A NEW LEASE ON GOOD TIMES?

News that contracts have been signed and operations actually begun for the drilling of four oil wells virtually against the north and east limits of the city of Cisco brightens the faces and cheers the feelings of most Cisco people who had begun to feel that the oil business, so far as this city and area are concerned, had been definitely relegated to the limbo of past glories. East Texas and the southern part of the state seemed to have taken all the petroleum cake and there appeared nothing left for the so-called Oil Belt but the "stripings" of played-out fields and sucked-out sands. But the developments of the past few months, since the oil market situation has cleared up and the probability of fair prices has come to be established, have been agreeably surprising. Not only do they reflect the likelihood of considerable drilling activity, as well as the faith of the operators in the presence of new and commercial production, but the results so far attained indicate future production and production activity to compare with the old days, not in feverish intensity, but in extent. The oil business, as was once said in these columns, will never assume the magnitude it once had, but it will continue to play a major part in the economic picture of Eastland county and Cisco. It will be restricted to areas that have been roughly defined but within the scope of this definition there is much undrilled territory. In this territory is now being found the evidence of extensive resources of oil and gas untapped, offering a future of many years of profitably exploitation. One of the biggest gas fields of the state is located here; while the oil resources of pools already proven continue and will continue to require active drilling for many years. The point is, that this section is not dead, speaking of petroleum and gas resources. It is still an important oil country and will continue to be. Its activity in the past has been due not to the lack of deposits, but to the lack of profitable prices. Cisco still has much potential importance as a petroleum center.

The revival of this activity, meaning an improvement in the local business picture, offers a happy opportunity to build Cisco and the Cisco trade territory for the future. We have slept hopelessly during the depression; we have been incompetent in our civic efforts because of this general discouragement. But with the prospect of brighter days ahead we can shake off this inertia and get busy at rebuilding for permanent benefits.

The ultimate future of Cisco is tied to the land about it. It cannot grow above the resources of that land from which flows the nourishment that makes it a community. Obviously, the community program should look to the ultimate utilization of that soil, the development of the best and most intelligent rural citizenship that such soil will support. The oil industry will take care of itself, and the benefits therefrom will arrive with the demand that is certainly growing. We can and should assist it. But what Cisco should consider with seriousness now is that to become established upon a permanent basis, it must plant stronger sills. If the signs of better times do not fail us, we shall have opportunity to do this. Eastland county can support a much greater population than it already supports.

A MILITARY LESSON

President Roosevelt has ordered temporary suspension of the army airmail service pending revision of the routes to curb further excessive loss of life. Ten army pilots were sacrificed during the first month that service fliers carried the mails. Even though more days of the month were foul than fair, with violent storms raging over the greater part of the courses travelled, this loss was considered too great.

The president pointed out in his letter to Sec'y Dern, of the war department, that he had been given assurance that the army could carry the mail. He does not regard this assurance as having been justified. The tragic truth of the matter is that the deaths of these 10 fliers was a sacrifice to a military lesson. In times of war, the men who today are finding their training and equipment inadequate to meet the demands and hazards of the mail routes would be called upon to perform tasks vastly more hazardous. The administration, with President Roosevelt directing plans for a return of the airmail carrying job to commercial concerns and instructing army officials to form a plan for army aviation cooperation with the private carriers for the benefit of the training it would give the service pilots, is taking steps to profit from the lesson. The public demand for improvement will not injure the status of the military service, either.

MORRIS PROPOSAL

Proposal of Sen. Norris of Nebraska, advocating a one-chamber legislature for his state of the 40 to 50 people, is one that may bring the merits of the same question before voters of many states. There are such obvious advantages, in direct action and greater efficiency, over the muddled, slow-moving, confused procedure in a state legislature of 181 members that voters might for a while forget whether there are disadvantages, and if so, what they are.

People in many states this year and next will be thinking of ways to keep out subversive radicalism; and one of the ways will be a large, diffuse spread of separate elections.

Another will be to maintain equilibrium between rural and city forces. Another will be to keep short terms, so that even if the pendulum swings to dizzy radicalism one year, it will not be entrenched for long periods.

After some of the recent spectacles, voters might seize upon the small, one-house legislative plan, if given a chance. But what legislature is going to offer the voters a chance practically to abolish it?

A baby with a two-inch tail was born in a London hospital. Maybe this evolution theory works at one end as well as another.

The Lone Eagle Scores Another High Record

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Sen. W. E. Borah of Idaho, known as "The Lone Eagle" of the Rocky Mountain crags, has scored another new high record. There is a half billion dollars' naval construction appropriation on the way. And "The Lone Eagle," even against a powerful navy, or a real battling land war machine, is said to have made one of the most vigorous speeches of his long career. He declared American arms makers were now selling war equipment on a large scale in the Orient. He predicted that if war should break out between America and Japan "our soldiers would be torn limb from limb and disemboweled by munitions sold by their own compatriots." He assailed European arms makers. He asserted they furnished Hitler war equipment and campaign funds. He did not overlook France. He declared the government was taking a chance on the state fair at Dallas, a historic institution, which give a very elaborate race meet this fall. More than $150,000 will be invested in track improvements. In days gone by before racing was outlawed by a Texas legislature the attendance at the track side was almost staggering to the mind. In those days Dallas was not a city of 290,000. Indeed, when the population was less than 100,000 there were days when the attendance passed the 100,000 mark. "De world do n' move," Brother Jasper.

TEXAS TECH TO BUILD NEW DORMITORIES
Regents of Texas Tech away out at Lubbock have signed a contract with the public works administration for the financing of the construction of two new dormitories to cost $650,000. These dormitories have been planned to house 321 students each.
The state College for Women, for years known as the C. I. A., speaking through its regents has signed a contract with the public works administration. A new dormitory and a hospital for the woman's college will be erected in the near future. Pres. Hubbard and his board of regents made a successful landing at Washington and borrowed the sum of $180,000 for the additional buildings to be placed on the campus of this institution for the education of the girls of Texas created by the legislature more than 30 years ago when Joseph B. Sayers was governor and one of the leading backers of a state school for the young women of the Bluebonnet state.
DOG RACES BANNED BY TEXAS JURIST
Betting on dog races was stopped by Judge Ewing Boyd of Houston when he dissolved a temporary injunction restraining Houston police from interfering with a pari-mutuel betting on the races at the Harris county stock show. Now the dog racing schedule has been declared off by the managers or promoters of the fat stock show. Why dog racing? Why human endurance marathons? Let it go at that.
PALESTINE AS AN OIL CENTER
Palestine is on the map. Anderson county is said to be coming into its own. Oil excitement is said to be running high in the Palestine area. All because a gusher was brought in that is said to be capable of producing 5,000 barrels daily—5,000 barrels of pipeline crude. It was a wildcat test and one big oil company holds a block of 17,000 acres surrounding the well, "but a dozen or more companies, including independent and major, hold protection lease and royalty interests on surrounding land." This is what happened when the gusher came in: "Trading prices sky-rocketed." According to the correspondent at Palestine the oil tested 35 gravity without a trace of salt water, and was being run into storage tanks. More than 40 years ago Robert T. Hill, young geologist at the University of Texas, published at his own expense a little pamphlet disclosing that under the surface of Texas soil there were lakes of petroleum everywhere throughout the state. Well, the wise men of that period pronounced the now famous geologist a nut. They hooted down his discovery. Robert T. Hill was compelled to go elsewhere to make an honest living in his field of endeavor and became the leading authority in the petroleum world as a geologist instead of the nut that he was classified in bygone days. Today Texas has the richest oil fields to be found anywhere under the shining sun. Some vindication for Robert T.

OLD VIRGINIA LAWMAKERS FOR 'SPORT OF KINGS'
Betting on horse racing in Old Virginia was outlawed years ago. Now the so-called "sports of kings" is on the way back in that historic commonwealth. The house of delegates of the Virginia legislature passed bills legalizing horse racing and parimutuel betting. The first of the two bills was defeated one day but was reconsidered and passed the next.

After many years of exile the sport was restored to Texans who love the ponies and are willing to take a chance. Now the state fair at Dallas, a historic institution, which give a very elaborate race meet this fall. More than $150,000 will be invested in track improvements. ## UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, March 12 — Appointment on the state relief commission of Jack Reed, former assistant state relief director, has created a teletype situation.

Five members of the relief commission turned Reed down for Adam Johnson, when they selected a successor to Col. Lawrence Westbrook.

Reed takes the place of a commission member who supported him, so the majority of the board is composed of members who voted against one who now is a fellow member. Reed is a resident in turn of Galveston and Junction, has been connected with state relief activities since creation of the state relief commission. He knows the details from A to Z. He is outspoken and precise in his statements, and likes others to be the same.

He believes that the federal government used the word "adequate" in connection with the relief work.

AUSTIN, March 12 — Cautiously talk has been started about the possibility of suspending elections, city or local, if a tendency of extremist radicalism should threaten to dominate local government affairs. So far, discussion has only been about the idea and not coming from anyone who purports to be its sponsor.

There may be more of it. The theory is being toyed with, even though in such an intangible way that it cannot be credited to any particular group or element.

It is known by district officials that which elections could be put off or prevented either for city, county or district officials. There was instances, as in the case of Austin, in which an election was long delayed by adroitly managed court maneuvers.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

CHAPTER X. PABLITO, a handsome 17-year-old youth, works at the palatial house of millionaire JIM FIELD. When Field's daughter, ESTELLE, arrives he falls in love with her almost at sight.

PABLITO found Estelle a little withdrawn from the crowd. No one seemed to notice the slender child swathed in green tulle. She was royally excited by a mask and she wavered, a fledgling, while sure-footed seduction moved easily and surely; jewels twinkled on low-bared breasts, invitations in low-guided eyes.

There was a pathetically uncertain smile about her still plastic lips and there was a little ache in her stiffening cheeks which had grown of forcing the smile. "May I sit with you?" Pablito asked. It was what he had planned to say but he had not planned that his voice should shake as it did.

"If you care to," she answered and he dropped to the rug beside her. She smiled naturally now and suddenly she flushed. She had recognized Pablito because of the blueness of his eyes. She thought, her heart warming, that in all her dreams of the party she had not dared hope this dream could come true!

HE shook his head quickly, vehemently, without answer. Then, drawing a deep breath, he looked down at the small pipes which she was wearing. Something that grew of her own emotions made her speak quickly. "I--I like your dagger," she said.

Tells of Wild Ride With Dillinger

Taken as chauffeur-hostage by John Dillinger, notorious outlaw, in his escape from county jail in Crown Point, Ind., Edward Sagers, garageman, is shown here, feet propped on stove, as he tells the story of his thrilling experience to a group of his townsmen. He and a deputy were ejected, unharmed, near Peotone, Ill., from the sheriff's auto in which Dillinger made his daring getaway.

Canning Pecans

Mrs. Henry Capers, farm food supply cooperator of the Bass Lake home demonstration club, recommends the following method for preserving surplus pecans to be used in the summer months. Pecans left in the hull will get old during the summer months and before the next season.

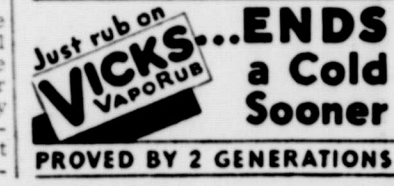

Use pint jars (clamp style). Wash jars and put in pan of water and bring to boil. Wipe jars entirely dry.

Shell and sort pecans, set in stove and heat but do not scorch. Fill jars within 1 inch of top; crush one sheet of parchment (butter) paper and put in top of jar. Partially seal jar, set in pressure cooker. After steam begins coming out, start counting time and leave in 7 minutes.

Then close pet cock and bring to 5 pounds pressure. Release pressure immediately, remove jar from cooker and completely seal. Set in cool place.

Tile Cutting Bed

Hollow cement tile used for cutting beds by yard demonstrators of the home demonstration clubs has been satisfactory during the dry months of the year. The tile placed one foot in the ground furnished water to the roots of the plants. This water gradually comes through where the tile is placed and one half feet up and out. The beds are made six by ten feet and approximately three hundred cuttings can be rooted at one time. Mrs. Louis Pitcock, yard demonstrator of the Ranger Co-Workers club, Ranger, reports the bed finished and 100 cuttings out. These plants are to be used in the planting of her yard and the yards of the cooperators of the club.

GUN TRAPS MURDEROUS

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 12.—The menace to human beings by gun traps was stressed by the Pennsylvania game board. Three men hunting coons had a dog killed and narrowly escaped being wounded themselves when the animal stepped on a wire attached to a shotgun trap. Upon searching the vicinity, three gun traps were discovered. Two were baited with meat and one had a wire strung along the full length of a log. The man responsible for the setting of the traps was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—The Academy of Natural Sciences has rewarded Dr. Francis W. Pennell, curator of botany, for his research on the Snapdragon family of flowers. His work extended over ten years and led him to travel thousands of miles.

Murders Father In Radio Dispute

Inflated when his father turned off the radio because it disturbed his sleep, Russell A. Graham, 17-year-old high school sophomore of Oil City, Pa., murdered his parent with a hammer and butcher knife. The youth is shown above after confessing the crime.

"Man" Christian Science Subject

"Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 11.

The golden text was: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God" (I John 4:1).

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Of his own will he begat us with the word of truth..." (James 1:18).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, made in His Likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth. Man and woman are coexistent and eternal with God forever replete, in glorified quality, the infinite Father-Mother God" (page 516).

Cisco Invited to Baylor "Play Day"

BELTON, March 12.—The department of physical education at Baylor college has extended an invitation to Cisco high school and eighty-five others to attend on May 4 and 5 the second annual school play day.

Representatives from high schools throughout the state will meet to join in playing for play's sake. There will be no inters-school competition, but color teams will compete. This system makes getting acquainted easier and a more feeling that play is the main thing.

Events such as water polo, tumbling exhibitions, baseball, tennis are listed for the days' activities. Schools are now responding to the invitation, and registrations are being received daily to prepare the two days of fun Baylor offers high school girls of Texas.

"DON'T LET ANYBODY TELL YOU THAT RUNNING AN OFFICE DOESN'T TAKE HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MR. JAFFEE."

Irving Jaffee, Olympic Speed Skating Champion, says: "It takes healthy nerves and plenty of wind to be an Olympic skating champion. I find that Camels, because of their costlier tobaccos, are mild and likable in taste. And, what is even more important to a champion athlete, they never upset the nerves."

John W. Grout, Office Manager, who hails from Detroit, Mich., says: "An Olympic champion speed skater needs healthy nerves—but a man can't handle a tough office job without healthy nerves, either. Many hours of nagging details and the pressure of work all tell on the nerves. I smoke Camels all day long...and I never have to think of nerves. Camels have the finest flavor, too."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Sooner or later today most of us come face to face with jangled nerves. If nerves are a problem with you, now is the time to check up on all habits that may affect them—your eating, your sleeping, your recreation. And get a fresh slant on your smoking by trying Camels. Much is heard about tobacco quality, so always remember this:

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand.

Note the way "edgy" nerves become a thing of the past. You can smoke more than ever, without a sign of "cigarette" aftertaste. You'll be delighted to find that Camel's costlier tobaccos do make a difference—to your taste, and to your nerves!
