A DASH of lemon juice with butter is a sparkling bit of seasoning for cooked sliced carrots. Cooked or canned lima beans do wonderfully well if you add a bit of prepared mustard to creamed butter with a dash of sugar and lemon juice. Asparagus makes a festive vegetable when you sprinkle grated Swiss cheese over it and pop it under the broiler for a few minutes.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

Veal Paprika (Serves 4)

- 4 veal chops
- 8 slices bacon
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon water
- Fine bread crumbs
- 1 cup soured cream
- 1 tablespoon paprika

Pan fry bacon. Remove bacon and keep hot. Dip veal chops in egg mixed with water, then in fine crumbs. Brown in hot bacon fat. Add soured cream. Cover and cook until meat is fork tender, about 1 hour. Add paprika. Serve with bacon and soured cream sauce.

olive slices sauteed in butter with a dash of lemon juice.

A packaged cake mix takes on a festive air when you top it with creamed butter and brown sugar in which have been mixed some sliced almonds. Spread on the cake after baking, then place under the broiler until the top is bubbly.

Peaches and cherries molded in lemon gelatin poured into paper cups makes a good supper dessert for porch dining. Place a spoonful of vanilla ice cream on top when you're ready to serve.

with Mr. Eden's sister, Mrs. Zella Dunlap and other relatives. Others who were dinner guests Sunday evening in the home of Mrs. Dunlap, were Mr. and Mrs. Kay Dunlap and daughter, Jeanie and Karen, Boise City, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Eden and Leon, Kerrick, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fedric and son, Claude Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Foster and daughter, Ann, of El Paso, Texas, visited Mr. Foster's mother, Mrs. C. R. Foster Sunday night and Monday.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Gates and son, Mark, left Monday for a vacation in Colorado.

Mrs. Newton Crabtree and Mrs. Ralph Hampton were visitors in the home of Mrs. B. R. Crabtree in Dalhart Friday.

Mrs. Nelson Moore of Dalhart was a guest of the Pronger Brothers and Mrs. Pronger Thursday of last week.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Emma Halterman, Hamilton, Montana:
I remember when you and I Courtied in a buggy, not a car to pass us by.
We would go walking,
hand in hand
No airplanes flying over the land.
Just a bashful boy and girl too
Strolling down a lane, me and you

I remember when I was just a kid at play.
Mother and Dad sat by the fire,
smoking pipe of clay.
I remember the good old days
when we were tax free,
When a dime was enough to buy a pound of tea.
The doctor bills were so small, we didn't mind being sick at all.
When mother washed the clothes
on a board.
And our dipper was just an old gourd.

And now all we can do is save and I think it awful
It takes every cent to buy a pound of coffee.
Cars are so thick, when you drive
it makes you sick
And in the morning, when you want to sleep,
Airplanes fly overhead and give you the creeps.
I remember men used to work all day for a dollar.
Now if they don't get fifteen or twenty, they holler.
So, just give me back the good old days gone by.

WASHINGTON

Q-What relation, if any, is the interest rates fixed by the Government on its own securities, to interest rates fixed by private lenders?

A-According to government and private economists, interest paid by the Federal Government is looked upon as a standard. If government interest rates are raised on securities, interest rates of private lenders soon follow suit, which adds to the cost of credit and the cost of doing business, which is a matter of general concern.

Q-Is there a lessening demand for new home construction in the country?

A-No, the demand for new homes is still strong, but according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, volume of new home construction is down due to (1) land scarcity and rising construction costs, and (2) the tight mortgage money market.

Q-Is the Secretary of the Treasury bonded?

A-No. The Treasurer of the United States, not the Secretary of the Treasury, is the actual custodian of public money, and is bonded in the sum of $150,000.

Q-Does the United States mint coins or print currency for other countries?

A-Yes it has at times. In 1941 coins were minted for the Netherlands East Indies, Liberia, French Indo-China and the Dominican Republic. Currency also was printed for the Chinese Republic and for the invasion of European countries during world war II. It was done on a contract basis.

Q-Is it true that the low rates on newspapers and magazines from the postal department amount to a subsidy to the private publishers?

A-It depends on how you look at it. It might amount to a subsidy to the publishers, but also to the public who obtain reading matter at such low cost.

ideas from other editors

From The Outlook, Golden, Colorado: The sad thing about the teenage driver and hotrod problem is that a small minority of immature youngsters create a bad name for the rank and file of hotrodders who are probably even better drivers than their elders.

In fairness the public should keep in mind that most of the teenage drivers around us are not only fun-loving but also serious about their development as good citizens.

And we're all for them. What many people fail to realize is that the law-breaking, reckless type of teenage driver is in the minority. But they're the ones that make the most noise and get into trouble and therefore into the public print. The rank and file good citizens among the hotrod set isn't heard of much because they're behaving themselves. They're solid future citizens. They're the kind who like to tinker with machinery and make it run better — the experimenters — perhaps the discoverers and inventors of tomorrow.

Next time you go for a drive take note of the hotrods you see. You'll notice that most of them have a deep, muffled purr that suggests power but doesn't create a disturbance. At the same time you'll notice that the driver knows how to handle his car skillfully and in harmony with every traffic regulation.

These youngsters are the counterpart of the "whoopie" driver of a former generation — only a lot more sensible.

Let's view each driver on his own merits regardless of the kind of car he drives. Let's not classify all hotrod drivers with the few who have no use for the law. Let's be fair to the good citizens of the younger set.

From The Suburban List, Essex Junction, Vermont: It is quite common for people in the cities to crab about subsidies and public funds that are used to promote and help the farming industry. They forget there are a lot of other groups that get subsidies from the federal government.

Even Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson indicates that all farm support programs should be dropped . . . Don't get it into your heads that farmers are the only group who are given special privileges. This Federal relief goes deep into industry, transportation, power, shipping, and many other groups.

SCANNING THE NEWS

LIKELY the most important action taken in this session of the study being made of the financial condition of the United States by the Senate Finance Committee under the leadership of Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia. It is the first such investigation made in almost a half century and probably will take all summer.

Although the Virginia Senator and others on the Committee have already tangled with their first witness, Treasury Secretary George F. Humphrey, both sides agree that the pressure of inflation is the most impelling problem before the American people today.

Senator Byrd, going behind the scenes of a prosperous and rosy facade put forth by the administration, bluntly told his witness that the facts belied his eulogistic defense of the Administration. For he said, despite the prosperous overlay, in four years all debt in the country has increased $200 billion to a total of $793 billion dollars, or about 33% in four short years. Senator Byrd fixed the debts of the country as follows: Corporate, $253 billion; private, $213 billion; Federal, $277 billions and state and local at $50 billions.

Added to this debt increase is the steadily downward spiral of the purchasing power of the dollar, now worth about 49.8c, a drop of nearly 2 cents since 1956. If the value of the dollar continues at this rate of fall it would be worth only 25 cents in 12 years. Senator Byrd points out that world confidence in the American dollar is the principal deterrent to Russian aggression.

With inflation a prime subject in Washington, a refreshing breeze blew into Washington in the form of a small group of people forming the National Citizens Committee to curb inflation . . . held a two-day conference at the Mayflower hotel, with top government, economic, business and farm leaders as principal speakers . . . It was non-partisan, non-political in nature and had as its objective, education of the people themselves on the dangers of inflation, and put forth the thesis that only the American people by their restraint in their demands upon Congress, by their own determination to lower costs or force lower costs, have the decisive and last word as to whether there will be a run-away inflation. We cannot have our cake and eat it too.

Dr. E. G. Nourse, nationally known economist and former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, one of the Conference speakers put it this way:

"The calling of this conference is clear evidence that the American public is waking up to some basic economic realities and beginning to question whether the phenomenal prosperity of the last decade is fundamentally sound and capable of being continued on present lines . . . We should stop passing the buck to the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Congress and the Federal Reserve system . . . It is much nearer the truth to say that the real source of inflation in post-war United States has lain in the market place—in the institutions and practices of labor union bargaining and corporation price administration.

The United States is the world's largest single producer of milk; its output in 1956 was 56 million tons. It produces more than the combined output of the United Kingdom, France, Western Germany, the Low Countries and Denmark.

LOVE ON FEDERAL STREET

By Helen Whitmer Garber

HARRIET HAMILTON sat in front of her triple mirror. She was twenty-eight years old and a school teacher. On the other hand she was nice looking, tall, slender figure, regular features, naturally curly red-brown hair. Maybe the reason she didn't have matrimonial prospects was lack of propinquity. She didn't meet many men in her profession. It had been years since she'd seen anybody who caused wild bells to ring in her ears.

She jumped to her feet. She must do something about those doldrums. The first step in a campaign of that sort was a new hat. She looked at her last year's model. No wonder nobody ever gave her a second glance with a pancake like that on her head.

Two hours later she came out of Bogg's and Buhl's wearing a green straw creation. It was beautiful and it cost forty dollars.

The spring sun glittered on the windows of the bank building opposite. A group of laborers were repairing the sidewalk in front. They were in happy mood, singing snatches of the "Italian Street Song."

Harriet breathed the mild summer air. She was still young, looking her best in a beige suit, green gloves, bag, and shoes and wearing a most dashing spring hat. She was on her way to the Goucher College luncheon.

The breeze turned playful. It flapped her skirts about her legs. She pushed her skirts down. The wind shifted its point of attack. It lifted that hat from her head. Harriet gazed in horror as her hat sailed across the street high above the traffic like a gorgeous, exotic bird, fell to earth and disappeared into a hole in the sidewalk. Oh, why hadn't she held onto her hat? She would still have had her legs, but hats like that didn't spring up just anywhere like dandelions.

She thought of Bogg's and Buhl's bill that would arrive all too soon with the accusing forty dollar sign in the right hand column.

She must do what she could to rescue the hat. It was probably mud smeared. It couldn't be any more bedraggled than her spirits were as she waited for the lights to change.

As she neared the hole in the sidewalk where the hat had disappeared she was startled by sharp, staccato exclamations that came from the bowels of the earth. Her hat appeared above the sidewalk. It was unharmed and it adorned at a rakish angle the outraged countenance of Tony Belotti.

"Taka da off!" he barked. Then his anger cooled. He held out his grimy hands in supplication. "I noa can do," he implored.

Harriet stepped forward. "Hold everything!" a young man appeared from the crowd that had collected. He whipped out a pad and pencil and sketched Tony and the hat with rapid strokes.

"Whata da matta?" Tony spluttered.

The young man finished the sketch and handed Tony a greenback to soothe him. He removed the hat from Tony's head, dusted it off and turned to Harriet. He looked at her. He hesitated. He gulped. He lost his air of efficiency.

"Gee," he said, "it's a shame to cover hair like yours with a mere hat. Why, it's a halo around your head."

He fumbled in his pocket and produced a card.

"I'm Ted Walters, roving reporter of the DAILY CHRONICLE," he said.

Harriet put on her hat in a daze. The young man took her arm to help her across the broken pavement.

"If you and I could have lunch together," he was saying, "I could begin making up for my wasted years—the ones before I knew you."

The sun was dazzling, the breeze now soft and caressing.

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM
AND LET US PASS IT ON TO HELP OTHERS IN SOLVING THEIRS.
BY JOHN and JANE STRICKLAND

Today's Problem: The Way of Life
GRETCHEN MULLER, 2624 Grand Concourse, New York City, was, as she claims, fortunate enough to get to America before World War II. But she knew the rigors of life in the Germany she had left, and when she married a young man of German parents, she didn't mind in the least holding down a job to help out for a few years. Many American girls were doing the same. But she did what most of those American girls did not do, she turned her earnings over to her husband. He decided what they could afford to pay for her winter coat; how much rent should be paid, what they would allot for food, how much should be spent for their pleasure. This came from Gretchen's earnings. The same amount from his he put in the bank—in his name. After three years Gretchen found she was going to increase their family. Too bad, thought her husband, they were not yet ready. But the family increased, and twins! Two little girls. The father would have preferred boys; girls were more of a burden than boys. (That is what he thought.) By and by as money was needed for the children, she felt she had a right at least to spend her own money. Her husband differed. Now she decided to confront her problem. She had come to believe that a man doesn't necessarily own a woman merely because they have been issued a marriage certificate. She thought, and thought, and planned! Finally, she told her husband she wasn't going to live with him any more. Struck with surprise, her husband first became angry. There must be some other man. Finally he was convinced there was not. But he would not give in to her "unreasonable demand" that she keep and spend her own earnings. She was adamant; she was leaving. She planned to take the children to her mother. Here her husband had the upper hand. She couldn't have the children! This was the time for strategy. Gretchen was equal to it. "All right," she said, "you can keep them. I can take care of myself but I'm not sure I can take care of two children and it's not fair to burden my mother with them. It was a full 24 hours before he came to her. He had thought it over, and since they were in a new country he would follow the customs of that country.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"I have the feeling young Hensley was railroaded into this marriage."

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

THE BLESSED NATION

WHERE is the ideal nation? The poet may say that the nation whose skies are bluest, whose birds sing most sweetly, whose brooks run clearest is the ideal nation. The modern man may think that the nation best prepared to wreck havoc upon others and impose its will upon the greater part of mankind should be the ideal nation. But the believer in the Almighty will declare that the land where brotherly love prevails and the highest sit at meat with their lowest, and where men have a due regard for other nations beyond its borders is the ideal nation.

The testing of all kinds of bombs may not be the cause of the dread weather in many sections of the country, but the felt necessity of such tests and the concern to have a large enough "stockpile" remind us that we in America can no longer rest in fancied security behind the oceans. The problems of the world are so difficult that no man can venture a sure solution. But we can believe that the God of battles is not always on the side of the biggest bombs and the largest equipment for slaughtering men. We must hold to a great faith of 3000 years ago and trust for our security and well being in Him who went about doing good and taught men to love one another.

SOME of the most pleasant and enjoyable weekend fishing or camping trips are quite often those taken on the spur of the moment. Fishing expeditions, particularly, seem to work out this way. Plan a big trip, think about it for weeks, anticipate all the fish you are going to catch . . . and the trip turns into a washout. Take off on one of those quick-decision affairs and you come home with the limit.

But regardless of whether you plan your trip well in advance or on short notice, if you are going to be away from civilization and such modern conveniences as the corner grocery store, take time out to make yourself a checklist of items to take with you. Quite often what is a highly successful outing is somewhat dimmed by the inconvenience of having to go two or three days without the salt, sugar, or coffee somebody forgot to bring along. Sugar and salt we usually take for granted, but both are sorely missed, even when "roughing it" in the great outdoors.

Matches are another item that usually gets in short supply during weekend trips. Many forget to take enough along, or allow the supply they have to get wet, and have to discover that the old Boy Scout method of starting fire with sticks is not all it is cracked up to be.

The best method of being sure that you take everything you need is to prepare a checklist before hand and double-check the list immediately before starting your trip.

If you are going on a fishing expedition, don't cut short the supply of food you intend to take and expect to supplement your menus with the fish you catch. It's much wiser to bring food back than to not have enough on hand.

HERE'S a good casserole to take along on a picnic. Mix canned baked beans with catsup and brown sugar and place in casserole. Top with pork sausage links placed like the spokes of a wheel, and then place apple wedges all along the side. Heat, cover and transport to the picnic.

Out of barbecue sauce when you're ready to grill? Brush with French dressing as a pleasing surprise.

Make "weiners" out of your hamburger mixture and press in a long piece of American cheese. After broiling, serve these in Coney buns.

Make several batches of cookies over a period of time and always freeze a small portion of each

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE
Marshmallow-Pineapple Mold
 (Serves 4-6)
 1 package lime-flavored gelatin
 1 cup of hot water
 1 cup pineapple juice and water
 2 slices pineapple, diced
 4 marshmallows, finely cut
 Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add pineapple juice and water. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in pineapple and marshmallows. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with marshmallow sauce, if desired.

batch. Then you'll have cookies to take along on a picnic when the time comes.

For the back porch supper place your browned hamburger mixture in the bottom of a skillet, then top with baking powder biscuit dough. Bake in a hot oven until biscuits are done and serve upside down with raw onion rings.

Keep sliced ham, tongue and corned beef in the freezer for times when you want a quick cold supper. All these go well with kidney bean or potato salad which can be mixed in quick time with canned potatoes or beans.

White Satin Ribbon, Candlelight and Butterflies

Candlelight gleams on white satin ribbon. And only the way the bride's bouquet trembles . . . only the way the groom nervously straightens his tie . . . tells the secret of the butterflies fluttering in their hearts as they start out on one of life's greatest adventures.

Whether or not the young couple lives happily ever after usually depends on how successfully they meet and share the problems of everyday living. And not the least of these problems is financial. A family's sound financial standing depends as much upon a woman's ability to manage money as it does her husband's ability to make it. And a family savings program is as much the wife's responsibility as it is her husband's.

Many young couples today are working towards financial security by investing regularly in U. S. Series E Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. It's the easiest way to save—and one of the safest.

Now Savings Bonds are better than ever!

Every Series E Savings Bond purchased since February 1, 1957, pays 3 1/4% interest when held to maturity. It pays higher interest, too, in the earlier years, and matures in only 8 years and 11 months. Now, more than ever, it's smart to save with guaranteed-safe U. S. Savings Bonds. Buy them regularly where you bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

THE STARS

by LYN CONNELLY

TENNESSEE ERNIE FORD'S grandmother was very happy when the nation's number one peapicker was chosen for the subject of a recent "This Is Your Life" TV show. "Ernie's a good boy," she drawled. But when she was told that emcee Ralph Edwards wanted her to fly to Hollywood for the show, she balked. "Oh, no! I'm going up there once—only once—and this isn't the time." Incidentally, the show on Ernie's life was one of the better ones concerning show people.

Pat Boone will star in his own TV series on the ABC-TV network next fall. The show's sponsor, Chevrolet, is giving Boone a TV build-up on its current shows, all of which are on competing networks. This is a boy who really doesn't need a build-up. His records speak for themselves. We figure Pat will fit into the Crosby-Como groove just neatly: a clean-living, American-type singer whose family comes first and who can really sing, be it ballad or swing.

PLATTER CHATTER MERCURY—Nick Noble has a new waxing that should hit big. His "A Fallen Star" is a natural for his style and the backing, "They're Playing Our Song" is real schmaltzy for those romantic moods. which even teenagers must have once in a while between frantic disks. Freddie Bell belts out "You're Gonna Be Sorry" and "Rockin' Is My Business" on a hot biscuit that's tailor-made for the rock-happy crowd. Sil Austin comes up with a real gone number in "He's a Real Gone Guy" backed by happy "Dues Day."

CAPITOL—Gordon MacRae, who has nothing to offer but an excellent voice, does "When You Kiss Me" backed by "Endless Love." This boy really has it but unless you play guitar you're dead these days. Tommy Watts gets the beat in "Louise" and "Grasshopper Hop Jump" Wow!
