High School Project Gets Relief Approval

WILL INCLUDE FILLING IN OF SCHOOL LOT

Cisco's high school grounds project has been approved and work will start Friday, it was announced this morning by L. L. Hooker, head of the local relief organization. He said that approval of the project was telephoned to him today, and that figures on the number of men hours included in it would be available tomorrow. The work will include at the filling in and terracing of the grounds, Supt. R. N. Cluck of the Cisco schools said this afternoon. Also included will be repairs on walks and the building of one or two other small walks, he said. The Garden club has had as one of its projects the beautification of the high school grounds and it was believed this would be a part of the work approved. The local relief forces, garden club, and Supt. Cluck have been working for some time to get approval of the project. Tentatively approved some time ago, it was postponed for lack of manpower. Figures, listing the number of men and hours involved in the job will be published as soon as they are released by the relief headquarters.

BAND FUND IS SEEN AS NEED BY ANDERSON

Jack Anderson, who has always taken a great interest and a very active part in all matters pertaining to athletics and who was one of the committee members who helped raise the funds for uniforming the band, says that he had read the statement of W. J. Leach with much interest and would like to add his endorsement. Mr. Anderson says that he, like many others in Cisco, is very proud of the band. He thinks that visits to Fort Worth, broadcasting over WBAP, and attending the Lubbock tournament would be of immense value to Cisco from a publicity standpoint, to say nothing of the encouragement to the members themselves. Since the band plays such a vital part in the football games, he thinks that it should have a part of the proceeds of each game so that a stable fund would be available for such trips as are now contemplated. However, he made available before next fall, he would like very much to see some provision made for these expenses this winter and spring.

Corpus Christi Named by Pineda

In 1919, only 27 years after Columbus first set eyes on the New World, Corpus Christi was named. In that year, Alvaraz de Pineda, and his Spanish followers, in search of legendary silver and gold, landed on the shore near the present site of the city. De Pineda landed the second Thursday after Pentecost and in honor of the religious feast, named the spot "Corpus Christi," which means "Body of Christ." Three years after Texas had won its independence the settlement was founded. It was first named Kinney's Trading Post, but when a post office was established, it took the name Corpus Christi.

Students Oppose War Of Invasion

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — Social science students, members of the University of Texas Nordic club, unanimously oppose bearing arms for the United States in a war of invasion. "We of the Nordic club would not bear arms for the United States in the invasion of the borders of another country," members answered a questionnaire recently. "We cannot conceive of a situation arising in which it would be to our interests to invade another country." Wars of protection would be fought by Nordic club members, that is, if wealth and resources were conscripted on a socialistic basis. The United States, they believed, could stay out of war if the government effectively controlled the munitions business and adopted a policy of capital conscription during wartime.

UNIVERSITY OIL LANDS MAY SEE MUCH DEVELOPMENT DURING 1935

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — It is regarded as not improbable that there may be a considerable expansion of the development of oil and gas on land owned by the University of Texas during the current year, according to the views of men employed in the industry. At this time there are approximately 350,000 acres of university lands under lease for oil and gas exploration and exploitation. Much of this leased area is in wildcat territory. In view of the fact that there is more activity in drilling wildcat tests in Texas at this time than at any period since 1912, it is expected the University lands will share in this work of exploration. The development of an oil field in Andrews county by the Humble Oil and Refining company may lead to the discovery of production on a block of 294,000 acres owned by the University in that county. This land is situated close to production and part of it is already under lease to the Humble Oil and Refining company. The Humble Oil and Refining company recently completed the construction of a modern oil camp in the southern part of Gaines county,

FOUR SOUGHT AFTER ESCAPE IN OKLAHOMA

McALESTER Okla., Jan. 14 — Prison guards and officers were searching today for four tubercular prisoners who, during the night, tunneled out of the state penitentiary for the second time in recent months. Three of the fugitives left McAlester in a commandeered taxi. Two were dropped at Holdenville and the third made the cab driver take him to Shawnee, from where he evidently went on with the cab. The fourth prisoner's whereabouts were uncertain. No trace of any of them was found. Three months ago the same four convicts, with two others, tunneled from the tubercular hospital of the prison. One of the six died of exposure and the others were recaptured.

BLIZZARD BRINGS ZERO TO MIDWEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 — A cold wave almost equalling the winter's worst, swept over the midwest plains and the Great Lakes region today, the mercury dropping to 29 below zero through the Dakotas and near the zero mark as far south as central Illinois. Snow was predicted for this afternoon or tomorrow for Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. The northwest was warned to prepare for another blizzard of the type which buried highways under drifts Saturday and sent thermometer plunging to their depths. World Court Issue Debate Due Tuesday

NEGRO VOTES IN PRIMARIES FACING TEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — The supreme court today decided to entertain a challenge of the validity of the Texas state democratic party's efforts to keep negroes from voting in party primaries. The court acted on an appeal brought by R. R. Grovey, Negro citizen of Harris county, Texas, who was refused an absentee ballot to vote in the democratic primary, July 28, 1934. The refusal was based on the action of the 1932 democratic state convention which passed a resolution only white citizens to party memberships. Inasmuch as the democratic primaries in Texas are equivalent to elections, Grovey contended he was deprived of his franchise. The question of the power of parties in the south to bar negroes from primaries has been before the supreme court several times.

Three More Charged In Kennard Holdup

CROCKETT, Tex., Jan. 14 — Three more persons today faced charges in connection with the $1,700 robbery last Tuesday of the Farmers State bank of Kennard and two others were sought as accomplices. Erwan Carroll, Houston, and Paul Rhodes, Lufkin, already were under charges. Officers said they made statements admitting participation in the holdup. Others charged were Roy Wheat and his wife of Houston, and Jesse Ratcliffe, who lives three miles east of Kennard. Wheat, Carroll, and Rhodes were charged with robbery by firearms, and Ratcliffe and Mrs. Wheat as accomplices.

COLD MISSES TEXAS; HURTS LAKE REGION

The cold wave that was to have visited Texas during the week-end passed eastward over the Appalachian and, except for the panhandle, Texas escaped any severe weather. The worst of the cold spell is over, Dr. J. L. Cline, federal meteorologist at Dallas, said, and rising temperatures were forecast for tonight and Tuesday.

Reich Victory In Election Conceded

SAARBRUCKEN, Jan. 14 — A semi-official check of 500,000 voters in the Saar plebiscite, indicated 90 per cent in favor of reunion with Germany. The figure may be increased or decreased by the remainder of the count, but reliable predictions were that it would be greater, insuring return of the Saar to Germany. (Copyright 1935, United Press) SAARBRUCKEN, Jan. 14 — Tellers from neutral countries under military guard, today counted the plebiscite vote which will decide the fate of the 800,000 people in the 738 square miles of the rich Saar territory. The count was delayed seriously because of confusion in the ballot boxes, and the tellers spent most of the day in sorting them by districts. Results will be announced to the world at 8 a. m. Tuesday. Most experts predicted 75 per cent or more of the vote would be for return to German nationality.

SECOND GANG RIDE VICTIM FOUND SLAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 — Frank Abgriniani, was found shot to death in his parked automobile on the west side today, apparently the second "gang ride" victim in Chicago in the past 24 hours. Abgriniani's body was found slumped over the steering wheel. The window by the driver's seat had been opened and the shots fired through the opening. Abgriniani was shot once in the left hand and twice in the head. The killing followed closely upon discovery of another ride victim. He was Frank Panio, known to the police as a veteran of 150 arrests as a pickpocket. He was thrown from a car and shot to death as he lay in the street yesterday.

Curry Given Life In Stewart Murder

WACO, Jan. 14 — Roy Curry, one of two youths charged with murdering Malcolm Stewart of Katy on Nov. 17, was to be sentenced to 99 years imprisonment by District Judge D. W. Bartlett. A jury in district court yesterday found Curry guilty of murder after deliberating 23 hours and set the sentence at 99 years. Stewart was killed near Waco when he resisted robbery. A companion of Curry, Joe Averitt, was sentenced to death, following conviction on identical charges. He has appealed the case.

Dutch Court Rules Against Gold Clause

THE HAGUE, Jan. 14 — The Hague court of justice today ruled against the gold clause in bonds of the Royal Dutch Oil company, floated in New York and Amsterdam. The decision was to the effect that, since the Roosevelt suspension of gold payments, interest on the bonds need not be paid in gold dollars as stipulated. The case, brought by the stockbrokers union of Amsterdam, will be appealed to the high court of The Hague.

Extension of RFC Lending Is Sought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — The administration has decided definitely to seek legislation extending the lending power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for two more years, Jesse Jones, chairman, said today after a conference with the president. Jones cited various reasons as to the necessity for the extension, pointing out the commodity credit corporations need further assistance as well as export and import banks.

SPYING UPON JAFSIE TOLD BY MANNEQUIN

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 14 — Three state witnesses today added the weight of their evidence to identification of Bruno R. Hauptmann as the kidnaper and murderer of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. Hildegarde Alexander, a tall and attractive clothing model, declared she saw Hauptmann spying on Dr. John Coudon in a Bronx railroad station while Coudon was talking to a telegraph operator shortly after the kidnapping in March, 1932. Eldridge Stein, the state's second handwriting expert called to dissect the ransom notes, testified to his conclusion that they were written by Hauptmann. Albert Osborn, the highest priced handwriting expert in the world, stoutly maintained his belief that they were all the product of the Bronx carpenter's hand, despite a vigorous cross-examination by Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel.

Surprise Testimony

Miss Alexander's testimony came as an electrifying surprise to the trial fans who had settled down to listen to what they believed would be nothing but repetition and dull handwriting testimony. The state's first surprise witness was suggested to a bitter cross examination for 20 minutes by the defense chief but she sweetly and firmly insisted upon the truth of her story. Miss Alexander related how she had gone to the railroad station to telephone her mother from a public booth. She walked to the far side of the writing room, she said, and saw Dr. Coudon talking to a telegraph operator. Hauptmann, she said, was about 50 feet away from Jafsie, watching him intently. Hauptmann turned to a United Press correspondent and said: "I was never in that station. I guess the lady was looking for a movie contract." He smiled and guards escorted him to his cell, again with pinioned wrists.

BILLS FLOOD HOUSE BEFORE INAUGURATION

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — Legislators loosed an avalanche of proposed new laws today as they prepared to adjourn until after the inauguration of Governor James V. Allred. When the clerk ceased reading the list of proposed measures, there were 113 bills before the house and 16 proposals for changes in the state constitution. One proposed a Centennial constitution to fit the second hundred years of Texas independence. There were bills to gain put in force the moratorium on real estate foreclosure and the law against excessive deficiency judgment, both of which were held invalid by the state supreme court under other laws.

Federal Housing Campaign in Cisco

During the last few years, Cisco people, weary of the depression and not knowing where it was going to lead them, have done little in the way of improving their homes, or even of keeping them in a state of good repair. They were not sure what tomorrow might bring for them and adopted a policy of "sitting tight" and waiting.

With the conditions for the entire country looking better and experts predicting a return to normal economic conditions, many have begun to look at their homes and to wonder why they let them drop in value for lack of repair, and to wonder how they can best remedy the situation before it is too late.

While they have been wondering, the Federal Housing Administration has come forward with the solution. This solution, announced some time ago, is even yet hazy in the minds of many who have not kept pace with the rapid strides of the government agencies, but is sweeping the nation in a great movement of repair.

In a meeting of the Cisco Boosters last week, P. S. Luttrell, associate director of the northwestern district of Texas, Federal Housing Administration, explained what the government is trying to do in its housing campaign and how the move will benefit the people of Cisco.

Knowing that few have the money for building or repairing homes, and realizing that most of the others have the credit necessary to borrow, the federal government has made it possible for land owners to borrow, through approved agencies in the United States, Cisco has three of them.

Loans can be obtained by persons owning the property upon which they intend to make improvements of a permanent nature, the borrowed money to be paid back in monthly installments. These installments are not to exceed one-fifth of the borrower's monthly salary. The government, through the Federal Housing Administration, insures the loan up to 20 per cent of its value.

The point of all this is that the way is now clear for people of Cisco, as of other places all over the United States, to take advantage of the situation and improve their property.

During the next few weeks there will be an intensive campaign in Cisco and Eastland county, it has been announced by Federal Housing committee heads, to 'promote' home building and repair. The president has urged the building campaign. The money is ready and waiting. There are many homes that need that money.

Preparing for the Centennial

Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, has the right idea about the financial gain to be derived from the Texas Centennial celebrations in 1936. "Prepare now" seems to be his watchword for Texas cities. He says that what they "must do" — not manana, but now — is to put themselves in order; look their nicest — plant, water, clean up — and profit by holding the visitors who come.

Make it worthwhile, and the visitors will come, the sculptor says. He believes that the $3,000,000 it is now proposed to ask of the state for Centennial purposes is too small an amount, and believes that at least $5,000,000 should be spent on permanent structures in Dallas, at the San Jacinto battlefield, at Goliad, San Antonio, and similar locations of historic shrines. Even more would be a worth-while investment, he believes.

Be that as it may, he points out that the main purpose of the Centennial celebration is to show Texas to the United States, and that this can be done only if the necessary preparations are made.

The tourist is one of Texas' best means of advertising. Thousands go through Texas every year from the north to Mexico. "Texas is on the main and only highway for three quarters of the United States into Mexico and eventually to Panama. Texas must be crossed one way by at least 300,000 autos annually, Mexico bound. Fifty thousand cars detour 200 miles out of their course annually to South Dakota to see the carving on Mount Rushmore." He points out that with this opportunity to show off the state to a crowd that would come anyway, Texas should make preparations to route the tourists to Mexico through places of interest to them and to the friends they will tell about their trips when they return home.

At the same time the United States sends much traffic annually through Texas over the southern route from coast to coast, the Broadway of America that passes through Cisco and other Texas cities. There is still more opportunity to capture the tourist trade, show the tourists the spots of interest in the celebrations, and gain their friendship and future returns and investments.

But all of it takes planning and preparations. Clean up. Paint up. Plant. Water. Have Texas looking her best when the tourists begin to come — and it won't be long — and present something interesting.

Chicago made a huge success of the Century of Progress. Chicago prepared for that event. Texas, says the sculptor, should begin more intensive preparations for the Centennial.

WILD NEW YORK

BURLINGTON, Ont., Jan. 14 — One of the revolvers brought to the police station here for registration was a .32-caliber weapon purchased in 1892. It was rusted the original seven bullets.

The owner explained that he had never fired the gun and had only purchased it originally when planning a trip to New York in 1892. He had been warned to arm himself "for protection in the wilds of the Bronx district."

But What Will Happen When It Unrolls?

U. S.-MEXICAN TRADE BETTER DURING YEAR

LAREDO, Jan. 14 — Trade between the United States and Mexico has improved greatly in the past year, if the records of the Laredo port of entry are indicative of the general trend.

The volume of exports through Laredo to Mexico in 1934 was 37 per cent larger than for 1933, and importations into the United States from Mexico jumped 210 per cent, it was revealed.

Total exports through Laredo amounted to 5,213 car loads in 1934, compared with 3,900 in 1933. Imports for 1934 totaled 5,920 cars compared with 1,913 cars in 1933.

Heavy imports of corn into this country were responsible for much of the increased importation, it was said. Severe food shortage brought about by the drought was responsible for the heavy purchases of Mexican feed.

All records in the 70-year history of the local customs house were shattered the last three months of 1934 when a total of 2,506 carloads of imports were received.

Collections reached an all-time peak of $309,139.39 during December, largely due to the 25 cent per bushel tariff on corn. Other imports included cottonseed oil, lead and bananas.

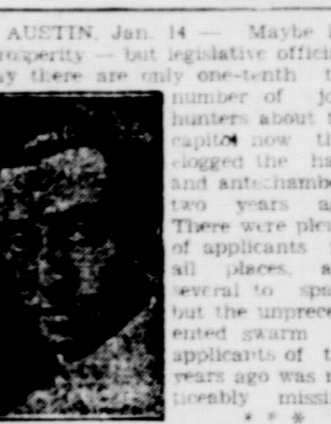

Lumber Statistics Still Discouraging

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — Lumber statistics still are not very optimistic, the bureau of business research of the University of Texas points out. Reports from the Southern Pine association show a decline in average weekly production per unit from 183,000 board feet in November to 178,000 in December, or 2.8 per cent, and about an equal decline from December last year.

Average weekly shipments per unit, 164,000 board feet, were down 20 per cent from November but 7

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — Maybe it's property — but legislative officials say there are only one-tenth the number of job-hunters about the capital now that clogged the hall and ante-chambers two years ago. There were plenty of applicants for all places, and several to spare but the unprecedented swarm of applicants of two years ago was noticeably missing.

Fewer than 100 bills awaited the house when it organized this week and started work as compared with over 250 in some regular sessions.

The senate had only 16 bills and four proposed constitutional amendments its first day.

Lawmakers looked forward to about 1000 bills in the house and 700 in the senate, many of them being identical copies offered in both houses.

There was some surprise at the small number in the hopper the first day the house was read: to have them read first time and referred to committees.

The house, without a word of debate, readopted the $10 maximum pay rate for its members this session on motion of Rep. Homer Leonard. Also without debate, it killed a resolution by Rep. Jap Lucas to limit the pay of members, while absent, to one cent a day.

A resolution by Farmer, Tennyson, Padgett and others, urging congress to pass the Patman bill to pay the soldiers' bonus has been sent to committee for consideration. Authors made no effort to secure a vote on it when introduced.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

By Edson R. Waite
 Shawnee, Oklahoma

Many people regard work as a penalty, as something irksome. They work because they must, and do as little work as they can.

At closing time, at most places who employ large numbers, you can see the workers who deserve promotion and those who do not. A few will drop their work on the tick of the clock, heedless of whether their day's work is completed or not, while some will go on for a few minutes, finishing what they are doing.

Many workers seem to regard themselves as slaves. They seem to think in slave fashion. These folks create their own slavery. They lack ambition. Any worker, no matter how small his job, can win the respect and good will of his superiors by taking a keen interest in his work.

The workers who get ahead are those who do something to improve their position once in a while — something they are not paid for — and do their job better than the boss expects them to do it. This is a secret of promotion and is the real secret of what is called "good luck."

GOLIAD LOOKS FOR STATE AID IN CENTENNIAL

GOLIAD, Tex., Jan. 14 — Goliad looks to history as the scene of the tragedy in which Col. James W. Fournier and his 445 men were executed by Mexican soldiers to whom they had surrendered. In looking forward to the Centennial celebrations of 1936, confident that its claims to immortality in Texas' annals should be recognized adequately in allocation of funds to aid in secondary commemorations throughout the state.

Successful termination of a two-year search for the place of burial of Fournier's men only recently was brought about by discovery of the site near Goliad. Judge J. A. White of Goliad and Louis W. Kemp were aided in the search by J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology at the University of Texas.

After the excavation, the bodies of these Texas Revolutionary martyrs were placed in pipes and buried. Texas soldiers later buried the charred fragments in a ditch about five feet deep in a sand dune. Described by J. de Cordova in a book written in 1856 as a "grave covered with rocks" the burial place had been forgotten for fifty years. Dr. Pearce was called

HOOKS AND SLIDES

THE Daffness Boys having retired momentarily from the baseball spotlight, let's let just a few beams stray in the direction of a man who was burning them through there when the Beans wore platters for whatever kids wear down there in Lucas, Ark. I'm thinking of Lefty Grove, who is at the moment thinking mostly of how to bring down some acceptable game with one of his large collection of fowling-pieces.

Is Grove through? His disappointing showing of last season in the light bringing furrows to the brows of Eddie Collins and the home-symooning Joe Cronin. For they have to figure out just how big a place Grove is to fill with the Red Sox this coming summer.

Did Grove have only a temporary sore arm last summer when he was bombed out of the box by teams that couldn't foul him in 1933? Or have the hearings finally burned out in that great piece of machinery that buzzed them through there for 15 seasons?

Best dope is that Manager Joe isn't going to count on Grove for anything more than relief duty next summer. Should Grove come back, prove able to take a regular turn, and win anything like the 24 victories he turned in for the AAAAAA's in 1932, that would be just too much velvet, and set Mr. Cronin right down for permanent residence at No. 1 Easy Street.

Just Breezed 'Em Over

BUT it may be that the sam has gone out of the Grovian soap some forever. Robert Moses has been waiting them over for 15 years. Eve of them unfortunately in the miners for Martinsburg and Baltimore.

The Grove system, especially in his earlier days, was simple. It was to breeze every pitch through there. That takes care of other fireball pitchers who are able to mix 'em up a little with curves, change of pace, a little outsmarting.

Lefty himself, of course, is satisfied that he's all washed up at 25. He argued all last summer that he just had a sore arm. He's spending the winter getting away from it all with a run and a deer his wiser.

Maybe he'll, be the old Left in 1935. You can't tell. But the best dope is that Manager Joe Cronin isn't counting too heavily on it.

Wagner Picks Matty

BUT speaking of pitchers, let's guess we are here's another contribution to that general argument about who's the greatest pitcher of all time.

John Peter Wagner, who was the name of Honus was to pick a little baseball himself, he broken down and confined by G. Taylor Spink, the walking baseball encyclopedia, that he take Christy Mathewson for his money.

The veteran Pittsburgh coach (he's 60 soon) faced some good ones in his day. Waddell and Alexander included. And he allows how Mathewson got the nod, in a sense in addition to being able to throw the ball through there, it was a ball player, too. That is he could field and hit knew and the score was, had perfect control and was smart.

That's a large order, friends and you can quote old Honus to next time the boys around the stove begin arguing about the green old question.

Lovable

Mary Raymond

I heard you dashing away in the car.

"Where were you—hiding from me, weren't you?" He caught her roughly by the shoulders.

"Don't be silly. Why should I hide? I was back in my room doing things to my face. I ran to the front door and called you but I guess you didn't hear."

He was still staring at her suspiciously. "No tricks, Ann. If I thought..."

Ann said gently, slipping her arm through his. "You've been drinking too much. It's made you imagine foolish things. Is my supper ready? I suppose I shall have to heat the coffee again."

She was leading him, with an insistent little pressure against his arm, to the kitchen.

"Everything's ruined," he grumbled.

"And all my fault, I suppose. Because I went to powder my nose." Ann said lightly.

"Well, let's forget it."

"Take off your wet coat, Allan."

He poured two drinks. Ann sipped her own and then, feeling his eyes upon her, finished the drink quickly.

"Want another?"

"Later, I'm going to scramble more eggs, if you don't mind. I never could eat cold eggs."

He had slumped down in a chair, watching her gloomily as she mixed the eggs in a bowl and whipped them steadily.

She turned to the stove, stirred them into a hot skillet. Oh, why didn't the taxi come! It must be all of a half hour. If her plan failed in the end—but no, it must not fail. It couldn't fail.

A quick survey convinced him that Ann was really gone. He would find her, he thought furiously. It would have been better for her if she hadn't played him a trick like this.

Ann, crouched behind tall shrubbery near the sun porch, heard him driving away. An soon as the sound of the motor died she opened the door, removed her wet coat and hat, putting them on a chair in the hall and called a taxi company.

"I want a cab sent in a hurry to the Ingleside section. You know where it is?"

"Sure, lady. What street?"

"No. 44 Cherry Circle. Write it down, please, I'm in a great hurry."

"I have it. Forty-four Cherry."

"It's the fourth house after you turn in from town. Back among some trees."

"I think I know the place. Anyway I'll find it."

"How long will it take you to get here?"

"It's a half hour run."

"Please hurry."

"Okay, lady."

Ann closed the door. She turned out the lights in the hall, turned on more lights in the living room, went back into her old room and turned on a light by the dressing table.

IT was fully 20 minutes before Allan returned. He had finally given up the search.

The door was shut. Between the drawn shades in a room on the left wing was a thin yellow streak. A light in Ann's room. The front door was locked. Allan rang the bell angrily.

Ann opened the door. "Allan, there is the very old Joe and (ive had tipped him liberally, but for the information he had, he—about dropping the girl at the restaurant for breakfast. The taxi driver never had heard whether or not they had found the girl if she was the wife of a millionaire, she probably had gone back to him.

He had not seen this girl's face. She had opened the door just as he reached the door. She had not waited to put her coat and hat on, but had run to the taxi. Women were certainly queer.

There had been something about her that seemed familiar, as didn't quite know what it was.

She was crying now. He could hear muffled sobs. Probably he regretted running off from his husband and would be telling him in a moment to take her back. He chuckled. Well, it was all a night.

The taxi sped along through the darkness, rattling heavily against the windows.

THE driver leaned back, turning his head slightly. "Where is this?"

After a moment the girl answered in a husky tone. "Do you know where Roland street is?"

Roland street. He had to think a moment. "It's on the east side of town."

He remembered now. It was an old street filled with cheap brick apartment buildings. "I think I know where it is."

Ann couldn't bear going back to the dreary, lonely apartment just then. Sheila was out with hours before she returned. She felt faint at the thought of the place. Maybe she would feel better if she stopped at the drug store on the corner and had some hot chocolate.

The taxi was nearing Roland street. "Please let me out at the drug store on the corner," Ann said.

The cab driver halted at the curb and Ann got out. She opened her purse. Luckily she had enough to pay the fare. She handed it to the driver. He was staring at her, a queer expression in his eyes.

Well, she must look strange with the wet coat clinging to her. Her eyes red from crying.

She went into the drug store. The taxi driver continued to back stare at Ann's retreating back. This sir, there wasn't a doubt! Yes, this was the same girl he had driven away from that well appointed apartment. Young Peter Kadwallar's wife.

He was excited. He followed Ann and saw her sitting at a table in the corner. "Won't you wait a cab to go home in, miss. I can wait."

"No, thank you. I live near here."

He went away, but not far. He stopped in the next block and telephoned police headquarters. Detective Shannon answered.

"I've got the girl you were looking for," the cab driver reported. "The wife of that millionaire. She's in a drug store at the corner of Constance and Roland streets. Yes, I'll follow her and meet you at the drug store in a few minutes."

He went back to the drug store and had disappeared.

RANCE TESTS FLYING BOAT CARRYING 70

By HAROLD EITLINGER
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Jan. 14 — A great flying boat capable of carrying 70 passengers on two decks is undergoing tests at Biscarosse in the south of France. The plane, which is the largest ever built in France, is designed for the French Air Force and is where the French hope it will show their supremacy over German and American rivals.

The machine, which will be known as the Lieutenant de Vaisseau, was constructed at the aircraft factories near Toulouse which are famous for their flying boats. It is so huge that the only way it could be transported to the test grounds was to dismantle it and ship it by sections in a convoy of trucks. Weighing 32 tons, this plane has a wingspread of 50 meters and 22 meters long and nine meters high. Six water-cooled Hispano-Suiza engines of 850 horsepower will run it at a speed of 230 miles an hour at low altitudes and 250 miles an hour at 2,000 feet. The cruising radius is 4,500 miles.

Accommodations include 45 berths for 45 persons, with 10 appointed first class compartments on the lower deck and second class accommodations on the upper.

The wings into which the six motors are mounted, are of metal, and the fuselage is all metal. To eliminate the gas tanks are placed in the pontoons.

When the Lieutenant de Vaisseau will be ready for its first hop over the South Atlantic is not yet known, but is expected early next summer, when Air France, the carrier, expect to have completed the series of preliminary tests just completed.

TEXAS CATTLE RANGES UNCHANGED AT 52 PER CENT BELOW LAST YEAR

AUSTIN, Jan. 14 — Texas cattle range conditions remains unchanged from a month ago, according to the department of agriculture. At 52 per cent of normal, conditions this month is 17 per cent below that of a year ago and 2 per cent below the January 1 ten-year average.

All districts except the three southern ones, report condition lower than the average for the state. However, the northwest district and the Edwards Plateau area show improvements of four points each since December 1. This improvement results from rainfall which fell late in November and early in December. While this moisture temporarily relieved the acute situation in the two areas somewhat, additional moisture is badly needed, especially for wheat pastures. Wheat has not made normal growth and is furnishing only limited pasturage. Conditions are most critical in the extreme Western district where condition is reported at only 36 per cent of normal. There is practically no range feed available in this area, and ranchers are feeding native plants such as prickly pear and sotol to keep their stock alive.

Sheep ranges improved one point during December to 46 per cent of normal. This compares with 60 per cent a year ago and 80.7 per cent the ten-year average. The one point improvement was brought about by recent rains over much of the main sheep area. However, range feed is still short and many ranchers are feeding "pear" and sotol to sheep as well as cattle. Oak brush, also, is affording quite a bit of nutrition for sheep and goats.

Cattle Improvement
Even with the extremely poor range condition, cattle improved two points during December, and are now rated at 62 per cent of normal compared with 74 per cent a year ago and 82.8 per cent the ten-year average. No doubt this improvement was made possible by the mild, open weather thus far and supplemented government purchases of weaker stock from the range, and consequently the stronger stock has had the benefit of the available feed.

The condition of sheep is placed at 61 per cent of normal compared with 62 per cent a month ago, 70 per cent a year ago, and 85.1 per cent the ten-year average. Government purchases of ewes, the mild, open weather, and supplemental feeding have prevented excessive losses this month. Due to the drought and poor conditions of ewes, there were only a limited number of fall and winter lambs dropped and these have not made satisfactory growth in most instances.

Ranges
Winter ranges and pastures in the Western range states are very short and poor, but having been open for grazing. Light covering of snow has permitted full use of the short supply of range feed and saved the very short supply of hay and other feeds. Most of the western range country does not have sufficient feed for the livestock that has been held if winter conditions are severe. A large amount of feeds have been shipped into the drought areas, but generally this local shortages. Range and other feeds are very short in eastern Montana, the Dakotas, western Kansas and Nebraska, western Oklahoma, the Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada. There are some local shortages in eastern Oregon and eastern Idaho. Feed supplies are ample in Washington, western Montana, northern Idaho, western and northern Oregon, parts of southern Idaho, and in some irrigated sections of Colorado. Rains have made very good early feed prospects in California and southern Arizona. Wheat pastures are good in central and south central Kansas and north central Oklahoma, but poor in western Kansas, western Oklahoma, and Texas.

Most of the great plains area is very dry, with a serious deficiency of moisture. Moisture conditions have been improved west of the main range. Snowfall east of the Continental Divide has been light. The conditions of ranges at 60 per cent of normal is the lowest on record for January. Last month the condition of ranges was 58 per cent of normal, compared to 74 per cent a year ago, and the ten-year average of 81.2 per cent.

CATTLE: The condition of cattle in the western range states is the lowest for this season in the 13 years that these reports have been issued. There are many thin cattle in the drought areas that will be unable to stand severe weather. Cattle in areas that have feed are in good flesh. The conditions of sheep has improved in California and Arizona. Losses have been light due to mild, favorable weather during December, and the government purchases removed many cattle that would have died. Breeding cows are not in good condition. It seems that more cattle have been held in many drought areas than can be wintered if heavy feeding is necessary. The condition of cattle is 72 per cent of normal compared with 71 per cent last month, 80 per cent a year ago, and the ten-year average of 85.9 per cent.

SHEEP: Sheep on most of the western ranges are in fair to poor condition and considerable feeding has been necessary. Losses have been light with mild, moderate weather, but breeding ewes will not be able to survive severe weather. The sheep situation was greatly helped by the government purchases of old ewes, but generally there are more sheep than can be wintered on the very short supply of feed. Texas sheep have held up very well, with much feeding, but are thin. Early lamb prospects in California are very good. The condition of sheep is 76 per cent of normal compared with 75 per cent last month, 82 per cent a year ago, and the ten-year average of 88.8 per cent.

120-MILE SPEED IS ITALY'S AIM IN NEW TRAINS

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME, Jan. 14 — Mussolini's electric locomotives will hold the world speed record in 1935 when steam railroad record in 1935 when speed — in fact, aerodynamic and air-conditioned trains between Milan and Rome will travel the 450 miles in four hours and twenty minutes.

Italy already has the fastest steamships in the "REX," the fastest warship in the light cruiser "Da Recco" which can travel 45 knots per hour and the fastest airman in Lieutenant Francesco Agello who travelled at the speed of 440 miles per hour. Besides, there is Luigi Beccali, the world's fastest middle distance runner.

The new trains which are now under construction in the Breda Works will be the most modern trains in Europe and even an advance on the new streamlined trains used in the United States.

120-Mile Speed
Their maximum speed is calculated at one hundred and twenty miles an hour. For the present, however, the average speed will be a little over a hundred miles per hour on account of the roadbed which is to be reinforced for even greater speeds. Thus the four hundred and fifty miles from Milan to Rome will be made in less than four and a half hours. The present time is over eight and a half hours.

The first train to be put into service will be about one hundred and eighty feet long. These new electric locomotives will generate over twelve hundred horsepower.

Behind the engine cabin will be a space for postal service and baggage. A small kitchen will separate this from the next car. In the first and third car there will be fifty-nine seats. In the second, the first class there will be thirty-five so that the number of persons carried will be ninety-four.

A special system of upholstery and ball-bearings under the seats will do away with the jarring caused by the excessive speed. The windows will be tightly closed and the compartments air-conditioned all the year round.

On account of the line between Milan and Bologna not being completely electrified as yet or even by the time the new train will be put into service, the first journey of the train will be from Bologna to Rome and on to Salerno below Naples which is as far south as these lines are all electrified. The Milan-Bologna stretch will be electrified in the near future.

The Fascist program for 1935, or the thirteenth year of the Revolution includes an added six thousand miles of electric lines and three of these new trains. The date of completion is set for the anniversary of the March on Rome, October 28, 1935.

DOWN-HEARTED? A UNANIMOUS NO!

It may be hard to teach your legs to do things after they've had a battle with a flock of infantile paralysis germs, but little Carrie Stark of New York isn't downhearted about it, as the picture (lower left) plainly indicates. Carrie is showing her legs a thing or two with the help of Miss Constance Huestel. Nor has she anything on the 15-year-old lad smiling from a respirator (right). He is Herbert

Fuchs, also of New York. Two smiling youngsters (upper left) their legs in braces, partake of their midday luncheon at Camp Alyn for Crippled Children in Cincinnati, Ohio. These four and more than 200,000 fellow-sufferers throughout the nation will be beneficiaries of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President, Jan. 29, when more than 5,000 communities from coast to coast unite to raise funds for fighting what Col. Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the Birthday Ball committee, calls "the most dreaded disease menacing the nation". Seventy cents of every dollar raised will be retained by local communities to rehabilitate infantile paralysis victims, while thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to a Birthday Ball Commission for Infantile Paralysis Research appointed by the President.

MUSSOLINI REFORMING ITALIAN PENAL CODE TO CONFORM TO U. S.

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME, Jan. 14 — Prison reform in Italy has been conducted with some years ago a group of Italians visited American prisons and brought back methods and ideas which since have been put into practice. Americans have since been invited to Italy to study prison conditions and offer suggestions.

Most all the prisons in Italy are housed in ancient fortresses or old palaces which are unsanitary, damp and wholly inadequate to meet the suggestions set forth for the commission on prison reform.

The first step to be made was to give the prisoner humane living conditions. The women's prisons were the first to be studied and while the task is far from complete, over ten prisons for women and three for men are now sanitariously equipped. The military prisons are yet to be done. It may take another ten years before Italy can completely carry out her sanitary reform program.

The establishment of correction schools and reform schools have now isolated the minor from contact with the adult criminal. Since this date a noticeable decrease in minor's criminal acts can be observed.

Honor and trustee system has also been introduced in nearly all prisons which are on the islands and chance of escape is lessened.

Sandcrafts have been long a part of Italy's prison-life. Nearly all the men who are handicapped in prison, continue their trade in prison. All leasing of prison labor has been abolished, but the government itself has the right to use prison labor on government projects. Nearly all of the great dams in Sardinia have been constructed with prison labor. A great deal of the reclaiming of the malaria districts both in Sardinia and in Sicily has also been accomplished with prison labor.

A recent development in detention has been evolved in the past few years to meet the unemployment problem. In order to avoid the unemployed from resorting to criminal acts, certain parts of some of the island prisons house unskilled men who have no work and who have been more or less under suspicion. An unemployed man with no place to live and without a family to support him can be asked to pass a few months in such a concentration camp.

There he is either put to a trade or on one of the labor gangs. He makes a small sum of money and at the close of his term he is set free still having no penal record. Often he is so imprisoned against his will, but unless he can find means to live within a certain period of time he is compelled to accept this alternative.

It is only in rare instances that a man with a family is required to accept this compulsory detention.

Such a man once caught is helped after his confinement to find a job, in case he is again within the year without a job he is again invited to return to prison.

In one of the prisons in the Tuscan archipelago, a prisoner is compelled to take a cold shower with soap daily. Expert psychologists, many of them young but trained in Austria and Germany, have constant contact with the men.

FAMOUS FLIERS SAY

"get a Lift with a Camel!"

COL. ROSCOE TURNER, holder of the transcontinental records west-to-east and east-to-west: "A speed flier uses up energy just as his motor uses gas. A Camel gives one a refill on energy. I smoke all I want. Camels never upset my nerves."

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD SMITH, famous flier who holds the record from Australia to California—7300 miles in 51 hours—says: "Once you've had a real chance to appreciate the mild, mellow flavor of Camels, no other type of smoke seems to satisfy. I always want a Camel, especially when I'm fatigued. And Camels are my 'supercharger'—they lift up my vim—give me new energy and 'go.'"

WILEY POST, famous flier who holds the "round-the-world" record, says: "Camels are made from more expensive tobaccos. You can certainly tell that in their mildness and good taste."

SPORTSWOMAN PILOT, Mrs. T. W. Kenyon, champion air woman: "After a strenuous flight, a Camel restores my energy. And each Camel renews the enjoyment of the last!"

From Newark Airport to Miami and return in 15 hours and 16 minutes! That's the record held by Chief Pilot E. H. Parker, of the Eastern Air Lines. But let him tell you about transport flying and how Camels help him through the strain. In his own words: "The steady grind of transport flying takes stamina—vitality—nerves that never waiver. Passengers... mail... express must arrive on time, and it's the pilot's duty to see that they do! There are plenty of times when I get tired. Then I smoke a Camel. For I have noticed that Camels help in easing the strain. I can go on with more alertness and vigor. I smoke Camels a lot. They never affect my nerves."

ASHAMED TO BE LISTED AS MILLIONAIRE

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Jan. 14.—The desire of rich men—and those who hope to be rich—to accumulate far beyond their needs and thus add to the suffering of the poor and working classes was condemned bitterly by George F. Johnson of Binghamton.

Johnson is chairman of the board of directors of the Endicott Johnson Corporation, one of the largest shoe manufacturers in the world.

"No man has the right to pile up money while thousands of people are suffering from lack of the necessities of life," the head of the wealthy concern said.

"Any man who dies rich, dies disgraced," he philosophized.

World War Income

Johnson's remarks were made shortly after his name was included in a list of men who earned million-dollar incomes during the World War.

"I am ashamed and mortified that my name was on the list, he said.

For Johnson has comparatively little left of the tremendous personal fortune he accumulated, and the wealth his business brought in. He is one of the world's true philanthropists. His company, even in depression times, held high labor standards, almost unequalled in a company of similar size in the United States.

Revered by Employees

He is revered and honored not only by his associates but by the people who work for him. His annual expenditures for charities runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The remainder of his income and much of his principal returns to the business to improve conditions of workers, raise salaries, expand and provide hospitalization, Christmas funds, and many other commendable projects.

Last year, because of the dire need, Johnson contributed $200,000 in Binghamton alone toward relief.

The years in which his income reached a million dollars, Johnson explained, was when the country was on a "huge drunk," and once because of the receipt of a large block of stock when his company was reorganized.

Has Little Left

Man Jailed After 12 Years Liberty

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 14.—After spending 12 years as a fugitive, during which he built up a successful coal business in Colorado Springs, Col., Frank McNeely is back in the federal penitentiary here.

He was brought back to serve the remaining eight months of a 30-month sentence for mutilating currency.

When he was arrested on the old charge, McNeely made no protest. Colorado Springs civic leaders, including the mayor and chief of police, petitioned the attorney general in Washington to recommend a pardon.

The only answer was the arrival of deputy United States marshals to take McNeely back to Leavenworth.

In Colorado Springs he left not only his business and good reputation, but his wife and three children, two of whom were born while he was a fugitive. It was a letter from his wife, telling of her destitute circumstances, that caused him to walk away from the prison where he was a trustee.

"I knew it would come some day," McNeely said, "so I worked hard to have up something for the family to live on while I am away. It was a relief when they caught up with me. I served that sentence 20 times in anguish since I ran away. I'm going to complete payment for the only thing I ever did in my life that I am ashamed of. A fast-talking stranger got me off on the wrong path."

ASHAMED TO BE LISTED AS MILLIONAIRE

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Jan. 14.—The desire of rich men—and those who hope to be rich—to accumulate far beyond their needs and thus add to the suffering of the poor and working classes was condemned bitterly by George F. Johnson of Binghamton.

Johnson is chairman of the board of directors of the Endicott Johnson Corporation, one of the largest shoe manufacturers in the world.

"No man has the right to pile up money while thousands of people are suffering from lack of the necessities of life," the head of the wealthy concern said.

"Any man who dies rich, dies disgraced," he philosophized.

World War Income

Johnson's remarks were made shortly after his name was included in a list of men who earned million-dollar incomes during the World War.

"I am ashamed and mortified that my name was on the list, he said.

For Johnson has comparatively little left of the tremendous personal fortune he accumulated, and the wealth his business brought in. He is one of the world's true philanthropists. His company, even in depression times, held high labor standards, almost unequalled in a company of similar size in the United States.

Revered by Employees

He is revered and honored not only by his associates but by the people who work for him. His annual expenditures for charities runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The remainder of his income and much of his principal returns to the business to improve conditions of workers, raise salaries, expand and provide hospitalization, Christmas funds, and many other commendable projects.

Last year, because of the dire need, Johnson contributed $200,000 in Binghamton alone toward relief.

The years in which his income reached a million dollars, Johnson explained, was when the country was on a "huge drunk," and once because of the receipt of a large block of stock when his company was reorganized.

OBSCURE BONESETTER FIRST TO GIVE HOPE TO PARALYSIS VICTIMS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—A discovery made nearly one hundred years ago by an obscure bonesetter today holds the attention of the nation.

The bonesetter, one Jacob Heine, made the first accurate report on infantile paralysis in 1840. Nobody paid much attention to it, and still less notice was taken of the American, Charles Fayette Taylor, who designed exercising machines and worked out a system of muscle building for victims of the disease in the 1860's. It was not until infantile paralysis epidemic broke out in Sweden in the 'Eighties, followed by others almost annually until the present day, that national and international notice was taken of the disease.

This attention has been focused in the United States during the last two years, and today has reached a climax in a movement captained by some of the nation's greatest scientists and philanthropists banded together, they now propose to "wipe disease from the face of the earth," and express hope that it will be outlawed as a major menace before its 100th birthday anniversary in 1940.

To help make this possible, the disease which Jacob Heine discovered will have the center of attention this January 30th when more than 5,000 communities in the United States will unite to raise funds for a nation-wide war against infantile paralysis.

The community affairs, in the form of birthday parties for President Roosevelt, the world's most famous victor in a personal battle against the disease, are being organized under a national committee whose chairman is Col. Henry L. Doherty and whose members include most of the nation's great philanthropic leaders. Proceeds from the parties are expected to supply a fund for year-in-year-out campaign against the disease. Seventy cents of every dollar raised will be retained by local communities to rehabilitate infantile paralysis victims, while 30 per cent will be turned over to a Birthday Ball Commission for Infantile Paralysis Research appointed by the President.

More than 4,000,000 persons are expected to attend the parties.

Excelsior Springs Mo. Dog Relief

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Jan. 14.—Even a mother dog knows that relief is not given to families by an able-bodied member who refuses to work. Brownie, a small mongrel, calls for his dinner every day from a local philanthropist. He steadfastly refuses to permit such a strapping pup, to accompany him on the trip, apparently fearing the will be eliminated from the "roll."
