SENATE REJECTS PENALTY REMISSION

Gang Led By Clyde Barrow's Brother Arrested in Dallas

HOPE TO CLEAR UP ROBBERIES

Oct. 30 — A youthful gang of seven men and three women, led by L. S. Barrow, brother of the slain Clyde Barrow, were arrested today.

The gang was expected to clear up at the holdups of recent weeks, questioning the boys.

Barrow, 29, was identified positively by B. Dougherty, proprietor of a store, and two employees as the three who robbed the store last night and exchanged shots with the owner.

Others, 19 and 20, were also identified positively.

Barrow, younger of the two surviving members of Clyde Barrow, is under a five-year suspended sentence for auto theft.

Barrow's arrest probably would mean a long sentence.

Shattering all records of transcontinental rail travel and setting several new speed marks, the catenary-colored, aluminum alloy train of the Union Pacific line, snub-nosed like a bullet, reached New York from Los Angeles in 56 hours and 56 minutes to inaugurate a new era of railroad transportation. The train is shown here on the underground tracks of Grand Central station.

LABOR BOARD STARTS WORK ON DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 — Facing discouragement on every side, the national labor relations board today undertook settlement of the Cleveland chain grocery dispute, which administration leaders viewed as a rapidly growing threat to President Roosevelt's projected industrial truce.

John A. Hartford, head of the Great A and P Tea company, left New York for his conference with the labor board, insisting that talk was futile, that the company's decision to abandon its Cleveland business was final.

From the sidelines, officials of the New Deal saw threats of a nationwide struggle between the Great A and P, largest grocery chain in the world, and union labor.

An added danger was the possibility that, if not settled, the controversy would spread quickly to the other great national chains.

Huey Shows How to Share Wealth

'Come and get it, boys, beloved Senator Huey Long, and here he's shown demonstrating what he means by his "share the wealth" program. Passing out nearly $15,000 in $7 lots, Huey financed trips to Nashville, Tenn., for 1500 Louisiana State students and many others to see the L. S. U.-Vanderbilt football game. As the clamoring throng filed past, Huey handed out the money and accepted "I O Hueys" written on scraps of paper.

HOUSE PASSES COLORADO BILL WITH CHANGES

AUSTIN, Oct. 30 — The Texas senate today rejected a compromise bill to remit penalties and interest on delinquent taxes by a vote of 10 ayes, 12 noes and 4 pairs.

The vote effectively placed a stumbling block in the path of house sponsors of the delinquent tax penalty remission bill. The house last week had accepted the bill by a two-thirds majority.

The bill would have remitted all interest and penalties on delinquent taxes paid by next March 1. The remission would have been mandatory to state counties, cities and districts.

After March 1, remission would have been optional with cities and districts. Delinquent taxes paid before Sept. 30 would have been subject to a two per cent penalty.

Most senators objected to the bill making remission mandatory on cities and school districts for any period of time. It was on this same point that a similar bill hung and died in the final hour of the September special session.

The house today passed finally the senate Colorado river authority bill, but with amendments that threaten another deadlock over it. These include a provision that water rights on the Colorado watershed for municipal and farming purposes shall have precedence over rights for creation of hydro-electric power at a proposed dam.

PROJECTS ARE FORWARDED TO STATE OFFICE

EASTLAND, Oct. 30 — The largest number of work projects ever sent to Austin for approval in one week were forwarded last week to relief headquarters by the county office.

H. E. Driscoll, county administrator, enumerated the projects sent to Austin as follows:

Hatchery projects at Cisco, 42 men to be employed if approved; water supply project at Okra, 14 men; lateral road project from Scranton to Dothan, 15 men; clearing lake Cisco, 62 men; concrete bridge at Rising Star, nine men; straightening, widening and cleaning ditches at Lake Hagaman at Ranger, 209 men; graveling and other work on Ammerman street in Eastland from where paved road leaves off to Lake Eastland, 81 men; sinking a water line on a 790 foot stretch is included in the project.

42 Applications

Forty two applications in the rural rehabilitation program which were at one time sent to Austin and then sent back for revisions have been forwarded to Austin. Time for the rural projects were for one year and not as three, which by recent law is the time.

Other projects enumerated by Driscoll, which have as yet not been sent in, but will be as follows: Lateral road project from Scranton to Dothan, 15 men; leveling and shaping of football field at Rising Star, 10 men. Two other projects for Rising Star are the repairing of two stretches on two bus routes east and west of the after the project is sent to Austin, following changes in the project at the county office.

Driscoll Monday stated that estimates for relief requirement for the month of November were sent to Austin October 25.

EASTLAND, Oct. 30 — Jurors were being selected Monday in the case of State of Texas vs. Glenn Motley, charged with murder in connection with the death of Clarence D. Herring, youth allegedly stabbed while attending a dance in Eastland this year. The case is in the 88th district court.

Jury selection, it is expected will be concluded today, with possibly beginning of testimony.

J. Frank Sparks of Eastland is representing the defendant with District Attorney Grady Owen prosecuting.

TRACE MURDER TO ESCAPE OF J. DILLINGER

CROWN POINT, Ind., Oct. 30 — State investigators today linked three murders here with John Dillinger "wooden gun" escape from the Lake county jail last March 3, the United Press learned today.

The murder claims followed the seizing two officials of the jail here and two others.

Those taken into custody were Lew Baker, jail warden; Ernest Blunk, deputy sheriff; Harvey Keiser, saloon owner; and D. M. Dunn, Keiser's father-in-law.

The slayings, committed in gangland fashion, occurred in Lake county. The victims were put out of the way because they knew too much about the escape which cost Dillinger $1,800 according to evidence claimed by investigators assigned to the case.

COMM'N OKEHS GRAVELLING OF CISCO STREETS

The city commission, in a meeting at the city hall last night, endorsed a CWA project calling for the graveling of 42 blocks of Cisco streets. The plan was to be given official approval by the Austin CWA office before work could begin.

The city, in carrying out its part of the project, would furnish money for certain materials, gravel in particular, and the state relief rolls would furnish labor as provided in the regular CWA program.

The streets to be improved are the following:

E avenue to J avenue on West Second street, J avenue to L avenue on West Third street, J avenue to Front street on West Fifth street, Fifth to Ninth street on M avenue, H an K avenues on West 10th street, Ninth to Eleventh street on J avenue, I to G avenue on West Twelfth street, South Boulevard to D avenue on West Eighteenth street, Fifteenth to Sixteenth street on Railroad avenue, Katy railroad to Texas and Pacific railroad on East Seventh street.

LOTIEF ASKS FOR OPINION OF PEOPLE ON TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Rep. Cecil Lotief today asked people of the 107th district for their views on the Texas Centennial to be held in 1936.

Rep. Lotief, in his statement, from Austin said that, while he favors the Centennial celebration, he does not favor the proposed $5,000,000 appropriation and the taxation which it would, if voted, entail. He is therefore passing the decision back to the people. Following is his letter:

"To the People of Eastland County: "A great deal of interest is being taken by the people of Texas in regard to the Texas Centennial to be held in Dallas during the year 1936, and I am writing this letter in order to get the views of the citizenship of my district as to whether they favor this Centennial. The Centennial Commission is asking for the sum of $5,000,000 and, while I am heartily in favor of celebrating the centennial, I do not feel justified in voting for such a large sum of money. How ever, if the people of my district will instruct me to vote for it, I shall be glad to carry out your wishes, as I have endeavored to do in the past. I feel that I am your servant, and not your master.

The body, accompanied by U. S. Consul Alexander Sloan, the boy's uncle, will be taken to Greenburg today.

U. S. Loses British Support at Parley

LONDON, Oct. 30 — American hope for unequivocal British support against Japanese demands for naval equality today appeared quashed.

British naval delegates made it plain at their meeting yesterday, it was learned, that they opposed Japan's demand for "global" allotment of naval tonnage as the United States.

But both Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Minister Simon, it is known, decidedly lean toward recognition of the principle of Japan's request.

EASTLAND, Oct. 30 — Eastland was selected as the city for the holding of the 1935 interscholastic league county meet by teachers of the county in meeting Saturday at Eastland.

PEACE AGAIN IS SEEN FOR ETEX FIELDS

DALLAS, Oct. 30 — Control of the unruly East Texas oil field today appeared to be an accomplished fact.

With control came apparent stabilization of gasoline prices at levels more than 100 per cent higher than prevailed a week ago.

Reinstatement of the distress purchase plan by the planning and coordination committee at Washington expected momentarily, apparently was the only remaining maneuver required to cement the new harmony among producers, refiners and marketers.

MAKE POPPIES

KERRVILLE, Oct. 30 — Patients of the occupational therapy department of the United States veterans hospital here have made more than 125,000 poppies for sale by American Legion posts of Texas on Armistice Day. More than 36,000 poppies have been ordered, Miss Alice Esda, director of the work, said. The veterans are paid for the work.

Cities Quarreling To Welcome Flyer

HONOLULU, Oct. 30 — Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian flyer, found himself in the middle of a hot controversy today between San Francisco and Los Angeles, each seeking to be the first to see the "Lady Southern Cross," on completion of the west-to-east trans-Pacific flight.

The aviator indicated that weather conditions will probably make it necessary for him to fly to Los Angeles and then on to Honolulu, where he rests after their 31,000-mile hop from the Fiji Islands.

Have Fun But Don't Destroy Property

"Have fun on Halloween but don't destroy any property."

That is the message which Police Chief M. L. Perdue today sent to maskers who will parade the streets, yell, foot horns, and generally make whoopee tomorrow night.

The police department is strong for good, clean fun, but hopes it will not be called upon to stop the innocent fun in order to squelch the mischief-making element.

Do We Have Acres of Diamonds

A few days ago we had something to say in these columns about W. J. Leach and his horned frogs. We told that he had arranged to accommodate a friend of his in Chicago by having 500 frogs shipped to him and how this had brought about a repeat order for 700 more which Mr. Leach had been unable to fill on account of the lateness of the season, his returning the money order, etc.

Well, it looked like a little peanut business that might however, have possibilities if properly handled and we took the opportunity to call it to the attention of the Boosters Club, of which we expect much, so that in their enthusiastic desire to uncover new industries for Cisco they might follow the lead out to some thing definitely good in the way of developing our own resources and opportunities. We referred to "Acres of Diamond," a book in which the hero is supposed to have inherited a few acres of poor land and being dissatisfied with his opportunities he starts out into the world to uncover wealth. The hero finally returns to find that rich diamond mines have been discovered on his own poor acres while he has been running about the earth seeking better opportunities.

And so often it is the case that these opportunities are in our own back yard only waiting for some one to uncover them. It has been true in oil. We had it in abundance but the Eastern man uncovered it for us.

Now, to return to the frogs. Mr. Leach has received another letter from this same man, in which he expresses regret that the frogs have, all unknowing of the big publicity and fame that is about to be forced upon them, gone into a sleep of oblivion until next spring, and comes back with an order for one hundred thousand frogs. And this is just one of the many orders he expects to be able to place next spring when the glorious sunshine of Texas has enticed the progeny of "Old Rip," to come forth from his winter abode. One hundred thousand frogs at three cents each is $3,000. And every succeeding order will bear the same ratio. It's possibilities are something to think about.

But perhaps there are hundreds of other possibilities right at our doors that are equally momentous for Cisco in the future. Why not meet and talk about it?

Shall We Have Federal Police?

Success of United States Department of Justice agents in running to earth Charles Floyd, John Dillinger and other desperadoes and in helping to solve numerous kidnappings brings to the fore a question that will not down—namely, the desirability of some kind of federal police.

It is not mere coincidence that the gaining of the upper hand in the war on crime in the United States has followed close upon the swinging into action of federal forces. Old-time outlaws when the West was young knew that it was "bad business to fool with the Federal Gov't." They might rob banks but they learned to respect Uncle Sam's post offices and eventually the mail. Later Alphonse Capone and many of his kind went to prison, not for the many state laws they were reputed to have broken but for neglecting federal income tax returns.

In several ways a federal operative has a better opportunity than a local officer to emulate the tradition of the Northwestern Mounted Police in "getting his man." He has a wider range of effective movement. He does not have to wait upon the cooperation of some distant police department when quarry scuttles across a state line. He can follow where the chase leads and use his knowledge of the fugitive's habits. He does not have to wait on long and uncertain extradition hearings to bring him back to trial. He is out of the reach of corrupt local political influence and of petty jealousies between officials of different localities.

Local cooperation, of course, is important, sometimes even vital. And in a majority of instances the federal service may be of more value simply as a bureau of identification helping alert state and municipal police to do their jobs. Undoubtedly the main body of law enforcement work is and must continue to be local. How to supplement this with a federal service to catch the occasional sensational and swift-jumping offender without undermining the morale of local law enforcement is a serious problem.

But it is one that must be studied and worked out to a practical solution. For some kind of a federal police system is coming as surely as state police systems have come and have justified themselves as additions to the town marshal and the city detective. The very best possible study of the subject is warranted in order to avoid mere duplication and overlapping and to establish real coordination of effort.

MEXICO FOUND LEANING TOWARD SOCIALISM

EDITOR'S NOTE: Huge Nugent Fitzgerald, Staff writer of The Austin American-Statesman and associated newspapers, has just returned from an extended news survey in Mexico. In a series of articles he discusses under the heading "Mexico Today," certain questions in which Texas is vitally interested. These questions are: 1. "The persons running Mexico; 2. How they got the job; 3. Present cross-currents between the United States and Mexico, with special reference to property in Mexico owned by United States citizens; 4. What is planned by the present dominating element in Mexican government for the country. This is the fifth article of the series.

By HUGE N. FITZGERALD
Gen. Plutarco Calles is said to be a many-sided personage. He has loomed largely in the public prints in recent years or since the coming of his winning revolutionary party in the wars and political contests of his country.

What is planned by the president Calles for his country? It would require the scientific as well as supernatural equipment of a magical mind reader to foretell the Calles plan or program, or and for the future of his country. His party—the revolutionary by name—is the only political organization functioning in the activities of Mexico. He has the army behind him and the army counts largely in election years—and at all times. He has the government behind him and a vast horde of official jobholders. He is a practical business man. In the bloody revolutions of recent years the destruction of property and industrial and agricultural organizations was deplorable as well as costly. Many of the sugar plantations and mills and buildings were given over to the torch.

Farmer and Rancher
In Mexico today Gen. Calles is reputed to be the owner and operator of one of the most modern sugar plantations and refineries to be found in the republic. In the federal district not far from the center of the city of Mexico he owns and operates one of the most modern and finest dairy farms or plantations under Mexico's skies. It is complete in every department and detail. It is stocked with large herds of milk cows imported from the United States, with dairy workers and butter makers who were thoroughly trained for the job. He is said to own valuable ranches in other sections of Mexico, to be interested in mining and other industries.

He resides at Cuernavaca where he has a beautiful home and uniformed soldiers are on duty at all times to guard the property and perhaps to protect and defend the general against attacks of personal enemies.

Calles knows his Mexico and he has a memory. He travels by plane and keeps in close touch at all times with his advisors or lieutenants. He is not a publicity hound. He speaks his mind often but he is not voluble or staid. He speaks through others, no doubt. The officers in high places are the makers of laws of the Mexican republic. Calles is held responsible by those who oppose his rule for the anticlerical laws of Mexico, the making of the constitution of Mexico and the legislative program now engaging the attention of the Mexican congress, likewise for the action of the house of deputies in calling upon the outgoing president to expel from Mexico, the archbishops and bishops of the Catholic church who are held responsible for the agitation directed against the proposals to teach socialism in the schools of Mexico.

No Women in Politics
Woman has no official place in the politics or government of Mexico. She has no voice in the making of laws or in the election of the servants of the Mexican people. The women of Spain, Italy, Germany, Soviet Russia, Great Britain, the United States and many other important nations won the ballot in the wake of the victory of the Allies after their soldiers had won the World War, fought to prevent wars in future and to make the world safe for democracy. Take a closeup of the world today and is democracy safe in the world or is the world safe for democracy?

There is a congress grinding in the Mexico of Today. A new president, Cardenas, will be inaugurated in December. He was and is the choice of Calles. Lazaro Cardenas is said to be strongly inclined to a socialist republic. At the University of San Nicholas, the state of Michoacan, where the president-elect resides, socialistic education already has been put in practice, according to the public prints of Mexico—speaking of an announcement made by student groups of that institution.

Eliminate Parasites
Regulations of the new system of instruction specify that "students must consider themselves productive workers"—that they can never belong to the exploiting class that "professionals are also productive workers when competition is eliminated and that the aim of the institution shall be a complete elimination of the parasite class."

During the visit of the writer under Mexican skies the confederation of workers and farmers of the federal district city of Mexico announced approval of radical changes in Art. 3 of the Mexican constitution, "so that socialistic education may be introduced to prepare the people of this country for complete elimination of private property and the building of a socialist society."

This was the sting attached to the proposal adopted: "That so long as private property is not eliminated, the proletariat of Mexico cannot assume power to establish the new order of things."

Calles and many of his followers are men of wealth and identified with large interests in all departments of human endeavor. Let it go at that.

Now as to the changes of Art. 3 of the Mexican constitution made by the house of deputies of Mexican congress, the program of amendments adopted as announced "was necessary for introduction in schools of Mexico or socialistic public instruction and the changes include a demand for complete abrogation of religious teachings as they tend to make it impossible for public instruction to prepare the children for life in a socialist society."

Being a very enterprising merchant, J. J. Collins will now stock and display along with his guns and super-X ammunition nicely painted sticks as reserve weapons for duck, and especially, wild goose hunting. K. H. Pittari and Oscar Clift have demonstrated the effectuality of such weapons. It would seem that five or six shots are just too much ammunition to use up when a good sized stick will do the work. It might be well for Dr. Hale, A. D. Anderson, Charles Kleiner and Alex Spears to take one of these sticks on their annual deer hunt. Even a nervous man can sometimes use a stick.

Presidential Approval

Mexico City newspaper carried the following cryptic comment on the constitutional changes made by the Mexican lawmakers of the house of deputies: "Pres. Lazaro Cardenas has expressed the opinion that socialism education in Mexico is a natural step of the people toward a more organized and better balanced system of society." The same newspaper in commenting on socialistic education in the schools quoted Gen. Calles as having said, "he feels such instruction will be in accord with the will of the Mexican people."

What is planned by the president-dictator for his country, or rather to the answer to the pointed interrogation, may be developed after the reins of government have been passed on to Cardenas in December by his predecessor in the office of president of Mexico Today with Calles the power behind the throne and the congressional lawmakers grinding out the gist to be thrown into the legislative hopper of a people said to be "ambitious for their country to take a prominent place among the proud nations of the earth."

TOOK PILLS FOR 30 YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Mr. Forsythe Endorses ALL-BRAN for Constipation

If you suffer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this voluntary letter:

"After taking pills and tablets for about thirty years for constipation, I started to take your ALL-BRAN three times a day according to directions. Today I can eat cheese, and that is binding, and certainly feel fine."—Mr. Ed. Forsythe, Box 219, Youngstown, N. Y.

Science says ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to further aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using patent medicines—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In serious cases use with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

A TRIBUTE

To MRS. W. B. PATTERSON

Today we bring an offering of flowers, gathered from gardens far and near, and tended by friends and loved ones to whom flowers are symbols and poems. Today we do more than this, for we first magnify God in His servant, and account an eulogy worthless that is not first religious. More eulogy is a waxen flower, that melts in the hand that grasps it; but true eulogy is a living flower, rooted alike in earth and sun.

I cannot but think it was well that our dear friend, Mrs. Patterson was a child of spring, coming among men when the days were fragrant with the odor of spring flowers. Her name might have been Spring or Midsummer. The snow that lay upon her was the snow of blossoms. She came to earth in spring; she went to Heaven before the roses had faded. When she came among men she brought sunshine and music, and made even the desponding feel that a fuller and warmer summer, the "kingdom of Heaven" itself, was at hand. Even so, Father, for it seemed good in Thy sight, and in our sight it is beautiful. To her who always sought with unselfish heart to give strength and love and hope to her companions; to her first to see the virtues and last to see the faults; to her who passed through the martyrdom of motherhood; to her who watched above an infant's couch with tenderest care; to her who guided little erring feet from childhood to womanhood; to her who possessed a quiet, unobtrusive loveliness that won surely upon the affections of those who knew her; to her so warm hearted, loving, calm, serene and quiet; to her so kind and courteous in her demeanor; to all; to her who knew God, who loved God, who served Christ, who grew in grace, in knowledge, and in truth, was pure, gentle, sympathetic—these were the glowing principles which gave this beautiful life its strength and glory.

BIG DAM CHATTER

This column made its first appearance yesterday, after a long absence. If each succeeding appearance causes as much hubbalooboo-raising as the first, this may be a lively place.

Yesterdays column dealt primarily with the sad fact that Eastland is counting on playing a ball game Friday on the old baseball field east of the county capital. Notwithstanding and in spite of this column's remarks, the game will probably be played there.

Whether the column or the local fans discontent had anything to do with stirring Eastland out of its lethargy is not known, but the fact remains that Cisco suburb is stirred.

This morning the chatter and Supt. R. N. Cluck were invited to appear in Eastland for an inspection of the new field on which Eastland fans fondly hope the Lobos and Mavericks will tangle Friday afternoon.

Ciscoans rarely decline an invitation.

The reception committee at Eastland consisted of one traveling salesman and a crew of workmen who paid not the slightest heed to the visitors.

A miracle was taking place. Eastland football had grown to such proportions as to justify a new stadium for the Mavs. At least it justified the building of certain seating arrangements and precautions.

against knot-hole gangs and gate crashers. Gates were being put up for the crashers to crash.

The field, however, which yesterday was characterized as being "as bare as a bald man's head," was still bare, but authorities were profuse with promises that it would be slicked down with hair tonic, or rather water and that it would be soft and downy as Aunt Eppie's feather-bed or a football field.

Still, however, there is no grass growing, and there will be none in time for the game Friday.

If the field is watered enough to dampen the soil to a distance of a couple of feet, it may be in shape to play on by Friday, and if the watering is continued, it may be in shape for later games.

If there is a substitute for a good turf, however, it has not made itself known in this part of the country.

At that, though, the field will be better than what the Mavericks had to play on last year, with dust clouds arising as from a dynamite explosion every time a good tackle was made.

Let it be understood, this column was not trying to get the game taken away from Eastland, but was rather trying to get a place for the boys to play and the fans to sit during the battle. After all, it is a shorter drive to Eastland than to Breckenridge or Ranger, the logical places for such a game to be played.

The fences will probably hold back the curious, with the aid of a few cops.

Workmen are busy now trying to get stands up on both sides of the field. One side will probably be reserved for Cisco fans and the other for what Eastland will contribute to the crowd. Very likely they will be adequate, as will the fenced-off parking space.

The only drawback now appears to be the fact that there is no grass at present, and that the park is in a bad location—if it ever rains.

All in all, Eastland is to be congratulated on the interest it has finally shown in giving the Mavericks a new field. This column, for one intends to be there for the opening of the field Friday.

The only suggestion it ventures to offer is that the Eastland builders remember to construct a good press box, covered if you please, with a table big enough and strong enough to hold a 14-pound typewriter and the fans who must grip to the scribes during the game.

"SCRATCHED" BY SNAKE

SCOTT CITY, Kan., Oct. 30 — Howard Wells, 3, toddled out of a tool shed recently and cheerfully informed his father a snake had "scratched" him. Investigation revealed the boy had been bitten by a rattlesnake. He is recovering.

Oh, cruel death! in our anguish we cry, then we look again and see beyond, for death is the teacher of immortality. Never to return! Say of these: "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore, neither shall the sun light on them, and lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Our sainted dead are alive ever more! Death is swallowed up in victory — and Heaven comes to our thought with friendlier familiarity.

This is more than sentiment; it is inspiration. It is strength that can carry the load of life; it is enthusiasm that makes sorrow itself a sacrament. I know that infidelity is a lie. I know it by the life of this sweet wife, mother and friend. I know it because the memory of her queenly life stars every noble and tender emotion that ever flushed my heart. Do I not see her? Do I not know those soft beaming eyes coming with joy above all words? Can I be mistaken as to that voice whose subdued notes has so often enchanted and repaid my attention?

And so I have a word for the

Bollworm Quarantine In Texas Amended

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 — Acting Secretary of Agriculture W. R. Gregg announced today an amendment to the pink bollworm quarantine regulations, effective October 31, 1934. The amendment increases the area under regulation by adding Dixie, Hamilton, Lafayette, Levy, and Taylor counties in Florida, as well as Andrews, Ector, and part of Midland county, Texas.

The Florida counties are brought under regulation at this time because of the recent finding of a light infestation of pink bollworm in Hamilton and Levy counties, Lafayette, Taylor, and Dixie counties have their cotton ginned in the nearby counties where infestation has been found.

The counties in Texas are added as a result of the discovery of a few pink bollworms in part of Midland county, as well as in Ector and Andrews counties.

In addition to the counties added to the regulated areas at this time, this insect is known to occur in southern New Mexico, western Texas, and southeastern Arizona. Nine additional counties of north-central Florida and parts of three counties of southern Georgia are also under regulation.

The pink bollworm is a serious pest of cotton in other parts of the world, but with the exception of these very light infestations—where an eradication program is in progress—it is not known to occur in the main cotton belt of the United States east of the extreme western part of Texas.

HOW THEY DO IT

Some people wonder how some men manage to keep their suits always looking so clean, neat and new-looking. The secret is in giving the work to Tullus Bros. Dry Cleaners, who have mastered the art of cleaning suits, garments, fabrics, etc.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY
When CHARLES BORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher, employs SNEYD GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder. Borden had been investigating the affairs of FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, following the arrest of an impostor claiming to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl named HARRY HANCOCK.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII

GRIFF read the letter slowly. Then he said, "That's Cathay's signature all right. At any rate it looks like it."

"Certainly," Fancher replied. "The letter came through the mail in response to one I sent to Mr. Cathay."

"Have you the envelope?" Griff asked.

The inventor handed him the envelope. Griff regarded it thoughtfully.

"I wonder," he said, "if I might keep this letter and the envelope for a few days—just long enough to have photographs made? I'll return them to you."

Fancher's face showed surprise. "Perhaps," Griff told him, "you haven't heard but Mr. Cathay died late Friday afternoon."

"Good heavens!" Fancher exclaimed.

Griff nodded. "Now," he went on, "would you mind telling me exactly what happened? You can see that it's important."

"Why, there was nothing happened," Fancher said, "except that Mr. Cathay didn't keep his appointment. I was very much put out about it."

"Did you," asked Griff, "telephone him about it or get in touch with him in any way?"

"Certainly not," Fancher remarked. "The appointment was definite enough. When Mr. Cathay didn't keep it and didn't make any effort to communicate with me, I considered that I had been insulted enough. I returned to my place here in Millvale and decided that Mr. Cathay, for all of his money, wasn't a particularly good business man. I think a good business man keeps his appointments, don't you?"

"He was registered in the hotel," Griff said.

"Certainly he was registered. I saw him earlier in the evening," Griff said.

GRIFF snapped to attention. "Oh, you did?" he asked.

"Yes," I saw him and there was a young woman with him. They were . . . they were drinking."

"Where did you see them?" Griff asked.

"How did you know who he was?"

"I saw that he was registered in the hotel and I asked one of the bell boys if he knew Mr. Cathay. He said that he had taken him to his room and that he thought Mr. Cathay was in the dining room. He pointed him out to me."

"Could you describe his appearance?"

"He was a big man, about 47, I guess, and the girl with him was more than 20 years younger. She was a brunet."

"Can you describe Cathay any better than that?"

"Who no. That's the best description I can give you of him. I'd know him probably if I saw him again."

"That was the first time you've seen him?"

"Yes."

"But you made no effort to speak with him?"

"Certainly not. My appointment wasn't until 10 o'clock. I didn't wish to intrude. I gathered that Mr. Cathay had other business."

"I see. So you continued to wait in the lobby?"

"Yes. I had a room there at the hotel and I waited in the lobby. At 10 o'clock Mr. Cathay didn't appear. I called his room. He didn't answer. I had him paged. There was no answer. I had him paged at intervals for more than an hour, until almost midnight. I guess. Then I got disgusted."

"Did you read The Blade on Tuesday morning?" Griff asked.

"Yes, I read that he had been arrested, and then I read afterwards that it wasn't so. But that wasn't a hitch-hiker that was with him. That was the young woman who had dinner with him. They seemed to know each other quite well."

"HAVE you," asked Griff, "any idea whether the woman was registered at the hotel or not? Did you notice whether she had street clothes that she checked at the entrance to the hotel dining room?"

"I don't think she had street clothes," Fancher said. "You mean a coat and hat—things like that?"

"Yes."

"No, I don't think she had them. I remember they came out of the dining room while I was standing in the lobby. They walked to the elevators."

"They both went up?"

"Both went up."

"Did you see them come out again?"
