CISCO CWA SCHOOLS

A system of CWA schools has been organized in Cisco and approved by the state headquarters and an ambitious schedule will get under way tomorrow. Schools for adults will be taught in the public school buildings with classes meeting in the afternoons and evenings. Already large numbers of adults have registered for these classes which will teach a great variety of useful subjects, the selections being based upon the wishes of the majority. There will be classes for adults who have scant knowledge of the fundamentals, as well as for those who wish instruction in the more advanced areas of the educational field.

The popularity and benefits of these CWA schools, which were authorized for the double purpose of putting unemployed teachers to work and of making their knowledge available to community training and enterprises, were already being demonstrated in commercial classes organized by P. L. Kelly at the high school, and a general culture class taught by Miss Dorothy Kramer at the east ward school. The commercial class, for obvious reasons, attracted the greater number. But Miss Kramer has been teaching a class of 20 or more.

The curricula include not merely such subjects as arithmetic, grammar and other common school subjects. They embrace the homemaking arts, nursing, foreign language and so forth. There are a number of people in most communities who can neither read nor write. For these, provided they have the courage to overcome a probable foolish pride the classes should be a godsend. But the great value of the CWA schools lies in what they can accomplish in educating the average housewife and the average husband and business man in better homemaking, better social conduct and better community and commercial thinking. None of us knows it all, and the great majority are woefully deficient in a knowledge of even the simplest problems of living. Community attention centered upon an aim of improvement through the medium of these CWA classes will accomplish a great deal in lifting community standards higher.

These CWA schools are not something "fabricated" to give jobs teachers employment. It is not claimed that the teachers selected are the best, nor, on the other hand, is it claimed that the qualities which make excellent students are superlatively present in the classes that are to be taught. It is claimed, however, that the faculty has been selected as well for its ability as the desire for employment. The CWA classes will be just what teacher and pupil make them. Both will be mature enough to appreciate that the amount of accomplishment depends upon the quality of the cooperation between them. To that extent is much of the problem of teaching adolescents overcome and class and teacher interest freed for concentration upon the mutual end.

Certainly no stigma attaches to attending these classes. Commendation should attach to participation therein. The CWA schools in Cisco can be made a splendid community project with results of enduring value.

DEPOSIT INSURANCE

Ninety-seven per cent of the bank depositors of the nation are insured under the new deposit insurance act. Chmn. Walter J. Cummings, head of the federal deposit insurance corporation, reported to President Roosevelt deposits in 13,423 banks will be insured. It is significant as well as remarkable that Cummings reported only 141 banks had been found ineligible and predicted a number of them might be insured by making certain corrections. Thus today, for the first time in American history, depositors of sums up to $2,500 will be insured against loss. After July 1, 1934, this insurance will be increased to $10,000. The First National Bank of Cisco, is a participant in that insurance. The Cisco bank was admitted without even the formality of a special examination.

William Jennings Bryan is resting in a warrior's grave at Arlington. More than 37 years ago he declared for insurance of bank deposits. During his long and brilliant career he was branded as a faker and an apostle of idle dreams as to banking economics and finance. He created a cross of gold with its accompanying piece of a crown of thorns. Many of his so-called wild dreams have come to pass. Deposit insurance is one. His foremost disciple in Texas in those eventful years that have passed Texans by was Thomas B. Love, now a Texas sage who passed his Christmas and New Year's before a blazing liveoak fire at Loveridge farm. If it be true that he who laughs last laughs best, then the sage is doing a lot of chucking and no doubt elects himself a miracle maker instead of a political magician whose wand failed him when he bolted the ancient party for Hoover four years ago.

GOSSETT RETIRES

Woodrow Wilson was responsible for the creation of the federal land bank system. William Gibbs McAdoo had a vast deal to do with the creation of the act and the organization of 12 land banks in the 12 federal reserve districts of the nation. Indeed, it is a matter of history that McAdoo selected Dallas as the headquarters for the federal reserve bank of the southwestern district. And it was on his recommendation that Houston won the first federal land bank. M. H. Gossett, a lawyer and a large farmer of Kaufman county, was made its president. This happened 16 years ago. Today it is said the Houston federal land bank is the most successful of all the 12 organized under the act in bygone years. "Ham" Gossett, as his intimate associates call him, has resigned. He will return to his own vine and fig tree habitat. In his youth he was a power in upstate politics. He was a member of the legislature. He aspired to wield a speaker's gavel. A combination defeated him. Later he aspired to a seat in the federal house of representatives. First, he was nominated and then he lost the nomination through a trick played by his opponents before the chairman announced the result of the balloting.

Gossett expressed his pride in the value of the service to agriculture given by the federal land bank and intermediate credit banks and said that with organization of the production credit corporation and the Houston banks for cooperatives the system for the financing of practically all needs of agriculture was now available.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The national liar's championship recently conferred by the Burlington, Wis. Liars club upon a Lange-loth, Pa. fabricator of tall tales stirred some local imaginations of doubtful authority.

R. N. Cluck remarked that he knew one man who was famous for his shingling over and over that of an unusually long row, and when he examined the work he found that he had shingled six or seven feet on the fog.

E. H. Varnell, here on a brief visit with his family Friday, said that he knew of a man who started shingling a roof during a particularly heavy fog in the valley country. He shingled an unusually long row, and when he examined the work he found that he had shingled six or seven feet on the fog.

Jim Bird, Pencil Farmer No. 2, has qualified as a specialist on changing baby pants as well as teaching boys how to be farmers. He devoted a goodly part of Friday evening to instructing Cluck upon this puzzling science. The professor on the day before had done a great deal of head-scratching over his first problem, and he was open to advice. He had been baffled by modernity. All the baby pants with which he was familiar had had three corners. These had four.

Bird explained that both varieties are now used. For more satisfactory results with the four-cornered variety, he said, four safety pins are used. Some folks take considerable risks and use only two he said. He said that he is now working on a "zipper" model that even school teachers and newspapermen can operate.

In the case of some newspapermen I know, he is wasting his time. Coach Shelly pays two of his Cisco boys the tribute of placing them upon his all-state team for the past season. They are Caffrey, whom he names at right half-back, and Blackburn whom he places at right guard.

Comments Coach Shelly: "I have seen all of these boys in action, except the two Greenville boys and the one from Breckenridge. I have picked two men from Cisco, not because they played for me, but because I really think they are all-state material. Caffrey is the best all-around back I've seen in years. He is a triple threat man. He is not a very good ball carrier, but a good passer and punter, and the best blocker I've seen in high school or college this year. On the defense he has no peer. The oil belt this year was the weakest it has been in years, but there were several outstanding men Cogdell and Brookshire of Abilene, Anderson of Ranger and Taylor of Breckenridge were outstanding men."

Through a mistake which crept into the personal mention column of the Daily News last Friday,

The News reported that Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Statham had moved from their home at 1003 West Sixth street to Eighth street. The result has been a convincing demonstration of the fact that the Daily News is read. The Stathams are threatened with the necessity of erecting a sub-station at the Eighth street address in order to receive deliveries consigned to their home. The utility companies have asked if they don't want their service connections transferred, while Statham has had to explain over and over that he is still at his old stand and intends to stay there.

The News regrets the mistake. The Stathams haven't moved.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

H. L. Walsh, editor of the St. Catharines (Ont.) Standard, says: "We are living, despite the human misery and want from a four year world wide depression, in the most forward moving era of socialism in this continent, the United States and Canada has ever witnessed. And it is not the socialism which uses to be the bugbear of the forefathers but soundly based on man's responsibility to man. It is progress in human welfare."

"Harking back, French peasants ten millions of them, were once a cross between a rodent and a beast. They retired, at night, into dens where they lived on black bread and water roots."

"Back in industrial England, 30,000 workers lived in Leeds in rat-infested cellars unprovided with water, heat, light and sewers. A dozen slept in the same room, and garbage and fecal matter cluttered the streets. The English mill hand worked 18 hours a day for $2.50 a week and so on with all his family."

"Up until 1920, there was imprisonment for debt in the United States, the debtor joining with the very lowest class of criminal."

"What of today? Billions are issued to wage war on depression. It is an era, in this Province of Ontario, and it applies fairly generally to the rest of America, of mothers' allowances, workmen's compensation, old age pensions, free hospital clinics, public relief based on legislative and voluntary contribution, public ownership of vast resources, and manifold activities all to improve the lot of humans. It is an era and this follows a reign of Capitalism, of the greatest use of the motor car, the telephone, the radio, and scores of electrical devices on farm and in the home not dreamed of even a half century ago by even the most affluent of citizens. Now all is shared by the common run of mankind in this America."

"Socialism goes hand in hand with Capitalism in England, where they have evolved round actuarial unemployment insurance and recently added 4,000,000 white collar beneficiaries to the workable project. Human progress is very marked the world over, and in one great respect the United States and Canada can be thankful. The 3,000 miles fortress, soldieries boundary line between these two countries remains as the great unique example of good neighborhood to the whole world."

CRAWLS YIELDED $20.50

ANTIOCH, Cal., Jan. 6 — Two live chickens purchased from a poultry market by Mrs. William Daley yielded $20.50 in gold nuggets when killed and dressed.

Harmonious in Support of the President Cartwheels

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

President Roosevelt has a congress on his hands. It is a democratic congress, elected in the third American revolution at the ballot box in 1932. It is democratic and overwhelmingly so in both branches. There is a huge democratic majority in the house, and there are more democrats, or so-called democrats, in the senate than at any time since the close of the war between the states. Texas has two democratic senators. According to Washington advice they are going all the road with the president and his program. Texas has 21 representative-at-large, on the morning of the opening of the session predicted that "the congress will undoubtedly be harmonious in support of the president." Speaking for the son of his father, he said:

"As for me, I should like to see the appropriations measure passed, the cattle industry included in the AAA, certain corrections in veterans legislation and federal employees' hours and pay, together with whatever the administration may find necessary to full trial of its program. Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity can accomplish this and make a short session and a happy people."

Sen. Tom Connally has pledged his support to the limit. He began the battle for the revaluation of gold away back in early springtime in 1933. William F. Woodin is out. An ideal business man, a successful industrialist, a loyal American at all times, he gave the best he had to the administration of his close friend who is the president of the United States. Now Charles F. Mergenthaler of New York, a neighbor of the president, a practical farmer and breeder of pedigreed cattle, is the successor of Woodin, but there is no power behind the Roosevelt throne. He is the president, the personage and the throne itself. At least this is the verdict of the looker-on in the city of Washington, now the financial as well as the political capital of the republic.

There is a nation-wide election coming in November of this year. Every member of the lower house will be up for re-election or refuse to stand for re-election. A third of the membership of the senate will face vote first on primary election day and at the finals on November election day.

THE WAY TO ELIMINATE REVENUE NEEDS

Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls is one of the outstanding citizens of West Texas. He is a successful business man. He was born in a Louisiana plantation. In his time he has operated plantations and farms in Texas as well as in the Mexican state. He is president of the West Texas chamber of commerce. That organization has a program for 1934. This is the personal attitude of Cline: "No new sources of revenue would be necessary if the great amount of delinquent taxes was paid." This is true. According to some of the statisticians $200,000,000 is the sum total of delinquent taxes the state over, speaking of all the units of government. Those who are able to pay should be requested to pay. Men and women who pay their taxes promptly, going through the grinding process to do it, should not be asked to carry all the load. New taxes to force the raising of new revenues would place an additional handicap at this time on the men and women who know their duty to the state and all its units of government.

Travis county commissioners' court has reminded employees of the county that they must face the else there will be no salary music and pay delinquent tax payments made to public servants employees or to those who are public service employees who business with the local units of government. An excellent start for a new year. This warning to all public service workers who taxpayers.

GYPSY MOHELL and TOM WEATHER are married with simple ceremony on the same day that LILA JOUFALING and DEBBIE BILKINS marry in New York's most fashionable church. Gypsy and Lila are childhood friends. The Weathers spend the honeymoon in Tom's shack on a Long Island beach and the Bilkses go to Europe.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

IT was quite different, starting off in the morning, from life in Blue Hills. There Clytie had always had Gypsy's breakfast ready and waiting. Here she had to rise half an hour earlier than Tom in order to squeeze oranges, set the table and make coffee. Gypsy was still far from expert was her irrelevant thought. At least, from Blue Hills, she had ridden in more comfortable fashion, on train and ferry. Oh, well, you couldn't have everything. You had to pay for the privilege of living in New York City.

She hated leaving the apartment thus, beds unmade, the kitchen in confusion, but there was no choice.

"My dear, that's the best-looking outfit!" Her colleagues greeted her with smiles and handclaps. "We've missed you," said Miss Marr, an eye-glassed girl from Randolph-Macon. "We've certainly missed you, honey. It's mighty nice to see you."

This part of it wasn't so bad. She forgot the subway. Her pupils had eager dark faces and grubby hands, but the work was so interesting, you overlooked the dirt and saw only the eagerness. She plugged into her classes . . . weaving for the tots . . . modeling in clay . . . chalk-drawing . . . She was surprised to look up at the clock and discover it was half-past eleven.

With the approach of lunch-hour came the thought of Tom's rendezvous. Her heart sank. Why did she feel so miserable about it? It was nonsense—utter nonsense. Tom had chosen her out of all the world. What did it matter if he lunched today with another woman? Thus reason argued, but the sense of injury persisted.

"You going to have something sent in, honey?" Miss Marr struck her neatly coiffed head around the door-jamb.

"I don't know," Gypsy was beginning, doubtfully. She couldn't, she thought, eat a single bite. There was a lump in her throat. Food would certainly choke her.

"But just then Blanche Jordan called down the hall: "Telephone for you, Gypsy. Think it's the best one."

"Yes, it's me." She couldn't help making her voice small and injured, like a child's.

"Darling," Tom said, "I've been worrying about you. I feel rotten about this. You know I don't want to hurt you. I just didn't know how to get out of the date . . ."

"It's all right." It really was, now. Bring on your vamps. Bring on your Vera Grays. She was equal to all of them. He loved her.

"I hope you've saved me a big husky sandwich," she cried, running into the teacher's room. "I'm famished."

Miss Marr and Miss Jordan exchanged sly, amused, glittering glances over her head. So they've kissed and made up, the glances said.

USUALLY Gypsy's duties at the settlement house were ended at four o'clock, but today she was detained for almost an hour, catching up with letters, seeing parents who happened to stop in. She had planned to shop for dinner on the way home. None of this night-after-night tearoom dining for the young Weathers, she had announced, very firmly. It was half-past five when she got off the subway, feeling dragged, hot and tired. Vainly she turned in at the little corner market and bought chops, vegetables for a salad and peas. Next she added a bag of rolls to collection. She would, she decided, have to manage her affairs better in future. She would telephone an order before she found the supplies awaiting at home. She would make lists for a week ahead . . .

A church clock struck six and she reached the apartment building. She longed for a shower, clean clothes, time to rest and dine. Clytie had had a delirious habit of drawing a bath before her arrival at the Blue Hills . . .

Now she would have to have things fixed before she got home. She didn't want to be a bedraggled, home-keeping wife. She wanted Jim to think her ways pretty and glamorous. Where she stood, this looked like a large order.

As she slipped her key into lock, she was visualizing the scene which would spread before her. There would be a pile of dishes. There would be two to make. Yesterday's papers lay about. She braced her shoulders, and the door flew open.

"Why, darling!"

TOM was there before her. His shoulder she saw a span and kitchen. The living room was in exquisite order. There were even some fresh chrysanthemums in a little vase.

"His kiss silenced her. He was taking her bundles. Behind her in the gloom, an aproned figure loomed.

"This is Dinah, Mrs. Weather's maid," Tom said, gravely. "Dinah's going to clean up for every day, fix the things for you and whatever else you like. White teeth gleamed in a blue face. Dinah's apron was spotless.

"But Tom," said Gypsy, following him into the living room. "How on earth did you do it? Where did you find her?"

He radiated the pride of an efficient male. "I came home early," he explained slyly, amused. "I realized what you meant when you every day I scared up the superintendent and he sent Dinah around."

"Won't it cut into our budget?" Gypsy wanted to know. Tom waved this aside. Dinah, he said, would charge them $10 a week for part time work—she was glad to get it.

Wearily Gypsy tossed the little hat on the daybed and dusted out her hair, that's fine," she said. "And now I must see about dinner."

Tom restrained her. "She'll get dinner tonight didn't I tell you? Three nights a week—that was the arrangement I made."

"Darling, you're wonderful," Gypsy breathed.

"You're to rest until ready," commanded the wizard affairs, masterfully. "And afterwards you're to look your prettiest, because we're going to callers."

Gypsy shared at him. His manner was a shade too casual, his suspicions were aroused.

"Not . . . not . . ." She refused to say the name.

"Yes, Vera's dashing in to us," Tom told her with a hood. "She's dying to meet you."

Third Youth Admits Part in Fatal Holdup

FORT WORTH, Jan. 6—The third of three youths held in the three-year-old slaying of U. E. Horton, filling station operator here, today signed a written statement, police said, admitting his part in the affair.

Breaking his silence of three days and climaxing 19 hours of continuous questioning, Justine Conde, 23, admitted participation in the attempted holdup in which Horton was slain March 8, 1931.

Previously to Conde's statement, Dewey Fowler, 21, and Jack Carter, 20, admitted their parts in the hold-up slaying, police said. All three youths have been charged with murder.

HINES REPORTS VETERAN COSTS SHOW DECREASE

WASHINGTON D. C., Jan 6 — A slight decrease in the cost of veterans' activities was reported Thursday in the annual report of Veterans Administrator Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, as the organization set about to slash some $338,000,000 from its current year's expenses.

Actual net disbursements for all purposes in the year ended June 30, 1933, aggregated $86,688,479, including $35,189,479 for the payment of annuities and refunds under the civil service and Canal Zone retirement laws. This compared with aggregate expenditures for the same purposes of $89,099,937 in the previous fiscal year.

Drastic Revision
Because of need of additional federal economy, drastic revision of the entire veterans system was inaugurated during the year, requiring action in over a million cases with adjudicatory review in approximately 650,000 cases.

In this manner it was hoped to remove, or reduce, benefits to non-service connected disabilities and at the same time maintain payments to service connected cases.

Provision was made, Hines reported in connection with the new veterans legislation passed in the past session of congress, that rate of compensation payable for directly service connected disabilities to World War veterans who entered the service prior to Nov. 11, 1918, and who were in receipt of compensation on March 29, 1933, should not be reduced by more than 25 per cent.

Pension Awards
"Under the new legislation," Hines said, "pension is awarded for disability or death resulting from disease or injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty in wartime service; and for disability or death incurred in military or naval service."
The rates of pension prescribed by regulations for war-time service connected disabilities range from $1 to $96 per month, with higher rates for extremely severe disabilities; for peace-time service connected disabilities due to war service; and for disabilities not the result of military or naval service $30 per month for permanent total disability. In addition the payment of $15 per month is prescribed by regulations for "Franco-American war veterans passed 62."

Hines reported that seven persons are still in receipt of pensions on account of service rendered in the War of 1812; 415 for the Mexican war; 148,561 for the Civil war, and 232,719 for the Spanish-American war.
The grand total of disbursements for pensions on account of the Civil war in June 30, last, reached $7,698,594,102. A total of 2,213,265 served in the Civil war.

SOUTH AFRICAN FIGHTER SEEKS CARNER TITLE

By FRED BAILEY
United Press Staff Correspondent.
CHICAGO, Jan. 6 — A scotchman from South Africa—Donald Dinnie McKindale—is the latest heavyweight boxing invader seeking the crown that Primo Carnera, Italian giant, wears.

Don (he prefers that to Mac) has been fighting since he was a 12-year-old barefoot youngster in Pretoria, South Africa. He smiles broadly when he admits he hasn't always won, but modesty is one of his likable points.

Well Set-Up
A well-set-up fellow standing 6 feet 1 1/2 inches tall and with curly brown hair, McKindale has many of the mannerisms and appearances of a college football player. He doesn't even talk like a fighter.

His ring record is more impressive than that of the usual foreign invader. Most of his experience has been as an amateur. He won the British amateur heavyweight title in 1929 and fought his way to the semi-finals of the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam.

Don became a professional a little more than two years ago. Since then he has won a majority of his 37 bouts, in which he met the leading heavyweight contenders of Europe.

Railroad Man

While Don first got on the padded mitts at 12, it was not until two years later that he took up boxing seriously. He worked as an apprentice engineer on a railroad during the day and did his fighting in the evenings.

He fought everybody there was to fight in Africa and then went to Britain, where he joined the stable of Ted Broadribb, a one-time leading British heavyweight. The importance of that connection was that he married the boss' daughter.

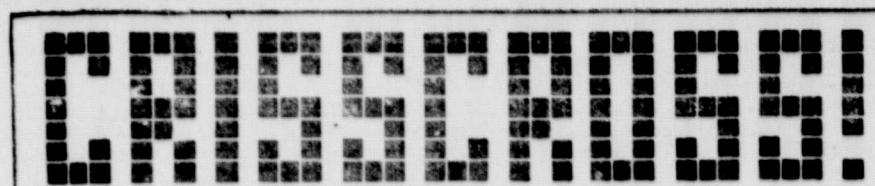

Adjoining Broadribb's office was that of his daughter Christie, who acted as his secretary. Both say it was love at first sight. Soon they were married and she became his trainer. She is yet.

BS FOLLOW BOARD UP DURING YEAR

WAYNE C. BUTLER (Press Financial Writer) YORK, Jan. 6 — Curb and other security markets continued in a move toward recovery in 1933. The Roosevelt price program constituted a big rise, the market also stimulated by a general interest in business with its train earnings reports and dividends. Interest in curb stocks exchanged with the increase in the "big board" and sales totaled approximately 98 shares, compared with only shares in 1932. Trading volume approximated $945, slightly less than the 1932 showing in curb stocks following the reopening of the nation's March. Responding to various measures and the picture of business, the market pursued its upward until the middle of July reached its 1933 peak.

Profit Taking Final half of the year traduced to take profits on the industrial pick-up. It was too vigorous and sustained. As big business to gain ground in the stocks relinquished about their summer gains, but near-end market moved about November trading range. The United Press curraged reflected a price similar to that prevailing on exchange. Starting the 1930, the curb averages slip- flow for 1933 on April 4 at summer rally carried the to a high of 13.50 on July at the year-end it was after touching 9.50.

Whisky Speculation in whisky shares one of the most interesting of curb exchange dealings. As state after state swung a prohibition repeal, Can- nor stocks spurred to new and depreciation of the sold mining stocks soaring indications of success in effort to stabilize in the petroleum industry background for a spec- andance in oil shares, while revival in the motor indus- tured buyers to automotive

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Jan. 6 — Here is a gospel minister who is thinking about serving in the Texas legislature. The Rev. Beverly W. Allen of Austin, former pastor of the Fred Allen Memorial Methodist church, has said he is contemplating the race this spring for the seat from which Rep. T. H. McGeezor plans to retire. The Rev. Allen said he will favor resubmission of the state prohibition amendment. He will favor resubmission for revision for Confederate pension amendment, which levies a direct pension tax; and he will further stress a greater state activity in the rehabilitation of cripples, a work now carried on with limited resources by State Supt. L. A. Woods' department.

Rep. A. W. Griffith of Austin has urged citizens of Travis county to give attentive study to the possibilities and opportunities of the county home rule amendment that has been by voters made a part of the constitution.

He wants citizens to become familiar with this amendment, and to consider the extent to which its benefits may be attained. He had pointed out that its inclusion by county candidates as a campaign plank will afford an excellent means of having its affirmative merits presented before the voters.

Small counties will require legislative authority; but those the size of Travis and larger may, when they wish, create a charter commission have a home rule charter written, and then have an election to pass upon its adoption.

In none so far intimated is there any idea of undertaking the second possible phase — that of city and county governmental merger — along with the initial step of giving the counties equally efficient and equally economical administration as that of home rule cities.

The best and most prevalent opinion about the Texas statehouse now is that the legislature will convene in May, but not earlier; and that the primary subject of its session will be the issuance of another $5,000,000 of state relief bonds.

There is little indication that the low initial sale of the bread bonds will force a session; and the vigorous action of bankers' groups to speed the sale has minimized what earlier prospect there was.

State officials have found what seemingly will prevent the investment of county road bond sinking funds, now turned over to the state in relief bonds.

The funds still "belong" to the counties, until finally applied to retirement of outstanding bonds, it has been held.

This was corroborated by the fact that an amendment gives the counties authority under prescribed conditions, to withdraw the sinking fund deposits.

The legislature, knowing a state is more careless in providing funds to pay itself than to pay others, excluded the relief bonds from available investment for university or school funds of the state, and of sinking funds of "political subdivisions."

That attitude of distrust, or self-distrust, or what you may call it is probably responsible now for the stoppage of food to the remaining and most helpless element of those who have been fed by relief funds in the past.

KATY ENDS 1933 WITHOUT FATAL WORK ACCIDENT

In completing 1933 without a single reportable accidental death to an employe, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines established an all time safety record. Not only was it the first time the Katy ever made such an enviable record, but it was the first time any major railroad in the country operating a mileage as great as that of the Katy went an entire year without a reportable accidental employe death. Last year only one Katy employe died as a result of accidental injuries and the Katy's record of accidents per million man hours was also extremely low.

According to J. C. King, Cisco agent, the Katy's safety record has shown a steady improvement during the 16 years that J. L. Walsh, superintendent of safety, has been directing its safety activities. "The Katy has always enjoyed an unusual safety record," said Mr. King, "but railroading remains a hazardous calling, especially in yards and shops where safety depends so largely upon the human equation. "When Mr. Walsh commenced his safety work on the Katy 16 years ago, the reportable accidental deaths to employes of which we had none last year, totaled 64. Since then there has been a gradual decrease in fatal accidents, while the number of men injured at work has also shown a corresponding decrease.

Casualties suffered by Katy employes last year and reportable under ICC rules totaled 165, while in 1918 the total was 2,534, including 64 reportable accidental deaths. The ratio of casualties in 1933 to the total man hours worked was 8.01 per million man hours, while the ratio 16 years ago was 38.03."

According to Mr. King, the Katy has been a recognized leader in railroad safety work of all kinds for years, and among the first to inaugurate new safety rules and practices, and to purchase and install safety appliances and devices of various kinds.

RISING STAR, Jan. 6 — The second annual invitation basketball tournament held by Rising Star high school has been announced for Friday and Saturday, January 26 and 27. Play will be held in the Rising Star gymnasium, both afternoon and night of both days. Twelve schools have been invited to participate in the tournament: May, Williams, Blanket, Beattie, Sidney, Sipe Springs, Pioneer, Cross Plains and Carbon. Williams high school won first prize in the first annual invitation tourney here, in 1932.

NICKLE GOT TEAM HOLDEN, Okla., Jan. 6 — When Lloyd Burris, youthful Hughes county farmer, received a nickle for good grades during his schooldays, he turned to "high finance." He purchased some corn and planted it, growing several bushels. Part of the crop was traded for a pig, which ate the balance and grew into a hog. This hog was traded for a calf, which was bartered for a pair of colts. Burris now has a dandy team of horses which cost him the nickle.

OLD PATENT RECORDED

STEVENS POINT, Wis., Jan. 6 — A land patent granted in 1856 by President Franklin Pierce to Daniel Scaffer, was recorded recently for the first time in the office of the Portage county register of deeds. The owner of the property learned recently that when an abstract of his property was drawn the patent never had been recorded. He found the original patent after searching through the papers in his attic.

ROBBER BREAKS RECORD

WEATHERFORD, Okla., Jan. 6 — Weatherford escaped the wave of bank robberies which has swept over Oklahoma for years, until recently when the first robbery in this town's history took place. While officials of the Liberty National bank were home at dinner, $813 was stolen by a bandit believed to have been locked inside after entering and hiding himself from employes.

Absent-Mindedness May Cost in Berlin

BERLIN, Jan. 6 — It doesn't pay to be absent-minded in Berlin. It's apt to cost money.

A thirsty fellow entered the corner beer pub about 3 a. m. one day for a last glass on his way home. "Just a small one," he instructed the waiter. In due course the beer arrived and was drunk. The time came for payment.

"Let me see," computed the waiter. "That will be five marks and 25 pfennigs."

"What?" managed the fellow. "That size usually costs 25 pfennigs."

"Yes," said the waiter, "but our closing time is one a. m. and from then on we are a club. Now your membership fee is two marks and three months dues, payable in advance, bring your basic cost to five. You notice, of course, that we don't raise the price on our drinks."

A housewife once — only once — discovered one Sunday she was without butter. The neighborhood grocer lived behind his store, however, and was routed out without much difficulty.

"Just a quarter of a pound of butter, to last until tomorrow," she announced.

"That makes 100 marks and 43 pfennings," observed the storekeeper. The woman clutched feebly at the counter. She guessed she really didn't need any butter until tomorrow.

"You see," said the grocer, "our price is the same on Sundays as on week-days, but if you want to buy on Sunday you have to pay a hundred-mark customer's fine."

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY

MUCH of the success of every salad depends on its dressing. The dressing must not be so highly flavored that it overpowers the flavors of the salad materials. Rather, it should serve to blend contrasting flavors and add piquancy with its tartness. Sometimes extra ingredients are added to the dressing, as in the case of the following horseradish dressing. This dressing is particularly good with celery, carrot and apple salad, although any bland vegetable gains interest if served with the dressing.

Horseradish Dressing

One-half cup whipping cream, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons grated horseradish, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon white pepper.

Whip cream until firm. Season with salt, pepper, sugar and paprika. Add horseradish and vinegar and serve. If prepared horseradish is used less vinegar may be needed.

Potato Mayonnaise

This is another excellent dressing to use with non-starchy vegetables. Chinese cabbage and red cabbage are good finely shredded and mixed with the dressing. The recipe follows: Two good sized potatoes, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 cup mayonnaise, 1-2 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Boil potatoes in their jackets. Peel and put through ricer. Season with salt and pepper and let cool. Add slowly to mayonnaise, beating constantly to make it

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grape juice, cereal, cream, fish and rice on toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Tomato rabbit on toast, button radishes, dried apple pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Swiss steak with brown gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed onions, red cabbage with potato mayonnaise, raspberry trifle, crisp cookies, milk, coffee.

smooth. Beat in onion juice, drop by drop.

Bacon Dressing

Three thin slices of bacon, 4 tablespoons vinegar, 1-2 teaspoon sugar, three drops tabasco sauce, few drops onion juice.

Cut bacon in dice with scissors. Cook over a very low heat until crisp. Stir in vinegar and sugar. Reheat and add tabasco sauce and onion juice. Pour at once over curried endive, shredded lettuce or romaine.

Hard Boiled Egg Dressing

One teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1 egg yolk (raw), 3 hard cooked eggs, 4 tablespoons salad oil, 4 tablespoons vinegar.

Mix mustard, salt and paprika with raw yolk of egg. Add hard cooked egg yolks and work with a fork until smooth. Slowly add oil, beating constantly, thinning with vinegar as necessary. Beat well and add whites of hard cooked eggs which have been coarsely chopped. Mix well with lettuce or endive in salad oil.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE NIGHTINGALE'S SONG CAN BE HEARD FOR MORE THAN A MILE.

EXCELLENT RAZOR STROPS CAN BE MADE FROM THE FUNGUS KNOWN AS POLYPORUS BETULINUS.

LIGHT TRAVELS FAST ENOUGH TO MAKE THIRTY-ONE ROUND TRIPS, BETWEEN SAN FRANCISCO AND NEW YORK, IN ONE SECOND.

THE nightingale far excels most other birds in its song qualities, but the fact that it sings at night, when the rest are silent, has helped add to its reputation as an outstanding performer. The night air not only lends distance to the bird's voice, but also adds a romantic touch.

Prodigal Dog Back, News Vender Happy

BEAUMONT, Jan. 6—Blind Frank, aged newspaper vender here, began the new year happily—his great German shepherd dog, Toby, returning New Year's day after being lost for more than a year.

Tears streamed from sightless eyes as the two were reunited on the street corner where Toby so long had watched over his blind master. A porter in a domino parlor noticed the gaunt, weary dog and recognized it as Toby. Police tried to take the dog to Blind Frank but Toby would not leave the corner.

Falling to persuade the dog to accompany them the officers hurried to Blind Frank and took him to the corner. One quavering, hardly audible call brought the great Toby bounding into the old man's arms for a Happy New Year's greeting.

Factious Comment. Allred's only comment on McDonald's platform was factious. Referring to its opening declarations, Allred said: "It takes rare political courage to endorse the democratic president's policies."

Commended Platform. The Ferguson Forum commended McDonald, platform, printed it entire and predicted that "the man who beats McDonald will be governor."

MERCHANTS...

WILL OPEN YOUR DOOR MORE OFTEN

Progressive West Texas merchants have found that well-lighted stores increase their business. Attractive windows invite customers, and plentiful light inside the store creates a clean, cheerful atmosphere. Customers like to see what you have to sell, and good lighting is as much a part of merchandising as display, modern fixtures and courteous sales force.

For example, here is what better lighting did for one store: The intensity of the illumination of the ground floor of the store was raised from 3 1/2-foot to 15-foot candles. The results: 38% increase in customers—11% increase in sales—29% increase in average sales. —And here in West Texas, merchants who have recently taken advantage of our "Better Lighting Service" and carefully analyzed the results, have found even better increases in sales.

Our Lighting Engineer will be glad to measure your lighting and tell you how it compares with scientific standards for stores of your class. —All without a penny of cost or obligation on your part. A telephone call will bring him at your convenience. Make your appointment right now.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule? ... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?
