HURRICANE HITS COAST OF FLORIDA

WIND HOWLS AT 120 MILES AN HOUR AS ONE PERSON IS KILLED AND MANY ARE HURT

MIAMI, Nov. 4.—The full fury of a 120-mile-an-hour hurricane whipped and battered Miami today, injuring scores, littering the winter playground with debris, and killing at least one man.

Howling in from the Bahamas, the gales lashed Miami and surrounding areas of the populous territory before the residents could take full precautions. They had only 4 or 5 hours warning.

The first fatality was a fireman aboard the steamer Harira. He was hit by a ventilator ripped loose by the gale, and died of a fractured skull.

In Miami, bricks showered down and people hurried to safety. One woman's back was broken by bricks which fell from the top of the Pershing hotel. Another woman was dashed against a building so hard that her skull was fractured.

LIQUOR BILLS ARE TAKEN UP IN DISCUSSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The American Red Cross dispatched three veteran workers from Washington at 3 p. m. today for Miami to aid in the hurricane crisis. The Red Cross was marshalling forces rapidly to meet the expected need of citizens in the hurricane's path.

MIAMI, Nov. 4.—A hurricane smashed toward southeast Florida today, causing great apprehension and frenzy.

By most of the lower east coast of the nation's winter playground was playing feeling gusty winds and rain squalls, forerunners of the impending storm. Heavy seas rolled along the coast. Dark clouds gathered and "boarding up" activities took on an increased pace.

Advancing rapidly, the storm was placed only 35 miles off the southeast Florida coast at 11:30 a. m. by federal hurricane warning system. This indicated a rapid advance upon the peninsula, speedier than had been anticipated, and led residents and visitors hastily to defend themselves against the hurricane.

The weather bureau ordered the black and red hurricane flag hoisted on the south coast from Miami to Key West, on the Florida keys and up to the west coast as far as Naples. The coast guard station at Fort Lauderdale reported a 56-mile wind at 11 a. m.

The Lake Okechobee region inland from West Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale was ordered evacuated at 11:30. The Red Cross committee of the area ordered a special train with enough freight cars to carry out 2,000 persons.

Flood Gates Closed
Flood gates built by the government to protect against recurrence of the devastating 1928 hurricane in the low lying Okechobee region were closed.

The Florida keys were ordered evacuated today by the Works Progress Administration.

Visitors at Miami who had never experienced the hurricane threat excitedly asked advice. Traffic jams clogged the streets as people attempted to get to points of safety or tried to put cars in storage. Boats, large and small, were moved to more secure moorings in the Miami river.

Holds The Keys To Relief Funds

Success of the New Deal $4,000,000,000 job drive may rest with a republican high office-holder, a possible candidate for the G. O. P. 1936 presidential nomination. He is Comptroller General John R. McCarl, shown in a new picture, who ends his 15-year term next June. He must release the work-relief funds. Nebraska now are booming their native son for the top place on the republican ticket.

BIG BATTLES ARE DUE SOON NEAR MAKALE

Prospect of large scale battling in Ethiopia careful Italian military preparation increased today as the northern armies began their push into the country. The advance was unhurried, methodical, and efficient. Early occupation of Makale, gateway to the road to Addis Ababa, was almost a foregone conclusion.

The Ethiopians have been waiting patiently for the Italians to get deep into their wild, rocky mountain fastness before attacking. Hence there has been almost no resistance so far.

The Ethiopians may be expected to start fighting shortly. Italian airmen reported a column of 10,000 Ethiopians was marching toward Makale. The news was surprising since the Emperor had ordered the town evacuated to let the Italians get farther into the country before attacking.

The diplomatic situation remained unchanged. The League proceeded with its work of preparing trade penalties against Italy.

Britain and France given a mandate by the League to deal with Italy under League rules and in the name of all members, were expected soon to lay down to Mussolini stern demands.

AREA WEST OF PECOS PLANS CELEBRATION

FORT STOCKTON, Nov. 4.—Texas West of the Pecos has announced a section wide Centennial celebration, each of the towns presenting its local program, with the central exposition to be at Fort Davis.

Stockton, under leadership of the Lions club, arranging a water fountain, and anomaly in the county that is known throughout the world as an arid area.

In the midst of this section where water is valued more than gold, there is a series of springs producing water so clear, that in the swimming pool a newspaper can be read under seven feet of water.

The spring that feeds the pool produces 35 million gallons daily, clearing the water out of the pool and re-supplying it every few minutes. In the entire United States, only one Florida spring produces more water than this Fort Stockton spring.

Not only are the springs a natural attraction to Fort Stockton, but around this water supply much of the early history of West Texas centers.

Indians, long before the white man and of this continent, camped at the springs. It was known to all wandering tribes to whom a water hole was a bonanza.

Tradition goes that as early as 36, only 44 years after Columbus discovered America, Cabeza De Vaca, with his two Spanish and one negro companion, in his seven year expedition across Texas to the west-coast of Mexico, found the spring just in time to save the little band of men from death by thirst.

More than 100 years later, another expedition, this time under the leadership of Juan Dominguez de Mendoza, pitched camp at the springs. Mendoza's expedition was the first cross over what was later known the Chihuahuas Trail, which passes through Fort Stockton.

CISCO AGAIN IN GRASP OF WINTER

After brief respite from a chilly wind and mist last week that cut attendance at both the stock show and the football game, Cisco today was again in the grip of winter.

At noon today the mercury stood at 46 degrees, just 14 above the freezing point, after a swift race downward during the morning, and indications were that it likely would keep dropping.

The cold wave struck Cisco this morning about 9 o'clock after being on its way here for some time. It was accompanied by cloudy, almost misty skies and a chilly wind.

The weather bureau predicted that the mercury would dip to about the freezing point here tonight or early Tuesday morning.

Freshmen Sentenced to Odd Tasks In Kangaroo Court Ending Frosh Week

Last week ended the third annual freshman week at Cisco high school. Various rules were placed upon the fish during the week, and the violators were punished today at a kangaroo court held by the "high and mighty" seniors in which the defendants were found guilty.

Many humorous penalties were placed upon them. Some rolled peanuts across the stage with their noses; some gave nursery rhymes; two fed crackers to each other blindfolded; some sang; one fish spoke on the good points of the seniors; two boys whistled "Yankee Doodle"; two other boys had to drink water from a large dishpan. At the conclusion all freshmen gave two yells for the seniors, and then knelt while the seniors passed from the auditorium.

Freshman week was originated by the seniors of '33, and since has become an annual affair. Each fish is given a green tag with an F on it and a green tie and both are worn during the week. Each senior is given a freshman, who has to carry his books all week. Several rules are placed in the bulletin board and the fish are required to obey them all week.

ELECTIONS IN SEVEN STATES FOR TUESDAY

Voters in seven states will cast ballots in an off-year election tomorrow, which is expected to be a test of New Deal sentiment by which observers may obtain a clearer picture of what is in store for President Roosevelt in 1936.

Leaders of both major parties have been especially active in New York and Kentucky, which will hold the most important elections. Considerable attention is given to the Philadelphia mayoralty fight in which the democrats are attempting to gain a foothold after 40 years of republican rule.

New Dealers predicted Lieutenant Governor A. B. Chandler would win by a 30,000 majority over Judge King Swope the republican gubernatorial candidate in Kentucky.

National issues have been raised in New Jersey, Virginia will elect a new legislature but the campaign has been without unusual features.

In Mississippi a slate of democrats for legislative and other state offices is expected to win approval with the usual lack of opposition. Election of mayors will be held in three Connecticut cities, Hartford, New Haven, and Bridgeport.

One day all freshmen had to wear mismatched shoes, another day had the fish's noses were painted red, another day they were made to carry their senior's books in a bag or sack. One day they had to ride stick horses, and once the boys had to wear their shirts backward. All the week the fish had to enter the school building by the west entrance only, and they had to salute a senior on sight. And all they could do was to look forward to the time four years from now when they could do to some poor fish what the seniors of '36 did to them.

The Legislature at Work

Light is breaking under the big dome at Austin. Governor Allred has submitted to the lawmakers liquor control and drivers' license problems for their consideration. The senate has already passed a drivers' license measure which was approved by a house committee at the regular session of the legislature. The measure likely will encounter little difficulty in the house and will find quick approval by the governor.

The legislators were able to go home, to the races, or to football games Saturday without any feeling of uneasiness over reprimands for taking a day off. They had cleared the calendars before leaving the capitol.

Returning this week, the senators and representatives will face 10 days of final work on the drivers' license bill, liquor control legislation, and the old age pension, and taxation to finance the payment of the pensions. They should have plenty of time to complete their work in that period.

Shortly after this special session started newspapers all over the state, this one included, criticized the legislature severely for the lack of results from the first special session and for the fact that it could not even get a quorum to do business as the second session opened.

Since that time, however, the members of both houses have settled down to work and have been approaching more rapidly the goal laid down by Governor Allred in his messages to the legislature. The lawmakers are to be congratulated upon their more recent work. The measures they have been working upon are important.

Three of the "must" bills are practically out of the way. Now liquor control and measures recommended by public safety committees and citizens everywhere will engage the time and the brain work of the men who make the laws. The people demanded that the legislators regulate liquor when they voted for the repeal amendment to the state constitution. They have given even a stronger indication—although without the formality of a ballot—of their belief in the need of regulation of traffic to cut down the accident toll. Well, why not make life and property safe in Texas? Why not license drivers who know how to drive and who are not speed maniacs or morons—or who have no regard for the rights, property or otherwise, of their fellow citizens.

Red Cross Roll Call About to Start

All over the nation the American Red Cross will begin its drive for funds on November 11, a week from today. The drive will last until Thanksgiving.

Cisco will have a part in that drive. The annual roll call will be conducted here as in other cities of the nation. At various times Cisco has received aid from the Red Cross when it was needed badly. A notable example of this was the flour, clothing material, and other necessities distributed by the local forces several years ago before the government relief agencies took the situation in hand and provided the CWA and later the FERA forms of help to the needy.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Secretary Ickes is now a member of only 29 boards, committees and commissions. The number used to be 39. Along with Wallace of Agriculture and Roper of Commerce, he has resigned from the Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture. The federal government has completely withdrawn from participation in the committee's activities.

The inside story is that certain persons intimately associated with the committee were found to be sabotaging—consciously or otherwise—the program of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Herbert Hoover had much to do with founding the committee in 1923. There was widespread howling for cheaper and more rural electricity, which power companies thought they'd better take in hand. The National Electric Light Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation organized the group, the Commerce, Interior and Agriculture departments came in to give it prestige—and the franking privilege—and power companies paid the bills.

COMMITTEES, organized in 24 states, were comprised of farmers, subsidized college professors and power company men who ran the show. "Power trust" companies always insisted the set-up was a brake against cheaper rural electricity, since little was done but research and the rates issue was carefully avoided.

The first minutes of one state committee showed: "It is the sense of this committee that rates be not discussed."

The Farm Bureau Federation, after much unpleasant publicity as to its friendliness with power interests, withdrew a couple of years ago.

Lately, certain instances reached the ears of REA Administrator Morris L. Cooke. In Maryland, a man identified with the state committee was spreading the untrue word that the Maryland public service commission had ruled that all plans for rural electrification projects must first be submitted to the local utility company.

In Iowa another was interpreting REA announcements and warning that in each case farmers should mentally add 3 or 4 cents as the price of wholesale electricity per kilowatt hour. (It might be anywhere from a few mills to two cents.) And so on, with the result that Wallace, Ickes and Roper and their departments withdrew.

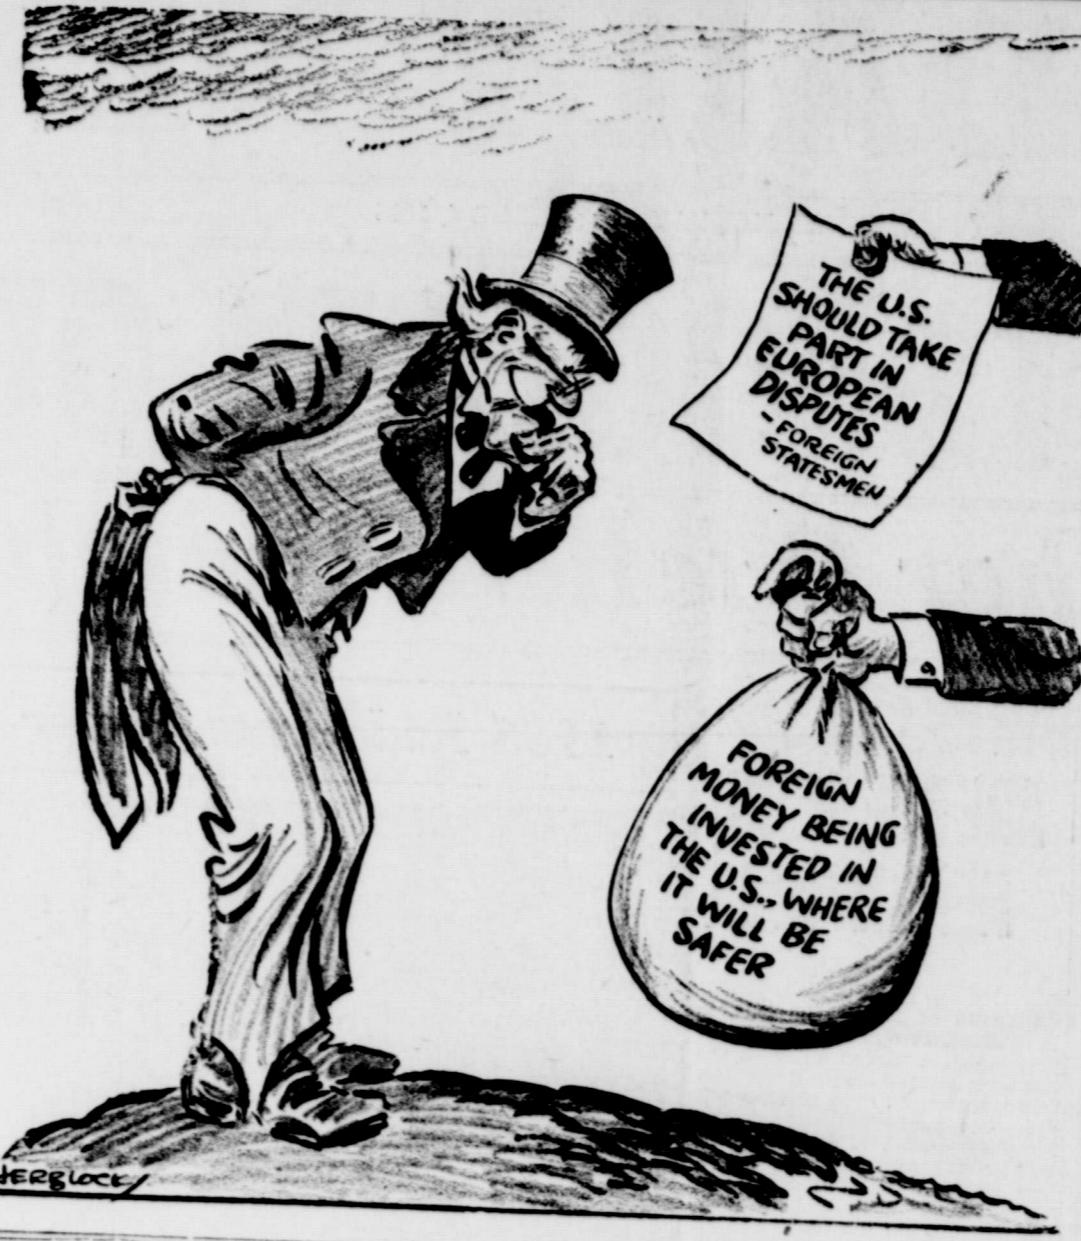

REA will announce its first projects very soon. Both private power companies and public agencies will share in the first few million dollars to be loaned in the campaign to bring electricity to a few of the 39 per cent of American farms now unelectrified. (From 39 to 80 per cent of farms in the advanced European countries have electricity.)

About $100,000,000 is available for loans to public, private and cooperative groups on electrification projects. Strangely enough, the program is all to be self-liquidating and loans are made for 20 years at 3 per cent.

Private power companies are taking a new interest in rural electrification as an indirect result of Cooke's program, even putting up their own money. Although they have previously concentrated on urban areas where higher profits are possible, they prefer to handle projects themselves rather than leave them to public development and REA propaganda has stirred up wide interest in rural electrification of which they can take advantage.

Hands Across The Sea

tributed by the local forces several years ago before the government relief agencies took the situation in hand and provided the CWA and later the FERA forms of help to the needy.

The Red Cross will be of the big nationwide agencies operating in Cisco this year, with the removal of government direct relief from Texas.

Cisco will be conducting a drive for its own United Charities and Welfare Association, but the two need not conflict to any great extent. While the Welfare fund will be dispensed entirely by local officials to local needy, the Red Cross will be used, to a great extent, in case of emergencies—drouths, floods, fires, earthquakes, and other forms of disasters—whenever they occur throughout the nation. The two should go hand in hand.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Nov. 4.—There are supposed to be 11 lawmakers in Austin—150 in the house and 31 in the senate. But there is a growing feeling that only 10 men write what actually becomes a law. So strong has this feeling become that steps are being taken to curb the power of conference committees. Conference committees consist of five senators and five representatives. They are appointed when there are differences between the house and senate that cannot be settled by accepting amendments.

It is charged openly that there have been instances when house and senate were maneuvered into such wide differences that conference committees were required and that these committees by deferring reports until near the session end forced the other 171 members to accept what they offered or go without.

Forseeing such a possibility for pension legislation, Senators W. R. Poage, Waco, and Ben Oneal, Wichita Falls, decided to forestall it with a definite instruction to senate conferees not to attach a sales tax to the pension bill in conference.

The house ordered its conferees to report 15 days before the session end. It also proposed a change in the joint rules. If the change is adopted no conference committee will be able to add any new matter to a bill.

Senator Oneal predicted that if conference committees continue to thwart the will of a majority, it will not be long until Texas abandons its legislative system of house and senate and adopts the Nebraska unicameral plan. Whether the senate or house would be dropped, he did not predict. In Nebraska, he said, the plan of having one law making body has proved highly satisfactory.

Particular interest attached to the instruction to old age pension conferees. Senator Roy Sangerford, Belton, chairman of the senate conferees, is a sales tax advocate. He had such a tax in his old age pension bill when it was presented to the senate. The tax taken out by strutted against a sales tax was enlarged to bar any tax on the pension bill. Poage and Sangerford are expected to be rival candidates for congress from the 11th Texas district in which both live.

Pensions and the sales tax promise to provide the big issue of the next campaign in many races—probably that for governor. Governor James V. Allred has been on the side of restricted pensions and no general sales tax.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson helped to write the Sanderford old age pension bill, which was free of property restrictions and proposed payment through a sales tax.

Some see in this situation the possibility of another attempted Ferguson come back campaign such as that in which "Ma" Ferguson unseated Former Governor Ross Sterling.

Political expediency makes it more likely that the Ferguson support will again be thrown back of some candidate outside the family. Though "Ma" developed into a fairly campaign speaker in her last race, she could not compete in campaigning with Governor Allred, who has demonstrated a vote-getting ability matched by few campaigners. Sterling's defeat probably would have been availed if he had been a good stump speaker.

You are wrong if you believe that the house of representatives usually is made up of youngsters. Former Senator George Puri, Dallas, took the trouble to gather age statistics, after hearing the frequent assertion that the house is full of "kids." In 1901, the average age of house members was 42; in 1909 it was 43; in 1917, 45 and in 1927, 43. In later years there has been a trend to youth. Average age of the representatives now is 39. In 1901, only 23 members were under 30 years of age; now three are 45.

Many legislators as well as old persons in Texas are disappointed at the strict limits surrounding house and senate pension bills. While the house bill is a little more liberal, senators limited aid to those in absolute need.

Representative Ross Hardin, Prairie Hill, wanted pensions for all Texans past 65. When house and senate conferees were meeting to adjust differences between the two bills, Hardin visited the conference and came back with a gloomy expression on his face.

"I've just decided how to raise money for old age pensions," he said.

"How?" asked another legislator.

"Well if we put a tax of $5 on all members of the legislature, we'll raise enough money to pay all the pensions the conference committee will allow."

Representative Cecil Lotief, home-spin legislator from Cross Plains, ran into insurmountable difficulties with his bill proposing to tax salt.

Opposition met him on every hand—from voters at home, fellow members of the taxation committee and salt manufacturers. He decided to let the matter drop.

One concession for the humble citizens was gained by Lotief in omnibus tax bill. When the house voted a per cent tax on cigars, Lotief battled successfully to prevent a state tax on snuff.

Add man bites dog: The revenue and taxation committees recently had a quorum, but found authors were absent. Ordinarily authors are present and the committee is absent.

Hidalgo County To Get Four Markers

EDINBURG, Nov. 4.—Four historical markers designating points of importance in Texas history what is now Hidalgo county will be placed by the Texas Centennial commission, according to information received Monday by Judge F. Carl, president of the Rio Grande Valley Centennial Exhibit Corporation, from Lieut. Governor Walter F. Woodul, Centennial commission chairman.

The Texas Highway Department will place one marker in Edinburg which will include a brief history of the county and a sketch of Miguel Hidalgo, Mexican patriot for whom the county was named.

The other three markers will be placed at the town of Hidalgo, the site of the Mission San Juan del Monte and at the site of Camp Ricketts. Each will cost about $200 and will be of granite. Bronze plaques will be fitted to the granite markers. Inscriptions for the plaques are being prepared by the Centennial advisory board composed of L. W. Kemp of Houston, J. Frank Dobie of Austin and Paul J. Folk of Austin.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MR. DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays answer when BOBBY WALTON, automobile salesman, asks to marry him.

The Golden Feather night at the home of SANDY HARRIS whose business connection with WINGY LEWIS, bank robber, he learns about the head man and questions Bobby. He finds out that the car Lewis bought in the name of Bobby was in fact owned by Bobby under the name of Mr. Dunn.

Mr. Dunn looks down at a picture of a man in the conventional police and side view shots of a penitentiary rogues' gallery photograph. He has a start of surprise as he looked at the black and white photograph of "Red Jackson" and studied the picture with care.

"I'm not absolutely certain," he said at last. "It looks somewhat like him. I didn't get a very good look at him, though—not close enough to see his eyes, and—"

"I see," said Larry. "How about the other one?"

Mr. Dunn looked at a picture of a man with a black and white photograph of a man with rat-like eyes. Without hesitation he nodded decisively.

"That's the man who held the gun on us while the other one got the cash," he said. He handed the picture back. Larry pocketed it.

"Who knew about this tear gas installation?" he asked suddenly.

Mr. Dunn looked up in some surprise.

"Why, I suppose almost everyone in town knew it," he said.

"You know how it is, in a place like this. We saw no special reason for keeping it a secret, anyway."

Larry stood up.

"It's too bad you didn't," he said. "Mr. Hobart might have been saved a very unpleasant experience. You see, this firing of shot before a word was said—that isn't like the Jackson gang, or any other gang. It's pretty obvious that they knew about the tear gas, and simply shot first in order to prevent Mr. Hobart from being it."

Mr. Dunn looked grave, and shook his head slowly.

"Poor Hobart!" he said. "That's my fault, I suppose, too. I'm glad he didn't have to pay a higher price for it."

LARRY made some remark to reassure him, and then said:

that he would like to start questioning some of the other witnesses. The young stenographer fully recovered from her fright, and filled with excitement at having played an important role in a stirring event—came in and gave him her version of the holdup, as did the clerk who had been knocked out by a blow with a pistol barrel. Then Tony LaRocco brought in Buddy McGinnis, the young Legionnaire who had given battle to the robbers.

Buddy came limping in and shook hands. Larry complimented him on his presence of mind and asked him to tell his story. So Buddy told how he had looked out of the window and seen a man with a machine gun, how he had got a service rifle from the supply which the Legion owned, how he had drawn a bead, fired, and made the man stagger.

"I know I hit him," he said. "He didn't just start back, the way a man does when a bullet whizzes by close to him. He dam' near fell down. He let go of his gun with one hand and reached out to steady himself. Stood there for a couple of seconds or so with one hand on the window."

"The window?" said Larry quickly.

"Buddy looked his surprise. 'Yeah,' he said. 'He was standing just to the right of it. If he'd been a foot to one side the bullet'd have gone right through him and busted the window. I know it must've gone through him,' he added, 'because one of these Springfield, at that range, if it hits a bone and stays in you, it hurts you so bad you drop. He didn't drop, so it must've just grazed him somewhere. Anyhow, I remember him standing there with his hand flat on the window, while I waited for him to fall down. If I had any sense I'd've plugged him again to make sure.'"

Tony LaRocco and Al Peters had been listening with interest. At Larry's nod they went outside, carrying a small black bag.

"Did you get any more shots in?" asked Larry.

"I fired one more, when I see he wasn't going to fall, and I guess I missed," said Buddy.

"Then he began spouting machine gun bullets at me and I ducked. When I got my head up again they were all in the car and it was starting off. I fired three more at it."

HE shook his head, as if puzzled by something. "I can't understand it," he said. "I couldn't miss an auto, at that distance. I know I hit it. But it didn't seem to phase it. I'd swear I heard a couple of those bullets ricochet off the body. But Lord! A Springfield'll put a bullet through any auto ever made."

"Not one of those," said Larry. "They probably had an armored car. You'd need an anti-tank gun to make a hole in it. . . . Where'd you think you hit it?"

LaRocco and Peters came back in.

"Got 'em," said LaRocco triumphantly. "Full hand print right on the glass. Four fingers, perfect; thumb, a little smudgy, but we can use it."

"Swell," said Larry. "Find a photographer's shop here in town, get your prints developed, and

HOUSTON MAN RECALLS FIRST ETHIOP. FIGHT

HOUSTON, Nov. 4.—War drums in Ethiopia roll again for Geriomo Licari, 64, retired Houston shoemaker, through newspaper columns.

He is a veteran of the Italian campaign in 1896 when Ethiopians slaughtered his brothers-in-arms at Aduwa. Remembering his experiences, he doubts whether the campaign of 1935 will succeed.

Licari was the only member of his company of Italians to survive Humbert's desire for conquest and new territory in the land of King Menelik.

Saved By Typhoid

Typhoid fever saved his life. He was in a hospital at Adigrat when 15,000 Italians battled an Ethiopian force of 160,000.

"One other man of the company was in the hospital with me," Licari recalled. "He had typhoid fever, too, and it killed him."

Lobos Looking to Ranger Game on Nov. 11

TO FACE NEW BULLDOG TEAM FOR CONTEST

Cisco's Lobos today began looking forward to their annual Armistice day battle with the Ranger Bulldogs to be staged on Chesley field next Monday.

The Lobos will be prepared for a real battle, too, for the Bulldogs team which amounted to little in the early part of the season has been revamped almost beyond recognition. The team still uses some of its old regulars but an entirely new spirit has taken hold of the boys and they are ready to go places, preferably at the expense of Cisco.

Ranger last week lost to Sweetwater by a score of 70 to 0, but it was a different team from that which played a 51 to 9 game against San Angelo.

A spark of football enthusiasm flamed for a few minutes in the Eastland-Ranger game, but quickly died when Sikes of the Mavericks intercepted a pass and galloped for the winning touchdown. But the spirit is there now, and a good game is promised.

The Lobos battled to a scoreless tie with Eastland on Chesley field last Friday, although they penetrated the 20 yard zone twice to once for Eastland.

It has been a good while since the Lobos have defeated their old Red and White enemies and they will be out to take their number on Armistice day, while the Canines will be just as anxious to break into the win column for this season.

Golf Chat

By WILLIAM PHILPOTT
Professional, Cisco Country Club

Though manufacturers had brought the rubber-cored golf ball to a high degree of perfection along about 1915, there was no recognized standard of size or weight. Every style of marking had been used—disc, crescent and spiral—but only two have survived, the recessed and mesh.

At that time any weight or size could be obtained from the bullet or small heavy ball, to the floater or large light ball. It was considered advisable to standardize the golf ball, and to this end the U. S. G. A. and the Royal and Ancient golf delegates decided on a 1.62 ball, that is, 1.62 ounces in weight and 1.62 inches in size. Further improvements in methods of construction produced a still more lively ball. This necessitated lengthening of golf courses, a costly procedure. Another meeting of the U. S. G. A. was called to meet the new condition and the "standard" ball was restandardized to a larger and lighter ball. Then the golfing public objected; so for the third time the ball was changed to the ball that is used today.

BIG DAM CHATTER

Up at Ohio Stadium in Columbus Saturday the 80,000 fans who turned out for the game which they realized would have a direct bearing upon the national championship, saw the contest that was the most thrilling in all the annals of football history.

Notre Dame staged one of those comebacks which have made the Irish the colorful eleven of the trail, by 13 points at the end of the first half, the Micks grabbed off a couple of touchdowns but were still a point behind with one minute left to play. They took advantage of Ohio State's fumble and threw a pass to get down to scoring distance. Then Elmer Layden sent in a substitute, ostensibly to kick a field goal. Bill Shakespeare, back to hold the ball, suddenly jumped up and faded back until he found Miller open, and shot a pass to him and it was all over.

The seven leading scorers of the Old Bell this week represent only three teams, Breckenridge, Abilene, and Brownwood. The queer part is that while each of the others has two in the list, Brownwood, ranking below them, has three. Spud Taylor of Breckenridge leads with 42 points. Moser of Abilene, Clardy of Brownwood, and Magness of Breckenridge are tied at 20. Then come Stephens and Thomason of Brownwood with 27 and 24 respectively, and Cumpton of Abilene with 20.

Doctor Owns Fine Orchard in Valley

MALLEN, Nov. 4 — Dr. A. O. Echarff believes he has what can be correctly called one of the best citrus orchards in the Upper Valley. Dr. Scharff revealed that he has already sold $1,111 worth of fruit from his four and one-half acre orchard on the North Tenth street road and estimated that he still has about ten tons of fruit to be picked. His production cost averaged $25 per acre, he said.

Let us figure your next job of printing. Our job printing department is equipped to serve your needs.—Phone 80.

TERRACE WILL PAY FOR LAND SAYS EXPERT

DALHART, Nov. 4 — Terraces and contour farming not only provides the Panhandle farmer the best protection against destructive wind erosion but over a ten-year period will pay for his land, according to Harley A. Daniel, acting director of the Goodwell experiment station.

A ten-year experiment, closing this year, shows wheat production has increased and average of 31.08 bushels per acre by terracing. When the terrace gain in grain per acre was multiplied by the average annual price of grain, based on the Kansas City market, the total calculated increase in per-acre income was $23.33. Figures on increased production were learned by measuring yields on terraced soil with those on adjacent unterraced land.

Terracing costs on the Dalhart Soil Conservation project average says H. H. Fennell regional conservator, 77 cents per acre, exclusive of labor which can be supplied by the farmer. Quoting Fennell further, Daniel says extra cost of cultivating contoured land is from 20 to 50 cents an acre per year. Taking the top of 50 cents, that means in ten years that terracing and contouring costs the farmer $5.77 extra, while his production nets him $23.33. Net gain per acre is $17.56.

Terracing and contouring, by holding moisture where it falls, assures a vegetative cover for all parts of the field against wind erosion.

Weslaco Planning Birthday Affair

WESLACO, Nov. 4 — A total of 17 committees are now actively at work on the annual Weslaco Birthday Party, December 11 and 12, according to announcement of Gus Kaufman, general chairman. The event will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the city's founding.

The last committee chairman to be appointed was Mrs. R. M. Gilmore, who will head the group arranging for the citrus-vegetable style show, in which girls and young women fashion dresses from vegetables and citrus fruits and leaves. Entrants this year will parade this year over a "boardwalk" a block in length to provide all spectators with views of the colorful costumes. More than 40 varieties of agricultural products were utilized in fashioning the costumes last year.

An added feature of the annual celebration will be the horse show to be directed by Fred Turner. A number of fine blooded horses are expected to be entered in the show, and Turner stated that free food and shelter would be provided for animals, entered.

ROPES EAGLE
LOCKHART, Nov. 4 — Marvin Rector, farmer and ranchman, while hunting a lost cow in the eastern part of Caldwell county last week, discovered a large Mexican eagle. He lassoed and "hog-tied" the bird, bringing it to town. It will be on exhibition at the Caldwell County Fair here next week.

paign, pile up the car winning credits.

Clubs Still Trumps
With the end of the first lap of the race on Saturday Nov. 2, the very biggest and best bonus offer of extra credits, 150,000 extra credits for each and every $20.00 worth of subscriptions expires and the extra credit schedule will be promptly reduced for the second lap of the race, Nov. 17 to Nov. 30, inclusive during which these powerful $20 clubs will earn 125,000 extra credits and as each lap of the race comes to an end the extra credit schedule will be further reduced until in the final home stretch when extra credits are at their lowest.

Now, while these extra credits are still at their highest peak is the time to pile up the winning credits.

Get 'Em In Now
Never again will the present offer of 150,000 extra credits be repeated, never again will subscriptions count for as much as they do right now. What is done now during the first lap of the race will more than likely spell success for those who turn in the greatest number of these powerful clubs. Wise opportunity club members will accomplish every thing possible before the clock strikes nine on the night of Nov. 16.

Not Too Late to Enter
If you haven't made a start in the big prize race, don't get the idea that it is too late. It is not, by any means, for new entries can start now under the biggest extra credit offer of the whole race and by using their first week coupon and their entry blank in just a very short time bring themselves up with the present leaders, which a blanket would easily cover.

No one has any lead that you cannot over come if you will jump in now and back up your ambition with a little effort and energy, in fact either one of the two cars is yours for the effort — if you are willing to make it now.

All that is necessary to success in this race is — ambition, backed up by effort. The time for loafing on the sidelines, wishing you could win one of these two cars, is over — also the time for thinking about it. The time for action is at hand—

N-O-W with the reverse english will spell

WHAT THE MILDNESS OF CAMELS MEANS TO FAMOUS AVIATORS

Lieutenant Commander Frank Hawks, U.S.N.R., famous holder of 214 speed records and the Harmon Trophy, says: "I've been flying for 19 years and smoking Camels almost as long. Making speed records tests the pilot as well as his plane. Camels never make me jumpy or bother my physical 'condition' in any way. As the athletes say, Camels are so mild they don't get the wind. And I've found they never upset my nerves. Camel must use choicer tobaccos."

"Camels don't get your Wind" Athletes say

"Speaking of cigarettes, I make it a rule to smoke Camels," says Mrs. T. W. Kenyon, sportsman pilot. "They are the mildest cigarette I know. Morning, noon, and night, I can smoke Camels steadily. They never upset my nerves. And each Camel renews the zest and enjoyment of the last one!"

"They Never Get on Your Nerves"

"I appreciate the mellow flavor of Camels," says Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, the transpacific flyer, in a recent interview. "Camels refresh me so when I'm fatigued," he continues, "and they are so mild that I can smoke any number without throwing my nerves off key."

"They Never Tire Your Taste"

"I smoke Camels all I want," says Col. Roscoe Turner (below), "continent speed ace." "Because their mildness, Camels never get my taste. A speed flyer uses energy just as his motor uses fuel. After smoking a Camel, I get 'refill' in energy."
