FDR PLANS TO STOP PROFIT ON WAR

About Our Friends

By STEPHEN A. LONG

McCormick and W. E. have created a lovely window for the Community Natural rooms. Mr. McCormick, of New York City, picked cotton last night in order to give a frozen appearance to the window. The appearance being decorated. A Greek painter who had such lifelike grapes on his that the birds came and ate them, has nothing on window decorators. As they achieved the last touches to the hallucination Monday and peered in at the window, they were answered dismally, and went away.

But as is often the case, it follows on the heels of unsuccessful. Just as red head McCormick was congratulating E. De L. Graham comes and cold-bloodedly, as all fine are said to be, points out they had built the "cold" of the wrong appearance. They then up the Roper gas range of the Electrolux. Mrs. D. driving along. Mrs. Brice, A. C. Green shopping. B. S. Huey shopping. J. S. trying to keep the radiator from freezing. Mrs. C. P. down town. E. C. Duncan, says women cause lots of trouble. Must have a wonderful just now finding out that fact. Gordon Tomlinson driving along the pipe lighted. Lots of good in a pipe. Guy Dabney, a friend on business. Giles says everything is going all right now that the and Christmas trees are up. Everything seems to be in place for Santa Claus Saturday arrives. And won't those who enjoy the candy he is going to distribute as he marches up and down the street!

MED CHORUS IN 2 CONCERTS HERE MONDAY

World-famous Slaviansky choruses, touring the United States, will give two concerts here Monday under the auspices of the Lobo band and high school club. The appearances, both at the high school auditorium, will continue and an evening concert.

Victor G. W. Collum of the band Miss Ella Andres, chorale conductor, have expressed the belief they are fortunate in being to bring the noted singers to Cisco.

The chorus is one of the oldest organizations in the world. Its first organized 75 years ago in Russia and has visited practically every country in the world under the direction of Dmitry Slaviansky, director, and his daughter, Mme. Agreva Slaviansky, pianist.

The programs are very versatile. Collum of the Cisco band with fiery characteristic Russian Gypsy dancing in addition to singing. The chorus appeared several years ago. It is said to date back to the high school concert patron.

The accompanist and one of the chorists is Mile Mar Slaviansky, father of the conductor.

Modern Quixote Is Mail Box Fighter

AUSTIN, Dec. 12 — A modern Quixote in this vicinity tilts with windmills but with rural mail boxes.

Residents along the Bluff Springs highway reported to the sheriff's office that a lone motor-drove along the road and deliberately ran his car into each of the mailboxes he encountered. The sheriff's office reported that he had scored victories over the mail boxes.

Violence Is Feared After Oklahoma Killing

THREE YOUTHS GUARDED; TWO ARE IN HIDING

TULSA, Dec. 12 — Terror stalked in the homes of the rich here today with at least three youths under guard and others moving cautiously and in the company of friends. Violence, threats and vague rumors in the wake of the slaying of John Gorrell, Jr., dental student, were the cause.

Homer Wilcox, 17, Jack Snowden, 17, and Pres. Co-brane, 21, were given guards at the request of Dixie Gilmore, assistant prosecuting attorney.

"I had a talk with Philip Kenamer yesterday afternoon and he told me to keep a watch over these three," Gilmore said. He seemed to be afraid they were in danger, so I've ordered a guard for them."

Kenamer, 19, is in jail charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Gorrell. He has confessed the shooting. The boys are likely state witnesses.

Fiance Warned

Miss Betty Watson, 19, fiancee of Kenamer and a student of the University of Oklahoma, said she had been "warned" to be careful. She did not say from whom the warning came.

"I'm staying close to my sorority house and I'm not going out at night," she said. "When I go about the campus, I always have someone with me."

Another student, Charles Bard, 19, who double-dated with Gorrell the night he was slain, withdrew temporarily from classes at Oklahoma A. and M. college at Stillwater yesterday. He asked county authorities for protection and for two days by a campus policeman accompanied him.

Ted Bath and Robert Thomas, two more witnesses, are in hiding. Bath told police Sunday he was leaving Tulsa because he feared violence. Thomas on the same day asked permission to carry a gun.

Senators Resume Inquiry Into Munitions Deals

New and startling revelations were expected as the Senate Munitions Industry Inquiry resumed its hearings at Washington, D. C. Left to right are the committeemen and their aids: Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Warren Barbour, Gerald P. Nye, chairman; Alger Hiss, investigator; Senator Bennett Champ Clark; Stephen Rauschenbush, committee counsel, and Senator James F. Pope.

Long Search for Lindbergh Baby Kidnaper Began With Finding of Queerly Worded Note and Ladder

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second of a series of 12 dispatches by Sidney B. Whipple dealing with the "Crime of the Century"—the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. It pictures the early confusion, the frantic activity at Hopewell, that followed swiftly upon the announcement that the Lindbergh child had been stolen from his crib.

On the morning of March 2, 1932, the white-washed garage that formed one wing of the Lindberghs' home in the Sourdough foothills became the field headquarters for a regiment of police officials.

Dirt roads leading to the estate alive with another army of unofficial investigators and morbidly curious citizens who spread, fanwise, through the desolate territory and up the sodden slopes of the mountains, in eager attempts to discover clues to the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

CHARITY FUND TO GET BOOST ON THURSDAY

Two Cisco organizations have planned entertainments for the raising of funds for charity tomorrow. The Elks club is sponsoring its annual theater party and the Lady Lions are giving a carnival.

The Elks club each year has had a movie and vaudeville at a local theater, using the proceeds to buy Christmas baskets.

This year the organization has secured the Palace theater, through the courtesy of the local management, and is planning a vaudeville in addition to an all-cast picture. The Elks will have charge of the tickets sales.

The tickets will be good throughout the day, it has been announced.

The Lady Lions are planning to have their carnival at the Country club at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

Little has been made public concerning the entertainment features of the carnival, the women of the club preferring to keep it a secret until the carnival starts.

The drive for food, clothes, shoes, canned goods, and toys was to continue through the week at the United Charities and Welfare association.

THINK YOUTH IN EXTORTION IS IN ARIZONA

EASTLAND, Dec. 12 — Another youth, who, with Edward Mackall of Eastland is charged in a plot to extort money from Mrs. C. U. Connelley on June 17, today was believed to be in Arizona, federal authorities said. Mackall made bond at Abilene today.

Mrs. Connelley received a threatening note demanding money on June 17, which she turned over to the department of justice agents at Fort Worth. On June 18 a newspaper roll was "planted" on Connelley field.

When two youths came to get what was supposed to be the money officers hidden nearby fired and the two fled.

U. S. Inspector McCormick was at Eastland today investigating the case.

Mackall formerly was a player on the Eastland high school and Ranger Junior college football teams, it was said.

KNOWN DEATH TOLL IN FIRE RISES TODAY

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 21 — The known death toll of the Hotel Kerns fire rose slowly today as firemen and police officers probed the still smoking ruins.

Twelve of the victims died leaping into the street before the hotel or into the river behind it when the fire trapped them in their rooms early yesterday morning. They may be the only ones whose bodies can be positively identified.

Early today the searchers ventured a few feet into the smoking ashes and debris and found the charred bones of another victim.

When the heat became too intense, they brought in a machine to pull the wreckage out to cool. Within a short time they found four more bodies, making a total of 17.

Estimates of the number missing varied greatly from 25 to 75 because the hotel register was burned and there was no one who could say positively how many had been in the hotel.

Judge Woodward Is Dead At Coleman

COLEMAN, Dec. 12 — Judge J. O. Woodward, 79, West Texas jurist and former chairman of the board of pardons and paroles died at his home here today after a long illness.

Judge Woodward was the father of State Senator Walter Woodward. He resigned from the chairmanship of the pardons and parole board last January. For several months he has been confined to his bed.

Funeral services will be held here tomorrow at 2 p. m.

WAGGONER IS DEAD AT HOME IN FORT WORTH

FORT WORTH, Dec. 12 — Funeral services for W. T. Waggoner, 82 year old monarch of Texas greatest cattle and oil fortune, who died at his home here last night, will be held at Oakwood cemetery here tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

The body will lie in state this afternoon and tomorrow morning. Death came quietly to the man whose first interest was the range and its riders. He never regained consciousness from a stroke suffered Sunday evening.

Dr. Hodges McKnight, who attended Mr. Waggoner during his last years said pneumonia developed 12 hours before his death.

"He died quietly as he had lived," Dr. McKnight said.

Mr. Waggoner, reputedly the wealthiest citizen of Texas, died.

Marked For Kidnap In Oklahoma Plot

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 — President called a conference today to map out a legislative program designed to take the profit out of war. Cabinet officers and General Huger S. Johnson were summoned by the chief executive for the meeting to prepare the program which he characterized as one of the most important to be presented to congress.

"The time has come to take the profit out of war," Mr. Roosevelt bluntly remarked as he outlined at his press conference plans for one of the broadest programs he has yet embarked upon.

The president made it clear that everyone knows what munitions profits and other profits have been and that the world is especially alive to the financial gains of those in the first category.

He explained the hearing conducted by the special committee of Sen. Gerald Nye, R., N. D., into munitions profit had made the nation conscious of the subject and said he believed the time opportune for legislation, in view of the fact that there are no war clouds on the horizon.

Mr. Roosevelt said the program would cover a wide range not merely of the profit side but from the economic side as well, keeping in mind bitter lessons learned in the last war.

MEETING FOR LEGISLATIVE PLAN CALLED

FIRE TRUCK TO MEET SANTA ON HIGHWAY HERE

Old Santa Claus will ride little Cisco on a fire truck Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Lobo band marching in front of him, strewn candy as he passes along the street.

Heading south from his home at the north pole, the bewhiskered old gentleman will strike the Bankhead highway somewhere west of Cisco. There he will abandon his sleigh and change to the more modern method of travel.

The Cisco fire department has indicated its willingness to cooperate to make Santa's visit pleasant for both the good saint and the boys and girls of Cisco. The truck will be waiting on the highway to meet him and bring him to town. And, lest gangsters should attempt to kidnap him, there will be a body-guard of husky firemen along to escort him.

And this is for the kiddies — it's not exactly a secret, but it's been rumored that Santa is going to give away so much candy Saturday that, even if he throws it out with both hands, he will need two firemen to help him. Some of the Cisco merchants have reported that there will be 300 pounds of candy in his pack Saturday — and that won't be touching the supply he's saving for Christmas.

Sightseeing Trip

When Santa arrives at Cisco he will be taken for a sightseeing trip over the city, only the kiddies will probably do most of the sightseeing. Then he will come back to the Laguna corner at Fourth street and D avenue, where the Lobo band will meet him and the fire truck and the parade will proceed through the business district.

Cisco boys and girls who line up along D avenue at 2 o'clock Saturday will have an opportunity to see the jolly fellow get a friendly wave of the hand and a nasty greeting, and a part of the candy he is showing on his young friends.

Santa Claus is coming to see the children and as a courtesy to the Cisco merchants, the Santa Claus committee is composed of Herman Wood and Mitt Williams.

After his brief visit, he will return home to complete final preparations for his flying trip over the earth to the homes of good children on Christmas Eve.

Four Refused New Trials For Murder

AUSTIN, Dec. 12 — Rehearing in four murder cases, in three of which death penalties had been assessed, were refused today by the court of criminal appeals.

Three men facing death in the electric chair because of the court's refusal were Leonard Burns of Bowie county, Johnnie Dade of Brazoria county, and C. B. Dobbins of Harris county. Dobbins was convicted in the murder of Ed Enderli in Harris county Jan. 23, 1934.

TEMPERATURE RECORDS FALL IN COLD WAVE

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 — Temperature records of 80 years standing fell today before a cold wave over eastern United States which threatened crops in the extremities of the tropical everglades and took an incalculable toll of life west of the Mississippi.

The midwest gained succor from the blizzard for two weeks but a weather bureau bulletin warned of a new blanket of cold air sweeping eastward from the northern Rocky mountains.

Storms over the north Atlantic delayed shipping and kept airplanes alive with calls of small vessels for aid and directions.

New York City opened its armories to thousands of homeless men and women and announced its intention to open stations where office and doughnuts would be served.

Residents of the eastern gulf states out their forgotten overcoats from the mothballs as snow rose in from the north on a 30-mile wind. Miami Fla. temperature dropped one degree below freezing. Snow was reported at Tampa for the third time in 40 years and the first time since 1906.

The snow was general over the Carolinas, Virginia, northern Alabama, northern Georgia and eastern Tennessee.

ORIENT TO GET HERRING VANCOUVER, B. C. Dec. 12

British Columbia expects to ship 25,000 tons of salt herring to the Orient during the 1934-35 season. The shipment, approximately the same as last season's is expected to bring in a return of $750,000.

CISCO STUDENT EDITOR OF ACC 1934 YEARBOOK

ABILENE, Dec. 12 — With more pictures taken than any annual in history of Abilene Christian college, Picky Pear staff has completed preliminary organization of the book and announced the complete staff.

Bert Ezzell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Ezzell of Cisco, is editor-in-chief of the staff. He was elected last spring by the senior class of Abilene Christian college to head the 1935 book. Ezzell is a senior in the college and a member of the varsity football team. The "A" honor club for men, "C" club, president of the Trojans social club for men, and member of the dramatic club.

There are 442 individual prints already completed and ready for the engraver, and many of the class, club and group panels. Paramount studios, Abilene, are the official photographers and Stafford Engraving company, Fort Worth, is doing the engraving.

Most of the staff is made up of seniors except the associate editors and a few other underclassmen who will continue book publishing later.

Landon Hill, Abilene, and Homer Utley, Topeka, Kansas, are associate editors. Ralph Arceneaux, Fort Worth, is the business manager and is assisted by Paul Comoll, Del Rio. Other members of the staff are Batsell Baxter, Jr., Martin B. Pruitt, Cleddie Pruitt, Lucille Holmes, Blanche Banowsky, June Austin, Bryan McKingle, and Burden Carr, Abilene; Audie Bacon, Lawton, Okla.; Betty Jane Koller, Wichita Falls, Texas; Homer Jordan, San Angelo, Texas; James Stages, Mitchellville, Tenn.; and Carl Landis, Kansas City, Mo.

Commission Passes Clean-Up Measure

City commissioners, in a regular meeting Tuesday night, passed a resolution giving their moral support to a "clean-up" campaign asked by Dr. H. Seale and B. A. Butler representing the Cisco Boosters. The campaign was aimed at bringing billboard advertising of the city up to date.

The commission also voted to accept payment without penalty of all delinquent city taxes.

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 12 — During 10 months of 1934, 102 Idahoans were killed in automobile wrecks, 21 more than during the same period of 1933.

WHITE BUCK KILLED

BINGHAM, Me., Dec. 12 — A 100-pound white spike-horned buck deer was killed by Preston Drake. It has been believed to be the first ever killed in this territory.

Recovery Teamwork Continues

As business organizations throughout the country continue to display their willingness to team with the government in the work of recovery, the results that can be achieved through cooperative effort become more and more evident. The fact that the task is one of joint responsibility between business men and the government, if results are to be effective in the campaign against the depression, is now everywhere recognized.

The necessity for cooperation was epitomized by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who, in an appeal for a united effort to bring back good times, declared that responsibility rests not only upon business but is "shared alike by business, finance, agriculture, labor, government, and other component elements of the national economic structure."

"Business is looking realistically at the practical aspects of recovery," Mr. Harriman added.
And a survey of business over the past month reveals happily that practical results are being achieved through the spirit of cooperation. Here are some of the trends that herald better times:

Reestablishment of business confidence as reflected in the largest demand for ready money in many months.
Increase of 2.2 per cent in bank clearings over a year ago.

Sizable upturn in corporation dividends, with many extra payments featured in November besides regular and resumed disbursements.

Steady rise in retail sales, with prospects bright for the last Christmas trade the country has known in 5 years.

Reports from leading motion-picture houses indicating that 1934 earnings will be the largest in several years.

Increased volume of industrial production and factory employment in October.

Steady increase through 3 consecutive months of exports to the highest level since April 1931, with the highest favorable trade balance in 4 years.

Increase of $3,581,017 in the steel industry's pay roll for October, a gain of more than 12 per cent over the pay roll for September.

The Things Men Do

Names and deeds are prominent in the newspapers for a day. A man unknown may commit a hideous crime and be talked about for a day or a week because of it. There are people who resent this kind of transient notoriety as an insult to the public.

Intelligent people soon learn to classify between news of real value and that which appeals to lovers of scandal and crime. Every established newspaper has its policy in handling all such events. In some they are magnified. In others they are minimized and given bare mention, in order that their columns may be unstained and given over to better things. A man may always make his selection.

Much that is printed in the newspapers should never get into respectable families. There is usually a clean paper in every city. But no matter what papers a man buys, he does not have to read the details of every vicious event in the news. He will be better off not to read them, nor to talk about them. But as a rule, exciting news is neither wholesome nor instructive. It is a good day when neither crime nor scandal is in the paper.

Life on Other Planets

Mt. Wilson Observatory says through Dr. Gustaf Stromberg that "life as we know it may well exist on numerous other planets." This announcement mitigates the loneliness the human race felt after Mt. Wilson's other discovery that the Martians do not exist because Mars hasn't the oxygen to sustain life. Dr. Stromberg sees a possibility of inhabitants on many planets in the systems of stars in the Milky Way. Some day, soon perhaps, men will know far more about both planets and life. Man does not live by bread alone—Neither is life the slave of oxygen.

Thief Sends Check For Stolen Stock

SALEM, O., Dec. 12 — Jefferson Schawel, 60, has a new faith in human honesty.
An unidentified thief recently broke into his home and stole two stock certificates, each worth 100 shares of Anaconda Copper. Just one week later, Schawel received a letter from the unidentified thief, who, it developed, had a conscience. With the letter was a check for $2,100.
The note told Schawel that the writer had sold the stock to an Akron brokerage firm. But the thief apparently had succumbed finally to his conscience and had sent the check to the owner.

TOLL BRIDGES COLLECT FROM KING GEORGE

LONDON, Dec. 12 — Even King George has to "fork out" like any of his subjects when he wants to cross some of the 37 toll bridges which still exist on main highways of Great Britain.
Plans for doing away with the tolls on these bridges, some of which have existed for centuries, have just been announced by Leslie Hore-Belisha, the Minister of Transport. Most of the toll bridges were built under special Acts of Parliament, which granted the owners of the bridges the right to levy tolls. In recent years they have been regarded as an increasing nuisance by motorists in this country.
In addition to the 37 toll bridges on main highways, there are some hundreds of bridges, grade crossings and gates on smaller roads throughout the country, where not only motorists, but even pedestrians, horses and goats have to "sand and deliver" before they are allowed past. The aim of the Ministry of Transport is to buy up as many as possible of these toll bridges and gates from their present owners and free them.
There is still one toll gate surviving in London itself, in the southern suburb of Dulwich. Every time King George passes it he has to pay toll. So does the Lord Mayor of London.
Another famous toll bridge spans the River Arun at the Sussex seaside town of Littlehampton. The bridge was built by the father of the present Duke of Norfolk. The story is always told by the townspeople there that the Duke intended to free the bridge if his first child was a boy. It was a girl, however, and tolls varying from the equivalent of two cents for pedestrians to 35 cents for heavy trucks still are paid.

Large automobiles crossing the Connel ferry bridge in Argyllshire, Scotland, had to pay the equivalent of $5. The city of Bath used to have six toll bridges within its boundaries. These were all made free in 1929.
In the 19th Century there were toll gates about every eight miles along most of the main highways in this country, and many of the old toll houses still survive, though the gates and tolls have been abolished. In Ireland all tolls were abolished by a special Act of Parliament in 1857.

might feel because their fair haired candidates were passed over.
State capital employes are pointing out that economy, like charity, should begin at home as the legislature begins to talk of continued retrenchment in expenses. Expenses of legislative sessions "has grown at a rate more rapid than expenses of most of the state departments.
Prior to 1913, for instance, each senator did not have a private secretary. There was a small staff of stenographers who worked for all. Now the senators have a secretary apiece, a stenographer each and each appoints a page. Twenty years ago the entire senate payroll, including the senators, had less than 100 names.
A group of stenographers upon whom all members call for letter work. The number has increased rapidly. In depression times, however, some of the increase is only apparent. Speaker Coke Stevenson has named many with the understanding that they were to serve only for a part of the session and then make way for some one else. This was done to scatter the employment.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent.
AUSTIN, Dec. 12 — Former Governor James E. Ferguson, batted exactly zero when he attempted to forecast political appointments by Governor — Elect James V. Allred "Wrong," said Allred to the forecast that he would name "an old man Buford" for the state highway commission "Wrong," echoed Claude T. Terrell, chairman of the state board of control to the forecast that he is to take a better federal job and give Allred an early place to fill on the state board.
Other guesses who have had the fortune to put their selections down in black and white may be nearer right. Ray Lee of the Austin American predicted in Allred's presence that he will name Maj. J. R. Barten, former Shreveport oil independence to the Board of Regents of the University of Texas. Parties will be able to take the place in March when he will have completed a year's legal residence in Houston. He is a Texas-Ex. Allred and he are seen together at some of the football games.
Gov. — Elect Allred did not deny the Parties report, though he did not confirm it. He also made comment on the guesses of Raymond Brooks of the same paper that Gerald Mann of Dallas is to be secretary of state. Carl Nesbit of Mineola, adjutant general, and R. K. Walters of Texarkana, casualty insurance commissioner.
An indication that the recent display of good fellowship between Ferguson and Allred may be only skin deep is becoming apparent. Allred is working for the election of R. W. Calvert of Hillsboro as Speaker of the House of Representatives. Ferguson is putting in his bids for reelection of Coke Stevenson of Junction.
That Allred feels some asperity cropped out when he retorted to Ferguson's predictions about appointments.
"He tried to pick my governor for me, too."
Having scored a bullseye on Nur first prediction—R. B. Anderson for State Tax Commissioner—Capitol Dome suggests that an ear be kept open for appointment of Bert King, Wichita Falls lawyer, as member of the state highway commission. This is not a predicted but a possibility. He is geographically right to succeed W. R. Ely of Abilene, who now seems to have no chance of reappointment, and it would let Allred make a hometown gesture. Incidentally, that hometown selection would soften the hurt feelings that other communities

Gov. — Elect Allred is to turn out, sooner on Dec. 15. He is scheduled then to sell the first ten Centennial half dollars, coined for the American Legion to be sold at a premium for their centennial museum project. The sale is scheduled for afternoon 30th e'General" will have time to fly back to Austin from Bowie where he is slated for a birthplace celebration on Dec. 14. General sale of the coins will begin Dec. 20 at $1 each.
After working for more than a week, the state senate tax research committee seemed to waken to the fact that tax legislation must originate in the house of representatives. They invited a group of house members to meet with them.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

By Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Oklahoma

That the worth while citizen who is up and doing all the time receive much criticism.
Any booster who does anything worth while is criticized by somebody—and sometimes by many somebodies.
These somebodies are a bunch of busybodies who always find fault direct their fire in the wrong direction.
The people who don't or can't do anything themselves toward the betterment of the home city always find plenty of time to find fault with the man who does.
There should be no place in any community for hard-heartedness or spite.
Every effort should be made to make the home city a "city of permanent prosperity." It can be done only through cooperation on the part of the progressive citizen.
A city worth living in is worth working for.

Cripple In Chair Saves Train Wreck

GENEVA, O., Dec. 12 — A possible train wreck was averted here by the coolheaded action of a cripple in a wheel chair.
Ray Babcock, the cripple, shortly before midnight, noticed a lumber company's building on the busy tracks of the Nickel Plate railroad, where it had been blown by a high wind.
Babcock manipulated his wheelchair to the home of a neighbor. The neighbor notified L. C. Steel, Nickel Plate agent. The railroad section gang was called out. Then Shade Ashaley, manager of the lumber company plant, called out two men.
The group chopped the building into sections, hauled it off the track with a truck. Fortunately no trains came. The build was 56 feet long, 18 feet wide at one end, six feet wide at the other.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NRA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — A woman will be the next chairman of the National Labor Relations Board — if she wants the job.
The post has been offered informally to Miss Josephine Roche of Denver, famous for the liberal labor policy she established in the coal mines of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company, of which she is president.
Among those in the administration who have urged Miss Roche's appointment is Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. The two women have been friends for many years.
If Miss Roche accepts the invitation to succeed Lloyd Garrison, who has gone back to the University of Wisconsin after a brilliant performance as chairman of NLRB, it will be due to the persuasions of Madam Secretary.
Miss Roche ran for the Democratic nomination for governor of Colorado this year and lost by a few thousand votes to Governor Johnson. She made the strongest showing of any woman who ever contested for such an office without benefit of a dead or living husband in the background.
They got them—and there's boss publicity man and a new publicity policy for NRA.

THE recent A. F. of L. union's announcement of a labor union organization expected to be kept.
The most powerful force in the movement for organization of industrial unions are President L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers and President David Bevin of the International Ladies' Guild. They have the path of President Green of the A. F. of L.
Lewis and Dubinsky have been added to the federal executive board. The question is whether the three can overcome the lethargy and opposing craft union executives who outnumber them on the board.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVII
ANN knew Peter was angry by the look on his face when they arrived at their apartment and found only Paul Johnson there. Every member of the Kendall family was conspicuous by absence.
"Hello, and congratulations to both of you," Paul said. "You're right on schedule."
Peter introduced him to Ann. Paul's eyes rested approvingly on her.
"Got your letter a week ago, Peter. Marcia and I got out that day and found this place. Hope it suits."
"Thanks, Paul. It was awfully good of you and Marcia. And nice of you to be here. The place is fine."
"Marcia and I will be over soon. I'll be getting along now."
Ann suspected that Paul Johnson was relieved to get away, that he was a little embarrassed by the situation.
The apartment he and his wife had selected was in an exclusive neighborhood. Ann and Peter went from room to room.
"Like it?" Peter queried.
"It's so big," Ann said faintly. "So luxurious. I'll never get used to it."
"All right every other way," Peter's eyes, a little anxious, were on her face.
"Perfect. It's only that I'll be lost in all this magnificence. Honestly, Peter, it's like a house. I didn't know they made apartments this big."
There was a large, beautifully furnished living room and sun parlor, a dining room, two guest rooms. On the other side, Peter and Ann's suite. Her room at the small cozy sitting room, done in bright chintz, in between.
"Well," Ann said, when she reached this room. Peter smiled. "Are you tired? Why don't you turn in?"
"After a while. I want to get acquainted with this place before I go to bed."
PETER said, knocking ashes into a cigaret tray. "I don't want you to bother with entertaining me. You're to do exactly as you please, you know."
"Yes, I know."
She went into the kitchen and stood for a moment staring absently about, scarcely seeing the perfect equipment.
"What had Peter meant? Was he being thoughtful, reminding her that she was to be free of wifely compulsions in her plans? Or did it mean that Peter was serving notice now that they were back, that he intended to follow his own life?
She heard the phone ring. Someone was calling who evidently knew of their arrival. She could hear Peter's deep voice answering. Millicent was saying, "Hello, Peter. I've been out of town. Only just heard this minute that you were back."
"Bring the truth?"
"Have I ever used alibis?"
"Sorry, Mil."
"Mother is giving a dinner party for Carol tonight. Of course it was a deliberate slip at Ann. You needn't expect too much of Mother. If you could have seen her feathers flew around the old coop! Cheerful news!"
Peter scowled blackly into the phone. "Well, at least I'm not surprised. You can tell her for me that she can count me out, too—"
"I'll describe your tone of voice which would be better. What's she like—your new wife?"
"Come over and find out."
"Peter hangs up the phone, feeling better. Millicent's friendship or enmity were not to be taken lightly. She could prove a good friend and a bad enemy.
Ann came into the room. She looked tired and sober, he thought. "That was Millicent," Peter said. "She's been out of town on a week-end party. She's coming over now."
"Oh," Ann said. Peter saw her face brighten. Then she had been hurt. Poor kid—she was so young.
Ann was thinking that it was silly to be feeling glad it was Millicent and not Valeria who had been calling Peter.
"SAW in the paper the Peter Kendalls have returned," Mac broke the news to Sarah, who would be "Mrs. Mac" before many moons.
"Imagine telling me!"
"You've talked to her?"
"Yes, she's coming over tomorrow. She is shopping with Millicent. She's going to have some photographs taken. One of the newspapers wants them. Ann didn't know if Peter would like the idea, but he did."
"Good sport," Mac said. "I like that. Telling the gossips to go to hell."
"Can't you hear the 'oh's' and 'ah's'! So this is the girl Peter Kendall married to spite Valeria Bennett!"
Mac laughed. Sarah's mimicry was perfect. "Well, I hope the least thing won't be able to find any fault with her looks."
ANN felt that she was living in a strange and colorful dream. She felt dizzy, confused. Exquisite dresses, gorgeous evening wraps, hats at prices that took her breath away, beautiful accessories. Rich furs, flowing draperies, velvet that felt about a slim model's figure in seductive lines.
Millicent's voice was saying, "The neckline of that gown Yvonne kidnapers' identity had been left behind, inside or within a hundred yards of the Lindbergh home.

From the vacant crib in the nursery, Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf had taken with extreme care lest a finger print be blurred—a penciled demand for $50,000, the price for returning the child to his parents. The note, in blurred and peculiar script, said:

Ransom Note Dear sir: Have 50 000 $ ready 25 000 $ in 20 $ bills 15 000 $ in 10 $ bills and 10 000 $ in 5 $ bills after 2-4 days we will inform you were to deliver the money.

Then followed a "signature" consisting of a strange device of interlocking circles, colored with red and blue ink and bearing the imprint of three slight indentations—pin pricks, perhaps—near the edges of the circles. Subsequent notes, in negotiation for payment of the ransom, bore the identical symbol.

When Col. Schwartzkopf and Col. Lindbergh, lighting their way with electric torches, made their first hurried search of the grounds, they had stumbled upon an abandoned ladder.

The ladder was of "hennemede" construction, and consisted of three sections which were joined together, rose to a height a little above the nursery window, it had been made by a skilled artisan—by a man adept in carpentry. The pegs by which the sections were joined fitted perfectly into grooves carved, for them, in the rungs.

Not far from the nursery window they found a heavy chisel. Part of the kidnapers' equipment, and evidently intended for forcing the nursery shutters, it had not been needed. The shutters, warped by inclement weather, had resisted all efforts to lock them.

From the house, and trailing away into nothingness at the main road, were a series of heavy footprints. But they were not clearcut. They looked to have been made by one who had bound his feet in an over-casting of cloth.

Those provided the only physical evidences of the kidnapers' visit to the Lindbergh home. The investigators turned to an analysis of the note.

Written By Foreigner Manifestly, the demand had been written by a person of foreign antecedents and of slight education. The English-speaking races do not write "50 000 $". The note said "We warn you for making anything public." It said the child was in "gut" care. The word and the Teutonic arrangement of phrases stamped its author as German.

Rockland, Mass., Dec. 12.—A kidnaper arrested after it was found wandering along a street. Police Chief George Popp locked the goat in a cell until its owner claimed it.

Turkey Thief Is Captured By Woman

KINGSVILLE, O., Dec. 12.—A turkey thief suffered two unforeseen indignities at Harold Robinson's turkey farm near here. First he was captured by a woman; secondly, he had the unpleasant experience of his captor's husband sitting on his head while his wife chased his two fleeing companions.

Four hundred and fifty gobblers have been eating themselves into delectable Christmas and New Year copulence at the Robinson home this fall.

Strange sounds roused the Robinsons one night. The town seemed to be stampeding. The next morning they found missing two turkeys, valued at about $12.

The next night, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson went to the brooder house planning to spend the night. About midnight they were awakened again by the stampeding of turkeys. Mrs. Robinson picked up the shotgun and stepped outside. One man was stealing a big tukey hen.

She leveled the gun at him and ordered him to halt. He did. Mrs. Robinson turned over the man to her husband, then ran to her automobile with the gun and pursued the man's two companions in the car. At North Kingsville, near here, she lost the trail, but meanwhile had picked up Marshal Eugene Harlock.

Sheriff's deputies intercepted the fleeing pair at Ashtabula, O. Meanwhile, Robinson had had to sit on his prisoner's head to hold him until help came.

LAW AGAINST SWEEPSTAKES TO AID SALES

DUBLIN, Dec. 12—Britain's attempt to kill the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes, which puts millions of British money into Irish coffers, will have the opposite effect, sweep officials here believe.

They estimate that it will save them some $2,500,000 on each sweep and that more people than ever will buy tickets.

Britain's attempt to ban the Irish sweepstakes was contained in the Betting and Lotteries Bill recently passed by Parliament. Among other things it curtailed gambling on dog and horse racing and specifically prohibited and punished for large sweeps.

Buying Tickets Legal
At the same time, however, it made it perfectly legal for a person to buy one or more tickets, so long as the British authorities are satisfied that they are for that person alone, and not for sale in Britain.

Hitherto it has been illegal even to buy a ticket, whether it was bought direct from Dublin, or from a British seller. Letters addressed to the sweep offices have been returned to the senders.

In the new year, however they will be permitted to go through so long as the post office authorities are satisfied that the applications are for individual requirements.

Open Mail
At present it is not quite clear how the post office officials will be able to prove this. It is expected that they will open any letters addressed to the sweep headquarters and if the applications are for more than say five or ten tickets, then the letter will be returned to the sender, on the assumption that he or she could not reasonably want more than that number for their own use.

The British attitude is that the ban on any publicity, particularly the publication of the lists of prize winners in the newspapers, will kill the interest in the sweeps so far as Britain is concerned. They also believe that the thousands of people who only buy one ten-shilling ticket, usually after much importuning by selling agents, will not go to the trouble of writing to Dublin for one.

Quarrels of Conscience
On the other hand, the Irish sweep chief declares that since it will now be legal to buy a sweep ticket, very many people, hitherto prevented by quarrels of conscience, will buy them.

They also expect to save about half a million sterling on each sweep in prizes to sellers of winning tickets commission to agents, and commission to sellers. Two more tickets—hitherto free—in every book of twelve can now be sold for ten shillings each, making a saving of $833,333 on every $5,000,000 worth of tickets sold.

Tribes Fight Plan To Construct Park

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 12—The proposed Lewis and Clark National Park along the Missouri river north of Decatur, Neb., is meeting protests from members of the Winnebago and Omaha Indian tribes.

Part of the land within the proposed tract is owned by the tribes, while other sections belong to individuals, both Indians and whites.

Louis St. Cyr, Omaha, a Winnebago, has taken up the cause of his people. He declares they have no desire to sell for cash or trade for other land.

"You are trying to take, or buy, the last foot of land from under our feet," he has accused the white men. "You have never yet failed to obtain our land, from east to west, and from north to south on this continent. And when our race is extinct you will have this land. But for the present why do you not let us roam over the land as our generations before us have done?"

St. Cyr pointed out that while promoters of the tract asserted the land had little value, the only good corn crop in that section this year was harvested from the bottom land. Many of the tribesmen, he said, depend upon the timber to provide pocket money.

"We are now holding contracts, leases or treaties drawn up by your bygone generations which gave us our lands," St. Cyr said. "Some of the lands are gone and we have not been paid for them. Now don't take this native land of my tribe."

Mail Carrier Quits After Thirty Years

WESTMINSTER, Mass., Dec. 12—Now that Frank A. Adams, rural mail carrier, has been retired on pension, he can sit by the cracker barrel in the general store and reminisce about:

The more than 370,000 miles he covered in his 30 years as mail carrier.

The various types of vehicles he used to carry the mail—horse and buggy, bicycle, motorcycle, automobile, snowmobile, the sleigh he used for 111 consecutive days during the severe winter of 1918-19, and the days when he shuffled from mail box to mail box on snowshoes.

known wherever horses race in the United States.

W. T. Waggoner once summed up his life and the philosophy which governed it in words which none of his commentators have tried to improve upon. He said:

"Ever since I was 14 years old, I have tried to run the best outfit, own the best horses, raise the best beef in the country—and do the most work."

"The man who doesn't admire a good horse, and a good beef steer, and a pretty woman—well something is wrong with that man's head."

Texan at Heart

Waggoner was a Texan to the core. He was born in Hopkins county, Aug. 31, 1852. His father and mother, Dan and Nancy (Moore) Waggoner, soon moved to a 160-acre homestead in Wise county. That homestead was the nucleus of the vast cattle domain which the son created.

He rode the ranges with his father. His mount was a scraggly pony. His herd contained only a few score scrub cattle. Young W. T. wanted better animals, more money.

By 1911 he possessed the best beef in Texas, some of the finest horses, and the far-flung cattle lands that were the basis of his wealth.

In that year W. T. Waggoner experienced a vexatious setback. He was drilling for water in a pasture. The hole spouted a greasy, black substance that killed the grass and offended the nostrils of the cattle.

Resentful, he started another well. It, too, was "polluted." The third well went wrong. Waggoner got to thinking Teks were an ever-present annoyance and danger to his cattle. He used the oil for tick dip.

The automobile provided a more remunerative use for the black fluid, however, and Waggoner became an oil as well as a land and cattle millionaire.

Stock First Love

His first love continued to be horses and cattle. In 1929 he completed the Arlington Downs race track. Four years later his fight before the Texas legislature and the people was won, and horse racing with pari-mutuel racing became legal.

His eyes fading, his once-vigorous frame sagged, the "grand old man" of Texas sat in his box and drank in the music of hoofs beating a tattoo on the turf at Arlington. The plant at Decatur, a 20-story office building at Fort Worth, bank buildings at Vernon and Fort Worth remain as monuments to Waggoner.

His three children survive. They are Electra, (Mrs. A. B. Wharton), Guy, and Paul. To each of them he gave 100,000 acres of land in La, Wilbarger, Bailey, Knox counties.

At the end, the man who had 50 years in the saddle, said: "It's the bone and the bricket I want, and the quality in cattle," he said.
