CISCO WOMAN FOUND BURNED TO DEATH

MRS. M. A. BUCHANAN DIES AT HOME; EXPLODING LAMP SAID TO BE CAUSE OF HER DEATH

Mrs. M. A. Buchanan, about 80, was found burned to death at her home, 1008 East Tenth street, this morning. Justice Joe Wilson, who held an inquest, told the Daily News that death apparently had occurred from burns caused by an exploding oil lamp in Mrs. Buchanan's bedroom.

Mrs. Buchanan, who lived alone, was found between 9:30 and 10 o'clock by Mrs. Jack Reeves and Mrs. Earl Ayers, neighbors, who promptly notified the justice of the peace.

Justice Joe Wilson, who arrived at the scene of the death, about 10:15 said that he found the body untouched, lying upon the floor of the bedroom, the feet under the bed. The clothing had been burned from the body, he said.

A lamp was found beside the bed. It was believed to have exploded and set the woman's clothing afire, causing her death.

The building was not badly damaged by the flames which were believed to have caused Mrs. Buchanan's death some time last night. No fire was reported until the woman's body was found today.

Green's funeral home today had charge of the body but funeral arrangements were uncertain, pending arrival of relatives.

A son, John Buchanan, who lives near Rising Star, was immediately notified.

Blanton To Address Cisco Boosters

GOOD CROWD FORECAST BY TICKET SALE

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton will address the Cisco Boosters this evening at 7 o'clock.

Advance ticket sales indicate that there will be a large crowd present, Johnny Cox president of the organization, said at noon. Up to that time 100 tickets had been sold, he said.

He urged all who possibly can do so, however, to come, securing their tickets beforehand if possible, but if unable to do so, to obtain tickets at the hotel when they arrive.

Women especially were urged to be present.

Mayes May Come
Cox said that Wendell W. Mayes, new chairman of the state parks board, had informed him that if he did not telegraph to the contrary shortly after noon, he also would be present for the dinner. He was seeking postponement of an important parks board meeting tomorrow in order that he might attend the meeting here tonight.

Congressman Blanton told Cox that he would be here some time before the dinner is scheduled to begin, in order to talk over the matter of the state park here with Ciscoans. If Chairman Mayes is able to attend, he indicated, he also will arrive early.

The program this evening will begin with group singing led by Horace Conley, followed by the invocation by Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor of the First Methodist church. During the meal Robert L. Maddox and his German band will furnish music. Mrs. James Moore will be presented in a reading. Following the introduction of guests and announcements, Congressman Blanton will deliver the principal address of the evening.

Vegetable Demand Greater Than Crop
SAN BENITO, Nov. 25 — So far this season the vegetable crops have been marked by a scarcity of supplies and a good demand for squashes, peppers, egg plant and tomatoes. Shippers report that the season is from two to three weeks behind that of last year.

Growers place the cause of this insect pests. The weevils have destroyed acres of peppers while worms have been at work on squashes.

With the exception of a few small garden patches, beets and carrots are three weeks later in maturing. Weevils have also cut down the production of carrots by eating off the tops.

Within the next two weeks, however, shippers expect shipments to climb to about the same level as that of last season.

Total shipments of vegetables to date were 15 cars as compared to 93 the same time last year.

Supreme Court Hits New Deal Hard Blow
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — The U. S. supreme court dealt a severe blow to the New Deal farm and fiscal programs today by striking the plan of Louisiana rice millers for an injunction against processing taxes under the AAA amendment.

The court's action applies to only the rice processing taxes but was expected to result in quick legal action by other processors to halt collection of virtually all processing levies.

FIGHT STARTS AS REDS TAKE BRAZIL CITY

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 25 — Communist revolutionists were reported in control of the city of Natal in the north today and loyal troops and rebels were fighting for control of Pernambuco.

Luis Prestes, communist leader for all of South America, was believed to be leading the rebellion. It was reported the movement was intended to be a general one, providing for outbreaks not only in Brazil but in Argentina, Chile, and Paraguay.

Federal regulars, army and navy airplanes, and government cruisers were speeding north to engage the rebels. Gen. Manuel Rebelo was named in supreme command with orders to suppress the revolution.

All army, navy, and police units in the country were put on emergency duty.

It was indicated that the rebels had control of the state of Rio Grande do Norte, of which Natal is the chief city, and that they were strong in Pernambuco state.

Communist disturbances have been brewing in the north for months. Authorities have been watching developments and believe the rebellion is doomed to failure.

Apparently capturing the wireless station of Natal the communist leaders broadcast messages saying "Long live Luis Prestes!" and claiming victory.

FIGHTING IS EXPECTED IN NORTH CHINA

By United Press
SHANGHAI, Nov. 25 — Serious clashes between Japanese and Chinese troops appeared certain today if the government sends additional troops into Hopei province to suppress autonomists.

The foreign office statement issued at Nanking to the effect that government would not tolerate the new autonomous government in the demilitarized zone added that counter measures were contemplated.

It was not explained, however, whether they would be of the military character. The Japanese have repeatedly declared that dispatch of Chinese troops as violation of an agreement reached following the crisis last June.

Japan was reported yesterday, in a sudden move to have "recognized" a North China Autonomous government composed of much of the provinces of Hopei and Chahar.

Death Is Asked In Poker Slaying Case
By United Press
DALLAS, Nov. 25 — Death was the penalty demanded by the state today for Jack Terry of Fort Worth, one of three men accused of murder for the poker game slaying of Robert Williams.

Defense attorneys indicated by questions asked of prospective jurors that Terry would claim that the shooting was accidental.

Others charged in the slaying of Williams are Terry's brother, Buck, also of Fort Worth, and Fred Barton, Cleburne.

A program by grammar school students furnished the entertainment for the chapel period at the high school this morning at 11:30.

The program began with a reading, followed by a chorus of grammar school girls who sang two songs. Next was another reading. A boy then entertained the group with several tricks. This was followed by a piano solo, and the program ended with a tap-dancing number by two girls.

ELECT OFFICERS
STEPHENVILLE, Harry Howell of Breckenridge, was elected president of the junior class at John Tarleton college. Lewis Ford of Electra, was elected vice president, and Anita Stewart of Yoakum, secretary-treasurer.

Record Cited
Hickman's cleanup of the east Texas oil field during its boom days in 1930, was cited as proof of the old time ranger's ability to cope with modern conditions. Tom put aside his high heeled boots, big sombrero and called on "bright spots" in Longview, Kilgore, Gladewater and Overton, attired in the horn rimmed spectacles, checked suit and spats of a typical eastern "tenderfoot." The trick worked. He took so many prisoners an abandoned Methodist church in Kilgore was pressed into use as a makeshift jail.

Similarly, when Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, his machine gunning sweetheart, had terrorized the entire southwest for several years and officers apparently were helpless, former Ranger Captain Frank Hamer was employed to track them down and kill them in a Louisiana by-road through the pines.

Hickman and Hamer and their fellows had carried on the Rangers' "two-gun" tradition for years, through cattle rustling days on the Texas-Mexico border in the mountainous "Big Bend" section; long-shore troubles in Galveston; and during the martial law periods in Borger, Panhandle oil town where District Attorney John A. Holmes had been assassinated.

"We're not tough—just rough," Hickman once remarked to a gambling game operator as the big rang-

Where Japan Is on The Move Again

This map shows the powder key of the Far East where rival ambitions, border clashes, and international "incidents" stir fears of a Soviet-Japanese conflict, and indicates where Japan has already extended its sway over China. Japan was reported last night to have recognized an autonomous state in north China, including the greater part of Hopei province and a part of southeastern Chahar. The area was estimated to include about 8,600 square miles. The original Japanese plan called for complete divorce of the five northern provinces, adjoining Manchukuo, from the rule of Chiang Kai-shek's "national government."

Just 6 Days Left Of Second Lap In Opportunity Race; Don't Be A Skybal
Just six days are left in which candidates can get those 125,000 extra credits for each $20 club they turn in before 10 o'clock Saturday evening, November 30. During these six days those shiny, new, beautiful automobiles may be won or lost.

Never again will any candidate be able to get as many credits for subscriptions as she will during the next six days.

For the past few weeks most of the candidates have been active and have been doing extra good work. Less than a month remains in which to work. Those cars and the other prizes will all be awarded to workers in 27 more days. Is it not worth working hard for six weeks or two months for $800? Is not $200 a week average for eight weeks pretty good pay for any one of these days? Can any one fail to admire and wish them well those ambitious, wide awake modern women who are making this effort? Only America can and does produce such women.

Aside from the material value of the prizes won there is the additional value these workers gain in having an experience in a business that is one of the best training schools for those who work in it that has ever yet been devised. To these material advantages are added the gratification and joyous satisfaction that comes to every one who has thrown her whole soul and mind into a task and succeeded.

It is a joy and satisfaction to the candidates in which their friends share—in which every one who helped has a part.

Summoned by Allred
Only a few months ago, Gov. James V. Allred called the ax-wielding rangers into service to break up gambling and liquor-selling establishments in Galveston, Houston and other cities.

Hickman was credited with halting a run of bank robberies by a spectacular gun fight on the streets of Clarksville in 1926, when one robber was killed and another wounded. The $30,000 the robbers had in a suit case was recovered.

The Trades Day Saturday

Response to the Trades Day event Saturday was far greater than had been expected. Hundreds of people jammed the streets while big, fat turkeys were thrown into the air to be captured by persons in the crowd.

The popular demand for a repetition of the event was such that it was immediately announced by the merchants and the Daily News, sponsor, that another event of the same sort would be held on December 7, a week from next Saturday.

There was no question about the crowd. People simply flocked in from far and near to take part in the turkey catching. Twenty-five of them went home Saturday evening with smiles on their faces and turkeys under their arms. The others who had participated in the event, although they had not been fortunate enough to capture one of the 25 turkeys given, had had a part in the fun of the afternoon.

The merchants reported big increases in their Saturday afternoon business and credited the increases to the Trades Day.

Many compliments from outsiders were paid the merchants and sponsors of the event, typical of them being the remark of one man that "I didn't know there were this many people left in Eastland county. The Trades Day certainly brought them out."

Other comments had to do with the manner in which the turkey throw was carried on. There was none of the "rough stuff" which might have accompanied such an event. There was no danger from automobile traffic. The judges to route the traffic around the block in which the event was taking place prevented these two occurrences which might otherwise have proved serious handicaps.

The Trades Day accomplished its purpose. It brought the first of the big pre-holiday crowds to Cisco. It stimulated trade. But the demand for another event of the kind was so great that the next will be held on December 7, and an even greater crowd is expected to attend at that time.

Blanton's Booster Address

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton will address the Cisco Boosters and their friends at a banquet this evening. The Boosters have been working hard to secure a large crowd for the occasion and indications are that they will not be disappointed at the number present.

as the interests of the entire nation, in mind during his stay in office. He has earned a nationwide reputation for governmental economy and adequate national defense policies to place him in an outstanding position in these two fields. The congressman deserves an audience to which he can express his views upon matters of national importance. He deserves to learn the reaction of his constituents to his views. The banquet tonight provides an opportunity for both. In addition, Cisco is seeking an early start upon the state park here. Decline Seen For High Grade Cotton

The proportions for the higher grades of cotton were lower this week than they have been in a number of weeks. Strict middling and better grades of white and extra white represented only about 11 per cent of the samples classed from Texas ginners this week in contrast to 10 per cent last week and 18 per cent for the season to date. Notwithstanding the recent decrease in the proportion representing strict middling and better grades, the proportion for these grades was lower for two weeks in August (reports of August 10 to 17) than for any of the other weeks this season thus far.

The average length of staple each week continues to indicate a trend toward shorter lengths as the season draws to a close. Since the latter part of September, the samples classed from Texas ginners have shown increased proportions for lengths 7-8 inch and shorter and decreased proportions of lengths 1 inch and longer.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Much of the New Deal's idealism, sincere enough in its time, is wearing off in the face of practical political realities.

Anyone here can feel the federal machine bracing itself for the election campaign. Old-line civil service employees aren't so concerned, but those in the emergency agencies—many of whom never cared a whoop about politics before—are beginning to take active interest as a result of fear for their jobs, for an administration they admire, or both.

Federal employees will be asked, quietly enough, to dig down and contribute to campaign funds. With most wealthy men opposed to the New Deal, the Democratic party will have relatively few "fat cats" this year.

Someone must pay the bills. It's all right to talk about the work-relief billions as a "campaign fund," but you can't divert any of that money to operation of campaign machinery which will take millions—and there's a heavy party deficit right now. How much coercion will be used to make jobholders kick in remains to be seen.

MANY officials with political background are spending most or much of their time and thought on politics, making occasional trips back home and keeping in constant touch through correspondents.

An increasing number of minor employes plan to join the Young Democrats and vote for the first time in their lives.

will devote itself to "practical" smoothings of factional party rows in various states which threaten the national ticket.

Political groups which the New Deal—and especially its "non-political" cabinet members and administrators—were once unable to stomach will be treated more tamely. Reconciliation with Tammany, for instance, seems fairly sure.

It becomes increasingly uncertain whether Roosevelt can carry New York state next year without Tammany's aid. There are some states, however, where the administration has favored the "cleanest" political element with good political results.

BUT the big thing you notice here is the number of boys and girls who once considered themselves above and aloof from party politics and who are now willing to forget they were going to be "pure government servants" and jump into politics up to the neck.

That goes for quite a few of the brain-trusters. However, insofar as any public activities go, they are more of a liability than an asset in any campaign. Many voters suspect them and few follow them.

Several brain-trusters have stirred up "bad" political situations by their refusal to play politics and their suspicions of politicians. There isn't much they can do now except keep quiet while the political operators try to repair the damage.

A couple of brain-trusters in administrative jobs recently have tried to play pro-Roosevelt politics in certain states and only succeeded in making matters worse.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Young and lovely DANA WEST-BROOK, born and reared abroad, came to America after the death of her parents to make her home with her grandmother, whom she has never seen.

Years before, Dana's mother eloped, leaving her husband and an infant daughter, NANCY WALLACE. After the divorce she had married young Westbrook and a year later their daughter, named Dana for her father, was born.

When Dana reached the old southern home she is welcomed cordially by her great aunt, Miss ELLEN CAREWE, but to coldly received by her grandmother and half-sister, Marie. "They don't really want me. I shouldn't have come."

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V
NANCY was sure she would never again be startled at anything in her whole life. The rigid barriers that had been erected against even the slightest extravagance in the Cameron household were suddenly forgotten in preparation for the coming party. And Nancy, despite her resentment at the reason for it—Dana—would not have been human if she hadn't enjoyed the temporary recklessness with the family funds.

She was going to have a new dress!

Only a day before Nancy had been thinking unhappily, "What'll I wear? That old pink organdy, I suppose. I wish it would fall into holes so I'd have to get a new evening dress. I wish I had nerve enough to spill ink down the front of it."

And then there was her grandmother saying, "I suppose both of you girls will need new dresses. I think your Aunt Ellen and I saw the very ones for you. Twin models at Burger Goodlett's. They are white, which I think is prettiest for young girls. And" (Mrs. Cameron had not completely forgotten her thrifty habits) "you can wear white longer. It is less conspicuous and it can always be dyed."

A Burger Goodlett's frock! Nancy's big eyes widened in amazement. This was something, indeed. Oh, it was going to be grand to appear in something besides that everlasting pink rag, to feel decently dressed for once in one's life.

"When do we go for our fittings?" Nancy asked, her voice husky with emotion.

"Any time you wish. The dresses have been laid aside for you."

Nancy could scarcely wait. She wanted to rush from the room and race to town. But when one is 21 and has spent several years cultivating a pose of indifference it will not do to drop the mask all at once.

"I guess I'll take a nap. I'm awfully sleepy," Nancy said, managing a quite natural yawn. She went to her room and threw her self across her bed. Impossible to sleep when one was as excited as this, envisioning oneself in a long, lovely little frock.

The house was very quiet and presently Nancy drifted off to sleep while listening to the drone of the humming birds in the red honeysuckle vine. It was 3 o'clock when she awakened.

Now she could leave the house without Grandmother and Aunt Ellen suspecting she was rushing off to see the new dress. With elaborate carelessness, she left the house, swinging a tennis racket.

Perhaps she should have knocked at Dana's door, and asked her to come along for a fitting, too. But that, Nancy felt, would be a weak-

Nancy threw herself across the bed but it was impossible to sleep when she was so excited.

ness. Just because one was going to have a new dress was no reason to turn sentimental and sappy and do things you didn't want to do.

Nancy was quite sure, anyhow, that Dana was sleeping. Everyone in the old house fell into the habit of an afternoon nap because there was nothing else to do to fill the time.

As Nancy backed the Cameron automobile down the drive into the street, a roadster, driven by Marie Norman, swerved quickly, avoiding a collision.

"Lo, Nancy," Marie called. "The other girl's response was none too cordial. She halted the car, however, as it was apparent Marie wanted to talk."

"Hello," Nancy said, Marie Norman had always had an irritating effect on her. Marie was always perfectly bland and agreeable, all sweetness and light, but, just the same, she was full of tricks and used them when it suited her purpose, with unscrupulous cunning. There had been times, too, when Nancy's rapier-like wit had drawn blood at the expense of her slower-witted neighbor. Somehow, Nancy knew that Marie had an abiding dislike for her, behind smiling eyes and slow, indolent voice.

"I'm just back from the club," Marie announced. "Guess who is out there?"

"Too hot for guesswork?" "You're perfectly knocked sister."

"My sister!" Nancy dropped her eyes for a moment. "Oh—Dana. I'd forgotten she planned to go out this afternoon."

"You should have been there to see the hit she made. Boys swarming around her like bees. Ronnie wasn't any too pleased about it, either. He had that terribly proprietary manner, I suppose, just because he'd brought her out. We housewives haven't a chance. Gosh, Nancy, if I had a sister like that, I'd have kept her across the ocean!"

"Would you?" Nancy queried indifferently. She started the car just then—and for once didn't mind its protesting rear, mixed with a number of rattles. They helped to draw out Marie's parting shot.

"What do I care?" Nancy asked herself furiously, driving blindly for the moment.

THE day had turned gloomy. All the heady excitement that had sent her on her way to the dress shop was gone.

She thought drearily of Dana, walking into the country club with Ronald Moore, cutting a wide swathe without even trying. It had always been so difficult for Nancy herself. Of course there was always Tommy McNear hanging around with his pale hair and pale eyes that blinked, but that was almost worse than having no one hanging around at all. Tommy was a perennial thorn in Nancy's self-esteem. He was the one definite proof of her social failure. For no girl who had anyone else for an escort would ever allow Tommy around.

But if Tommy weren't with you, you wouldn't be there at all. So you went with him, gilded and played tennis vigorously and acted as though you were having a perfectly swell time.

The dress could go hang, Nancy decided. At least for this afternoon it could.

She turned the car at the next corner and headed for home. On the way she passed Scott Stanley and Paula Long. Nancy thought, "More strangers coming to town."

Not, of course, that Scott and Paula were strangers, because both were natives. Scott had been away for years, though. She had heard last week that he had come through medical school with honors and was heading home to begin his practice.

Paula, who had been sickeningly in love with Scott for so long, was the kind of artist who puttered around without ever getting anywhere. With money of her own, she had always managed to be put-tering somewhere in Scott's vicinity. Though it hadn't seemed to help her much. Everybody but Scott knew how much Paula cared for him.

Only momentarily diverted by her glimpse of the rather battered gray roadster, she two occupants, Nancy's "uh" as she turned to the country club and the fun and excitement which Dana was a part. She thought bitterly; "Where was my lucky star when I happened to be born?"

SCOTT had come from the show rooms and joined Paula at the pool. They were suddenly in the midst of a crowd of young people. "Well, Scott, old chap, I thought you'd really deserted the old town."

"Glad to see you back, Scott. Well, Dr. Stanley—Oh, Scott, how does it feel to be a 'fledged'?" And on and on. Paula, too, was being received with some excitement. "Is it true you had a one-man show at the swank gallery, Paula? His eyes you invite me over to see some of those etchings you do so cleverly?" Scott's eyes glinted with amusement. He could read Paula's disgust in her veiled eyes.

And then, suddenly, his gaze was concentrating. A girl in a gray bathing suit had climbed the ladder and was preparing to take high dive. She had a lovely, elfin figure and a laughing, eager face. Scott got to his feet and walked up as he walked. His eyes were those of the girl. Hers were shade of deep green-blue. Perfectly the green tint in her eyes. He couldn't be sure. But he was he'd never seen eyes so beautiful before.

Paula joined him. "Who's the girl?" she asked. Her voice was queer.

Scott's voice sounded strange also, rough with emotion; "I don't know. But I have an idea of the girl I'm going to marry." (To Be Continued)

Don't Be a Skybal
During the depression of 1923 in the Pacific Northwest an expression gained much popular approval and was on the lips of everyone. That expression is just as applicable to the Cisco territory as it was to the state of Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The expression was "Don't Be a Skybal." It is a chuck full of meaning. Any one willing to be a skybal is not worthy of prosperity. If you never heard the expression, look it up in a standard dictionary published since 1923. It is now a recognized scientific word.

Let's have no skybals in the Cisco territory. Give your favorite candidate your subscription. Give those who are helping to advance the prosperity of this section.
