Losing Eagle Is "Sentence of Economic Death"-Johnson

REGULATION TO BE CHECKED BY COMPLAINT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Removal of the blue eagle from stores and to be violating re-employment agreements was said by Assistant Attorney General Johnson today to be equivalent to "a sentence of economic death."

Johnson was discussing the new code violations. He said that violations for the most part will be taken care of through complaints and trade associations nominating committees and that he does not want to involve public interference.

He said the federal trade commission would be called upon when necessary to use its policing powers. "We are going to assume good faith until we see something different," he said. "The time is coming when somebody is going to take the eagle away in a clear cut case after the public is well informed that a sentence of economic death."

FREE DALLAS SERVICE STATIONS PICKETED.

DALLAS, Aug. 11.—Picketeters held huge signs reading "This station is unfair competition" marched to three filling stations here today as independent gasoline retailers disputed rights and obligations under the NRA.

Picketeters were called to the stations by the owners, F. S. Brownlee and J. E. Brownlee. The owners complained the picketers were driving away trade, that their pumps had been broken and their gasoline adulterated.

Officers took the picketers into custody but allowed them to resume their beats when the police chief said there was no ordinance against peaceful picketing.

Brownlee said his refusal to join the independent dealers in setting minimum gasoline price of 13 cents a gallon had caused the picketing.

"I was selling for 11 cents and they came to see me and asked me to join them at the 13-cent price," he said. "They claimed it was part of the NRA agreement, but according to the way I understood the agreement, we are not supposed to join unless it costs us more to sell. My gasoline is not costing me any more than it was on July 1."

THOMPSON AND ALLIED FAVOR PRICE FIXING

AUSTIN, Aug. 11.—Both Attorney General James V. Allred and Railroad Commissioner E. O. Thompson were on record here today as definitely favoring government fixing of oil prices.

They returned recently from Washington after attending the oil code conferences.

Allred said: "As a general principle I am opposed to government price control. It was necessary, however, during the war and the present emergency is of equal importance."

Home Economics Is Omitted For Term

AUSTIN, Aug. 11.—Moving always a strain on housekeeping proved too much for the home economics department of the University of Texas.

The usual second term of summer school was omitted in this department during the confusion attendant upon moving from campus wooden shacks into the $350,000 building it will occupy.

MEETING TO FORM N. R. A. UNIT CALLED

A meeting of the heads of all clubs—commercial, or of whatever nature may be in the city—at the chamber of commerce Monday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a local bureau to direct the NRA program in Cisco was called. It was announced today.

The meeting has been summoned by the chamber of commerce, which, in Cisco as elsewhere, has been called upon to form the organization to take care of the local campaign.

Fort Worth and other large cities have already perfected their organizations. These, as a rule, are planned in a military style, with a "general" in charge, assisted by "colonels," "majors," and "captains."

These organizations will serve to create sentiment for buying so that those who have raised salaries and put on extra help may be able to continue the cooperation the president and his recovery administrator, Gen. Hugh Johnson, have asked.

It is understood that all checking up on performance of NRA agreements may be done by local people and it is necessary that Cisco act immediately. The announcement said, and the meeting has therefore been summoned for Monday evening.

Organizations included in this invitation are the Lions and Rotary clubs, the Women's Federated clubs, Retail Merchants association, trade unions and so forth. The heads of these organizations will form the executive committee to direct the whole organization.

NEW ERA FOR TEXTILE MILL WORKER OPENS

By FOSTER EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1933, by United Press)

ROME, Ga., Aug. 11.—A new era has opened in this picturesque textile town on the banks of the Etowah river, where 21,000 look to the carders and looms for a livelihood.

At Lindale, a suburb, day-shift boys released from labor at the Pepperell cotton mills, sprawled on the lawn of the community center. A score of workers splashed in the swimming pool, and others played ball or tennis. The company gives a motion picture show every night in the auditorium.

The Pepperell Mills now employ 3,150 regularly in two 40-hour shifts which run from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily except Sunday. The average weekly pay is $14.85 for a 40-hour week compared with an average of $12 plus for a 55-hour week before the code went into effect.

Before the rush of manufacturing in anticipation of the code's adoption, Pepperell employed 1,780 men and women, meaning that 1,370 have been put back to work by the code.

The mills are strictly open shop, but R. D. Harvey, assistant agent, said "if the men voted for a union they could have it, but they have never seemed to care or need it."

Harvey did not seem thoroughly convinced the new industrial scheme would work. He feared prices would advance beyond the consumer's buying power, and pointed out that while mills have cleaned out the stocks piled up during the anticipated rush, distributors' warehouses are jammed.

Teacher Arrested As Bank Bandit

OZARK Mo., Aug. 11.—James Moore, a California, Mo., school teacher and former president of the state teachers college at Springfield, Mo., was arrested here today by police shortly after the Christian county bank had been robbed of $502. That amount was recovered. Bank officers identified him as the man who invaded the bank today. They said he resembled a bandit who held up the place two months ago.

Suspect Held in Slaying of Woman

HEMPSTEAD, Texas, Aug. 11.—Waller county officers held a negro in jail here today as a suspect in the slaying of Elsie Jones, 22, whose beaten body was found half submerged in a creek near the farm of her parents in Houston and returned here last night by County Attorney Jackson. He denied knowledge of the crime.

Meanwhile posses continued to beat the thickets along the Brazos river near the scene of the crime in a search for Marshall Lang, negro cotton picker upon whom suspicion has fastened.

Gas Tax Law Teeth Proving Effective

The last legislature put what were called "teeth" in the gasoline tax laws on the Texas statute books. Millions of dollars in tax revenues were escaping the state tills through wholesale evasion of the levy, state officials said. Those millions meant less money to run the schools, less money to build and maintain roads, and less money to pay off county road debts the state had assumed.

Today evaders are discovering those teeth to be anything but false. In hundreds of instances where leaks have been concealed behind systems of detection, they have proven effectively sharp.

So said V. Earl Earp, assistant attorney general, in charge of gasoline tax enforcement for the attorney general's department, who has been here for two days in connection with investigations conducted out of the Eastland sub-office of the state comptroller. Here with the assistant attorney general has been C. A. Paxton, in charge of all field men of the comptroller's department. Mr. Paxton's headquarters are at Fort Worth, but for the next few days he will be in charge of the sub-office at Eastland, out of which enforcement activities are directed over numerous counties in this section of the state. A force of eight more agents will be added to the six now attached to the Eastland office, it was announced.

"If the present rate of collection continues," said Mr. Earp, "the state will this year collect $3,000,000 more in gasoline taxes than it did last year, in spite of the fact that there are 100,000 less automobiles registered."

Texas is the only state in the southwest showing a gain in gasoline tax collections, he said. "Other states are each of them collecting less revenue from gasoline month by month. Texas, on the contrary, is increasing its collections month by month, and by a considerable margin over collections for corresponding months of last year. This means more money for the schools and more money for highways."

Methods of evasion are innumerable, said the assistant attorney general.

"It is possible to take $3,000 and install a refinery in east Texas that within a month's time will run up a total of $25,000 to $30,000 in gasoline taxes."

The quality of east Texas crude is such that sweet gasoline can be run with the least effort and expense, he said. Consequently, evasions are more lucrative there and the number of instances, as well as the variety of methods employed, is astounding, he said.

Under Billing

Under-billing is the chief method of evasion. For instance, a truck, with an actual capacity of 1,200 gallons, will be labelled to contain only 900 gallons. Auxiliary tanks and other devices are sometimes employed. In the case of some refineries, by-passes have been found leading half a mile to an outlet behind a drug store or other business.

Duplicate records, permitting destruction of the original manifests, and other confusing expedients have also been unearthed, said Mr. Earp. In fact, so varied and so ingenious are the subterfuges employed, he said, that the state side of the gas-refineries, as well as the variety of the state's fiscal history.

"Eventually we are going to get to the bottom of the problem and reach a practically 100 per cent collection," said Earp. "We are making progress, as the record of collections will show. When we have completed the present campaign we are going after violations against misbranding and selling of inferior gasoline as high grade fuel."

Earp said that in instances where refineries or other institutions have been apprehended in violations the state does not follow a policy of closing these institutions. Instead, they are placed under receiver-ships, without change in employee personnel, and every effort made to continue the business of the particular institution without interruption. Under this method the state has a better opportunity to recover delinquent revenues, he said, while the business is preserved.

False Rumor of Lindbergh Death Excites World

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Shortly after 6 p. m. EDT, yesterday a false report that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh had been killed in an airplane crash in Greenland spread around the world and caused excitement on every continent.

The report came from Copenhagen, where it apparently originated in a radio operator's report that he had picked up a message from Greenland saying an aviator had crashed shortly after taking off. The rumor Col. Lindbergh was dead was flashed out by at least one foreign news agency.

In Paris newspapers rushed extra editions to the streets without awaiting confirmation, some publishing full obituaries.

"He had a brief but magnificent career," one Paris paper said.

Pastor Will Speak On N. R. A. Sunday

"The Spiritual Significance of the N. R. A." will be the subject of the sermon which the Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, will deliver at the morning service Sunday, according to an announcement from him.

"There is a question in everybody's mind," the pastor said, "as to what should be the attitude of Christians toward this nationwide movement. Is there anything about it that sanctifies of the Anti-Christian or on the other hand do Christians consider it a movement for their prayerful consideration and utmost cooperation?"

"There have been public statements made through the press," the Rev. Mr. James continued, "that the N. R. A. in the opinion of some, is the 'Mark of the Beast.' I will therefore discuss Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the subject, 'The Beast, His Image Mark, and the Number of His Name.'"

All who are interested are urged to hear both sermons because the first cannot be properly understood without the explanation of the second, it was said.

The Baptist pastor will conduct a meeting at Pueblo, but will fill his own pulpit at both services Sunday.

Veteran Officer Found Shot Dead

DALLAS, Aug. 11.—J. T. Huddleston, 65, veteran peace officer for both state and federal governments, died today in Kiest park, ending his life with a bullet from the .45 caliber pistol he had used to defend himself at numerous occasions in the line of duty.

A park employee found the body and a note which read "My name is J. T. Huddleston. Please notify Bryce Twitty." Nearby lay his pistol, a cherished possession of the former Texas ranger who was, in law, and is superintendent of Baylor hospital.

(By United Press)

John Hilltop, 27, Table Grove, Ill., was shot in a soft drink parlor brawl in London Mills, early today. At Clinton, Ind., two employees of a coal mine were shot by picketers when they approached the mine. Picketers also shot at other miners but no casualties were reported.

WOULD RETIRE IN FAVOR OF AIDE, REPORT

BULLETIN

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 11.—A detachment of 100 soldiers with 8 machine guns took up positions commanding the harbor entrance and Cabanas fortress today and rumors were circulated that the Cabana garrison had mutinied.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 11.—A reliable but unofficial source said today that President Machado was proposing to retire from the presidency in favor of Gen. Alberto Herrera.

The decision on the part of the president was described as a counter-proposal to the peace plan suggested by the United States ambassador whose formula was said to include the retirement of the president.

Gen. Herrera is one of Machado's right-hand men. Observers said the counter-plan would be wholly unacceptable to elements opposed to Machado and believed it also would be unacceptable to the US ambassador.

Though leaders of striking transportation workers and several other unions voted to end the strike, the workers themselves failed to respond. Some street cars were running, manned by police, and one of them was bombed today, injuring six policemen and three civilians.

No dates for putting the plan in effect were set. Administrators concluded it would be impossible to work out details before next Tuesday. The plan is to remove from the domestic market 500,000,000 pounds of pork and pork products between now and January 1 and a total of 2,000,000,000 pounds during the coming marketing year.

LAND OWNERSHIP.

In adjoining columns on this page is an article written by Raymond Brooks, Austin correspondent of the Daily News, that rings the bell on a fact of fundamental economic and political importance. Tenantry is an enduring consequence of extravagance in government. It follows on the heels of high taxes and wastefulness of public funds. This is true for two reasons—the burden of making land produce a profit when so much of the income is exacted to pay governmental costs, and the increasing inclination of the more intelligent classes to resort to employment from which, especially under a regime of liberal public spending, there is an assured income.

It is a fact that the amount of money now being expended or to be expended by the federal government in construction of public works, much of which is of doubtful utility, would effect a more fundamental relief if devoted to a program of wholesale restoration of tenant citizens to the status of proprietor citizens. But any criticism of the present recovery program must take into consideration the emergencies under which it was conceived and the expedient character of the relief itself.

EFFECT ON EDUCATION.

In its final stages the depression will affect two phases of higher education, whereas up until now, attendance has been cut but little in state institutions. There probably will be some decline in the number able to attend college; but more serious, until industry gets under more steam, is the situation when a student gets through, ready to begin his life work.

For the graduates of the past two years, it has been a bleak beginning after the glorious finish of the long road of higher education. For the graduates next spring, one may now confidently hope that work will beckon with a glad smile and toward the chosen occupation or profession for which the student has so long trudged his way.

Texas colleges and the university will levy a substantial higher fee—to a limit of $200 for the long term—upon those who come to them from out of the state for bargain-counter education. This will have the effect and is designed to that end, of cutting down immigrant enrollment, since Texans have to pay the bill in taxes.

But for home-state students, these institutions look for but slightly reduced enrollment, unless the record of the past three years no longer holds good. Until last year, most of the institutions actually gained; but then the pinch back home cut into the numbers. This year it is believed the long drain upon resources will tell more sharply, but that still this essential of education will make prior claim and that comparatively few youths will be denied the privilege of college training.

SHADE FOR HIGHWAYS.

Jac L. Gubbels, landscape engineer of the Texas highway department is dealing with the varied questions and the many problems of starting right on the program of putting trees along sections of many of Texas' main highways.

For utility, for attractiveness and practical benefits, landscape engineers have found that tree-planting should go along, so far as money will permit and community cooperation will assist, with the building and use of the main highways.

One odd drawback has been found to the Texas state tree, and the tree normally most desirable for roadside use—the pecan tree. That is, the proclivity of people to climb the trees to gather pecans, and of throwing sticks and rocks into the trees to knock down the pecans. This is hazardous, and results in many accidents.

Engr. Gubbels has advised Texas people against too great enthusiasm for particular types of trees, if they would avoid possible loss of all their effort. For instance, he has toured highways of Northwest Texas. He reported the Chinese elm, a fast-growing tree, is so popular these other types were forgotten; but that this tree is susceptible to root-rot and tree pests that might in any year destroy every tree in the section.

Other areas have experimented with the black locust tree, and found the entire supply destroyed by borers in three years.

The highway department will sponsor setting out shade trees on sections of many state highways; but it will tackle the job slowly, and use the best experience available in selecting varieties of trees that will best serve and that will have the best prospect of enduring.

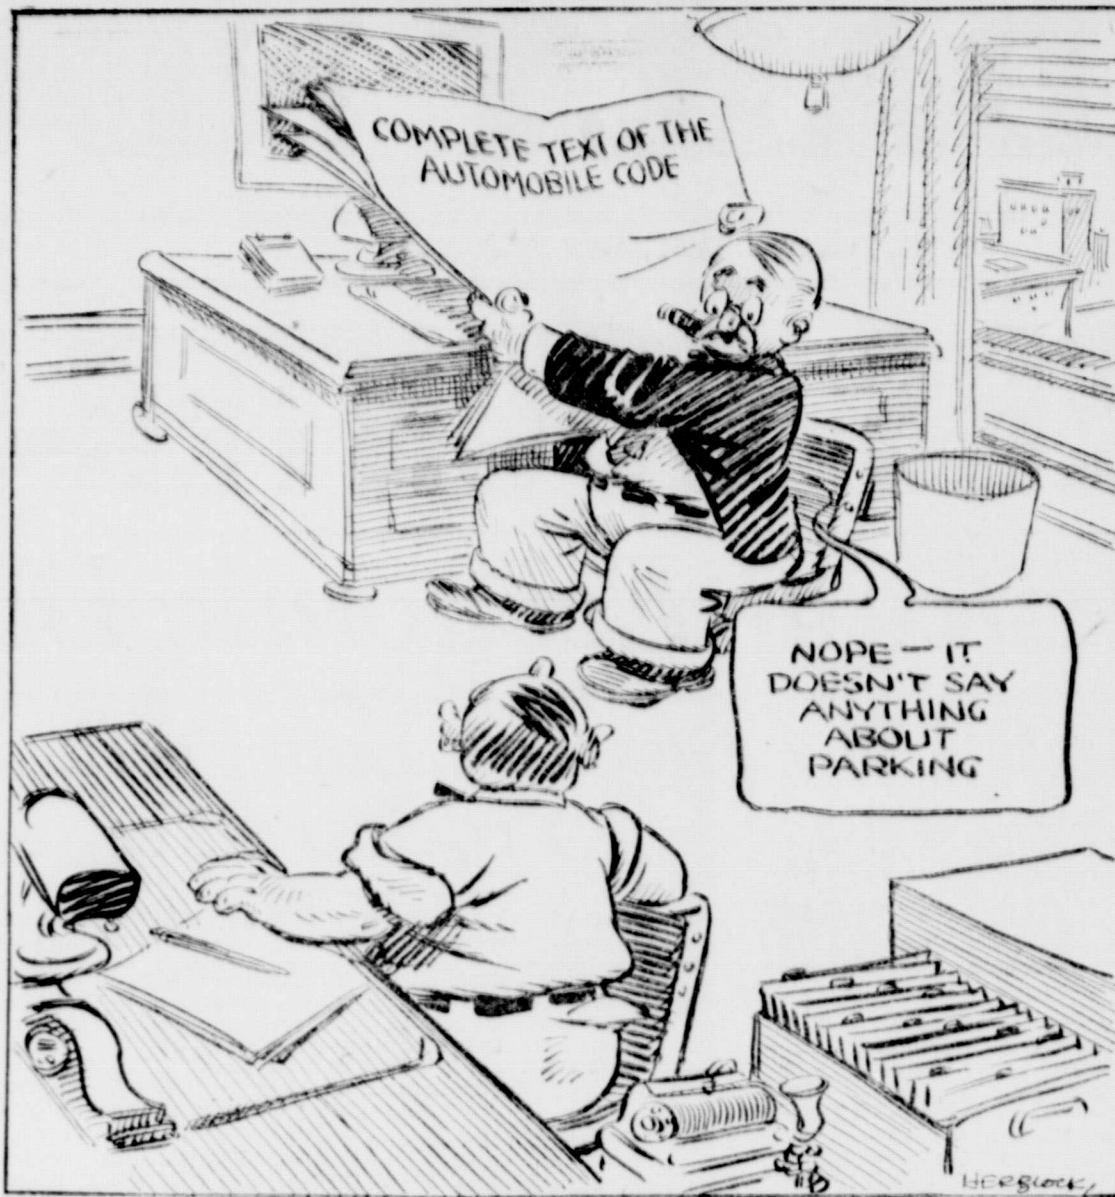

WATER RESOURCES.

A few years ago the state made a beginning in underground water surveys to determine the extent and availability of underground water resources.

This showed that the water table under many agricultural sections is rapidly—in terms of a country's productive life—receding.

Meantime, Texas wastes more than 99 per cent of the resources of flood waters. There is only one way of meeting the needs of adequate water supply through the years, and that is to store up, in natural basins, the flood waters, conserve them for orderly and widespread use.

A Limitation That Was Overlooked

Nearest Solution of Jobless Problem Now Neglected

By RAYMOND BROOKS. AUSTIN, Aug. 11—Texans, dealing with the stark job of finding a way that their fellow-beings may not starve, have come to wonder at the neglect shown by the state government toward the nearest solution of the problem ever attempted.

Back in 1919-1920, through the agency of a referendum on the democratic primary ballot, a two-to-one majority of the voters of Texas gave approval to a state policy of selling land to those who would own and live on farms.

The plan, to create a state agency to sell the farms on long terms and at extremely low interest, was then designed to meet the growing evil of tenantry. Since then, another phase of the problem has become more acute—the concentration of farm people into cities, where there are no jobs and no opportunities to earn a living.

Tenantry exists in the city as well as on the farm. More than half the people in Texas rent the houses in which they live. More than half those who work on the farms till land belonging to others and pay rent either in money or in part of their crops.

Evil influences of this condition go beyond the economic dependence of the tenants, and reach down into the fundamentals of government itself. Every period of prosperity and advancement has followed the widespread acquisition of the ownership of land by great numbers of people.

The present administration of the national government is deeply in sympathy with both the return of those to the farm would feed themselves, and of the wider diffusion of farm ownership. Relief of the tenant farmer was the cornerstone of the campaign.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

A typical Will Reagan yarn runs something like this: "Say Specs, you're like that fellow's cat."

"What cat of which fellow?"

"Didn't I ever tell you about that cat?"

"Never heard it."

"Well, a fellow had a cat he decided to kill. He'd heard that all cats have nine lives, so after he had knocked it in the head he said to himself, 'You know, that cat might come back to life, so just to make sure he don't I'll cut his head off.'"

"Well, he cut the cat's head off and thought that he had the animal disposed of. But, by gosh, you know the next morning that dern cat came walking up with its head in its mouth."

"I've not yet learned in what particular I resemble the cat of that yarn, but I have the sneaking suspicion it was Will's way of hinting that I am not all there above the neck."

If that is so, I wonder how he found it out?"

An article urging voters to support the amendment for a $20,000,000 relief bond issue, written by W. H. Kittrell, Sr., of Cisco and published in the Daily News recently, will be incorporated in literature of the Texas Relief Bond issue Steering committee, headed by Wm. C. Strauss, of Houston. Mr. Kittrell was informed in a recent letter. Arguments used in the article were praised by the committee.

WHIPS "PRECIOUS" CURVES. PALESTINE, Aug. 11—Ed Curley, negro, paid $14 in justice court here for whipping his wife with a strap, but he said he would do it again if she repeated the offense, he told the judge, was wearing a gown so thin other men besides himself got a vision of her curves.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, August 11—Friends of D. E. Colp, San Antonio business man who serves without pay on the state p a r k board are not going to see him shelved as board chairman without a fight.

Recently the board members were called together at Austin Colp could not attend.

Whereupon Pat M. Neff, former governor of Texas and now president of Baylor university flatly refused to proceed with the board's business without Colp's presence.

Report has it that Colp is not entirely in harmony with members of the state relief commission. They are not seeing eye-to-eye. Members of the relief commission, it is understood, want to turn the state park work over entirely to the federal forces. This faction would have the reforestation employes now working in Texas transferred to the parks. They have gone so far as to suggest the federal reforestation armies in northern parts of the state be moved to parks as soon as weather hinders their work at present locations.

James E. Ferguson has the boys guessing about his candidacy for the United States senate. It is pretty definitely decided he will run, but which of the two senators he will oppose is not publicly known.

Prohibition may be the keynote of the former-governor's campaign.

Senator Tom Connally is taking no active part in the August 26 election campaign. With Senator Morris Sheppard, tight lipped author of the 18th amendment, tramping Texas pleading for defeat of the beer legalization amendment and defeat of the repeal of the 18th amendment he has a natural campaign foe. But Jim will wait two years to campaign against Sheppard?

Ferguson knows ridicule of the Texarkanan will not vote. Sheppard's sincerity is convincing, even to those who oppose his stand on the dry issue. Texas voters have not stood up for ridiculing of a man who stands up for his convictions.

W. A. Keeling, former attorney-general of Texas, who was chairman of the dry convention in June, says whatever the result of the August 26 election on ratification of repeal the sentiment in Texas will be dry. He says people may cast their ballots at the election for the wet regime.

The state of Texas might well learn the lesson.

cause they feel it is the best thing to do at present time. Others want to "keep in line" with President Roosevelt. Keeling said. But at the next opportunity they will vote dry. If Ferguson recognizes this he may capitalize on the way Ferguson forced his way to the chairmanship of the wet convention. The two may have competition from Joseph Weidn Bailey, Jr., congressman-at-large who is reportedly a potential candidate.

Judge George Calhoun has changed from the bench to court reporter. He has no ordinary assignment. He will prepare the official reports of the state court of criminal appeals. Judge Calhoun has been one of the commissioners assisting the court.

Judge C. G. Kreuger of Bellville, was recently named by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson to succeed Judge Calhoun. The new court reporter was jurge of the 54th district court at Austin for a number of years.

Governor Ferguson continues to give indication she will call a special session of the legislature after the August 26 election. Latest indication: a successor to the late Rep. Frank Haas from the Midland district will be named at the August 26 election.

Reich Schools To Use Hero-Worship

BERLIN, Aug. 11—Henceforth hero worship is to play an important role in the teaching of history in German schools according to instructions issued by the Reich minister of the interior, Wilhelm Frick. This hero-worship, "conducted in Germanic spirit," is to be coupled with the idea of autocratic leadership as conceived by the present regime.

Other changes for the teaching of history fore-se that greater stress than heretofore be laid on the earliest period of German history, the middle ages, the history of such territories abroad where Germans live.

and the history of the last two decades. In dealing with each of periods racial aspects are to be accorded special attention. Minister Frick's instructions are accompanied by detailed reasons for each of these innovations. Stress is to be laid on earliest German history, for instance, the minister because the history of this period is better than that of any other to dispel the "customary understanding of the cultural status of Germanic forebears." In teaching German medieval history the emphasis is to be laid on the work of Germany of the territory of the Elbe which was then established by the "Order of German Knights."

A more profound teaching of history of certain foreign countries is thought necessary on account of the fact that, at present, according to official German estimates approximately one-third of the entire man population is living outside boundaries of the Fatherland proper.

This intensified study of German history is to start in the lower classes and is to be continued throughout the curricula of grades of schools.

Taking Your Dollar to Market

EVERY year your family, and every family of your acquaintance, spends about 70 per cent of its income just for living, exclusive of rent—so economic experts tell us. Think what this means—seven dollars out of every ten invested in food, clothing, household utilities and all the multitude of things that keep a family comfortable and happy.

That part of spending is readily understood. But do you realize that every manufacturer and retailer of these necessities is planning how he can get your dollar?

It's a big job to spend so much money wisely and well. It requires careful business methods to get the best possible returns from each dollar that leaves the family purse.

The clever woman goes for help to the advertisements in her daily paper. There she finds a directory of buying and selling. She learns about the offerings of merchants and manufacturers. She compares values. She weighs quality and price. She takes this opportunity of judging and selecting almost everything she needs to feed, clothe, amuse, instruct and generally bring up her family.

Do you read the advertisements? You will find them willing and able to serve you in the daily business of purchase.

Memel Politics Are Taboo in Lithuania

KOVNO, Lithuania, Aug. 11—Rising nationalist sentiment in Memel has sharpened official measures, and under the threat of continued riots and disturbances, the directorate has forbidden further political meetings.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent. Dick opposes her continued employment and pleads for a home but Eve is determined to see him working.

DICK had stopped at the Y. W. C. A. for Eve's mail on his way to the station to meet her. There was a large envelope from her mother, containing letters for her and for Dick. Eve's parents had been asked not to announce the marriage.

"Why, bless her heart!" said Dick. "It must have taken her a whole evening to write this. It's a great many years since anyone called me 'Dear Son'."

And indeed it had taken Barnes a whole evening to compose that first painstaking letter to her new son-in-law, Kate Bayless, plump, patient and domestic, was suffering the tortures of rheumatic fingers incurred from years of hard toil in the interest of her family.

Soon after his marriage to Kate, Hank had established a small butter and egg route. His earnings had to be stretched with the utmost care to cover the cost of educating his two daughters, keep up the home and put by something for old age. It had been the dream of his life to have a business of his own. However, a large stock company gradually absorbed all the butter and egg routes of the neighborhood, Hank's with the rest.

Thrift was the watchword of the Bayless home. Hank had taught his family always to have the cash on hand before any purchase was made. For years he had set aside regularly a small sum to invest in the stock of the local manufacturing concern which had been built up from a small beginning by two of his friends in whom he had the greatest confidence.

DESPITE all this careful saving and economizing, Kate Bayless had managed to lay by over the years a small but steadily growing accumulation of dollars. Unknown to Hank, she had deposited this money in a building and loan association.

Eve went to bed and lay there, sleepless.

Advertising Club. Eve had taken the only job she could get, clerking in the basement of a department store. Her father, figuring up the cost of Eve's education, grumbled when he learned how much she was earning.

Kate was overjoyed when teachers reported that her daughters had definite artistic tendencies. Esther, slim, dark and rosy-cheeked, had a real gift for music. After several years of study at a local conservatory she became a successful music teacher. Then she pleased her mother by marrying a young bank clerk and having a baby called Katherine Ann for Mrs. Bayless.

"Why should my girls do housework when they ought to be practicing their music?" the mother argued. "They will have plenty of time for that later. If they were lazy—yes. But they are busy all the time. I do not boss them. I do not always understand what it is all about; the modern ways of teaching are different from when I went to school. My girls are always doing something interesting and I think they will come through all right."

Kate would smile complacently and answer, "Yes? Well, a doctor once told me that if a healthy woman did all her own housework it would give her just the right amount of exercise."

EVE caused most of her father's perturbation. After she had had far more schooling than he had originally planned she rented a downtown studio and taught dramatic expression. The venture lasted only one year but in that time she was able to save enough to take her to Lake City 500 miles distant where she enrolled in the school conducted by the Lake City here? And why that anxious tone of voice?

"Mr. Rader is not here at the moment," she answered, trying to conceal her surprise. "Do you wish to leave a message?"

"If you think he'll be back within a few minutes I'll hold the line, please."

Dick returned just then. "The call is for you," Eve said. She went into the bedroom, closing the door behind her. She sat down before the dressing table and busied herself with powder puff and lipstick. She could not hear Dick's words but thought she detected a deep concern in his voice. A moment later he tapped on the door.

"Eve," he said, crossing the room in two strides and reaching for his overcoat, "I've got to go down town. Something's happened on the job. I can't wait to explain—don't know exactly what it's all about yet. I'm sorry!" The words were clipped off by a hastily closed door.

Eve returned to the living room and sat down to await his return. She was going to be reasonable about this she assured herself. It was very strange, though, to say the least. Why should that woman have called? If anything really had happened connected with his work, surely the watchman or one of the other men connected with the construction project would have telephoned.

$500,000 Repaid By Ft. Worth Ranchers

FORT WORTH, Aug. 11—Cattlemen and wheat growers in the Fort Worth trade territory have repaid nearly $500,000 of the $3,936,646 they borrowed from the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation since last fall. Albert E. Thomas, executive vice-president and manager, said: "Thomas attributed the rapid repayment to recent improvement in livestock and grain markets."

Two hours passed, three hours—and still Dick did not return. Neither did he telephone. Eve slipped off her velvet frock and hung it away. Mechanically she applied cleansing cream, to her face and removed the make-up. She was furious. By now she was convinced that Dick was trying to teach her a lesson. He was showing her what she had shown him—that work comes first and a honeymoon second. Eve was hungry, too. She had had nothing to eat since breakfast, but she resisted her desire to order a tray of food sent up to the room. She went to bed at last and lay there, sleepless.

HONESTY WAS BASIS OF OLD TASCOSA CODE

AMARILLO, Aug. 11—Old Tascosa of evil reputation was not such an unmitigated bad place as legends of its Boot Hill and "wide open hell" would indicate.

Take the word, of Capt. W. H. In- gerton, who lived there as a young man, for it.

What though the 16 graves on Boot Hill were filled by outlaws or reckless cowboys come to an un- timely end, even if Billy the Kid did make the town his headquarters one winter as he rustled cattle, although gambling and drinking went unchecked the place had a rugged code of honor that seldom was violated.

There never was a holdup or a burglary in old Tascosa, Captain In- gerton said. Many a time a monte dealer would leave a table stacked with as much as $500. On his return every penny of it still would be there. Operators of the general mer- chandise store left their establish- ment wide open at nights to accom- modate "overnight guests" who slept on the floor, helping themselves to such things as they needed from the shelves, always paying the proprie- tor, the next morning.

"Why, we never wrote out a con- tract in those days", the captain said.

Ingerton's mother was a school teacher in the first school in Tascosa. She had gone to the frontier town to persuade her son to return to civilization. Failing in that, she decided to stay on herself and make a home. Later she organized a Sun- day school. There was no established church or preacher.
