EDINBURG, Texas, Jan. 24—Federal and state officers who joined hands to bring about the return last night of 64 indictments in major Texas relief scandal, indicated today that scores of additional indictments will follow within the next two months.

All of the indictments drawn by the Hidalgo county grand jury last night were against N. L. Reyna, joya relief supervisor, and H. L. Ross, Mercedes, former county relief board members.

"We are uncovering an organized scheme to defraud the state and federal government of relief money. These indictments are only the beginning," declared M. L. Kelly, federal investigator for Hidalgo county, who with the district attorney and Asst. States Attorney-general Jack Waters, of Austin, is leading the investigation.

Reyna was named in 28 charges of forgery and in 35 charges of "making false reports on distribution of relief funds."

Goss was indicted on a charge of appropriating for his own use $12 of relief funds while a relief aid member.

Judge Bruce Ferguson, by whom the indictments were received, set bond totalling $32,000.

Action of the grand jurors came immediately after Harry Hopkins, national relief administrator at Washington signalled for an intensive nation-wide war against graft in the handling of federal and state relief funds.

The Hidalgo grand jurors recessed till tomorrow, when they will resume their work.

LOCATION FOR COBB TRIAL IS NOT DECIDED

HILLSBORO, Jan. 24—Officers mittedly were puzzled today over where the trial of H. L. (Chile Red) Cobb, charged with murder in the slaying of 18-year-old Thomas Gullett, of Whitney, would be held. Gullett's charred body was found in the smoldering ruins of a hay barn near Burleson, Johnson county, last Saturday, 50 miles from Gullett's home in Hill county.

Sheriff Jim Freeland and Deputy Wally Rush said they had evidence that Cobb and Gullett met near the latter's home last Friday night just before the tragedy, but the question which they sought an answer as whether Gullett had been killed.

Hill county and his body taken to the hay barn or whether he had been lured to the farm near Burleson and there killed.

District Judge W. L. Wray, of Hillsboro, said no decision had been reached as to the place of trial but that unless evidence appeared to definitely establish the place of the alleged slaying, the trial would be held in Cleburne since the body was found in that jurisdiction.

Cobb was held in jail here yesterday, the 33-year-old suspect stoutly denied the accusation when questioned at length by officers of the two counties.

BUYING WAVE SWAMPS U. S. CAR INDUSTRY

DETROIT, Jan. 24—Steadily rising tides of new car buying today caught the automobile industry unprepared to meet the public's demand for $250,000,000 worth of cars this month.

As a result the industry found itself swamped under a flood of dealers and individual orders. A United Press survey revealed that for the first time in five years the industry is selling cars faster than it can produce them.

Large corporations and the smaller companies alike reported orders as high as 50 per cent above expectations. In some instances the number of unfilled orders exceeded those of the peaks years of 1928 and 1929.

Long Fights to Hold Machine Together

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24—Sen. Huey P. Long, loser in the local election which robbed him of his last stronghold, fought bitterly today to stave off a complete disintegration of his once all-powerful political machine.

BOY SLAYERS SAY ACT WAS IN PROTECTION

GAINESVILLE, Jan. 24—Two young boys who admitted they shot and killed Claude Autry, their father and brother-in-law, respectively, declared in jail here today that they acted to save other members of the family.

Dubois Autry, 16, son of the slain man, and Johnnie Curtis, 17, brother of the victim's wife, both faced murder complaints in connection with the death of the elder Autry, a farmer.

"He threatened to kill our entire family, and he cursed us and abused us frequently," Dubois told officers. "So yesterday Johnnie and I loaded our shotguns, climbed upon the roof of the barn and waited for him to come out to milk the cows."

"When he got close to us, both shot him," the son said. "We thought it would be better for us to take one life than to permit him to take several."

TALENT

Talent is the basis of all achievement; although it is not the constituent essential of success. To every new-born child in the world this priceless gem, be it what it may, has been endowed—a diamond in the rough. He is also given possession of the faculties to develop his talent. With these wonderful gifts it seems that there should not be any reason in the world why every person should not top the summit of attainment. But only a small minority really do reach the top. Then there must be something besides the talent and the ability to develop present in those who have succeeded. What then constitute these powers? It is the inspired spirit and the determined will-power and perseverance. They have led them over obstacles that have been disastrous to others. Through these he has been able to see a light ahead and has kept his eye constantly fixed upon it, never looking back at the mortals failing by the wayside.

Talent is like the bud of a fruit tree—sprouting out of the branch in the springtime, born with the newly risen sap, tender and green with potential life. As the warm rains comes and the fresh invigorating sunrays penetrates the earth bringing forth grass and green herbs, the small bud matures into a delicate blossom. But there comes the strong winds that blow most of the blossoms of fanday fall to the ground failing to be fertilized and germinated into a small fruit. Some of them endure the winds and the storms and survive into a growing fruit, filling out and ripening each day. Even after the fruit is almost matured there are occasional hailstorms that leave it bruised and marred. After the plagues of insects and worms and parasites only a few are left. These few ripen and bring forth their yield in due season—the development of the bud into the mellow fruit was not due to the stamina or nature of the bud to withstand the wind and the plagues, but the tree itself that furnished the moisture and sap through its roots that peirced the ground and absorbed it from the earth.

"Don't peel your bananas and throw the orange hulls on the sidewalk." Wasn't that an intelligent statement for the high and mighty Mr. Chuck to make. Well, I guess that's all right because he's here today—and here today!

Cisco high school regrets losing Juanita Lancaster, Max Anderson and Karam Soule and Robert Blair at the beginning of our new semester.

Miss Chambliss and Miss Daniel spent Sunday in Dallas.

Tenella Nance spent the weekend in Dallas. (See! What pretty clothes she brought back.)

What's this a new fed the girls asking boys for dates and asking them to bring seven nickles—(Plus a car.)

It's strange going-on when two boys are wearing friend-hip bracelets. They are not the givers or the owners. (We girls think they are trying to be silly. "Yowsah.")

Johnny St. John is back with us after a week's illness that proved not to be fatal.

C. H. S. has the privilege of having a gifted personality with in its midst. It is none other than Tony J. Thomas better known as "Tony" the fantastic dancer. He has become famous through the origination of the handkerchief dance. (Lessons are given by free-will offering.)

This test, as all such tests are, was based on the common sense, and not on the "book learning," and it is surprising how many of the supposedly dumb or mediocre students made a good intelligence quotient on their test.

The normal grade was 100. An I. Q. of 100 meaning that the mental age of the student was equal to his chronological age.

The highest I. Q. was 119, and the lowest was 88. Meaning that these two students were 18 points and 14 points respectively above and below the normal grade for their age.

The lowest mental age was 19 years and 7 months and the youngest was 14 years and 5 months. But here it must be taken into consideration that the physical ages were not the same, for one boy was 20 years old, and another was a lad of only 14 years.

And here is the most gratifying fact of all. The I. Q. of this group of seniors was above average. The average was 102. Even though their chronological age was 16 years and 10 months, their average mental age was 17 years and 2 months. Most gratifying, most!

In an attempt to settle the question of mental superiority of the sexes, I might add that the highest I. Q. of 100 was made by a boy! High hot!

CHERRY TREE BUD

KALISPELL, Mont., Jan. 24.—Farmers in this region have expressed worry because their cherry trees budded in January. It was feared a sudden cold spell would kill the trees.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 24.—Skiing has been made a minor sport at Harvard college and "HS" will be awarded to those who make the team by the Harvard Athletic association.

You seldom learn what you want to in school. You go to the school with the intention of learning how to run the government when you get to be the president and come out with detailed knowledge of ways to pester the teacher and the correct answer to make when a girl slinks up to you and coos (?) "Come up and see me sometime," or maybe "What do you think?"

Personally I never tell a girl what I think—but that is off the subject.

After attending the English class for four years you have learned at least one hundred ways of expressing the word "drunk" (and approximately twice as many ways of becoming the same).

Education (two views).

One gleaned by reading such authorities as Webster, Winston, "The Americana," etc.—the other—well, read it and see.

Education is the act or process of education or the equitation of knowledge, skill or discipline of character. This is usually obtained by attending public or private schools where you can take courses in the line you want to be particularly learned in and can get a general idea of other things, such as English history, etc.

These together broaden your mind and prepare you for the future.

Education as seen by Wendell Russel, Esq.

Education is the act of going to school to find out if all the scandal of Cleopatra is true or was Nero's idea of a joke.

with the admirable intention of becoming an engineer and learn such cute wisecracks as "Is my figure all right?" etc.

After attending college four or six or eight years as the case may be, you can make a wise-crack about practically everything that is said but don't know whether Mrs. Roosevelt is the third wife of Lee Tracy or a French fan-dancer. (You hope it is the latter and probably say so.)

Did you know?

That Emerson wrote "Cotton Mather"—That it is a poem written in prose style on an old plantation literature?

That Annus Mirabilis (year of wonders) was a fiction writer of the post bellum period?

That Hawthorne belongs to a class of pre-war poets?

That Thomas Jefferson was also a pre-war poet?

(Neither did Miss Daniel until exam. week.)
