PANHANDLE GAS WASTE

Waste of natural gas in the panhandle field is said to be staggering. A billion feet a day is estimated to be blown off into thin air—billions upon billions of heat units dissipated beyond recovery.

Construction of most of the public and commercial buildings and the residences in these cities has been influenced by a confidence in a dependable and long-time supply of gas.

It has been shown that large investors could escape their just share of taxes by doing their trading in stocks and bonds and other securities through the medium of a holding company and then leaving their profits in the company treasury as undivided dividends.

There are many shrewd ways of avoiding taxation, as the voluminous records of the senate banking committee's investigation show. It is possible to be respectable and a rascal at the same time.

Dirt Farmer Terrell Is Willing to Run

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD Rep. George Terrell, elected at large two years ago, is planning to seek re-election this time from the seventh district provided congress adjourns in time to permit a thorough campaign and provided further that it shows a disposition to return to democratic principles.

Dirt Farmer Terrell has been in the political picture many years. He has filled many offices of honor and trust. He served several times as state commissioner of agriculture.

Dirt Farmer Terrell bows to the wisdom of the majority. That is, if he enters a primary or a precinct election or convention he goes all the road. If he is trounced or defeated, he takes it on the nose and then votes the ticket straight.

What ever else may be said of Huey P. Long, and most of which, no doubt, he deserves, his qualities as a fighter should command some admiration.

the race against Dirt Farmer will know after it is over just what it is to tackle this bear of the piney woods country. His record is that he never knows when to quit, and he loves a battle with all the zest that the wielders of blackthorn sticks enjoyed a riot in the famous days of club fighting which were a feature of ancient and historic Irish fairs or sales exhibitions.

FIRST OF ITS KIND IN AMERICA ON THE WAY The congress may order a recess for May 15. To see how widely electricity rates vary throughout the country the national solons ordered an investigation by the federal power commission which, incidentally, will show the difference in prices charged by publicly and privately owned companies.

Coleman is a candidate for attorney general of Texas subject to the action of the July primary. He is on road interviewing the democratic men and women of Texas. He was interviewed by a reporter of The Texarkana Press. He came across with a statement that "Now is the time for Texas to reorganize its police force to curb the increasing crimes committed by professional criminals." He has a plan. Read it: "Activities of public enemies such as Barrow, Hamilton and Trammell are evidence of the necessity for this state to establish a state police system second to none in the United States and in connection with that a central identification bureau. Local authorities are powerless to cope with such desperadoes. Juries should inflict more death penalties. That stops the breed."

In the heroic days when Achilles, Hector, Ajax and other towering god-men of the lists trod Trojan soil and battled for Homeric immortality, the deflection or transposition of one such hero usually determined the tide of the victory.

As a member of the Lions club team, he was a valuable man. But when he committed athletic spasms and went to the assistance of the out-matched American Legion boys he discovered that the almighty word "cooperation" (in this instance translated "teamwork") is bigger than his individual prowess as a wielder of the bat in playground baseball.

The legionnaires took it on the button to the tune of 20 to 12, and even Dick Lauderdale, impressed into service despite his non-affiliation with the Legion, couldn't help it a bit.

The Lions club went to the field and got the pick of the players, although many of their own men are also members of the legion. Smith, originally a member of the Lions team, was compelled by his Legion position as well as his sympathy to desert the luncheon club cause and seek to bolster the ex-service men's chance. He is commander of the John William Butts post.

In spite of that official fact he is to be congratulated upon his sense of sportsmanship in going from a sure thing to a lost cause as a matter of sound principle. May the ardor of his soul inspire the spirits of his legionnaire comrades to give the Lions club some real competition, because the "roaring" boys are going to need it when the Rotary club's turn comes around.

Palo Pinto Hermit Changes Residence

PALO PINTO, April 10 — Contrary to rumor, Palo Pinto's famous recluse, George the Hermit, is not dead, but has moved to a new secret cave.

The rumor of George the Hermit's death spread through the vicinity after Palo Pinto folk missed the gaunt, shuffling figure for an unusually long period. His cave near the mouth of Eagle Creek on the Brazos river, where he has lived for 20 years, was abandoned.

Little is known of his past life, except that he became a hermit here two decades ago. He lives chiefly on fish and squirrels. On rarest occasions he walks to Palo Pinto to borrow a bit of food. His cooking he does in a mud oven and he sleeps on bare rock, according to accounts.

When he disappeared, it was feared his dead body would be found in a canyon or some secluded retreat. This fear was dissipated, however, when a band of fishermen recently ran across the hermit.

He had changed his cave, he told them, because civilization encroached too near his former habitat. This could not be a satisfactory state for a hermit.

So George the Hermit moved, without leaving a forwarding address, but it is believed his new cave is somewhere in the Fortune Bend country of the Brazos, eight miles from his former cave.

THE ROMANTIC RUNAWAY by KATHARINE HAVLAND TAYLOR

—A feeling that makes it seem as if, living, we have stepped into an unreal dream.

"Hang it!" he thought. "What's come over me?" To the stranger he said, "Is this your first trip to Cuba?"

"No, I've been here once before." "Like it here?" "No. To be frank, I don't like it much. Have you ever been in England?"

"No," Pablito answered. "Ah, you must come! You must come!" The crinda appeared as Sir Aubrey was speaking, bringing glasses, a syphon and a squat brown bottle on a tarnished tray.

G LASS in hand, Pablito motioned Sir Aubrey to a chair and then sat down himself. Sir Aubrey began to speak of England—the hedges, the lanes, the order and quiet. He spoke of houses which grew more beautiful as they were lived in year after year; of great trees; of all that was to him most beautiful in the land of his fathers, the only land where he could do more than exist.

"I think I'd like it," Pablito said as Sir Aubrey's voice dropped away. "Sometimes it seems to me that all my life I've been hunting a sort of permanence which is always just out of reach. I haven't had much—go on."

He saw Sir Aubrey's eyes fill and was surprised and embarrassed by the sight.

"You must come— whenever you're over there—to visit me at my place at Lower Gittings," Sir Aubrey said with a shaken eagerness. He set his glass on the tray again because the increased trembling of his hand did not permit him to hold it steadily. This boy was his son! This splendidly strong, tall youth with the steady, even look. He wanted intensely to lay his arm across Pablito's broad shoulders. Instead he must sit and sip his drink. Some day, however—if God was kind—some day—

"Refreshing," he said as he finished the whisky and soda. "No end refreshing. Thanks awfully. You—enjoy living here?"

"Oh, I guess so," Pablito answered slowly. He added with more energy in his tone, "I like Cuba."

"You know, I'm keenly interested in Cuban houses—" "Want to look over this apartment?" Pablito offered.

"Oh, I say, that's no end kind of you—if you don't mind!" "This is my sleeping room," Pablito said a few minutes later. Sir Aubrey paused at the doorway. A little later he and Pablito stood at the door of the gymnasium to meet the perspiring and anguished Billings. Seeing Billings, Pablito smiled for the first time since the ache had settled in

KAMCHATKA FISHING GROUNDS CAUSES RUSS-JAP DISAGREEMENT

Editor's Note: The much talked of Russo-Japanese dispute regarding North Pacific fishing grounds is not likely to cause a new Russo-Japanese war although it will remain a perennial cause of Asiatic friction.

Miles W. Vaughn, long Far East manager for United Press, points out in the fifth of his series on current tension in northern Asia.

By MILES W. VAUGHN
United Press Staff Correspondent

"Nations may argue about fish, but they rarely fight for possession of them."

That statement by a Japanese statesman sums up Nipponese opinion on the perennial Russo-Japanese quarrel over the rich fishing grounds off Kamchatka.

The fish are important to the Japanese — more important than they are to Russians — but they are not important enough to cause a war. And Japanese, despite the fact they guard their fishing fleets with warships, do not think the fish question ever will be the primary cause of a conflict.

This fish quarrel is as old as a Muscovite penetration of the Far East.

Fishing Rights Inherited

Japanese fishermen have exploited the rich grounds, now in Russian territorial waters, since the days when the tribesmen of Yamato overcame the aborigines of Nippon to found the nation. They consider their right to fish off Kamchatka as inherent and inherited.

Russia has decreed otherwise. The Soviets control Kamchatka and its territorial waters. They have announced and Japan has agreed, that fishing can be conducted off the coast only with Moscow's consent. Terms of this consent are what have caused most of the friction.

Russia has divided the fishing regions under her control into a number of "lots."

Each year right to exploit each "lot" is sold at auction and a division and terms have caused endless trouble. Russians accuse Japanese of poaching in their areas. Japanese retaliate with the same charges.

The disputes are endless, but usually louder than they are important.

Another perennial source of Russo-Japanese friction is "red" propaganda. Japan accuses Russia of attempt-

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to help overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil Outdistances 5 rival Oils, showing the motor protection and long mileage it will give you in everyday driving!

CONOCO arranged this unusual test of oil values so that you could fairly weigh and accept these fully supported claims of New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. The test was held at the Indianapolis Speedway under the supervision of the Contest Board, American Automobile Association. Six brand new stock cars were broken in and six brands of well-known, advertised oils—among them the New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Oil—were officially sealed in the motor of each identical car—five quarts in the final fill and no more oil added.

The real test to determine superiority began—the cars were driven until their motors failed! Here was a real fight to a finish, without fear or favor!

Around and around the track they went, driven at an average of 500 miles a day at 50 miles an hour, the AAA Contest Board noting every detail. Read these official results—facts to support every claim that Conoco makes!

Oil No. 4 gave out and the motor crashed at only 1713.2 miles; Oil No. 6 failed at 1764.4 miles; Oil No. 5 quit at 1815.9 miles. Oil No. 1 lasted another full day with 2266.8 miles to its credit. Oil No. 3, with a motor break-up that echoed around the track, went out at 3318.8 miles.

For more than two days after that lone survivor carried on, lubricated by means of the Hidden Quart abilities of the New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—finally to give out at 4729 miles—42.5% more miles than its nearest competitor—116.88% better than the average of all five competing oils!

You can no longer say you don't KNOW the best oil value—here is undeniable PROOF! Drive into a Red Triangle Station, fill with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, and drive out with full security and satisfaction.

Five quarts of each brand of oil of the same S. A. E. grade from measures checked by the Bureau of Weights and Measures, State of Indiana, were carefully put in the cars by AAA officials.

The official sealing of crankcases after fill of five quarts was put in. No addition of oil was permitted in this "destruction" test.

Warning TO NEW CAR OWNERS

Some car manufacturers are using new types of bearings which will stand greater pressures and temperatures, resulting from increased power and speed. New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil has been exhaustively tested on these new bearings. The results show that it gives them greater protection against damage than many straight mineral oils now on the market.

Protect your new car by using the motor oil you can be sure of.

BOOM IS BEING FELT IN HORSE, MULE MARKET

By BEN B. SCHIEMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 9.—The horse and mule market of the southwest is experiencing its best trade in several years and the future promises to be profitable, optimistic dealers said today.

Demand for the hoofed animals has rapidly increased, and recently the supply has been insufficient to meet trade requirements. The strength was attributed to decreased stocks in the district and increased demands from the east and foreign countries.

Shipments from the local market, the second largest in the world and exceeded only by St. Louis in the same state, have been 25 per cent greater than a year ago, which was the best since 1928. This year should surpass the good shipments of 1933 by at least 10,000 head.

Conservative observers say the trade will continue at its present good pace for two more years.

Higher Prices
"With prices $10 to $25 a head higher than a year ago, and prospects for higher quotations, the dealer and the producer are in line to make good profits," Fred Owen, president of the Kansas City Horse and Mule commission company said.

"Never before in the history of the market is there a more propitious time for farmers to raise horses and mules as now," he added. "The breeder is going into this line more in earnest than heretofore as he risks little in this revived trade. What he does not sell he can use for farm work. The trade should be able to absorb at least 1,000,000 head for future use."

"That figure should be an incentive for breeders to begin large scale operations."

A survey through the southern parts of the district showed farmers going back to breeding and buying jacks and stallions.

The demand for animals from Italy, Spain and Argentina has shown a good improvement. Shipments average around 200 head a month to each country.

Big Asset
A big asset to the trade has been the increased revenue of the south which came from higher prices for cotton and government aid. "This area bought more cotton mules of the 800 to 1200 pound type than ever before. The prices ranged from $75 to $150.

The eastern trade now is at its height. Buyers from New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston and Baltimore are here to make purchases. They were in the market for the heavier draft horse weighing from 1300 to 1700 pounds. This class brought from $65 to $125 a head.

"There has been some demand for the stock from the farmer who has replaced the tractor and other gasoline-run equipment for the four-legged work animal. Eighty per cent of machinery now owned by farmers is mortgaged and it is doubtful when this becomes obsolete that implement companies again will want to carry them on their books.

Consequently, many farmers who do not want to go deeper into debt are going back to the economical work animal.

Associated lines of business, such as the harness and wagon trade, are enjoying a pickup in business. Sales are above a year ago and the prospects for continued increases are bright.

WILL AID CHILDREN
PORTLAND, Me., April 10.—Crippled children will benefit from the will left by J. Putnam Stevens, oldest insurance salesman in Maine and past imperial potentate of the Ancient and Mystic Order of the Shrine. He stated that all medals and gold membership cards given him by various orders be melted for old gold and the diamonds in his imperial potentate's jewel be sold. The money derived from the gold and diamonds was to be used to buy books for the library for the crippled children in the Shrine hospital.

IT'S TIME TO SUMMER-IZE

Only Magnolia Stations and Dealers CAN Summer-ize

HOT weather is almost here! Hot weather, with its faster driving and greater strain on automobile motors. Winter-worn oils and greases need to be changed. Your crankcase oil is probably diluted from frequent cold-weather chocking. Your differential, transmission and chassis must have sturdier, heat-resisting lubricants. Your battery and radiator ought to be checked.

That is why we have created Magnolia "SUMMER-IZE" Service. In one complete check-up, your car is prepared for the hottest weather and you are ready to go where and when you please without worry or fear.

Check the seven points at the left. Notice how thoroughly we go over your car. Remember that "SUMMER-IZE" Service is distinctly a Magnolia Service. Drive in today!
