RELIEF DRIVE AIDS MILLIONS, SAYS HOPKINS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today is the seventh anniversary of the relief drive. Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator and one of President Roosevelt's right-hand men in the following dispatch, tells the administration has met the demand of unemployment relief in the first year and what it contemplates in the future.

By HARRY L. HOPKINS, Federal Emergency Relief Director (Copyright, 1934, by United Press) WASHINGTON, D. C. March 4.—A little more than nine months after the creation of the federal emergency relief administration the millions of men, women and children have been relieved of hardship from unemployment.

More than $500,000,000 of federal money have been spent for this relief.

In addition to the grants of money to the states by the FERA, the federal surplus relief corporation distributed huge quantities of commodities purchased from market surpluses.

More than $400,000,000 was spent on civil works employment.

4,000,000 Employed
Four million workers earned CWA money on public improvements.

Return, the communities, the nation and the nation as a whole, benefited by a vast number of roads, sewers, water supplies, playgrounds, parks, schools, emergency education programs, swamp drainage, disease control, airports, flood prevention, and a thousand other improvements.

The money has gone into the hands of CWA workers in every one of the four territories, and the District of Columbia. It has meant increased purchasing power in many sections.

The CWA is now undergoing delimitation, with completion scheduled for May 1. For some time, however, consideration has been given to reorganization.

CWA Only Emergency
Give these people who have been fighting the battle a chance to get through the winter, seems to be not only a part of intelligent, but a treatment of the unemployed.

W. A. in itself, was intended as an emergency measure to meet the needs of this winter.

The handling of relief problems during the past nine months has revealed the wisdom of considering a more coordinated treatment of the three main phases of national relief.

In general the three groups of people in need are: First, displaced families in rural areas; second, those composing stranded populations, such as families living in industry communities where the industry has died; and third, the unemployed in large cities.

Relief funds for rural families will, in the main, be used to help them achieve self-support through agriculture, by assisting them in getting away from dependence on a single cash crop and change to the raising of commodities for their own support. Work for wages from relief funds will be provided to the extent necessary to provide limited cash income.

In solving the difficulties of the stranded populations, it is likely that many people will have to be moved, for in many instances the place in which they now live offers no promise of future employment or chance of self-support through agriculture.

JOHN WHITE ASKS SUPPORT FOR TREASURER

John White, who recently made his announcement for county treasurer in the Cisco Daily News and Roundup, Saturday issued the following formal statement of his platform and qualifications:

To the Citizens of Eastland county:

In announcing my candidacy for the office of treasurer of our county, I wish to make the following statement.

My parents moved to Eastland county when I was three years of age and settled on a farm in the Staff community and this county has been my home continuously since.

Since my life has been lived before you, I invite and urge your careful investigation of this very important phase of any candidate's qualifications.

It shall be my desire to have the campaign for this office kept on a high plane, free from any mud-slinging tactics. My opponent's faults (if any) will not be mentioned by me.

I do not wish to boast of my qualifications, but for your information, I wish to state my education obtained in the public schools of this county, and the time spent in one of our state schools, together with the past years experience as deputy in the tax assessor's office, have prepared me for the duties of the position to which I aspire.

My reason for seeking this office, of course, is the fact I need the salary that I may support my family, but if you honor me with this trust, I shall regard it as the most important office within the gift of the people, and shall do my best to conduct its affairs in such manner as will not cause you to regret having placed your confidence in me.

JOHN WHITE.

Valley Record Is Claimed for Orange

A YEAR OF PROGRESS

By proclamation of the governor, today, the first anniversary of the inauguration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been set in Texas as a day of prayer and thanksgiving for the national improvement that has been accomplished during the past year. A committee appointed by the legislature has prepared in accordance with a joint resolution of the house and senate and the proclamation by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, the following summons of the people of Texas:

"We ask that on Sunday, March 4th, the people of the state attend divine worship and give prayer and thanksgiving for the great moral and religious influence that guides the destinies of our nation; and

"That as a united people both Jew and Gentile we are happy that our Bible is not being mutilated or rewritten and the trends of our civilization altered and changed. We are thankful that riot and bloodshed does not prevail among us. We are thankful that the hungry are being fed. And, last but not least, we are happy that the spirit of honor, integrity and fair dealing among people in the business world is being taught by precept and example from the head of our great nation.

"That on Monday and each week day for the week following March 4th every civic body, luncheon club, patriotic society or group of people that assemble themselves together pronounce a brief prayer and an expression of thanksgiving that the leadership of our nation in President Franklin D. Roosevelt has inspired the public with trust and confidence in the future.

"That our financial relationships are improving. That agriculture, the basic industry, is responding to the attention it is receiving and that we are at peace with the nations of the earth."

The United States of America is among the few nations of the world which is surviving the current revolutionary period free of violence from within or without. Yet a significance change, a change whose processes have brought strife and bloodshed in other countries, has occurred. So fundamental has been that change that the philosophy underlying our political structure has in instances been shifted to principles against which practically all elements cried anathema a generation ago. Imagine an administration a few years ago adopting the view, as a legislative prerequisite, that great industrial combines were in the public interest and should be encouraged under restriction and government control. Revolutions have been started by shifts of emphasis of lesser consequence. But in America a vast program of industrial and social regimentation has progressed to a contact with the life and interests of practically every person within the national boundaries, and the nation as a whole joins cooperatively in its prosecution. It means higher prices, a dislocation and temporary maladjustment, but these consequences are borne with a patriotic eye for the national weal. The whole forms a great demonstration of the resources within the body politic of a great democratic people; it is a justification of democracy, a new assertion of the Lincolnian prediction that this "government of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the earth."

Contrast the American state today with the upheavals in France; the civil war in Austria; the dictatorships in Germany and Italy; the smoldering relationship of Russia and Japan, and thank God for America.

APATHETIC INTEREST

In spite of rain which materially reduced the number of exhibits, the county livestock show took place here Friday and Saturday with results that merit praise in view of the serious difficulties that had to be overcome. There were numbers of fine animals shown and there was a genuine interest evinced by the crowds of visitors and Cisco citizens who viewed the exhibits.

But the most striking fact to be deduced from a study of the people who frequented the site of the show and those who took part in putting it on was the apathy of the merchants. It is an unpleasant fact that the merchants of Cisco are not as interested in the show as they should be. Perhaps they have fallen into a careless attitude of letting things drift for themselves hoping that some good may finally roll up to their doors of its own violation. But things of any worth don't occur to people that way. For one thing, competition is too keen nowadays and paved roads pass right by the door to communities that are more energetic. One stock show will neither make nor break Cisco, no more than one mistake or one success will break or make an individual. But the attitude of the commercial interests of this city can accurately be estimated from the reaction to one enterprise of community worth, and that, in this instance, was the stock show.

The essential prerequisite for success in any venture is a tremendous and active interest in that venture; and the same formula holds true for city building. After all, city building is a selfish thing; and a refusal to participate in community problems or tasks on the argument that one's time is one's own is hardly to be reconciled with the facts in the situation. Whatever the merchants and the community leaders invest in community betterment returns like bread thrown upon the waters.

MAKERS OF MUNITIONS SAID TO BE BUSY

Chilean nitrate shipments to Europe so far this year as shown in official reports are 700 per cent greater than those during a like period in 1933. Canal Zone shippers remarked that the nitrates may be used in making munitions by European buyers, although "Chilean officials said the shipments were for agricultural purposes." Panama Canal officials expect heavier nitrate shipments than ever before. Mars, the war god, appears to be coming back.

It might be more useful if we stopped figuring out how Washington would react to modern problems and began to wonder how we ourselves would react to Washington.

Nominations For Congressional Medals

Democracy on Trial Throughout the World

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

American schools and colleges have been given warning that to a large extent the future of democracy lies in their hands. This word came from Dr. George F. Zook, United States commissioner of education. Dr. Zook, officially speaking, is the federal government as well as the educational heads of the schools and colleges of the 48 commonwealths. This excerpt from his address should not be permitted to go over the heads of the educators of Texas or other commonwealths:

"Democracy is on trial throughout the world as never before in history. In more than one country democratic government has been supplanted by some form of centralized action simply because popular intelligence and the spirit of unity are insufficient to enable people to realize their hopes and aspirations through their own decisions."

Dr. Zook declared that by performing two services the schools and colleges may play an important part in preserving this country from a similar fate. First, they should discover and teach the country a better system of distribution for the goods it produces, so the standard of living may be lifted to as high a plane as the standard of production. Second, they should spread education more widely among the people, especially among the adults, so the nation may meet its problem with a higher standard of comprehension. Furthermore, he advised that if the "abundance (over-production) is due largely to research in applied science laboratories it might be well at this time for the colleges and universities to turn their energies more largely in the direction of studying and working out a better system for the distribution of goods." Most Americans who read and think will agree that Dr. Zook has a practical mind and a well balanced brain.

PLAN FOR CONSERVATION OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Harold L. Ickes is an independent public man who went all the road in the campaign of 1932 to do his part in bringing about the defeat of Herbert Hoover and the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He is one of the ablest men in public life and one of the most thoroughly independent of the leaders of the New Deal in the big picture. He has been a champion of the conservation of the national resources of the nation. Chicago is his home city. He planned it from Washington to the banks of Lake Michigan and speaking before the Chicago Dental society annual convention he described "the reckless exploitation of natural resources as having serious cost in lives and property."

Furthermore, he said, the Roosevelt administration has a 25 or 50-year plan for conservation of natural resources. Included in the plan was the development of more water power projects like the two great ones at Boulder dam and in the Tennessee Valley. He mentioned specifically the study now under way of the Mississippi Valley and the survey of the water resources of the nation now being made by the national planning board. He placed in the record this bit of interesting information: "This administration is planning ahead for the next 25 or 50 years."

It appears that the thinkers—who think along patriotic as well as intelligent lines—are in the saddle today and not the speculators or gamblers of by-gone years. History making—yes. But what of the future?

FASSING OF MRS. HENRY HUTCHINGS

Mrs. Henry Hutchings has passed on to her reward. She was the wife of Gen. Henry Hutchings, adjutant-general of Texas and commander of Texas soldiers in the World War. She was a native daughter of Travis county. She was prominent and held high position as a member of the American Legion auxiliary. She was a member of the Gold Star mothers. She was president of the American War mothers. She was active in the organizations of the Texas Republic and the Daughters of Confederate Veterans. A son, Maj. Edward Hutchings was killed in action in France during the World War.

After a happy married life of more than 50 years Mrs. Hutchings passed out peacefully on the journey to that invisible land of promise. Sincere sympathy of a legion of friends goes to the bereaved husband and surviving children of this woman patriot who figured in World War work who was ever active in the work of patriotic organizations and ever a loving wife and mother of the old school of Americans.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The city commission's decision to establish a community garden on the 10-acre tract purchased for extension of the cemetery is a good one for more than one reason. The garden, properly managed and cultivated, will feed many hungry mouths at comparatively small cost and it will give the city commission something to do. For the past few months the deliberations of that body have been as dry as a string of history dates. Of course, the commissioners intend to work the plot. Joe Clements, street superintendent, by virtue of his position as keeper of the city plows, will probably direct the cultivation. I suggest that the city fathers declare a holiday for the initiation of the project so that the greatest number of voters may see how efficient they are at the honorable task of providing beans and potatoes for their poor constituents.

I see one fault with the location of the project. The colored folks won't have access to it. If the vegetables were planted on the tract between the Katy and the T. and P. tracks, enriched by years of operation of the old oil mill, the colored folks could gather their vegetables at any hour of the night; but what person of dark complexion, or of light, for that matter, will venture near the spectral shapes which hold nightly vigil over the area now under consideration?

"Alice in Wonderland," the picture filmed by Lewis Carroll's classic fantasy, drew as many adults as youngsters to the Palace theater yesterday morning at 10. If Manager Greer thought that children alone should be interested in the fantastic experiences of little Alice behind the looking glass, he stands corrected. Old people enjoy it as much, in spite of their realism, because, no doubt, they can better sympathize with the ideal that the writer of the story had in mind when he penned the tale for the amusement of the youngsters in his home.

I saw only about half of it. Duty pressed and I had to leave in the middle of the reels. I wish, "K. N.", that you'd bring it back for a more convenient hour.

"Alice in Wonderland" is a great story for grown-ups as well as the youngsters, as all childhood classics are; and a picture so true in detail and spirit to that story is a mighty welcome change in theater menu.

George Robert Winston, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Winston, of this city, has completed his course at the Port Arthur Radio school, Port Arthur, Texas, and is now attached to station WWL, at New Orleans, La., for training.

George Robert has shown a great ability in radio science and mechanics, and before going to Port Arthur for his training built and operated an amateur station here.

"The radio school that he attended is one of the best in the country, training service men as well as private students, I understand."

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

Edward E. Brodie, publisher of the Oregon City (Ore.) Enterprise, says: "The merchant who consistently carries on in the columns of his newspaper is the merchant who stays in business."

"The merchant who, in times of depression, cuts his advertising appropriation first of all is in the worst possible position to take advantage of restoration."

"The wise merchant is he who does not permit the buying public to forget him."

AUSTIN, March 3 — Banking Commr. E. C. Brand, who travels by plane quite a bit in his official duties, as a matter of saving time, recently converted Attorney of the banking department, into an enthusiast. It was by a little stratagem, he added, "we'll go on the plane." It was Judge Speer's first flight. But he decided he liked it.

BROOKS

The session just closed of the legislature was a disappointment from another standpoint than that of the state departments who found themselves crippled by refusal of needed appropriations for unforeseen work they have to do. That was from a fiscal standpoint. Most any session is good for at least one pugilistic encounter. The best of this one would offer was a member verbally lambast a fellow as a "liar, coward, snake," and then fall to let anybody know whom he was talking about.

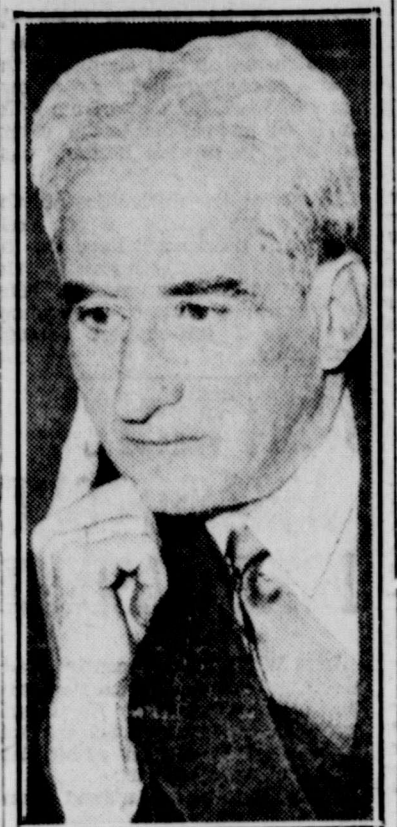

Reports here say that school teachers especially in the grade schools of towns and cities are much concerned, and are considering among themselves ways to meet a very definite threat that everyone who is not the holder of a college degree will lose his or her job in the very near future.

The concern is over a ruling of the committee on accredited and affiliated high schools, must have degrees, or else go back to college and accumulate specified credits, or get out; and that all new teachers employed in all schools shall be degree-holders.

The penalty is refusal to admit any of the high school graduates to any state-supported college or university on work done in a high school of a local school system failing to comply.

Sen. Ben G. Oneal, of Wichita Falls, one of the staid, serious, diligent working members of the upper house, exerted every possible effort, in consideration of the Texas centennial bill, to protect the interests and welfare of his section and of West Texas and northwest Texas generally. The centennial finally was put on the auction block on terms that only Houston, San Antonio and Dallas can compete for the main show, but Sen. Oneal's efforts helped toward preserving nature and appeal, and general cooperation in the centennial movement. His idea is bringing the centennial home to every community of Texas, large and small, rather than having a big ballyho-carnival somewhere.

Rep. Halmond K. Stanfield of Amarillo did an effective piece of work in the closing hours of the session on behalf of the people of the Texas panhandle. Panhandle citizens, owners of gas-producing lands and independent gas men, had in the past secured a law that partially protected them from the drainage by monopolistic gas exporters of the property of these independents.

An effort was made in the legislature to destroy that law, Stanfield succeeded, when it appeared the protective safeguard would be destroyed in blocking the effort to strike it down.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, March 3 — Rep. Weaver Moore, Houston, lays failure to get any bids on the second $2,750,000 issue of state relief bonds to the legislature having been in session when bids were to be taken. "Of course no investor was going to bid on bonds when the legislature was called to issue more bonds and possibly more attractive ones," he said. The failure to get bids was the more noticeable as Fred Florence, Dallas banker, who assisted rounding up subscriptions for the first $2,750,000 issue, told Gov. Mir-

Pablito, who was on the beach, saw their coming and he left his seat. Rather for the first time he was fully aware of the capacities of his heart, for as he saw Estelle he felt a hard pump in the left hand side of his sleeveless, cotton shirt and at the same time the sting of hot blood under the tan of his cheeks.

THREE weeks later the servants gossiped in undertones that Norma Field was coming back to her husband after an absence of more than eight years. And she was bringing with her the child, a girl of 15 who, doubtless, remembered little of her home in America.

Field received word from his estranged wife that she and their daughter, ESTELLE, 15, are on their way to the Florida home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Staff Writer

WHEN the children come trooping home at noon time with ravenous appetites, why not satisfy their hungry demands with a hot, substantial, savory sandwich, one which will not only provide all the nourishment they require but be inviting and economical as well. And when friends drop in for Sunday night supper, the savory hot sandwich answers the problem of something easy and attractive to eat.

Left-over meats, odds and ends of cheese, gravies, sauces and all sorts of remnants of left-over food all fall in splendidly in preparing savory sandwiches. And, since it is considered quite the thing to use toast in place of bread in their making, the stale slices can be used to excellent advantage. Graham bread, Boston brown bread, whole wheat bread, rye bread, crackers, rolls and biscuits are all usable for hot sandwich making and add variety as well.

The remnants of the Sunday roast of beef can be made into an appetizing hot sandwich. Chop the meat very fine, add the gravy to it and add this mixture to a few shreds of green pepper and minced onion browned in a little fat. Heat to the boiling point and add half a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce or tomato catsup to taste. Serve on hot toast with spicy pickles.

Hot chicken sandwiches are delicious and can be made in several ways. If you had chicken with biscuits and gravy for Sunday dinner, a very easy sandwich is made by removing the meat from the bones, reheating it in the gravy and serving it on the biscuits which have been split and toasted.

The remnants of roast chicken or any variety of poultry work up daintily in the following recipe.

Hot Chicken Sandwich

One cup finely chopped chicken, 1-2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon mayonnaise, 3 drops onion juice, 1-4 teaspoon white pepper, graham bread.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constant-
