BIG SWIMMING POOL TO OPEN FRIDAY

CISCOANS BUY ALL STOCK OF NON-RESIDENTS; WORK BEGINS MONDAY TO IMPROVE GROUND

Cisco's swimming pool has returned to Cisco ownership. A group of local men who have been negotiating for control of the huge pool have secured possession of it, it was announced by F. E. Harrell, one of the group and formerly manager of the Lake Cisco Amusement company. The pool will be thrown open to the public this week, Harrell said. An effort is being made to open it Friday. "We're going to start work on the pool Monday," Harrell said, "and put into first class shape."

LAUNCHING OF TWO-YEAR NRA PLAN MAPPED

WASHINGTON, May 25—House democratic leaders prepared today to launch President Roosevelt's two-year NRA extension bill into what may become one of the bitterest congressional fights of the session. The house ways and means committee was ready to begin drafting the "seven-point" administration bill after hearing both opponents and proponents of the recovery act. It is expected to reach the house floor next week. The belief apparently was increasing among house members that NRA should either be extended two years or killed now. There appeared but little house support for the senate nine-and-a-half month's extension plan. The attitude of the house and the announced intention of senate opponents to NRA to oppose a compromise appeared to increase the possibility of a deadlock such as delayed the work relief bill for several weeks.

labor to beautify the grounds about the pool, although the work on the pool and the property on which it is located will be financed by the new owners. A group of Cisco citizens, the names of whom will be made public in a few days, late Friday consummated the purchase of all the stock held by non-residents and of all outstanding bonds of the Lake Cisco Amusement company. Sales contract and cash guarantee are now in escrow in a Cisco bank and the purchasers are in possession of the property, work to begin on it as outlined by Harrell. It was announced by the Cisco American and Daily News Friday that the pool would open soon, regardless of who would be operating it. The changing of hands of the property followed closely upon this announcement.

Opening Late The pool has been much later in opening this year than in the past, due to the fact that neither of the two groups involved in the negotiations felt that it could begin the operations for the summer. The huge pool, said to be the largest artificial swimming pool in the world, annually attracts thousands of people from all parts of the country. Many schools in West Texas hold their annual spring outings here, and the pool, together with the lake, annually attracts many organizations to hold their picnics at Cisco.

Revival Continues Through Next Week

The revival being conducted at the Church of God by Evangelist J. Harvey Wright of Craig, Mo., will continue through next week. The meeting thus far has been very satisfactory, according to Rev. C. S. Moad, pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright's singing has been greatly enjoyed by themany that have heard him, as well as his timely messages. His subject for Sunday morning at 11 o'clock will be, "How a Christian Can Help the Devil." In the evening service at 8 o'clock Rev. Mr. Wright will give his life's story, "From Cowboy to the Pulpit." Everybody has a very cordial invitation to attend these services.

Little Keeps His British Golf Title

ST. ANNE'S ON THE SEA, ENGL. — May 25 — Lawson Little of San Francisco made golfing history today when he became the first United States player to capture the British amateur championship title. Little, defending the title which he won last year, today defeated Dr. Will Tweedell, one up in the 36-hole final. Little is the first man since the turn of the century to have swung the title two years in succession. Harold Hilton, who won it twice, captured the title in 1900 and 1901. Little led from the first hole to the 30th where Dr. Tweedell scored a second successive birdie to square the match. From then on out it was Little's.

Roosevelt Offers Cities Cash Gift

WASHINGTON, May 25—President Roosevelt today offered cities an outright gift of $405,000,000 as an incentive to join in the work relief program. He ruled the $900,000,000 public works money in the $4,000,000,000 employment fund should be distributed to municipalities on a 45 per cent grant and 55 per cent loan basis. He set interest rate at three per cent. PWA distributed its original $3,300,000,000 by granting 30 per cent grant and loaning the other 70 which certified bonds as collateral.

Lumber King's Son Is Kidnaped

MISSED WHEN HE FAILED TO RETURN HOME

TACOMA, Wash., May 25 — George Weyerhaeuser, 9-year-old son of John Phillip Weyerhaeuser, Jr., official of the nation's largest lumber concern, was missing from his home today, a supposed victim of kidnapers. Members of the family, however, would neither affirm nor deny that a note had been received. The boy was last seen just before noon Friday, enroute to school to meet his sister, Anne, 13, six blocks away. The family chauffeur waited to take them home to lunch. George left with a classmate, Bruce Bowman. They parted a short distance away. No one else of the neighborhood could recall seeing the Weyerhaeuser boy afterward.

Phoned School When he failed to appear at the seminary where he was registered, Anne returned home with the chauffeur. At 1:30 p. m. the boy was still missing and his aunt, Mrs. Rodney Titcomb, called the principal of the school. When the principal could give no clue, police were notified. A postal messenger delivered a letter to the home at 6:25 p. m. Members of the family refused to divulge its contents. It was believed to be the ransom demand, and supposedly was turned over to federal investigators who had interested themselves in the case, according to J. Edgar Hoover in charge of the Chicago office of the federal investigators.

300 Bandits Killed By Japanese Shells

TOKIO, May 25 — A Japanese cannonade which killed 300 "bandits" north of Peiping was reported today by the Nippon Dempo (Japanese News Agency) correspondent at Hsinking. The Japanese lost six killed, the dispatch said. The Japanese correspondent reported that the Kwantung army had announced that the Chinese refused to expel 1,000 bandits from the neutral zone 80 miles from Peiping.

Starhemberg Head Of Austrian Army

VIENNA, May 25 — Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, gascist, monarchist, and head of one of the proudest princely families of Europe, today came virtual dictator of Austria to-day. By official decree he was given command of all of the country's armed forces, comprising the federal army of 35,000 and four "private" armies totalling 147,000. In effect, the decree also circumvents the military clauses of the St. Germain treaty, in that it incorporates the federal army in a fatherland front into which the official armies have been merged. Starhemberg's position now practically overthrows that of Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnig, in whose cabinet he remains vice chancellor.

POTATO DOWNPOUR BRIGHAM CITY, Utah

Potatoes streamed into the street like water after a truck and automobile collision here. Three tons of spuds, in hundred pound bags, were deposited in the center of the street.

CISCOAN, HONORED TODAY, TELLS OF OLD-TIME PHONE SERVICE

P. Pettit, pioneer telephone supervisor of this section, goes to Mineral Wells today, where he becomes a member of the Pioneers of America, a telephone organization that requires 21 years of service to qualify for membership. Pettit has been eligible for membership in this organization for some four years but has not become a member until now. "I well remember," he said reminiscently, "many years ago when I was installing a telephone system at Anson, that the doubting bystanders shook their heads and said anybody should know that you couldn't talk thirty miles over a little wire. Of course something would happen, and did. The other end of the response from at Abilene. Every wire, which was as silent as the grave. Then, of course, they knew they were right. The next day as I drove into Abilene I found the lightning had struck two posts and grounded the wire. So naturally I could not get any message over it."

Osteopaths To Hold Meet Here Saturday

Convention Host

Osteopaths from all over the state will be here for the West Texas Osteopathic association's convention next Saturday, it was predicted yesterday by Dr. G. M. Stephenson, Cisco osteopath, who will be host to the association. Featured at the convention will be a western style barbecue at the Stephenson ranch northeast of Cisco, where the meeting will be held. Preparations are already being made for the barbecue, Dr. Stephenson said Saturday. Dr. Hubert Seale, Cisco physician and surgeon, will make the address of welcome to the visiting doctors, it was announced. Dr. Sam L. Scotchorn will respond. Following the banquet, which will be held late Saturday evening, there will be addresses by two prominent osteopaths, Dr. R. H. Peterson of Wichita Falls and Dr. Charles F. Kennedy of Fort Worth. A business session of the association will follow, it was announced.

Cisco Doctors Invited

"All my friends of the medical profession here are invited to be guests at the barbecue," Dr. Stephenson said Saturday. The barbecue will be served to the visiting doctors in banquet style. "We don't want to bother with a catch-a-catch-can cafeteria style," Dr. Stephenson said. The Cisco Boosters are sponsoring a motorcade to show the visitors Lake Cisco and other points of interest next Sunday morning. It was announced. The procession will start at the Laguna hotel at 9 o'clock. The doctors have been invited to make use of the local country club and golf course.

Church Announces Summer Bible Class

The First Christian church vacation Bible school will begin Monday, June 3, it was announced Saturday. The school will include three departments of boys and girls from five to 13 years, the beginners, primary, and juniors. The junior department will have a Bible course dealing with the life of Christ from the prophesy through His Ascension. Manual training will be offered for the boys and sewing for the girls. The primary department will take up the study of "God and Nature", and will make scrap books and peep boxes. The beginners' department will study the children's place in the home and will make scrap books. The classes will meet five days a week, from 8:30 until 11:30 a. m. Miss Nadine Sherwin of Randolph college urged mothers of all denominations to send their children to the school.

MAN FIRED ON BY ASSAILANT FRIDAY NIGHT

Cisco police Saturday had no clues as to the mysterious shot fired at a man returning to his home near here Friday night. Guy Abbott reported to police Friday night that he was fired upon from beside the road as he was returning to his home seven miles southwest of Cisco. The shooting, he said, occurred at about 10 p. m. Abbott was driving along Front street, and as he turned into the curve of the Scranton road heard a report which he at first took to be a blowout. His tires were all intact, however, but he found that a bullet, entering through his car window, had gone through the windshield. The direction of the bullet indicated that Abbott was fired upon from the side and a little to the rear, local officers said Saturday. They were at a loss to account for the shooting but believed that it was a case of mistaken identity.

CAT LIKES HOLIDAYS PORTLAND, Me. — Peggy Ann, 10-year-old mottle-colored cat, is strictly a holiday mother. Her last four litters of kittens have been born on holidays. Last year, the kittens were born to Peggy Ann on Patriot's Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day. Her latest litter came St. Patrick's Day and now her family totals 108.

Reporter Jailed for Keeping Mum

Martin Mooney, newspaper reporter, shown here as he was led to Tombs prison, New York City is the central figure in a test case that will be fought to high courts to determine a reporter's right to refuse disclosure of his sources of information. He was given 30 days in jail and fined $250 for refusing to answer grand jury questions on a series he wrote on vice conditions.

"Lay Off Major Companies" Testified At Hearing Upon Hot Oil Regulation

AUSTIN, May 25—Records of a hearing on regulation to enforce the hot oil confiscation law were held open today to permit insertion if possible of the names of four railroad commission employees whom J. M. Roark, Dallas, testified had told him they were instructed to "lay off" major companies. Roark was pressed to name the men or describe them. He said he thought he could get their names and promised to do so if possible, "though it will probably cost them their jobs."

SEVEN CLUBS WILL PLAY IN NIGHT GAMES

Seven teams will be represented in the city softball league when night play starts Tuesday night, it was announced Saturday by League Chairman Rex Page. The clubs which certified rosters to the league committee this weekend were Community Gas, W. O. W., Nance, Garner's, Humble Boosters, Cisco Independents, and Loboes. The first game, under the lights will bring together the Nance club and the Cisco Independents Tuesday night. Members of the league committee are C. R. Stages of Cisco As Center For Conventions Pointed Out By Writer people will pour into the coming year if the conventions, and religious meetings, and materialize. The Commerce Boosters, and-minded organizations are bidding meetings which will pay from a financial as advertising standpoint.

MY THOMSON Staff Writer

One could easily imagine the drawing power that speed and sail boat races, water carnivals, and swimming tournaments, which would attract the leading spots people of the southwest, would have for convention time-and-place committees.

Friendly City

Conventions would find Cisco streets clean and progressive in appearance, business men alert and the citizenship ready with a welcome handclasp.

Located as it is at the crossing of two important national and international highways, Cisco is easily accessible by automobile from West, North, Northwest, South, and East Texas, and only a few hours from the most heavily populated centers of the state.

These are only a few of the things which give Cisco a distinct advantage when it is considered by those planning to hold a convention.

Must makes the dance, and when Lloyd Hughes brings Ruth Ellington and her great orchestra to Lake Cisco, Friday night, May 31, dance lovers of this section will be afforded an opportunity to listen and dance to one of the most popular dance orchestras in America. Their progress may be attributed in no small measure to the popularity of Robert Clark, featured Master of Ceremonies. Whenever the band has played, Ruth Ellington and Robert Clark have left a lot of admirers.

Dancers of this territory will be privileged to listen and dance to one of the first of the colored name orchestras of the nation. Just as such names as Don Redman, Cab Calloway, Duke Ellington, lead the parade of colored bands of the present day, so did Jim. Europe, Louis Armstrong, and Ruth Ellington lead the parade of colored orchestras for years. In fact, most of the present day colored names obtained their start in the bands led by one of the above leaders.

Ruth Ellington and her Orchestra come to Lake Cisco with a record of achievement that equals any colored band in America. They know their music and they will certainly entertain hand thru those who will be privileged to listen to their program of music and entertainment. Led by one of the best of all show-women, playing a versatile program of American and continental tunes, Ruth Ellington's orchestra, featuring the famous Robert Clark, promises an unusually entertaining evening for all who come to listen and dance to their music.

Legion, Firemen In Donkey Ball Game

The American Legion and the Fire Department will meet in a donkey baseball game at Chesley park this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A small admission fee will be charged it was announced.

Plenty of fun was promised local fans who came out to see the Vets and the Firemen try to make their talky steeds perform in the approved manner necessary for the best interests of the national game.

Gift For Japanese College Planned By Church Women Here

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church will celebrate the twenty-third birthday anniversary of the Southern Presbyterian Auxiliary. Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church basement. The 1935 birthday objective is Golden Castle college, Nagoya, Japan, a girls' school.

This year's gift will be a permanent auditorium for the college. Each member of the Auxiliary is to bring a free-will offering of any amount which she wishes to give. This year the offering will be wrapped in small squares of silk.

A splendid program has been planned under the direction of the secretary, Mrs. A. E. Jamison, in the form of a play, "Golden Castle Alumnae Meeting". The play will be presented in costume. All members are urged to be present.

Social Meeting Of Alathean Class Is Held on Thursday

Thursday evening the Alathean Sunday School class of the First Baptist church met with a business and social meeting in the home of Mrs. P. L. Lee, 1211 West Tenth street, which was beautifully decorated with wild blossoms.

Mrs. R. E. Kizer, president, presided during the session and introduced Miss Jewel Ely who favored this society with special violin music. Following a brief business session the society made scrap books for shut-ins. The rest of the afternoon was spent in playing games.

The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Miss Ovelia Lee, served delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake to the following: Mesdames T. E. House, Robert Harper, F. E. Sheperd, W. J. Parsons, E. L. Weldon, Ira Robinson, A. B. Cooper, Lee Humphries, Doc Isenhower, W. F. Walker, O. G. Lawson, Kate Richardson, R. E. Kizer, John Smith, C. S. Karkalis of Eastland, Harley Laws of Amarillo and Misses Jewel Ely, Lucile Harper, Mary Catherine Sheperd, and Bobby Lee Cooper.

Mrs. Littleton Is Hostess To Cresset Members on Friday

Members of the Cresset club were guests Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Vance Littleton, West Fourth street. Games of bridge were played in rooms where garden flowers made a lovely background.

Mrs. K. N. Greer was awarded a hand made pillow cases for high score prize and Mrs. A. C. Green drew high cut which was a hand-crocheted chair back.

Delicious refreshments were served by Miss Albertine Berry, home economist for the Community Natural Gas company. Frozen shrimp salad with hot cheese biscuits, potato chips, olives, and baked pear salad topped with cherries and whipped cream were served with tea to Mesdames L. C. Moore, H. L. Dyer, J. B. Pratt, K. N. Greer, Oran Shackelford, George Atkins, L. A. Warren, Ocie Leveridge, R. C. Hayes, A. C. Green, Jack Cabaness, D. Ball, and B. C. Metcalf.

Methodist Hospital Man To Speak Here

Dr. C. R. Wright, commissioner for the Fort Worth Methodist hospital, will be guest speaker for the First Methodist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Wright has held many leading pulpits in the Central Texas Methodist conference and upon completion of four years as presiding elder of the Waxahachie district. He was appointed by the bishop to take the important post of hospital commissioner.

Dr. Wright's purpose in coming to Cisco is to inform the people about the work of this hospital. He proposed no collection, though he will probably present the work of the Golden Cross of Methodism Ministry of Healing. He was characterized by the local pastor a fluent speaker, a pleasing personality, and an elegant Christian gentleman.

Visitor Is Given Surprise Luncheon

A surprise luncheon was given Friday at one o'clock in the home of Mrs. A. Sandhofer, honoring her daughter-in-law and guest, Mrs. J. Shreuder of Houston.

The dining table was centered with a lovely bouquet of snapdragons. Following luncheon, games of bridge were played in which Mrs. Homer McDonald was given a beautiful vase for high score prize and Mrs. R. B. Carswell a honey jar for low.

Present were Mesdames W. W. Wallace, R. B. Carswell, Homer McDonald, A. E. Jamison, P. R. Warwick, L. Y. Siddall, P. J. Borman, E. H. Phillips guest J. Shreuder and A. Sandhofer.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHET FORECASTS FUTURE FOR GRADUATES THIS YEAR

IN THE LAND OF BY AND BY

The day was warm and balmy, a typical May day, and the Senior class Prophet was busy worrying about the future of her fellow classmates. As she worried, she walked through the cool green woods by a rippling brook listening to the birds sing and the soft rustle of the leaves in a light spring breeze, vainly trying to fit the invisible key into the invisible door of the invisible future, and to learn something of the fate or fortune of her classmates at some distant date. She finally gave it up as a bad job, intending to tell the class on the very next day to get a prophet that was inspired, and sat down under a tree by the brook side wishing that she had a fairy god-mother to take her for a visit to the land of By and By.

Hazy thoughts and disconnected sentences ran through her mind as she sat drowsily nodding in the shade.

Suddenly, and so very unexpectedly that the Class Prophet jumped, a voice at her elbow said, "Get into my coach, this way to the land of By and By," and the Prophet, on looking around, saw the ugliest and queerest of all gnomes.

"Why, who are you?" she demanded, unwilling to go unless properly introduced.

"I am Jack-of-all-Trades, your fairy god-mother's handy-man-about-the-kingdom of Fairyland," he replied. "Come on, we haven't forever to do this, you know. Your god-mother couldn't come, so she sent me, but she told me I must be back before sunset." As he spoke the pixie opened the carriage door, and beckoned the doubting Prophet to enter, which she in bewilderment did. He then securely fastened the door, and clambered up to his seat to drive the winged fairy horses which were as gaudily colored as butterflies.

With the swiftness of a passing record, the carriage passed through a well guarded gate, and stopped before a high, and apparently, treacherous bluff.

"Why, what's wrong?" the Prophet wondered, but just then a shrill shriek echoed through the morning stillness, and crouching perilously near the edge of the abrupt precipice, cowering a small dog by the scruff of the neck, the Prophet saw a tall, dark woman standing just behind her a tall portly man who was grasping her arm in an effort to keep her from tumbling over the cliff after her adored dog. A tall handsome man dressed in golfing togs left his frightened wife, and strode manfully to the rescue. In the twinkling of an eye, he had the dog safely landed, and stood assuring his better half that he was none the worse for the venture, while the beautifully costumed lady sobbed hysterically into her pet's fur, and the tall gentleman, also in golfing togs, and with the gleaming bald head practically tried to comfort her.

The Prophet's eye wandered until she saw a beautiful mansion commanding the highest point of view not far away, and a wonderfully clean golf course adjoining. The Prophet knew instantly that only people of wealth could dwell there.

Some haunting memory presented itself to the Prophet's mind concerning the quartet on the cliff, and she looked once more toward them. Then memory asserted itself! The weeping woman was Ruby Thompson, her husband was Senteil Carey, the other man was J. W. Thomas, and his wife was the former Melba Ray!

"Well," the Prophet reflected as the carriage started violently forward, "they seem to have been very fortunate."

Then the queerest thing happened. The Prophet discovered she was no longer riding in a carriage drawn by winged horses, but in a luxurious limousine with a funny little elf for chauffeur. Shortly they stopped before a filling station, and some attendants busily carried out the commands issued by the ugly fairy.

One of the attendants, in wiping the windshield, accidentally left a dirty smudge the whole length of the otherwise sparkling glass.

"The service here is as poor as ever," angrily complained the elf, when anybody could see the poor man didn't leave the smudges purposely.

The Prophet was attracted by something familiar about this man and his employer who, on hearing a voice raised in complaint against the service at his station came out on the scene. By watching them closely, the Prophet soon recognized the attendant, who was dressed in a uniform, as Billy Doty, and his employer as J. G. Ruppe.

The next stop was compulsory.

Jackie—as the Prophet insisted on calling the gnome—had slightly over-stepped the limits of the law in his desire to obey his mistress.

"Speeding! Doing at least 150 miles an hour," growled a burly policeman, as he wrote out a ticket and handed it to the chauffeur. (You'll please remember that this particular vehicle could make 150 miles an hour because it was manufactured by the fairies). In the brief instant that the Prophet saw him, she recognized Edwin Curry.

After another five minutes driving they were going slower now, because the elf had no desire to make any unnecessary stops—a small hot-dog stand appeared in the distance, and the driver, seeming to divine the Prophet's wish, stopped, sounded the horn, and ordered the hot-dog from a woman who stuck her head inquiringly through the window, and showed a white set of teeth in a flashing smile. Then, with out withdrawing her head, she repeated the order loudly to someone within.

"Draw, make it a couple of pupes!" "Well, forevermore," gasped the Prophet. "It is! Elizabeth Walters! And—why, that's Drew Gorham!" she continued as a smartly attired man appeared with the tissue paper wrapped hot-dogs.

As they drove away, the Prophet noticed that the Gorham's seemed to be doing a thriving business for car after car stopped there. No wonder they could afford to be cheerful!

A mile or more farther on, the great car in which the Prophet was riding slowly approached a beautiful country home. The house was large and white, surrounded by huge shade trees and fragrant flowers, and broad, green acres of fertile pasture land. Splendid horses, easily recognizable as thorough-breeds, tossed gleaming manes and grazed quietly in the pasture.

A large sign in the front of the house easily deciphered from the distance announced, "Thorough-bred horses for sale. See O. C. Barnhill, owner."

A fragment of a lullaby drifted over the still air, and the Prophet saw Rosamond Heath rocking a sleepy baby in a deep chair on the front porch. On the other side of the house, a happy laughing child with flaxen curls rode a horse, while her father, plainly recognizable as O. C., walked by her side to see that not harm came to her.

A few minutes later the Prophet and her companion neared a railroad crossing just as a powerful locomotive glided by. The engineer and fireman, who were curiously gazing from the same window just as if they didn't make the same trip every twenty-four hours, bore the unmistakable features of Carl Tom Moore and Robert Bates. A brakeman waved as he walked steadily across his work on top of the last moving train, and he was recognized as Durward Boyd.

The train thundered by, and the automobile in which the Prophet rode slowly entered the city limits of some unknown town. They drove down the street, and entered the exclusive section of the city. Before a large house, a dapper, "high-pressure" salesman accosted a richly dressed society matron who had just stepped out, walked in fur.

The Prophet became aware that the season of the year had changed, and that it was now a chilly fall morning. With many gestures and rapid talk, Edward Callerman tried to convince Mignon Clark that his particular wares were the best on the market, but she disregarded his fervent plea, and interrupted him to ask, "Do you have any gum?"

On receiving a negative reply, Mignon turned negligently away, and called in the general direction of the house, "Do hurry, Jim Bob."

Further down the street, a tall man, apparently, from his dress and manners, a socially eligible bachelor, divided his attention between two social belles. The Prophet noticed that Henry Eisenhuth hadn't changed much, and that Kathleen Wilson and Leta Guffey had only grown more beautiful.

A large, exclusive shop, bearing the name of Altom, Bruce, and Ramsey, Parisian Clothiers, seemed to be the next destination, for the elf brought the car to a standstill opened the door, and motioned to the Prophet to get out. She obeyed, and followed her guide into the crowded store. On a door to the left was printed, Garter Altom, President, and on the adjoining door, Shannon Ramsey, Vice President, while still further down was printed Dorcy Bruce, Manager Designer.

"May I wait on you, please?" questioned a pleasant voice.

"No, thank you," replied the Prophet before she recognized Opal Crawford.

The Prophet became uneasy, for a very pompous man wearing an exceedingly important look followed them about. She whispered the information to the pixie that they were being followed by a detective, but he maintained a grim silence, and the Prophet was left to her own uneasy fears until she recognized Daskam Stephens as the detective. By this time, the gnome had entered another room, found a seat, and silently motioned the Prophet to take one.

On a small, well-decorated stage in the front of the room, a group of beautiful girls, each one a lovely, specific type, were modeling dresses such as any American woman would love to own.

Somehow the Prophet felt that she knew these women. "Ah! That dark-haired one in the taffeta creation is Doris Surles, and that one over yonder in the organdie party frock is Virginia La More. There is Earline Farmer—she's the blonde in a white sports outfit; that is Louella Clark in the street dress; there are Durene Cogburn, Mabel Harbut, Jacqueline Porter, and Muriel Whitaker. And . . ."

"Will you please shut up?" demanded the cross old elf.

"Yes—sir, if you please, sir, I will, sir," replied the Prophet.

"Get at it then," he commanded. "But, sir, there is Mercie Clark and . . ."

"Shut up," thundered the pixie in a loud whisper.

"And Sybil Holder, and there is the style creator, Johnnie Ladd, and the director Kathryn Hunterman, and—oh, look at that other girl over yonder! That's Johnnie Sue Slaughter," the Prophet continued triumphantly, in spite of her companions' scornful glances.

"Women are fools," he announced, and got up to leave.

From there, they went to the theatre. The elf stalked ahead bought the tickets, found a seat, and commanded the Prophet to sit beside him, but to keep quiet. It was really a good picture, for it was featuring Deyon Warren as the leading lady, Franklin Shackelford as leading man, and the rest of the cast was composed of Donald Surles, Dick Thomas, Maxine Gallagher, and Elsie Richardson.

The Prophet expressed her approval of the show in a no uncertain tone, whereupon a couple seated in front of her looked scornfully around, and the man, who was apparently a successful business man, said, "Where are you from? That picture is famous all over the United States and civilized Europe. The cast is composed of my old class mates, and his wife a beautiful red-headed lady, nodded emphatic approval of her husband's speech. The Prophet knew at once that the couple was Clifford Puppen and the former Christie Reynolds.

"Well, come on You can't even keep quiet in here," said the elf, pushing his way out before the show was half over.

Suddenly they were no longer in a crowded city, but at a large airport preparing to depart for an unknown destination. A great crowd had gathered, and thundering shouts filled the air.

"Are they welcoming us or seeing us off, or what?" the Prophet asked.

"Welcoming you!" laughed a tall man in an aviator's suit. "Well, I should hardly think they are. The famous scientist who made a long exploration flight in the interest of science has just got back to American."

"Pray, sir," begged the Prophet. "Who is he, if you please?"

"None other than Livius Lankford. There he is now, preparing to make a speech of appreciation. Hurrah for Lankford! he shouted in worshipful admiration of so great a hero. The Prophet looked at him closely, and discovered he was Kessler Thomas.

"Pray, sir," she questioned again, "did he go alone?"

"Not quite," he replied, mirth peeping through his eyes at the apparently ignorance of the Prophet.

"Bruce Groce, Milton Cleveland, J. F. Armstrong, Cecil Hudson, Elvin Norvell, Varge Daniel, Byron Ray, and several more whom I don't recall just now accompanied him. They are each quite successful citizens of one sort or another, but the desire of adventure stirred them, and they left their work to go on this trip. I forgot to tell you that Lankford's wife, Blodwyn Thomas, a famous social reform worker, accompanied her husband," the aviator continued.

"But, sir, that auburn-haired lady who is talking to him, and writing at the same time. That isn't his wife, is it?" asked the Prophet.

"Well, no," grinned the aviator. "That is the best known newspaper editor in the world. Her name is Jeanne Hageman. She came out to get this story personally. See that slender girl yonder? The one with the camera? Well, that's Oleta Huestis. She's a crack news photographer. She is called on by editors all over the United States when they want a rip-roaring good picture taken."

"Well," said the elf, who had been busy inspecting a plane all this time. "Come on Let's go, pilot. I've chosen this plane. It's better suited for my purpose. Get in, you," he continued, pointing at the Prophet.

They were soon comfortably settled, and the pilot, the aforementioned Kessler Thomas, prepared to take his ship off. After a few sickening lurches, the plane righted itself, and the Prophet looked about her. She discovered that there were several other passengers on board, and fit curious as to their identity. Two air hostesses, whom the Prophet realized were Nadine Mayhew and Mary Catherine Donahoe, approached inquiring into each person's comfort.

"Are you comfortable, Madam?" Mary Catherine asked the Prophet.

"No, thank you, Ma'am, I'm not," she replied.

"What seems to be the trouble?" the hostess questioned.

"I have seen those two dark men over there before. Can you tell me who they are, please?" requested the Prophet.

"Oh, yes. Doubtless you've seen their pictures in the paper. They are big game hunters who spend most of their time in Africa. We called them the Graves Twins in High School. Mary Catherine informed the Prophet.

"Thank you, ma'am. But who is that couple over yonder?" the Prophet asked, pointing to a man and woman.

"Oh, that is a missionary and his wife who are home on a visit after years of service in foreign fields. The Reverend Rankin Blackburn and Catherine Meglasson."

"And can you tell me who the pun is, please? And there's a man who looks like a bishop?" the Prophet was eager to know who everyone was.

"Surely," answered the hostess. "The nun is Anne Muriel Throop, and the bishop, whom you've doubtless heard of, is Wendell Russel. And here we are at the White House landing field where your companion said you wished to stop. Prepare to get off," she added, as she, bustled hurriedly away.

Soon they were hurrying toward the White House. Just as they were about to enter, they met a man in military uniform.

"Salute him," whispered the elf to the Prophet. "He's Robert E. Lee, the greatest rival the old general has ever had." The Prophet obeyed and followed her guide into a reception room where a man stood shaking hands with people.

"Do try to be courteous," the pixie urged. "That's Norris Littlepage, the president of the U. S., and that tiny little lady is his wife, Novelle Huddleston." But before they could shake hands with this famous couple, something queer happened, and they found themselves seated in a Senate chamber, listening to a famous orator, Senator Euders Huey, deliver a speech to a spell-bound Senate. Later, a tall headed man got up and opposed him.

"That's Harry Brennan, a man with sensible views," someone whispered.

The argument became heated, and the two Senators were about to come to blows when someone interfered.

"Gentlemen, calm yourselves," said a familiar voice.

"It's a good thing Lynn Robertson is Vice President, and has the power to do what he does. If he didn't interfere once in awhile, some of these Senators would be—" have as badly as those back in 1935 did," a voice said.

A stenographer was busy writing at a table near the front. As she straightened up to put an imaginary strip of hair back in place the Prophet recognized Edna Hightower. Just opposite, two reporters chatted and took notes.

"Who are those reporters?" the Prophet asked.

"The dark one is Garland Kinard, but I don't know the other one," replied the elf. "And now it lacks only ten minutes being sunset, and I must go," he finished, jumping up and running away. The Prophet tried to follow, but she bumped into something at the end of the hall. Standing back, she beheld herself in the highly polished mirror where Senators are sent to stand to straighten their neckties.

"Well, I'll declare," she gasped. "No wonder none of my classmates building and has constructed a beautiful lattice work as wings reaching from Avenue E to the Laguna hotel driveway. The grounds have been cleared of weeds and low places filled in. Whittaker explained that other improvements will be added as time goes on. Flowers will be planted and vines trained so that soon it will be a real rainbow of color to meet the eyes of customers as they drive in and are served by young ladies with the purest of Alexander ice cream.

The place will be open all day and evenings. Later copyrighted sandwiches and milk drinks will be added to the present menu of ice cream.

The Rainbow Garden is open for business now.

New Coach To Spend Summer in Cisco

A Community Natural Gas company softball team will compete in the Cisco league for the second half of the season with assistant football coach Clyde Van Sickle as skipper. He was elected captain Friday afternoon by his team mates.

Business Manager H. L. Dyer registered his 18 players with league officials Friday. Community's first game will be with the Lobos tomorrow night at Humble park.

Cisco Schools Progress During Last Five Years Under Cluck and Brandon

Superintendent R. N. Cluck and Principal H. Brandon are closing their fifth year of service with the Cisco public schools. During their stay here the schools have continued to advance both materially and scholastically.

The school board has been able to pay off a $30,000 maintenance debt during this period, at the same time paying the teachers better salaries than other cities of this size in this area, and paying them to date.

School buildings have been improved and through the Garden club and relief labor the grounds have been beautified.

At the same time, more districts have been brought in to Cisco, so that the enrollment has grown and the schools have been able to serve more pupils and to serve them better than formerly.

High Scholastically
Cisco has stressed high scholastic standing. The All-Southern association of College and Secondary schools this year reported Cisco to be the only high school of this county accredited with it. It reported that Cisco had 34 per cent of its 1933 graduates in colleges in 1934, and showed only 15.1 per cent of failures among this number. This ranks Cisco high among the schools, either this size or larger, in the entire state. Cisco has added courses in diversified occupations, commercial law, public school music, and physical education to its curriculum. Robert L. Maddox has been employed to take over the direction of the Lobo band, as a part time teacher in the high school, effective June 1. Working toward a closer cooperation between the school and the home, the heads of the schools here have introduced and kept alive a series of community programs during the last several years.

Outstanding Adult School
Cisco at present has one of the two outstanding adult schools of the state, according to W. E. Marshall, state supervisor of adult education. The only other school which can compare with this one, according to Marshall, is that at Waco. Cisco's adult school has 32 teachers, and has brought to Cisco approximately $25,000 since its beginning a year and a half ago. Supt. Cluck, who came here from Spur, is a graduate of Baylor university, and has done graduate work at the University of Colorado. Principal Brandon, came to Cisco from Plano. A graduate of North Texas State Teachers college, he recently received his M. A. in education from the University of Colorado.

DOTING PAPAS
COSHOCOTON, O. — The five members of the Tuscarawas Township school board are taking a lively interest in the graduation exercises of Coshocton High School this year. And there is a reason, as each member of the board has a son or daughter in the class.

TWO YEARS OF FISHING
POMEROY, O. — A two-year-old feud between Charles Burke and a giant carp was ended here recently with victory for the fisherman. The fish which weighed 22 pounds, frequented a creek near Burke's home and had been hooked frequently, but escaped.

WEATHER OBEYS AAA
MARYSVILLE, Cal. — The elements did man's job in crop control in at least one California horticultural product. A heavy reduction in peach production was predicted following adverse weather conditions. The crop estimate was placed at 200,000 tons of No. 1 peaches and probably will alleviate the necessity of controlled marketing planned by growers this year.

Senior Farewell

Dear teachers here, and others too our God will, now we bring to you. With thankful hearts we here rejoice. That though we part, we may give voice. To our regard for you.

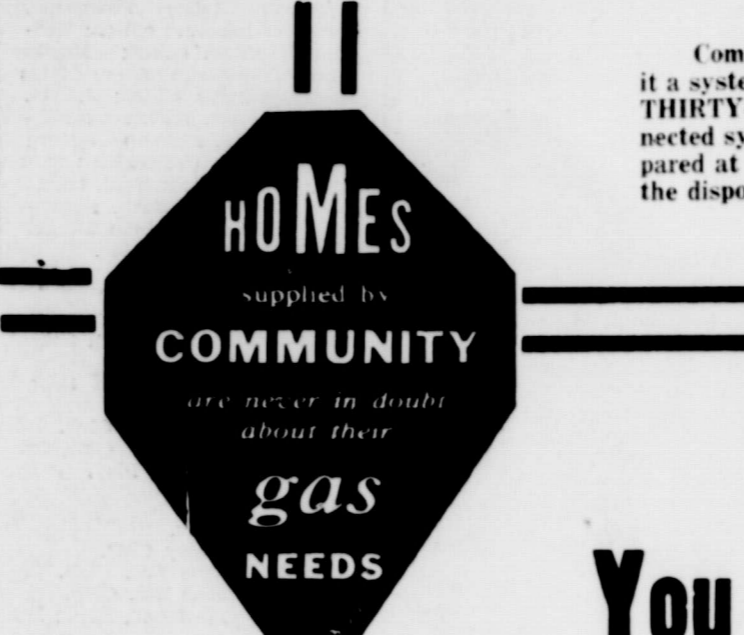

You've worked and toiled the whole day through. And taught us ever how to do. To think and plan for what we've wrought. So now we ask that you give thought. To our regard for you.

We love you one and all, but you will never know how much we do. So now we ask that you come near. That you might know, that you give ear. To our regard for you.

Dear Cisco High and classmates true. We know we'll ere have need of you— Oh, we're sad and deeply grieving. Hearts a bleeding, now we're leaving. 'Tis our farewell to you. DORIS SURLS

HELP ALMA MATER
BERKLEY, Cal. — A new form of university endowment is being cheered by University of California authorities. The class of 1915, when it graduated, took out 20-year endowment policies, payable to the university, on 20 of its youngest members. The matured policies totaled 10,518.

Community Natural Gas Company has standing behind it a system which draws upon not one source of supply, but THIRTY-ONE distinct gas fields. Through an inter-connected system embracing 4,000 miles of pipe lines, it is prepared at all times to put these resources and facilities at the disposal of every customer.

You Pay Community less than it spends in Eastland County!

No dollar that you spend works harder for you and the interests of Cisco and Eastland County than the dollar you pay Community Natural Gas Company for your gas service. You know by experience that Community Natural Gas Service saves you time, labor and money.

But your gas dollar you pay Community works for you in some other way that is just as important to you as the many conveniences it makes possible in your home. The purposes for which Community Natural Gas Company uses the dollars you pay it, play a vital part in the development of Cisco and Eastland County!

Because a large part of the investments and production activities of the associated companies of Lone Star System are centered in Eastland County, the company spends each year in this and adjoining counties more than $700,000.00 for wages and taxes alone! Work is provided in this West Texas district for 454 men and women employees who spend an average of more than $48,000.00 a month for household and personal needs. The company is Eastland County's largest taxpayer—paying more than one and one-third times the amount it receives from its Cisco customers!

Certainly the welfare of Community Natural Gas Company is important to you not only as a user of gas, but also as a citizen of the city of Cisco. We have done and will continue to do our full share in the advancement of Cisco and this section.

Congratulations To The 1935 Graduates
