Today's Elections

Today may have an important bearing upon the political future of the United States, close observers have pointed out. Seven states are holding off year state elections that are regarded as test of the strength of the New Deal, looking forward to the presidential election in 1936.

The fight has been bitterest in New York, home of President Roosevelt. Both democrats and republicans have been hard at work. Normally a more or less doubtful state, New York has been in the habit lately of voting for democratic governors and presidents. Now the republicans are waking up to the fact that it is time for them to get busy there, while the democrats are working just as hard to keep their prestige.

Just as the democrats of California in the last election turned against Herbert Hoover and helped to elect Franklin Roosevelt, the republicans of New York are attempting to undermine the New Deal in that state and lessen the prestige of the president.

Kentucky is the other state which is most closely watched. Lieutenant Governor A. B. Chandler is running against Judge King Swope for the governorship. The majority race in Philadelphia is another key election, with the democrats attempting to gain a foothold after 40 years of republican rule.

Neutrality Violation Warning

President Roosevelt has issued a warning that stronger action will be taken against all Americans who persist in trading with the war belligerents and that the neutrality policy of the government will be enforced to the letter. Now foreign statesmen and gamblers are betting three to one that a general war will not take place in Europe until the Italian-Ethiopian affair is settled—"three years hence." All the propagandists of the European world are using all the power of their countries to drag Uncle Sam into the Ethiopian carnival of blood and slaughter. Meanwhile, American taxpayers are footing the bill for their participation in the World War. They loaned 12 billion dollars to the allied governments and now it is for the people of the United States to assume the payment of the interest on the loans and realize to a certainty that the principal will never be paid. This is the Roosevelt warning: "To keep out of war and to do nothing that would aid in protracting the war."

The United States government represents the only great nation that protested to the League of Nations concerning the Japanese invasion of China and the establishing of a new Japanese empire close to the Manchurian border line. Japan laughed and the League of Nations went to sleep.

20 States Go Off Direct Relief

Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has made the important announcement that federal aid for direct relief will end in 10 more days—Nov. 15. Texas is one of the 20 states. Harry L. Hopkins is a direct action individual. He has a sharp tongue when called upon to use it. He paid his respects to the critics of the new deal administration. Speaking of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson he said, "The assertion of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that the relief administration was a failure was a lot of damned nonsense." He paid his respects to Governor Landon. It was a hit vitrolic: "That Governor Alf Landon has balanced his state budget by taking it out of the hides of the people; that Kansas has never put up a thin dime for relief and that 'as far as I know the governor has never made any effort to raise any more money.'" He did not overlook the chief executive of the Warm Springs (Georgia) commonwealth; "Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia is unwilling to do anything. He believes in the whipping post."

November is here. A new year is on the way and history will be made in the Centennial year that will make life more than exciting for the chroniclers of news and the historians now on earth or those who may come after them.

"Old Triple-A Had a Farm"

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Nov. 5—Texas like Ohio, gives a large number of university students part-time jobs in the capitol, but unlike Ohio, does not limit the eligibles to outstanding football players. Many state departments provide half-time employment for students who need to work their way through school. Such departments as the board of control, employs elevator and watchmen, and the treasury, which has a number of guards employed to work at night, make possible numerous youths getting a university education.

It is not at all unusual for a senior engineering student to pause in the mental construction of a giant bridge over the Mississippi to take you up in the elevator, nor a law student to pause in winning a tussle with John Marshall to bring you down.

Friday marks the retirement from the public service of a man who won renown in his official work, and who laid down the job enjoying as high an opinion of the public as when he began. Lee Simmons, general manager of the Texas prison system, retires. Dave Nelson, of Orange, another able executive, takes his place. Mr. Simmons, former sheriff of Grayson county, took the prison system when its morale was low and there was a bitter contest over removing it to some other section. The physical plant of the farms has been remade under his direction, and matters of discipline and the welfare of prisoners have been greatly improved. General public appreciation and good wishes follow Simmons as he turns back voluntarily to private life.

Representative Fred Harris of Dallas, Representative Otis Dungan and others who have joined them in the drivers' license bill, will be able to look back at Christmas and say to themselves: "I have saved a human life." It is a matter of record that every state licensing the drivers of automobiles and trucks has immediately cut down the numbers of traffic fatalities and injuries on the highways. Texas is now averaging the killing of some one on the highways every five or six hours, day and night. The large cities alone show 60 to 93 deaths apiece in the past 10 months. Not all—not all the needless deaths due to carelessness or recklessness alone will be stopped, but they will be cut down in number.

ACTORS AIDED
IOWA CITY, Ia. — A federal relief program to aid unemployed musicians and actors in seven states has been placed in the hands of Professors E. C. Mabie and C. B. Righter of the University of Iowa. Plans are being devised to give work to about 26,000 persons in Iowa, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and Missouri.

Let us figure your next job. We print. Our job printing department is equipped to serve your needs.—Phone 80.

Soft Wheat Yields 123 Bushels to Acre

ROME, Nov. 5—A world's soft wheat record of 123 bushels to the acre is claimed for a new seed produced by Senator Nazareno Strampelli, Italian authority on cereals. The seed was experimented with in the last sowings in Italy, and it is officially reported, established the record yield. The new wheat also is said to ripen faster than any known variety.

BOYS TAUGHT TO DARN
LAONA, Ia., Nov. 1—Training for bachelorhood has been started in Laona high school. Boys are being given a course in darning their own socks. Due to Laona mothers, a course in embroidery work for boys also has been started.

How Women Get Two-Fold Benefit By Taking Cardui

According to reports from thousands who have taken it, Cardui helps women in a two-fold manner, affording prompt relief of certain functional pains and strengthening the system by increasing the appetite and improving digestion. "I like Cardui because it helped me," writes Mrs. Obie C. Rafferty, of Campbellsville, Ky. "I suffered pain and was nervous and needed strength. I have taken Cardui and have been benefited. I have taken it two or three times. I can tell, when I am taking Cardui, that I have a much better appetite." Before the next monthly upset, begin taking Cardui. Of course, if it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

ITALIANS BECOME BRITISH
SYDNEY, N. S. W. — Many Italians living in Australia are applying for British naturalization papers, presumably owing to fears regarding the international complications of the Ethiopian dispute. In 25 days 60 Italians applied for naturalization papers, compared with an average of 15 a month in normal times.

SUCCESS WITH TREES
DALHART, Texas — L. S. Collins is having exceptional success with tree planting on his Rita Blanca ranch near Channing as a result of trans planting seedlings, reports County Agent J. S. Coleman. Collins plants seedlings closely together to facilitate care and after a year removes every other one for transplanting. Under this method 98 per cent of the trees have lived. Coleman said importance of successful tree planting is being emphasized by the Soil Conservation Service which is using trees to protect plowed fields from eroding winds.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her nuptials when BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him.
At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to a MIL and MRS. LEWIS. Bobby acts some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car. LARRY GREEN, federal agent, is trailing WINNIE LEWIS, a robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. The bonds were stolen. Larry believes the car Lewis bought is stolen. Bobby undertakes to find out.
Jean goes home for a vacation. Sandy comes to see her and agrees to a secret engagement. The bank of which her father is president is robbed. Larry starts a search for the robbers.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

It did not occur to Jean Dunn until it was far too late to make any difference—that the robbery of her father's bank was to be a profoundly important event in her own life. Her father wrote to her about it, and she saw accounts of it in the newspapers; but although Jean shivered pleasantly as she read, and wrote a long letter to her father or bubbling over with thankfulness that he had not been hurt—still it did not seem to be anything that really touched her. A few days after it had happened she was going her way just as she had before.

She had other things to think about. She had promised Sandy to become his wife, at some happy, unsettled time in the future. She had spent a miserably unhappy evening explaining to Bobby Wallace that she could not be his wife—and the misery had flared up into an outright quarrel when Bobby, learning at last that she loved Sandy, had tried, once again, to tell her that Sandy was a shady character.

Afterward, to justify herself in her own mind, Jean had assured herself that she did love Sandy, deeply and truly, and that her affair with Bobby had been, after all, only a boy-and-girl romance.

With things standing thus, four or five days after the holiday, she answered her desk buzzer one morning and went into Mr. Montague's office with pencil and notebook in hand, expecting to take dictation. Instead, she found Mr. Montague looking at her with grave sympathy.

Sandy Harkins, he told her, had been painfully hurt in an accident. She gasped with surprise. No, Mr. Montague did not know any of the details—it was a traffic accident, apparently, somewhere down in the southwestern corner of the state, and he wanted Jean to come to him.

—well, then, it just happened that Mr. Montague had a small sheaf of papers which he was anxious to get into Sandy's hands. If Jean wished, she could take a day or two off, go down and see him, and take the papers with her. That, said Mr. Montague, would be more satisfactory, as far as he was concerned, than entrusting them to the mails, anyway. Would Jean care to do it?

She would; so Mr. Montague made the arrangements. Sandy, it seemed, was in a little town named Midlothian—far off on a branch railroad line, inconvenient to reach by train. By a lucky chance, Jean's friend, Mrs. Lewis, was staying at the town of Plainfield, which was halfway between Dover and Midlothian. If Jean cared to take a train to Plainfield, her employer would see that Mrs. Lewis met her there with an auto and drove her the rest of the way to Midlothian.

So it happened that at about 2 o'clock that afternoon Jean Dunn got off a train at the junction city of Plainfield and met Mrs. Lewis, who was waiting on the platform. Eve led her to a roadster, parked beyond the station, and slipped behind the wheel. As Eve started the car, Jean turned to her anxiously.

"Have you—have you seen Sandy?" "Sure," said Eve. "Where'd you think I've been?" "How is he? Is he badly hurt?" "Not so badly. Just a bullet through the shoulder." "A bullet?" Her voice was so startled, and her face, when Eve glanced over at her, was so suddenly white and shocked that Eve bit her lip and fruitlessly wished she had not spoken.

"Why, yes," she said, somewhat uncertainly. "I thought you knew." Jean was still staring at her. "No," she said, her voice hardly above a whisper. "I thought he had been in an accident." Eve smiled, rather grimly. "He has," she said. "I mean an auto accident." "Oh," Eve paused. "No—Jean's hand was on Eve's forearm." "Eve, please tell me what happened." Eve disengaged her arm. "Watch out—you'll make me swerve off the road," she said. Then, more gently, she added, "I don't know the details, Jean. We'll be there in an hour or so. Then you can ask him. I really don't know."

if she had some private joke, as she had added, "Yes, they're more or less in business together." Late in the afternoon they passed through Midlothian, a tiny, sleepy farming community. A short distance beyond the town, Eve turned off the road into a little lane and abruptly pulled to a halt before a pleasant white farmhouse. "Here we are, kid," she said. "There was a lawn in front of the house, an orchard on one side of it and a cornfield on the other. A man came down from the porch to greet them. He was Mr. Lewis, Eve's dapper little husband. "How's Sandy?" Jean asked anxiously, as he nodded to her. He grinned and said, "Oh, he's dying to see you." Then he stopped grinning, looked at the heavy manila envelope which Mr. Montague had given her to take to Sandy, and said, "Got it?" She looked down, following his glance, and saw the envelope in her hand. "Oh, yes," she said. "I don't know what it is, but it seems to be important. Mr. Montague told me to give it to Sandy." "Yeah," said Lewis. "What come on in and see him."

HE led them into the house, a faded house dress was setting the table in the dining room; as the passed Lewis called to her to see two more places. Then they went up a flight of stairs and entered a cool, pleasant bedroom; and there propped up among pillows in a bed, lay Sandy.

Jean ran to him, bent over, and kissed him. He reached up with one brassy arm and hugged her, and as she raised her head, he looked fondly into her face, his old, half-mocking light dancing in his eyes again, and she felt her doubts and worries fall away. "So there you are," he said. "I knew you'd get here." All she could find to say was "Sandy—are you badly hurt?" He grinned, and pointed to the bandage that swathed his left shoulder, visible beneath his pajama coat. "I'm all right," he said. "Kind of sore, but that's all." "How did it ever happen, Sandy?" He grinned again. "I was out doing some shooting and he just pointed his gun in the wrong direction." Lewis, loitering by the window laughed. Sandy scowled at him. "Hey, you—scram," he said. "We don't need you."

The Lewises left, and Jean drew a straight-backed chair up beside the bed. Sandy saw the envelope in her hand, and reached out and took it. "Oh, yes," he said. "There was this, wasn't there?" He opened the envelope, drew out some papers, and glanced at them. Then he nodded, as if satisfied, put them back in the envelope, and slid it under his pillow. He laid one hand casually on Jean's knee and began, "Well, baby—what there was a step in the hall and a man came into the room. He was a big man and he had reddish hair and expressionless eyes of a chilly blue. He looked as severe as an angel, and then he said, 'Well, how about it? Got it all right?'"

MR. MONTAGUE was asking her if she wanted to go to Sandy—she nodded, her face pale as she checked herself, smiled softly, as (To Be Continued)

Wales Creates New Style of Trousers

LONDON, Nov. 5 — Once again the Prince of Wales has introduced a new style in tailoring, and Savile Row is preparing to follow his lead. To the casual eye there may not appear to be anything unusual about the Prince's latest double-breasted suit, but tailors were quick to note an innovation.

Marriages Boom As Business Increases

LONDON, Nov. 5 — Cupid is winning in his battle with depression. Marriages are on the boom. Eight persons are marrying for every seven a year ago. Men and women both are marrying younger. Widows are remarrying at the rate of 10,000 a year.

A modern tendency, however, is to hold positions longer than hitherto. In some cases they earn nearly as much as their husbands. The feeling is that a little nest egg built up today will come in handy in future years. This tendency to go on working has one bad feature in that it is causing a fall in the birth-rate.

Steel Output Up In British Isles

LONDON, Nov. 5 — Britain is making 75 per cent more steel than three years ago, and 40 per cent more than in the record pre-war year of 1913. The output of finished products like steel sheets, bars, rods, strips and tools has increased still more.

Aircraft steel of the highest quality and value are in rapidly increasing demand. Motor-car steels never were in so great demand as at present. Bridge steels is another line for which there is no shortage of orders. One firm has booked contracts for 50 steel bridges. Steel is replacing wood in the collieries — steel props instead of imported wood, and steel tubs instead of wood. The railways are planning to eat up millions of pounds worth of steel in developments and replacements.

RANGERS MAY BE CENTENNIAL GROUND GUARD

DALLAS, Nov. 5 — Texas Rangers among the most colorful law enforcement figures in the world, will guard the Texas Centennial Central Exposition and will patrol the grounds both on foot and on horse if plans of the exposition's management committee materialize.

The management committee, headed by R. L. Thornton, discussed the plan with Capt. Tom Hickman of the Texas Rangers, Chief of Police R. L. Jones and acting Mayor D. R. Graham. The committee also discussed a proposal for the erection of a Texas Ranger building of logs, to furnish the atmosphere of 100 years ago when the ranger force was organized, and to establish a regular troop of rangers here during the Centennial Exposition.

Tentative plans for the exposition's police force, which, at the peak, will number about 150, calls for the appointment of each man as a Texas Ranger. They will be costumed appropriate to the general idea of the appearance of a Texas ranger. Some of them be mounted on horses rigged in the trappings of the West.

Ranger Building The proposed Ranger building would be located in the southwestern corner of the exposition grounds. It would have dormitories as quarters for the troops of regular rangers and would include a corral for horses and pack trains. Old time rangers would be invited to make the building their headquarters as long as they desired to attend the exposition.

A section of the structure would be devoted to a museum of Texas Ranger relics and would include antique rifles and pistols, saddles and similar articles. A part of the museum would be devoted to the equipment of the modern day ranger and to a display of the means he uses in the suppression of crime.

To Attract Many Centennial officials expressed the belief that presentation of the Texas Ranger idea to the exposition visitors would prove one of the most attractive and interesting features, since many of the visitors will be from northern and eastern states, where the name Texas Ranger carries more glamour than in the southwest. The committee announced that it would continue working on this plan and that in the meantime it would take steps to assure the finest type of police organization for the celebration, regardless of whether or not the Texas Ranger idea is adopted.

Fall Car Checkup Prevents Damages

DALLAS, Nov. 5 — Profiting from the experience of large fleet operators, automobile owners are rapidly learning that a semi-annual check-up of their cars is the best insurance that they can buy against cold weather damage and expense. Fred M. Lege, Jr., vice president said in announcing the annual Magnolia Petroleum company. "Winter Proof" campaign of the "Thirty Americans have learned that it is good business to carry insurance that protects them against damage to their persons and their home," Lege said. "They insure their automobiles against fire and theft, and often against damage from accidents—and now they realize that it is equally as essential to "insure" an automobile against the ravages of weather and wear by protecting the engine, the body, the cooling system and other vital parts by means of two semi-annual check-ups—one in the spring and one in the fall.

In response to this demand for motor vehicle protection, Magnolia dealers and stations provide what has become popularly known as "Winter Proof" service. This service, originated by Magnolia several years ago, has been growing in favor of each fall as car owners learn that it is cheaper to "insure" than to wait and pay a repair bill later. "Magnolia's Winter Proof check-up covers seven vital points, the chassis, fuel, radiator and battery, engine, transmission differential. Dirty summer lubricants are replaced with clean, fresh Mobiloil and Mobilgreases of the correct winter grade recommended by the manufacturer of the motor vehicle."

Woman Astronomer Locates 200 Stars

OLD RAZORS MATCHED ATHENS, C. — When Wayne Kinney of Pleasanton read an account of a man who had used the same razor for 47 years, he yawned slightly amused. Kinney has a razor he has used almost daily since 1880—and its seams to be good for many more years.

Dutch Lose Lead In Pretzel Sales

HARRISBURG, Pa. Nov. 5 — The pretzel industry in Pennsylvania, which started in a small Lititz, Pa., baker shop in Lancaster county, now is nearing the $5,000,000 mark. State Secretary of Internal Affairs Thomas A. Logue said sale and production of the twisted delicacy, usually associated closely with beer consumption, has shown a steady upward trend during the past several years.

Pretzel production in the Commonwealth in 1934, according to Logue, was approximately 28,000,000 pounds and was worth $4,891,000. In 1932, sale of the baked intertwined strings of dough was valued at $3,722,800. The Pennsylvania Dutch section — Lancaster county—which led the state in pretzel production for a number of years has dropped back in the lineup of pretzel producing counties. York county now claims first place in the industry. Last year the pretzel output in that county alone was worth $1,720,700.

Eighty four plants in the state, which have a total payroll of nearly $1,500,000, gave employment to approximately 3,000 workers during the past year. Pretzel baking in 1934 represented an invested capital of $2,259,000, according to state authorities.

MURDER CONFESSED LAHORE, India — The Lahore fifth court has dismissed an insanity plea entered by a man who confessed murdering 15 shepherd boys during the last nine years. The accused, named Wali, a native of Rawalpindi, admitted disposing of their bodies in the jungle.

STUDENTS PREFER APPLES CAMBRIDGE, Massachusetts — Students at Massachusetts Institute apparently are determined to keep the doctor away. About 150 apples are being sold each day now. Sales reach a peak in the winter months. Trade in the past two years has averaged 30,000 apples a year.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 6—George Fronscek, 44, promises to use scarecrows instead of bullets to keep crows from his small city garden in the future. Fronscek used a rifle to chase the crows from his land, and the International Harvester company had to close part of its plants when workmen were endangered by bullets from an "unknown source." After an investigation, the source was found to be Fronscek and he was given a suspended sentence on charge of discharging firearms within the city limits.

Trades Day Events Planned at Weslaco

WESLACO, Nov. 5 — A new series of trades day events will be started by the trade expansion committee of the Weslaco Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with Weslaco merchants, according to Harry Raliff, manager of the Weslaco chamber. The series will be held each Saturday through December 7.

As a result of a questionnaire sent hundreds of families throughout the Weslaco trades territory, Weslaco merchants will offer no prizes or other special inducements for shoppers to visit the city during the series. Bargain prices and promises of courteous service are the only inducements offered. The questionnaire sent out recently revealed that farmers, particularly, were not induced to attend special sales day events by prize awards and that they preferred to trade where prices were generally reasonable and the service good.

Merchants will use only newspaper advertising in connection with the series, a large majority of the farmers answering the questionnaire asserting that they read newspaper advertising more than any other kind and that they were more responsive to this form of advertising. Virtually all business houses in the city are co-operating in the campaign.

Get Your Car Ready for Winter

Lubricants that are suitable for summer driving are highly improper for winter use—too heavy to lubricate on cold mornings. The result is, your car wears rapidly as it turns over hundreds of times per minute without oil to its moving parts.

SEE OUR NEW GREASE GUN

The new Conoco exclusive patent grease gun that has been thoroughly tested in the East has now been adopted for the South. Uses canned grease that protects you from inferior greases and insures that no dirt can be pumped into the delicate moving parts of your car—It's your protection for purity—And it's Conoco. Let Harry Donica, Lubrication expert, give you this winter service.
