In the chaos similar to the devastating fires of a year ago, when much of the State of Texas found itself under a burn ban and Bailey County, like many other Lone Star State counties, was under the constant danger of towering flames, an unoccupied structure in the 400 block of East Third was destroyed by flames Sunday afternoon. Thrift Store donations needed

It's easy to forget that there are people in our town who need basic necessities — clothes, household goods, shoes.

Last month, hundreds of people shopped at the Heritage Thrift Shop and bought thousands of articles. The articles they bought came from your generous donations.

Because the needs of the community have recently been so great, the store is extremely low on inventory. "We need everything but, in particular, we need jeans, sweat shirts, shoes and warm clothing for both adults and children," a Thrift Shop representative said. "We also welcome household goods, electronics, books, and miscellaneous items."

Bring donations to the Thrift Shop on Friday or Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Donations are tax-deductible and proceeds from the Thrift Shop benefit the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

Advice offered to little brother

"Driving is a privilege."

The one thing my brother probably will not have to mess with is a car with did when I turned 16. I had such a car - it was a standard as I like to call them, and even though I went out and practiced driving in it I never could quite get the hang of it and it made that awful sound better.

When I took driver's ed, I teenager's life have they had an awesome teacher heard that phrase. I know I and I would say the best did. I heard it a lot shortly driver's ed teacher. He after getting my license, passed away early last year, but I still feel as if when I am driving that he is watching over me.

I took driver's ed before I had my license for more moved to Muleshoe and the way I was taught was learned and now I think it probably a little different than is time my brother learned. the way they are taught here in Muleshoe.

For example, when I had this week and when a to get my hours of required teenager turns 16 it means driving, I had a partner and only one thing and a for a few days after school for two hours we would drive until the two hours were up Even though he will not and usually halfway through get his license until June, we would stop and my due to Texas' licensing teacher would buy us something to eat and drink. He did that every day that we

I had a lot of fun in driver's the same mistakes I did ed, but the main thing is that I learned what I need to be a good, defensive driver. It's paving off so far because I have not gotten a ticket or manual transmission like I been in a wreck (knock on wood).

> Studies have shown that most 16 year olds have their first wreck within six months of getting their licenses.

So I hope my brother and all other future drivers will think smart and be safe while when it was in the wrong behind the wheel and gear. I like automatics a lot remember the basic rules.

Mules fall in final game against Hornets

By Delton Wilhite Sportswriter

The Mules traveled to Highland Park needing a win and rooting for Dimmitt center court and called time the buzzer sounded giving to beat Tulia.

That scenario would have thrown District 2-2A in a three-way tie for third place.

The Mules were unaware of a district vote that the very hoping for would have sent Dimmitt to the post season.

The Mules did not defeat the Hornets of Highland Park and Tulia canned the Bobcats to claim the final spot in the Playoffs.

The Mules trailed by two points with less than 30 and moved the ball across before falling to the floor as

"He Knows Just What I Need"

don't know if anyone has come up with a Twelve Step group, something on the order of Alcoholics Anonymous, for packrats, but I hope so. I need to join forthwith.

"We've always done it that way," is the motto for folks with one kind of affliction. But the motto for folks with my kind of affliction is just as binding, albeit shorter: "I might need that."

Focus Faith Curtis Shelburne

Let me share a microcosm of my life that illustrates the depth of the problem.

A couple of years ago I switched over from a briefcasestyle computer bag to a backpack style bag. One reason was that I was afraid carrying a briefcase might lead to the habitual wearing of power ties and suits. But I also found that I could carry more stuff in the backpack, stuff that "I might need." At the time, it hadn't occurred to me that backpacks also work better on Honda Magna V45 750cc motorcycles; that fortuitous discovery came later.

But I've noticed that about three or four times a year, the backpack's weight bumps up to around thirty pounds, and I need to take everything out of the bag. Everything. And then put stuff away, throw stuff away, lighten the load, and start the process over again.

Here's what I found in the backpack last time I cleaned it out: one computer and power adapter; many business cards; one PDA & stylus; five floppy disks; one CD case with 20 CDs; one pair of socks; one page of a wedding sermon; two A/C plug adapters; one 100 GB external hard drive and cable; two legal pads; many empty CD sleeves; numerous blank note cards & envelopes; one USB hub; two sets of earphones: two sets of earplugs: a LAN card; various computer cables; a cheap jogging watch (I don't jog); one Windows XP booklet & CD; one Dell system CD; one floppy drive; one long phone cord; one short phone cord; one phone cord retractor; two phone cord unions; three highlighters; three pens; two pen refills; one book light; one flashlight; one 256K flash drive; one audio cable; five program CDs (QuarkXpress & Norton Systemworks); two audio accompaniment CDs; two wedding video CDs; five unidentified CDs & DVDs; one Michael Card CD; one very practical article on "Impractical Christianity"; five books (Well-Intentioned Dragons; Contented Soul; Preaching & Worship in the Small Church; A Change of Heart; For the Life of the World: Sacrament and Orthodoxy); pictures of various views of the inside of my wife's colon (tossed in after a good report from a routine colonoscopy; I mean the pics, not the colon); an article on transferring an AOL address book; an article on using MS Outlook with AOL; last Sunday's sermon; three old sermons; a flyer for our church's Coat Drive; and a check for the Mission Fund. Ah, if the problem was just confined to my backpack . . .

I'm glad the old song is true: 'He [Jesus] Knows Just What I Need." I obviously don't.

(Best Wishes and Congratulations!) Celeprating the Chinese New Year, 2007 The Year of the Pig

In 2007 the Chinese New Year begins on Monday, February 18th and lasts for fifteen days. The seventh day is everyone's birthday. Everyone celebrates turning one year older at the same time! The last day is the day of the Lantern Festival. People have fun making lanterns, then they hang them or carry them into the street where they watch "dragons" dancing in parades.

During the two weeks of the holiday, families eat together, visit, and honor their ancestors. People greet each other with wishes for good luck, good health, peace, joy and wealth. This celebration is also called the "Spring Festival" as it is a time for new beginnings.

The Chinese calendar has 12 animals, each standing for one year. 2007 is the year of the pig or boar. Read about people born in the year of the pig below, then fill in the puzzle:

Renewable energy workshop to be held

Renewable energy has moved into the forefront of the national agenda, and that is good news for the Great Plains region.

While a great deal of local attention is focused on large wind farms and ethanol plants, tremendous possibilities also exist at the residential and business level for solar, biomass, and bio-diesel, as well as wind energy.

In response to these prospects, a Community-Scale Renewable Energy Workshop will be held in Hereford on March 13, at the community center to give information and resources for renewable energy options.

The event is being organized by Ogallala Commons, a nonprofit resource development network, with additional sponsorship by Deaf Smith and Swisher Rural Electric Cooperatives, Rocky Mountain Farmers Union-Cooperative Development Center, and Xcel Energy.

"The event will be a clearinghouse information for anyone interested in developing renewable energy at the residential, community, or farm and ranch level," said Darryl Birkenfeld, director of Ogallala Commons.

"While not every town will have a large-scale wind farm, any community and its industry developments that residents can take feasible can make such projects steps to create renewable more feasible. energy projects," he added.

"Though some innovators afternoon bus tours of utilityfavor applications that are connected wind generators off-the-grid, there is now at the Tony and Dottie Neal great potential for grid-tied residence in Bovina, and the systems," Birkenfeld said.
