and Longhorns are the only unbeaten

"I went to junior college in Arizona and wanted to go to either Arizona or Arizona State," said Carter, a junior who plays right field and third base.

"I wrote to both of them, but I never got an answer. I really wanted to beat them (Arizona). It was kind of a personal vendetta."

WITH HIS team trailing 3-1, Carter started a five-run rally in the seventh inning with a single. He then led off the eighth with a double that launched a four-run uprising. "Carter is so good and his attitude is super," said Coach Norm DeBriyn, whose team also had to come from behind to beat Pepperdine 5-4 in the first round "We like to have him in there. Every chance we get to get him in the lineup, we do. Texas, which has beaten Arkansas four times in five games this year, set up the showdown with the

SPORTS SCRATCHPAD Lipscomb, High Point

A week after the NAIA World Series began, 1977 champion David Lipscomb College and High Point College fight it out tonight for the 1979 title in Nashville. Sunday night, High Point's Danny Wilbur singled across the winning run as the Panthers scored four runs in the top of the 13th inning, then held on to defeat Point Park College 10-6 to win a spot in tonight's championship match. Wilbur's single and Jeff Kennedy's bases-loaded double keyed the big inning for High Point, of High Point, N.C. Defending NAIA champion Emporia State of Kansas was eliminated this year in playoff action leading up to the tournament. Aged prospectors still swear 'we're gonna strike it rich'

JEWEL BOX MINE, Calif. - The two partners were walking across the open desert headed for their diggin's, she with a shovel over her shoulder, he with a pick over his.

'We're gonna strike it rich before we die. I've never been more certain. It's gonna happen," mused the younger partner, Pearl Smock, 73, as they plodded along.

"Money doesn't mean a damn to me. High livin' doesn't mean a damn," allowed Pearl's partner, Glen Deyo, 84. "But I think we're onto somethin' big out here.'

Controversy swirls about Lincoln Memorial

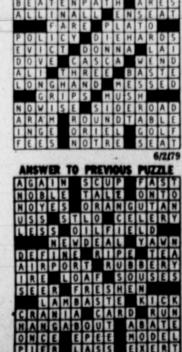

Except for Boney and the AIA, few voices have been raised in defense of the Lincoln Memorial. 30-60s latest young executive climbers

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You're 30 years old and making $30,000 a year, a fast track combo you feel justifies focusing your sights on a distant but realistic goal, the presidency of your

Think again! Take your eyes off the future long enough to look around you. No matter that the 30-30 combination once almost assured you a shot at the title. The odds are against you now. These are the 1970s

"Big business today has an astoundingly large number of managers in their 30s who make not just their age, in terms of thousands, but double it," says Prof. Eugene Jennings, an authority on the subject.

Replacing the 30-30s as candidates for the big job, his studies show, are the 30-60s, or executives still in their 30s who are earning twice their age, in thousands of dollars.

Jennings, an adviser to corporate top executives, author of numerous books on corporate life, and professor of management at Michigan State University, has spent years studying executive mobility.

Out of his studies have come many revelations that changed our views of corporations, but few findings have had greater significance to young executives than his interpretation of the 30-30s and the 30-60s.

In the 1950s, he observes, 30-30s occasioally could be found, but at best they measured three in 100 managers. By the second half of the 1960s their number had risen to 15 in 100.

The 30-60s have developed a similar pattern in the current decade, the professor's findings indicate. Occasionally found in the early 1960s, when they averaged two or three per 100, they now account for about 10 of every 100 exectuves in our largest industrial corporations

Salary growth followed similar lines, he found. The 30-30s began at average salaries of $9,000, and some quadrupled their incomes in 10 years. The 30-60s began at $14,000 and multiplied at the same rate

Why is business willing to pay the youngest of the brightest such sa-

It begins at the top, Jennings says.

"Presidents' salaries have doubled since the 1960s, and salaries of the youngest and best are geared to the top. They've always been on a separate salary track.

The route also has been cleared of competitive clutter. "We are seeing a lot of young managers opt for immobiity, because of family and other considerations, leaving the track open for other executives.

The track is being cleared further down the line too, with the forced retirement of executives who might otherwise clog the routes to the top. "Younger executives spot their openings and move in," he says.

Finally, Jennings comments, industry has developed more profit centers, and these require general man-

"The early arrivals of the 1970s, the 30-60s, unabashedly embrace the American dream," the professor said. "They seek and find these jobs." There's nothing shy about them.

"I have talked to many 30-60s, met them in seminars, counseled their companies about utilizing them wisely, and one thing stands out: to them, the ladder is for climbing," he said.

Confident and knowing their goals, "they sacrifice on the climb to a general managership, and they don't get sidetracked. They avoid jobs that might be challenges in themselves but which get them nowhere."

They don't close off options, either. While most are homegrown, that is, employed and developed by one company, few fail to maintain an up-todate biographical data sheeet, and most develop contacts with major executive search firms," Jennings Competition being the game, even the 30-60 must glance back, where he'll find bearing down on him an even newer set of early arrivals, freshly minted MBAs, still in their 20s, earning $30,000.

Despite the competition, Jennings encourages 30-30s to take heart. "Though one of the pack, having lost first claim on the presidency, you must be patient. You still can win. It

The Boeing B-17 was once the pride of the Army Air Corps. With a scantily clad pinup on her nose she flew off to bomb the Germans in 1942. Despite Luftwaffle fighter pilots and flak gunners, the Belle and her crew finished 25 missions over occupied France in the days when bomber crews' life expectancy was measured in days. She and they flew back to the United States to sell war bonds and for a reunion of her pilot, Capt. Robert Morgan, with Margaret Polk of Memphis, the original Memphis Belle.

But World War II fame was brief, and the Belle finished her flying days as a trainer and squadron hack. In 1946, someone recognized the Belle awaiting the smelter's furnace at Altus, Okla. An anonymous donor provided the $350 needed to rescue her and fly her to Memphis to serve as a war memorial. The Belle was mounted on a peda-

Chiseling yet another row of state names into the memorial, or even just the names Alaska and Hawaii, for no other reason than to note that Alaska and Hawaii are now states is not only absurd, according to former AIA board member Leslie N. but would "desecrate this magnificent memorial." The Wilmington, N.C., architect, whose position was officially adopted by the AIA in 1976, said, "The memorial is a work of art. Boney said Hawaii and Alaska "don't need to have their names on the Lincoln Memorial to prove they're part of the union." There are perhaps dozens of buildings around the nation's capital that list state names, including the Library of Congress, says Boney. "Are we to change them

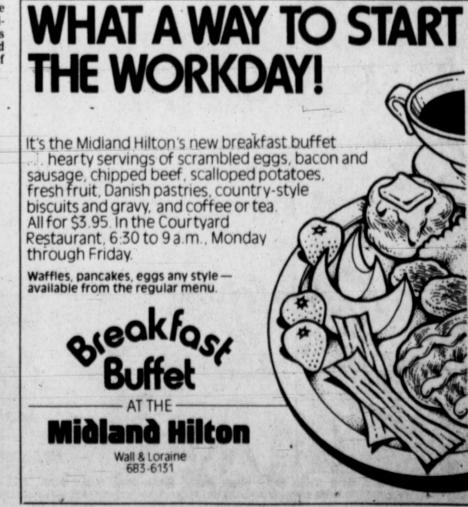

Alaska already has asked to change the Washington Monument, where the inside is lined with memorial stones from every state and territory except Alaska. A Park Service spokesman said Alaskan officials inquired about two years ago if they could put an Alaskan stone in the Washington Monument.

"We were receptive to the idea, and sent them the dimensions and kind of stone we might accept," said Park Service official Joe Ronsisvalle.

The 195 Washington Monument stones were donated between 1848 and 1936 by states, cities, foreign countries, Sunday school classes, firemen, Indian tribes and even individuals from as far away as China. A moratorium on such stones ended the odd

Pope John Paul II visits homeland's holiest shrine

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II came to Poland's holiest shrine today, upbraided the Communist government for denying the late Pope Paul VI permission to visit, and assailed what he called "the great moral threats" to human rights. It was the second time in two days he defied Eastern Europe's Communist leaders.

"He was the pope that did so much for the normalization of the life of the church in Poland, particularly with regard to the present arrangement of the territories to the west and to the north," John Paul II said of Paul VI, who sought twice to come to Poland but never received permission.

"He was the pope of our millen-nium. It was for the millenium (of the Polish church in 1966) that he wanted to be here as a pilgrim together with the sons and daughters of the Polish nation."

On the third day of his historic pilgrimage to his Communist homeland, the pontiff celebrated Mass at the Shrine of Mary at the hilltop Jasna Gora Monastery, the symbol of Polish Catholicism, and prayed:

"Mother of the church, grant that the church may enjoy freedom and peace in fulfilling her saving mission and that to this end she become ma-

The pope said that justice and peace can only be protected through a respect "for the rights of peoples and of nations" and not be solved through "hatred, war and self-destruction. The pontiff, clad in glistening white robes, and skull cap, walked to a red-canopied platform looking out over a vast field filled with the faithful as a choir sang hymns.

On Sunday the pope defied Eastern Europe's Communist rulers and their long campaign to promote atheism and hailed the Roman Catholics of the Soviet Bloc nations for preserving their faith and unity.

the pontiff said as he celebrated Mass at the cathedral in Gniezno, Poland's first capital."I greet the unity of Catholics; I thank God that after 1,000 years it still lasts, untouched by time," he said earlier after celebrating Mass for a throng of half a million in a field outside Gniezno, in western
