600,000 PREDICTED IN GERMAN ARMY

REICH RETAINS FREEDOM TO REBUILD FLEET; NATIONS OF WORLD ARE SEEKING ALLIES

(Copyright, 1935, by United Press)
BERLIN, March 18.—The new German war machine already built on paper and already conducting "research" on land, sea, and in the air, may reach a total of 600,000 fighting men, the United Press was informed today.
Germany will retain freedom to rebuild her fleet, it was said, although reconstruction of the naval fighting machine must necessarily lag behind the creation of a great land army.
The huge expense of building a navy comparable to those of France and England would eliminate the possibility of rearming along those lines.
A new general staff will be created with three chiefs of staff over the respective army, navy, and air forces.

GREAT BRITAIN PROTESTS GERMAN REARMAMENT.
(Copyright, 1935, by United Press)
LONDON, March 18.—Great Britain formally protested to Germany today against creation of a Reich conscript army and indicated she would seek the advice of the United States as well as of other powers for the promotion of peace.
The English note of protest called Germany's announcement "a further example of one-sided action—calculated seriously to increase the uneasiness of Europe."
BULLETIN
PARIS, March 18.—A resolution calling on the government to extend the term of military service of the class already serving was submitted tonight to the chamber of deputies.

LONDON, March 18.—Sir John Simon, foreign minister, will leave by air Sunday for Berlin as previously planned, it was announced officially today.

The note was drafted by the cabinet at an emergency meeting this morning. It was strong in tone.
Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, announced the government already had consulted France and Italy, was considering the matter with all nations who signed the Versailles treaty, and might ask for a special session of the assembly of the League of Nations.
Although the United States is not a signatory to the Versailles treaty it has an interest because of the military clauses in the separate German-American peace treaty.

FRANCE CONSULTS ALLIES ON GERMAN MOVE.
PARIS, March 18.—France has addressed telegrams to allied governments outlining French views on German rearmament, a foreign office spokesman told the United Press today.
Government circles said France and her allies would move to conclusion of security pacts with or without Germany.
Confidence was expressed that an Eastern European treaty would be concluded soon.
The wish was expressed that, since France regards the German rearmament action as destroying the basis of the French-British proposal for consolidation, Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, would visit Paris before he went to Berlin.

U. S. ADMINISTRATION CONSIDERS POLICY.
WASHINGTON, March 18.—Administration officials met seriously today to begin shaping American policy and attitudes toward the German announcement of intention to break the Versailles treaty and to rearm.

Embargo Declared On Gold in Belgium
BRUSSELS, March 18.—Belgium today declared a modified embargo on gold and foreign exchange while officials insisted the gold standard position had not been weakened.

WALKOUT FOR RELIEF WORK IS PREDICTED
DALLAS, March 18.—A walkout on all work projects was expected today as Dallas relief clients continued their three-day assembly in a drastic cut in all relief appropriations.
Lodged in the city auditorium where they announced that they would stay three weeks if necessary, 500 relief strikers turned in their work cards yesterday and announced that all work relief projects would peacefully picketed during the day.
Many of the relief clients, taking part in the occupation of the auditorium, say they have nothing in their homes and are just as well off there.
They were entertained during the morning with musical numbers and speeches from the stage of the auditorium.

Rangers Continue Drive On Crime

LIQUOR FOUND AT 2 PLACES IN FT. WORTH

FORT WORTH, March 18.—As-swinging Texas rangers, led by Capt. Tom Hickman, swooped into Fort Worth today, raided two establishments allegedly violating state liquor laws, and had the "heat on" signal flashing to every hot spot in town.
Their first call was at the Alamo Tavern where they seized 250 cases of fancy liquor and wine.
Then the rangers jumped to a downtown pharmacy where they smashed 185 cases of liquor in the alley behind the building.

By United Press
Texas rangers armed with axes in addition to their customary six-guns, roved the state today ready to strike again at gambling, halls, saloons, and night clubs.
Arrests and seizures had closed elaborate night spots at Austin, Houston, and Galveston. It was believed rangers were turning north and west today, although they may skirt San Antonio where the sheriff's office has already caused night clubs to hide their liquor and lock their doors.
Tight lipped and firm, Adjutant General Carl Nesbitt, today indicated at Austin more raids are to follow. He strode from the governor's office and a few minutes later was out of town. The headquarters staff at Austin declined to reveal his destination.
"I would suggest to gamblers that they flee and seek more fertile fields while I am governor," Gov. James Alfred said.
"What of Dallas and Ft. Worth?" he was asked. "There are only 32 rangers but we will get around over the state until all are closed," he replied.

More Threatened As Flood Crest Shifts

By United Press
Floodwaters still threatened lowlands along Mississippi tributaries today. The crest of the flood shifted over the weekend and water receded over south Missouri, but spread across more than 100,000 acres in northeast Arkansas.
Danger was increased by backwater reported the Mississippi Engineering crest, was menacing rights along the White river in Tennessee.
Red Cross workers assisted in removing 500 families from the area, increasing to 2,600 families, now under relief care.

Son Brings Joy to Kidnap Suspect

The air of freedom and the company of her 5-year-old son, Jimmy, shown here on his cycle, bring joy to Mrs. Frances Robinson as she spends a few weeks of liberty at her Nashville, Tenn., home, free on $5,000 bond to await her March 18 trial in Louisville on a charge of complicity in the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Skoll. Mrs. Robinson was in jail for four months. Her husband, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., still is the target of a nation-wide search as the kidnaper.

Petitions Ask Probe Of Kingfish Actions

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Petitions from 19 states today asked the senate to investigate the Louisiana record of Sen. Huey Long as a counter movement to his anti-administration attacks. Senate leaders hoped that the petitions would give Long something to worry about while they pushed legislation which is pending.
The petitions reflected the national feeling stirred up for and against the Louisiana kingfish by his attacks on the administration and his share-or-wealth preaching. Hundreds of names were attached to them.
Sen. Walter George, D. Ga., chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections, to which the petitions were referred, said they contained no new charges and that in their present status they could not form the basis for an inquiry.

300 DELEGATES AT MEETING TO HALT EROSION

DALHART, March 18.—Delegates from 51 counties, five states met here today to plan emergency control of wind erosion and soil conservation of 3,000,000 acres of land in the high plains area.
Landowners, county judges, commissioners, bankers, business men anyone interested in preventing wind robberies of the fertile top soil from the panhandle area of Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado and Texas—were among the delegates.
Fundamentally, the plan sought is for the government to furnish gasoline for tractors and seed to farmers to plant an erosion resistant variety of grain sorghum in wide rows over land that otherwise will be bare and a prey to soil erosion.

Peace Indicated In Electrical Ranks

EL PASO, March 18.—For at least six months there will be peace in the electric industry here, it was indicated today.
Terms of the agreement which at last minute averted a strike threat provided that company officials would agree to the organization of a non-company union but refused to accede to a "closed shop."
All questions over wages and working conditions for the next six months were closed to arbitration.

TWO JURORS ARE SELECTED IN LOWE CASE

EASTLAND, March 18.—Qualifying jurors moved forward slowly here today in the trial of Jep Lowe, Eastland, on a charge of murder in connection with the alleged shooting of Seaman Garrison.
Only two jurors had been selected at 2:45 this afternoon. One hundred had reported for the special venire this morning.
Garrison was shot last Nov. 17 on the square at Eastland. A few minutes later Lowe was reported to have surrendered to officers and said, "I'm the man who did it."
Garrison and Lowe were said to have had some trouble a short time before the shooting.
Reason given for the lagging selection of jurors today was that many of the veniremen had known the defendant well. Lowe has lived in this county for many years.
Milton Lawrence is representing Lowe. Frank Judkins is assisting District Attorney Grady Owen with the prosecution.

High School Debate Begins at Eastland

Cisco high school debaters left today for Eastland to take part in the elimination contest in the interscholastic league meet. Finals of the debate contest will be held Friday night, it was announced.

The grammar school debate will be held after the rest of the county meet, it was announced.

There are 28 known victims of the disease in the world.

SULPHUR ADDS TO WEALTH OF TEXAS PEOPLE

AUSTIN, March 18.—Disregarding petroleum, which was produced in the sum of 194,702,037 barrels, Texas was enriched more by the production of sulphur than any other mineral during 1933, according to comparative figures compiled by the University of Texas bureau of economic geology. The 1,082,967 tons of sulphur mined had an aggregate value of $19,493,406. It was estimated on the basis of returns made to the state comptroller.
Cement was produced in the amount of 3,691,071 barrels, valued at $5,268,805; clay products, valued at $2,000,000 were produced; 1,215,820 tons of stone valued at $1,140,589 was mined, and gypsum totaling 112,106 tons valued at $1,058,869 was produced.
Other minerals produced in Texas in 1933 included the following: Asphalt, 126,069 tons, valued at $353,847; coal and lignite, valued at $833,000; Fuller's earth, 45,395 tons, valued at $411,350; lime, 36,286 tons, valued at $339,305; and miscellaneous minerals valued at $925,596.
No copper, no lead, no gold and no silver were included. No estimate was given of the amount of value of natural gas-gasoline produced. The total value of the minerals produced, aside from petroleum to which no value was given due to fluctuating price, was $34,089,202, as compared with $67,546,496 in 1931 and $59,249,072 in 1930.

Why Not Fair Salaries For Judges

Texas has its high court judges. They are men of eminence and loyal citizens and ever for justice for all concerned. Texas has its judges of many courts of appeals. Texas has a vast number of district judges. It is well that the lawmakers should take into consideration the effort made to pay these jurors living salaries. The judges are barred from practice in the courts of the country. They are not permitted to earn fees without the pale of the judicial area. They serve faithfully and the laborer is worthy of his hire. If they are unfaithful, then it is the fault of the people who elect or re-elect them. Cost of living has gone to the skies. It is so everywhere in America. Price indexes tell the story.

Texas is a state of vast wealth, considering its wonderful resources. Texans who are voters and taxpayers need to be reminded that an honest and faithful judge is a noble creation of God—jurists who believe that "justice and not the judge is sacred," loyal servants of the people who are for the constitution and ever for the right of man as defined by the organic or statutory laws made by the people. It is said that Texas is at the crossroads. There is a lot of truth in the saying. But Texas should not stand still. It should move forward and complete its destiny as forecast by the wise men who laid the midships of an empire.

Planning Board On Way To Governor

Lawmakers are cracking down, so to speak, by the enactment of important bills on the program of the governor. By a vote of 14 to 6 an administration bill previously approved 22 to 4 by the senate was enacted by the house, thus creating a planning board to correlate federal and state recovery programs. "Clearing the decks for important measures" is just as important as cracking down. This is the federal plan with the state cooperating in the execution of a federal-state program which would hasten recovery the country over and furnish employment for the idle who are willing to work. It is a Roosevelt administration measure and Texas, which gave Roosevelt the largest majority in its history, as well as the largest majority returned by an American commonwealth, has not sidestepped, in a legislative sense, and is ready for the future regardless of sectional lineups or the ambitions of men with personal axes to grind at the national capital or here at home.

America should go forward in the middle of the road and Americans should march to the music of the chief pipers who are for the flag and the constitution and the institutions of a sane and patriotic democracy.

House Lawmakers Move Forward

By a vote of 102 to 32 the Texas house of representatives passed the bill of commemoration the 100th anniversary of independence. This bill carried an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the observance of the historic event. Now the senate should push the measure along and the wires should carry the story to the American and foreign worlds that the 100th will be a red-letter page in Texas history as well as a statewide observance that will mark the glorious achievements of the pen of the historian as well as the achievements of the statesmen and patriots and heroes who made possible the Texas of today.

Centennial year is on the way. There should be hearty cooperation on the part of the people of all sections of the Southwestern empire in a paradise of the Lord where the natural treasure wealth would have excited the envy of Midas of old or the freebooters of the Spanish main who were the conquerors of Indian lands in the early days of the history of South American and Central American regions now on the map of the world.

No Change In Cotton Control of FDR

Texas cotton growers are reminded that there is to be no change in the federal administration cotton policy. Those in charge of the cotton set-up are going to continue the policy to eliminate the surplus—meaning, of course, cotton owned by the government and the large carry-over of other years. Parity prices will not be abandoned and whatever is done next year will be "along the lines of taking care of producers." Three basic industries of Texas are petroleum, cotton and livestock. More than 8,000,000 head of livestock were taken over by the government on account of drought and financial distresses of those who are engaged in the industry. The petroleum as a basic product is moving forward along state lines of control and conservation as well as to prevent the waste of natural gas under Southwestern skies. Face the future and let the diggers fight and win the battle for recovery as their forbears did in bygone years—when builders were builders and diggers were diggers.

A Big Corporation Out of Depression

Chicago has many great industrial corporations. It is the headquarters of the International Harvester company and all American farmers need not be told that the International Harvester company is a great and going concern. Its report for 1934 has been sent from the press and showed a net profit of $3,948,000 for that year, the first profit in several years—this compared with a net loss of $1,886,000 in 1933. There are small rainbows in the heavens and the sun continues to shine over the republic of the fathers. It is no place for crack-brained communists or those who would plot for the wreckage of the government and the democratic institutions founded or framed by the men who made America.

Clock's Music Box Lacks Three Tunes

PHILADELPHIA, March 18.—Mrs. Richard E. Norton, socially prominent matron, is searching for three pre-Revolutionary tunes without which an elaborate grand-father's clock, built in 1769, is not complete. In addition to two faces which tell time to the house, minute and second, and show the course of the planets from day to day, the other faces possess an intricate music box. Twenty-one of the original tunes which were popular when the clock was built still play perfectly, but the other three ancient melodies are so indistinct that the music is unintelligible. According to the dials these tunes are "Address to Sleep," "Seaman's Hymn" and "Lady Anthem." The tunes were popular when the clock was new Mrs. Norton said, but not even the Library of Congress has copies of them now.

CHERISHED BITTER ROOT

YAKIMA, Wash.—Offers of $2 a pound for dried bitter roots failed to find any takers among Yakima Reservation Indians. The roots are highly prized by the Indians and are used as seasoning for food at their annual ceremonial feasts each April. Chinese and Japanese herb men offered $3 a pound for the roots to be used as medicine.

BOTTLE AIDED MOTHER PIG

ANACORTTES, Wash.—Crop reduction days are over, decided a motherly hog owned by William Symonds. So she gave birth to 17 piglets. Symonds supplemented their diet with bottle fare. The sow provided table room for only 13.

RATTLER BLOW FASTEST MOVE FOR ANIMALS

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—Daniel Pratt Mannix, owner of what might be called a snake dairy, says the blow of a rattlesnake probably is the quickest motion in the animal kingdom.

According to Mannix the blow of a rattlesnake is so rapid that the human eye cannot follow it, and nothing within range can escape it. Mannix, 23, a University of Pennsylvania student, is owner, director and boss milker of the snake dairy at his home in Rosemont, near here.

Aids Science

The snake dairyman has a number of poisonous snakes, which he makes at regular intervals aid science and humanity by providing a serum for persons bitten by other reptiles.

Mannix, in forcing the snakes to supply the base for serums, picks up the reptile just back of the head. This has to be done very swiftly and accurately, so that the "milk-er" will not be bitten if the animal turns and strikes.

Teaspoonful of Poison

At the moment the fangs penetrate the cloth, the poison is discharged in a thin, greenish liquid. About a teaspoonful is the usual quantity discharged.

This liquid is then dried and in a very weak dilution is injected into horses. Mannix says. "These animals, by constant injections of up an immunity to the venom, and it is from them that the serum is obtained."

The snake farmer considers a big Florida diamond-back rattler the finest animal in his dairy, because it is more deadly than any other snake. The reptile was a Christmas present from his sister.

RUSSIAN CHESS EXPERT BEATS CAPABLANCA

MOSCOW, March 18.—Jose Raul Capablanca, world-famous chess player, met defeat at the hands of a young Russian expert, Nicolai Riumin in the opening game of the International Chess Tournament here.

The tournament, which has drawn the best players of Europe to Moscow, opened in the Museum of Fine Arts Building. The Capablanca-Riumin match was the outstanding one of six which were played simultaneously on the opening day.

Russians won most of the opening matches.

Against a queen opening, Capablanca chose Nimzovitch's defense. A clever ninth move by Riumin, however, placed him in an advantageous position, upon which he improved in move after move. Finally Capablanca's force were tied up on the "D" line. He found himself in a hopeless position and lost the match.

Another interesting game was that between the Russian, Michael Botvinnik, and Rudolf Spielmann in the Kavan-Kann defense. Spielmann used the version of the Hungarian master, Refir. Botvinnik knew this version very well. Russian masters analyzed it long ago and rejected it. So he was thoroughly prepared.

On the eighth move Spielmann lost a knight, on the tenth a queen

FRANCE OPENS REAL DRIVE ON TOURIST TRADE

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO, United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, March 18 — France at last has made a bid for revived tourist trade after months of activity by the press, hotels, travel agencies and members of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

The Office National du Tourisme has announced measures which will be taken to attract visitors to the capital for the Fetes de Paris season, May 26 to July 4.

Tickets at Discount

Tickets at discounts of 60 per cent will be put on sale during June in foreign countries for one-way travel to Paris from all ports. A five-day minimum stop here will be obligatory. Tickets for the return voyage and to French resorts, sporting centers and cities of interest will be offered with a 40 per cent reduction until July 31.

The government plans to issue two-month visas for ten francs, an appreciable saving to Americans, who now pay 50 francs to enter France.

Seek Travel Groups

Encouragement will be offered to travel groups and non-political professional groups who will be admitted without passports, providing the members are able to show a card establishing their identity.

Hotel keepers and pension owners are planning to make special five-day offers. Together with five days in the hotel or pension will be included three meals with wine, sightseeing drives about Paris, an evening at the theater and transportation to and from the hotel.

Indian Tribe Seeks New Fish Hatchery

LAC DU FLAMBEAU, Wis., March 18 — The Lac du Flambeau Indian tribe, under new self-government, has approved plans for immediate construction of one of the largest fish hatcheries in the United States, with a capacity of more than 100,000 game fish per year.

The plans include construction of the largest muskellunge, pike and bass rearing ponds ever attempted. Two entire lakes have been set aside by the tribe for propagation of bass alone.

These fish will be used to stock only the lakes within the Flambeau Reservation, which has a population of about 600 Chippewa Indians and is located in Vilas County, Wisconsin. The reservation has a total area of 144 square miles and is said to be the most concentrated lake region in Wisconsin, containing more than 300 spring fed lakes.

The reservation has opened these lakes to the public and the tribe has available 70 trained Indian guides who will handle tourists. The guides will conduct visitors to the tribal ceremonial dances on the reservation.

WALLA WALLA, Wash. — Walla Walla claimed one of the lowest fire records in the nation for cities in the 15,000 population class. In 1934 total destruction was $10,423.49, lowest in more than 10 years.

Behind the scenes with THE TELEPHONE LICENSE CONTRACT

How the staff services we get under it have helped us give good telephone service at fair cost to you.

Loss on the work it has done for the operating companies.

The yearly fee we pay is equivalent to about 3/10 of one per cent of our investment in telephone plant. Stated another way... less than a cent and a half of every dollar we receive from telephone customers.

Yet without it, telephone service as fast, as clear and as low in cost as you now receive would be quite unlikely.

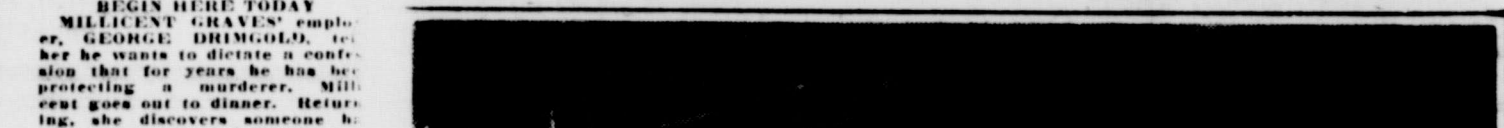

We have passed on to the telephone user in the Southwest the benefits and savings of this staff work, in the belief that in an undertaking planned for the long run, like the telephone service, such a policy will in the end bring us the sounder, more enduring success.

Staff Services... at Cost

The A. T. & T. has provided substantially at cost the many services this staff performs. In fact, in the last few years it has taken an actual

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

The DARK BLOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILlicent Graves' employer, GEORGE DRINGOLD, tells her he wants to dictate a confession that for years he has been protecting a murderer. Millicent goes out to dinner. Returning, she discovers someone has taken her purse, substituting one exactly like it. She goes back to the tearoom, on the way meeting a distinguished-looking man in middle age.

No one in the tearoom knows anything about Millicent's purse. She goes back to the office, Dringold dead. In panic she rushes from the building, registers at a hotel under an assumed name.

Next day she learns police are searching for her. Again she sees the distinguished-looking man who met her the night before. He tells her his name is JARVIS HANSON and that he wants to help her. Hanson puts Millicent into a car, gives the driver an address of their disappearance.

Millicent, frightened, orders it to stop.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV

THE cab driver looked back at Millicent.

"Beg pardon, Miss," he said. "The gentleman said not to go back under any circumstances, and..."

"Go back!" she screamed. "Go back at once! Do you hear me?"

She could find no fault with the speed with which the cab driver sent the car back on its course. It seemed that within less than a minute of the time her mysterious escort had opened the door and vanished, the cab had once more pulled up to the curb on the opposite side of the street.

"He got out right over there, Miss," the driver said. "I stopped on this side of the street because I thought you were in a hurry."

She nodded, and, pressing her face to the glass window, surveyed the opposite side of the street.

She found no trace of the man who had given the name of Jarvis C. Happ. But, with a swiftly frightened intake of breath, she recognized a police car parked at the opposite curb.

Millicent tapped on the glass partition in something of a panic.

"All right," she said, "drive on."

"To Mills street?" the driver asked.

"Yes," she said, "the Acme beauty parlor."

The driver nodded and grinned. She thought for a moment that he leered suggestively across the street at the police car.

THE cab shot forward, slid smoothly through the gears, and turned at the corner. Millicent strained her eyes through the back window of the car, looking to see if she was followed.

Too late she realized that the cab driver was fully aware of her anxious scrutiny. His eyes were reflected in the rear view mirror as he watched her with cynical appraisal.

Millicent whirled about and huddled herself in the seat, her eyes fixed rigidly straight ahead. She thought of the money her strange friend had given her. She was holding it clenched tightly in her hand.

Slowly she counted the money. There was $676 in bills of varying denominations.

The cab driver swung the car out of traffic, slowed cautiously and crept in close to the curb.

"The bill," he said, "is all paid, and so's the tip."

Millicent looked up and saw a display window setting forth various transformations. Across the window, in gilt lettering, appeared the words, "Acme Beauty Parlor."

The cab driver jumped back to his position behind the wheel, slammed the cab into low gear, drove hurriedly away. Something in the very nature of his haste made Millicent feel that he was going upon some very definite errand.

Her knees felt weak as she realized that there was the possibility he was returning to report to the officers in that police car, or it might be that he was acting under instructions to rejoin Mr. Happ at some rendezvous which had been arranged in their whispered conversation.

Millicent suddenly realized just how she looked, clutching a roll of currency in her hand. There was a leather goods store three doors down the street. Millicent went to it, purchased a cheap purse, and then went directly to the beauty parlor.

"Miss Hanson," she told a blond woman with searching eyes who greeted her.

"You have an appointment?"

"Yes," Millicent said.

The young woman reached languidly for a leather-bound notebook.

"What was the name?" she asked.

CURTAINS AT THE REAR OF THE ROOM PARTED. A small, slender brunet, with something regal in her bearing, stepped into the room.

"Never mind, Evelyn," she said. "I'm expecting this young woman. Won't you step this way?"

She smiled reassuringly. Millicent followed her through the curtains into a passageway which was lined with booths. Her guide walked the length of this corridor, turned the knob of a door at the end, and stood to one side.

Millicent Graves walked through the door and into a room which was lined with white tile, the very floor being spotlessly white. An operating table occupied the center of the room; a chair of the type used by barbers was at one side.

Miss Hanson closed the door. A spring lock clicked into position.

Millicent said rapidly, "I don't want any treatment, Miss Hanson. I came here because I want you to tell me where I can find the man who made the appointment with you for my work. I think you must know who he is. I've got to find him at once."

The large, dark eyes of the brunet woman surveyed Millicent Graves in calm appraisal.

"Yes," she said slowly. "I can transform your appearance so that your own mother wouldn't know you."

"But that isn't what I want," Millicent said. "I want to get in touch with the man who made the appointment. I must see him at once."

The wide, dark eyes didn't change expression by so much as a flicker.

"I think," she said, "that you're not the best judge of exactly what it is you do want, Miss Graves."

Millicent started as she heard the woman so casually use her correct name.

"You know who I am then?" she asked.

"Yes," said Miss Hanson. "Please be seated."

She indicated the chair, and Millicent dropped into it, realizing that she had indeed burnt her bridges; that these people held her completely in their power; that any story she might be able to tell the police would sound so wildly incredible that it would not be worthy of belief.

MISS HANSON'S unruffled manner radiated complete composure. She smoothed back Millicent's hair, studied the contour of her face, then brought out a brunet transformation which she carefully fitted to the girl's head, pulled down a "U" arrangement of mirrors which she adjusted about Millicent's head.

"How," she asked, "does that look?"

"I'm more interested in knowing," Millicent said, "exactly why it is that you..."

"Do you," Miss Hanson interrupted, "think that looks all right?"

"Yes," Millicent said.

"Your skin," Miss Hanson remarked, speaking as impersonally as though she had been surveying an inanimate figure, "is too light to go with that hair. The newspapers have described you as a golden blond with light skin and deep blue eyes. We've got to give that skin a stain—one that will take several weeks to wear off."

"Can you do that?" Millicent asked.

"Yes," she said, "but it may be painful. You'll have a desire to rub at your face. If you rub the skin the stain won't be uniform. It will be necessary for me to clamp your hands to the chair. I can assure you it won't be painful. It will be done in just this manner."

She smoothed Millicent's dress back from the wrist, placed her arms parallel along the arm of the chair.

"See," she said, "you'll have to hold them this way."

She pressed a button. There was a click of a spring, steel bands shot out from the underside of the arm, circled Millicent's wrist.

"Now," she said, "it won't be painful."

Panic filled Millicent Graves' eyes. She tried to speak calmly, authoritatively.

"Thank you," she said, "I don't think I care for the treatment. Please liberate my wrists."

Miss Hanson didn't answer immediately. She was standing with her face turned away from the chair, looking toward a door at the other side of the room. There was something expectant in her gaze.

Millicent's eyes followed those of the tall brunet. Suddenly she saw a door open. A white-robed figure entered the room.

Miss Hanson spoke calmly, almost casually. "Everything is in readiness," she said. "You may administer the anesthetic."

The white-robed figure produced a paper cone lined with cotton. The odor of ether became apparent.

Millicent opened her mouth to scream, and the cone was clamped over her mouth and nostrils as she sucked in her breath.

Miss Hanson's hands held Millicent's head. She struggled frantically, kicked and tried to scream once more. Her lungs filled with the anesthetic.

Radio Guides Model Of U. S. S. California

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—No one will be aboard when the U. S. S. California races across the channel from San Pedro to Catalina Island next June.

Not even the skipper will be on the bridge. He'll be following in another boat a quarter of a mile behind steering the California by radio.

For the cruise will be made by a much reduced super-dreadnaught, a 10-foot four-horsepowered model of the United States Battle Fleet's flagship.

Howard E. Babby general manager of the Los Angeles Society of Model Engineering, is the ship's owner and designer.

When finished, the little battleship will have self-firing turrets, controllable rudder, and automatic engine. It will cost $2,000.

Babby said his model would have a cruising speed of 19 knots—enough to outrace the Catalina steamer—on the channel crossing same calm day next June.

You Cannot Escape Your Obligations

The ownership of an automobile involves a moral obligation. That obligation is to deal justly with the person who is unfortunate enough to be injured by your car.

Because a just settlement of such a claim may cost $10,000 or even $25,000, you buy automobile insurance to protect yourself.

But unless you are insured in a company which deals justly with the injured claimant, you are not squarely meeting the obligation.

The Travelers settles a large percentage of its automobile liability claims amicably, out of court—to the satisfaction of both parties involved.

Michigan Peninsula Canal Plan Revived

GLADSTONE, Mich., March 18.—The proposed Au Train canal across the upper Michigan peninsula connecting Lakes Superior and Michigan, first suggested in 1887, again is receiving support here.

State officials recently submitted the project to the Federal Relief Administration for survey, study and preliminary planning. The estimated cost is $85,000,000. The canal would be 36 miles long and would reduce the cost of transporting iron and copper ores from northern Michigan and Minnesota to Chicago in addition to its advantages in national defense.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

Marrying Justice Gets Single Kiss

CROYDEN, Pa., March 18.—James Laughlin, this town's "marrying justice," apparently is very shy. In his total of 1,239 ceremonies he says he has kissed but one bride.

He adds, "And she kissed me." He officiated at 114 weddings in 1933 in the Bucks county "Gretina Green," but during the year 1934 his total jumped to 738, an increase of 644 knot-tyings over the previous year.

"I have a good start this year," he said.

The dining room of the Laughlin home is the scene of all the ceremonies. It is here Mrs. Laughlin plays her part. Years ago her father gave her a thin metal disc in an aged music box. The notes of the Wedding March always are there.

The justice also obtained marriage licenses for 46 couples who went elsewhere to be married. He claims to have traveled about 15,000 miles in the last year driving between his home and Doylestown, the county seat, getting licenses.

Persons from all walks of life and of all nationalities, ranging from 17 to 70, come to him for their weddings.

More Charters Are Issued in February

AUSTIN, March 18.—An increase occurred both in number and capitalization of new charters granted to Texas corporations during February in comparison with January. According to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, there was, however, a sharp drop from the previous month.

the bureau's report said. "All classes of corporations showed a decline in number of new charters granted as compared with February of last year there was a sharp increase in the number granted manufacturing, banking, finance, and real-estate building concerns."

—so far as we know tobacco was first used about 400 years ago

—throughout the years what one thing has given so much pleasure..so much satisfaction

It was a matter of pride with a host in Colonial days that his guests should smoke tobacco grown on his own plantation.

Today the Governor of North Carolina says to the Governor of South Carolina—
"Have a cigarette"

TODAY people all over the world use tobacco in one form or another. They chew it, they smoke it in pipes, they smoke cigars and cigarettes, and here is what an eminent physician said about cigarettes:

"I have been something of a student of cigarettes, and it is my belief that they offer the mildest and purest form in which tobacco is used."

Yes, nowadays the cigarette is the most popular form in which tobacco is used. A good cigarette certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure.

Have a Chesterfield—
For one thing—they're milder.
For another thing—they taste better.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS.
