Colorado River Project and Texas

President Roosevelt has made possible the completion of a vast project undertaken by the lower Colorado River Authority. This calls for the completion of the Buchanan dam and additional dams for the catching of flood waters, the construction of lakes and basins in order that there shall be power manufactured for many cities and towns and irrigation for the vast rice plantations in the lower river.

Indeed, the authority project was among the first approved by President Roosevelt in releasing the first billion dollars under the $4,880,000,000 works program. A reminder that the authority project for power purposes is identical to Tennessee Valley Authority was recommended to the President May 16. Rep. James P. Buchanan led the long fight for the approval of the project. In his honor the name Hamilton was changed to the Buchanan dam. After the President had approved, Rep. Buchanan predicted that construction on the $200,000,000 flood control and reclamation proposal might start in 30 days and give employment to 4,500 men.

Speaking of the vast project, Buchanan dam with a planned capacity of 1,000,000 acre feet is partially completed. Plans call for another dam of the same capacity below the Buchanan project on the Colorado. Two more power sites will have no reservoirs but will receive water from the other two dams, and the water will be used four times to produce power and a fifth time for the cultivation of rice. It is a marvelous undertaking.

It had the backing of two senators, Rep. J. J. Mansfield, the veteran chairman of the house committee on rivers and harbors, and the loyal support of other representatives sent from the Lone Star state.

There was a third revolution at the polls in a nationwide election in 1932. That revolution elected President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It placed Vice President John N. Garner, gavel in hand, as the presiding officer of the senate. It placed James P. Buchanan at the head of the important committee on appropriations. It recognized for the first time in American history that Texas was the coming commonwealth, in territorial area, in growth of population, in vast natural resource wealth, in all the staples that supply the needs of man and an agricultural area the greatest under American skies.

In addition to all this it proclaimed Washington and not New York to be the seat of government, the head center of governmental power and the growers of things to be placed on an equal footing with the makers of things and that industry and agriculture should walk hand in hand in the future in the building of waste places, the development of not only the agricultural but the natural resource wealth of the nation and that the people should rule in the making of financial and tariff and tax laws as the framers of the federal constitution intended more than 150 years ago. Now it is for Texans to march forward, "all for one and one for all" in shaping the destiny of not only asper commonwealth but the mightiest and finest republic that time has known.

Federal Aid for Centennial

The house foreign affairs committee of congress had given tentative oral approval of a joint resolution authorizing federal participation in the Texas Centennial exposition and then recessed without taking decisive action. Rep. Hamilton Fish, republican of New York, a member of the committee, said: "Texas is a big state and this thing ought to be put over in a big way." Then he added that he "would like to study a table of how much the government has appropriated for similar celebrations." Instead of a $3,000,000 appropriation by the federal lawmakers, there are members from outside states who insist the amount should be reduced.

Rep. Hamilton Fish of the celebrated Fish family is to be congratulated. He has made the very interesting discovery that Texas is a big state "and the thing should be put over in a big way." Congratulations to the republican representative from the city of New York. Texas is a big state — the biggest of all the states of the sisterhood. In the year 1950 Texas may have a population far greater than the entire state of New York including the Greater City and its metropolitan trade district.

Things are moving under Southwest skies and the signs of the times are very promising to say the least. There was a drouth last year. There is moisture in the soil this year. And wise men say that the drouth was more damaging or destructive to certain sections of Texas last year than the depression, regardless of all the bunk of the loss of foreign markets, including cotton, and the dire prediction of hostile critics that the republic is headed headlong for the bottomless pit with the donkey heading the procession.

Patman For National Commander

Texas Wright Patman has been a history maker. He made his start as a state representative from the piney woods. He captured a congressional seat in the first district of Texas. Now legionnaires of Nebraska are campaigning for the Texas as national commander of the American Legion. Texas Patman knows the value of publicity. Of course, he scorns to pose for newspaper cameras but he never has to be dragged to the center of the state. He never has a grouch. He was known in his boyhood as "Smiling Wright." In other words, "laugh and the world laughs with you; grunt and you grunt alone."

AUSTIN, May 29 — One phase of the purchase of school district refunding bonds: was not touched upon in the report of an investigating committee that pointed out many of the school bond issues bought by the state board of education were not of the highest rank for investment. Many issues of bonds had been bought before and during boom times. When the depression struck, districts were unable to raise revenues to pay the high interest on the large issues they had sold.

In scores of instances the state board allowed the schools to make advantageous refunding arrangements, scaling down the principal of outstanding bonds sharply, and when they did so, allowed the schools the benefit of such reduction in indebtedness.

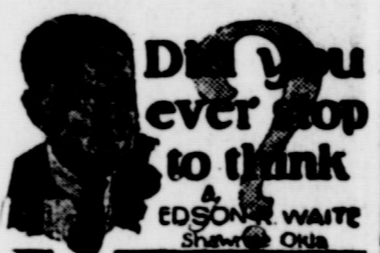

The net result obviously was greatly to enhance the value and the probable protection of the reduced issue of bonds.

Had the state board not allowed the districts the benefit of the scaling down, in many cases it would have dealt harshly with citizens of a district; and in many others it would have destroyed the value of its own investments. Further the recommendation for a bond expert has been made long ago, and the services of such an expert have been desired by most of the board of education.

Gov. Allred has indicated he will not wait until the law creating the new state public safety set-up becomes a law in August to name the three public safety commissioners who will administer the department. He will appoint these officials in the near future, so they may begin preliminary work toward organizing the state police system, he announced.

A director for the department will be chosen by the commissioners. The ranger service and highway patrol will be continued intact, and agencies of identification and of broadcast or dissemination of information about crime, will be set up. Local law enforcement officers will be enlisted as a vital part of the coordinated state system.

J. D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard, says:

"Did you ever stop to think what a great change has come in the dimension of a man's friendship since grandfather was a boy? His circle of friends was limited to the distance that a horse and buggy could take him for a days outing. Now it is nothing for the Amer-friends in other nations as we now know friends in distant states. "The airplane will change the business and social life of the world so that if grandfather could come to life again he would not recognize our advanced civilization."

RED WILL SPEAKER AT TAMPA JUNE 7

May 29. — Gov. James will speak here on June 7, the second day of the Centennial and Pioneers' Days celebration, which will include a pageant, a parade, a baseball game and a show featuring "oldtime" music.

The show parade is to feature activities, contests of skill and phases of oil-field work, followed by a barbecue for the crowd.

Oil show floats are under way to make up the oil parade.

Descendants of the pioneers who once held the region, and those who have brought back from New Mexico and elsewhere will participate in the parade.

Special prizes are being mailed to the old timers whose names are on the list.

The Kiwanis club has prepared a play, which members will perform on the night of June 7. It deals with an unsuccessful attempt to impeach a judge, in the 30's.

The Texas Centennial commission is expected to hold a two-day fest which Panhandle residents are staging as a contribution to the Centennial celebration.

Texan Returns From Trip to South Pole

CANYON May 29 — Joe Hill, 21-year-old son of Dr. J. A. Hill, president of West Texas State Teachers college, has returned from the antarctic where he went as a member of the Byrd expedition.

Young Hill said, on his return here, he installed a piston rod in one of the Byrd planes when the mercury stood at 64 degrees below zero. He added he'd never forget it; that in fact, it was the deepest-etched memory of his participation in the expedition.

Hill was with the expedition 26 months. Byrd and his men reached the Bay of Wales in the Ross Sea in January, 1934.

Dr. and Mrs. Hill went to Boston to meet the returning expedition and were presented to President Roosevelt at Washington and to Admiral Byrd.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRIKERHURST, beautiful, 25, becomes acquainted with MICHAEL HEATHERSON, a young teacher, and acknowledges an unswerving attraction toward him. She is the only girl in the progress of an affair between BOB PARKER, her best friend, and GIBBS PARKER, of whom her parents disapprove.

Katharine and Dr. JOHN KAYE, friend of the Strikerhurst family, take her to a night club where she sees Gibbs with a notorious woman. Zoe threatens to kill herself.

That same night Michael is involved in taking SALLY MOON, local coquette, to the same place. Sally, arriving home late, informs her father that she and Michael are engaged.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

KATHARINE said very softly into the telephone, "John, I wish you'd come over—if you can get away, that is. Is there bridge or something?"

She was at the instrument in the upper hall of the Parker house. Zoe was not 10 feet away. Gerda, for the moment, was with Zoe. Katharine had explained that Miss Zoe had a splitting headache. She wanted to call Dr. Kaye, but Zoe had protested.

John said yes, there was bridge, but he could manage it.

"Gerda—Mrs. Melvaine—just ran in," he said. "She'll take my hand."

In spite of her relief, in spite of her fear for Zoe, Katharine could not refrain from making a grimace. Of course, Gerda would be over! As soon as she knew John Kaye was in Lincoln, Gerda had put on her prettiest frock, made up her plump face as seductively as she knew how and very casually "happened in" at the Strikerhursts. Just like Gerda. And, if she could manage it, she would break her engagement to that nice army officer and marry John Kaye herself.

"She's years older than he is," Katharine said rather angrily. She went back to Zoe's room. Zoe had refused to permit herself to be undressed. She was lying on the bed, her evening sandals, stained with mud and dew, dragging the pretty coverlet away. Her face was lead color. Her blue eyes, open wide, had a sort of dead look in them.

Gerda asked if there was anything else she wanted. At a negative shake of the head, the maid went away. Katharine sat down beside the girl.

"Zoe, won't you talk about it? It would help, maybe." Zoe twisted her small body about so that her face was again burrowed into the pillow.

"Go away, why don't you? Leave me alone. Oh, I'm dying—that's what it is. This awful feeling... I can't stand it!" Suddenly she sat up with one violent movement, clutching her head in her hands.

"I was going to marry him—do you hear? I didn't believe what people said, didn't care what he'd been in the past. But now I've seen him with that—that devil. Now I know how he feels. Why, he never wanted me for a minute. I was a fool. He was laughing at me—laughing all the time."

KATHARINE did not try to stem the tide of the other girl's suffering. It was dreadful to look upon—the rawness and openness of the wound she had received.

"That's why I want to die, Kaye. You've got to help me. I can't—I couldn't live after this. Couldn't face it. The way he's been laughing at me. And that woman, too. Did you see her look at me, as if she was amused?"

At the recollection Zoe groaned again.

Katharine said, very gently, "You made a mistake, dear. That was all. We all do that. And you're only 20. Do you suppose there is a single person of 40 today who can't look back on an early mistake?"

"I'm through," Zoe said with finality. "Life—it's done for me, Kaye. You don't know—ah, you don't know. What wouldn't I give to be like you! Nothing seems to hurt you."

Katharine said nothing to this. There was nothing one could say. Zoe was like a deaf woman, a blind woman. She was aware of nothing but her own raw wound.

There were steps on the stairs and Katharine, distracted by the responsibility of her charge, was relieved to see Dr. Kaye at the door.

"Johnny, can't you give her something to make her sleep?" Zoe overheard. She rose, swaying giddily.

"Dr. Kaye, you can't do anything for her. Katharine should not have bothered you. I'm sorry. Just go away and leave me alone."

There was a kind of desperate dignity about the small figure.

"Zoe, dear, your mother and father will be home soon. They won't know what's happened. Do you want to frighten them?" Katharine asked her gently.

"That's true. That's true," Zoe seemed suddenly tractable. "You give me something to sleep on, doctor, and I'll be better tomorrow, perhaps."

John Kaye had his finger on her pulse now; his quiet eyes were examining her.

"I have something in my kit," he said. "It's right there on the chair, Katharine."

THE tall, slender girl in white, with the fair hair brushed like a golden cascade on her head, found the leather case and gave it to him in one quiet movement. John Kaye smiled at her; she was so cool and sure of herself, so aloof, apparently, from earthly troubles. Katharine recognized the quality of his smile and answered it in kind. John was good! Whenever he was around you felt safe.

"This will do the trick. Two of these now. You'll sleep like a log."

"All right," Zoe said docilely. "I want to bathe my face, I think. Back in a minute."

Katharine and Dr. Kaye waited as she disappeared into the glittering, tiled bathroom. They could hear the rushing of water. They could hear the rushing of water. Then a thud.

John Kaye rushed for the door. It was locked.

"The balcony!" gasped Katharine. "You can get in through the bathroom window."

The doctor hooked his leg over the sill. He was out of sight. Katharine waited, her heart thudding painfully. Zoe—how awful! What would they find?

The key grated in the lock. Dr. Kaye stood in the doorway, Zoe's body in his arms. A strangely limp Zoe, her face stained by a brownish liquid.

"White of egg, quickly," grated the doctor. Katharine never knew how they got through the confusion that followed. Bells ringing—people hurrying to and fro through the corridors. Mrs. Parker was there, her face strained and white. And there was a nurse with dark hair under a flyaway cap.

"However did it happen?" wailed Zoe's mother. Katharine said something nervous and rather garbled about Zoe's desperate headache—John Kaye's prescription.

"She just got the wrong medicine, that's all," Katharine said, trying to make the lie sound reasonable.

"Oh, Katharine, do you think so?" Terror looked out of the older woman's eyes. "Katharine, it wasn't anything else? She was happy lately, wasn't she? It wasn't—wasn't the other?"

"How could it be?" You had to lie to mothers, Katharine reflected. Zoe's mother couldn't have borne to know what her child had done through that summer night. Life was sometimes too black and pitted with terror.

ALL through the night they fought for Zoe's life. Katharine went through the halls softly; once she met John in the doorway and he smiled at her wearily, gently.

"John, is she—are you going to be able to—?"

"Don't ask me now. I don't know." He looked desperately tired. "Get some rest yourself."

"Oh, I'm all right. I simply couldn't sleep anyhow." Zoe went down again to the library where Mrs. Parker, propped with pillows and sustained by her husband, was waiting.

The woman's haggard eyes sought her face. "Katharine, if Zoe dies, I'll—"

"Don't talk that way, Mama," Henry Parker patted his wife's hand. "She can't die. We won't let her."

They were simple people again, this house and all the grandeur they had acquired meant nothing to them.

"Henry, do you remember when she cut her head so badly on that radiator? She was four... I'll never forget it..."

Mrs. Parker burst into wild weeping. Already they were talking as if Zoe were dead, thought Katharine, fear clutching at her heart.

The night wore through. There was a blaze of light over the water. Light poured into the sickroom, where a small figure lay stretched on a carved and gilded bed. The nurse extinguished the bulb that dangled, hospital-wise, in a twist of white paper. The room was very still.

Dr. Kaye went to the door. He still wore his black broadcloth but he had long since discarded the coat with the satin lapels. In his shirtsleeves and braces he looked oddly grim.

Katharine was in the hall, curled up on a window seat. She brushed her hand across her eyes as the doctor appeared.

"Oh, John, I think I must have dozed off just for an instant. I had the most awful dream..."

His face startled her. It was so drawn. "Johnny, she isn't—she hasn't..."

He could not speak. Katharine crouched low, as if to ward off a blow.

You're The Loser

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa. I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa.

I have been using Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio.

Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand. Mrs. E. Pierce, Lewpai, Idaho.

I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain. Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshinny, Pa.

BUSINESS SEEKING PRESIDENT'S AID

WHITE HOUSE FLOODED WITH ITS MESSAGES

WASHINGTON, May 29 — Many business men beseeched President Roosevelt today to find some way quickly to maintain the standard set up under the invalidated NRA codes.

Others frankly welcomed the end of the NRA.

The White House received hundreds of telegrams from business men urging speedy action. Most complained that code standards of wages, hours, and price policies already were being broken down.

About 700 telegrams were received. They were said to average 9 to 1 for continuation of NRA.

Business organizations generally appealed for voluntary compliance to code standards until the situation can be cleared up.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGary, however, said he was being besieged by telephone calls, letters and telegrams from workers charging employers were reducing wages and lengthening hours. All the complaints dealt with small businesses.

With 400,000 coal miners threatening to strike June 16, labor generally viewed the situation with increasing anxiety. Mr. Roosevelt devoted all his energy today to finding some way to bring order out of the chaos.

The White House announced that Gen. Hugh Johnson would be one of those consulted by President Roosevelt in his efforts to meet the emergency.

Meanwhile the house "liberal bloc" headed by Rep. Vito Marcantonio, rep. N. Y., issued a statement today urging a constitutional convention to be called "to revise the constitution in the light of present day requirements."

Orange Police Chief Is Shot By Preacher

PASTOR FLEES TO LOUISIANA AFTER FIRING

ORANGE, Tex., May 29 — Police Chief Ed J. O'Reilly, 49, was shot to death today on a street corner by Rev. C. E. Estridge, 45, crusading Baptist minister.

City Secretary M. G. Davis said Rev. Estridge fled across the state line in to Louisiana after the shooting.

Witnesses said Chief O'Reilly was standing on the street curb when the minister drove up in his automobile alone.

Estridge was said to have stopped his car, pulled a shotgun from the floor, and fired one shot. The charge struck O'Reilly in the head, killing him instantly.

No word passed between the men, according to a dozen witnesses to the shooting.

Estridge, pastor of the First Baptist church of Orange, was arrested last night by the police chief and disarmed of two pistols he was carrying.

After being warned by the chief not to carry pistols, Estridge was released.

Estridge claimed to be a special ranger and as such entitled to carry weapons.

For several months the pastor has been denouncing vice conditions in Orange and demanding police action to clean up the situation.

Post Office Will Close for Holiday

Postal authorities here today announced that there will be no postal delivery, either city or rural, tomorrow. The post office department will observe Memorial Day, it was announced.

The relief offices here and over the rest of the county will close at 12 noon tomorrow, it was announced by L. A. White, local relief officer.

The banks, however, will remain open all day, it was reported.

72 GRADUATES GET DIPLOMAS HERE TUESDAY

Seventy-two seniors of Cisco high school last night heard Dr. C. Q. Smith, president of McMurray college, address them on "Building" and received their diplomas from O. J. Russell, vice president of the Cisco school board.

Dr. Smith urged that the members of the class, in building their lives "do not be satisfied with anything but the best" and "make as many friends as you can."

"Build for security," Dr. Smith said. "Build for tomorrow."

He pointed out the need for education in building a life or anything else and said, "To argue that an ignorant man obeying without questioning would make a better teacher or a better citizen would be as foolish as to argue that a blind man could drive a car down a highway at night better than a man with good sight could drive it over the same road in broad daylight."

Dr. Smith commented upon the progress that has taken place within the last generation and said, "When you have advanced as far as your parents, you will be in a position to call them old fashioned."

Speaking of mechanical progress, he said, "I'm not so much afraid of these machines blowing up and killing people as I am of this regimentation that may make us a part of a machine."

Awards

The Industrial Arts club's annual award was presented to Miss Louellin Clark as the outstanding student in the high school's home economics department.

Sentell Caffrey will receive the Rotary club medal as the outstanding boy of the school this year, it was announced by Principal H. Brandon. The medal has not yet arrived but will be presented to him as soon as it is received. Livius Lanford was runner-up for the award. It was announced.

Scholarships were awarded to the Miss Louellin Clark, salutatorian, and Harry Brennan, valedictorian, as the students making the two highest scholastic averages in the class. These scholarships, it was announced, are recognized in most of the colleges and universities of the state.

Honor certificates for all grades of the year above 90 were presented to 16 seniors and perfect attendance certificates to two members of the class. Seniors this year were graduated in the "graduate," "honor," or "high honor" groups, depending upon their grades.

The high school choral club sang "I Love Life" and the sextet sang "The Pipers' Song." The procession and recessional were played by Mrs. S. E. Hittner. Rev. J. B. Curry delivered the invocation. Presentation of awards was by Principal H. Brandon and presentation of the class by Superintendent R. N. Cluck.

Four of the seniors who were graduated last night were unable to be present to receive their diplomas. They were listed today by school officials as follows: Durdward Boyd, football player, good student, and band member; Elvin Norvell, member of the football squad, and the F. A.; Billy Doty, good student, reliable and cooperative; and Henry Eisenhut, good student, and dependable office assistant.

School officials characterized the four today as courteous, cooperative, and dependable.

CATO DENIES KNOWING MAN WAS OFFICER

LUBBOCK, May 29 — Defending himself from the government charge that the killing of Spencer Stafford, federal narcotic agent was a result of Stafford's investigation of a narcotic ring, Sheriff W. F. Cato of Garza county testified today that no one told him until after the shooting that Stafford was a narcotic investigator.

"He raised a gun to fire" the Post-Texas, peace officer declared, "and I shot. I shot at the gun in his hand."

Immediately afterward, he said he learned from Stafford's companion, V. C. McCullough, that they were federal narcotic agents.

Cato denied protecting Kitchen and Dr. V. A. Hartman who also were charged with murder for the killing in their alleged deal in narcotics.

Church Of Christ Will Hold Revival

A series of revival meetings will begin at the local Church of Christ, corner of Eighth Street and Avenue H Friday night of this week and will continue through all of next week. Services will be held twice daily, mornings and evenings, the time to be announced later.

The evening services will begin at 8 o'clock D. W. Nichol, minister of the Ranger Church of Christ, will do the preaching. The public is cordially invited to attend.

France Turns Down Flandin's Demand

PARIS, May 29 — The chamber of deputies finance committee today refused to grant drastic powers asked by Premier Pierre Flandin to avert a political crisis, protect the franc, and balance the budget.

A political crisis of the gravest nature threatened. The fall of the government appeared almost certain in the midst of its campaign to save the franc from devaluation, halt the flight of gold from France, and restore economic stability.

John Barrymore Is Unaware of Divorce

HAVANA, May 29 — John Barrymore, arriving today on his yacht, was "unaware" of the divorce filed against him in California by Dolores Costello, the woman who gave up her screen career to marry him.

Dressed in dark blue lounging pajamas, he sat on the after deck of his yacht and discussed his divorce suit.

"I didn't even know anything about the suit until you told me, but I'm leaving the whole thing to my attorneys. They know more about it than I do."

LOBO BAND TO HOLD MEETING ON THURSDAY

Cisco's Lobo band will again swing into activity this week after a long rest enforced by the lack of a director.

Robert L. Maddox, new leader of the musical organization, has called a band meeting and rehearsal for tomorrow evening at 7:45 in the high school auditorium. Purpose of the meeting will be to reorganize the musicians, get an idea of what material is available, and stir up enthusiasm for the building of the band.

"That band means everything to me," Maddox said today. "I'm throwing my whole life into it, and want to build up a real band."

Director Maddox invited all persons who are interested in the band in any way to be present at the meeting tomorrow evening to get acquainted and to help arouse interest.

New music will be ready for the band when it meets tomorrow night, he said. "We expect to have a lot of calls this summer, and we want to be ready for them."

Maddox indicated that he would likely organize a beginners' band a little later to replace members of the present organization lost through graduation and otherwise.

Convention Reports Are Heard by Lions

With Lion Charles Kleiner as chairman, reports were made by delegates who attended the Lions convention at Vernon and a letter was read from the girl graduate who was assisted by the club.

Lions Conley, LaRoque, Dyer and Burman made brief reports, all agreeing that the program at Vernon was outstanding in character and a much better attendance should be expected at Cisco next year than that of Vernon this year.

Dr. Hubert Seale made a report on the osteopathic convention to be held during the weekend.

Lion Joe Burman read a letter of thanks from the senior whom the club had assisted in her graduating expenses.

Past President E. O. Elliott, of Colorado city, was the guest of W. J. Leach.

Allred Signs Bill For School Funds

AUSTIN, May 29 — Gov. James V. Allred today signed a $10,000,000 state rural school aid bill for the next biennium. It was the largest Allred approved appropriation since his inauguration.

The fund an increase of $2,000,000 from the present appropriation, will make adequate provisions so that no federal aid will be needed.

Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins yesterday said emergency aid would be furnished Texas until the increased appropriation becomes effective.

Amarillo College Outgrows Building

AMARILLO, May 29 — Amarillo college has grown so rapidly that it needs a new home.

Patrons of the college met here this week to discuss proposed new accommodations for the school.

The college is at present inadequately housed in the Amarillo Municipal Auditorium, school officials said.

One plan proposed at the meeting was that the college purchase the Masonic Temple said to be ideally situated for students, and well equipped for use as a school building.

Colorado River Project and Texas

President Roosevelt has made possible the completion of a vast project undertaken by the lower Colorado River Authority. This calls for the completion of the Buchanan dam and additional dams for the catching of flood waters, the construction of lakes and basins in order that there shall be power manufactured for many cities and towns and irrigation for the vast rice plantations in the lower river.

Indeed, the authority project was among the first approved by President Roosevelt in releasing the first billion dollars under the $4,880,000,000 works program. A reminder that the authority project for power purposes is identical to Tennessee Valley Authority was recommended to the President May 16, Rep. James P. Buchanan led the long fight for the approval of the project. In his honor the name Hamilton was changed to the Buchanan dam. After the President had approved, Rep. Buchanan predicted that construction on the $200,000,000 flood control and reclamation proposal might start in 30 days and give employment to 4,500 men.

Speaking of the vast project, Buchanan dam with a planned capacity of 1,000,000 acre feet is partially completed. Plans call for another dam of the same capacity below the Buchanan project on the Colorado. Two more power sites will have no reservoirs but will receive water from the other two dams, and the water will be used four times to produce power and a fifth time for the cultivation of rice. It is a marvelous undertaking.

It had the backing of two senators, Rep. J. J. Mansfield, the veteran chairman of the house committee on rivers and harbors, and the loyal support of other representatives sent from the Lone Star state.

There was a third revolution at the polls in a nationwide election in 1932. That revolution elected President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It placed Vice President John N. Garner, gavel in hand, as the presiding officer of the senate. It placed James P. Buchanan at the head of the important committee on appropriations. It recognized for the first time in American history that Texas was the coming commonwealth, in territorial area, in growth of population, in vast natural resource wealth, in all the staples that supply the needs of man and an agricultural area the greatest under American skies.

In addition to all this it proclaimed Washington and not New York to be the seat of government, the head center of governmental power and the growers of things to be placed on an equal footing with the makers of things and that industry and agriculture should walk hand in hand in the future in the building of waste places, the development of not only the agricultural but the natural resource wealth of the nation and that the people should rule in the making of financial and tariff and tax laws as the framers of the federal constitution intended more than 150 years ago. Now it is for Texans to march forward, "all for one and one for all" in shaping the destiny of not only asper commonwealth but the mightiest and finest republic that time has known.

Federal Aid for Centennial

The house foreign affairs committee of congress had given tentative oral approval of a joint resolution authorizing federal participation in the Texas Centennial exposition and then recessed without taking decisive action. Rep. Hamilton Fish, republican of New York, a member of the committee, said: "Texas is a big state and this thing ought to be put over in a big way." Then he added that he "would like to study a table of how much the government has appropriated for similar celebrations." Instead of a $3,000,000 appropriation by the federal lawmakers, there are members from outside states who insist the amount should be reduced.

Rep. Hamilton Fish of the celebrated Fish family is to be congratulated. He has made the very interesting discovery that Texas is a big state "and the thing should be put over in a big way." Congratulations to the republican representative from the city of New York. Texas is a big state — the biggest of all the states of the sisterhood. In the year 1950 Texas may have a population far greater than the entire state of New York including the Greater City and its metropolitan trade district.

Things are moving under Southwest skies and the signs of the times are very promising to say the least. There was a drouth last year. There is moisture in the soil this year. And wise men say that the drouth was more damaging or destructive to certain sections of Texas last year than the depression, regardless of all the bunk of the loss of foreign markets, including cotton, and the dire prediction of hostile critics that the republic is headed headlong for the bottomless pit with the donkey heading the procession.

Patman For National Commander

Texas Wright Patman has been a history maker. He made his start as a state representative from the piney woods. He captured a congressional seat in the first district of Texas. Now legionnaires of Nebraska are campaigning for the Texan as national commander of the American Legion. Texas Patman knows the value of publicity. Of course, he scorns to pose for newspaper cameras but he never has to be dragged to the center of the state. He never has a grouch. He was known in his boyhood as "Smiling Wright." In other words, "laugh and the world laughs with you; grunt and you grunt alone."

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, May 29 — One phase of the purchase of school district refunding bonds was not touched upon in the report of an investigating committee that many of the school bond issues bought by the state board of education were not of the highest rank for investment. Many issues of bonds had been bought before and during boom times. When the depression struck, districts were unable to raise revenues to pay the high interest on the large issues they had sold.

In scores of instances the state board allowed the schools to make advantageous refunding arrangements, scaling down the principal of outstanding bonds sharply, and when they did so, allowed the schools the benefit of such reduction in indebtedness.

The net result obviously was greatly to enhance the value and the probable protection of the reduced issue of bonds.

Had the state board not allowed the districts the benefit of the scaling down, in many cases it would have dealt harshly with citizens of a district; and in many others it would have destroyed the value of its own investments. Further the recommendation for a bond expert has been made long ago, and the services of such an expert have been desired by most of the board of education.

Gov. Allred has indicated he will not wait until the law creating the new state public safety set-up becomes a law in August to name the three public safety commissioners who will administer the department. He will appoint these officials in the near future, so they may begin preliminary work toward organizing the state police system, he announced.

A director for the department will be chosen by the commissioners. The ranger service and highway patrol will be continued intact; and agencies of identification and broadcast or dissemination of information about crime, will be set up. Local law enforcement officers will be enlisted as a vital part of the coordinated state system.

J. D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard, says:

"Did you ever stop to think what a great change has come in the dimensions of a man's friendship since grandfather was a boy? His circle of friends was limited to the distance that a horse and buggy could take him for a day's outing. Now it is nothing for the Americans in other nations as we now know friends in distant states. "The airplane will chance the business and social life of the world so that if grandfather could come to life again he would not recognize our advanced civilization."

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRIKHURST, beautiful, 20, becomes acquainted with MICHAEL HEATHROBE, a young teacher, and acknowledges an unwilling attraction toward him. She is worried over the progress of an affair between JOE PARKER, her best friend, and GIBBS LARKIN, of whom Joe's parents disapprove.

Katharine and DR. JOHN KAYE, friend of the Strikhurst family, take Joe to a night club where she sees a girl with a notorious woman. Joe threatens to kill her.

That same night Michael is involved in taking SALLY MOON, local coquette, to the same place. Sally, arriving home late, informs her father that she and Michael are engaged.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

KATHARINE said very softly into the telephone, "John, I wish you'd come over—if you can get away, that is. Is there bridge or something?"

She was at the instrument in the upper hall of the Parker house. Joe was not 10 feet away. Gerda, for the moment, was with Joe. Katharine had explained that Miss Zoe had a splitting headache. She wanted to call Dr. Kaye, but Joe had protested.

John said yes, there was bridge, but he could manage it.

"Gracia—Mrs. McIlvaine—just ran in," she said. "She'll take my hand."

In spite of her relief, in spite of her fear for Zoe, Katharine could not refrain from making a grimace. Of course, Gracia would be over! As soon as she knew John Kaye was in Intlock, Gracia had put on her prettiest frock, made up her plump face as seductively as she knew how and very casually "happened in" at the Strikhursts. Just like Gracia. And if she could manage it, she would break her engagement to that nice army officer and marry John Kaye herself.

"She's years older than he is," Katharine said rather angrily.

She went back to Zoe's room. Zoe had refused to permit herself to be undressed. She was lying on the bed, her evening sandals, stained with mud and dew, dragging the pretty coverlet away. Her face was leaden. Her blue eyes, open wide, had a sort of dead look in them.

Gerda asked if there was anything else she wanted. At a negative shake of the head, the maid went away. Katharine sat down beside the girl.

"Zoe, would you talk about it? It would help, maybe."

Zoe twisted her small body about so that her face was again burrowed into the pillow.

"Go away, why don't you? Leave me alone. Oh, I'm dying—that's what it is. This awful feeling. . . I can't stand it!" Suddenly she sat up with one violent movement, clutching her head in her hands.

"I was going to marry him—do you hear? I didn't believe what people said, didn't care what he'd been in the past. But now I've seen him with that—that devil. Now I know how he feels. Why, he never wanted me for a minute. I was a fool. He was laughing at me—laughing at the time."

KATHARINE did not try to stem the tide of the other girl's suffering. It was dreadful to look upon—the rawness and newness of the wound she had received.

"That's why I want to die, Kay. You've got to help me. I can't—"

couldn't live after this. Couldn't face it. The way he's been laughing at me. And that woman, too. Did you see her look at me, as if she was amused?"

At the recollection Zoe groaned again.

Katharine said, very gently, "You made a mistake, dear. That was all. We all do that. And you're only 20. Do you suppose there is a single person of 40 today who can't look back on an early mistake?"

"I'm through," Zoe said with finality. "Life—it's done for me, Kay. You don't know—ah, you don't know. What wouldn't I give to be like you! Nothing seems to hurt you."

Katharine said nothing to this. There was nothing one could say. Zoe was like a deaf woman, a blind woman. She was aware of nothing but her own raw wound.

There were steps on the stairs and Katharine, distracted by the responsibility of her charge, was relieved to see Dr. Kaye at the door.

"Johnny, can't you give her something to make her sleep?"

Zoe overheard. She rose, swaying giddily.

"Dr. Kaye, you can't do anything for me. Katharine should not have bothered you. I'm sorry. Just go away and leave me alone."

There was a kind of desperate dignity about the small figure.

"Zoe, dear, your mother and father will be home soon. They won't know what's happened. Do you want to frighten them?"

Katharine asked her gently.

"That's true. That's true," Zoe seemed suddenly tractable. "You give me something to sleep on, doctor, and I'll be better tomorrow, perhaps."

John Kaye had his finger on her pulse now; his quiet eyes were examining her.

"I have something in my kit," he said. "It's right there on the chair, Katharine."

THE tall, slender girl in white, with the fair hair brushed like a golden cascade on her head, found the leather case and gave it to her in one quiet movement.

John Kaye smiled at her; she was so cool and sure of herself, so aloof, apparently, from earthly troubles. Katharine recognized the quality of his smile and answered it in kind. John was good! Whenever he was around you felt safe.

"This will do the trick. Two of these now. You'll sleep like a log."

"All right," Zoe said docilely. "I want to bathe my face, I think. Back in a minute."

Katharine and Dr. Kaye waited as she disappeared into the glittering, tiled bathroom. They could hear the rushing of water. Then a thud.

John Kaye rushed for the door. It was locked.

"The balcony!" gasped Katharine. "You can get in through the bathroom window."

The doctor hooked his leg over the sill. He was out of sight. Katharine waited, her heart thudding painfully. Zoe—how awful! What would they find?

The key grated in the lock. Dr. Kaye stood in the doorway, Zoe's body in his arms. A strangely limp Zoe, her face stained by a brownish liquid.

"White of egg, quickly," grated the doctor. Katharine never knew how they got through the confusion that followed. Bells ringing—people hurrying to and fro through the corridors. Mrs. Parker was there, her face strained and white. And there was a nurse with dark hair under a flyaway cap.

"However did it happen?" wailed Zoe's mother. Katharine said something nervous and rather garbled about Zoe's desperate headache—John Kaye's prescription.

"She just got the wrong medicine, that's all," Katharine said, trying to make the lie sound reasonable.

"Oh, Katharine, do you think so?" Terror looked out of the older woman's eyes. "Katharine, it wasn't anything else? She was happy lately, wasn't she? It wasn't—wasn't the other?"

"How could it be?" You had to lie to mothers, Katharine reflected.

Zoe's mother couldn't have borne to know what her child had gone through that summer night. Life was sometimes too black and pitted with terror.

ALL through the night they fought for Zoe's life. Katharine went through the halls softly; once she met John in the doorway and she smiled at her wearily, gently.

"John, is she—are you going to be able to—?"

"Don't ask me now. I don't know." He looked desperately tired. "You'd better lie down and get some rest yourself."

"Oh, I'm all right. I simply couldn't go home. I wouldn't be able to sleep anyhow."

She went down again to the library where Mrs. Parker, propped with pillows and sustained by her husband, was waiting.

The woman's haggard eyes sought her face. "Katharine, if Zoe dies, I'll—"

"Don't talk that way, Mama," Henry Parker patted his wife's hand. "She can't die. We won't let her." They were simple people again, this house and all the grandeur they had acquired meant nothing to them.

"Henry, do you remember when she cut her head so badly on that radiator? She was four . . . I'll never forget it . . ."

Mrs. Parker burst into wild weeping. Already they were talking as if Zoe were dead, thought Katharine, fear clutching at her heart.

The night wore through. There was a blaze of light over the water. Light poured into the sickroom, where a small figure lay stretched on a carved and gilded bed. The nurse extinguished the bulb that dangled, hospital-wise, in a twist of white paper. The room was very still.

Dr. Kaye went to the door. He still wore his black broadcloth but he had long since discarded the oddity of grim.

Katharine was in the hall, curled up on a window seat. She brushed her hand across her eyes as the doctor appeared.

"Oh, John, I think I must have dozed off just for an instant. I had the most awful dream . . ."

His face startled her. It was so drawn. "Johnny, she isn't—she hasn't . . ."

He could not speak. Katharine crouched low, as if to ward off a blow.

You're The Loser

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

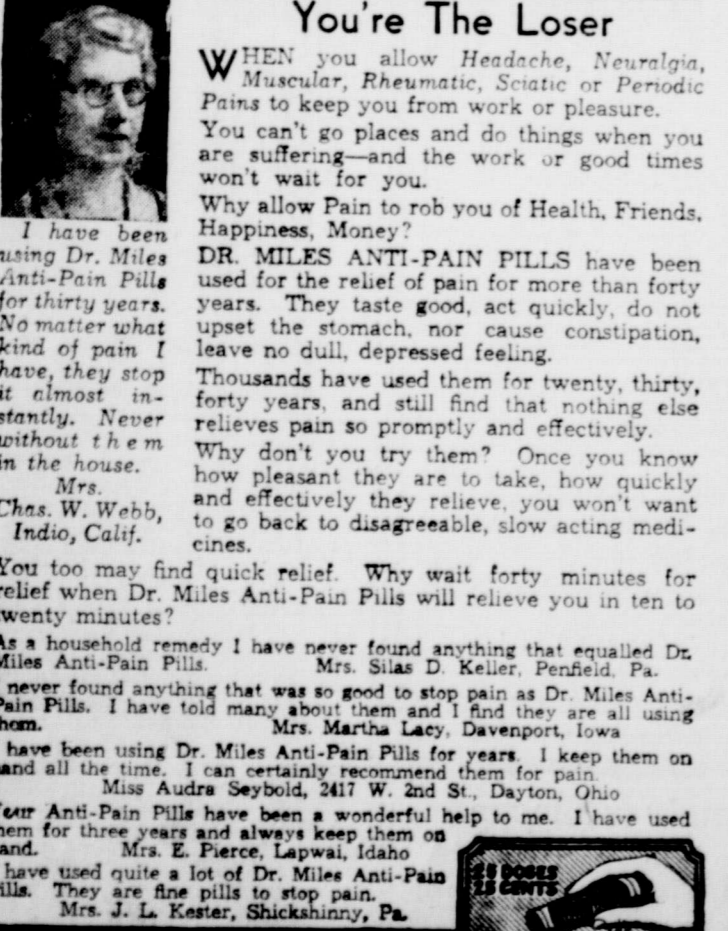

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. S. D. Keller, Perdue, Pa.

I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa.

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio.

Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand. Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho.

I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain. Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshanny, Pa.
