country, and, simultaneously, to wipe out illiteracy and improve living conditions. Figures are tedious, but in general, the Russian plan envisaged vast hydro-electric projects, some 50,000,000 acres sowed by 1933, scores of new factories, thousands of new factories, thousands of new homes for workmen, an increase in livestock and the extension of education.

Plan Moved Rapidly In its early phases the "Five-Year Plan" moved rapidly, so much so that the Russians decided to finish it in four and one-quarter years. In its latter phases, however, the world depression intervened and repressed intervention and retarded it. So, in its last year, the plan fell 40 per cent below its goal.

Special trouble was encountered in the plan to merge thousands of small farms into vast "collective" or farms operated by the state. In carrying out this scheme the Soviets drove thousands of "kulaks," or rich peasants, from their farms and banished them to Siberia. Despite the human suffering it caused and its failure in some respects, however, most impartial observers regarded the "Five-Year Plan" as a success. It laid the basis of heavy industry necessary for a modern state and vast progress was made in collectivizing the farms. And its effect was felt in foreign trade. During the years between 1928 and 1930, before the world depression was fully developed, United States exports to Russia jumped from $74,000,000 to $111,000,000 per year.

CLEAN FOOTBALL by JOCK SUTHERLAND FAMOUS PITTI COACH

THE slogan of some linemen is "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." With that as a motto, the underhand lineman invents all sorts of tricks to fool the referee. The defensive lineman has many opportunities to try such dirty work, and one of his pet practices is illustrated in the accompanying sketch. As far as the right arm is concerned, the defensive lineman is making a legal play. It is being used as a means of lifting the opponent legally—but the left hand is about to be used illegally in striking across the opponent's face to help straighten him up, throw him off balance, and make a hole. About the only defense the opponent has against this type of player is to charge low and keep the head down.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Staff Writer

WHEN a stew is properly made it is one of the most satisfying and nourishing foods that can be served to a hungry family. But when unusual flavoring, colorful garnishing and inviting serving are added, it is attractive enough to please the most fastidious taste.

We use all kinds of meat for stews, even to left-overs. Beef, veal, lamb, mutton, pork, ham, fresh and salted fish bring infinite variety to the one-time plebian stew.

Dumplings add distinction to all stews, but particularly to veal stew. Lamb stew gains much from canned peas. A savory combination of onions, canned tomatoes and macaroni makes a stew made from remnants of cold roasts pleasantly appetizing. Carrots provide color when other means of garnishing are not at hand. A few mushrooms give the final touch to any stew that makes a real feast out of plain fare. Member that dried mushrooms can be substituted when fresh ones are not at hand.

Veal Stew

One and one-half pounds lean veal, 3 medium sized potatoes, 1 cup small whole mushrooms, 1-2 cup shredded sweet green pepper, 2 onions, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 4 cups boiling water, flour.
Trim fat from meat and put in a frying pan over a low fire until fat is tried out. Remove crisp "cracklings." Cut the meat in small pieces and roll in flour. Brown with onion cut in thin slices in the hot fat in the frying

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Apple sauce, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, cornmeal muffins, marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Black bean soup, croutons, tomato salad, nut rolls, milk, tea.

DINNER: Veal stew with dumplings, Chinese cabbage salad, cranberry tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

Dumplings

One and one-half cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, about 3-4 cup milk or water.
Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add milk slowly, cutting it in with a knife. Drop from tip of spoon into boiling stew. Cover the kettle closely and boil gently for 12 minutes without lifting the cover. Remove to a hot platter and keep warm while making the gravy. Put stew around, not over, dumplings and serve at once.

WOMAN'S GHOST STILL HAUNTS TRAGEDY SITE, RESIDENTS SAY

STEPHENVILLE, Nov. 13 — The ghost of the McDow still walks — and the watering hole by that name in Green's creek near here is shunned by men as a thing accursed. A pall of gloom seems to hang over the spot, kept alive by the thrice-told tales of the ranch and farm folk who live near about.

The story goes back 70 years. Ranchers coming to the watering hole one day found a woman and her baby murdered on the banks of the McDow. They were buried on the creek bank, near the hole.

The tragedy, in time, was almost forgotten—until one evening a man named Petty and his wife stopped at the McDow to get a barrel of water. They saw a woman with a baby in her arms walking to the watering hole. She stopped at the water's edge, gazed across at the Petty's, then walked back to the grave and disappeared.

The Petty water barrel was not filled that night.
Then a man named Keith built a house on the bank of the creek, and according to J. E. Fitzgerald of Stephenville, who knew Keith well, he was a brave man. But even Keith said he was incessantly disturbed at night by a woman's screams. He sold his place.

A bachelor by the name of Hammonds came to live in the house near the grave, but not for long. He, too, said he heard the screams. One morning neighbors found him dead. He died of fright, they said.

The tragedy prompted two farmers to make an all-night vigil at the hole. They went to the McDow in a buggy, but they came home afoot, and traveling fast.

Since that time numerous watch parties have been held at the spot, and there are more than a few of the old-timers living today who will swear they have seen the woman and heard her scream.

Although the woman's body was moved from the McDow grave in 1880 and taken to a cemetery, those who know the story maintain the screams are occasionally heard, even in this late day.

JEFFERSON, Wis., Nov. 13 — Miss Edna Attenburg has a new fur scarf made from the hide of an animal she killed herself. While driving a few miles from town, she ran over a fox and killed it. She took the animal to a tanner, who said that it would make a fine neckpiece.

OLD MILL HELD GOLD
JARBIDGE, Nev., Nov. 13 — Workers who burned carefully the floor timbers of the old Elkoro gold mill here, found that the ashes contained thousands of dollars in gold. Wall boards where the cyanide solution used in milling had solidified were also rich in gold, it was said.

LOST 6 MILLION
SALEM, Ore., Nov. 13 — Oregon prune growers have lost $6,000,000 in the past five years due to dropping prices, the state experiment station announced. Prices declined from eight cents a pound to 2.9. Prune production has past its peak in the state due to many orchards being grubbed up or abandoned and few new ones set out.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 13 — Ozark apple growers generally are satisfied with the situation this year. To date there have been more than 225 carloads of apples shipped out of the territory. This year much of the early crop was hauled to market by motor trucks, and 235,000 bushels are in storage at Missouri Ozarks points.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A CHAMPION BRONK RIDER!

RIDE 'EM COWBOY! Every second is crowded with danger for Eddie Woods, twice all-around cowboy champion at the famous Calgary Stampede. It sure takes healthy nerves to stay on board a fighting bronk! "Camels are my smoke," says Eddie Woods. "They never jangle my nerves."

"OUT ON THE RANCH I became devoted to riding and smoking Camels. Even though I am in the tenderfoot class I need healthy nerves. And Camels do not upset my nerves. That is important to a woman!"

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

EDDIE WOODS, one of the "top hands" of the cowboy world, says:
"Ten seconds on the back of an outlaw horse is about the hardest punishment for a man's nerves that anybody can imagine. To have nerves that can take it, I smoke only Camels. I've tried them all, but Camels are my smoke! They have a natural mildness, and I like their taste better. Most important of all, Camels do not jangle my nerves, even when I light up one Camel after another."
If you are nervous... jumpy... inclined to "fly off the handle"... change to Camels. Your own nerves and taste will confirm the fact that this milder cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos, is better for steady smoking.

CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS
