ANOTHER FARM PROBLEM.

Cotton farmers who plowed under cotton in the federal reduction campaign are facing another problem. They face the job of replowing because the federal agricultural department reports that their turned-under cotton is sprouting again, affording excellent harborage for boll weevils.

Meanwhile a sweeping reduction in cotton acreage is planned for the year 1934 along with an equally ambitious program of cutting down the production of wheat.

Sometimes the government's relief program seems contradictory in phases. Perhaps, however, it is only to the desultory view.

Through the Editor's Spectacles. By GEORGE. The big question mark before the Cisco Lobos and their followers.

Frankly enough, and it is time to be frank. I see little prospect for the Cisco team to continue its winning streak over Armistice Day.

That is the only direct comparison of the two teams that is available but it listens mightily convincing to Specs.

There is one factor, of course, that neither I nor you nor anyone else can predict or gauge.

There is one factor, of course, that neither I nor you nor anyone else can predict or gauge.

teams rise superior to the men that make them, and some far below the level of the manpower they possess.

With that factor only the boys themselves can deal. I am reminded that there are always two teams on the field and each of them is made up of the same kind of humanity.

This I know—Ranger is coming to Cisco believing that the Lobos will be their major hurdle this season.

With those things true, their remarkable showing against a team that pushed the Lobos to win doesn't look good to Specs.

However, I don't think we shall be defeated by any great score. It will be a great game, and one worth going miles to see.

Forgotten Sweetheart

By MARY RAYMOND

BEHIN HERE TODAY. JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love.

They became estranged through the seduction of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob. Pat, Joan's younger sister, runs away to New York after an unhappy love affair with John Foltz and after a long hunt finds Pat.

John, who is engaged to BARBARA COURTNEY, is the owner of the night club. Later Pat becomes Barney's secretary and he discovers that it is Pat he loves instead of Joan.

ONE thing married Mrs. Waring's happiness during the days that followed Joan's return home.

Mrs. Waring would have liked to walk along Main street and about the stores having people stare, thinking of Joan's success and glamorous adventures in New York.

The mother's triumphant manner was like a banner proclaiming, "This is my daughter. She has been singing at the most popular night club in New York!"

But Joan refused to be "shown off." She had come home wearing the same suit she had worn when she departed.

There was nothing whatever about Joan's appearance to suggest that the brilliance and glitter of the life which had so recently enveloped her.

A green roadster pulled into position and suddenly Joan found herself staring into the eyes of Carol Sheridan.

"How are you, Joan?" she asked. "Very well, thank you."

"Have you heard the news about Barbara? Isn't it marvelous?" Joan waited. She could not have spoken just then if her life depended on it.

THEN, too, Joan flatly refused to capitalize her accomplishments. She had declared her intention of staying home "forever and ever."

"Well, there's nothing like striking while the iron is hot," her mother counseled wisely.

Mother, I don't want pupils who are just curious to see what I look like! In a month no one will even remember that I've been away.

This attitude was beyond Mrs. Waring's comprehension. Things were hard enough in this world without deliberately setting out to make them harder!

But if Joan persisted in this course, Mrs. Waring found vicarious thrills in reading Pat's first letter. It was filled with extravagant phrases.

There were interesting people on the boat—a fabulously rich Indian prince; a gray-haired, distinguished foreign consul; a charming woman whose husband had developed the resources of some of the more remote islands.

Always and inevitably Pat's lavish adjectives led up to Barney, who was simply perfect. Pat wrote that she loved the ship, the deck sports at which they spent their mornings, the lazy afternoons on the cool, wind-swept decks.

ONE morning Joan and Benny finished a game of tennis at Beauvregard court and started home.

She agreed, always eager to fall in with her plans. Benny was himself these days. If the long months in New York had brought nothing but pain to Joan they had at least brought happiness to Pat and health to Benny.

Waiting for their drinks to be served, they watched automobiles arriving and pulling away from the curb.

"How are you, Joan?" she asked. "Very well, thank you."

"You wouldn't have any trouble getting pupils now while everybody is talking about you."

crucible the West Indies! Well, she had known that before Carol told her.

"Let's go home," Joan said suddenly. Her voice sounded strained and unnatural.

HE was talking about what a pretty boulevard Belvedere was and about the yellow brick house on the hill.

After a while Benny said, "The girl was talking about Mr. Weston, wasn't she?"

"Yes," answered Joan. "Is Barbara Courtney the girl she meant?"

"I shouldn't think he would care anything about her."

Joan hesitated. Then she asked, "Why don't you think he would like her?"

"Because," answered Benny, "he knows you."

She laughed but there were tears in her eyes. Benny, with his absurd loyalty! How dear and good they were here at home and how wrong it was of her to trouble them as she had.

Canada to Levy Tax Upon Outside Firms

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—Canada's federal income tax collection officials, searching for old and nearly-forgotten laws for hidden weapons with which they can keep the government treasury filled, have uncovered an important source of revenue—taxing non-Canadians on incomes from business done in Canada.

A provision in the income tax act, more or less "dead" for years, has been resurrected by the department of national revenue and is being used as the weapon. Under the act, United States, British and other foreign interests doing business in Canada are subject to taxation on revenue derived from goods sold in Canada, on machinery, or other equipment, or property leased in the dominion, or on royalties.

Independents Expect Largest Attendance

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 7.—The largest attendance to ever register at an annual convention of the Independent Petroleum association of America, is anticipated at the meeting this year on November 13, at Tulsa, according to predictions of C. E. Buchner, secretary of the organization.

This year's increased attendance is said to be due largely to the added optimism which has spread over the entire oil industry, retail business, and manufacturing. With the present price of oil having increased from 150 to 200 per cent in recent months, the oil men are extremely optimistic as to the future of the twelve billion dollar industry.

Scrub Player Makes Place Upon Varsity

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Horatio Alger, if he had written about sports heroes rather than boys who rose from poverty to riches, might have found a fine plot in the career of an athlete such as Warren Casey, Harvard varsity center.

At Boston Latin school the coach, told Casey he'd never do "Warren" extended practice every day, but didn't even come close to making his letter.

He was cut from the Harvard freshman squad the first day he reported for practice, so had to content himself with playing on his freshman dormitory team.

As a sophomore he went out for the varsity squad and was cut the first day. So he joined the "scrub" players of sub-varsity caliber used in scrimmages against the varsity.

In one of the scrubs- varsity scrimmages he was the best player on the team, and literally crashed his way back to the varsity squad.

In the Harvard-Holy Cross game of the 1933 season Casey was regarded as the outstanding player of the contest, even though Harvard was on the short-end of a 19-7 score.

Traffic Lights Now Guide Plane Pilots

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 7.—Motorists, who became annoyed at the frequency of traffic lights, may find consolation in the fact that pilots of airplanes now are required to obey similar signals.

The harried motorist may point out that there are no traffic jams in the air. However, if he would serve operations at the larger airports, he would realize the necessity of safeguarding landings and takeoffs with red and green signals similar to those which he encounters at intersections.

Typical traffic control may be seen at the Newark Metropolitan airport. T. A. Schmidt, American Airways station manager, recently explained the system.

Traffic Light.

The traffic control tower is equipped with a portable searchlight of special design, Schmidt said. It throws a red or green beam, at the will of the operator. Although the source of illumination is an automatic headlight bulb of only 50 candlepower, it is greatly amplified by powerful reflectors. It is clearly visible for five miles in daylight and eight miles at night.

"Armed with this searchlight, the attendant in the tower surveys incoming and outgoing planes. If he desires to stop a ship from landing or taking off, he merely aims the red beam at it, signaling the pilot to remain aloft, or stand by, as the case may be. If the runway is clear for landing or taking off, he aims the green beam at the ship in question. It is against regulations for a pilot to land, or take off, without first receiving the green, or all clear, signal."

A similar system is employed at the Chicago Municipal airport, with the exception that the signal lights are mounted on the roof of the control tower and the operator also gives landing and takeoff orders by radio to pilots.

LAYS CLAIM TO FIRST LEGION POST IN U. S.

COMMERCE, Tex., Nov. 7.—A vision which unfolded in the mind of Dr. W. B. DeJernett as he and a group of fellow World War veterans awaited the arrival of a fallen comrade at a depot here on May 6, 1919, resulted in what members of Bruce B. Williams post of the American Legion claim was the first Legion post organized in the United States.

Decision to press their claim on the attention of the national organization was reached by members of the post this year when Marion DeJernett, son of the local organization, was installed as commander. Research into the post's history and comparison of dates has resulted in definite proof that the organization is entitled to the designation "Post No. 1" its members have declared.

The post also is claimant of another honor, almost as great in the opinion of Commerce Legionnaires. It is their claim that a resolution by a Bruce B. Williams officer at a state convention of the Legion at Dallas resulted in the first observance of Armistice Day, November 11, in the United States. Texas observed the day with due ceremony in 1919, but it was not until 1920 that the day became a national holiday.

History Began

The history of the Commerce post, as its members have reconstructed it, began on that May day when the elder DeJernett and several other ex-service men solemnly gathered to receive the body of Private A. Barrett, who had died at Camp Stewart. DeJernett suggested to his comrades that veterans of the World War ought to establish an organization, the duties of which would be to care for the living as well as to honor the dead veterans of the great conflict.

On May 8, 1919 two days later, an

CAPTAIN TYSON and his party were caught on drifting ice just south of Littleton Island, in the Arctic. Having no boat, they were forced to stay on the ice. Six months later, the Newfoundland land sealing steamer Tigress picked them up off the Straits of Belle Isle. The party was saved from starvation by eating a polar bear and some seals that crawled aboard the ice.

Dates Tell Story Of U. S. Prohibition

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Dry crusaders usually date the start of the American prohibition movement from an essay on the effects of ardent spirits upon the human mind and body written by Dr. Benjamin Rush, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, in 1785.

Prior to this, however, there were a number of restrictive laws passed by the colonies beginning with the Maryland statute of 1642 fining drunkards. In 1648 Indians held a temperance meeting in the St. Lawrence Valley and in 1735 Oglethorpe, founder of the colony of Georgia, prohibited importation of liquor.

Other milestones in the prohibition movement follow:

1806—First temperance society formed.

1813—First state society formed, Massachusetts.

1826—First national society.

1832—Spirit ration for soldiers abolished.

1833—First local option, Georgia.

1833—First national temperance convention.

1836—First total abstinence society.

1837—First legislative document, bill to prohibit sale and transportation in Massachusetts.

1847—Supreme court decided nothing in constitution to prevent state from regulating liquor traffic, first national legal decision.

1851—First state prohibition, Maine.

1854—Ohio passes anti-saloon law.

1856—Temperance publishing house formed, later distributed more than 1,000,000,000 pages of propaganda.

1869—First national prohibition convention, prohibition party formed.

1871—First prohibitionist elected, Massachusetts legislature.

1872—First congressional bill prohibition for District of Columbia, died in committee.

1876—First congressional joint prohibition amendment.

1874—W. C. T. U. organized.

1881—Kansas effects first constitutional state prohibition.

1884—Prohibition incorporated in laws for Alaska.

1886—First temperance measure passed congress, provided instruction effects alcohol in federal schools.

1887—Congress defeats bill prohibiting alcoholic beverages.

1889—Rhode Island becomes first state to repeal constitutional prohibition.

1890—First prohibition party candidate elected to congress.

1893—South Carolina instituted state liquor monopoly and dispensary system.

1893—Anti-Saloon League formed.

1901—Anti-Canteen (saloon) law for military establishments.

1902—Prohibition for certain Pacific islands.

1903—Saloon in basement of national capitol abolished.

1906—Liquor traffic among Indians outlawed.

1907—Prohibition zones around government buildings.

1907—Liquor barred from U. S. mails.

1913—Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting transportation into dry state.

1914—First congressional majority for a dry bill.

1917—Reed amendment prohibiting transportation liquor advertisements into dry states; 18th amendment submitted to states.

1918—Mississippi ratifies, first state; war time prohibition ordered until after demobilization.

1919—Nebraska ratifies 18th amendment, 36th state; Volstead act passed; vetoed by president; repassed.

1920—18th amendment effective; supreme court upholds constitutionality of Volstead act and 18th amendment.

1923—New York repeals enforcement act making it impossible to use state courts liquor cases.

1924—Massachusetts ratifies state enforcement act.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Baked pears, cereal cooked with dates, cream, crisp waffles with maple, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Casserole of vegetables, hearts of lettuce with hard cooked egg dressing, health bread, molasses cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER: English mutton chops, potatoes au gratin, buttered turnips, tomato jelly salad, squash and raisin pie, milk, coffee.

Two tablespoons of cane molasses equals one-half cup of spinach iron content.

When molasses is used in cooking, it should be remembered that it does not sweeten foods to any great extent and a little granulated sugar may be needed. So rather than baking powder is used with molasses in breads, cakes and cookies.

Molasses Drop Cookies

Three-fourths cup shortening, 3/4 cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon salt, 3/4 cup boiling water, 4 cup flour, 1 teaspoon ginger, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cream shortening and sugar Beat 1-2 cup flour and add egg, well beaten. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt and spices. Mix boiling water with molasses and stir in soda. Add to first mixture. Add dry ingredients and mix smooth. Drop from tip of spoon or teaspoon onto an oiled, shallow shallow pan and bake 10 to 15 minutes in a moderate (175 degrees F.) oven.

HURTS NOT SERIOUS

First reports that Jack Roberts, superintendent of the electrical department of the Humble company formerly located here, had sustained three broken ribs in an automobile accident near Longview yesterday were corrected by later reports Humble company men here said today. Mr. Roberts' injuries were identified bruises and abrasions, it said.

Lady Benefited By Cardui

"I was weak, discouraged, was able to do anything for about six months," writes Mrs. Sallie Bryce of Kennedale, Texas. "An old friend suggested I give Cardui a trial. After I had taken half a bottle of Cardui, I was better, stronger. By the time I had taken three bottles, I was up, able to do my work and have gained in weight. Sometimes in the spring, if I get a couple of bottles of Cardui, I get all right. I feel I owe my good health to the use of Cardui!"

Buy Cardui at the drug store.

Blond Angle

In the west and far west the Nordic football touch is profoundly respected . . . with such slashing Swedish heroes as Olsson of Northwestern, Lindberg of Illinois, Nyquist of Chicago, Lund of Minnesota and Norgaard of Stanford repeating the deeds of Big Sweden Oberlander of dear Dartmouth memory.

Stadia Too Big

The city of Cleveland, which had been pointing with pride to its magnificent municipal stadium on the Erie lakefront, started to view it with alarm the other day when the Bradley boys, acting in behalf of the Indians, announced the club would return to old Dunn Field next year . . . the stadium was so big a ball team got lost in it . . . seeing a game there was like watching one in the movies . . . besides it didn't pay to have all that idle real estate on the East Side.

Philadelphia has one of those overgrown stadia, too—the Sesquicentennial—and it was filled with 125,000 people once, for the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Football Code?

COLLEGIATE football seems to be about the only class without an NRA code . . . they toll for the profit of their schools unquestioningly . . . not only that but work at odd jobs so they may buy the bodily fuel necessary to keep them going.

Big Ten coaches hinted at training tables for the athletes that they might better supervise the young men's mess . . . but George Huff, Illinois athletic director, solemnly demurred with the interesting observation that a training table would be "the first step toward paying football players."

What! A Fighter?

NOTHING less than a bombshell burst in the offices of Jimmy Johnston at Madison Square Garden the other day when Paul Damski, Jewish man, Walter Neusel, offered to fight anybody—that is, offered to let Walter fight anybody . . . in a day when managers go about with microscopes picking spots for their bums, Paul Damski's courage shines as a good deed.
