NEW ADVANCE IS STARTED IN STOCK PRICES

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions the Wall Street Journal says: Another outbreak of inflationary excitement, stimulated in part by the increase in the federal reserve weekly purchases of government bonds and in part by a wide variety of rumors in the financial district, started a new advance in stocks as the week ended. Traditionally, labor day sees a turn in business and the markets, and the resumption of the upward swing in prices this year, just a week before labor day, indicates that the normal pattern is likely to be followed.

DRIVE AGAINST SMALL STATIONS.

Small radio stations which have sprung up over the state, unlicensed on the theory that a station broadcasting solely intrastate is not subject to federal regulations, are shortly to get the ax.

This paragraph of a statement issued by Vice-chairman Brown is significant:

"There is no such thing as an intrastate station. Every station which operates comes under our jurisdiction."

The air is the property of the public. It is neither owned by nor subject to the control of a private individual or corporation.

Small, inadequately financed stations, unable to conform with the regulations prescribed, are not competent to provide the entertainment or instruction expected of any agency that is allowed the privilege of the ether.

AMERICA'S "FOREIGN ARMY."

A "foreign army" of 400,000—three times the size of the regular army of the United States—has invaded peacetime America and now jeopardizes the tranquility and security of the lives and property of the people.

The war secretary's appeal to the American people to enter a united action to drive crime from America was one of the series of appeals which come each Monday evening at 7:30 over a national radio broadcast.

Existing conditions the secretary blamed upon the "indifference of the American people."

Fascist Fashion Notes

America's greatest enemy is not without, but within. National indifference and public neglect are to blame. Perhaps the depression will serve the noble purpose of summoning America from the apathy of surfeit and prosperity to the vigilance of need.

A BROAD THING.

More and more as the NRA program approaches its fullness it is certain that it is compelled to deal with every phase and department of the national economic picture.

Through the R. F. C. the administration is preparing to move to stimulate credit facilities insufficient for the emergency that exists.

The character the recovery campaign increases the need for a thorough cooperation all down the line. Not only every industry, every business and every phase of American life must keep in step.

Make the Blue Eagle mean something in your home.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

W. Kee Maxwell, publisher of the Fullerton (Calif.) News-Tribune, says: "Letting George do it is the biggest weakness in the program of development in nine out of ten communities."

"If you will look over the average city of 10,000 to 25,000 population you will find that practically all the worth while effort to improve conditions, expand business and make life generally better is accomplished by one to three individuals."

"Just how you can break men of this slacker spirit is rather hard to suggest. A sense of shame should make itself felt on any man who 'rides free' while somebody else is paying the cost."

"There should be for every man who pretends to be concerned about the business and civic welfare of his community a perpetual pointing finger which says by its gesture, 'This means you!'"

"We need some captain John Smiths in our chambers of commerce and commercial clubs."

BRITISH PRAISE ROOSEVELT FOR HIS COURAGE

By FREDERICK KUH, London Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON, Aug. 29.—British opinion of Franklin Roosevelt, after the first six months of his presidency, is sympathetic and friendly, though tinged with doubt as to the ultimate success of his "planned economy."

Conservative economists have been denouncing him as reckless; socialists insist that any attempt at governmental planning within the capitalist system is foredoomed to failure but all criticism here is mingled with admiration for Roosevelt's courage in shouldering responsibility, taking risks and acting.

Popular interest in his policy is immense and, although emotional views have prevailed over expert judgments, the alleged passivity of the British government is being invidiously compared with the intense activity of the Roosevelt administration.

Not only opponents of the MacDonald cabinet, but a number of its influential followers in the house of commons, have been displaying marked impatience with the British government and demanding increased activity.

Not only in parliament, but in the press and on the street, abundant evidence is to be found that British sentiment favors collaboration with Roosevelt.

Bankers Preved. Bankers here have not ceased to resent Washington's unexpected abandonment of the gold standard in April.

Unbiased commentators here understand, and the fair-minded section of the press has tried to make clear to its readers, that Roosevelt is not primarily concerned with lowering the value of the dollar in relation to the pound, franc or mark, but wants the dollar to be worth less goods. It is realized that his objective would best be gained if other countries pursued a policy of deflation in concurrence with that of the United States.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bibby's, a downtown store, marries DICK BAIDER, a construction superintendent temporarily working in the city. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses.

"I received a letter from IRENE PRENTISS, former schoolmate who is planning to do the same thing. Without Dick's knowledge, IRENE and I have met in New York. Reece takes her home when Dick fails to come for her."

seated at a small table with a strikingly pretty woman, fashionably dressed, Barnes nodded.

"Who's the lady friend Barnes has out to lunch?" asked Mona.

"That," responded Eve, "is Mrs. Barnes. She comes to the office only on rare occasions. She really is very sweet and always dresses beautifully."

"That ought to be able to do a lot for herself," Mona went on. "There would be no excuse for Barnes' wife looking like the year before last—with the salary he makes!"

Eve said nothing. "How much do you suppose he gets?" Mona persisted.

"I'm sure I haven't the slightest idea," Eve told her. "But everyone knows Eve's a highly valued employee of Bibby's."

"Think of all you could do on a salary like his!" Mona said dreamily.

Eve looked at the other girl curiously. Surely Mona did not aspire to Barnes' job—or did she? It was difficult to tell what went on behind that baby face.

"That would be impossible," Eve answered curtly. "Let's make it the Music Box then," he urged. "We can dance."

"No—a thousand times, no!" Eve answered and hung up the receiver.

Arlene looked over with a grin. "For whom were those cold, cruel words?" she teased.

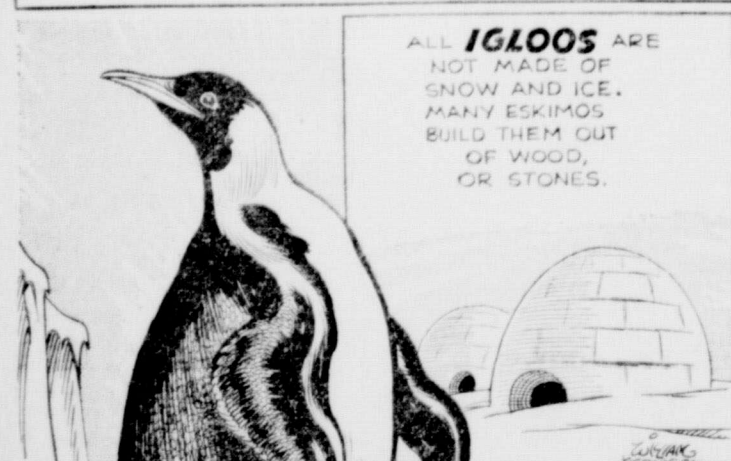

"That man Reece," answered Eve with contempt in her voice. "As though I would go to lunch with him!"

In a few moments Mona received a telephone call which she answered in monosyllables. Later she surprised Eve by asking her to have lunch with her at a fashionable Italian restaurant.

Suddenly Mona smiled brightly. "Oh, there you are!" came a masculine voice from behind Eve. She turned and saw Theron Reece. He smiled and bowed in a mocking manner.

And still it took a while before Eve realized she had fallen into their trap. That telephone call for Mona after Eve had refused to go to lunch with Reece had been from him of course!

YOU'D LIKE the ROBINSONS

THEY'RE the kind of people it's nice to have as neighbors. They always seem to have such a good time together. Their home isn't large, but it's furnished in excellent taste; everything fits perfectly, as though it had been made especially for the very space it occupies.

And their dinners are charming. Not expensive, but different... new and interesting dishes that other people haven't heard of yet. Mrs. Robinson dresses beautifully, too. Her clothes have that air of coming straight from Paris, yet she doesn't spend much on them.

If you should ask her how it is she manages things so well, Mrs. Robinson would smile and say, "It's really very simple. We budget our income. That tells us how much money we have to spend. And we read the advertisements. That tells us how to spend our money wisely."

Important Change

An important change was also authorized in the manner of qualifying essay contestants in Inter-scholastic league contests. Heretofore it has been the custom to qualify the essays produced in the county meet for the next higher meet. The rule as changed will qualify the essay contestants themselves, who will pass on to the next higher meet and produce essays in that meet, and there will be a final state championship in essay writing participated in at the state meet by the contestants themselves.

The picture memory bulletin containing 80 pages which treats appreciatively the selections made for the 1933-34 contests has been issued from the University Press and is now ready for distribution at the Inter-scholastic league office. The new spelling bulletin, of which 200,000 copies have been printed, is also ready for distribution.

The first issue of the Inter-scholastic league newspaper, for the ensuing year will be made about September 15.

Camera Catches 'Dirty Work' in British Football Game

A mud freeze unearthed from some ancient temple, do you suppose? No, it's just a jolly bit of action during a mud football match in Essex, England. The camera caught the play just as one team muddled through to victory, and the game, you might say, was in the bog. Because the group looked like a panel in bas relief, an artist helped out the illusion with the tricky border.

EVE BEGAN ROMANCE OF FASHION BY APPEARING IN FIG LEAVES

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series giving a complete history of fashions from the fig leaf to the finery of the 20th Century. Why we wear what we do — Who wore it first, and the romance that woman's clothes exerted through the ages, influencing ancient and modern kings and often altering the mode and manners of the times.

PARIS, Aug. 29—From fig leaves to fine fabrics is the glamorous romance begun by Eve encouraged by Adam and fanned into a flame that has flared brighter and thousands of years. For the first few hundred years the story was an unwritten romance, carved out at times in stone and painted on boards.

Carlyle called man a "clothed animal" and Hilaire Hiler, the young American artist, musician and author of many volumes on costume, maintains that "the adornment of the human body is among the oldest of humanity's aesthetic activities and forms with dancing, music, poetry, and savage ceremonial, a foundation which furnishes the beginnings of the most exquisite arts of civilization."

Eve was the first fashion extremist favoring a simple and single fig leaf for summer, which she could select and pluck herself, and a fur coat for winter, the selection of which she had to entrust to Adam and his prowess for depriving some wild animal of his outer covering.

The Egyptian maidens, tall and slim, with a born sense of beauty chose white clothing which, against a background of luxurious vegetation and polychrome architecture, set off their charms to the best possible advantage. Zulu debutantes wore bead-garlands and narrow bands of shell with aprons of fringe about three or four inches wide dangling simulating the Hawaiians of today, after a fashion. Dyeing was known in the Neolithic times and hand-woven cloth made from stony animal and vegetable fibres twisted together was often embroidered in conventional designs based on animal motifs.

Modern women are willing to undergo much suffering of a physical nature in the name of beauty but it is doubtful if even they would submit to the torture that Neolithic style setters endured in stony silence. History remarks that a certain tre-

MOM'N POP.

Effective Monday, August 21, the Lone Star Gas System began operating under provisions of the code established by agreement between the American Gas Association and the National Recovery Administration. This will give employment immediately to approximately 350 to 400 additional persons, mainly in the gas fields, pipe lines, and compressor stations. These additional employees, practically all of whom already have been engaged, will increase the purchasing power in our territory by at least $500,000 per year.

The Lone Star Gas System serves more than 275 towns and cities in Texas and Oklahoma.

Lone Star System did not make reductions in wages nor reduce working forces during the depression period to the extent adopted by many concerns not engaged in public service. The high standard of instantaneous twenty-four-hour service exacted of the natural gas business requires the company at all times to maintain an organization of skilled and experienced men. To meet this demand does not permit reduction in either wages or working force to the extent permitted in other lines of business upon which this obligation is not imposed.

The Natural Gas Industry is entirely in sympathy with the President's program as exemplified by the N.R.A., and will cooperate in every reasonable way in order to make the program a success.

In our opinion the success of the National Recovery program depends upon the co-operation of every citizen. People who have been employed throughout the depression must begin to buy the many things they have denied themselves. They must buy NOW in order that the unemployed can be put to work and kept at work.

It is hoped that the present movement will again establish confidence and that the people of our country will start the cycle of business on the upward trend so that even more men may obtain employment.
