Study Club

The Prospectus Study Club met Friday in the home of Mrs. Carroll Wisdom with Mrs. Bill Pendleton as co-hostess.

Mrs. C. C. Plunk announced plans for the old settlers reunion September 10 at the American Legion building. Registration will begin at 2:00 p. m. and the program will begin at 2:30.

An interesting program has been planned with fiddle music, a sing-song and prizes.

A king and queen for the Old Settlers reunion were previously chosen by the club. Mrs. Tim Flores and P. J. Pronger Sr. will ride in the parade Saturday morning.

Mrs. R. M. Buckles introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Lucian Spencer of Dumas, who spoke of the possibilities of a junior college for this area and of the means to provide it.

With college enrollment increasing, many students will possibly be unable to attend college in the future unless more facilities are provided. It is thought that Moore County and the Stratford Independent School District would make an ideal junior college district as there are sufficient taxable property and students.

The state would provide a large grant per student and the student would pay the standard tuition fee of $100 per year. The rest would be paid by local taxes. This would come to an average of about $9.83 per section of land and about $2.00 to $3.00 per house. Industry would pay the rest of the estimated $40,500 due yearly from the Stratford Independent School District.

Mrs. Wisdom and Mrs. Pendleton served delicious refreshments of stuffed tomato salad, hot rolls and coffee to Mesdames Fred McDaniel, Vern Foreman, Baskin Brown, R. M. Buckles, Bill Allen, Walter Vincent, B. L. Smith, H. H. Caraway, C. C. Plunk, Rene Gunzelman, Jack Heil, E. R. Bell, Kenneth Kendrick, Alfred Pronger, Bill Reed, A. L. Ross and a guest, Mrs. Hoyt Cranfield.

Elks Win 60-22 Game Over Texline

Stratford Elks opened the 1960 season by defeating the Texline Tornadoes 60 to 22 in the first game of the season Friday night. The Elks easily took the game with well timed team-work. Boys carrying the ball were protected at all times by splendid interference, making it possible for them to make spectacular gains in yardage.

The Elks scored 24 points in the first quarter and held Texline scoreless. Bobby Seaman ran 55 yards behind good interference for the first touchdown. Willy Steinberger took the ball across for two additional points.

After several plays the Elks again took the ball and moved down the field. Willy Steinberger scored the touchdown on a five yard plunge. Jerry Adams scored the two additional points, bringing the score to 16 to 0. Texline received the kick-off on

Oregon's Klamath Country

Oregon's famous Klamath Country is a tucked away year-round playground in legendary Indian country. The word Klamath was taken from the tribe of Indians called Klamath by early white travelers. First appearance of the name, according to McArthur's "Oregon Geographic Names" is in a letter from Peter Skene Ogden, dated July 1, 1826. Ogden was in Klamath Country in the fall of that year.

Early settlers faced intermittent trouble with the original Americans, ranging from small raids and forays, including the massacres of the wagon trains at Bloody Point in 1852. Klamath lay on the direct route of the widely known "South Road" path of countless wagon trains of Western settlers of the Northwest.

In 1867, George Nurse, a merchant from Fort Klamath, built what was to be the start of the town of Linkville, which in 1893 was incorporated as Klamath Falls.

The Klamath Country is widely known as a hunter's and fisherman's paradise. The area is located on the main Pacific flyway for migratory waterfowl. Upland birds include Chinese pheasants and both mountain and valley quail. A great herd of mule deer range over the mountainous area

The Danger Of Red China

(By Walter Rogers)

The man Lenin called "the best file clerk in Russia," has bounced out of obscurity and into the headlines once again. After a three-year exile as Russian Ambassador to Outer Mongolia, Vyacheslav Mikhailovich Molotov will soon re-enter the splendor of full-fledged diplomatic life as delegate to the International Atomic Energy Agency. Molotov, who was Soviet Foreign Minister and Joseph Stalin's closest associate, was swept from the Kremlin in 1957 for opposition to Nikita S. Khrushchev.

His withdrawal from the remote Mongolian capital of Ulan Baator touched off a chain of Western speculation. Outer Mongolia is a virtual subsidiary of Red China, and the prevailing thought seemed to be that the Russians felt Molotov has been a bit too sympathetic with the tough, unyielding policies of the Chinese. The Kremlin has been working to move Molotov to a new assignment for more than a year, perhaps with the hope of finding this devoted Stalinist an atmosphere less agreeable to his own ideological tastes.

Molotov's transfer may thus be another symptom of a deep-seated dispute between Soviet Russia and Red China. Although it has received scant general attention here, this dispute is of foremost importance in relation to our struggle with the communist world. The grim argument between these two totalitarian giants may well be as vital to the survival of freedom as our own opposition to communism as a whole. For the central theme of the Russian-Chinese battle concerns nothing less than the necessity of all-out war with Western capitalism.

Red China not only believes in the inevitability of war, but even suggests that a nuclear holocaust might be a good thing. The Chinese leadership has stated that should half its people die in such a war the country would still have a greater population than either Russia or America does today. This chilling attitude directly conflicts with Soviet pronouncements that war is "unthinkable" and that peaceful co-existence was a guiding principle for Lenin. None of this means, of course, that the Chinese seek war tomorrow or that the Russians have given up war forever. But the implications of the basic struggle are obvious.

Both the Soviet Union and Red China, since their very beginnings, have twisted the writings of Karl Marx to fit their own expedient purposes. Lenin's version of Communism could not be used in China, Mao Tse-tung's interpretation would have failed in Russia, and both leaders learned very quickly that the brittle dogmas of Marx were unworkable in any society. Thus Communism has developed into a highly nationalistic and authoritarian system which has radical differences in each country and which would be largely unrecognizable by Marx himself.

These traditional differences in interpretation led to open conflict between Moscow and Peiping last spring, when the Red Chinese openly opposed a Summit Conference between East and West. There has been ample evidence since that time to indicate the extreme aggressiveness of China within the communistic bloc. But for the immediate future, the Soviets seem to hold the winning cards. The Peiping regime is dependent upon Russian aid and technical advice, not to mention diplomatic support.

The Chinese, however, may hold a series of significant long range trumps. Their rate of population growth has been at least five times that of the Soviet Union. They are expected to develop their own atomic bomb within the next year. The prophet Marx was certainly no enemy of war and would appear to be on the side of Chinese interpretations despite Russian talk of peaceful coexistence. And the opportunities for initiating a full scale war are plentiful for the Chinese, notably in the Formosan straits.

The Soviet Union, after tediously underwriting the communist build-up in China, is very possibly finding that Mao Tse-tung's ambitions are radically different from its own. The Peiping government has not been slow with the realization that should Russia and the United States destroy each other only China would remain, able to establish a world dictatorship with no serious interference. The idea has its appeal for Mao, and exists in the Russian wind primarily as a nightmare.

It's not exactly a pipe dream for America either. The possibilities of a fanatical and enslaved society unleashing a world conflagration are highly ominous, and all the more so because of our own general lack of knowledge about Chinese conditions. The Russian-Chinese argument offers much more than a remote instance of hair splitting or the mere possibility of causing a little embarrassment within the communist camp. We have seen the possibilities behind such a dispute, but we must also be aware of and understand the Communist Chinese life itself, and I will attempt to present a basic outline of some information during the next few weeks.

Whatever lies behind the ideological disputes of China and Russia, the truth is that this could be the opening round in a bitter battle for the leadership of world communism. Such a battle and its outcome will, I am sure, be an object of careful attention and a source of renewed opposition for every American.

Farm Housing Regulations Are Changed

Under a recent change in the eligibility requirements for Farm Housing Loans a farmer who owns a farm that will annually produce for sale or home use at least $400.00 worth of commodities may, if he meets other eligibility requirements be able to obtain a Farm Housing Loan.

Previously an applicant had to own a farm that would produce a substantial amount of the operators income.

Farm Housing loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration and are used to construct and repair needed farm houses and farm service buildings.

Other eligibility requirements for Farm Housing loans remain unchanged. These requirements are that the applicant lacks the resources needed to obtain credit elsewhere, be a citizen of the United States and have sufficient income from farm and other sources to pay farm operating and family living expenses and meet payments when due on his debts.

Applications for this type of credit may be made at the County Office of the Farmers Home Administration located at 118 West 8th Street in Dumas, Texas. This office services Hutchinson, Moore and Sherman Counties.

Vocational Home Economics Summer Program Successful

Mrs. Blanch Strother, vocational home-making teacher, states that she has received the interest and fullest co-operation of both the parents and the girls in the successful completion of the summer project program.

The purposes of the project program are varied:

1. To help the student apply independently in her home things learned during the school year.
2. To interpret to adults the purposes of the home and family living program in the school.
3. To interest adults in including youth in programs and community activities.
4. To make use of parents as resource persons.
5. To work with parents on ways to help to attain independence, and to function as contributing family and community members.
6. To interest parents in providing opportunities for youth to develop a variety of social skills, and in supporting and encouraging youth to carry out home experiences.

The activities, not required by the school but voluntary on the part of the girls, included projects in several areas, with a minimum of 150 hours of work, and a detailed report at the close of the project. Each girl earned one-half credit in home-making.

The twenty-one girls in home-making classes I, II, and III made independently 152 garments, and gave an estimate of the cost and labor time of each.

Other activities included:

1. Planning, preparation and serving well-balanced family meals.
2. Developing specialties as rolls, cakes, salads, pies.
3. Room improvement, as re-painting, making new curtains, rearranging furniture, improving storage facilities.
4. Child care. Baby-sitters used their earnings to buy materials for garments they made and to purchase needed items for their wardrobes.
5. Social activities, entertaining parents or guests on special occasions.
6. Assisting in Vacation Bible Schools, camps and youth programs planning entertainment and refreshments.
7. Care of the sick. Two girls assumed the full responsibility of their homes for several weeks during the illness of their mothers.

Each girl kept a detailed account and prepared a written report of her activities. The reports of Sheila Donelson, Home-making II, and Kay Spurlock, Home-making III, have been rated as college level by several who examined them.

The twenty-one girls who completed and received credit for the summer program are: Jeanette Bardwell Beverly Bolster, Bonnie Combs, Erna Ford, Janet Foreman, Yvonne Gamble, Lorelei Harding, Rita Jacobs, Wynette Morris, Linda Plunk, Ann Pronger, Joyce Scott, Louise Stone, Charlene Wisdom, Mary Worley, Grovone DeBord, Sheila Donelson, Sue Hudson, Lorena Riggs, Angela Teague and Kay Spurlock.
