THE FURTHER VIEW.

A vast majority of us are so occupied with what the NRA means to the immediate restoration of normal conditions that we fail to take into consideration an even larger reason for demanding success of the program.

The more important view of the NRA, granting that it will accomplish recovery, is not that during the comparative brief period of its authority it shall have enforced new standards, but what it shall have left as a heritage to the nation in the years that come after.

If the industrial recovery program is a success these advances will be found consolidated into permanent amendments to the great American code.

OIL TRIAL GOES ON.

The state's anti-trust suit against oil companies will go to trial soon, despite the oil code, despite the national government policy making trade codes a basis factor of the recovery program.

That means the lawsuit will be tried upon the technical basis of what was the law of Texas when oil companies two years ago adopted a marketing code, rather than present and future policies of requiring their adherence to a code.

The trial is now set for Oct. 2, but with the prospect of the legislature's being in session then, further postponement is probable.

LESS BITTERNESS.

Prohibition battles in past political life of Texas have been among the bitterest of all.

It is striking that this year the political campaign over the repeal and beer amendments has shown nothing of the old mudslinging spirit.

BACK IN STEP.

When the legislature last spring cut the pay of its workers 25 to 35 per cent, there was no Blue Eagle, no blanket and industry codes, and no visible start on the huge increase in the cost of food and clothing.

The legislature alone can raise or lower state salaries. General, this is done for a two year period. For that reason, while costs were at their lowest during the past two years, state salaries had not been reduced.

So, the state is not now to be blamed that its policy is in such direct conflict with the national government policy in the recovery program.

The legislature will meet very early in September. It will hear much of those heads of families who would have to work for $45 to $60 a month unless the severe injustices of the reductions in the lowest brackets are remedied.

It is probable that the legislature could not readjust any of the salaries, no matter how low they have been cut, or how much below normal of decent living standards they are, until some new revenues are found to protect all state employees from an 8 to 10 per cent discount on warrants, and for other purposes.

But there will be new revenue measures, either to pay the bond issue or to pay the relief bill. It is better for the state—Pres. Roosevelt says, for all employers—to pay living wages rather than force people onto the relief rolls and into the breadlines.

Surely the legislature in September will give its best thought to taking out the harshest terms of the salary-cutting, particularly as it affects those who are paid so little that no margin is left above the actual necessities of life.

Now We'll See Some Real "Muscling In"

With the anticipated balancing of production to consumptive demand under the code, warrant the Humble Oil and Refining company in advancing its posted prices for crude.

The following schedules show the new and old prices of the Humble for crude in the the Cisco area and northwest Texas fields. The new price is in the latter column.

Table with columns for 'Cisco Area', 'Below 29', '29-29.9', '30-30.9', etc., and corresponding prices.

Women Means Success of NRA Program

Public opinion, he believes, is more satisfactory for enforcement than court action. And public opinion rests to a great extent in the hands of the women.

It is the mobilization of feminine forces for support of the law and for exertion of pressure on others to abide by its spirit.

It lies in their power to give lax and hesitant employers the first taste of what it means to wait or fail to comply with the Blue Eagle pact.

Weds America's Richest Bachelor

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The shady side of this NRA campaign is emblemized with an insignia as appropriate to its cause as the "Blue Eagle" is representative of the patriotic recovery spirit.

A page of Time magazine, sharp-cut, straight-hitting weekly news condenser, carried a replica of the emblem designed by a St. Louis mechanical engineer.

The emblem labeled "Non-Member—We Don't," is the picture of a black buzzard clamping a hammer and a length of gas pipe with dollar bags suspended on either side.

Most of you folks this morning will be too much interested in the outcome of the election yesterday to care whether or not Specs appears. The department was lame in the upper story as well as weak in the back Friday and failed to do his chore.

Someone asked me the other day—I have forgotten just who—why an Englishman wears a monocle instead of a sensible pair of spectacles.

I replied I did not know. It is always a pretty good idea to express ignorance if you want to learn something, just as it is as pretty good idea to disagree with some one if you want to discover how right you are.

"Because," smiled my informer, "he can see more with one eye than he can understand in a week."

I finally recalled that my name is thoroughly English in sound and origin.

However, since having been associated with that particular vegetable for several years I have been able to wear two lenses quite satisfactorily.

400 ADDED TO GAS COMPANY EMPLOYE ROLL

A half million dollars has been added to the annual buying power of north Texas and southern Oklahoma by the Lone Star Gas system, which has just completed plans for operating under the gas utility code approved by President Roosevelt.

Announcement that the company had signed the code and is supporting the president's recovery efforts to the fullest extent was made by L. B. Denning, president, who urged every citizen to cooperate in the movement.

The Lone Star system did not make reductions in wages nor reduce working forces during the depression period to the extent adopted by many concerns, said Mr. Denning.

The natural gas industry is entirely in sympathy with the president's N. R. A. program and will cooperate in every reasonable way to make it a success, according to Mr. Denning.

In our opinion, the success of the national recovery program depends on the cooperation of every citizen," he said.

Brownsville Works Out New Relief Plan

AUSTIN, Aug. 26 — A policy that may be extended throughout the state has been worked out for use of relief funds to carry on public health work in Brownsville.

The Brownsville city council voted to abolish its health unit, for lack of money.

Led by Rep. Augustin Celeya, of Cameron county, a citizens' delegation worked out a plan with state health and relief authorities, by which the health work will be financed as a rehabilitation feature of the relief program.

At first, medicine will be supplied the Brownsville health unit, and funds for employing relief labor will be applied to a mosquito control drive. Later, it was planned to extend the health activities probably to include hospitalization and public health nursing.

Unless the relief work in Texas should be disrupted by failure of the bond issue, the health program will be available for other cities which have abandoned or restricted health unit activities for lack of money.

Flag Half Masted For L. W. Tittle

AUSTIN, Aug. 26 — The Texas capitol flag was flown at half-staff here in honor of L. W. Tittle, who recently died. Years of invalidism had withdrawn him from public notice; but in his long career Mr. Tittle rendered distinguished and notable service to his state.

RANDOLPH NEWS

Charlie Garrett of Carbon, student in Randolph last year, was in Cisco Friday to make arrangements for attending Randolph this fall.

Miss Leota West of Hamilton, student in Randolph last year, was a visitor at the college Thursday. Miss West will be with us again this year.

H. R. Garrett's Sunday school class enjoyed a watermelon feast on the campus at the college last Tuesday.

Neil Norred former Randolph student of Putnam was a welcome visitor at the college Saturday morning.

Miss Mary Wilson is spending today in Cleburne where she is visiting her brother, John Allen Wilson.

Wilson and Bolt To Wrestle Monday

RANGER, Aug. 26 -- Benny Wilson is due to have his hands full Monday night when he takes on Benny Bolt, Sioux Indian, in what has been billed as a match for the junior middleweight title. Bolt spilled Sammy McLaren here last week with ease, and many of the fans believe he can handle Wilson in the same manner. He uses a very rough style of wrestling, but if the foaling becomes serious, Wilson can show the redskin a thing or two in the way of rough ring tactics. On the same bill will be a match between Eddie Brock and Bobbie Davidson, a newcomer from Bridgeport.

The semi-final will bring together Old Joe Rivers, El Paso, and Bob Clark, Sweetwater, two favorites with the fans here, in an eight-round fight. Benny Greenfield, known as the Fort Worth Jew Baby, will take on Kid Red of Wreecenridge, for five rounds.

CANNON SILENT VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 26 -- Vancouver's historic old curfew cannon is no more. Economy has forced the dominion to eliminate the $120 appropriation to buy powder for the weapon, which for 40 years had closed each day promptly at 9 p. m.
