TO PLAN STATEWIDE HUNT FOR BARROW

Three Retiring Commissioners Are Re-Elected by Voters

63 BALLOTS RECORDED IN CITY ELECTION

An election that brought out three-fifths of the voting strength of the city and was distinguished by the fact that the names of the retiring commissioners were re-elected to year terms upon the Cisco municipal governing body. A total of 63 ballots were counted. The voters were J. R. Burnett, H. C. Ferguson and W. R. (Bob) Win-... Opposing them were W. J. ... L. F. Mendenhall and W. ...

Texas Political Sentiment Found To Vary Widely in 4000 Mile Trip

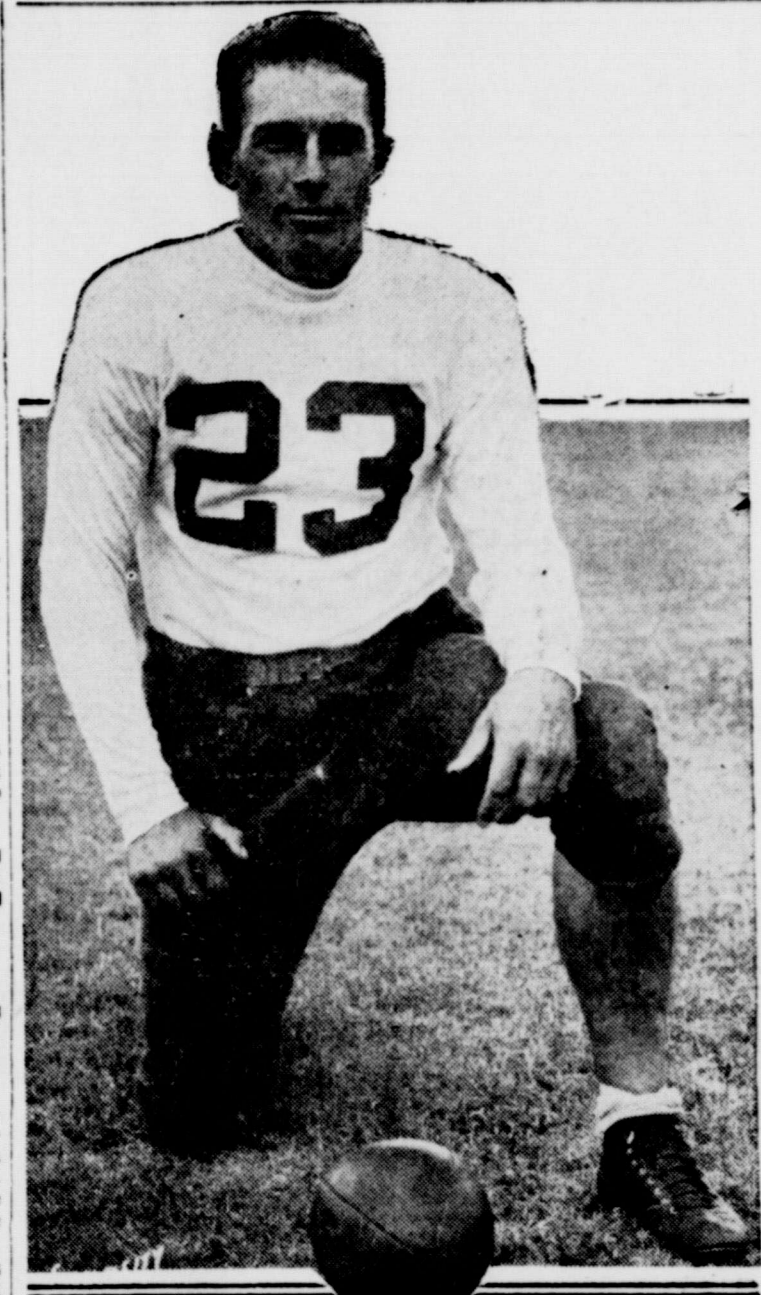

By RAYMOND BROOKS A 4000-mile trip over Texas has been made by the writer to study the political aspect and trends, especially as to the governor's race. Widely varying results have been found in different parts of the state, and a great range of conflicting opinions and predictions. The sectional divergencies of opinion will be acted upon by a still greater element of uncertainty during the next 40 days, as candidates swing into their stump campaigns, and prove their several rates of speed. The early survey was not made to prove anything, nor to boost any candidate. Only incidentally was it concerned with the comparative campaigning abilities of the six men on the list from which the voters will choose the next Texas governor. Its purpose was to find how the candidates stack up at this time. It sought to get a picture, as of today, of the governor's race, and generally, the United States senator's race, state senatorial and other state races.

It is clear-cut that Maury Hughes has won two distinct elements of support; very powerful backing of all those citizens and voters interested in the great public utility interests, and that numerous group of those who have been Ferguson people, but who either have been alienated or who will vote for Ferguson but cannot be "delivered" to any other candidate. Big business, and business generally, will support Small, Hughes and Witt. Lieut. Gov. Witt may have very powerful backing of people substantial in a business way. His campaign has not taken form. INSULL SENDS TO LONDON FOR MORE MONEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 4 — Samuel Insull, despairing but still fighting extradition, moved to replenish his empty war chest today. Not knowing that Madame Zehra Couyoumdjoglou, mystery beauty, had tried to land here to aid him and had been turned away. Calling on the remnant of his $100,000,000 utilities fortune to save him, Insull through his lawyers cabled to London for $10,000. It was revealed that when he landed here he had but $8,200. He kept up his spirit by conferring with his attorneys on plans to defeat plans of the Turkish and American governments to send him to the United States for trial for fraud. The lawyers gave him some hope, but all government and judicial authorities seemed agreed that he had made his last stand and lost. While Insull conferred with his lawyers Madame Couyoumdjoglou tried to land here and was told to keep on to Athens.

PHARES GOES TO DALLAS TO AID OFFICERS

He's Most Popular

AUSTIN, April 4 — L. G. Phares, chief of the state highway patrol, today left for Dallas to assist officers in organizing a statewide search for Clyde Barrow and Raymond Hamilton. The organization contemplated will avoid duplication of work by state, county and city officers. No new clue as to the hideout of the hunted men prompted Phares' departure for Dallas, it was said here.

HOUSTON OFFICERS KEEP VIGIL HOUSTON, April 4 — Renewed vigil was kept today on highways leading into Houston for Clyde Barrow and Raymond Hamilton following a report from Austin that two men, believed to have been the desperadoes, headed this way last night. Sheriff T. A. Binford and two deputies patrolled the Houston-Austin highway last night but the car never arrived. Scouting police were given extra weapons, including machine guns, and instructed to be alert for suspicious characters. FARM HOUSE NEAR FORT WORTH WATCHED FORT WORTH, April 4 —Thirty-five city and county officers, led by Police Chief Henry Lewis, today watched a farm house near Rhome, Texas, on information Clyde Barrow, Bonnie Parker and Raymond Hamilton might visit there. The residence was known to be that of a sister of Hamilton. The watch was started last night. The majority of the patrol withdrew at daybreak leaving a heavy guard on the roadways near the residences.

Projects Talked by C. of C. Directors

Discussions of projects upon which the chamber of commerce is at work occupied the regular meeting of the board of directors of the chamber last night. No motions were made. Sec'y J. E. Spencer reported upon his cooperation with other cities between Cisco and Wichita Falls in a move to secure federalization of a highway route between these two points over highways 79, 24, 67 and 187—the latter the Leary cut-off. Reports were made upon other matters, including the subsistence farm project. Present were: President Charles Hale, Dr. F. E. Clark, C. P. Cole, E. P. Crawford, Dr. C. C. Jones, J. B. Pratt, Charles Sandier, P. P. Shepard, W. W. Wallace, and S. H. Nance.

PREVIOUS LOCAL OPTION STATUS IS RECOGNIZED

AUSTIN, April 4 — Adoption of a 3.2 per cent beer amendment to the state constitution last August 21 does not permit legal sales in territory previously dry by local option. The court of criminal appeals ruled here today in two cases. The cases were appealed from Mitchell and Dickens counties. "We hold," Judge O. S. Lattimore wrote, "that in counties and subdivisions thereof in which the sale, etc., of intoxicating liquor had been forbidden by local option elections prior to taking effect of Section 20, Article 16, of the constitution of Texas (August 21, 1933)—and in which by no subsequent election has the sale, etc., of wine and beer of not more than 3.2 alcoholic content been legalized—that the sale of such liquors is still a felony, and hence the county courts have no jurisdiction of prosecution for the sale thereof."

District WMU Will Convene at Abilene

The 26th annual meeting of District 17 of the Texas W. M. U. will meet at the First Baptist church, Abilene, April 16 and 17, it has been announced. The district is composed of the following seven associations, Cisco, Callahan, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Stonewall, and Sweetwater. Mrs. B. A. Copass, state president; Mrs. T. C. Jester, state young people's leader, and Mrs. J. M. Dawson, representative for Baylor dormitory, will be prominent visitors at the convention. Free entertainment will be provided, it was announced.

Cecil Will Invade N. Y. in September

PARIS, April 4 — Proving that a successful vaudeville career can be launched at 59, France's famous Celine Seurel, netted known as Cecil, will invade New York with her entire Casino de Paris troupe in September. "I had American offers immediately after my release from the Comedie Francaise," she said, "but I did not wish to go to the United States until I convinced the 'Doubting Thomases' in my own country that the national Celine would break with the house of Moliere and make a new name for herself in the music halls of the world!" A breach in theatrical circles was caused when the Countess de Segur, as she is known in private life, severed connections after a bitter struggle, with the 259-year-old Comedie Francaise. When her retirement from the state subsidized theater reluctant was granted, tongues wagged that she would rue the day she left its friendly shelter to compete with 18-year-olds. But Cecil knew her audiences. They said she never would stand the strain of nightly performances and the daily grind of rehearsals. She will spend a summer vacation at her country place near here to put herself in trim for her New York debut, in which she will prove that she has caught and carried the flaming torch thrown to her by Sara Bernhardt.

Final Rehearsals Of College Operetta

Final rehearsals of the operetta "Father Time," are under way at Randolph college. The college troupe will present the entertainment to-morrow evening, Thursday, at 8 o'clock at the college auditorium. The operetta promises to be one of the most entertaining programs that the college has ever presented, it was announced.

Squabbling Imperils Stock Market Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4. — Squabbling among members of the house and senate committees considering the stock market control bill today imperiled the fate of that measure and caused hints by its sponsors that a conspiracy existed to kill it. If such a conspiracy exists, it appeared to have accomplished the purpose of delaying indefinitely a report to either house of congress. Delay made itself first apparent as Chairman Fletcher of the senate banking committee and Chairman Sam Rayburn of the house interstate commerce committee, started what was expected to be a race to get the measure before their respective bodies. But members of both committees stood determined to study every word of the bulky document.

FINAL COOKING SCHOOL SESSION DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE TODAY

The final session of the "Happy Kitchen" Cooking school opened today with throngs of women from Cisco and near-by communities waiting, pencils in hand, to jot down the tempting recipes and helpful short-cuts to economical and successful cooking, as explained by Mrs. Martha McDonald, home economic expert of Dallas. Mrs. McDonald was brought to Cisco by the Cisco Daily News and Community Natural Gas company, and for the past two days has been conducting demonstrations in cooking in the building across the street from Piggly-Wiggly grocery, 617 D avenue. In a gas-equipped kitchen with an Electrolux, an exquisite black and white Roper range, and a white and silver hot water heater that looks to be anything but a heater, Mrs. McDonald prepares and explains each step in the preparation of dishes, dainty and appetizing, yet suited to the pocket book of the average family, and easy enough for the novice at housekeeping to make. One-piece Meals The dinner ensembles or one-piece meals, which go in the oven, altogether and come out ready for the table, and which Mrs. McDonald says are the present-day vogue, she illustrated with the 6-layer dinner recipe for which is given in today's Daily News, along with Scandinavian meat balls, Gold and Silver cake, and Chocolate Angel cake, other delicacies which she prepared yesterday. This afternoon, Mrs. McDonald planned to offer Salmon Croquettes, Date Pie, an unusual concoction, Tabasco cake, and several other dishes. Mrs. McDonald is especially enthusiastic about her Roper range with its automatically regulated oven and clock. Magic In Oven "There's more magic in the oven than in any other kitchen article," she declares. "Time and temperature control everything in baking. And lucky is the housewife who has one of the modern ranges with the automatically regulated oven. With it, it is possible to cook whole meals just by putting them in the oven, setting the regulator and forgetting about them. Numbers of Cisco merchants have

Second Victim of Auto Wreck Dies

ROBY, Texas, April 4.—A second victim of an automobile accident in which Stella Mae Waddell, 17, Roby high school senior, was killed instantly last night, died here today. He was Pleny Marberry, 18. His chest was crushed. A sister of Stella Mae suffered a broken arm and internal injuries. The car overturned while the youths were en route to Rotan, Texas, to attend a picture show.

Lebanon Cedars Are Sent By College

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 4. — On an American liner, bound for the United States from the Phoenician coast, are 13 living cedars of Lebanon, which will be planted in the grounds of Arlington cemetery, according to an announcement of the National Geographic society. The trees, of the genus biblically noted as "the trees of Jehovah," the cedars of Lebanon, which He hath planted," have been sent by the American university at Beirut, Syria, as a good will offering to the people of the United States. They will be planted in the grounds of the nation's great shrine overlooking the capital from across the Potomac river, at the direction of President Roosevelt, it was stated. The cedars of Lebanon are noted not only for their rarity but because of the great strength and resistance to rot of the wood, which, like that of the cypress, is close-grained and aromatic. The Lebanon cedar abounds in historical atmosphere. One of their most famous appearances, the Geographic society reveals, was when King Hiram of Tyre transported Lebanon cedars to Jerusalem for the building of Solomon's temple. The famous cedars are in the Lebanese Republic, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, just north of the Holy Land, and although the Lebanon is included in the French mandate with Syria, it has its own government under a Syrian president.

PAIR'S CAPTURE IMPORTANT IN DILLINGER HUNT

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 4 — Capture of Eugene Green, machine-gunning gangster, and a woman companion was seen today as an important development in the search for John Dillinger, fugitive Indiana desperado. Department of justice agents shrouded operations with their usual cloak of secrecy, but from Washington came an announcement that the wounding of Green and capture of his red-haired companion was a very important development.

Lone Star Wins Ft. Worth Case Reversal

AUSTIN, April 4.—The supreme court of Texas today granted a writ of error in the case of the Lone Star Gas company versus the City of Fort Worth, because of "the importance of the question." Decision by both trial and appellate courts in Fort Worth favored the city's contention that it has the valid constitutional power to condemn the utility's plant, pay for it, and operate it as a municipal system.

CONVICT LAYER AMONG PINEY WOODS

MARSHALL, April 4. — Officers led to the piney woods of this Texas country today to look for a layer of Wade McNabb, East-prison farm building tender was at liberty under furlough. Nabb's body, found yesterday, identified positively by County Sheriff Benjamin Woodall. Woodall, chief investigator, looked for a fairly well educated ex-Eastham convict living in the area. Who that might be he had no idea, but his investigation led along that line, he indicated. A letter written to the newspaper well composed, he observed, and plot to slay the man was well and executed. Crude but accurately drawn mailed to the Houston Press led reporter to the spot where the layer.

Golf Leads Fads Of British Cabinet

LONDON, April 4 — What do cabinet ministers do in their spare time?

Premier Ramsay MacDonald plays golf, walks, is an enthusiast of art and music — particularly Bach — reads, has an extensive knowledge of modern science, and an equal interest in antiquities.

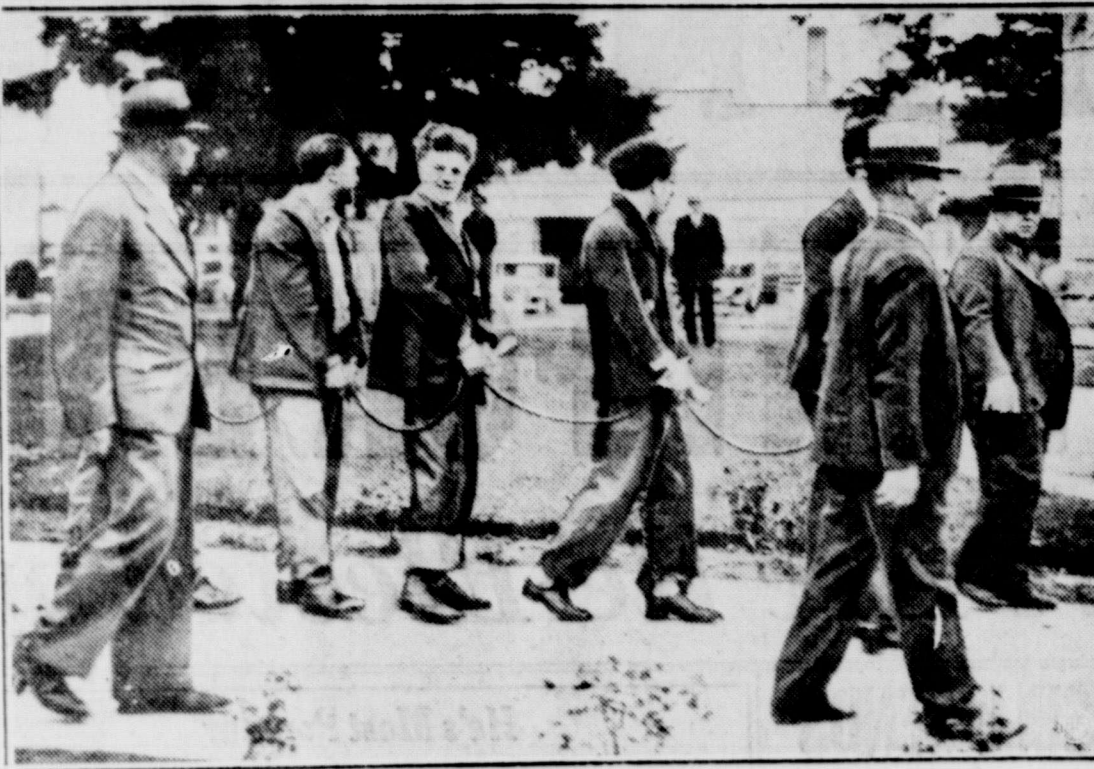

Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, is a sports fan, particularly football, cricket and rowing. He is interested in pigs, smoking pipes, and reading.

Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, collects model ships. Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, plays tennis, rackets, and ice skates. Sir Godfrey Colman, secretary of state for Scotland, is fond of yachting. Sir John Gilmour, home secretary, enjoys punts, shoots and fishes. Sir Philip Curdliffe-Lister, secretary of state for the colonies, like golf and shooting.

Sir John Simon, secretary of state for foreign affairs is a golfer, a skater and a chess player. Walking and traveling are popular with Lord Sankey, lord high chancellor and with Lord Hailsham, secretary of state for war. All outdoor sports appeal to J. H. Thomas, secretary of state for the dominions, and the Marquis of Londonderry, secretary of state for air, is fond of flying.

Apart from members of the cabinet, most members of parliament are adept at one particular trick. They can convert their order papers into wands, rings, ornamental looking stars, and paper hats and ships. Some can make paper wine glasses. They twist these shapes while listening to the debates. Winston Churchill is one of the leading artists.

Foiled in Prison Break, Convicts Face Murder Trial

Branded ringleaders in the thwarted Washington state prison break, five convicts are shown here with their guards as they march, manacled together, to court to face trial on first degree murder charges. Eight men, including a guard, were killed and nine wounded in the futile dash for freedom.

They Find Fortune in Hasenpfeffer

Hasenpfeffer is just sour rabbit to the multitude, but it's a $153,000 dish for Mrs. Margaret Meringer, Woodside, L. I., apartment janitor. She held the winning ticket in an English race lottery, given to her by her chef husband, who received it from a patron in gratitude for a superlative hasenpfeffer recipe. Mrs. Meringer is shown here with her son, William, left, her daughter, Margaret, and her husband. The children will go to college and the family will go to Austria to visit relatives on their new fortune.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Voters of Cisco: We the undersigned candidates in the city election, held April 3rd, 1934, wish to express our sincere and deep gratitude for the vote of confidence given us in said election.

DECORATED MESS HALL

CHARLESTOWN, R. I., April 4 — The Civilian conservation corps mess hall here is perhaps the most artistic in the country. Alexander Krupka, 19, an amateur artist, with the aid of his fellow workers, has painted murals depicting the camp life. He had some of the boys pose for him while he chalked the outlines on wallboard, later painting them in several colors. One shows two men hauling down logs, while another pictures a few men before an open log fire in the fireplace.

Five Amateur Wrestling Champions to Defend Their Titles at Iowa College

AMES, Ia., April 4 — Five national Amateur Athletic association wrestling champions will meet here here April 13-14 to defend their titles at the national tourney to which Iowa State college is host.

One of the champions, Robert Hess, who holds the crown in the 165 pound class is a native Iowan, hailing from Cresco. The other four champs are E. Stout, Southwestern Teachers' college, Weatherfield, Okla., 135 pounds; Guy Sappington, Columbia, Mo., 145 pounds; Art Sweet, Southwestern Teachers', light weight; and Gordon Ellison, Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Ia., heavyweight.

New champions will be crowned in the 112, 118, 126, and 155 pound divisions. Last year's 115 and 125 pound weights have been shifted into 118 and 126 pound classes respectively and the 122 pound class has been added to the list of entries.

Wilbur Frederick, Champaign, Ill., winner of the 115 pound class last year, will be entered in the 118 pound bouts this year as a result of the change, and Milton Andes, carrying the colors of the Baltimore, Mr. Y. M. C. A., holder of the 125 pound title, will compete at the 126 pound mark this year.

Several new rulings will be in effect at this year's meet. Included are: head and body scissors hold, barred last year, will be permitted; no ropes will be used for the ring; in case of no fall, the contestant scoring the most points during the bout will be declared winner.

Points will be scored on the following basis:
Bringing opponent to mat and going behind—five points.
Getting out from underneath and going free—three points.
Getting out from underneath and going behind once—five points

Itchless Underwear Next Improvement

LONDON, April 4 — Ram's inhumanity to man will cease soon. Itchy woolen underwear is out.

A new process has been perfected which spares the embarrassed bushes of those unfortunates caught scratching themselves in public, and also relieves the discomfort to the tender epidermis of the old-style woolens worn next the skin.

A new treatment of fabrics, which it is claimed renders them unshrinkable as well as non-itchable also adds luster to the material, and

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

This is the day of keen competition. The store that will not fight for business soon goes out of business.

A fighting force for business is needed by every business concern—one full of life and with a solid front to go after it.

Business comes where it is invited and stays where it is well treated. Those who want enough business so they can stay in business invite it by newspaper advertising.

Anything worth having is worth advertising. People know that fact. Business concerns who do not invite business by advertising find that it goes to the stores who do invite it.

Ever increasing sales by the stores that are continuous advertisers are convincing testimony that the majority of the people buy from the stores who invite their business through newspaper advertising.

Crashes Thru Walls To Earn Living

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Crashing through walls at a speed of 75 miles an hour has brought fame and fortune to Clark Townsend, former amateur motorcycle racer.

Townsend, a native of Lisbon Falls, Me., receives from $50 to $100 for riding a motorcycle through a 26 square foot wooden wall one inch thick. He is one of five men in America who can accomplish this feat.

A motorcycle wall crasher for three years, he has suffered few minor injuries in more than 20 exhibitions.

Townsend fell heir to the profession by accident. In 1931 he explained, while riding 70 miles an hour down a highway, his motorcycle left the road and crashed through a rail fence. He escaped uninjured. It then occurred to him that he might make money by crashing through walls before audiences.

The New Englander performs on dirt tracks at fairs and motorcycle races. He circles the track, gathers speed, and then plows through the wall. Force of the impact Townsend declared, throws the front wheel in the air and causes the crash through would prove fatal.

He is equipped with a crashproof helmet, shatter-proof goggles, hockey gloves padded with rubber sponges, felt enforced with leather caps for his knees, leather puttees, high shoes, leather jacket, heavy sweater, and tight wound tape about his neck. The motorcycle has break-proof tires, steel bumpers, special handle bars, and a high speed motor.

TIED UP TRAFFIC

DETROIT, April 4—Speeding fire trucks, police patrols, and many a pretty calf have caused traffic tie-ups here, but it remained for a loose manhole cover to give a corner traffic cop his busiest half hour. The heavy disk jammed against the bottom of a street car on a busy thoroughfare. When the motorman was able to release the manhole cover several minutes later, the street was clogged with automobiles.

So important is Turkish tobacco in the Chesterfield blend that we maintain a modern up-to-date tobacco factory in the far-off city of Smyrna.

Turkish tobacco adds something to the taste and aroma of a cigarette that no other tobacco can give.

It means something that Chesterfield always has in storage upwards of 350,000 bales of this aromatic Turkish tobacco.

This Turkish tobacco blended and cross-blended with ripe mild home-grown tobaccos to give Chesterfield a taste and aroma that is like other cigarettes.

Everything that more can buy is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Instead of Chicago's elite, a window washer was the only witness when Geraldine Swift, above, 22-year-old daughter of G. F. Swift, packing plant magnate, and Albert F. Taylor, Chicago broker and former Yale football player, were married by a Joliet, Ill., justice of the peace. It was not an elopement, the Swift family announced.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY
NLA Service Staff Writer
AS long as the Irish potato is at its best, the typical American regards it as a dinner necessity. But when potatoes become scarce and of poor quality, there are many vegetables and cereals that are its just competitors. Different varieties of dried beans, peas and lentils, hominy, macaroni and spaghetti, noodles and rice may be served in palatable dishes that will find special favor on potatoless menus.

When you plan a meal in which rice, macaroni or some other potato substitute is to be used, it's well to keep in mind certain important points. Potatoes do much more than furnish starch to the diet. Rice and potatoes are both food sources of starch, but potatoes add minerals which tend to balance the acidity of the dinner meat while rice, which yields an acid ash, increases the acid content of the meal. Consequently, when rice, macaroni or any of the paste foods take the place of potatoes, it is necessary to serve other foods know to be rich in mineral constituents.

To Serve With Paste Foods
Such vegetables as beets, carrots, celery, radishes and lettuce should be used in abundance with rice and the paste-foods. Combination dishes of rice and tomatoes or macaroni and tomatoes supply quite completely the food elements found in potatoes. Meals in which dried beans and peas are used must be considered from a different angle. These foods are good sources of mineral constituents and tend to produce alkalinity when digested and assimilated by the body. Served in combinations with other foods they may also figure as the main dish. When featured as the main dish they should be amply supplemented by milk.

Varieties of Beans
There are many articles of dried beans that are more delicately flavored than the "navy" bean usually called to mind when beans are mentioned. Dried lima beans, marrowfats, red kidney beans, dolicho, yellow eye, cranberry and black are excellent varieties, each having a distinguishing flavor. Spring "greens" are particularly suitable to serve with a hearty dish of beans. The combination makes an inexpensive, satisfying, nourishing and well balanced meal for spring days.

Too many home-makers make the mistake of thinking that any food which is a good source of starch can take the place of potatoes in the diet with the same result. The calorie value may be the same but the mineral balance will be far from true.

Famous Cave Being Explored by Youths

REEDS SPRINGS, Mo., April 4—Marvel cave, believed to be the oldest cave in existence known, is being explored again. Four college youths have been spending their Sundays penetrating far into the subterranean passages, which are estimated to have been formed 16,000,000 years ago.

On their last trip the four youths went 1,000 feet farther than any other person. At times they had to crawl through water over a foot deep and again inch through tunnels hardly large enough for their bodies. Several new rooms were discovered as they ventured into the far confines of the cavern. One chamber has a quantity of "cave pearls," made by a process similar to that which causes pearls to form in oysters. A dry winter has made many of the passages accessible.

The equipment carried by the explorers consists of a pencil, notebook, compass tape, a rope, and candle stubs. Torches are easily broken. Chocolate is used for food.

"A Bible and a Newspaper in every home" ---said Benjamin Franklin

IF YOU asked the founder of a great library system what reading matter you should place in your home, you might expect him to hand you a sizable list of books. But old Ben Franklin, father of the free library system of our country, being a man to put first things first, might have looked over the top of his glasses at you, and repeated "a Bible and a newspaper in every home." Franklin himself was Printer and Publisher and an advertising writer. He recognized, as you do, that good advertising is NEWS. Back in 1780, when a ship came to port with a consignment of Indian shawls and some merchant announced this in the newspaper, you may imagine that that item meant more to the ladies of the day than the usual chronicle of somebody's cow "lost, strayed or stolen." An editor gathers up the news from all corners of the globe, just as a merchant gathers up his stock of goods. Then the story of both is carried in the newspaper. Both mean a great deal to every reader.

JOUSTING WINDMILLS

The Committee for the Nation, feeling impelled to justify its publication of the Dr. William A. Wirt "red plot" charges by its chairman, James H. Rand, Jr., has made an issue out of the "brain trust." Jeered by an audience the committee thought would be vastly impressed if not anxiously stirred, it has taken valiantly to jousting windmills with a lance furnished by the Gary, Ind., superintendent of schools who claims the "brain trusters" sought to rope him into their fantastic scheme to revolutionize the political complexion of the United States and supplant "Kerensky" Roosevelt with a "Stalin." Under the auspices of the committee, the full Wirt statement has been released to newspapers for publication in serialized form without charge. Coincidentally, the committee has released a bundle of underscored arguments of prominent economists and writers which reveal that its quarrel with the "brain trust," precipitated into the foreground by the stock market bill which it opposed and which prompted Mr. Rand to publish the Wirt statement, is nothing more than the same old issue in new garb. Initiative vs. Restraint is that issue. The differences are merely economic. The trouble is that Mr. Rand and his compatriots have brought about such a laughter over the "red revolution" charges that the real features of their case are lost sight of or discredited. The influence of the committee, only recently credited with much weight, has suffered severely with this incident. The committee's prime theory—that of raising the price level by cheapening the dollar exactly as the administration has done, although to a greater extent—seemed to parallel the administration idea. There were points of divergence, but on the whole the committee, professing to speak for a large element of American business, was looked upon as a potent factor. It did extensive research in various fields where recovery measures were believed necessary, particularly in that of frozen bank assets, and closed financial institutions which it advocated opening by the issuance of currency based upon assets of eventual liquidity and the payment of 60 per cent to depositors. As an institution for careful study of business conditions and recommendation to the administration, the committee had prestige. But when it stepped out of that role and developed pugnacity it became a specialized bloc and certain to be treated as such. Its childish acceptance of the Wirt opus and attack upon the "brain trust" to justify its suspicions, discredited the sincerity as well as the soundness of its arguments. By Mr. Rand's own statement the Wirt article came to his attention first only a few hours before he published it to the house committee. He also said he did not know Mr. Wirt personally; merely talked to him on the telephone and had a friend confirm the conversation. People, big or little, who see ghosts too easily are hardly trustworthy companions in the dark woods of a night.

CITY ELECTIONS

With the municipal political races out of the way, voters may now turn undivided attention to the state contests, which make the current year a major state political season. A senator, a governor and a host of state and county officials are to be elected. The tenor of the voting public was reflected in the city contests where upsets were about as usual and the voting was comparatively light. This should reflect more satisfaction with economic conditions and a tendency on the part of the public to be more cheerful and, hence, less constrained to do something about the state of affairs via the ballot box.

Only one more local election intervenes between now and the primaries in July—the election of two school board members to take the places to become vacant with expiration of the terms of W. J. Armstrong and O. J. Russell. The voting will be next Saturday. In this election no issue of any consequence seems to have arisen and the two retiring members are the only candidates so far announced. The local municipal race developed some heat, but it passed off in good-humored fashion—the re-elected ones returning to their posts tolerant of the charges brought against them and their supporters and the defeated ones taking the result with as good nature. So it has resulted. Just another city election.

BILL TO AMEND BANKRUPTCY ACT

There is a very important bill now on the United States senate calendar, known as 510, to amend the present bankruptcy act, extend to corporations the same privileges that are now enjoyed by individuals under the bankruptcy act—namely, that "if two-thirds of the creditors agree on reorganization the plan may be put into effect."

The reading public is reminded that there is no provision which permits a corporation to reorganize. There are hundreds, nay thousands, of heads of corporations, large and small, who are said to be vitally interested in seeing this amendment pass the senate, not only because they are interested in the reorganization of corporations the country over but because they are thoroughly convinced it will materially assist in the recovery act permitting great numbers of corporations to reorganize and go ahead.

If there are weak corporations which should be aided to become strong corporations, why shouldn't they be permitted to reorganize and go forward. It goes without saying, or without argument, that nationwide recovery is important to all classes and conditions and that a return of purchasing power without regard to class or condition will hasten recovery on a stable basis, increase purchasing power by providing employment for idle workers and push along all industries and all trades and callings in the upward hike in the direction of Prosperity Hill.

Demobilization of CWA Army and Relief Cost

By HUGH NUGENT FITZREGALD
Relief Commr. Harry L. Hopkins in the closing days of the CWA has a big job on his hands. One million and a half persons are on the out—that is, they have been dismissed in order to bring to an end the civil works administration. For weeks to come 3,000 persons will be employed in winding up the activities of the organization that was built up almost overnight to put 4,000,000 persons to work "to help tide them over the winter." All tasks before May 1. Approximately $1,000,000,000 in cash was turned loose by the relief authorities. This relief aid reached into every county in the United States. The federal government supplied about $600,000,000 and states and counties and local communities the remainder. Of the total about $750,000,000 went in wages to the workers. As for the 1,500,000 discharged workers their status will be changed. They will report Monday as usual. Instead of working on jobs for wages, without investigation by social service workers, they will have the status of workers on relief rolls. Each will be investigated and his earnings limited to actual budgetary needs. If he needs less than 54 hours monthly he will be put on direct relief rolls; if more he will be allowed to work up to 24 hours weekly for the prevailing wage in his community but not less than 30 cents an hour. This is the Hopkins slogan: "Nobody is going hungry if we can help it." State Administrator Adam Johnson is the relief commissioner of and for Texas. Those who know him are aware that he will carry out the Hopkins instructions to the letter. Johnson has a reputation of never playing favorites nor playing politics. Springtime is here and summer is on the way. Now on with the battle for nationwide recovery, for a recovery that will increase the purchasing power of all makers of wealth and all wageworkers who are willing to take jobs where they find them. Man's mission on this earth is to toil with hand or brain, or a combination of the two to provide for his dependents and to insure as far as possible peace and happiness and well filled larders for those in his family circle. Down the corridors of time, workers have been the winners and the planners and the diggers have ever made recovery possible—after costly wars and economic crises which have come and gone in the fat years and the lean years, to be followed by fat and lean as the old world juggs on regardless of wars or famines or social upheavals or the crashing of governments or the passing of men. McFARLANE PLANS TAX ON CORPORATIONS

Cong. J. R. MacFarlane of the Wichita district has introduced a bill designed to place a heavy income tax on profits made by corporations on government contracts. His measure would require a corporation to pay a tax of 13 3/4 per cent on profits resulting from contracts against profits thus made any loss incurred in ordinary commercial operations. MacFarlane of Texas, speaking of the M. C. as a state senator was responsible for many wild and woolly measures, in quest of new sources of revenue but the senate journal does not disclose that enactment followed in the wake of introduction. Another provision in his bill would prohibit the making of consolidated returns for affiliated corporations when one owned as much as 90 per cent of the stock of the other with the added regulation that any corporation holding a government contract would be compelled to make a separate return from that of its affiliate irrespective of the degree of affiliation. In the last analysis, the consumer or the buyers pays the tax. Now just why should another load be heaped on the heads of corporations in the 48 commonwealths of the republic? People everywhere are demanding a cut in the cost of government—that is people who are compelled to pay taxes and carry the load of the cost of government.

FOR THE PESSIMIST'S SCRAPBOOK
Pessimists and alarmists should place this in their scrapbooks—and men and women who are seeing red or yellow should digest it: "Chicago—The greatest increase over a year previous since 1920 was shown in sales figures of Sears-Roebuck and Company for the second period of the current fiscal year, Feb. 27 to March 26. The total was $22,362,353, as compared with $14,215,650 for the corresponding four weeks of last year. A gain of 57.8 per cent. During the 1933 period, however, trade was curtailed because of the bank holiday in the early part of March." Another cheerful little earful to place in the scrapbook: Wage increases of 10 per cent for $140,000 employees of the United States Steel Corporation and for between 30,000 and 40,000 of the General Electric company brought to at least 400,000 the number of workers who have received pay boosts within four days. Industrial leaders estimate the increase will approximate $4,000,000 a month. It became effective Sunday April 1. All the great steel companies of America joined in the wage advance. All the big four milling companies in the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis announced 10 per cent wage increases a year ago carried by the newspapers of America, or go read the files of the newspapers as to conditions when Hoover stepped out and Roosevelt stepped in.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE
The Welfare association has closed shop for the summer. Its quarters have been vacated, the office shut up until next fall when the return of cold weather signals its doors to open again to meet the demands of the impoverished. Mrs. Philip Pettit and Mrs. Charles Brown, secretaries, will have a va-

self need not be so careful about such matters. But Spencer and Cate have to bend over to see the ball and out of deference to them the training pace has been fixed at a walk. E. P. Crawford is a veteran at baseball, as Rotary club members

The improvement in economic conditions has been reflected in the quantity and character of demands upon the association. Requests for assistance have dwindled. Most calls have been for clothing; comparatively few for food. Transient cases, with the coming of the summer, have increased. There is always the improvident, lackluster individual to be dealt with. Unkempt in body and manner, he hunts for food like a pig. One such, climbing a ladder to where Elliott was at work upon the roof of his house, illustrates the invariable attitude and the invariable approach. "Are you the man that gives a feller a feed?" As though he were a horse or a cow or some other animal. There is nothing contemptible in poverty. It is a testing ground for character, a source that has been fruitful of citizenship. The sur-render to the condition is contemptible. I and you have a great admiration for the man or woman who battles heroically against odds of poverty, sorrow or physical handicap. Such people are the "saits of the earth" as Friend Popeye remarks. But the person who expects charity as a reward for his inertia is a pitiable figure. Unless the Lions club is practicing in secret, the Rotarians have gotten the jump on their rivals in playground baseball. The number of rookies reporting for practice yesterday was two short of the required nine, but they swarted the ball with a "wim wigo and witality" that presages sizzling competition for come what may. With long, lean President Phil Pettit "chawin'" like a big leaguer and whipping the apple through the plate, the seven Rotarians went through two rounds of batting practice and then tied to the shooves, fearing in the opinion of Team Capt. CHAPTER XXX
J. SMITHSON BILLINGS was in Havana. It was the first week of March and so hot that Cuban seniors and their daughters were beginning to long for the time when they could don the light raiment that the mad tourists wore throughout the winter. Billings was going to pay another visit to the woman who had before her marriage, had been Conception Villaverde y Blanco. He knew that unless you traveled the same road many times you could not be sure that every stone had been turned over. Then he was going to Key West again to nupt up the filthy old crane called Angela. And this time he would see to it that she did not escape him. He felt a curious and comfortable sense of having at last set out on the right course. He whistled as he dressed on that early March morning and for some moments he studied the pattern of colors on the tiled floor. The pattern was made by sunlight sitting through the colored glass of half of an inward-opening window. As a child, visiting his aunt, Billings remembered gazing into a remarkable kaleidoscope. He had loved to watch the changing patterns which a twist or a shake of the object produced. The colors on the tiled floor made him think of that kaleidoscope. He studied his tie carefully, studied his face in the mirror and then assumed the expression which he thought most becoming—a rather fierce expression made more impressive because his head was thrown back and his shoulders held high. Billings liked to look like a man who was not to be trifled with. He studied himself for some minutes, hands in his pockets and then out. He frowned, assumed an expression less severe, nodded and then smiled. There are few of us who do not occasionally indulge in such manifestations of human frailty. Then he went down stairs to his breakfast, stopping on the way to buy a newspaper that was printed in English.

of whom he had often heard and one Al Gates, hailing from London. Billings decided he would take in the match, then turned to another page. The fight was to be at La Miraflores, a club run by millionaires. It would probably be a rather restricted affair but Billings was sure he could gain admittance. An American strolled into the dining room, proclaiming his nationality by his shoes and clothing; and that haste that cannot be forgotten even in leisure. He saw Billings and paused beside his table. "American?" the newcomer questioned, with an eye on Billings' tightly encased shoulders and Graziati-tailored clothes. "Yes, fine morning." "Yes, but it's going to be a scorcher again if I know anything about it." "Likely," it dawned, "won't you?" "Thanks. My wife takes her breakfast in bed and I don't like eating alone, even if I read the paper. At home she gets up but she says she's on a vacation now I guess she deserves it. You know how hard it is to get help. We haven't had a cook for more than 10 days in the last 10 years!" "Too bad," Billings agreed solemnly. "It's the same with me and my wife."

The stranger ordered ham eggs, a pot of "decent coffee if you have any," and hot rolls. Then he sat back in his chair. "What's the news?" he questioned, his eyes on Billings' newspaper, now folded beside the steamed carafe. Billings told Mr. Gartside—whose card he had taken to slip into a case as he handed his own card across the table—that there was to be a fight. As a child, visiting his aunt, Billings remembered gazing into a remarkable kaleidoscope. He had loved to watch the changing patterns which a twist or a shake of the object produced. The colors on the tiled floor made him think of that kaleidoscope. He studied his face in the mirror and then assumed the expression which he thought most becoming—a rather fierce expression made more impressive because his head was thrown back and his shoulders held high. Billings liked to look like a man who was not to be trifled with. He studied himself for some minutes, hands in his pockets and then out. He frowned, assumed an expression less severe, nodded and then smiled. There are few of us who do not occasionally indulge in such manifestations of human frailty. Then he went down stairs to his breakfast, stopping on the way to buy a newspaper that was printed in English.

Mr. Gartside had told him rather pressed on the table rather exercise. The visit gave him no sense. Juanito was not to be seen. A harsh voiced product of the order ordered Billings to "Speed up!" After that the voice ordered him into a chair where he was mercilessly mated, subjected to ice from a large nozzle had otherwise tortured. Billings turned to Havana utterly listless over his failure. "My God!" he thought, "I from side to side in the and mopping his brow. "What that was fierce!"

He ate a light luncheon though still very unable, pursued his quest. He at the counter spoke English the way," Billings said after conversation about the "what's the name of the of this Juanito, the big I'm a newspaper man and thought I might get a star of her. You know people I hear of a mother's influence—take it from me, kid—beautiful thing!" The boy at the counter, who picked up his English from Americans, agreed "Surely," not, he said, shaking his head the name of his mother. But, he added quickly would be able to find out. The boy came back, asking that the name of Juanito was Julia. She was Tia Julia and she lived on Cienfuegos. It was some but one could easily make it and it was a trip worth making. "All right," Billings said less as he jotted down notes in the small book he turned toward a spot from a cool, stinging-topped table ordered a dry Martini. He was going to Cienfuegos tomorrow, wild goose chase. But the next day's dawn pink and purple and by the when Billings opened his eyelids rain was falling, cold, too—one of those abrupt changes of tempo that are typical of warm climates having occurred during the day was out of the question. Juanito, he knew, go the sightseer who happened in a visit to stop to talk with neighbors of Tia Julia. He fervently that he knew the guage he heard on the through which he strolled, swinging a recent quired cane with rather too flourish. Billings dressed with gross, being neatly stiff, his breakfast at 11. Whiskies cleared a bit, he decided would go to Morro Castle, never been there and it was of the things that, it simply had to be done. (To Be Continued)

British Stunned by American Salaries

LONDON, April 4 — Salaries paid to British heads of huge industrial enterprises do not approach those received by United States giants of business.

The chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries, Sir Harry McGowan, who controls the destinies of 60,000 employees, and nearly $400,000,000 of invested capital, is reported to be the highest salaried industrialist in Great Britain.

As prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald is paid only $25,000 a year compared with $75,000 received by the archbishop of Canterbury and $50,000 by the lord mayor of London.

Patsy, Three-Act Comedy, to Be Presented By Dramatic Club Friday at 8 P. M.

The Dramatic club is rapidly completing the preparations for their biggest project of the year to be given Friday evening at eight o'clock.

The production of the play has provided several projects for various groups in school. In addition to the work done by the cast, members of the club have constructed under the supervision of the director a complete set of stage scenery.

The proceeds from the play will be applied on the expenses of the play—the royalty, the materials for the stage set, the rentals of costumes, publicity, and other items.

The Patsy is an amusing comedy depicting episodes in the life of the Harringtons, an average American family.

Melvin took his yearly bath Senior Day when his boat sank and he had to bail out, that is to say, he had to jump in the lake.

Because of the fact that there were not enough students who wanted to buy an annual, there will be none published this year.

And just about that time the trio of senior boys called the Junior President, Wendell Russell, to the stage to serve as a lamp post while they sang "Sweet Adeline."

That was college life! In the lusty youth of this republic, the law of the jungle ruled, it seems, in classroom and on campus.

One student who threw sulphuric acid on the face and clothes of his professor was expelled, but was restored to good standing, that he might enter another college.

In one of the many conflicts between the town and the gown, two or three townies were wounded by pistol shots, and one was stabbed to death with a dirk.

At another college, a cannon was dragged one night into a dorm. It was heavily charged, and aimed at the door of the college tutor.

One college president was railroaded into an insane asylum by an elaborate student stratagem.

Here the modern professor laments the morals of the modern student, let him take a good look back on the brave world gone by, when college life was careless and bold, and the golden hours were filled with mischief, assault and battery, and homicide.

Typing Thoughts

Did you ever stop to think just what would be found in the mind of the average student in high school were they really tested to see what was occupying their mind at any one time?

There is just as much difference between Dot and me as there is black and white. Our dispositions are not alike and we don't like to do the same things.

When we were small mother tried to dress us alike and what a time she had. A dress that Dot could wear was not becoming to me.

The first part in being twins is that you are asked so many questions. Since Dot weighs about one hundred pounds more than I do and is about three or four inches taller, we are asked questions like these.

Well, I would never have guessed it. "Like we care" and again they ask "And you are really twins? You are just telling that, aren't you?"

Who wants to be a twin? I know myself it isn't very pleasant, unless you are alike in every way and then I have my doubts.

Junior Class Meeting The Juniors met last Thursday in room 115. The class elected Bernice Mae Blumberg as the Junior class representative for the annual staff.

Who wants to be a twin? I know myself it isn't very pleasant, unless you are alike in every way and then I have my doubts.

DINNER CELEBRATES SIXTY-NINTH BIRTHDAY.
Honoring Mrs. Agnes Doeshans of New Orleans, mother of George Ruppert, who recently celebrated her 69th birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Ruppert entertained with a dinner Sunday evening.

The cake, especially baked by her son, owner of a local bakery, was an elaborate creation with candies and a greeting of "Happy Birthday." Poi plants and spring blossoms formed an attractive decoration for the dining room, and table loaded with a delicious repast. The occasion was a happy one for the honoree who was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Friends called during the afternoon.

Present at the dinner were: Mrs. Agnes Doeshans of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruppert of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. George Ruppert and daughters, Paulette, Madeleine, and Jacqueline.

RECIPES

Demonstrated in yesterday's session of the Cisco Daily News and Community Gas Cooking school, by Mrs. Martha McDonald, home economist of Dallas.

Scandinavian Meat Balls

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. Tabasco sauce
- 1-16 tsp. all spice
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup cracker crumbs
- 1/2 cup sweet milk.

Mix all together and form into balls about the size of an egg. Sear in 4 T of hot Mrs. Tucker's shortening. Remove from hot fat and place in baking dish. Add 1 cup of boiling water. Cover and place in Roper oven for 1 1/2 hours.

Take broth from meat balls and add 2 T. of Gladiola flour and thicken for gravy. Serve with any kind of vegetables.

Six-Layer Dinner

Cover the bottom of a 9-inch square dish with a layer of sliced carrots. Cover carrots with sliced potatoes. Then add a layer of fresh sliced tomatoes, and for the fourth layer, add chopped celery. Place over the celery, rings of green pepper, and on top place 6 pork chops, dipped in Gladiola flour.

- Add:
- 1 cup sweetmilk
- 1/2 tsp. Tabasco
- 2 tsp. salt
- Pour 1/2 cup of melted butter over chops and bake in Roper oven at 375 degrees for about 1 1/2 hours.

Chocolate Angel Cake

This Chocolate Angel cake is made with K. C. Baking Powder which makes a cake more moist, more tender and more delicious.

- 14 large egg whites
- 1/4 tsp. of salt
- 2-3 tsp. K. C. Baking powder
- 1 tsp. Vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup Gladiola flour
- 1/2 cup cocoa

Method: Beat eggs until frothy. Add salt and beat until light. Then add K. C. Baking powder and beat until stiff but not dry. Fold in sugar, then flour and cocoa that have been sifted together several times. Add extract. Bake in Roper range for 20 minutes at 325 degrees. Increase the temperature to 360 degrees for about 15 minutes. Watch. As soon as cake settles, remove from the oven and invert in pan to cool.

Gold and Silver or Orange Coconut Cake

Sift well 4 cups of Gladiola flour with 3 1/2 tsp. K. C. Baking powder. Cream together:

- 1/2 cup butter from Cisco Dairy Assn.
- 1/2 cup Mrs. Tucker's shortening
- 2 1/2 cups granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup boiling water.
- Add: 1 tsp. orange extract; 1/2 tsp. almond extract.

Alternate mixture of Gladiola flour with 1 1/2 cups of sweet milk. When thoroughly mixed, fold in stiffly beaten whites of 5 eggs out 2 layers. Add to the remaining mixture bowl, 3 egg yolks. This will be layers for 2 yellow layers. Bake between layers with: 1 box powdered sugar 4 T melted butter Grated rind of 1 orange Enough orange juice to make the proper consistency to mix nicely. For top and sides of use 7 minute icing, and top with coconut.

Four-Square Gospel Revival Starts Today

Evangelist John T. Aston, a Ciscoan and naturalized citizen, who has been in the city for several years in Los Angeles, Cal., who is one of 2,500 members of the police department, will begin a Square Gospel revival at the hall at 7:30 this evening. Assistant pastor will be Mrs. Aston and Newsom, the latter in charge of the service.

The policeman-evangelist is to visit here, and the revival will continue indefinitely, he said. He may be transferred to another assignment, the city hall having selected expediently.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Aston, both deceased, he left 12 years ago, he said. Return has found the city and its position considerably changed from memory of it.

The SAFETY of Mobiloil

is now protected by REFINERY SEALED CANS

There is a good reason why Mobiloil has been the "World's Largest Selling Motor Oil" for years. Mobiloil is a tough, heat-resisting motor oil, made by the special Gargoyle Process from the pick of all crudes. It lasts longer... lubricates better... preserves power and keeps motors purring smoothly under all conditions.

Now, when you drive in to a Magnolia Station or Dealer, you may have your choice of Mobiloil in REFINERY SEALED CANS... or, in bulk from the familiar driveaway dispensing unit. Either way, you can always be sure of receiving a full measure of genuine Mobiloil, as fresh, clean and reliable as the day it left the refinery.

Your car deserves the safety that Mobiloil provides. Remember to ask for world-famous Mobiloil by name.
