Dentist Benefactor Dreaded Drill Too

Boiled down, this presumably means that you feel a lot more chummy and intimate with some famous man if you can just discover that he suffers from bunions, can't get along with his son-in-law, and likes to put cream and sugar on his apple pie. It's those homely; intimate little touches that do the trick.

Anyhow, long-suffering humanity might pause in its task of laying a wreath at the feet of Columbia University's Dr. Leroy L. Hartman and celebrate the discovery that he is just one of the boys, after all.

Dr. Hartman is the dental specialist who made a chemical discovery that makes the dentist's drill painless. It is a sort of goo which, when mopped on the tooth, enables the patient to lean back in the chair and think about something else while the dentist goes ahead and carves out one of those hideously sensative cavities.

Now the point to all this is that Dr. Hartman did a magnificent thing in giving this invention to the world; he refused to take out a patent on it or accept any money on street survey here reveals that men cent of American divorces are causit, with the result that the ordinary patient will be able are less rugged and less individual- ed eye strain, according to Freeman Britain. It is beoming their play- are considerably in detail at least to enjoy the boon at little if any, added cost. And in taking this attitude, Dr. Hartman refused to white meat when a turkey is being who addressed a gathering in the make any solemn remarks about the duty of the scientist, carved.

Instead, he simply said: "I myself have suffered in the dental chair."

There, of course, is this touch of nature about which we were speaking.

Taking the pain out of a toothache probably isn't a discovery that would rank with, say a cure for infantile paralysis, in importance. But a man's teeth can give him some miserable moments on his trip across this vale of tears, and the sum total of discomfort which Dr. Hartman is abolishing from the record of human experience is something pretty

And the point is that Dr. Hartman knows about all this from bitter experience. Like the rest of us he has lowered himself gingerly into one of those padded-skeleton chairs. winced as the attending dentist (unscrupulous falsifier) remarked gaily, "Now this isn't going to hurt," and then numbly endured the one sure-fire torture which the inventive American Indians never managed to think of.

No man ever forgets his hours in the dentist's chair. Dr. Hartman didn't; and, unlike the rest of us, he resolved to do something about it. The result is an achievement for which all the ages will call him blessed.

Best of all, he didn't present his gift to humanity with And that makes us like him just twice as much.

FDR Orders Bonus Machine Speeded

President Roosevelt lost the bonus fight. He had twothirds of the senate and the house against him. They smashed his veto message. He is a game sportsman. He accepted the verdict without the batting of an eye and sent orders down the line to pay off the $2,491,000 soldiers' bonus as quickly "as accuracy will permit." The vote in the senate was 76 to 19. The house previously had voted 324 to 61 to over-ride the veto. It is said a total of 38 million separate bonds will be needed. Legionnaires and members of other veteran organizations will be beneficiaries of the huge appr priation to be distributed between this time and the comin month of July. It is all over now except the payment. republican presidents, immediate predecessors of President Roosevelt, vetoed the bonus, Roosevelt vetoed it twice. has been estimated by accountants that $3,000,000 in baby bonds will fall into the pockets of Texas legionaires in which will be new money so to speak in Centennial year of Texas independence. These bonds may be cashed at post office but not at banks. On with the Passing Show and ever th slogan, "Texas first."

Roosevelt Will Track the Courts

A close adviser of President Roosevelt "advised h friends in Washington that the administration will avo proposals for amending the constitution" during the coming campaign. "The administration," he added, "will seek to ac complish new deal purposes within the language of the majority opinions of the supreme court of the United States. Well, let the future speak for itself. The American congress enacts laws; the president has the right to veto or the right to attach his signature to the enactments. This is a swift moving world and the struggle in America years even if it is necessary to amend the constitution. The people and not just a few will be won at the polls either this or in future years even if it is necessary to amend the constitution. The people are the masters.

CAMELS GIVEN APPROVAL FOR DIGESTION AID

Smoking Camels has been found definite aid in promoting good digestion.

This fact is announced in an extensive campaign of newspaper advertising just released by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, makers of Camel cigarettes. It is the latest development in the constantly widening field of knowledge regardng the physiology of food assimllation, made especially significant by the fact that millions already moke and enjoy Camels regularly.

Results of Tests

Careful studies, now completed, show that smoking a Camel during or between meals gently stimulates and promotes the action of the digestive juices. This conclusion, the rusult of objective measurements made under controlled conditions means that regular Camel smokers enjoy maximum benefits, since digestion goes on for approximately four hours.

These new facts are popularized in the campaign through the slo-gan "For digestion's sake—smoke Camels." The sheer smoking enjoyment obtained from smoking the choice tobaccos in Camels also contributes to their value in relieving the strain on digestion, since it is known that pleasure plays a major role in the proper digestion and utilization of food.

The Camel advertisements gain especial attention through using illustrations of scenes in famous American restaurants where Camels are in demand among those who are in a position to enjoy the finer phases of enjoyable living. Among those restaurants featured are Kugler's, famous old Philadelphia restaurant; the Gold Coast Room of the Drake Hotel in Chicago; and Keen's English Chop House in New York City, rich in memories of such congenial spirits as John Drew and that great gourmet, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Theodore Roosevelt, "Buffalo Bill," Taft, Belasco, and James Gordon Bennett. "Camels are a favorite here," reports William, of Keen's. "We've noticed that our guests who smoke Camels during and after meals seem to find more pleasure in dining."

Digestion Often Overtaxed The rush, strain, and eternal hurry of modern living affects the diestion of people in every walk of life. The value of Camels in easing the effects of this unnatural stress and strain is reported in the new advertising by many Camel smokers ment to several thousand re- who lead strenuous lives; such as, explorer; George Lott, Jr.; Lester Stoefen, the tennis champion; and many others.
