ROOSEVELT'S OWN CODE: SMILE

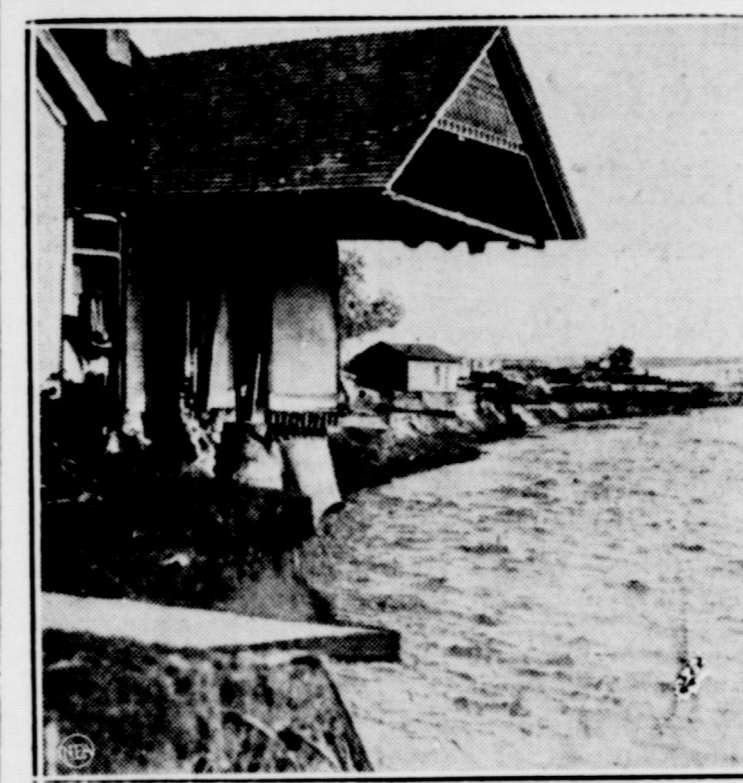

The Supreme Court can wipe out NRA, but lacks the power to erase the famous Roosevelt smile. The president's familiar grin announced that he was feeling quite chipper as he sailed from Annapolis for a week-end rest after his first hectic week of clearing away the debris left by the NRA decision.

Four Houses Were Here; One Left

Where this torrent raged along a Pueblo, Colo., street, four brick residences stood, but only this one reeling on the brink of swollen Fountain creek remained after the fury of the flood had been spent here and rivers rushed eastward to take a toll of more than 100 lives and cause property damage far above $10,000,000.

HOUSE PUSHES SKELETON NRA BILL PASSAGE

WASHINGTON, June 7. — President Roosevelt today declared the nullification of all codes by the supreme court meant a return to fundamental laws, including the anti-trust statutes which he has sworn to uphold. The president made this statement at a press conference while the house, under limited debate, pushed passage of a resolution continuing a skeletonized NRA until April 1, 1936.

Turkey Recalls Tragic Blunders

The ghosts of several thousand soldiers should be interested—if they are in position to know about such things—in the news that Turkey is going to take a leaf from Hitler's book and fortify the Dardanelles straits whether the former allies like it or not.

That, at any rate, is the latest news to jar European diplomacy. It has drawn denials, but even the denials admit that a network of roads has been constructed which would enable Turkey to line the straits with motorized artillery companies on a few hours' notice.

And all this ought to be of interest to the ghosts; for it calls back to mind one of the most tragic and bloody chapters in all the tragic and bloody story of the World War—the effort by France and England to force their way through the Dardanelles in 1915.

In no other episode of the war did the terrible price that can be exacted for the failure of a few individual commanders stand out in such clear relief.

To begin, some British naval authority tipped off the Turks to the impending attack by ordering a premature bombardment of the shore defenses, which gave the Turks just enough warning to get ready for the real attack.

Then a combined British and French fleet tried to force its way through. It got about half way and then withdrew after mines sank several battleships. After the war it was learned that those were the Turks' last mines, that ammunition for their batteries were exhausted, and they were resigned, on the day the fleet withdrew, to complete defeat.

Next came the landing of troops. A long and costly trench warfare deadlock ensued. In an effort to end it, a British division was landed at Suvla bay, halfway up the slim Dardanelles peninsula.

For 24 hours this division remained there, practically unopposed. It could have crossed the peninsula and won complete victory; but its commander delayed attacking for 24 hours, giving the Turks time enough to bring up men and guns and checkmate the thrust.

On such slender chances did the Dardanelles campaign turn. World history would be vastly different if it had succeeded. Turkey would have been knocked out of the war, allied supplies would have reached Russia in ample volume, the Russian revolution could have been averted, the war would have ended before America was drawn in—and, all in all, the record of the last 20 years would make altogether different reading.

All this, somehow, is brought to mind by this current news about new fortifications at the Dardanelles. To the ghosts of the thousands of Australians, Englishmen, and Frenchmen who died there in a lost cause, the news ought to have a grim and melancholy interest.

Cooperative Marketing Grows

During the week of July 15-20, the American Institute of Cooperation will hold its 11th annual meeting at Cornell University.

In a recent statement, Charles W. Homan, secretary of the institute, said that the 1935 session will be somewhat different from its predecessors, in that it will be more of an instructional character, with lectures by practical authorities on cooperative marketing, with special emphasis on the business problems of the agricultural cooperatives. In other words, where previous annual meetings have been in the nature of conventions, the forthcoming session will be primarily devoted to searching discussions of farm problems. It is said that the meeting will be attended by the representatives of more than three million organized farmers. And, during the same week, a number of national farm groups allied with the cooperative movement will hold their meetings at Cornell.

Cooperative marketing has come a long way since it began. Every year has witnessed definite progress—that handful of farmers who belonged to the first cooperatives has grown to millions. Cooperatives have learned much and done much. Meetings such as the institute holds, by bringing varying viewpoints and different minds together, take the cooperative movement still another step toward its goal—stability and prosperity on the farm.

When three million individual producers can be represented at a single conclave, it shows that cooperation has passed the pioneer stage, and has become a dominant influence in American life.

Tourists Will See Mexico and Canada

Thousands of Americans are going to "see Mexico first" this summer. There is a highway all the way from Laredo to the ancient city of the Aztecs. Rotarians will be in possession of the capital city of Mexico in the month of June. Thousands of tourists from every section of the United States are booked for passage by rail or steamship or airplane or motor.

Canada is our neighbor on the north. This news dispatch from Toronto is appealing: "Canada anticipates a tourist traffic this summer which will equal that of 1929 when $309,000,000 was spent by American visitors during the year."

Why shouldn't the tourists of 47 American commonwealths make their plans for seeing Texas first in 1936? In the not recent past American tourists placed $600,000,000 in the pockets of the Empire and in the British Isles every year. Eighty per cent of these tourists who "were educated to see Europe first never realized the vast domain of the United States and the balance of North America or its magnificent scenic effects, its noble rivers, its lofty mountains, its marvelous resources, and its historic places which should ever appeal to those who have the money to travel and a wanderlust which is the heritage of all men and women of the Caucasian race. Texas will be in the big picture in 1936, and Texas should be advertised not only to the North American but the South American countries.

a prestige the mere solicitor can never enjoy. This is not an altruistic theory, but a workable policy which has been proven successful by over 5,000,000 lines of local newspaper advertising in a single year—and this in a city of 25,000 population.

Pessimistic Football Coach Has Nothing On 'Negativistic' Movie Film Director

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—The football coach, whose team prospects are always more dismal than his rival's, has a counterpart in the motion picture director.

Every studio set has a wailing wall and every wall a string of directors. The time each spends at it depends upon the size of the picture. The larger the production, the more time at the wailing wall.

King Vidor, who has done a fair share of moaning in ten years of directing motion pictures, analyzes this pessimism as a "negativistic philosophy."

Everything All Wrong
"You start a large picture believing absolutely that everything is going to go wrong," he said. "You believe that the million dollars allotted you isn't going to be half enough; that your principal players are cast wrong, and that the whole scheme of production might be improved at least 50 per cent."

"At the time of starting, you feel highly pessimistic, with but one faint note of optimism—the thought that perhaps there is hope after all. Football coaches are notorious for this negativistic philosophy and I have practiced it for ten years.

"The system works out this way: You expect the worst and when your actors turn out to be excellent players with an understanding of their parts you experience a beautiful thrill.

Pleasant Surprises
"You say to yourself: 'This business isn't so bad after all; maybe there is a chance the picture will be all right.' And then you discover with increasing surprise that Margaret Sullivan really likes the role she has been given, that the story is coming along and that the production will balance the budget.

"Adopt this attitude and most of life's troubles can be made to vanish."

Whereas an ordinary industry has, possibly, 10 or less obstacles to surmount, the trials of a movie director multiply up to 36. Vidor finds:

"There are such matters as budgeting, casting, set construction, time-keeping, recording, laboratory work, costume designing, carpentering, and on into distribution—35 departments with which the director comes into daily intimate contact," he explained.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, June 7.—A group of legislators in the next few days will ask Gov. James V. Allred to reconvene the house and senate late in July, rather than in September, to pass a liquor sale and taxing law.

Argument of these members will be that the state will begin losing $500,000 a month in taxes from the day the constitution is changed, if the repeal amendment carries, until a statute can become effective.

The wets have little hope of mastering 100 house votes to open liquor sales earlier than 90 days from adjournment of the session, even with the promise of taxes. Those who want the real plan in effect quickly will show that the state would pay the cost of the session four times over by advancing the beginning of the law one month. They will essay to show the governor that by July 15 it will be fairly clear whether the amendment will carry. The repeal group has made extremely slow headway in getting started, but believe that it will pyramid its drive to the most effective form, rather than to start it early and get the drys hard at work.

This year has marked the definite passing of a long campaign designed to abolish the ad valorem tax for state purposes on all property.

It has been concluded that this tax shall be retained, along with others, but that certain exemptions extending the $3,000 homestead exemption perhaps in time to all other levies, city and county as well as state.

The ad valorem tax now produces only about a fourth or a fifth of the state's revenue. But aside from a reasonable exemption on resident homesteads, public policy has now shaped itself that property ought, and will continue to bear some of the burden of state taxation.

If some federal judge doesn't nullify the act, Gov. Allred's granting of the first state pardon to men convicted in federal court—customs guard and a deputy sheriff at Brownsville will carry a step further the fight of Texas senators in resisting federal encroachments upon state powers.

In the Brownsville case, the trail was taken out of state courts merely on the motion of the customs guard, on the ground that he drew his pay from the federal government. Just how federal courts ever got to the point of providing for two kinds of justice in criminal cases is not very clear to those who listen to the grave pronouncements of U. S. supreme court that the federal government cannot kick the states aside on any pretext.

The effort of the governor to sustain state sovereignty is more important than the merits of the individual pardon, which was sought for federal and state officials and political leaders of the section, and recommended by officials of Mexico.

partner made off with the money—
"Oh, they did, did they?"
" . . . .
"WE traced ye to Texas," continued Mr. Malley, crossing one plump leg over the other and allowing the ashes of his cigar to sift carelessly all over the floor of the porch. "We lost it there for a while. Ye'd a job there for some months, saved yer money and were sober, they said—"
"All right, all right, now you've got me. Where do we go from here?" demanded Michael.
"Not that I put much stock in this inheritance yara. It sounds fishy. Nobody," he added with a quizzical face, "ever gave me a penny. It sounds like a pipe dream."

"It's no pipe dream if ye're the sole heir of Francis Albert Drayton Heathcote," pronounced the detective with unction. "He was the younger son of a lord. Put that in your pipe and smoke it! His older brother inherited the place—seems like they're partly English. They've 'holdings,' the solicitor fellers said, in England, too. Anyhow in June this older brother died. He was," said the detective, consulting a slip of paper he had fished from his wallet, "named Hilary Edward Heathcote, Lord Carden—"

Something flashed across Michael's face, hitherto dark and unresponsive.
"Ah, ye've heard that name before, I'll be bound," murmured Mr. Malley triumphantly. He was finding this client an extremely irritating subject. What he expected he could not have said, but something like enthusiasm, at least. It wasn't every day that you walked up to a feller and told him he had come into a castle and a title and God knew what all. Not that it meant much on this side of the pond; titles were going begging, from all he'd heard. Still it was something. Funny this kid couldn't seem to get the idea.

"I have heard it before," Michael said slowly. "There was a crest—on a scrap of paper in my father's collar box. I remember asking about it when I was a kid. My father said, I remember, that the Cardens had always had it, since the Wars of the Roses or something."

"He died—when?" queried Mr. Gerhardt who had been silent up to this very moment. Michael stared at him, considering.

"When I was 10. My mother a year later. I was raised—grew up, I mean—on the place."

"WELL, that's the story," finished Mr. Malley with a reish. "Now we can turn ye over to Mister James William Downing of London, England, and collect ours. It's been a long drag, Tom," he told his partner, "but we always get our man."

Gerhardt nodded. They both eyed Michael curiously.

Malley rose with some ceremony. "Well, we'll get in touch with Downing tonight. He's at the Waldorf. Don't go away, young feller—"

Michael grinned. "I won't, pal. Thanks for the trouble."

"That's the stuff," Malley's great paw came out and wacked

CITY CHARTER OF VIENNA TO BE BASED UPON FORGERY

M. JAHN, correspondent, Vienna, June 7. — Vienna's city charter for 500 years, which served as the basis for the city's constitution, was based on a forgery by Probstwasser recently discovered by a document purporting to be that of Duke Frederick of Austria, dated 1285, by which the city was granted the right to open and sell wine. This book could serve as an authentic test of the ink used in the subsequent engravings of the city's seal.

Wealthy Cuban Is Reported Ransomed

HAVANA, Cuba, June 7. — Ransom of $286,000 cash has been sent to the kidnapers of Antonio San Miguel, reputed to be Cuba's second wealthiest man, a government man announced today.

San Miguel was seized with his chauffeur, valet and guard while motoring late yesterday. The note demanding the $286,000 was delivered today by the valet who was driven blindfolded into the suburbs and released.

Kansas Is Ready For Legal Hanging

TOPEKA, Kan., June 7 — The Kansas Legislature this year provided for the death penalty in first degree murder cases, establishing hanging at the state prison as the legal means, and authorized the warden to hire an outside executioner if he wished.

There has been no legal execution in Kansas in approximately 50 years although the death penalty was optional during part of this period under the new law juries will use their discretion in naming the penalty. They may not, however, sentence anyone under 18 to hang.

BUILDING UP RECREATION IS COMPANY AIM

"The Lake Cisco Amusement company is an organization composed of Cisco people who are vitally interested in building up the recreational features of our city," said Lloyd Hughes, manager Thursday in an interview regarding the lowering of prices effective at once.

Hughes said further that these people were struggling along, spending what they make in building for the future. He said that it is the intention of the management to leave no stone unturned in providing for the comfort and pleasure of those who visit the lake as patrons of its recreational activities. Much money has already been spent in providing for the sanitation of the pool and dressing rooms, and other improvements will be made as fast as accumulating funds will allow.

A campaign for the selling of season books of swimming tickets has been launched in order that funds may be acquired sooner and thus improvements be made earlier. The following young ladies have entered the selling campaign and any courtesy shown them will be heartily appreciated by the management, said Hughes.

DOCTOR TOLD HER HOW TO LOSE 17 POUNDS OF FAT

Gossipers Peeved

Mrs. Robert Hickey of Roseville, Calif., writes: "My doctor prescribed Kruschen Salts for me—he said they wouldn't hurt me in the least. I've lost 17 lbs. in 6 weeks. Kruschen is worth its weight in gold." Mrs. Hickey paid no attention to gossipers who said there was no safe way to reduce—envious women who don't like to see others youthfully slim. She wisely followed her doctor's advice. Why don't YOU?

Get a jar of Kruschen to-day (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle) and if you don't lose 12 lbs. and feel years younger and healthier—money back. Simply take half teaspoonful in cup of hot water every morning (tastes fine with juice of half lemon added). Moore Drug Co. Adv.

West Texas Utilities Company

By DYKE WILLIAMS
United Press Staff Correspondent
PHOENIX, Ariz., June 7.—The "Arizona Army" may see new action in the Colorado River war, tacticians here believe. But not unless Congress passes a proposed bill to authorize construction of the Parker Dam without Arizona's consent.

Then the Secretary Ickes-Governor Moeur-Metropolitan Water Conservation District - California - Arizona imbroglio will begin all over again, observers believed.

Arizona then may call out her "motorized national guard units"—they really are—and prepare again for assault by the water route with the "Julia B" and the "Nellie Jo." She would be equipped to carry out her threat of last year to barge upstream and stop even congress from building the Parker Dam, unless again halted by the Supreme Court.

Disputes Congress
Gov. B. B. Moeur has indicated he believes the state has this right, and that Congress has no right to build the dam. So if California outflanks Arizona in the house and senate, observers forecast there will be a new action on the military sector of the Parker site, where martial law has remained unrevoked for months.

In that event, the next move would be a new appeal for an injunction by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, it was believed. The old drama of the Colorado River would be under way again, with cast and characters unchanged.

Tactical Position
The issues, too, would be about the same, but a final denouncement would be much nearer. If Arizona is successful in preventing congressional construction of the dam, either by legislative generalship in congress, or by martial law and a new Supreme Court victory, she will be in a position to secure major concessions from her big neighbor to the best, partisans of the Baby State believed.

What those concessions may be has already been indicated. They are not small, and if the struggle drags out to a complete Arizona victory, they may increase.

At present, the Arizona Colorado river commission has indicated, Arizona would be satisfied with California help in securing $50,000,000 in federal public works financing for a huge irrigation project near Yuma, in the lower Gila Valley, and perhaps a canal system to the Gulf of Mexico, which many believe could be built for less than $10,000,000.

France World Host At Wine Festival
RHEIMS, France, June 7.—France is host to the world today at the largest champagne party ever staged. Thousands of foreign and native guests are here to attend the Third National Festival of French wines, continuing five days.

Champagne cellars and bottles of the sparkling beverage will be in the foreground, but the real hosts and hostesses are the vineyard peasants. They are here from every French region in their picturesque costumes to sing and dance for the visitors.

Trips will be made to the famous champagne cellars here and in other parts of the champagne region, including the Abbey of Hautvillers, where the Benedictine monk, Dom Perignon, first discovered the secret of retaining the sparkle of champagne 300 years ago.

Noted chefs are busy preparing menus and recipes for banquets which will be worthy of the famous wines served. Although the champagne region will be the locale for the festival, the finest wines of other French regions will be served also at this five-day celebration.

Smashes Windows, Lands In Lockup

PORT WORTH, June 7 — Students of today have "gone soft" according to Prof. Will M. Winton, head of the geology department of Texas Christian university in Fort Worth.

"I used to take my students on field trips to points from five to eight miles away from Fort Worth," Prof. Winton said.

"Now the students are nearly exhausted after they ride in automobiles out and back.

"There were no automobiles or radios on the campus in 1913 when I came to Fort Worth to teach at T. C. U.," Winton said.

"Movies were just beginning to be popular.

"Many students had made the longest trips of their lives when they came to Fort Worth to go to school and a number of them had never seen a street car.

"Today, the students are more sophisticated. The freshman of two decades ago could be herded into almost anything. The sophomores sold them shower bath tickets, cat-aliques and even induced some of them to pay for chapel seats."

New Grocery Has Modern Equipment

OPENING FOR STORE TO BE ON SATURDAY

Moving into their spacious new quarters, Norvell and Miller are inviting their friends and customers to visit them Saturday when they hold their formal opening and exhibit the many extraordinary features of their store on Eighth street.

First of all is noticeable the fact that there is about three times as much room in the store as was at the old D avenue location.

The shelving is all new and is ample for even the large stock of merchandise displayed by this progressive Grocery company. The store is operated on a semi-self service plan which allows the customer to choose what he wants from the displays, with clerks to help him.

Next to attract the eye is the way the inside of the store is finished. Believing that light adds a great deal to the value of display, the company has had the building finished in green and white, which gives it an appearance of neatness achieved only in the modern grocery.

What is perhaps the most novel feature and at the same time the most progressive is the lighting system itself. The company has tried to eliminate the continual glare and the casting of shadows by a new type of lighting, and has been very successful in doing so.

Indirect Lighting

The West Texas Utilities company has recently installed a system of indirect lighting which it says is one of the best in this section of the state, and which has caused much comment from customers at the store.

The eight lights dropped from the ceiling give ample illumination which is uniform over the building, and at the same time eliminates glare and shadows which would cause eye strain.

Ceiling fans keep the air in the building moving and help to achieve a coolness that adds greatly to the comfort of both employes and customers.

At the back of the building, in the market, there is a large refrigerator and meat storage vault, which insures fresh and sanitary meats and other market products. Vegetables, at the front of the building, are under a constant mist spray that keeps them fresh and clean.

The building is equipped with two offices, one for the cashier in the center front, and another for the manager, on the left as one enters.

All equipment, the firm points out with pride, is new and is designed to give the utmost efficiency in modern grocery service.

Famed Livestock Team Coach Quits

STEPHENVILLE, June 7.—H. N. Smith, known to dairy men as the breeder of the widely-known Tarleton college dairy herd, and to livestock men as the coach whose judging teams have taken first place at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show year after year, is leaving John Tarleton College, where he has been professor of animal husbandry since September 1925. His resignation took effect today.

Smith has accepted a position with the soil erosion division of the United States Department of Agriculture on the Lindale project, 16 miles north of Taylor. His work will touch every phase of the soil erosion program: terracing, strip cropping, contour cultivation, crop rotations, flood control, reforestation, pasture improvement, and the other methods used to stop the damage to soil of eroding water and wind.

In speaking of his resignation, Dean J. Thomas Davis said, "I regret exceedingly that Tarleton will lose Mr. Smith, and do not know where we can go to find someone with his particular training and ability to fit into the place he leaves. That he is a man of intensive energy and superior ability is indicated by the work he has done in the years he has been with us."

Before you buy new tires ask yourself these three questions:
1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"
3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

1 University tests show Firestone tires stop 15 to 25% quicker.
2 Gum-Dipped cords give greater blowout protection. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires.
3 Wider, flatter tread gives more than 50% longer non-skidwear.

Norvell And Miller Grocery Expands As Company Moves to New Quarters

With the formal opening of the new store of the Norvell and Miller grocery company Saturday is seen a definite expansion of the company after it has existed as the present partnership for four years.

The company, moving to its new Eighth street home, will have about three times as much display space as it had in its old building, besides modern equipment.

The partnership was formed four years ago when W. R. Miller purchased a half interest in the Norvell and Miller grocery, taking over the part owned by E. B. Gude.

Norvell and Gude had been partners in the business for a year, after the store had been operated for some time as the L. B. Norvell grocery.

Miller had worked for the company for three years before purchasing an interest in it.

Present Operation

At present the company is operated with Miller in the store and Norvell as the outside man. While the junior partner has charge of the store itself, Norvell is cattle buyer for the firm and has charge of its other activities, including management of various farms the company operates. A veteran cattle man, Norvell has been in Cisco some 15 years.

The new store, besides being roomy enough to take care of the company's large business, is equipped in the most modern manner and will even have new scales when they get here, it was pointed out. Operated on a semi-self service plan, it has new shelving for the display of all goods.

The market is equipped with a large refrigerator that keeps meats and other market products cool at all times, while a spray throws a fine mist over vegetables, keeping them cool and crisp. Ceiling fans add to the comforts of employes and customers alike.

One of the most remarkable features of the store is its indirect lighting. Eight of the new type lights are dropped from the ceiling to give uniform illumination over the entire building, at the same time eliminating all shadows.

JUST FAMILY SPATS

PUEBLO, Col. — When Magistrate Ralph L. Neary dismissed a breach of peace complaint made against C. G. GRADS GET JOBS

CLEVELAND — Seventy-three of the 98 graduates of Penn. College, Y. M. C. A. co-operative institution, who received degrees at the school's annual commencement, just held, are looking forward to full-time jobs. The college operates on a plan of graduates leaving school with two and one-half years' industrial and business experience.

HORSE VACATION DAYS

OMAHA, Neb. — Old Dobbin is looking forward to the summer vacation as longingly as the children, for it means clover for him for three months. Dobbin, plus a partner pulls the only horsedrawn bus in town, taking 35 children from suburban homes to an Omaha school.

Stories in STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

URUGUAY, Italy, Spain, and other countries display in stamps their regard for the most famous horse of Greek fable, the winged Pegasus. Said to have sprung from the trunk of the Gorgon Medusa, when her head was cut off by Perseus, Pegasus was caught by Bellerophon, but threw his rider on his flight to heaven. In heaven, Pegasus served Zeus, fetching thunder and lightning for the god of power.

Pegasus, therefore, is considered a symbol of the thundercloud, and also as a curse-horse, representing the speed at which curses were fulfilled. But more recent stories make Pegasus the horse of the Muses and symbol of poetry.
