DROWN IN SOUTH TEXAS FLOODS

RAIN FALLING AS RESCUERS ARE AT WORK

By UNITED PRESS

Seven persons were dead and several missing as flood water isolated several South Texas communities today.

Rain continued as rescuers worked frantically to move residents from lowland homes.

C. C. Tabor, white farmer, and two unidentified negroes were drowned near Karns City. The bodies of four Mexicans, drowned near Del Rio on the Texas-Mexico border, were recovered and several other Mexicans were missing. Two Mexicans were believed drowned near Kennedy, 50 miles southeast of San Antonio, but their bodies were not found and it was not certain that they were dead.

A washout on the Southern Pacific railroad blocked rail traffic. At Karns City the San Antonio river was a mile wide, fed by freshets above San Antonio where more than four inches of rain had fallen in the last 24 hours. Rail and highway traffic near Del Rio was blocked.

The Guadalupe river had reached a stage of 40 feet and still was rising. Many residents fled to higher ground and livestock were moved to safety.

At Three Rivers the Nueces had swollen to a level of 43 feet and the Rio river was up to 41 feet, flooding a wide area of farm land.

A heavy rain was reported in West Texas. Although rainfall in Sweetwater was comparatively light, a 15-inch rain was reported south of the city.

House Agrees to Senate's NRA Amendment

BILL GOES TO WHITE HOUSE FOR SIGNING

WASHINGTON, June 14 — The NRA extension resolution preserving the blue eagle skeleton until April was passed in senate form by the house today, completing congressional action on the measure, which now goes to the White House.

The bill in its final form extends the NRA until April 1, 1936, strips the president of code imposing powers, but permits voluntary non-enforceable agreements among business groups, confined only to minimum wages and hours, child labor abolition, and collective bargaining.

The senate amendment, accepted by the house on orders of President Roosevelt, prohibits trade practices in violation of anti-trust laws.

Passage came within 48 hours of the time the National Recovery Act would otherwise automatically have expired.

The skeleton NRA will be able to collect data on code and labor standards. Its personnel is expected to be cut from 5,400 to less than 2,000.

House leaders agreed to the measure, as amended by the senate, in a conference with President Roosevelt yesterday morning.

The senate had passed the resolution after an all night session, during which Senator Huey Long, democrat, La., had conducted a one-man filibuster which had lasted nearly 16 hours.

Some of the house leaders had expressed indignation at the senate's anti-trust amendment, but after their conference with the president, agreed to accept the bill as modified.

LASKA DENIED ACQUITTAL AS MATHER FREE

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 14. — Ben Laska was denied and James Mather was granted a directed verdict of acquittal today on their trial on indictments that they received part of the $200,000 Urschel kidnap ransom as fees for defending the kidnapers.

The case against Laska, Denver attorney, will go to a federal court jury as soon as argument and instructions have been completed. Both the government and the defense concluded all their evidence at the morning session of court today.

U. S. Judge Edgar Vaughn held that the government had not produced enough evidence against Mather, to submit to the jury. He overruled a motion made for Laska that the evidence against Laska was too weak. Judge Vaughn ruled quickly when the Mather's motion was introduced.

The prosecution had contended that a part of the ransom money had passed between Albert Bates, convicted kidnaper, and Laska, who defended him.

Bates' wife testified against the attorney in the case.

"My message is to the beginner," Lamb said. "The experienced fisherman already has worked out his own problems, and I am interested in helping the man or boy who hasn't yet learned the art of snaring the big fellows."

Lamb has been in this part of the state most of the week, fishing here and there, and giving exhibitions such as the one scheduled for this afternoon.

Texas Young Democrats in Convention

Texas young democrats held their most important convention at Amarillo in the county of Potter away out in the Panhandle country. James and Elliott Roosevelt, sons of the president, were invited guests. They attended the convention, they were on the speaking program and they defended the administration of their distinguished sire. Governor Allred was in attendance. He championed the supreme court cause from its critics in Texas as elsewhere.

Really, the young democrats, like the ancient king of France, marched up the hill and then marched down again. In the closing hours of the convention the dove of peace lit in the rafters of the auditorium and harmony prevailed.

The New York Sunday News is a metropolitan newspaper with a very large circulation. It is an independent newspaper and its slogan is: "The supreme court's power must be curbed." And how? Speaking of the NRA and other measures of the New Deal administration the News said:

"Then the supreme court came along and upset the NRA, calmly overruled the considered and reconsidered will of the people, the president's judgment and the congress vote. The supreme court did this thing on the ground that the men who framed the constitution in 1787 did not want such recovery measures adopted for a machine age 1934-35 as were adopted. As if Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Franklin and the rest had the presumption, which they had not, to believe they could write a constitution that would cover all the changes in all the centuries to come."

The News editorial writer stresses the constitution's framers in fact did not give the supreme court the power to override congress, the president and the people. "The court it declared, has gradually usurped that power during the last 30 years, beginning with Chief Justice Marshall's decision in the case of Marbury vs. Madison in 1803 in which Marshall first asserted that the court could override acts of congress.

From that time to this, the supreme court, "wandering in the bright realms of pure law and penalty out of touch with real life, has rendered some grotesque decisions and some dangerous ones. First by the Dred Scott decision holding it unconstitutional for congress to legislate slavery out of the territories, the court did much to bring on the Civil War. By the 1918 and 1922 decisions holding federal anti-child labor laws unconstitutional, the court upheld the "right of children to stunt themselves and take grownups jobs. By the Schechter decision the court has held congress cannot legislate for the industrial, economic and social welfare of the people."

The New York Daily News does not shout at the top of its editorial voice. "Thank God for the supreme court!" This is its attitude as well as advice to American voters: "It is time to stop all this. The way to do it is to restore the balance of power in this country as the constitution's framers established it. The president must be restored his rightful power to administer the law. To congress must be given back its rightful power to make the law without danger of having it overrun by the supreme court. And to those nine gentlemen must be restored their rightful power to interpret the laws and no more. That is the only power to which they are entitled. They have been usurping more and more power since Marshall's time, until today, they are our real rulers; until, no matter how much the majority of us want some reform, we can't have it unless at least five of these nine old gentlemen want it too."

Where do we go from here? The young democrats of Texas in convention assembled raised the issue, but they did not settle it. They congratulated the supreme court, the president, the New Deal and all connected with the administration. Again "Where do we go from here?"

Grass Root Republicans Pay Lincoln Tribute

Thousands of so called grass root republicans are in session in Illinois. They paid tribute to the emancipator of the chattel slave who was their first and greatest leader.

The elephant is planning for a comeback next year and the trainers of the elephant are going to make the Middle-west and the Northwest and the Mountain states the rallying ground of the new G. O. P. declaration of principles and more than likely select their candidates for president and vice president from the states lying west of the Allegheny mountains and the Ohio river. There is a warm time and not joy acoming.

Former Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma has deserted the New Deal as well as the democratic party and announced his willingness to join hands with any political organization of the new or the old deal brand hostile to F. D. and his program.

Alfalfa William has been a rebel all his life. He is one of the rare exhibitionists on the political stage. He is "agin" everything and everybody except William. He was born with the viewpoint that he is the real blown-in-the-bottle-Moses to lead the people out of the wilderness. He loathes Huey Long, Father Coughlin, Dr. Townsend and the novel writing Moses of California. But he is "agin" the government in power and ready to "jine drives" with all the critics of the administration.

It is a matter of fact that the administration did not take care of Alfalfa Bill. Then Marland threw him out of office and he has been as mad as a snapping turtle since his relegation to private life.

Florida Gov. Vetoes Moratorium Bill

Governor David Sholtz of Florida vetoed a two year moratorium on public debts twice passed by the legislature of this state. The measure would have given courts power to adjust payments required of taxing districts to meet defaulted bonds.

Those who loan the money to taxing districts are clamoring for their just dues—speaking of interest and principal. They point to a decision of the supreme court of the United States as Exhibit A. Why should lawmakers enact measures which they know are unconstitutional and then pass their pet measures on to the governor or the courts for the last word?

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, June 14 — Dr. George C. Hester, former representative from Williamson county and professor of government in Southwestern university, as economic analyst for the federal power commission is assisting in the preparation of the power and rate surveys of the power commission. Two volumes of reports of this survey, one on available power production in relation to the needs of various areas, the other of existing rates of utility companies and municipal power plants, have just been completed. Other studies are in process now.

Mr. Hester is one of the few members in the legislature who brought with him professional training in government. He proved one of the most valuable members in the house; and the value of his services in his federal position are readily apparent.

"Unless some interest is aroused pretty soon," a prominent former Texas official and life-long anti-prohibition leader said here, "it is probable the repeal amendment will fail in August."

He said: "I believe if the campaign gets under way and tremendous public interest is aroused, repeal will be voted, but indifference will be a strong factor in favor of the amendment."

At the same time, a statewide repeal campaign organization was still in the process of completion, with the apparent design of building up its campaign in such a way that it will hit the peak just before the August 24 election, rather than so early that a bill might discount the final effect.

Veto by Gov. Allred of a considerable appropriation out of highway funds to maintain a separate legal staff for the highway department is a step toward returning the state's legal business to the attorney general's department, for which Allred scrapped while attorney general.

Many departments have been given the right to employ or appoint lawyers to represent them, paid out of the special taxes or fees levied for maintenance of the department. When it was proposed to have a separate legal staff for the oil and gas administration, two years ago, Mr. Allred successfully resisted it, and gave notice that his efforts would be returned to the official responsible for conducting the state's legal business the entire resources of the state devoted to that purpose.

No matter how many lawyers a state has, it still is the attorney general's prerogative to bring or defend state suits.

William Ellyson, Jr., advertising manager of the Richmond (Va.) News Leader, says:

"Many advertisers consider the purchase of newspaper space as concluding the whole program. Really they haven't bought any more than a lot on which to build. If they get the idea of attracting attention and let their efforts end there, they haven't done any more than build a signboard on that lot.

To merit their investment in newspaper space advertisers must erect in that space a structure that does an efficient job correlated to their needs.

"They must attract attention, but when they have that attention they must put their best foot forward to sell their merchandise or their idea."

HORNES PAY LAWYERS

BEAUMONT, June 14 — W. E. Hodges, Amelia, charged with murdering his brother-in-law, offered a pair of 13-point elk horns for sale to obtain money to hire an attorney. Hodges was left in a quandary when his first attorney died.

Gopher Drive Begun In Houston County

CROCKETT, June 14 — Gophers have dug themselves out of a home in Houston county, according to C. E. Bowles, agricultural agent.

The animals ruined fields and orchards, broke terraces and damaged pastures and crops by their burrowing.

Farmers west of here have blocked up 2,500 acres and baited enclosure with poison. As the gophers are driven from one farm to another more crease is added to the block.

The concerted drive was expected to rid the county of the animals.

Board Favors Road Through East Texas

AUSTIN, June 14 — Texas planning board members went on record at their last meeting in favor of early construction for highway No. 193, San Augustine to Lufkin to Crockett, connecting units of Sam Houston forest.

Unanimous approval was given a resolution introduced by E. L. Kurth, board member from Lufkin, urging the federal bureau of public roads and state highway department to plan construction of the new road.

It would be of inestimable benefit to East Texas, the board agreed.

Crowd Gets Thrill As Parachute Rips

DALLAS, June 14 — Capt. Leon McKinnon, Dallas aviator, gave spectators at Love Field an unexpected thrill when he made a parachute jump recently.

McKinnon jumped out of the plane at 3,500 feet but delayed pulling the rip cord until he was about 1,000 feet above the ground. His parachute opened with a noise like a pistol shot.

He descended to the ground very rapidly and not until he had landed did the crowd learn that the sudden opening of the parachute had ripped a five-foot tear in its fabric.

It was only a miracle, experts said that saved McKinnon from death.

Weimar Area Now Tomato Conscious

WEIMAR, June 14 — Farmers of this section have become intensely "tomato-conscious" since August Shumbers, local tiller, marketed a $1,000 crop from five acres.

Tony W. Gloska sold a $350 crop from two acres. Profits from tomatoes have caused a sudden turn from cotton growing.

The marriage takes place in an obscure little town. Katharine and Michael each go to their own home. Almost immediately Michael learns he has inherited a fortune and title. He goes to New York to see the lawyer in charge and is injured in a traffic accident.

Sally, unwaverer of Michael's marriage to Katharine, locates him in a hospital and takes charge of the situation. Katharine, believing Michael has deserted her, is heart-broken. She wants to go away, but her stepmother opposes the plan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII

VIOLET MERSER had nerved herself for the interview. It was not one she faced with pleasure, but Katharine's worn face and the tragic expression in her dark eyes the day before had decided her.

Mr. Strykhurst's secretary said she would see if her employer was busy. Violet, looking about her with recognition, was surprised to find everything so unchanged. Seven years since she herself had been 20, and encased behind that desk for at least one very like it, feeling important and thrillingly adult.

Victor Strykhurst's hair had not been white then; it had been black—ebony black with a deep, rich wave in it. He had exuded a sort of power. She had been exceedingly young and inexperienced. Small wonder she had fallen in love with him.

And to love she had fallen head over heels. There had been no reservations in the affection she had poured out upon him, this motherless girl who had been poor and restricted and unhappy. He had been matteringly kind to her—merely that, at first. Later there had been little attentions, presents, the extraordinary homage of certain veiled looks.

He had known the game so well. And she—well, she had not even the first inkling of the rules.

His wife, he had told her, was ill, had been an invalid for years. Divorce was out of the question.

Proud, loving, fierce in her loyalties, eternally innocent, she had believed all of this. It had taken a day at a seaside resort whither he had summoned her, ostensibly on a business errand, to open her eyes.

She had seen him then for what he really was—a rich man greedy for all life's sensations, loving not her but the new experience she promised.

Horror-struck, she had shrunk from him. She had been too essentially honest to face the inevitable difficulties of the affair he offered her. But the struggle, in the days that followed, had been a frightful one. Temptation, time and again, had almost overwhelmed her. She had loved him so terribly.

In the end her strength had been superior to his. She had gone away, left him empty. She had thought, for a long time, that she hated all men.

She thought of this as she waited for the trim young woman in the exquisitely cut dark frock to return. Was Victor having his usual hour of dalliance with this girl, she wondered. She rejected the thought because the girl looked cool and hard and certain of herself. Besides Victor now was definitely "an older man."

The male charm and strength she had so long missed in him were no longer so powerful.

"Mr. Strykhurst will see you now." The secretary looked Violet over appraisingly, calculating to an inch the definitely modish costume of summer silk, charming but inexpensive. Violet smiled and went into the inner office.

He had risen to greet her; and there was just a trace of apprehension in his suave manner. Violet went straight to the point.

"It's about Katharine."

His brows drew together in a frown. "My daughter? Ah, yes, you know her. I forgot."

Violet suppressed the smile that rose to her lips. He never forgot anything. Lawyer-like, the facts that one day might be useful to him were always pigeonholed somewhere in his memory.

"She's anxious to go on a trip with a friend of ours, Miss Vincent. She'd have a chance to paint. Evelyn Vincent is a splendid woman—she thinks Katharine has talent that should be encouraged."

She chose her words with the greatest caution. Not for worlds would she have him suspect the secret that ate at Katharine's very soul.

He shook his head, obdurate. "My wife and I talked it over last night. Mrs. Strykhurst is very much opposed to it. Later we may run over to Europe with her. She can look in on the galleries."

Violet suppressed a shudder at the thought of the unhappy girl trailing the two smug, middle-aged people, wrapped in her own black thoughts.

"I rather hoped you would say yes."

His keen eyes raked her handsome, expressive face. "You considered this important enough to come down town to see me about?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I was in the neighborhood. . . . Just thought I'd drop in."

"Katharine is a difficult child," Victor Strykhurst mused, putting the tips of his beautifully manicured hands together and regarding them. "She seems to have hidden behind me. Her stepmother and I are sometimes baffled by her. . . ."

Violet felt almost an impulse of pity. Perhaps he wasn't as handsome. Perhaps there was a chink in that selfish armor. She tried another tack.

"I know you want to do what's best for her," she began. "We do feel she might blossom out in a different atmosphere. My husband thinks she is very good. Have you seen her flower sketches?"

By the darkening of his face she knew she had touched some raw spot.

"She never speaks to us of her ambitions," he said jealously. "I must confess I think it extremely odd of her to confide in perfect strangers." The interview, as if terrified by the interview, "I'm sorry but I'm afraid we must let the New Mexican idea ride just now. She must stay at home."

The memory of sparring violet strengthened her to say.

"Very well, I may be unpleasant. What do you mean, as had no other across my other mahogany?"

"I mean," that I've often told your daughter, I don't point."

"You wouldn't flash."

"Ah, wouldn't open a petting looked at her."

"You'd be a woman, with and she hoped serpent, but once I was refused to go with you? It well in the next."

SHE loathed the memory of her.

"I don't know about it. 'Don't you?'"

"Really, don't cause, if not, which might worry."

Sure of her innocence and she written them spring.

"You're out there a quick at the door. 'Perhaps I don't know her life messes.'"

"I'm fond of to hate her. thought of everything I once you divorce—even for the child."

"What do he was started new respect, putting a bully, she resented his sense hidden behind me. He said who stood up."

"I want you west with me try at painting they have the She'll thrive looking badly could stand a He hesitated half a minute. It was like fully, once a fair was out of urbane was when he spoke."

"Well, you are Yes. Parents their children's wife over anxious about feels the rest another woman He carried tint of the have left."

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
SEA Service Staff Writer

INTO the new kitchen with its shining equipment dances the new bride, eager for the glorious adventure of cooking the first breakfast for two! Dinner for two! Maybe luncheon for two, but more than likely for one since so few of our men find time to get home for lunch.

To make dreams come true, the cook must put common sense into her work.

There's nothing mysterious about the art of cooking today, methods and recipes are definite and accurate, and good cooks can be made in no time.

The bride who is a born cook often has a tendency to plunge into everything at once. Displays on market stands are hard to resist and the temptation to buy more than two people can possibly eat is too strong.

Plan Days Ahead

Every bride will learn early in her housekeeping experience that it is a big help to plan menus at least two or three days in advance. Planned meals will be more interesting and you can buy more economically if you look ahead. Frequently, too, you can cook more of a certain food than you need for one meal and serve it in another way at a later meal.

Most recipes make too much for a family of two. My own are planned for four, the average recipe found in standard cook books is calculated to serve six. So, if you want just enough for two, you must use either half or one-third of the recipe. Only when you reduce a recipe be sure to decrease each ingredient in proportion.

One pound of asparagus should serve four persons. If the stalks are tough and woody and must be trimmed well up to the tip you may find that only three persons can be helped adequately.

Other Proportions
One pound of peas in the pod (about one quart) yields about one cup of shelled peas and can be made to serve three persons. Allow two pounds for four. Three or four potatoes weigh one pound. A peck weighs fifteen pounds. One pound of fresh spinach will serve six; a pound of shelled lima beans (less than a quart) or a pound of broccolis serves four; a pound of brussels sprouts or mushrooms on toast takes care of six.

Flam and little daughter, Evelyn were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Pence.

DESDEMONA

Only Treadmill In Vienna in Church

VIENNA, June 14—Vienna's only treadmill still in use belongs to St. Stephen's cathedral.

It is not a treadmill operated by convicts as was the case for centuries in many penitentiaries throughout the old world. The city's treadmill, a huge wheel almost 200 feet in diameter, is more than 500 years old. It is built into the immense attic of the famous church and, as throughout the ages, still serves to haul up building material whenever repairs become necessary.

Four men tread the wheel to which an enormous hemp cable, 500 feet long and as thick as the upper arm of an athlete, is attached.

Superstitious Viennese attribute miraculous forces to the cable. The

Risks Made Career For Harold Lloyd

By ALAN McELWAIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, June 14 — Risks put Harold Lloyd where he is as the wealthiest star in Hollywood.

There are the risks every filmgoer knows — Harold climbing building walls as the human fly in "Safety First," frolics on a skyscraper cornice, as the shoe clerk in "Feet First," taking a realistic beating from the bully in "Grandma's Boy."

But there were other risks— Lloyd jeopardized his screen career by joining with Hal Roach in a two-man strike, as an extra working in J. Warren Kerrigan films, when his wage was cut from $5 to $3 a day. He gambled on making the good as a film comic and worked for $5 a week in first films Hal Roach made.

He left Roach because his pay wasn't raised to $10 weekly. Later, when Roach became a Pathe producer, he called Lloyd back at $50 a week.

Lloyd even took a long chance when he adopted the now famous glasses spectacles. In doing so, he abandoned the Lonesome Luke character that had been paying him $100 a week. Later events showed his choice was right, because Lonesome Luke's popularity could not have endured much longer.

But the very earnest young man behind the horn rims has made Lloyd a $100,000-a-picture star and the independent producer of his own comedies.

Lloyd is making his next picture, "The Milky Way," for Paramount, but will return to independent production when it is finished.

French Soldiers Receive More Wine

PARIS, June 13 — There is great activity and much rumbling of heavy trucks at the military barracks in and around the French capital, but it is a peaceful bustle for the trucks are loaded not with shells or war machinery, but huge barrels of good old red wine. It is the distribution of the extra ration of a quarter-liter daily per soldier, recently accorded the ranks by a vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

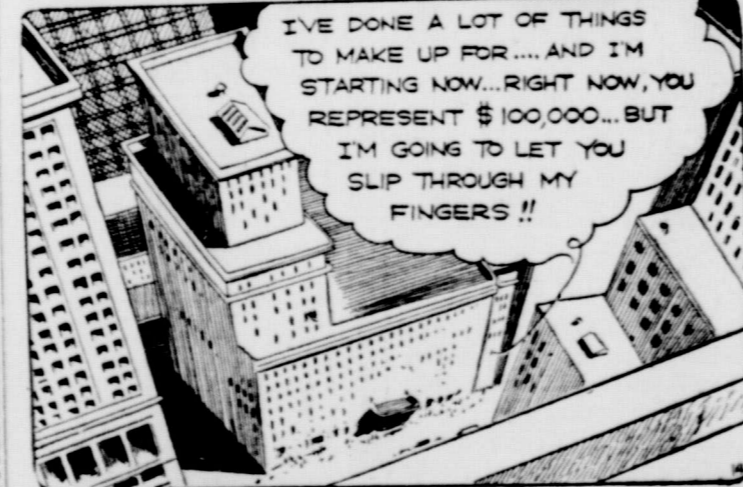

So far 400,000 extra rations have been distributed in the mess rooms of barracks. Firemen get theirs too because they are enlisted in the army. Aviators at the air ports of Le Bourget and Orly get their share as well as students of the Polytechnical Institute, the French military engineering school.

LONE STAR TO BRING SAFETY MEETING HERE

More than 400 Lone Star Gas system employees, including employees of the Community Natural and Lone Star Gas companies, will gather here June 21 for one of the largest safety meetings held in this section for some time, according to Johnny Cox, president of the Cisco Boosters.

Employees from all parts of the Lone Star system, including Oklahoma divisions, will be present for the awarding of trophies and merit certificates to departments and plants which have non-accident records of from one to five years. Cox was informed by Will C. Grant, director of public relations and advertising.

Reservations are being made by many of the employees to remain in Cisco for the night and attend the Lone Star employees' picnic, which will be held at Eastland June 22.

Dr. E. L. Graham of Cisco will be the principal speaker. It was announced, Grant will make the awards.

Other speakers will include local civic and business leaders and officials of the Lone Star system. Frank B. Williams, manager of the Eastland district of the Community Natural Gas company; L. W. Bird, Dallas, general superintendent of the same company; and Chester L. May, Dallas, vice president and general manager, will be present and speak briefly.

WELCOME BY CISCOANS

Other company officials who will be there will include Tommy R. Thompson, Dallas, of the public relations department; Bruce Cunningham, editor of the Lone Star magazine, "The Blue Blaze"; Sam Grant, superintendent of compressor stations; Harry Wheeland, Ranger, superintendent of gasoline plants; and E. K. Smith, superintendent of pipelines.

It was through the efforts of the Cisco Boosters and the local Chamber of Commerce that Cisco was chosen as the place of the safety meeting. President Cox and J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, will welcome the visitors.

SAFETY ENGINEERS FROM OTHER UTILITIES COMPANIES AS WELL AS FROM LARGE INDUSTRIAL COMPANIES AND INSURANCE COMPANIES, ARE EXPECTED TO BE PRESENT AT THE MEETING.

It was announced that the Lone Star system has 125 men who have been driving company cars for more than 10 years without a single automobile accident. They will be recognized at the safety meeting.

A feature of the meeting will be the stressing of the fact that safety applies not only to the company and the employees but to the families of the employees and the utility consumers as well.

loopholes in three existing tax laws. Occupation taxes on coin-operated machines are estimated to yield $700,000 annual revenue. Reduction of cigaret tax laws should add $4,000,000 to the state's revenues, and improvement of the gasoline tax collections $800,000 more.

A "true labeling" act passed to prevent gasoline tax evasions is expected to add about $200,000.

How much the bill designed to push delinquent tax payments will bring cannot be fairly estimated. Possibilities are almost unlimited.
