Search for Four Fugitives Now Centered South of Abilene

OUTLAWS WERE REPORTED AT BRONTE TODAY

ABILENE, June 26 — Officers of a dozen west Texas counties searched south of here today for picking up the apparently hot trail of four outlaws who escaped from the Lubbock jail. They were warned they might be shot if it was not taken care of. Stanton, condemned murderer and leader of the quartet, who boasted he would never be taken alive. A stolen automobile in which Stanton and his companions fled from Lubbock Sunday was found in creek near Bradshaw, 25 miles south of here. The car had been used. Officers believed the fugitives were traveling in a Chevrolet coach as last night from H. G. Ashley, Norton, Runnels county. It was reported the desperadoes were seen in Stanton's car early today at Bronte, Runnels county, former home of one of the fugitives, Andrew H. Nelson. Bronte night watchman said he recognized Nelson in the car. The trail was lost after the fugitives left Bronte. Officers from Runnels, Coleman, Runnels and Lubbock counties formed the posse for the outlaws.

DEMANDS FOR LEGISLATION TAKING SHAPE

AUSTIN, June 26 — State officials already are scribbling notes on legislative state, months in advance of the next session of a Texas legislature. Whether the state will be picked by the 44th legislature, meeting next year, or by the "fighting 43rd" legislature which may have a third annual session in September, is immaterial.

ELEVEN HELD IN SLAYING OF 3 ROAD WORKERS

MCLESTER, Okla., June 26 — Eleven persons were under arrest today as Pittsburgh county authorities sought a solution to the slaying of three highway workers from Canadian. A bootleg liquor quarrel was thought a possible cause of the killings. Six men were taken into custody last night. Five others, including two women, had been arrested immediately after discovery of the body of Homer Beasley in a wooded section west of Canadian. Later the bodies of Bill Gann and Hobart Watkins were found. A hurriedly scrawled note on the back of a political campaign card, found near the body of Beasley, appeared to have been written by Gann. "Jac Rackley, Bill Moore and George Baker killed Hobart and Homer and maybe me," it read. Rackley, Moore and Baker were among the group under arrest. Beasley and Gann had been shot. Watkins had been hacked and stabbed with an ax and a knife.

Forged Furlough Is Detected at Prison

AUSTIN, June 26 — A forged furlough sent to the state prison on a holiday failed to release W. C. Neal who has served four and a half years of a 12-year forgery sentence given him in Harris county, it was revealed here today. The names of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, the secretary of the governor and the secretary of state all were forged to the furlough. A keen eye in the prison office apparently detected something wrong with the furlough. A telephone message to Austin brought the disclosure that no such furlough had been issued.

Boy Calmly Admits Drowning Girl

With hardly a trace of emotion, Floyd Ranker, Jr., 9-year-old Cleveland, O., boy, admitted to police that he lured 8-year-old Peggy Young, above, to the Cuyahoga river and pushed her in to drown, hurling rocks at her as she came to the surface. He said he was afraid that Peggy would tell her mother he had mistreated her. Floyd also confessed, police say, that he pushed a 6-year-old boy into the river to drown in May, 1933, though he denied his guilt at that time. The boy will face a thorough psychiatric examination and charges of murder may be filed against him.

Encampment Begins Here Auspiciously

The fifth annual intermediate encampment for the Fort Worth presidency of the Presbyterian church opened last night at Lake Cisco with a total enrollment of 70 boys and girls. Seventy-five had registered, and arrival of seven or eight more is expected today or tomorrow. The camp is the largest attended of any previously held. "The program started off in a splendid fashion," said the Rev. M. H. Applewhite, director, "and we are mightily well pleased with the results. Everything is running smoothly." Last night the group organized into tribes—two of girls, "Comanches" and "Wo-ho-los," and two of boys, "Tejas" and "Blackfeet," each led by a counselor who is a leader in the young people's encampment at Kerville, Texas. Classes occupied the morning period, and this afternoon the young campers will engage in inter-tribal sports. The camp will close Saturday morning with breakfast. NRA REFUSES TO YIELD TO HOSIERY MILL

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—The National Recovery administration refused to yield in its controversy with the Harriman hosiery mill, Tenn., today and made clear that despite shutdown of the plant it did not intend to restore the Blue Eagle to the firm until NRA requirements are met.

PLANT IS CLOSED DOWN

HARRIMAN, Tenn., June 26.—The Harriman Hosiery Mill struck a dramatic crescendo in its long controversy with the NRA today by ordering the closing of its plant because of the "persecution" of General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator. "Action of Gen. Johnson and the NRA has convinced us that they intend to wreck this concern and make its operation impossible," the company's notice of losing to employees said.

ARMORED CARS DEFY STRIKE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 26.—Armored street cars and buses rumbled over Milwaukee's streets on normal schedules and without appreciably diminished patronage today in the face of a strike of 1,400 operators and electricians. The strike was called at 4:30 a. m. while members of the regional labor board and a committee of industrial leaders urged executives of the Milwaukee Electric company to concede from a stand which caused recall of its NRA Blue Eagle two weeks ago. Union leaders, exhorting their followers to refrain from violence, asserted that the walkout of electricians would force a shutdown of the city's electrical plants within 12 hours.

ADDRESS WILL BE REVIEW OF STEWARDSHIP

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26 — President Roosevelt will make a 20 minute radio talk Thursday evening in which he will give a general review of his stewardship of the government, it was learned at the White House today. His speech, which will be broadcast over both major radio networks, will be a general and final review of events in the government prior to his departure for Hawaii. He is scheduled to begin speaking at 9:30 p. m. EST. (8:30 p. m. CST). Thursday's speech is expected to be the last major address by the president before he returns to the west coast. On his eastward cross-country trip, several speeches are scheduled but none of these will have any political significance, the White House said. The president let it be known that he intends to take no part in the election campaign which will be gathering momentum about the time he returns to the United States. The president returned to Washington today to find his desk piled high with approximately 200 bills passed by congress just before its adjournment, on which he must act before leaving the United States. He has taken no action as yet on the major bills, including the farm moratorium bill, the railroad pension bill, and others of importance. He expects to act on all bills before Thursday night.

PROGRESS UPON B. AND L. ASS'N HERE REPORTED

Satisfactory progress is being made in securing subscription for shares in the proposed Cisco Federal Savings and Loan association, the committee in charge said. Shares have a par value of $100 each and may be purchased outright for cash or they may be bought on the monthly payment plan. No interest is charged on deferred payments, dividends are earned by the amounts standing to the credit of the shareholders. A newly enacted law requires that all Federal Savings and Loan association must become members of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation an instrumentality of the government which insures the investment in these associations up to $5,000 just as bank deposits are now insured. The requirements for charter in a town the size of Cisco are not less than 30 subscribers, $25,000 total subscribed capital or more and not less than $2,500 in cash to be paid in upon receipt of charter which will not be sooner than 30 days after the petition is sent to Washington. More than 30 federal savings and loan associations have been organized in Texas according to C. Gordon Jones who is the government representative assisting the committee. He reported that Leopoldas, where organization is in progress, secured 44 subscribers for more than $5,000 in cash. They hope to greatly increase these amounts by the time their charter is approved. The organization committee is composed of Charles J. Kleiner, J. T. Berry, T. Hunter Foley, W. W. Wallace and Miss Lucille Self.

Mixed Tendencies Shown by Cement

AUSTIN, June 26 — The Portland cement industry in Texas during May showed mixed tendencies, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. The United States Bureau of Mines reported production of 276,000 barrels, 161 per cent below April and 10.8 per cent below May, 1933. Shipments, however, totaled 356,000 barrels, 12.7 per cent above April and 11.3 per cent higher than in May last year. Stocks of 557,000 barrels represent a decline of 9.7 per cent from April and 17.8 per cent from May a year ago. United States production, 8,554,000 barrels was 31 per cent above April and 37 per cent above May last year. Shipments of 8,731,000 barrels were 34 and 30 per cent more than for the respective two periods, while stocks of 21,345,000 barrels were 1 per cent below April but 61 per cent above May last year. Percentage of rate capacity operated in the United States was 38 per cent against 30 per cent in April and 27 per cent in May, 1933.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Andrew Sciaccia, wealthy owner of a North Side restaurant, was kidnaped today by six gunmen while his three children helplessly watched. A cryptic telephone call to his home immediately after he was seized indicated that he was held for ransom. Sciaccia was driving an automobile into a garage at the rear of his home, with his 17 to 22 year old children looking on, when a large car hurtled into the driveway. "Six men piled out, shouted, 'We're policemen,' and forced Sciaccia into their car.

G. M. Official Denies Bids on Cars Raised

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26 — Charges that certain automobile companies raised their bids for army truck contracts after the Ford Motor company was barred from government business, were denied today in a letter from a General Motors corporation official to the house military affairs investigating committee. J. B. Woodside, Washington manager of the General Motors Fleet corporation, wrote the committee that orders had been issued by the executive vice president to GMC as soon as it was learned that Ford would no longer be a competitor that no division of the corporation would take advantage of that situation.

TENNESSEE VALLEY PROJECT IS TITANTIC EFFORT TO GIVE EXPRESSION TO DOMINATING SPIRIT OF NEW DEAL

BY DR. ARTHUR E. MORGAN
Chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority
(Written for the United Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 26.—Taken all together, the program of the Tennessee Valley Authority is an effort to give expression to the dominating spirit of the "New Deal," and it cannot be understood apart from that general purpose of the present administration. Before discussing the detailed program of the Authority, it is well, I think, to tell why this program is vital.

A country never is wholly of one mind, but sometimes one mind holds the center of the stage. From 1924 to 1929 our country seemed to be of one mind. We were "on the make." Each person sought to enrich himself by rugged individualism and by enlightened selfishness, largely without regard to society as a whole, and thought he was happy. Millions of people were not happy, but they had little hearing and so the country seemed of one mind. The "Forgotten Man" was very much forgotten.

That program and that prosperity was the basis of our present plight. Our prosperity was not destroyed by subversive propaganda, or by political interference. It was destroyed by its own quality.

Another Mind

Today another mind dominates America. President Roosevelt did not originate that mind. He only has striven to give it clear expression. In the "New Deal" the President is trying to give form and effectiveness to desires that run deep in our national life. It is not enough that each person in each organization shall do those things that are immediately profitable to it. That is the road we were traveling from 1924 to 1929.

General and sustained prosperity can come only from mutual regard for each other's interests, and from the habit of sharing responsibilities and opportunities. That sharing must be with our neighbors of today and with our children of the future. The policy of sharing opportunities and responsibilities is the very essence of this new deal. It must apply throughout the whole range of our social and economic life.

We have heard a great deal in the last few years about social and economic planning. We have heard that term used with reference to a great variety of social undertakings. For instance, there is the great undertaking in Russia. I think we have ceased to make sport of Russia. Much as one must recognize the tremendous drive and enthusiasm that has carried the Russian program over terrific obstacles, I hope that America may be spared a similar experience. It is a regimentation of life that goes beyond the American temperament. Time will also demonstrate that it may produce a certain monotony and that life will be less interesting than where greater freedom and variety of effort and interest are allowed.

Demand of Public Interest

In our own planning we shall find a thousand points where uncontrolled individualism must be subordinated to public interest. Yet in the control of individual initiative we should not go further than the public interest demands. The freedom for each of us to live his life in his own way is too precious an inheritance to lose. The people of the Tennessee Valley region are the most independent and individualistic of all Americans, and they will want to keep that independence wherever it is not destructive of the general good.

Now, to build a new social order, we somehow need to select the good and true things. It must be a matter of elimination, choice, and discrimination. We must keep some elements of the present order. They have been centuries in growing up. We must save certain elements and develop them. Others we must eliminate. When we find that some element is a debasing one, that it is wrecking our social order, ruining man's opportunity for life, we must clear it away and free ourselves of it. In the building of a new social order, there is no grand sweep that we can make to clear the way. It is a continuous process of selection and rebuilding, so that out of this great mass of good, bad, and neutral, we shall little by little select and build an order that will have beauty, permanence and excellence, and that will contribute to human dignity.

Editor's Note

The federal government is re-making the whole fabric of civilization in the Tennessee Valley as an experiment to see whether the average American cannot have a little more happiness and contentment than now is his lot. The face of the earth, itself, is being lifted, vast dams are being constructed, new towns are being built, power lines are being strung for hundreds of miles, farms are being fertilized and factories are being mapped in this most gigantic of all sociological studies. The program has been criticized vigorously. It has been called a Utopian dream. It has been denounced as thwarting private enterprise and ruining private investments. Representative of the administration's attitude toward the multi-million dollar expenditures now being made in the valley is Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, college president, drafted by President Roosevelt to become chairman of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley. Dr. Morgan has outlined the philosophy behind the program and has answered his critics in a series of 14 dispatches, written for the United Press. The first, which follows, outlines Dr. Morgan's conception of the New Deal as it affects human well-being.

Canning Plants to Buzz With Activity

HOUSTON, June 26—Canning plants in Houston and surrounding cities, in addition to more than a dozen moveable or circulating home units, will be buzzing with activity within the next few days.

The plants, operated as a project of the Harris county relief board, will be located in Houston, Coose Creek, Adick, Burbank, Crosby, Hockley and Spring, according to Major J. Perry Moore, administrator for the board.

The plants will be operated on what is known as a "stake" basis in cooperation with the various communities housing the projects Moore said.

The relief program will furnish the equipment, cans and labor and shares on a 55-45 basis with the farmer.

That portion of the canned products accumulated by the relief organization subsequently will be issued to families on a surplus commodity basis, with the exception of the Coose Creek plant, which is under supervision of Mrs. Lela Bruce, former county demonstration agent, and at present secretary of the Tri-Cities welfare league, Moore said.

It is contemplated that some plants will employ between 150 and 200 women, who will be taken from the relief rolls.

Those in charge of the program estimate that between 300,000 and 400,000 cans of vegetables, meats and fruits will be made available for distribution as a result of the canning plants, in addition to the jobs that will be made available and the service it will render those wishing goods canned.

Below are some of the canning problems which Texas farm women have brought to the attention of Miss Lola Blair, food specialist, extension service, A and M college, who in turn offers suggestions in overcoming these difficulties:

1—Why does the water come out of the jars when processed, especially under pressure? (a) Undercooking during pre-heating state. Force product to "soak up" all water it will before packing. (b) Failure to pack product tight enough. (c) Failure to leave about one half inch space at top for air expansion. (d) Opening petcock. (e) Variance of pressure gauge. (f) Rapid boiling (if water bath). (g) Failure to pack or padde out air bubbles.

2—Why do beans and okra turn dark? (a) Pigment in peas or beans. (b) Okra discolors because cut with iron knife or cooked in iron vessel. (c) Okra may darken because it touches iron in can where pin holes in tin expose iron to product. (Note—Use good cans and stainless steel knives.) (d) "Breathers" or cans not sealed quite tight enough to keep out air.

3—Why do products taste as if vinegar had been added? (a) Products had flat sours due to (1) undercooking after processed. (2) standing too long after gathering and before cooling. (3) standing too long after sealing and before going into cooker.

4—What causes products to float? (a) Over sterilization. (b) Dry, lightweight products or spongy products. (c) Failure to pack products tightly. (d) Over-ripe products. (e) Sprup too heavy.

5—Why do beets turn white? (a) Wrong variety. Detroit Dark Red is good. (b) Too old. Use beets one and one fourth inches in diameter. (c) Too great a change in temperature. Put hot water or vinegar on hot beets, and cold on cold.

6—Use of beet too old. (b) Use of hard water. (c) Use of table salt which contains starch. (d) Use of hard water.

7—Why do peas turn cloudy? (a) Insufficient blanching. (b) Improper grading. (c) Mineral in water. (d) Flat sour. (e) Peas too old. (f) Table salt.

8—Why can't I follow time table in magazines and newspapers? (a) Conditions in Texas are different because: (1) storage period, extra long; (2) storage period, very hot; (3) altitude vary, even in different parts of state.

9—What products must be canned under pressure for safety? (a) All non-acid vegetables and meat. (b) Water-bath for fruits, tomatoes, pinto or sweet pepper, and pickled beets only.
