Energy leads Carter's talks with Ohira

TOKYO (AP) - President Carter, his wife and daughter both stricken with a stomach virus, discussed new ideas for dealing with the world energy problem today with Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

Carter and Ohira publicly described U.S.-Japanese relations as uniquely close, but apparently reached no agreement on energy in their nearly two-hour private meeting

American sources, who asked not to be identified, said the two made no attempt to forge a common front.

The sources said the two hope instead to reach a consensus on proposals when they get together Thursday for a two-day economic summit with the leaders of France, Britain, West Germany, Canada and Italy.

The U.S. officials said Carter an Ohira spent more than half their time talking about energy and its impact on poor nations.

They also talked about ways to ease the plight of thosands of refugees fleeing Vietnam, and they ageed to set up a consultative group of American and Japanese businessmen and financiers to present recommendations on long-term solutions to economic frictions between the two na-

Carter went so far as to say the two peoples didn't act toward each other like nations at all, but "almost like members of one extended family.'

Carter and Ohira made their remarks during an exchange of toasts following a business session and a formal luncheon today. Earlier, Carter was welcomed in regal fashion by Emperor Hirohito. At an evening banquet honoring Carter, the emperor expressed his "ardent hope" that the president's visit would deepen mutual understanding and cooperation that would lead to "the enhancement of the welfare of mankind." .Carter responded: 'I am confident that together we can build a world in which all people can live in peace.

Carter seemed quite vigorous, jogging and swimming before the start of official functions.

He later paid an afternoon visit to the Meiji shrine, and wrote in the guest book: "Jimmy Carter - for peace and friendship among all peo-

But wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy, 11, cancelled public appearances because of a stomach virus. After sleeping much of the afternoon, they were reported to be feeling better and Mrs. Carter attended the emperor's banquet in the evening.

They apparently caught the virus in Washington from Carter's daughterin-law Judy and two grandchildren, who had been visiting at the White

The relatives "were suffering from a similar virus when the Carters left for Japan on Saturday morning," said Mrs. Carter's press secretary Mary

At the luncheon, Ohira said no two nations so different had ever enjoyed "an interchange of so great scope and substance" as the United States and saying "I doubt that there has ever been two countries so different...but still bound so closely together.

In his toast Carter echoed that,

Carter said the economic summit starting Thursday, which will be dominated by discussion of the price and scarcity of oil, "might very well be the most important economic summit conference ever held."

Carter is expected to seek agreements by the seven nations to curb their oil imports, cease running up oil prices by bidding against each other on spot markets, and develop alternative energy sources such as synthetic

Sandinistas take third major city

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -President Anastasio Somoza vowed to fight on as Sandinista guerrillas captured their third major city and continued a two-week-long occupation of eastern Managua's slums despite heavy aerial bombing.

Somoza told the nation Sunday he was open to initiatives from members of the Organization of American States who "have a true interest in a peaceful solution" to Nicaragua's violence. He he did not mention the OAS call for his resignation, but high government sources said his speech could be read as an emphatic rejec-

The sources said Somoza told national guard commanders by shortwave radio after the OAS resolution Saturday that he had decided to "continue the fight and beat the enemy.

Shortly afterward the guard fled from Masaya, 20 miles southeast of Managua. Sandinista guerrillas showed reporters the burned-out garrison Sunday and told them rebel sharpshooters had replaced guard snipers in the towers of the adjacent tled up in their garrisons in several other cities, including Esteli, straddling the Pan American Highway 98 miles north of Managua; Chinandega, a major city 85 miles northwest of Managua, and Matagalpa, 84 miles northeast of the capital.

With the rebel victories have come increasing reports of heavy guard casualties and some desertions. Exact figures are not available. But reliable sources said two guard captains and a lieutenant have taken refuge in the Colombian Embassy, and that Lt. Col. The sources said there has been little change in positions near the border, but the guard was flying 90 percent of its missions on the southern front and has driven back rebel attempts there to push northward with heavy artillery and aerial bombardment Explosions rocked the capital's eastern slums Sunday night and huge fires lit the skies, presumably touched off by 250-pound bombs dropped from helicopters for the second straight day.

By The Associated Press

Police cleared the streets of Levittown, Pa., early today after a spontaneous protest against high fuel prices and short fuel supplies turned into a two-day melee that left dozens of persons injured.

Bristol Township Police Sgt. Donald Peterson said a large truck rig tried to run down police officers who were clearing one of the town's neighborhoods on Sunday.

More than 180 people were arrested in the suburban Philadelphia community during the protest, which began Saturday when 1,000 disgruntled motorists angry at the closing of a service station joined protesting truckers to block a major intersection.

The protest flared again Sunday as teen-agers swelled the ranks of protesters who moved from one intersection to another, eluding police and snarling traffic.

More than 80 people were treated for injuries, including some police officers, over the two days of violence. Hospital emergency rooms were pressed into service as police armed with dogs and billy clubs moved in to clear blocked streets Sunday. One man was treated for a gunshot wound in his arm, storefront windows were smashed and two service stations severely vandalized. Firefighters battling a blaze in an abandoned automobile were pelted with rocks and beer cans. Isolated groups of demonstrators continued to throw rocks at police into the night, but police said calm was restored early today. "They just all turned animal," said one police officer. Fireworks were set off, adding to the confusion, which the one officer called "a circus.

Two men were arrested on assault and weapons charges as an estimated 200 police were called in to clear the Troopers said truckers, whose protest has been marred by violence since it began more than two weeks ago, generally were not involved in the violence on Sunday, and blamed most of it on young people.

"There are truckers involved, but it isn't truckers who are doing it," said state police Sgt. Stanley Farnish. "But it does deal with the fuel short-

Elsewhere, some truckers began dismantling the blockades that have squeezed fuel and food supplies to a trickle in many areas, but others vowed to fight on as violence flared

Georgia truckers, worried that some striking drivers might defect, vowed to increase blockades and shutdowns around the state.

Gov. Bill Clements' appeal for a short-sleeve, no-tie summer isn't likely to make the apparel markets of Paris or New York take notice. But it did make a "stitch of sense" for Dallas novelty shirt designers Bruce Hardy and Holly Boggess. Boggess models the result. (AP Laserphoto)

Israeli minister won't negotiate

JERUSALEM (AP) - Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, an outspoken critic of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's hard line toward Egypt and the Palestinians of the West Bank, has quit the Israeli team negotiating with Egypt on Palestinian au-

Meanwhile, Lebanese officials in the coastal city of Sidon said Israeli border gunners were blasting Palestinian guerrilla strongholds in five southern Lebanese villages and first reports indicated one girl was killed and five persons wounded. The officials said the shelling was continuing at midmorning.

There was no immediate Israeli comment on the report, but the shelling appeared to be a reprisal for an Arab attack on Israel's northern Galilee earlier today. A military command spokesman said Arab gunners fired.several artillery shells over the border. No casualties were reported.

A terror bombing in Tel Aviv Sunday morning triggered Israeli air raids in southern Lebanon Sunday afternoon in which one man was reported killed and eight wounded.

No official reason was given for Weizman's resignation from the sixman negotiating committee. It was announced Sunday, on the eve of resumption of the autonomy negotiationsand came amid much press speculation that Weizman may quit the Cabinet because of differences with

The pragmatic Weizman developed the warmest relations of any Israeli leader with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat during the 18 months of bargaining before the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty last-March in Washington

One of the few doves in Begin's conservative government, Weizman reportedly threatened to resign several times during the peace talks because of the prime minister's doctrinaire policies.

Last month, he and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan argued against the Israeli policy drafted for talks with Egypt on autonomy for the 1.1 million Palestinians living on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Weizman and Dayan claimed the proposals were too hardline and specific to be a realistic opening position. After a lengthy Cabinet controversy, the policy was classified as a set of principles instead of a hard-and-fast position before the talks opened on May 25.

Weizman also fought the establishment of a new Jewish settlement near the West Bank city of Nablus, a center of Palestinian nationalism. When the Cabinet voted earlier this month to go ahead despite sharp U.S. and Egyptian criticism, Weizman refused until the last minute to sign papers authorizing the seizure of Arab land for the settlement.

Israel's Supreme Court has temporarily halted work on the outpost and ordered the government to explain why Arab land must be taken for it.

Asked how Weizman's resignation would affect the autonomy talks, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, chief of the Israeli negotiating team, replied: "I wouldn't say it would affect it too much." Weizman will be ready to assist on questions of defense and security, he added.

Dayan also will be absent from the bargaining table today. He underwent surgery Sunday for removal of an intestinal growth and was reported in good condition.

The talks, entering their third round, have snagged over Egyptian demands that the negotiators take up the status of East Jerusalem, a predominantly Arab area annexed by Israel after it was captured in the 1967 war, and the question of Jewish settlements in the occupied territories, issues Israel refuses to discuss. The agenda for today's session had just one subject for discussion: the agenda for the following session. On Sunday, Israel unleashed its air force against Palestinian guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon only six hours after a terrorist bomb exploded in Tel Aviv's central bus station during the morning rush hour on the first day of the Israeli work week.

The explosion killed two Arabs who apparently were on their way to plant the bomb when it went off prematurely, Israeli officials said.

Within minutes of the blast, Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization announced in Beirut that it was responsible. Later, the PLO said a 35-minute Israeli air raid on coastal villages south of Sidon killed one man and wounded eight other persons, most of them women and children. Beirut's government radio reported at least 25 casualties.

Beirut radio said eight planes took part in the raid, the second in a week and the third this month.

O'Donnell man dies today in apparent hit-and-run

LAMESA - A 22-year-old O'Donnell man died early today after being involved in an apparent hit-and-run incident shortly after midnight, according to a spokesman with the Department of Public Safety here.

Rogelio Perales was found along Highway 87 near the Lamesa city limit about 1 a.m.

A motorist from Lubbock on his way through Lamesa saw the man and called the DPS, the spokesman Perales died at 2: 45 a.m. today in a Lamesa hospital.

Officers found the man's car keys in his pocket, the spokesman said, and later located his car on a Lamesa street. When officers tried to start the car, it was out of gas.

The DPS spokesman said officers today were investigating some leads as to who might have hit Perales.

NATO leader escapes bombing

Gen. Alexander M. Haig

CASTEAU, Belgium (AP) - Gen. Alexander M. Haig, the NATO military commander, escaped unharmed today from a powerful explosion that injured three of his guards and damaged his car as he was driving from his home in Obourg to his office in Casteau, an official source said. A motorcyclist was reported arrested not far from the site.

A spokesman for Haig, who is due to retire Friday, said the black Mercedes Benz carrying two Belgian poli-cemen and one U.S. security guard landed on its roof and was completely wrecked by the explosion that apparently was touched off by a land mine detonated by remote control. The guards, who were not identified, were only slightly injured, however, he added, and had already left the hospital. He said Haig proceeded to his office after the explosion and was working as usual. Haig's car had its exhaust and trunk damaged but could still operate. Haig's car was in front of the guards' car and police said thee appeared to be a second escort car preceding Haig. Authorities at first reported only tw security guards were hurt.

Belgian police, meanwhile, said two men riding motorcycles had been spotted at the site of the explosion, and the Belgian news agency Belga said one of them was arrested in Ath, about 12 miles away. However, NATO officials said they had no idea so far of who was behind the explosion, and no group claimed responsibility immediately.

The incident took place at about 8:30 a.m. near the village of Obourg where Haig lives, as he was being driven to his nearby office. Obourg and Casteau are a few miles apart.

Casteau, site of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe, is 31 miles south of Brussels, near the expressway to Paris. Haig, 55, is retiring after 31 years of active military service.

He commanded allied and U.S. forces in Europe for 41/2 years. He has been considered among Republican candidates for the U.S. pres-

Gromyko urges support of SALT II

MOSCOW (AP) - Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared today "it would be impossible to reopen negotiations" if the U.S. Senate refuses to ratify the just-signed SALT II arms limitation treaty. But he also said the pact can be verified, that the Soviets will abide by it and urged doubting senators to support it. At a news conference, Gromyko switched from Russian to English to underscore his point for Americans. It was the first flat statement by the Soviets that they would not return to the bargaining table if the treaty is not ratified.

"I tell you frankly it is impossible to resume negotiations," he said, his voice rising. "It would be end of negotiations-end 'No matter what amendments would be made, it would be impossible to reopen negotiations. Fantastic

Addressing one issue that especially troubles the U.S. Senate as it prepares to debate the treaty, Gromyko said the pact is adequately verifiable, and that in any case the Soviet Union will not violate its terms.

"It is not our habit to violate international treaties and agreements," he said, again speaking in Russian.

"The sides have agreed in principle : that the verification must be carried out by national means.'

Church undecided on SALT II treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Commttee says he has not yet made up his mind whether to support the newly signed Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, also said Sunday that he is not certain whether the treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union will need reservations attached to win Senate approval.

Soviet and Carter administration officials have warned that amendments could endanger the pact called SALT II.

But Sen. Jake Garn, a leading opponent of the treaty, indicated it would have to be amended "severely" to win "I favor a treaty that will limit both sides severely. This treaty does not do that," said the Utah Republican in an interview on CBS' "Face the Na-"I think this treaty must be amended severely," he said, adding that if it is not amended, "it should be rejected

While acknowledging that the Soviets have said amendments could

Man arrested on rape charge

A 17-year-old Midland man was arrested for the alleged aggravated rape of a 10-year-old girl early Sunday after she reportedly identified him from a police photograph, officials said

Blaisdale Young, 422 E. Spruce Ave., was arrested shortly after a warrant for his arrest was issued, police said.

Young was charged Sunday before Peace Justice Robert Pine, who set bond at $100,000.

Police said that, according to the girl, a man entered through the bedroom window of her home while she and her 8-year-old sister were alone. The man held a knife to the girl's throat and forced her to submit to him, she told police.

thought the Kremlin would send representatives back to the bargaining table to renegotiate an amended

But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told a news conference in Moscow today that "it would be impossible to reopen negotiations" on the treaty if the Senate fails to ratify

"No matter what amendments would be made, it would be impossible to reopen negotiations," he said in English to underscore his point for Americans.

Church, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he would "strongly support" ratification if he was convinced the pact met two conditions - both countries were treated evenly and compliance with its terms could be verified.

He added: . "I am not prepared to say now whether it will be necessary to add reservations or understand-

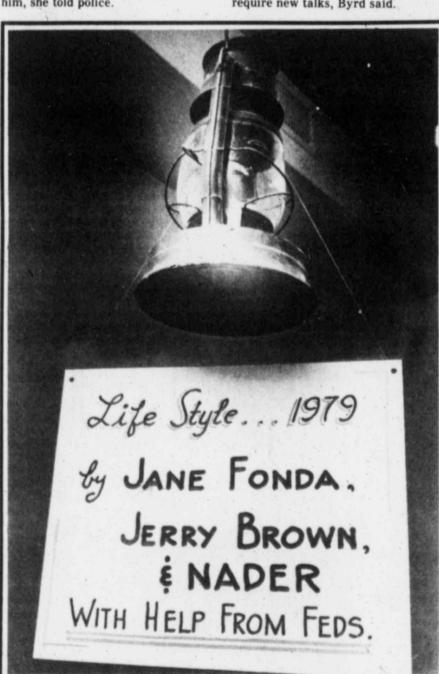

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday that he will fly to Moscow this week to discuss the Senate's role in ratifying SALT II.

Congressional sources, who asked not to be named, said Byrd wants to get some idea what the reaction of Soviet leaders would be to any reservations and understandings that might be tacked on to a ratification resolution. A two-thirds vote of the Senate is required for ratification.

Specifically, the sources said, the West Virginia Democrat plans to ask about including a stipulation on the number of Backfire bombers that the Soviet Union could produce annual-

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is said to have agreed to limit the number of Backfire bombers to 30 a year, but that ceiling has not been mentioned in the treaty package published by the Kremlin

Direct amendments to the treaty would require it to be returned to the bargaining table, but some reservations and understandings would not require new talks, Byrd said.

In the future, our lighting needs may have to be filled in an unsophisticated fashion should restrictive energy policies prevail, according to one Midlander with a sense of humor.

There may be a kerosene lamp in your future

At least one Midlander foresees a possible return to "oil lamps and

Primitive lighting and transportation means may have to be rediscovered, he feels, if obstacles continue to get in the way of nuclear, solar and fossil fuel energy development

"We'll be back to this lamp if that type of thinking prevails," businessman Hank Avery said in his lamp and sign-decorated office at 410 N. Loraine St.

Avery had seen an oil lamp in one of his storage rooms and he lettered a sign for visitors to enjoy.

A blunder Avery said he considers particularly bad is the postponement and possible cancellation of the Sohio pipeline construction project, which would have carried Alaskan oil from southern California to

Reaction to the Three Mile Island, Pa., leak of radioactivity in March has placed nuclear energy in a precarious light and an increasing storm of controversy, but Avery pointed out there was no widespread outcry to scrap cars, planes or trains when those devices experienced their first accidents.

"We're retrogressing unless we address ourselves to the problem," he said of the energy crisis. "We'll let Jerry Brown tell us about nuclear energy and stand in the way of oil production," he said.

But it is not just Gov. Brown of California that has Avery concerned. 'Unless the present philosophy of American thinking changes from the White House to the outhouse," we could all be in serious trouble someday when it comes to the energy situation, he suggested.

Reply to refugee comment

EDITOR'S NOTE: In Sunday's Midland Reporter-Telegram the weekly column, "Editor's Report," conducted by William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst Newspapers, concentrated on the theme, "A Crime Against Humanity." It spoke of the plight of hundreds of thousands of refugees from Vietnam, the "Boat People" and others who have died, or will die, if the United Nations does not increase

Following is the reply from Dr. Kurt Waldheim, secretary general of the United Nations:

"As I have already made clear, I am deeply concerned over the increasingly tragic situation of the refugees in Southeast Asia. The United Nations, largely through the activities of the high commissioner for refugees, has made major efforts to deal with this problem. We have already succeeded in resettling over 185,000 Indochinese refugees and in providing food and medical assistance to thousands more in camps within Southeast Asia.

'Regretfully there are still several hundred thousands who have not yet been resettled and the number is increasing daily. Clearly, the present situation demands a far greater effort on the part of the international community and nations individually. To this end I am actively consulting with a number of governments to determine what additional measures can be taken on an urgent basis.

'In particular, I am considering the early convening of an international meeting to seek a substantial increase in possibilities for resettlement and financing of the program. I welcome all proposals that may contribute to a solution of this problem which involves such extensive human suffering. This is clearly a crisis situation demanding emergency measures and I am willing to do everything I can to help.

New violence reported near Ugandan capital

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - The fiveday-old cabinet of Ugandan President Godfrey Binaisa reported fresh antigovernment violence in and around Kampala, the capital, today, including a mob attack on a police station and a personal assault on Defense Minister Yoweri Museveni.

Internal Affairs Minister Paul Muwanga blamed an underground movement he said was opposed to the establishment of democracy. In a broadcast by Uganda government radio, monitored in Nairobi, he appealed to Ugandans to heed a ban on demonstrations Residents of Kampala said there appeared to be wide support for a general strike called by supporters of Yusufu Lule, whom Binaisa replaced as president on Wednesday. They said shops were closed, few persons were at their jobs and streets were desert-The radio said the attack on Muse-

over the weekend told Ugandans to stay away from work Monday. Larger groups gathered Sunday night and, the broadcast said, crowds blocked roads this morning and stoned persons taking food to mar-

The radio identified a leader of the demonstrations as Lameka Ntambi, a pro-Lule businessman belonging to Lule's Baganda tribe. It said the outbreaks were continuing although Ntambi has been in police custody for three days and has signed a statement asszrting that he would not cause further trouble

Three persons were killed and about 50 injured last week when Lule's tribal supporters took to the streets to protest his ouster by the National consultative Council, the policy arm of the ruling Uganda National Liberation Front: The council complained that Lule had failed to obtain approval for two rounds of cabinet appointments this month, and was seeking dictatorial powers.

The violence broke out two months after Ugandan exiles, split among more than 20 factions ranging from Bagandan monarchists to lefists joined forces to expel dictator Idi Amin. Tanzanian troops supplied after Amin invaded Tanzania in October did most of the fighting and stayed on as Uganda's main security

Up to 20,000 persons, mostly Baganda, marched in Kampala on Thursday, calling for the reinstatement of Lule, 67, a former teacher, and the removal of Binaisa, 59, a lawyer. Binaisa later denied accusations that he secretly favors the return to Uganda of exiled former President Milton Obote, a socialist who abolished the Baganda's regional monarchy in 1966, four years after independence from

Although he has been away for eight years during Amin's rule, Obote is generally believed to be Uganda's most powerful politician.

Binaisa, like Lule, is a Baganda but he served for a time as Obote's attorney general.

Duplicate bridge tourney draws big turnout

One of the largest turnouts in recent years was on hand Sunday for the final day of the Tall City Sectional Duplicate Bridge Tournament in the Midland Hilton, with 56 four-member teams competing in the Swiss Team of Four event.

El Monte AC

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

The El Monte, Calif., Aquatics Club set a goal prior to the start of the Allison West Texas Invitational swimming meet and there were no ifs. ands or buts involved.

Simply, they wanted to take the team championship back home to California with them.

And that's exactly what they'll be doing when they return to the Golden West. EMAC, proving there is strength in numbers by placing nearly a person in every event, Sunday at Alamo Park pool captured the team crown with 1,005.5 points. They led wire-to-wire in the three-day event.

The Hurricanes of Miami, Fla., staged a great title charge Sunday but fell short to finish second with 885.5 points. Starlit of Virginia was third with 379 followed by DADS of Houston with 286.5. Ft. Worth with 269 and City of Midland Swim Team with 268.

Next was NIKE of Rosemead, Calif., with 258 followed by Dallas with 253, Albuquerque with 191, Canadian Dolphins with 153.5. El Paso Aqua Posse with 137, Odessa Aquatic Club with 128 and The Woodlands Swim Team with 71.

Helping COM finish strongly were Andrew Jordan and Gretchen Koch. Jordan won his second event of the meet with a 1: 24.02 West Texas record in boy's 11-12 100 breaststroke. Jordan added second place finishes in the 50 backstroke and the 200 freestyle. Koch won the girl's 13-14 100 back and was third in the 100 butterfly.

Other COM final day placers were Sam Perry, fifth in boy's 10-under 50 back, Carrie Mayes, fourth in girl's senior 200 breast with a West Texas record of 2:51.60, Sid Glenn, fourth in boy's senior 200 individual medley, and Karl Schmidt, fifth in boy's 11-12 50 fly.

Also, COM placed in several relays. They were fifth in girl's 13-14 400 medley, fourth in girl's 10-under 200 medley, fourth in boy's 10-under 200 medley and fifth in both girl's senior and boy's senior 400 medleys.

Top performances Sunday were

Dallas in boy's 13-14 1500 free.

Spinks, 25, a product of the St. Louis ghetto and former world and Olympic champion, answered the opening bell Sunday night with a furious barrage of punches and then wound up bouncing on the canvas, the victim of a vicious right-hand attack.

A series of terrific overhand rights by the South African suprised and stunned Spinks as he was still trying to show he was unaffected and unfrightened by his opponent's hammer-like punches.

'I asked the Lord to help me in this fight, and I want to thank him," Coetzee said. "I must tell the people the Lord answered my prayers.

Spinks' defeat by a first-round technical knockout could mean a long period of inactivity and little money. But Coetzee's convincing win made him the am.

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) - Gerrie Coetzee, fourth South African fighter to get a world champion ship fight and, possibly, the first ever to gain a heavyweight title

Coetzee will fight John Tate of the United States in September for the World Boxing Association crown expected to be abandoned by Muhammad Ali. The fight will probably be in South Africa, according to promoter Bob Arum.

Tate, who came here to see who his next opponent would be, said he was unimpressed by the South African blitz.

However, he was one of the few not impressed by the awesome power of Coetzee, who got a big boost from reports that the championship fight could be staged in South Africa before a crowd of 100,000 and a purse certainly higher than the $105,000 he won. in Monte Carlo

"I was in good shape, but I really did not expect this," the victor said. "I thank Spinks for having proved to myself and to the world how good I

Billy is back and so is Bronx Zoo

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) - It has taken less than a week for the New York Yankees to once again become a reallive soap opera, something approximating the so-called Bronx Zoo that existed from Reggie Jackson's arrival in 1977 to Billy Martin's departure last July Martin, cowboy boots and all, is back in the saddle, having replaced Bob Lemon - the man who replaced him. With the Yankees, it couldn't be any other way: already the two-time world champions are cloaked in con-

-Is George riding to the rescue? -Will the morrow bring the final parting, peace at last or just one more in the never-ending series of events that would make the most turbulent soap opera seem dull by compari-

TAKING THE questions in order, the answers are maybe, maybe, maybe, maybe and stay tuned.

Both Jackson and Yankee officials declined to comment Sunday on reports that the sidelined slugger has asked to be traded. And General Manager Cedric Tallis said that "no players have been mentioned in any trades at this point."

Meanwhile, Martin continued to make it a point to praise Jackson, saying the Yankees "need Reggie's bat because Reggie's a great player.' But Jackson, obviously choosing his words carefully, seemed down in the Asked if Jackson had requested a trade, Tallis said, "Anything of that nature is for Reggie to answer.'

Asked if he would trade himself if he were general manager, Jackson said, "With all the unrest and discomfort, I would have to analyze what's best for the club. Does that get me off the hook?

The Yankees did confirm that Jackson's name, along ith six others, appeared on the American League waiver list last Tuesday. That was the day Martin returned from 11 months in exile to resume the managerial position he vacated almost a year ago after calling Jackson "a born liar" and owner George Steinbrenner. "convicted" for illegal campaign contributions.

THE ASSOCIATED Press learned the other Yankees on whom waivers were asked were center fielder Mickey Rivers, veteran pitchers Catfish Hunter and Jim Kaat, long-time outfielder Roy White, utility infielder Fred Stanley and rookie outfielder Darryl Jones

However, both Tallis and club President Al Rosen said the waiver request was a "routine" baseball ma-

"Just a formality," Tallis said. 'They were the only players on whom we could ask waivers at this time."

MARTIN SAID he was "not out to hurt Reggie Jackson in any way. I have no animosity toward the guy. I can hardly wait until he comes back so I can use his bat. I think Reggie likes me and I know I like him. There's not a person in the world I hate. There's no hate in my heart.

"He might be a little concerned because of the run-ins we had. I can understand that. We've talked three or four times and he seems relaxed now. I don't think we'll have one bit of a problem. When he comes back and plays, he'll know he's wanted. There's no tension on my part.'

"Me, either," said Jackson, who has been on the disabled list for three weeks with a calf injury.

"Is everything fine?" Jackson was asked.

"Yeah," he said ... softly.

"Really?" "What can I say? I answered your question, right?' Someone wanted to know if Jackson thought it odd that he was placed on waivers - no matter how routine while Martin was saying again and again how important he is to the team.

Weekend fights

DENVER - Eric Sedillo, Arvada, Colo., stopped Cookie Wallace, Dallas, I. heavyweights.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Sugar Ray Leonard, 151, Palmer Park, Md., knocked out Tony Chiaverini, 153, Kansas City, Mo., MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Gerrie Coetzee, South Africa, knocked out Leon Spinks, St.Louis, 1, heavyweights.

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

Sports fans in general and fight fans in particular throughout the United States were able to tune in their television sets Sunday and watch Leon Spinks, the former heavyweight champion, fight Gerrie Coetzee.

But Friday night, only those on a two-million set cable hookup or those who wanted to pay at a theater could watch Larry Holmes, a current mostly the current - heavyweight champion and the great Robert Duran.

The three U.S. networks refused to buy Holmes' defense against Mike Weaver, declaring Weaver an unworthy opponent. It should be noted that the nation's newspapers, while not in agreement over whether Weaver was a worthy opponent, were unanimous in not giving him a chance.

The networks would have bought the 10-round title fight between Duran, the former lightweight champion, and Carlos Palomino, a former World Boxing Council welterweight champion, but they wanted it alore Promoter Don King would not sel it without the Holmes fight.

So Friday night television viewers watched a movie on ABC and reruns of "Dallas" on CBS and "The Edlie Capra Mysteries" on NBC. "People like to watch things twice," said an NBC spokesman.

WELL, A LOT of people probably would have liked to watch Duran's great effort in outpointing Palomino and Holmes' gutsy 12th-round sopping of an equally gutsy Weaver. The challenger came very close to becoming the WBC heavyweight champion in a scenario that would have paled Rocky Balboa's movie climb to the

So, disgruntled fans got a chance for TV action Sunday. ABC shoved unbeaten welterweight Sugar Ray Leonard, who has a contract vith ABC, against Tony Chiaverini in Las Vegas, while NBC aired former heavyweight champ Spinks against Coetzee from San Remo, Italy.

What the fans got couldn't make up for what they missed. Leonard, clearly ahead, won whn Chiaverini, who was not knocked down, did no come out for the fifth round, and kept alive his World Boxing Association welterweight title bid against Wilfredo Bentez scheduled for Dec. 1. Coetzee, an unbeaten South African, knocked Spinks down three times and stopped him at 2:03 of the first round. Neither fight was nearly as interesting as the taped Holmes-Weaver action will be when it is shown next Sunday on ABC.

WHAT IS network's television's role in boxing? That has never been satisfactorily answered and it probably never will be.

TV is criticized for being a matchmaker. In a sense it is - ABC turned its back on Holmes vs. Alfio Righetti or Holmes vs. Scott LeDoux. It would not turn its back on Muhammad Ali vs. the neighborhood butcher.

But television is big business and pays big money for programming, TV networks refused to buy Holmes which draws big money in advertising. It costs the print media nothing except coverage expenses for a fight and newspapers are not affected commercially by a bad fight.

> Indirectly, Ali has to shoulder some of the blame. He has commanded multimillion-dollar purses from TV and has delivered prime ratings in prime time. No other fighter has Ali's appeal, though there are several heavyweight who could beat the aging Ali now

> IT'S TIME for fighters and their managers and their promoters to face the fact that they could price themselves out of business, that they might have to fight for less and more often

- that the best marriage of television and boxing is the sports anthologies on weekend afternoons. The fighters can get decent pay and good exposure and the networks don't get as badly burned by a short fight or badly nriticized by a bad one.

Lightning - new source of power?

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

WENDOVER, Utah — Robert Golka threw a couple of switches in the vast darkened hangar and — POW! — the building lit up like high noon on a sunny day.

Lighting bolts danced off the inside of the roof, sizzling, crackling and flashing eerily from a 20-foot-high coil.

"We're OK, so long as we stand our distance from the tower," Golka reassured his visitor. "But there is always that element of danger during my experiments. We've got to be careful not to get zapped."

Golka, 40, is one of the nation's leading lightning experimenters. He is credited with generating the most powerful lightning bolts ever created by man — flashes of 25 million volts that send off 50-foot sparks.

THE SCIENTIST from Boston has been holed up for seven years, working in a huge abandoned World War II Army Air Corps hangar at the old Wendover Air Base in this remote village on the edge of the Great Salt Desert in western Utah.

The 750 residents of Wendover are not quite sure what to make of "the lightning man."

"Bob is either another Tom Edison or a mad scientists," one resident said, echoing the sentiments of nearly all those who live here. "Whatever, he's one helluva nice guy and smart as a whip."

WENDOVER CLAIMS to be the only town in the United States with a lightning machine. Every child and nearly every adult in town has at one time or another stood in awe in the huge hangar, watching Golka do the huge hangar, watching Golka do the lightning experiments.

Golka believes his man-made lightning is a key to a cheap and endless energy source.

"I have devoted all my energies the past 11 years to the study of lightning and to the goal of being able to reproduce ball lightning, one of the rarest and most mysterious phenomena known to man," Golka explained as lightning bolts bounced off the hangar's ceiling and floor.

BALL LIGHTNING is a stable hot gas phenomenon — a concentration of plasma resembling a soap bubble that occurs with lightning bolts on rare occasions.

"It can be a glowing sphere of a variety of colors, a half-inch or so in diameter or as big as a grapefruit," Golka said. "It is like an opinion, with layers and layers of alternate charged particles, positive and nega-

"Sometimes the ball of lightning will bounce or float along through homes and buildings, lasting as long as a minute, then suddenly vanishing. It hums, crackles and hisses like drops of water on a hot stove.

"Sometimes it sets fires, sometimes it explodes. It has been known to kill people. Ball lightning knocked out the highly sophisticated electronic equipment in a lab at Hill Air Force Base (in northern Utah) three years ago."

GOLKA HAS ASKED the U.S. Energy Department to sponsor a major research program, directed by him, to develop man-made ball lightning as a possible cheap source of energy.

"What I am proposing is a device I call the pyrosphere, employing five laser beams to create thermonuclear fusion," Golka said.

"The lasers would create an explosion in the air, producing a fusion reaction, getting up to 100 million degrees heat in a period of 30 mi-

In essence, he explained, the laser beams would be creating miniature suns. The fuel would be deuterium, a hydrogen isotope.

"ENERGY WOULD BE collected through water jackets and used to drive steam turbines. The oceans (a source of deuterium) have enough energy to sustain the present use of power for the next 10 billion years turning turbines," the scientists Golka has yet to persuade the Energy Department to underwrite his proposal.

He gave up a successful electronics business in Boston in 1968 when he moved to Utah's Bonneville Salt

THE MILITARY long has been interested in his studies. For the last seven years the Air Force has allowed Golka to use the 60,000-square-foot hangar for $1 a year.

It is a historic hangar. It was built during World War II to house the B-29 Enola Gay, the plane that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima. Golka has had three grants totaling $68,000 — one from the navy and two from the Air Force — to test jet fighters for lightning vulnerability.

He zinged powerful lightning bolts at F-14 and F-16 fighters and other military aircraft to see if the planes were sturdy enough to resist lightning damage to their highly sophisticated computer systems.

THE AIR FORCE is talking to Golka about doing research on particle-beam weaponry.

"What I'm doing falls right into ray-gun research," Golka said. "I have already generated 25 million volts here in the hangar. I can get that up to 200 million volts with 200- to 300-foot-long sparks.

"By using laser beams I believe it will be possible to melt the skin of an ICBM missile, disarming and destroying it before it can reach its target. The ray gun would have a range of 6,000 miles.

"It would take a coil three times the size of the two combined coils I am working with in the hangar at the present," he said. One coil is 51 feet in diameter, the other is the 20-foot tower.

GOLKA SAID HE would much rather help the energy program than devote his time and efforts to Buck Rogers-type ray guns, "but I can no longer do research solely on dreams."

"I am rapidly running out of funds.
I scrounge dumps for materials with which to fabricate my equipment. I have already spent $100,000 of my own money on my research...."

Golka could be making a small fortune in Boston by running a conventional electronics business, but it is not his nature.

"I was getting bored. I wanted new challenges. I have had this lifelong obsession to do lightning research," he explained.

HE HAS NEVER married because "marriage and science don't mix when someone spends practically every moment awake on research."

He lives with his two mongrel dogs, Captain Proton and Commander Klystron, in a trailer. During the winter, when temperatures often drop nearly to zero in the unheated hangar, he bundles up in heavy clothing and keeps working.

When his frustrations get the best of him, Golka sits down at his piano and plays his favorite tunes, "The Wabash Cannonball" and "The Entertainer."

During the recent controversy over the Three Mile Island nuclear accident in Pennsylvania, he was on the phone again and again, trying to get someone from the Energy Department to come to Wendover to see what he is up to.

"WHAT I'M PROPOSING is fusion, the combining of hydrogen atoms to form a helium atom. With fission—the splitting of heavy particles such as plutonium—there is always the very dangerous risk of radioactive byproducts. That risk is non-existent in ball-lightning fusion," Golka insisted adding:

"If you don't look under the rocks you will never find anything. I've looked under the rocks. I've found something. Now all I have to do is get the government or one of the big utilities to get interested in what I'm doing."

BUSINESS MIRROR

Slump in retail sales serious economic blow

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The slack that develops in consumer spending will be picked up by a rise in corporate expenditures for plant and equipment, thereby reducing the threat of recession.

It's the cushion that will soften the economy's fall, that will give it bounce when it most needs it.

That's the optimist's view, and it is one of the few arguments of its type that has enjoyed a modicum of acceptance, though guarded, among analysts whose perspective generally has been glum.

But now the doubts are growing, particularly after weak April and May retail sales. The big question analysts now are asking is this: Will industry be willing to commit itself before those sales rise again?

That question is always a legitimate one, even in relatively stable times. And recent history shows that industry has answered it without much vigor. It has been hesitant to spend without assurance of sales. Those sales, of course never can be guaranteed, but in earlier times one could at least make reasonable projections. Now there is far less ccertainty. What will the price of oil be? Is inflation manageable?

In fact, the worries go far deeper than these questions.

Businessmen today must worry not simply over what track the economy is in, which makes forecasting rather easy, but whether the economy's is on a brand-new track taking it in a direction they don't understand. William Wolman, Business Week economist, comments that in recent years energy and price uncertainty may have "anesthetized" the business community's willingness to risk

And now, with those uncertainties so pronounced, he suggests, it is unreal to expect a change of attitude. Capital spending won't turn consistently strong, he says, until energy supplies are assured.

spending in advance of market

But before the optimists can convert even that somber assessment into something encouraging, Wolman adds: "And if you can believe that will happen soon, you can believe in the tooth fairy."

Merrill Lynch's Alexander Blanton agrees that the optimists are hoping more than analyzing. While capital spending has shown some strength, Blanton points out that the rate of gain is slowing.

He prefaces his analysis by observing that "Recent articles in widely read business periodicals have said that capital spending by business is strengthening and that the rate of increase is accelerating."

He then seeks to dispel the notion. "In our opinion, those are misconceptions. Capital spending, in our judgment, is in the process of peaking, and the rate of gain ... is slowing."

Blanton agrees that the amounts are indeed rising, but he asks that we not be mislead. Not only is the rate of increase slowing, he argues, but we may have allowed ourselves to be deluded somewhat by inflation.

First-quarter spending was at an annual rate of $165.94 billion. He estimates second-quarter figures at $170.30 billion, the third at $174.74 billion and the final at an annual rate of $180.98 billion.

But, as those figures rise, the percentage increases over the comparable 1978 quarters shrinks, from 15 percent in the first to 13 in the second, 12.4 in the July-September quarter and 10.4 in the final.

Now, he suggests, look at those

Now, he suggests, look at those same numbers in constant dollars. He chooses the 1972 dollar as equaling 100 cents. (This is merely an assumption; the point is to use a constant measuring stick.)

Using this constant measure, the estimated increases in this year's capital spending seem far less significant. The first quarter measures $99.78 billion, the second 99.7, third 99.85, and fourth 101.11.

And the percentage increases — with inflation rung out — fall from 6.3 percent in the first quarter to 3.6 to 3.2 and finally to 0.9 percent in the final quarter of 1979.

Two comments, and both of them

Two comments, and both of them based on estimates and expectations, don't make a case. But the case isn't being built on just these two. The doubts seems to be spreading. The cushion might not be there.

Several Carter advisers have no gasoline rationing worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of President Carter's top advisers don't have to worry about the odd-even gasoline rationing in effect in the Washington area. They're exempt because they have out-of-state license plates, some apparently in violation of the law.

At least eight administration officials own or drive cars that bear license plates from jurisdictions other than Washington or the adjoining states of Maryland and Virginia. And at least two have expired plates.

at least two have expired plates.

Among those driving cars with plates from their home states are Hamilton Jordan, Carter's chief political adviser; Frank Moore, the top Congressional lobbyist for the White house; Timothy Kraft, a top Carter aide; and Sarah Weddington, a special assistant to the president.

The odd-even system adopted by the governors of the two states and the District of Columbia this week exempts motorists whose plates are from states outside the area. Officials feared that tourists might stay away from the Washington area if they were forced to abide by the plan.

Both Moore and Jordan drive cars with Georgia plates. Both men lived in Georgia before coming to Washington with Carter and both have resided here since Carter took office.

District of Columbia officals said Georgia residents who move to the capital have 30 days at most to register their cars locally. Maryland and Virginia officials said those states have similar time limits.

Most of the administration aides said they would abide by the odd-even rule, although they apparently could circumvent it with their out-of-state

"I'll just comply," Moore said. "I go five weeks on one tank of gas, sometimes six." Moore seemed embarrased about discussing the subject, however, when reached at home. "I'm sorry I picked up the phone," he said.

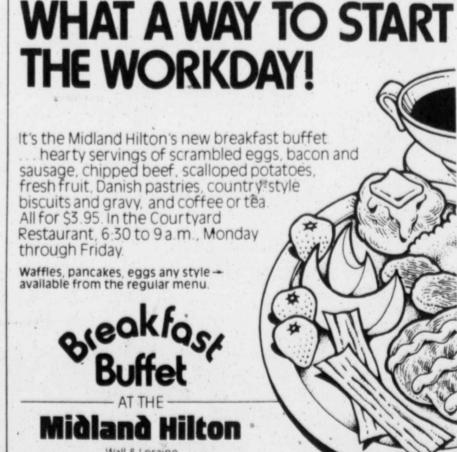

Kenneth Anderson, acting chief of the District of Columbia vehicle control division, said there is an automobile license exemption for presidential appointees. But he said it applies only to those who have been confirmed by the Senate. None of the eight aides with out-of-town plates are in that category.

Not all of the out-of-town plates are from Georgia. A car Kraft drives bears expired Indiana license plates. The car is registered to Haldon C. Kraft, Timothy Kraft's father. The elder Kraft lives in Noblesville, Ind.

A car registered to Ms. Weddington has license plates from Texas, her home state. But Clarence Taylor, an aide to Ms. Weddington aide, said her boss would abide by the rationing plan.

Four other administration aides who could not be reached for comment drive cars with license plates from their homes states.

Another former Georgian, Mary Beazley of the Office of Management and Budget, retained license plates from her home state. "I'll abide by the rationing plan just like you will," she said when asked about her plates.

Drillers for Amoco Production Co., using this 80-by-180-foot offshore-type drilling barge, last week struck what they say could be major new oil field in the northern portion of Utah's Great Salt

Lake. The wildcat, drilled to 2,300 feet, has produced at the rate 1,500 barrels of oil per day on production tests. (AP Laserphoto)

Justice Department investigating possibiliy of antitrust violations

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supplies of gasoline at the nation's service stations are tight in part because the flow of oil from wells in the United States slowed inexplicably last winter, an Associated Press investigation

The Justice Department is investigating whether this previously unnoticed dip in domestic production coming as Iran and its oil production teetered on the brink of chaos - could involve violations of antitrust laws by the nation's major oil companies.

The drop in domestic production is one of the topics the antitrust probers will discuss in a nearly 50-page report to President Carter to be sent to the White House later this week. Government sources who declined to be identified said the investigators will ask Carter for more time to probe the dip and the other factors involved in the gasoline shortage.

The AP investigation found that the drop in domestic crude oil production worked in tandem with another homegrown factor - U.S. refiners getting less and less gasoline from each barrel of oil - to cost the nation more gasoline than the cutoff of Iranian crude imports.

The dip in U.S. oil production accounted for at least 11 million barrels of gasoline that otherwise would have gone into motorists' tanks. An additional 11.5 million barrels of gasoline simply never got produced by U.S. refineries because they were making less gasoline and more heating oil, jet fuel and petrochemicals out of each barrel of crude oil.

The AP probe found that these two factors - totaling 22.5 million barrels of gasoline - caused more of the shortage than the cutoff of Iranian oil, which meant a loss of at least 17.5 million barrels of gasoline. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

Those three factors add up to some 40 million barrels of gasoline that never reached service stations about equal to the Department of Energy's projection of the gasoline shortage in April and May.

The Justice Department is checking the possibility that companies decreased domestic production in anticipation of decontrol of crude oil prices this month, sources said. Under this theory, the companies may have hoped to get higher prices and to discourage opposition to decontrol by aggravating a shortage that they could claim would have been prevented with price incentives.

Executives of the nation's biggest oil companies denied in interviews with the AP that there had been any deliberate manipulation of domestic oil production, adding that they were scrambling for crude supplies.

We're scrounging for every drop of oil we can find," said H.H. Zachow, vice president for crude and products supplies for ARCO Petroleum Products Co.

But the industry executives' explanations for the dip were often contradictory and do not explain the shortage completely. Many blamed bad weather and equipment problems, but a check of federal weather records generally does not support the argument that the weather was particularly poor in critical oil-producing areas last winter.

Oil executives generally conceded they knew problems were coming in. Iran last September or October. The companies also knew Americans were driving an unexpectedly large amount last fall, forcing the firms to use up stocks of gasoline and crude

With all these reasons for higher domestic production, the flow of oil from U.S. wells suddenly slowed.

Odd-even ration plan goes into effect today

By The Associated Press

Odd-even gasoline rationing goes into effect today in the state's twomost populous urban centers, the first time fuel has been rationed in Texas since World War II.

Only motorists whose license plates end in an odd number will be able to buy gasoline today in Harris, Tarrant and Dallas counties. Owners of evennumbered tags get their chance Tuesday, the 26th.

Gov. Bill Clements, who ordered the plan put into effect, said he expects other counties, including Collin, Ellis, Montgomery and Fort Bend, to be participating in the odd-even plan

The idea behind the governor's plan is to reduce the long lines that have plagued the Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston areas the past few weeks, but no one was promising any immediate

Some members of Clements' Office of Energy Resources spent Sunday discussing the plan and possible clarifications. Spokesman Pete Baldwin said for example the plan probably will have to define more clearly emergency vehicles, which are exempt and can get gasoline any day.

Baldwin said another gray area is gasoline tanks carried in boats on trailers. Marinas are exempt from the plan, but some boat owners prefer to fill up at regular service stations before going to the lake. Here are some key provisions of the Vehicles with personalized license tags will be considered even if they end in A through M and odd if they end in N through Z.

Motorists must buy at least $6 worth of gasoline but not more than 20 gallons. Motorists whose tanks hold less than 10 gallons are exempt from the $6 minimum.

- Customers may not pump more than two gallons into gasoline cans. Motorists are exempt from the odd-even restrictions if they are in emergency vehicles, commercial vehicles, short-term rental cars, public transit vehicles, and autos operated by the handicapped; also mopeds, motorcyles and diesel vehicles.

- Also exempt are vehicles with out-of-state plates. But all vehicles exempted from the odd-even restric tions are still subject to the $6 minimum and 20-gallon maximum pur-

- Anyone may buy gasoline on the 31st day of the month, or on any federal holiday.

The plan expires Sept. 30, although that date can be changed by the governor.

Gasoline stations must display flags - green means the owner is open for business and selling fuel; . yellow means only emergency vehicles can get gasoline; and red means he is closed.

Service stations must also post signs telling "anticipated minimum business days and hours of operation for dispensing gasoline.

U.S. wells pumped 8.83 million barrels a day in October, Energy Department figures show, the peak for the year in which average production was 8.7 million barrels.

But then production turned down. In November, it dropped to 8.73 million barrels a day; in December, to 8.65 million; in January, to 8.46 million; and in February, to 8.29 mil-

Industry analysts project that production rebounded to 8.69 million barrels a day in March and 8.62 million in

The drop totaled 22.8 million barrels far greater than the usual gradual decline in production as wells are exhausted. At average refining rates, that amount of crude would have produced about 11 million barrels of

By comparison, the drop in imports due to the chaos in Iran totaled 36.2 million barrels of crude, which could have produced 17.5 million barrels of Numerous oil executives were not aware of the drop, for most have followed figures compiled by an industry group that are projections and not actual production figures. And the executives conceded the final DOE figures, which did show the dip, were the most reliable.

The dip also showed in figures gathered independently by The Associated Press from state agencies that monitor oil production and in individual production figures supplied by eight major oil companies

From each barrel of crude oil, refineries produce a variety of products gasoline, heating oil, jet fuel, diesel fuel and asphalt to name a few. And to some degree exactly how much of each product is produced from a barrel is under the control of the oil

This year, even as there was less domestic and imported crude to refine, refineries began squeezing less and less gasoline out of each barrel.

Since November, the gasoline yield has dropped from 50.6 percent to about 46 percent. If refineries had maintained the 1977-78 average yield of 48.4 percent, 11.5 million more barrels of gasoline could have been produced from December through May, even allowing for normal seasonal fluctuations.

Many industry officials generally blamed this on the partial substitution of Iranian "light" crude oil with other "heavier" crudes that yield a lower proportion of gasoline. But they conceded that the difference should turn up as increased heavy fuel oil production, and it does not.

Ling says he will prevail

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Dallas financier James Ling insists he will prevail in his effort to gain control over Texas International Co., an oil and gas firm headquartered here, despite losing his initial bid to gain election to the board.

"We're not going away; that's for sure," said Ling, the founder of LTV Corp. "We will win the thing ultimate-

Ling and Miami businessman John Bertoglio had offered to buy the company in April but were rebuffed. They now may pursue their federal suit charging the company with violating federal law in soliciting proxies for the May 31 shareholder meeting at which votes were cast, Ling said

OPEC meets this week to decide on price hike

NEW YORK (AP) - The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets this week to discuss an oil price increase that many oil-consuming nations fear may have dire effects on their economies.

Analysts expect the OPEC meeting opening in Geneva, Switzerland, on Tuesday to result in a large rise in the price of crude oil - perhaps as much as 30 percent. That could add 6 cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline or heating oil in the United States.

But exactly how large the crude oil price increase will be still is a matter of conjecture, analysts say, because OPEC's decisions reflect a compromise among members with widely divergent points of view Little has changed in the world oil supply situation in the three months since the last meeting of the 13 OPEC members in Geneva. And prices have continued to go up as individual members of the cartel have tacked on surcharges of up to $5 and more to the cartel's base price of $14.55 a barrel.

Because of the surcharges, the average price of a 42-gallon barrel of OPEC oil now is about $17 a barrel, almost 17 percent above the official base price and about 30 percent higher than the base price on Saudi Arabian light crude oil that was in effect at the end of 1978.

About a month ago, many analysts had expected OPEC to agree on a $17 base price at this week's meeting. But that is now seen as an optimistic estimate, and the analysts now are saying the price may be much higher, perhaps $19 or $20 a barrel.

The prospect of higher oil prices has forced economists and government leaders to look again at forecasts that had assumed a maximum OPEC price increase this year of just 14.5

Merrill Lynch Economics Inc., for instance, said "the continued leapfrogging of oil prices by the OPEC nations has again necessitated substantial upward revisions in projected energy costs and thus in inflation generally."

The consulting arm of the giant brokerage house had predicted in January that U.S. gasoline prices would rise by 7.4 percent in 1979 and by another 3.3 percent next year. Now, it expects gasoline prices to jump by 34.7 percent this year and by 21.6 percent in 1980

The Organization of Economic Development and Cooperation, a group of 24 major industrialized nations, warns: "The rise in oil prices could set off a new ... recession as in 1974-75," when oil prices quadrupled.

When OPEC last met in March, world oil markets were reeling from WASHINGTON (AP) - Keep cool about $1-a-gallon gasoline. Think of the Alaska gold rush, when hay for horses was $400 a ton and sled dogs $250 and up - with no price controls in Dawson City.

To ease the energy crunch, Washington imported reindeer from Norway and Lapland. But the plan wasn't a big success.

Basically, the same economic forces prevailed then as with gasoline today," said Donald Bowles, an American University economics professor whose father was one of 5,000 goldseekers who joined the Klondike.

Those forces were: a shortage of goods combined with an inelastic demand caused by necessity and a philosophical attitude toward paying high prices. Medical care ran high. A day at the

But one product was deflated by today's value. Gold was a little over $20 an ounce, compared with $279 at the latest U.S. government auction the effects of the Iranian revolution, which closed that nation's oilfields for seven weeks and deprived the world of 10 percent of its daily production of

That loss put a severe crimp in world oil supplies, and many OPEC nations found oil-hungry customers willing to pay premium prices. Individual producers began adding the surcharges to the official base price of $13.35 a barrel at the start of this year and then to the subsequent base of $14.55 a barrel set in March. And on spot markets in the Netherlands. where sales are not bound by longterm contracts, costs of some oil have approaced $40 a barrel.

Although some Iranian production has resumed, the country still produces far less oil than in the pre-revolutionary days and the tight world oil supply continues.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani is expected to press for a price increase, but also has said he will be working toward "unifying the price of oil again," perhaps through the elimination of the surcharge sys-

Saudi Arabia also says it is considering increasing its oil production by 12 percent to 9.5 million barrels a day to "try to stop the panic" in world oil markets. But both Crown Prince Fahd and Yamani have said repeatedly that conservation by oil consuming nations is the key to solving the oil shortage problem.

Yamani blames "rich countries prepared to pay any price" for oil for

Machinists to file suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A Los Angeles attorney says the International Association of Machinists and several cities would file suit today seeking an injunction to halt American oil companies from passing to consumers price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"This is just the beginning," said James H. Davis, who filed a price-fixing suit against the OPEC nations in December. Davis said Sunday that the city of Los Angeles has ordered its counsel to look into joining the suit, while Portland, Ore., and Baltimore, Md., were seeking to become parties. The suit,

Ignorance of economics part of Idi Amin reign

By LES PAYNE Newsday

KAMPALA, Uganda -The regime of Idi Amin once pressed its economic advisers to explain the reasons for the country's financial woes. When he was told that the major contributing factor was 'foreign exchange, Vice President Mustafa Adrisi, who could neither read nor write, reportedly replied: "Who is this Mr. Foreign Exchange?

I want him arrested.

Such ignorance of economics was as much a part of Amin's eight-year reign as was the perva sive political terror and intimidation that took the lives of an estimated 300,000 Ugandans. Amin never constructed a single school, a hospital, government building or even a new road. Consumer items such as soap, salt and sugar could be obtained only by the rich, who could afford them, and Amin's henchmen, who simply took them by looting. Construction stopped completely after Amin overthrew Milton Obote in January 1971. The vast African External Communications Building. half completed in Obote's time, has been worked on again by construction crews, only since Amin was toppled in April. In seeking to convert Uganda from a Christian to a Moslem country by force of arms, Amin spent most of his time in the final years eliminating those he suspected of threatening his regime. His only significant monument is the International Communications Satellite Station near Kampala. A large downtown mosque, under construction at the time of Amin's fall, now stands vacant, looted and unattended.

"Amin used the state's money to acquire tanks and MiGs and other military hardware," said Dan Nahudere, the minister of culture and community development. "As for building construction, he built barracks. Period.'

Today Uganda is completely bankrupt. The economy was dealt its final blow, during the liberation war, when residents looted every shop in Kampala to the bare walls. Since most of the stores belonged to Amin and his retreating army and police, the looting was considered a part of the uprising against the old regime.

The dooting was a measure of how far we had fallen as a people oppressed by Amin,' said Richard Mulonao, an insurance agent. "In 1962, when we got our independence, there was no looting of the Europeans' shops. When the Asians were expelled in 1972. Ugandan citizens didn't loot their shops.

circulation. The retreating army looted the banks of their foreign reserves. In the central bank, only $200,000 in foreign exchange has been located. But in its hasty departure the old regime overlooked some $300 million worth of coffee in national warehouses

Uganda, however, has some of the most fertile land in the world, and economists say the country's cash crops could quickly bring the country back to economic health. 'Uganda is very rich," said Nabudere. "Our coffee and cotton is the best in the world, and we can soon be producing tea and copper for export. The people have always been self-sufficient as far as subsistence crops are concerned. That's how Amin managed to survive for so long! The people never went hungry."

The minister of finance has said Uganda will need about $2 billion in foreign investment to get the country moving mormally again. There is an immediate need for heavy trucks, medical supplies, building materials, rail and communication systems. Before and during Amin's days, Britain, supplying onethird of Uganda imports, was Uganda's leading trading partner. West Germany and Japan followed, with the United States and Italy trailing.

Private investment once profitable, was reversed after Amin appropriated the shops of expelled Asians and nationalized foreign business properties in 1972. Poor management and lack of replacement parts and material drove private enterprise to a virtual standstill. Labor shortages were worsened by terrorized citizens who refused to work on plantations or in urban facUgandans returned to

The farmers sold subsistence foodstuffs in local markets at the inflated prices out. Amin ordered them they needed to cope with

"Before Amin, Ugan-Today no one knows da was economically one currency is in of the best countr south of the Sahara,' said Joseph Almeida, a primary school headmaster. "The hotels were well maintained, the shops were full, and the country had one of the best road systems in Africa. But beginning two years ago, everything was difficult to get. We didn't have exercise books, couldn't get pencils, erasers, or even textbooks.'

The challenge for the new Ugandan government is to restore confidence in the nation's economy and pump new life into local commerce dormant under Amin's rule, but ministers are concerned that outside investment may prolong foreign domination of the economy, freezing the country in its neo-colonialism. "The issue here is not socialism or capitalism." said Yoweri Museveni, minister of state for defense, a reputed Marxist. "The conditions aren't right for either. The farms and industry are in the hands of foreign corporations. This is neo-colonialism. The state can play a leading role in guiding both the private and public sector in a mixed economy that would be in the best interest of Ugandans. Our crucial challenge is ... the elimination of the parasitic control of the economy by foreign in-
