Present County Fat Stock Show Awards

County 4-H and FFA youths captured awards for their production of fat baby beef in the County Fat Stock Show held Saturday at the county fair barn in Stratford.

Larry Goule showed the grand champion steer, and Walter Lasley showed the reserve champion steer. A hog belonging to Cleo Aduddell won grand champion honors, and Gay Judd showed the reserve champion hog. The beef cattle showmanship award went to Walter Lasley and Cleo Aduddell won the swine showmanship award.

Record contest awards were presented to: Gay Judd, Scott Whorton, Charles Clements, Joe Ray Brown, James Spurlock, Cagle Kendrick, Garry Dettle, Walter Lasley and Keith Borth.

Trophies donated were: grand champion steer by Elmer Hudson and Elmer Summerour; reserve champion steer by The First State Bank; grand champion hog by W. W. Gay; reserve champion hog by Consumers Co.; beef cattle showmanship by Pronger Bros.; swine showmanship award by Arthur Judd and the Sherman County Farm Bureau donated the nine record contest awards.

Obituary

Laura Catherine Barnes was born in Higbee, Missouri December 9, 1883 and passed from this life in Amarillo on January 15, 1959, at the age of 75 years. She suffered a stroke four weeks before her death.

She moved with her family to Texas when a small child settling in Hall County where she went to school, graduating from high school in Memphis.

In 1901 her family moved to Hutchinson County, locating in the northwest part of the county.

"Miss Laura" as she was called, taught school in Sherman County in the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Boney, riding horseback the seven miles from her home to the school when the weather permitted, and staying in the Boney home in winter or bad weather.

She was united in marriage to Andrew G. Browder on December 25, 1904 in a double service in which her sister, Nannie, and Edgar E. Williams were also married. Mrs. Williams passed away in February of 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Browder first made their home in a dugout in Hansford County. To this union five children were born. They moved to the family home in Sherman County only a short time before Mr. Browder's death in 1917, leaving her to be both mother and father to her family. There was no school house in that part of the county, so school was held in her home two or three years until a district was organized and a school house built. She served on the school board and most of the teachers lived in her home. She helped in bringing church and Sunday School and entertainment for the young folks to the community.

On May 17, 1927 she married Clyde F. Moon, and in 1947 they moved to Amarillo. She was a member of the Polk Street Methodist Church and the Rebecca Lodge.

Survivors include her husband, C. F. Moon of Amarillo; three sons, Luther, Wesley and Roy Browder, Sunray; two daughters, Mrs. Thelma Eubank of Pontiac, Michigan, Mrs. W. J. (Helen) Sparks of Amarillo; two stepsons, Leslie and Carrol Moon of California; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Grady (Lois) Albright, Enid, Oklahoma, Mrs. Ruth Ellis, Arlington, Texas, Mrs. Virgil (Agnes) Watkins of Fort Worth; twelve grandchildren, fifteen great grandchildren, one brother-in-law, two nephews and two nieces.

Beavers are usually gentle toward human beings. Even if handled, they are likely to use flailing tail rather than thistle-like teeth in self-defense.

Mrs. Nobles Laid To Rest

Funeral services for Mrs. Martena Nobles, 77 year old mother of Mrs. Jack Golladay, were conducted Saturday morning in St. John's Catholic Church in Borger by Father Matthew Schafle, pastor.

Rosary services were held in the Ed Brown Funeral Chapel. Burial was made in Highland Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Nobles died at 11:55 p. m. Wednesday of last week at her home in Borger.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. S. V. McKee of Borger, Mrs. Jack Golladay of Stratford, Mrs. J. C. Bennett of Phoenix, Arizona and Mrs. W. H. Zinser of Dalhart; two sons, R. L. Nobles of Dalhart and C. B. Nobles of Childress; two brothers, Henry and Joe Mierwik, both of Killeen; three sisters, Mrs. Albena Hoyet and Mrs. Victoria Schaffer, both of Killeen, and Mrs. Betty Bettege of Dickinson; 13 grandchildren, and 15 great grandchildren.

Tests of four Sherman County gas wells have been completed. James F. Smith & Cree Drilling Co. No. A-1 Bivins in section 1 of Block 1-C, produced 631,000 cubic feet of gas from 2,900 to 3,004 feet.

James F. Smith & Cree Drilling Co. No. 1 Hart-Burnett Unit in section 32 of Block 1-C, produced 334,000 cubic feet of gas from 3,081 to 3,156 feet.

G. R. Whittington No. 1-13 Bivins in section 13 of Block 2, produced 437,000 cubic feet of gas from 2,974 to 3,059 feet.

G. R. Whittington et al No. 1 Roberts in section 9 of Block 3-T, produced 537,000 cubic feet of gas from 3,140 to 3,275 feet.

Dr. Cogdill P-TA Speaker January 26

Dr. Jack Cogdill, Ph.D., head of the speech department of Panhandle Agricultural & Mechanical College of Goodwell, Oklahoma, will be the principal speaker at the Stratford P-TA meeting January 26. The meeting will open in the school auditorium at 7:00 p. m.

Dr. Cogdill will use the importance of speech in school curriculum as his subject.

Gene Livingston, Kay Johnson and Zetta Moore, PAMC speech students, who will take part in the speech contest to be held in Denver, Colorado, will also appear on the program.

A meeting of the Band Boosters Club will be held at the close of the P-TA meeting.

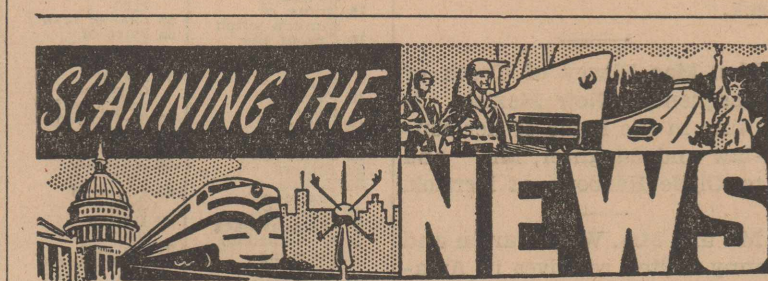

O. H. Ingham Kills Bobcat

O. H. Ingham shot and killed a 27 pound Bobcat on his farm at about 10:00 a. m. Saturday. The cat moved out of the field into the road as he was returning to town. Ingham was forced to shoot the animal several times to kill it.

Mrs. Lola Eggers is having the Bobcat mounted to display in her cafe.

It takes a temperature of over 4,400 degrees Fahrenheit to melt the precious metal ruthenium.

Compliance To Affect Future Wheat Acreage

WHEN the Republican National Committee meets in Washington to re-align the party policies and kick off the 1960 Presidential election campaign, it will be presented with a mass of figures and statistical evidence relative to the part labor unions played in the November elections.

Informed sources indicate there will be deep changes in party strategy, as there must be. Observers are convinced that it was the efforts of organized labor which turned what might have been a close November election into an impressive Democratic sweep.

The right-to-work proposal on the ballot of six states hurt Republican candidates, not only in these states, but in neighboring states as well. Republican identification with right-to-work programs, coming at a time when people were still concerned with recession, cost the party many votes. Despite the fact that high administration officials, including those in the White House, assured the people that the economy was recovering, the recession was a major issue at the polls.

Some party leaders are convinced that it was the efforts of organized labor which caused the Republicans to lose the big cities by wide margins. They dropped 33 of 45 Congressional seats from Urban areas. Democratic efforts, backed up with solid support from labor organizations, proved too much of a hurdle for Republican candidates.

One of the biggest tasks facing the Republican party, observers say, is that of impressing all party leaders and party professionals with the significance of the Democratic victory and the factors that were responsible for it. Republican staffers have been busy since the election last November, gathering a mountain of evidence which they will present to the National Committee meeting. Two things are certain to come out of the meeting: First, the party will realize that it must find new sources of campaign money to match the combined resources of the Democratic Party and the Unions. Second, the party must begin campaigning immediately for the election two years hence.

Washington observers believe the Democrats will work to strengthen their position with a wide-scope legislative program which goes beyond that already outlined. This is based on the fact that new "liberal" Democrat leaders are impressed with the strength of labor support and convinced that the South can be dealt with more strongly on civil rights, inasmuch as Southerners have nowhere else to turn at election time.

This is the pattern that develops. But, it may not be as simple as it appears. Such a pattern is based upon the ability of the new "liberal" Democrats to curb the Southern Senators and the many Congressional Committees whose chairmen are Southerners.

Ask Return Of Library Books

Anyone having books which were checked out of the County Library before September 15, are asked by Mrs. J. W. Hodges, librarian, to please return them.

Mrs. Hodges states that all donations are appreciated, especially children's books.

Death Claims Mrs. Thompson

Mrs. Ida May Thompson, 71 year old mother of C. L. Thompson, died in her sleep at her home in Manitou, Oklahoma Sunday of last week. Funeral services were conducted Friday in the First Baptist Church at Manitou and burial was made in Snyder, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by four sons: C. L. Thompson of Stratford, R. D. Thompson of Crane, Texas, Sammie W. Thompson of Fort Worth, Texas, and Luther Leon Thompson of Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thompson returned home from Oklahoma Sunday night after attending the funeral.

Three Elks On District Grid Team

Three Stratford boys placed on the district class A football team for their plays during the '58 season. Joedale Reesing, guard, placed on the first team. Dwayne Plunk, center, and James Spurlock, fullback, were named to the second team.

The Elks lost to Gruver in the district championship game.

White Deer state champions defeated Gruver in the bi-district game.

Pendleton At Houston Meeting

J. R. Pendleton left Tuesday to attend the Federal Land Bank stockholders meeting in Houston.

"HEY, YOU SO-CALLED WEATHER PROPHET--"

The acreage of wheat produced in 1959 on a farm with a wheat allotment will affect the farm's wheat acreage history for future years, according to R. C. Buckles, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

This is the result of amendments to the wheat allotment-marketing quota laws which go into operation in 1959 and which will affect the history credit to be used in determining future wheat allotments on farms on which the wheat allotment is exceeded.

The new law does not affect the determination of allotments for farms on which the wheat acreage is within the farm allotment. As in the past, farms on which the wheat allotment is not exceeded will get full credit for the allotment plus the acreage held out of wheat production under the allotment program, in the determination of future allotments for those farms.

The County ASC chairman gave the following explanation of the effect that over producing the farm wheat allotment would have in several different situations:

1. Producers on farms on which the wheat acreage allotment is exceeded and on which there is a farm marketing excess of wheat have two choices:

(a) Pay the marketing quota penalty and receive wheat acreage history credit for the farm equal only to the wheat acreage allotment for the farm.

(b) Deliver the farm marketing excess of wheat to the Secretary of Agriculture or store it, on the farm under bond or in a commercial warehouse. The warehouse receipt must be deposited with the County ASC office. If this is done, the farm will receive acreage history credit for that year equal to the wheat allotment plus any acreage considered as having been taken out of harvest production, which will be the difference between the allotment and the base for that year. The acreage credit in this case is the same as though the wheat allotment had not been exceeded. However, the acreage credit will be lost if the stored wheat is later depleted under such circumstances as to make the producer liable for the marketing quota penalty.

2. Farms on which the wheat acreage allotment is exceeded but there is no farm marketing excess of wheat will be credited with only the wheat allotment acreage for that year in determining future wheat allotments for the farm. Such a case, where the farm wheat allotment may be exceeded but there is no farm marketing excess of wheat on the farm, may occur because:

(a) The total wheat acreage on the farm is 15 acres or less;

(b) The normal production of the acreage planted to wheat is less than 200 bushels;

(c) The yield per acre was so low that the total wheat production was less than the normal production of the farm's wheat acreage allotment and application for the downward adjustment was made to the County Committee in accordance with regulations; or

(d) The farm has been approved for the production of up to 30 acres of wheat for use on the farm under the feed wheat program.

It takes a raft of friends to keep some people afloat.

3 slices finely cut bacon
3 cups diced cold boiled potatoes
1 12-ounce can corned beef
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 10 1/2-ounce can vegetable soup
1 medium avocado
Salt and parsley

Fry bacon until crisp; remove from pan and mix with potatoes, corned beef, onion and undiluted soup. Return to heavy pan and fry slowly until heavy crust forms on bottom. Peel and cut avocado lengthwise. Turn out hash on platter and cut gashes at 2-inch intervals. Insert avocado in gashes, season with salt and garnish with parsley for serving.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

On The Subject Of Being Friendly

By C. D. Smith

A teenager asks: "How can you be friendly to people you don't like? I can't like some of the friends (children of business associates) my parents choose for me and I find it hard to be friendly. My folks insist I go places with them, such as parties, but I can't enjoy myself. Anything I can do about it?"

In the world of business, we can't do our buying and selling on the basis of personalities. If you are a retailer, for example, you must sell to everyone—people you like and people that you may not like. The success of any businessman depends upon his ability to get along with everyone and a top-notch businessman has a professional air about him that is just as undiscriminating as that of a doctor.

In private life, we are free to choose and select our friends as we wish, theoretically speaking. Yet, if we are still subject to the authority of parents, we find they must exercise some control over the type of friends that we choose. They have a responsibility to see that their children keep the right kind of company. If we are adults, and we work for a living, it is not always possible (even if desirable) that we can draw a line that completely separates our business friends from our after-business-hours activities. Many highly successful businessmen do more for their business during after-hours social activities than during the regular 8 to 4 business day.

The ability to be friendly and "nice" to people that one doesn't particularly like is a highly desirable trait, not only on a social plane, but in business as well. Of course, it's far better to "like" everyone, if we can. A famous American humorist once said, "I never met a man I couldn't like." We might think about this remark when we meet someone that we don't like. If we try to know them and understand them, chances are high that we get to like them more and more and we get to know more and more about them.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

She was ready for him when he came in, but not with a word of welcome. "I thought I told you, Bill Holman, to take your trade elsewhere. I thought I told you—" "You did and I am. Hereafter I'm stopping at the Valley Snack Bar, run by a gorgeous little brunette. And you told me plenty more. How you wouldn't marry me unless I gave up trucking. How you had an uncle in San Diego who would get me a job in the Convair plant. How I thought more of the bright face of danger than I did of you. How—" "Then why are you here?" "I'm here to ask you to favor me with one last ride. Over the Grapevine."

"You want to show me that it isn't really a dangerous route. Sorry, Bill, no dice." She shrugged her shoulders. "All right," she yielded, "but what I've already said still goes. I'm not marrying any man to have him brought home smashed up from an accident."

"I'll call for you at nine-thirty next Wednesday. My day off." Chris was ready when Bill arrived, not in the trailer truck, but in his own sports car. An hour later, "Pretty scenic, isn't it?" asked Bill, as they topped a long grade to see spread below a lush valley green with irrigated crops.

"Very scenic. And what are all those piles of sand for on each side of the road ahead?" "Well, you see the elevation is 7,542 feet. So when—" "When it rains everywhere else, it's ice up here." "That's right, and the sand makes driving perfectly safe." Suddenly, "What on earth does that sign mean?" demanded Chris. "ESCAPE RAMP. What is an Escape Ramp?" Bill swallowed. "That's—that's another thing that makes the road so safe. Once in a long while a truck goes out of control with burned-out brakes, and all the driver has to do is run right up that ramp—and there you are!"

A moment later Bill stopped in front of a small, freshly painted building. VALLEY SNACK BAR. And Chris remembered. The "gorgeous little brunette." And she truly was. Bill introduced them. "Rosa, this is Christine Bender. Chris, this is my very good friend, Rosa Gonzales." Rosa's lovely brown eyes sparkled. "So glad to meet you! Must be girl weeth so kind uncle weel get our Bill so good job in airplane factory, only Bill, he like be trucker more."

Our Bill indeed! "Yes," said Chris, "I'm that girl." Rosa hovered over their table as they ate their enchiladas and melon. She and Bill carried on a lively conversation, seeming at all times to know more about Bill than Chris did herself.

Back in the little sports car, Chris was silent for a long time. Suddenly she slipped her arm through Bill's. "I've changed my mind about breaking our engagement. You've made me see there are other dangers than those of the road, dangers that would follow you wherever you were. "You mean—girls?" "I mean girls. You need someone to act as — well, a pile of sand and an escape ramp along that line, and I might as well take on the job." "You may be right," said Bill thoughtfully. "You may very well be right." He must remember on his next trip over the Grapevine to thank Rosa for her cooperation, also to ask her where she had hidden her husband Manuel and the twins.

Mrs. Zimmer Entertains Variety Club

On January 14, the Variety Club met in the home of Mrs. Albert Zimmer for a covered dish luncheon at one o'clock. Mrs. Ralph Keener, president, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Albert Zimmer, Mrs. Tom Lavake and Mrs. Kenneth Borth were appointed to plan programs for the year.

Variety Club standing rules were read by Mrs. J. W. Smith. Mrs. Raymond Keener was elected assistant reporter.

January 31 at 7:00 p. m. club members will have a supper for their families. This will be held in the home of Mrs. Jimmie Milam. Mrs. Bill Keener was appointed chairman of the decoration committee and the supper menu was planned.

The next regular meeting will be January 28 at noon, with Mrs. Raymond Keener. To this meeting, all members are to bring small note books to be made into club books.

Those present were Mesdames Raymond Keener, Tom Lavake, Kenneth Borth, Jimmie Milam, Bill Keener, J. W. Smith, Ralph Keener, D. L. Torrey and Albert Zimmer.

THE STARS

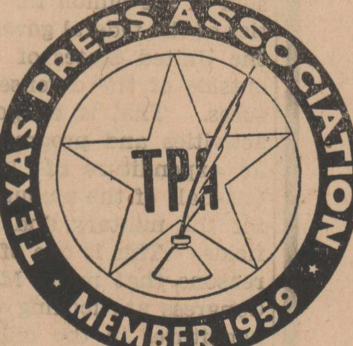

By LYN CONNELLY

THE cry of "the bands are coming back" has been raised periodically for the past few years but recently there have been growing indications that such might be the case, according to Capitol Records' Music Views... The interesting thing is that the revival is happening to the same bands that made it the first time around... The Glenn Miller orchestra, under the baton of Ray McKinley, has been doing very well, as has the Benny Goodman band... The Tommy Dorsey outfit with trombonist Warren Covington at the helm, has been making a successful tour of one-nighters and has had a single record of hit proportions, "Tea for Two Cha-Cha"...

On the record scene, Glen Gray's "The Sounds of the Great Bands" album on Capitol has been a big seller... An album featuring vocal arrangements of dance band themes recorded by the Clark Sisters has also been successful... Eventually each generation gets around to thinking that their parents' had some pretty good music, too... Should rock 'n roll fade out completely you can bet it will be revived as something "brand new" in about 1975 (survive it again? Oh, no!).

PLATTER CHATTER MERCURY:—June Valli has her first big hit on this label with "The Wedding," an unusual type of ballad that is bound for Hitville... Reverse has "Lunch Hour" which comes about 20 years too late for June... We wish Mercury would stop giving these cooling, gurgling type of songs—especially school songs — to old-timers Valli and Patli Page... Especially when they have a legitimate teenager with a great voice in Joy Layne who would lap up "Lunch Hour" and "Fibbin"... Tony Dalardo debuts impressively with a pretty Italian ditty, "Come Prima" backed by "Condannami." Rusty Draper, always great, comes up with "Shoppin' Around" and "With This Ring" that have a good commercial sound.

State Of The Union Message

(By Walter Rogers)

President Eisenhower's State of the Union message to the 86th Congress on January 9 with vastly similar to his last two State of the Union messages. He began it by blasting communism, which met with the approval of almost everyone present except the representatives of Russia and her satellites. He then proceeded to use the communist threat as justification for the tremendous expenditures of this government. This was, of course, acknowledged by most of those listening, although many will differ with him as to the methods employed in expending tax money for defense purposes. There is a definite feeling on the part of many Members of Congress that there is a tremendous waste in military expenditures that should be corrected at this session of Congress. The Administration will find it necessary to justify military expenditures on an economic as well as a defense basis. The general proposition that the military is an untouchable holy cow will not be recognized. It can be expected that many questions will be asked with regard to the cost of weapons. The Congress will not be satisfied with the simple statement that an atomic submarine costs $50 million and some cost three times that much, nor that certain bombers cost their weight in gold, nor that the cost of a missile on the firing range is $35 million. What Congress wants to know is why. They will expect to be furnished with information as to who is collecting the prices for these weapons and whether or not the taxpayers are getting skinned in the process.

The President stated that the armed forces, the Atomic Energy Commission, and military assistance would require $47 billion in 1960. This would mean that all of the other government activities would have $30 billion. When you subtract from this $30 billion the interest that must be paid on the public debt in the amount of $8 billion, it leaves the sum of $22 billion for all activities of the federal government of the United States of America outside of the defense expenditures. That is, all government activities and programs require an expenditure of less than one-half of the amount required for the military and associated fields. This is one of the main reasons that many Members of Congress are looking to the expenditures in the military programs in an effort to cut out waste and provide possible reductions.

The President proceeded to outline his desire for the setting up of goals to be achieved in the future to meet the growing needs and demands of this nation. He proposed for this work "a group of selfless and devoted individuals." This is certainly an ideal with which everyone would agree, but the history has been to find that group of selfless and devoted individuals. If this could be achieved it would go a long way toward the abolition of greed, one of the greatest enemies of mankind. Let us hope that he is eminently successful in his search for this "selfless and devoted" group. However, I do think that before a great deal of the taxpayers' money is spent on another bureau, agency, committee, or whatever you want to call it, the people should have definite proof that those comprising the organization are purely "selfless and devoted individuals." We presently have entirely too many federal boards, bureaus, and agencies of all kinds that aren't entirely controlled by "selfless and devoted individuals."

There are many other items mentioned in the President's message, but space will not permit me to touch on each of them. However, there was one incident that merits special mention. It was the only time that the President engaged in ad-libbing during his speech. His speech contained these words: "I shall recommend to the Congress that the Chief Executive be given the responsibility either to approve or to veto specific items in appropriations and authorization bills." The President's face then broke into a broad grin because he well knew that the grins on the faces

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Esther Tierney, Freehold, N. Y.: Whenever I see a rooster I invariably chuckle. It brings back the time I set fire to Mrs. Scutt's rooster.

One of my daily chores as a child was to get the mail. Mrs. Scutt, who lived along the road, had an ugly rooster that made my life miserable. He would come charging out at me like a miniature cyclone with murder in his beady eyes. I always provided myself with a weapon of some sort if he was on the landscape.

On this particular day I had scanned the land and decided that he must be in the coop. So I was without protection and totally unprepared when suddenly I heard his ugly chuckle behind me. I had, however, a box of kitchen matches which my grandmother had wanted from the store. There was only one thing to do and I did it. With all my strength I heaved the box of matches at him. They landed smack dab under him and as they landed they exploded and burst into flames. He jumped higher than my head, screeching like a banshee. When he came down and took off for other parts his tail feathers were smoking.

From then on his spirit was broken. He was good for nothing. Nothing at all. Every hen in the flock pecked at him and very soon he landed on Mrs. Scutt's dinner table.

If you wish to be perfect, follow the advice that you give others.

of the Members of Congress evidenced what was in their minds. The President then said, and he was correct, "I realize that this power has been sought every year for a long time, but has never been granted the Chief Executive." There was laughter in the Chamber because the Members well knew the past history of this request. To vest in the Chief Executive of this country the right to veto any item in an appropriation bill would be to vest in the Chief Executive powers he was not intended to have under the Constitution. It is true that if such a right was properly and discreetly exercised it would not do harm, but if it was misused it could do tremendous damage to the entire country and every section of it. It would constitute an unlimited power, which our form of government does not contemplate be vested in one individual.

District Committee Elected

Arlyn Haile, Lester Plunk and Walter Lasley were elected to the Sherman County Committee of the North Plains Water Conservation District for a two year term of office in the annual election held Tuesday of last week.

A natural arch in Davis Gulch that empties into southern Utah's Escalante River bears the name of Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, president of the National Geographic Society. The window of La Gorce arch measures 100 feet wide by some 75 feet high.

The WORLD OUTDOORS
By MIKE BENNETT

FOR some, it is a joy to behold a work of art, a painting perhaps, or a statue that some master craftsman has carved and chiseled from a once-lifeless hunk of stone. There may be delight in the creation of a beautiful rose, or marvel at the wizardry of the artist who blows the breath of beauty into a piece of glass.

There is endless beauty in the world outdoors, for Mother Nature is the matchless artist and she works her wonders in wood and rock and sand and sky. She may draw in straight and simple lines the sight of a lonesome tree silhouetted against a somber sky. Or she may be complex and use the water and the wind to form grotesque shapes in a mountain of stone. Soft and gentle, with tender, loving hands she may stretch a blanket of whiteness across brown fields and barren hills, hanging icicles, like tinkling bells, everywhere in sight.

No clock-watcher, she, Mother Nature works wonders sometimes with direct suddenness, or with careful patience and the results of her efforts reflect many moods; quietness and serenity; joy and happiness; force and anger. Yet, like any true artists, Mother Nature does not take for her own or design for her own self; the element of giving is reflected in all that she does. Melting snows soften and nourish an earth that has been frozen and crusted; warm rains cool parched expanses and put the sap into growing things. High on any hillside, an ancient tree may drop its limbs and begin to die; but nearby, a young sapling will grow in the warmth of the sun. Born of the ancient one, this young sapling finds its roots in soft earth and with the rain and snow and sun of summers and winters will reach for seasons into the sky, a living tribute to Mother Nature.
