THE WEST IS SMILING

West Texas is facing the prospect of its best agricultural season in years with bountiful rains and snowfall over last week-end that extended practically throughout the vast empire. Wheat farmers of the northwest are exuberant over the moisture and growers of row crops and raisers of cattle are rejoicing over a season that assures luxuriant pastures and healthy seed germination. This outlook is further guaranteed by the fact of federal assistance in the form of bonuses for crop restriction. Already this administration program has boosted the farmer to a new economic status in many parts of the western area of the state. Notably in those sections which have been large producers of cotton and wheat has this effect been felt. Payments to the growers of these commodities have in instances stimulated the trade areas of certain cities into activity resembling pre-depression days. Now, with the production of these commodities restricted to a point where profitable prices will be assured, and the certainty of higher prices developing in collateral markets, the west can face the year with optimism. Cattle, last to respond to the impetus toward recovery, has shown a markedly healthier character. This fact may be taken as significant. Meat, particularly beef, is prosperity food. When times are bad, people eat vegetables, consume large quantities of flour and potatoes and other relatively cheap and starchy foods. Increase in the consumption of meats may be taken to indicate that the public purse is growing heavier and the family budget is being expanded.

PROHIBITING LIQUOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

Some popular national magazines will not be seen upon Texas newsstands henceforth. Such magazines, carrying liquor advertisements, are held to violate the state prohibition laws which prohibit the circulation of such advertisements within the state. Some of the magazines have dealt with this condition, in which not only Texas but several other dry states are concerned, by substituting innocuous pages for those bearing the prohibited publicity and distributing these amended copies to newsstands in the dry states. Time magazine is one such.

The ban on periodicals carrying liquor publicity does not extend to copies received through the mails. One may subscribe to the magazine and Uncle Sam will transport it over the arid sections and deliver it to the subscriber, liquor advertisements and all, in contempt of the state laws prohibiting the circulation thereof. The state can do nothing about the mails, and it is powerless to prescribe any regulations affecting their handling. Which makes the prohibition affecting the newsstand sale of such periodicals merely a pretense. Closing the door on one side and leaving another open doesn't keep out the cold.

GOAT LOSSES

Heavy losses among the goat herds of southwest Texas during the recent cold weather have been reported. Three quarters of a million head are reported to have died in the frigid blasts and the cold rain. A light spring clip of mohair and a light kid crop are predicted consequences of this loss. Prices of mohair and kid clip and the animals themselves are due to increase considerably as a result.

The Cisco country is a splendid goat and sheep country. Great stretches of "shinny" thickets form ideal forage for the beasts whose coat is certain to draw a premium price on the next markets. This year ought to be a good year for beginning. The wolf menace is being gradually stamped out and fencing may be secured through loans from government-provided credit agencies. Goats and sheep are not a fool-proof money-making proposition. They require proper handling, experienced attention and work, just as do other crops. But they are the crop best suited to making these shinny lands pay dividends and small beginnings will eventually make big endings.

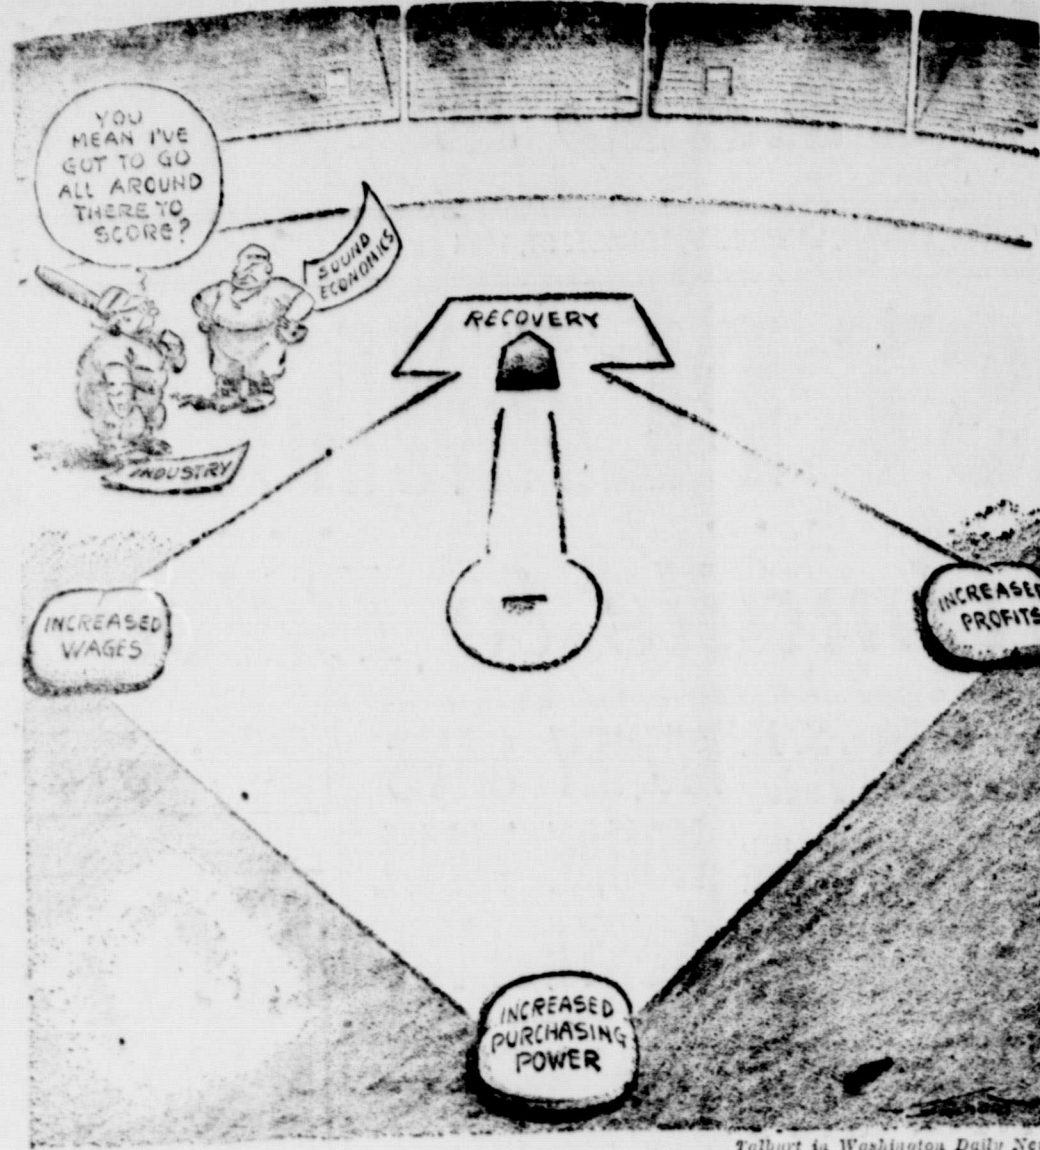

NAVY UP TO LIMIT

Congress has spoken on the naval bill for a construction program to bring the United States navy up to treaty limits. It provides for a naval construction program of 102 warships and 1140 airplanes estimated to cost about $580,000,000. It is the biggest navy program since the World war. It is designed to build the navy up to the London treaty limitations by 1939. A limit of 10 per cent profit on construction contracts of $10,000 and above is provided.

Texas Daughters of the American Revolution are out on the firing line. Mrs. William A. Becker of New Jersey is the national chairman of national defense of the Daughters. She is not a pacifist. She addressed the Texas daughters of heroes of the revolution in the shadows of the Alamo. Said she, "We work for peace, we want peace—but a righteous peace and not peace at any price. While other nations are arming we cannot agree with those who advocate total disarmament for the United States and who believe that disarmament for us alone is the road to world peace."

The plain English of this is that there are righteous wars as well as wars of spoliation, wars urged on by lust for power and territory grabbing on the part of the Sons of Mars who believe that the sons of men are useful as fodder to feed the cannons of despots and crazy war lords.

And There Isn't Any Short Cut!

Cost of Government in Texas

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
This is general election year. There is a state primary coming in July. A governor and all state officers will be nominated. A legislature will be nominated—150 representatives and 36 senators. John T. Smith is a former lawmaker. He served two or three terms as the representative. He is the editor of the Texas Tax Journal. The current number of the Journal carries a biting and convincing article as to the cost of government in Texas. According to Editor Smith the state and its taxing subdivisions collected $190,924,487 for the fiscal year ending July 31. This huge sum is divided as follows:

State	$96,894,751
County	16,135,716
Cities and towns	37,744,965
School districts	34,512,163
Other taxing subdivisions	5,637,162

Readers of the magazine are reminded this was the amount collected while the amount delinquent and including 1933 was $125,000,000. This former lawmaker and editor editorially remarked that if the delinquency for 1933 is added to the $120,000,000 the amount will greatly exceed $150,000,000.

A vast number of taxpayers pay. They do not permit their names to go on the delinquent list. And a large number who are able to pay dodge the issue. This is the sweeping condemnation of the latter by the Texas Tax Journal.

The records indicate that within the last five years the penalty placed on those who pay their taxes has increased approximately $10 out of every $100 paid in taxes to approximately thirty-three dollars and fifty cents to every one hundred dollars now paid in taxes. This unprecedented increased burden is placed on those who do pay in order that government may carry on.

This tidbit of censure is passed on to lawmakers by the Journal: "The sad part of the whole matter is it does not seem to concern except in a general way, a majority of the members of the legislature. This is campaign year. There is a campaign of education—appealing to taxpayers to remove their names from the delinquent list and assist in the support of government and its cost. Timely advice is given to all concerned by the veteran lawmaker and publisher of the periodical devoted to taxes and taxation: "If the voters would learn the difference between politics and statesmanship and would exercise the right of suffrage to the extent of electing in particular, their legislators and commissioners' courts, instead of letting an automatic election machine do the electing the state and the political subdivisions could eventually emerge from this bondage and at least make our children partially free of it."

Really, it is time the people of Texas should do a lot of thinking while the primary campaign is on and vote intelligently in their choice of public servants on the day that the primary ballot is the thing. James E. Ferguson, the publisher and editor of the Ferguson Forum appears to have caught the drift of things. The current number of his weekly passes this advice on to the reader: "The cost of government is entirely too much and it must come down or our state will come down."

Some people think that the government is an apple tree and all they have to do is to pluck off the fruit and that it will always grow back. The result is that the state will look like a plucked rooster if this plucking is not kept in proper limits.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

Said my friend, W. J. (Curly) Armstrong: "Anybody who doubts the women of Cisco can take a job ought to look at some of their husbands."

Agreed Mrs. Armstrong: "Then you admit I have a sense of humor."

A person learns something new about his own country every once in a while. Since Henry Drumwright has achieved the professional air by adopting gold-rimmed spectacles, he has also gained authority in fact and opinion. In the role he is ably abetted by W. H. Hayes. While the rest of us have been altering and complaining when a sudden northern smashed the predictions to smithereens, Drumwright has been whistling wisely and strolling out for an occasional glance at the mesquites.

Some folks, you among them perhaps, put a great deal of faith in the influence which the various phases of the moon are said to exert upon this planet—like a coquettish woman being coy with a man and leading him off to bed habits. Scientists have treated all this lore of moonology with a diction of contempt, but many folks still go on, in spite of science and scientists, planting potatoes in the dark of the moon and beans when the lunar face is round and radiant.

Science, which is literally a search for truth, is not perfect, or it would cease searching for truth, having found it altogether. The body of its dicta is being purified incessantly with discoveries that its earlier findings were wrong and stand corrected by later discoveries. In short, it has been mistaken.

Whether it is mistaken in this instance, I leave posterity and some astute Darwin or Huxley of the future to discover. All I know is that the moon is still a dictator for many gardeners and the instigators of many other human activities. Science denying on the one hand the influence of the lunar rays upon the quality and quantity of the vegetables that are grown, admits the potency of this same interstellar attraction in pulling the tides of the sea over the beaches like blankets, and releasing them to slide down again in a regular, eternal order. Ascribing the hypothesis that life originated in the sea, science even infers that periods of gestation were geared to lunar influences through the tide cycle because it was essential that eggs laid in the sea sands should hatch neither too soon nor too late for the next high tide to restore the young to the shelter of the sea.

To argue that the moon can make so much impression upon the order of life and still be impotent about a darn potato or the character of a bean that grows in the garden seems like asking a person to choke on a quail while swallowing a camel like an aspirin tablet. However, there are many, many such paradoxes—and more astounding ones—in this world, and since science claims to have arrived at its conclusions by exhaustive and impartial research, it is best to believe its statements.

Perhaps, Drumwright has science on his side. He is dogmatic enough about the creed and he continues regularly to investigate the mesquite twigs in his back yard. Also he refrains from planting any vegetables that are liable to be ruined by the cold. Said he: "The mesquite never falls. When it starts to bud, the cold is over. It's spring."

currency's recent call for the condition of all national banks. On March 5, 1933, the First National reported deposits of $581,727.84. President Alex Spears said, "Exactly one year later, March 5, 1934, its deposits were $823,231.56. This is a gain of $251,503.72, or about 43 per cent."

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

People who are interested in the growth of the home city always have an opportunity of assisting in its development.

When they take a look at the very low prices of the various items offered there, they will readily see that it pays to buy from the business concerns of the home city.

Cooperation is the life of a city. Every citizen should cooperate by spending their money with the business concerns of the home city. Stagnation of business in a city means hard times for all.

Good business means prosperity for all.

Cooperation creates—stagnation kills.

Progressive citizens are loyal citizens; they cooperate with local business concerns and by so doing they keep their city progressive.

Lack of cooperation is the greatest hindrance to the progress of any city.

ALASKA COMMERCE UP
JUNEAU, Alaska, March 27.—Alaska's total commerce for 1933 showed an increase of more than $3,000,000 over 1932. Shipments in 1933 were valued at $64,000,445, which $43,263,678 was outbound and $20,826,267 inbound.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
PABLO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when, due to circumstances beyond his control, he finds himself on his way to Cuba with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIII
WITHIN a month Marcia Treadway boarded a boat for New York, having found Rio "rather stupid." Back in New York, she took up residence in the brown stone house that had been left her by an aunt—the same aunt who had left Marcia a legacy so large that it was heralded in newspaper headlines.

Usually when she returned home Marcia decided fretfully that she must have the place "redone," and usually some young decorator whose company she found, for a time, amusing got the commission.

But on this home-coming Marcia had no such interests. Her friends remarked that she was not looking well and this stirred up the old story about Ted Jeffrey. That affair, said some of her supposed friends, had "gone pretty far."

Marcia knew what was being said and who was saying it but this knowledge did not matter as once it would have. The two things that mattered were her feeling of guilt, which was increasing instead of diminishing, and her fear for Pablo's safety. She began to think toward the young attorney who, with sundry other men, had for a long while added to her arrogance by a veiled courtship of her fortune. And while she was with him she sounded him out about the treatment of criminals and about whether they always had fair trials.

One unusually cool May night they sat before a fire in the drawing room of Marcia's home. She said, leaning forward, "Tell me, Tony—even if everyone thought a man guilty they wouldn't execute him immediately, would they?"

"That depends," he answered. "Law is, to some extent, a matter of geography. There are places where men take the law into their own hands. Sometimes we have lynchings, you know."

She grew pale and shrank back in her chair, her hands tightly gripping the arms.

THEN she managed to hide her perturbation. "What would you do," she asked, "if you knew a man to be innocent but could not tell how or why you know it?"

"I'd forget about it," he answered casually.

Marcia gave a short, breathless laugh. It sounded so easy but she knew it was far from easy. It was impossible.

"Tony," she said then, with a change of tone, "that reminds me of something else I wanted to ask you about. I want to locate a boy of 18—or perhaps a year or two older—and I don't know how to go about it. I want to keep the matter secret."

Tony thought of Marcia's brother who had died in an asylum to which, by the most vicious forms of vice, he had paid his grim entrance fee.

"You knew Lester was married," she asked on sudden inspiration. She could pretend Pablo was Lester's wife, she did not know, but she assumed she could silence her on the subject if she had to.

"Do you know what country the boy is liable to be in?"

"Cuba or South America. I rather think South America."

"Well," he said, "if you took the matter to the police—"

"But I don't want to do that," she interrupted. "You see my nephew—charming, isn't it?—was caught stealing and sent to a reformatory. He escaped. Now I want to find him and give him another chance."

"Ah—I see. Well, detectives—"

"I suppose so," she agreed, not quite happily. "But, with his reformatory record, is that safe? Wouldn't the detectives be working with the police?"

"Not if your case makes them keep away from the police. With sufficient money, Marcia, almost anything is possible."

"I've always thought so, but lately—"

She fell into a reverie then and thought of Pablo, the boy whose eyes had "enchanted" her. If she could only find him he would be utterly dependent on her. She was obsessed by this thought and of making him into a man of the world. She would be very good to him; very, very good to him!

"I've spoken to you twice," said Tony.

"Oh, really?" she murmured with a lift of fine arched brows and a return to her old, languid insolence.

THE priest who had given the shelter of his humble home to Norris Noyes salvaged enough pennies from his poor box to send Noyes to Key West. "You are running into the jaws of death, my friend," he warned.

Noyes nodded, abstractedly. "I think," he said, "Pablo may have returned to our island."

"That is possible," the priest agreed.

"I must find him."

"Let me know how things go with you," the priest petitioned. "And," he added, "you have my prayers—"

So Noyes started for Key West. On the boat on which he traveled Noyes noticed an Englishman whose monacle kept popping from his eye to dangle on his waistcoat. With him was a man who appeared to be an American. They sat, throughout the entire day, talking eagerly or sunk into a silence that was preoccupied.

As Noyes studied the two men Sir Aubrey was saying to his companion, "First of all, of course, we must find this Angela."

The man whom he called Billings agreed. "That will be easy enough," he promised.

Sir Aubrey drew a sigh of relief. He began to think of introducing Pablo as a lover to the family. The boy's resemblance to the family might be marked. Sir Aubrey longed to consult with Billings about this, because the fact might cause some difficulty. Ah, if he could only arrange to introduce the boy as his son—the son he had always wanted—without hurting anyone! Perhaps, in time, a way would be found.

He opened his mouth to speak, then thought better of it and fumbled for his monacle which had dropped to dangle on his tan, double-breasted waistcoat.

IT was the next day that they found Angela sunning herself on the church steps. She had heard their errand for a few moments was silent. Then she agreed, with a smile, that she had the boy and that he was a son to her.

At the moment, however, he was absent. He was working elsewhere; she did not know exactly where. She rose painfully and stiffly from the steps, repeating her story with many unnecessary gestures and unnecessary Billings words.

"She's lying," said Billings as he watched her narrowly. "Either she wants to hide the boy from us or she doesn't know where he is. I'm going to find out about this!"

A few hours later Billings did find out about it. He learned from a woman who had been Angela's neighbor, but not her friend, that Angela had abused the boy freely and that years before he had run away. God in his mercy alone knew where!

It was said that the boy had been seen upon one of the Keys in company with a man who drank at Bantum's.

"Bantum's?" Angela's former neighbor repeated. Alas, Bantum had gone to his rest or—as some said—his punishment. He had not been too good but then, the old cronie added hastily, who was not not Christian to speak ill of the dead nor was it lucky. Piously she crossed herself.

"It will take some work to track this down," said Billings as he admitted to Sir Aubrey as they sat in a hotel lounge that was airy and hot. "It can't all be done in a day." He added as he flicked the ashes from his cigar. He frowned as he spoke.

"Doubtless not," Sir Aubrey agreed.

"I'll have to find the name of the man who unofficially adopted the boy and where he is, if he's still alive. However," Billings' tone became brisk, "we still have hope!"

Compensation Status Explained by Hamlin In Answer to Query of Sweetwater Man

BRECKENRIDGE, March 29—Judge Carl Hamlin of Breckenridge, candidate for congress to succeed Thomas Blanton in the 17th district, Saturday made public a letter he has written to R. M. Simmons of Sweetwater, who last week wrote Judge Hamlin and asked that jurist to explain to him the full details of the compensation matter referred to.

Mr. Simmons wrote the following letter to Judge Hamlin:

March 15th, 1934.
Judge Carl Hamlin,
Breckenridge, Texas.
Dear Sir:

It is being circulated in this portion of the 17th congressional district, that you, as an ex-service man of the World War, are drawing compensation from the government on the basis of being totally disabled. Being interested in finding out the exact status of this matter, I would appreciate your writing me the true facts in reference to your physical disability, the amount of compensation that you are now drawing, or have ever drawn, the nature of your disability and the rating given you under the law by the Veterans Bureau and such other facts in connection therewith as you might deem necessary.

I would very much appreciate this information from you so that I, as a voter, may be able to use my ballot intelligently.

Assuring you that I will appreciate a prompt response, I am,
Yours very truly,
R. M. SIMMONS.

Following is Judge Hamlin's reply as mailed to Mr. Simmons at Sweetwater:

March 16, 1934.

Mr. R. M. Simmons,
Vice-Pres. and Gen. Mgr., Sweetwater Cotton Oil Co.,
Sweetwater, Texas.
Dear Sir:

I am just in receipt of your letter of March 15th and thank you for your interest in seeking to ascertain the true facts in reference to my physical disability as an ex-service man of the World War, and the amount of compensation I may be drawing or have drawn, therefore, and I am glad to give you the information requested.

So that you may understand the nature and extent of my physical disability, may I say that when I entered the military service at the beginning of the World War I was in splendid health. The medical records in my case, however, show that within sixty days after my honorable discharge (Jan. 30, 1919) for nearly two years active service, I suffered with kidney stones, which

ALL-BRAN MADE HIM REGULAR AS CLOCK

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation

We quote from his voluntary and enthusiastic letter: "After reading your advertisement, I decided to use ALL-BRAN. I had been taking pills right along. But now I don't have to take pills.

"I take ALL-BRAN every morning, and am as regular as the clock. It has done me a lot of good."—Stephen Higgins, 51 S. Nein St., South Norwalk, Conn.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet this condition can be overcome, usually, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Tests show this delicious cereal provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream. Use it also in making fluffy muffins and breads, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

I did, that I would ever draw one penny of compensation.

Of course, no amount of money can ever restore my kidney, and, as a matter of fact, the compensation that I drew has hardly been sufficient to repay me in dollars and cents for what I had already paid, or obligated myself to pay, for medical and surgical services out of my own limited funds.

I am happy to say, however, that since my kidney was removed in Nov. 1928, my health has been the best of any time since my discharge from the army, but my loss will continue to be financial as well as physical, by reason of the greatly increased premium which I am now compelled to pay upon some insurance which I had previous to my last operation, and the further fact that I am now unable to secure any new life insurance for the protection and education of my small children.

Now as to the compensation I have drawn. On Nov. 1, 1928, I first made application for compensation, but it was not until Jan. 25, 1929 (more than two months after my last operation) that I was notified my claim had been allowed. I was then informed that under the law I was entitled to compensation for a back period of twelve months, prior to date of my application, due to the fact that my disability had existed for many years before that time. I make this explanation so there will be no misunderstanding as to how I happened to be awarded compensation apparently a year before I made application for same.

From Nov. 1, 1927 to Nov. 19, 1928 I was rated under the law as 25 per

West Rated One of Ten Texas Net Stars

AUSTIN, March 27—Coach Daniel Penick's University of Texas net squad is rapidly rounding into shape for the invasion of the Tulane Green Wave. More than 25 players are playing scheduled matches daily in their spring practice.

Martin Buxby, captain and number one man who holds victories over Sidney Wood, Manuel Alonzo, and Ellsworth Vines, will defend his conference crown. Last year he defeated Doc Barr, S. M. U., in the finals in five sets. Ben Weltens, San Antonio, is second ranking man and is showing up exceptionally well. Leo Brady, Abilene, has shown more development than anyone else on the squad and is representing third place on the team. Gordon Pease, San Antonio; Carl Smalley, Yorktown; Bruce Baxter, Austin; Jack Taylor, Austin; Alex Pope, Dallas, round out the first eight men.

Competition for the first ten rankings is especially keen. The question of who will win out in the final rankings by the Steer court masters is still a problem. If past performances in scheduled matches mean anything, Dick West, Cisco, cannot be denied a place. He holds a two set victory over Jack Taylor, 1932 state high school champion, and a brilliant 6-0, 6-2 win over Curtis Bishop, west Texas champion from Big Spring. Fred Bueche, Austin; George Dennis Taylor, and Burke Baker, Houston, are playing excellent tennis.

It is hinted on Penick Courts that next week's ranking will be something like this, subject to change as time goes on: Buxby, Weltens, Pease, Brady, Smalley, Pope, West, and Baxter.

Son Finds Mother After Twenty Years

CLEBURNE, March 27—Just as it appeared Oscar Adams might go on through life futilely searching for his mother after 24 years separation, they were reunited here—the climax to a strange story.

More than a score of years ago, when Adams was still a baby, his parents separated. He was left in the custody of his father. He lost trace of his mother. Attaining manhood he began a search for her.

Hearing that she was in Cleburne he came here from Binger, Okla., and sought the aid of newspaper columns. A story was printed. Adams waited several days, then left in despair.

The day after he left his mother's second husband came to the news-

ARLINGTON GIRL WED TO RANGER MAN

The following account of the wedding of Miss Dorothy McCoy to Mr. James R. Gray was taken from a Ft. Worth paper. The bride and her sister, Miss Olga McCoy, have visited frequently in Cisco.

ARLINGTON, March 26 — Miss Dorothy McCoy, daughter of Mrs. Flora M. McCoy of Arlington, and Mr. James R. Gray of Ranger were married Sunday at 5 p. m. at the First Methodist church in Arlington.

The double ring ceremony was said by Rev. S. M. Bennett before an altar banked with palms and ferns and lighted with cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra. Mrs. I. Thornton, accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Kookon at the organ, sang the nuptial solo and Mrs. Kookon played the wedding march during the ceremony and the recessional.

Miss Olga McCoy was her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. L. C. Wiggins was matron of honor and Misses Mary Louise Vaughn and Ann Hiett were bridesmaids. Mr. Edward Eason was best man. Groomsmen were Messrs. Jack Elliott and Thomas Gray of Lubbock. The bride's attendants wore gowns of pink chiffon and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Elinor A. Murrell and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yenkers of Ranger.

A reception attended by 75 relatives and friends followed the ceremony. The tiered wedding cake, presided over by Miss Irma Spille of Wichita Falls, centered a table decorated with pink roses and fern and laid with an Italian cutwork cloth. Ices molded into the shape of wedding slippers were served with the cake.

After a wedding trip to Fort Smith, Ark., the couple will make their home at the Gholson hotel in Ranger. The bride traveled in a navy blue triple sheer suit worn with blue accessories.

PRIZE OFFERED IN ESSAY CONTEST FOR CLUBWOMEN

Clubwomen are invited to enter the essay contest on the subject, "Hitlerism and the Isolation of Germany," which is sponsored by both the general and state departments of "International Relations" of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Notification was received this week that the award of $10 will be made the winner at the Austin convention in November, and that first and second honor cups will be announced at Hot Springs convention May 21-26, 1934.

The essays are to be sent to Mrs. George Bean Ozona, Texas, with time limit expiring April 20.

MISS STOKES LEADER OF Y. W. A. PROGRAM

Miss Helen Stokes was leader last night of the Easter program given at the meeting of the Baptist Y. W. A. to which Miss Willie Frank Walker was hostess.

After an opening prayer, led by Miss Stokes, responses to roll call were made with Bible verses. Mrs. Gregg Simpson read the Scripture lesson, and Miss Mary Beth Langston spoke on "Our Belief in Immortality." Miss Blanch Matthews sang during the social hour.

Present were: Misses Louise Karalita, Helen Stokes, Mary Beth Langston, Fern Warren, Lillian Caldwell, Blanch Matthews, Thelma Webb, Geneva Finley, Ethel Hicks, LaClare Harrison, and Mrs. Gregg Simpson.

SENIOR PREPS HOLD MONTHLY MEETING

Senior Preps of the B. T. S. of the First Baptist church held their monthly business meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Doris Surlis. New officers were elected.

KERRVILLE GETS 4 MILLION LBS. OF SPRING CLIP

KERRVILLE, March 27 — Total receipts of spring moair and wool here will reach about 4,000,000 pounds warehouse officials estimate.

Receipt of 1,000,000 pounds of moair, nearly one-fifth of the states' expected production, is anticipated, and already more than 200,000 pounds have come in. The clip is somewhat lighter than usual due to a dry winter.

Short wool receipts will total approximately 1,000,000 pounds, and long wool around 2,000,000 pounds, according to estimates. The wool clip will begin to come in next month.

Shearing prices being paid are four and five cents per head for mohair, and seven and eight cents is the projected price for wool. Few sheared boats were lost in the hill country section during a recent period of sub-freezing weather but young spring grass was killed. Ranges have been much in need of rain.

The present lamb crop will be short, probably only 35 to 50 per cent and the kid crop this spring also will be short, perhaps 50 to 60 per cent, according to estimates from ranchers. Higher percentages will be reaped by ranchmen who

Tells How Cardui Stopped Cramping

"Several years ago, when I was younger, I was advised to take Cardui for cramping and irregular trouble," writes Mrs. Esther L. Dodson, of Lowry City, Mo. "It helped me and stopped the cramping. I feel that my good health is due to Cardui, and I can certainly recommend it to other women."

When womanly aches and pains and cramps are due to a weak, run-down condition, take Cardui. Sold at drug stores.

Although it was depressed during the past week by the threatened strike among automobile workers, the mohair market here opened

Wanted rains and settlement of the automobile workers dispute were the only factors that kept the mohair market from being bright and firm. Bankers and commission men believed.

WE'RE IN THE RACE

We desire the citizenship of Cisco to know that through a legal technicality the three members of the City Commission offering for re-election refused to place our names upon the ballot as candidates against them.

However, many representative citizens have asked us to consent to have our names written upon the ballot. We do not believe the right of citizens to express themselves through the ballot should be denied on account of public officials taking advantage of legal technicalities in order to perpetuate themselves in office.

We desire the people to know that in consenting to offer for election we have made no promises to any person of employment by the city should we be elected. We are informed that some unscrupulous persons are making statements to the contrary, all of which is wholly untrue.

In view of the fact that the total administrative expense of our neighboring city of Eastland last year was $33,500.00, that of Ranger was approximately $24,800.00, while that of Cisco approximated $80,000.00 we do promise to correct, in so far as possible this wasteful extravagance in administering the tax payers funds, which is obvious.

All we ask is a fair deal in cooperation with the New Deal. If you feel likewise, write our names upon the ballot next Tuesday exactly as this article is signed.
