DR. LEE WARNS OF SANITATION ABOUT STOCK

Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, Saturday sounded a warning that more sanitary methods of handling of stock must be observed in the city.

Dr. Lee especially directed attention to the cleaning of pens and pointed out that the burning of manure has caused a number of complaints recently.

The health officer indicated that if the conditions which he noted in the warning are not improved immediately it will be necessary for the city to take some court action of handling the situation.

Following is Dr. Lee's statement: "To be good neighbors and to promote the health and well being of the community is the business of every person in the town, and it is something for each of us to do no matter where we live or what our circumstances. What is objectionable to our neighbors may not be to us and vice versa."

"Complaints have been made of premises where stocks, especially cows, are kept. In some instances in the effort to keep clean pens the manure is being burned, causing an almost unbearable odor, noticeable blocks away."

"We ask that you clean the lots where your stock is kept daily and pile the droppings in one place, using lime on the rubbish, and at frequent intervals have it hauled away. Do not burn the manure. It is disagreeable to all persons in the neighborhood, as well as yourself."

Great Physicians Keep Vigil Beside Countess Barbara

LONDON, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — Britain's most eminent physicians kept a most constant vigil tonight in a mansion where the heiress to the Woolworth millions, Countess Von Haugwitz-Reventlow, was gravely ill.

The countess, the former Barbara Hutton, gained a little ground in her fight against death. In an adjoining room her first-born son slept peacefully, his cradle heavily guarded.

Grand Jury Due to Probe 'Skeleton Case'

JURORS MEET THIS WEEK IN NEW SESSION

Further investigation of the famed Rising Star "hanging skeleton" mystery is due, with possible indictments, when the district grand jury convenes in Eastland Monday.

Bonds for Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Henry, charged with murder in the death of H. L. McBee, were set at $6,000 and $3,000 respectively in ninety-first district court Friday at a habeas corpus hearing.

Three others are also charged with murder in the case. They are Jack Smith, Lynn Smith, and Charlie Fenwick. Setting of the bonds for the Henrys Friday followed testimony of M. E. "Sandy" Tyler that Raymond Henry had stabbed the former highway worker and that the others were implicated in the slaying and later the disinterment and hanging of McBee.

Two Indicted — Mr. and Mrs. Henry are now under indictment for the slaying but the case was recently continued until the April term of court, while officers made a more complete investigation.

Although the case has been in the ninety-first district court, it was believed that the eighty-eighth court grand jury would likely make an investigation to bring about an earlier trial.

Grand jurors are: L. J. Lambert of Eastland; Curtis Kimbrell of Eastland; Tobe Morton of Eastland; F. E. Langston, of Ranger; Leslie Hagaman, of Ranger; A. H. Henderson, of Olden; C. F. Falls of Rising Star; Ira C. Underwood of Gorman; W. R. Ueserv of Carbon; J. G. Medford of Okra; Rufus Cox of Rising Star; P. O. Burns of Okra; G. D. Chastain of Banger; C. E. May of Ranger; H. S. Drumwright of Cisco and W. H. Craddock of Cisco.

Four from the list will be eliminated when the group is empaneled March 2nd.

Meeting Called For New Highway Talk

FORT WORTH, Feb. 29 — A mass meeting will be held at the Oak Lawn Church, Christ Tuesday night to discuss a campaign for purchase of the abandoned Cleburne interurban right of way for a new traffic channel.

L. P. Burcham and C. O. Moad called the meeting. They believed that money development of a thoroughfare on the route, as an alternate to Highway 34, was set aside years ago.

TAX PROGRAM MEANS BURDEN OF 6 BILLIONS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt temporary and permanent tax program to be submitted to congress next week adds up to a bonus and farm relief burden aggregating $6,580,000,000 when projected over a 10-year period.

This is approximately the sum taxpayers will have to find for those purposes. The heaviest load will come in the first two or three years when taxpayers will be contributing to:

- Points of Program
1—$120,000,000 annual additional bonus cost created by early payment.
2—$500,000,000 to be collected over a period of two or three years to reimburse the treasury for AAA revenue which could not be collected in the current fiscal year.
3—$600,000,000 in permanent taxes to be collected annually for farm relief.

Permanency Uncertain — It is not possible for Mr. Roosevelt to guarantee the permanency of his $500,000,000 a year farm relief plan beyond 1940, and it might be upset earlier by a recalcitrant congress. But the history of agricultural benefits has been that, once granted by congress, they are not likely to be abolished or greatly curtailed.

HEIRESS CALM AT NEWS OF MOTHER

OLD RELIEF BOOK OWNED BY JOE WILSON GIVES DATA ON STORM THAT DESTROYED CISCO IN 1893

SABOTAGE BY PICKETS SEEN AS PROBABLE

EL PASO, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — The El Paso Electric company will take extra precautions tonight against possible sabotage attempts in the power strike here, officials revealed today.

Twenty-five armed company guards and several highway police guard power plants and transmission lines. Company officials said it is possible that person wishing to damage company property will strike tonight—since a larger number of business enterprises would be affected on Saturday night.

A $100 reward spurred authorities in their search for persons who damaged company property last night and the night before.

Although two more poles were cut down last night, and four primary wires cut, service was generally satisfactory today. Picketing of company power plants and offices was continued by striking union men. Details of a boycott and municipal ownership plans will be discussed by other labor groups at a mass meeting tomorrow.

SHOOTING OUT STREET LIGHT DAMAGE SEEN

Police Chief M. L. Perdue Saturday warned against the damage which boys have been causing by shooting out street lights in the city during recent weeks.

The chief asked that parents "keep closer watch on their boys and their argons and nigger-shooters" in order to avoid having more of the light bulbs shot out and the boys brought to the police station for court action.

Perdue announced that if the damage is not stopped immediately special police would be placed in the residential district and that they would take what action is necessary to stop the mischief.

27 Lights Shot Out — "I've been informed that 27 street lights were shot out in the last week," the chief said. "That's destruction of public property, and we're going to have it stopped."

The street lights are rented by the city from the West Texas Utilities company at a monthly cost of $2 each.

Foreign War Vets Sponsor Broadcast

One of the most unusual radio programs of the year will be the occasion for a gala public mass meeting to be sponsored in this city this evening of Tuesday, March 3, by Cisco Post No. 335, of Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

The broadcast will be the fifth annual "Hello, America!" hour of the national V. F. W.—an unique presentation of the purposes and activities of the overseas veterans' organization emanating from Washington, D. C. Addresses by noted speakers will be interspersed by popular and patriotic musical selections by famous bands and orchestras, and the program will culminate in an impressive initiation ceremony in which the Commander-in-Chief of the V. F. W., speaking from Washington, will administer the oath of obligation to approximately 25,000 recruits, assembled in V. F. W. Post meetings in thousands of cities and towns throughout the country.

That sad, longing look you see on Loretta Young above, has been transformed into a care-free and happy expression. She's back in films, after a year's struggle with poor health. She could have come back earlier, she says, but she wanted to be thoroughly well before facing the camera again.

NO IMMEDIATE CHANGE IN WPA RULES IS SEEN

EASTLAND, Feb. 29 — Relaxation of Works Progress Administration rules for employment of those not on relief prior to Nov. 1 is not possible under provisions which caused appropriation of the public works money; no change could possibly be made unless other money is appropriated after the WPA expiration date June 30—these were announced Friday as the findings of Judge Clyde L. Garrett who as president of the Texas Judges and Commissioners Association spent a week in Washington.

Judge Garrett returned from Washington Wednesday afternoon explaining the trip, Judge Garrett stated.

Contacted Texans — "We contacted the Texas delegation in congress at a luncheon on Thursday. The mission and our purpose was explained. Afterwards there was a round-table discussion between the delegates and the delegates in congress. This meeting was attended by about 16 or 18 congressmen and one senator, Tom Connally."

"After discussing at length the situation in Texas it was the unanimous feeling of the Texas delegation in congress and that the rules now in effect concerning the employment on WPA projects should be changed to permit the employment of those never on relief and who are in many cases in destitute and deserving."

"Some of the Texas delegates in congress went so far as to say that the funds ought to be made available when present funds are exhausted."

Talked With Hopkins — "We arranged for a conference with Mr. Williams, first assistant to Harry Hopkins, WPA head, who was out of town, for a conference on Friday and we spent about two hours with him and Col. Lawrence Westbrook presenting to the administration the serious situation which prevailed in Texas concerning our unemployed."

"We were advised that the WPA set-up was only to run until June 30 and that to open the work up to those not on relief would only mean that funds now available would carry the work on for just one-third of the proposed time. We were also advised that there are many hundreds of thousands of people assigned to WPA jobs in the United States."

SIGNATURE IS MADE BEFORE TIME EXPIRES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt put his signature today to a revised neutrality act in which congress charted a course designed to keep the United States out of a foreign war.

The president acted only a few hours before expiration of the temporary law which was speeded through congress last year when the Italian-Ethiopian conflict aroused grave fears of European warfare.

Lasts Until 1937 — The revised act will be effective until May 1, 1937, by which time congress may enact permanent legislation.

Major provisions of the revised neutrality law: An absolute mandatory embargo on arms, ammunition, and implements of war must be proclaimed by the president whenever news of a conflict abroad is called to his attention.

American vessels cannot transport arms, ammunition, or implements of war to belligerents.

"Travel at Risk" — The president may remove protection of this government from American citizens traveling on belligerent vessels, thus imposing a "travel at your own risk" policy.

Loans or credit extension to belligerents are prohibited, and any citizen violating the law would be subject to a $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment, or both. Moreover, ordinary commercial transactions and short-time obligations will be permissible.

Embargoes and other restrictions cannot be laid down against an American republic if it is engaged in war against a non-American nation.

Murder Charged In 'Nightmare Killing'

FORT WORTH, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — George Price, 30, this afternoon was charged with the "nightmare stabbing" of his friend, Cecil Earl Stephens, 25, in a murder complaint filed in Justice Hal P. Hughes' court.

Bond was set at $5,000 and an examining trial will be held Monday. Women companions of the two men made statements to the district attorney.

Stephens died at 11:55 p. m. Friday night. His home was in Mineral Wells.

MAN THOUGHT DEAD HEADING JAP CABINET

TOKIO, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — A man thought dead headed Japan's government today. A second man, also listed officially as dead for three and a half days held the high post of grand chamberlain in the imperial household.

Coincident with the collapse of a revolt of young extremist army officers, it was disclosed, officially, that Premier Keisuke Okada and Grand Chamberlain Soroku Senki who had been listed as among the five liberal statesmen killed by the extremists, were alive.

Admiral Okada was not even wounded. In his place his brother-in-law, it was revealed, had walked stiffly into the guarded room of the prime minister's residence, presented himself to the execution squad of the rebel force, and was shot down in cold blood.

Wallace Moves To Gain Markets With New Farm Subsidy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 — (U.P.) — Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace today invoked his hitherto unused power of employing up to 30 per cent of customs receipts to develop foreign markets for American agricultural products.

He announced a plan for subsidizing exports of American flour from the Pacific Northwest to the Philippines. The plan was not, however, regarded as the forerunner of any federal scheme of subsidies to encourage foreign consumption of products grown on American farms.

Failure of the Japanese Rebellion

The reported surrender of the rebels in the Japanese military uprising last week leaves the entire world, with the possible exception of a few countries which had looked upon Japan as a potential friend in time of war, with a surer outlook upon the future.

The Japanese fascist movement had sought to overthrow the government—and was nearly successful in its attempt—and replace it with a military rule, extending the Japanese power over the world, or at least over all of Asia. There would have been considerable armed opposition to any such attempt at another Asiatic Empire with Tokyo as the Eastern Rome.

Moscow has been watching the movements in Japan with considerable interest and anxiety. The Soviet has been successful to a remarkable degree in its empire building. It has taken the old Czaristic land and transformed it into a much more modern country, or rather a group of countries with common aim. Japan has been treading very close to the Russian bear's toes and that has not set at all well with Moscow. At the same time Japan has felt that Russia was expanding too far to the east in its search for more seaports.

China has been between the two economic enemies, Japanese Imperialism and Russian Communism have been struggling for a foothold, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek trying to decide which to expel and let the other attack his nation from behind. Japan has taken over the advisement of Manchuria, formerly annexed to China, while the Soviet has been controlling Mongolia, also formerly annexed to China. The two claims have been on the border of an armed clash.

The capitulation of the rebel Japanese forces likely will bring back into power the more liberal the more democratic civil rule which has been hampered by an army which has been given orders in Tokio and has obeyed those which came from the field. It likely will mean that Japan will check its wild empire-building and war in the Far East may be avoided.

Now Is The Time--

Now is the time for all good young men to come to the aid of their city.

Now is the time for all good young men to become members of the Cisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The organization is carrying on its drive for membership with fair success and is hoping to secure even more of the younger business men of the city by the time of the first smoker of the year Monday week.

It is an opportunity for the young business men—clerks, service station men, managers of their firms, or whatever they are—to get into the work. It is an opportunity for doing something in the way of civic work, to have a part in the activities of the city.

Someone has said that anyone who has lived in a town for five years and earned his living in it owes something

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Who owns all that 10 billion dollars' worth of gold, anyway?

It's in Treasury vaults in San Francisco, Denver, New York, and soon, at Fort Knox, Ky. But whose is it? The question becomes pretty important in view of new demands that the currency be inflated by new money issued against the gold as backing.

One argument is that seven billions is already obligated to Federal Reserve banks, which hold the government's gold certificates as backing for their currency.

But they can't get the gold. It's in the Treasury vaults. Possession is nine points of the law. Senator Henrik Shipstead is one of those who want to find out pretty definitely. He is backing a resolution calling on the attorney general to furnish the Senate with a formal opinion "as to the ownership of, and the encumbrances on," the gold stock, "with particular reference to the status of the gold taken from the Federal Reserve banks."

SHIPSTEAD points out that several bills are pending which demand issue of currency against this gold, especially in relation to the bonus; and that up to now there has been no official statement regarding just who owns the gold, and why, and how.

He hasn't gotten any action yet. It's just another one of those mysteries, like the disposition of the $2,000,000,000 "devaluation profit" fund with which the Treasury was to act in foreign exchange to regulate the value of the dollar abroad.

SENATOR VANDENBERG, "dark horse" Republican candidate for the presidency, can toss the king's English about when he chooses, almost on a par with Ham Lewis. "The senator thinks that it is a matter of supererogation to inquire about that?" he asked "Cotton Ed" Smith the other day during debate on a farm bill. Smith rebuked him: "The senator should not use that sort of word in a farm bill. . . ."

NOW comes the proposal to hand the whole American labor movement, lock, stock, and barrel, over to the government, to be administered by a board of five army officers. The sponsor, William J. Rau, connected with the American Engineers' Corporation, is perfectly straight-faced about this effort to "save the unions from their worst enemies, graft and poor leadership."

A pamphlet, over the signature of an organization calling itself "American Union Men," is being distributed to members of Congress.

Some members get all in a froth and denounce "this effort to introduce Fascism." Others insist they think somebody is kidding again.

WASHINGTON is a place where queer things come out from under logs, even in winter. Not so long ago a gentleman appeared at one of the leading hotels here, offering to peddle titles, such as Duke of Sconny, to persons like John D. Rockefeller, at a handsome figure.

Found, at Last

in return to that town. That is true, but why wait until a person has lived in it five years? Everyone living in a community owes something in return to that community.

The young men of the city will receive training—and like it—in civic work.

This paper believes that 99 and a big fraction per cent of all the young men of any city would be willing and glad to help their city develop, to help "keep things going", if they were only asked. The trouble is that they have not been asked often enough because there is no organization of the sort to do the asking. That is where the Junior Chamber of Commerce comes in. It is seeking members. When it gets them it will ask them to share in the work and play of a program designed for the betterment of the city.

The membership cards are going the rounds this week with Jaycee commitment and fountain pens. Now is the time for all good young men to sign those cards.

J. C. Penney to Address Meeting of Store Managers in This Area Soon

Store Manager A. G. Tuttle and his associates of the J. C. Penney company will go to Eastland on Thursday to attend a meeting presided over by the founder of their company Mr. J. C. Penney. Tuttle also expects Mr. Penney to pay a short visit to the Cisco store some time Thursday. Penney is visiting a number of Penney stores in Texas to renew his personal contacts with Penney managers and their associates, mingle with the shopping crowds, and make a personal study of retail trends in this section.

To those not acquainted with Penney's aims and his methods of achieving them, it might seem that this is an unusual procedure. For the chairman of the board of directors of the largest retail department store organization in the United States. But there is nothing unusual about it to those who know him. Each individual Penney store is a source of personal pride and interest to him. Each one is a means to an end—a means of rendering a necessary service, and of doing it well. He has often said, "A merchant will not last long who loses sight of the true relationship between himself and his customers, and sees money as first and last instead of seeing it as a by-product of performing an essential service."

Penney is an idealist, but a very practical one. He opened his first store in the tiny mining town of Kemmerer, Wyo., with a total capital of $500. The hard working miners and their families soon discovered that Penney's little 20 by 40 store carried just the things they wanted, and that he and that young fellow Sams who worked for him were about as fair and square as they come. The business grew.

The business has continued to grow, and today the Penney company operates nearly 1,500 stores, located in every state in the union. Observers of department store operations in this country attribute much of the company's success to its rigid adherence to Penney's original plan of vesting full merchandise control of each store in the hands of a local manager who is in a position to study the wants and needs of the people of his own community, as Penney and young Sams, who is now president of the Penney company, did in Kemmerer. Then, by pooling the experience and knowledge gained by all managers, each one keeps in touch with popular style trends, new manufacturing processes, wearing quality tests, and other things that his customers can profit by.

Penney's second great interest is farming, and in particular, livestock farming. He is recognized as one of the outstanding breeders of Guernsey cattle in the country, and in addition, operates a successful Percheron draft horse stud in Noblesville, Indiana. It is a foregone conclusion that he will squeeze in a number of off-schedule visits to Texas farms along his route.

Tuttle said that he and his associates always look forward to Mr. Penney's visits with a great deal of pleasure. "He has a remarkable memory for faces and is so eager to render a real service that he makes it very easy for any of us to discuss our individual store problems with him."

FIGHTING AUNT OF JOE LOUIS BOWS TO FANS

PRATT CITY, Ala., Feb. 29.—(U.P.)—The massive aunt of Joe Louis straightened to her full height and almost filled the doorway of her home as she said: "I was the fighter in this family, long before Joe Louis ever took to fightin'. Why, when I was a child I was so strong that I used to go around looking for somebody to whip!"

Mary Tucker, 6 feet tall and now 65 years old, still vigorous after a rugged life as a field hand on a farm and foreman on land clearing jobs in Birmingham, pointed to a large, framed picture above her fireplace.

There, crouched in a fighting pose, was a picture of her nephew—the "Brown Bomber."

"He's always silent. If he were here right now," she said, "he'd be as quiet as that picture. His mother writes me that Joe says he'll be down to see you some time. When Joe says that, nuth, he's done a half-a-day's talking."

"He's that quiet. That's one difference between us. And another difference—he fights for money, and I fought for sport!"

Mary dropped into the rocking chair at the fireplace where she sits and sews quilts—"now that I'm not as strong as I used to be since I had a stroke."

"Why on the farm down near Lafayette (Ala.), I would pick two rows of cotton at one time," she boasted. "And I could pick two rows of fodder the same way."

Bossed Labor Gang When Mary migrated to Birmingham, she got a wagon and a mule and peddled coal on the streets. Then she went into bigger business. She rounded up mules and men to work for her, when she contracted to clear land for new houses.

When they were dynamiting rocks, scraping ground and building rock walls, the muscular Mary would help. She says she couldn't just sit around idle.

"Once when somebody asked me to build a rock wall, I didn't have a trowel along with me. So I just pitched in and mixed the mortar with my bare hand!"

Weighted 237 Once "I don't weigh but 198 now," she lamented, "but I used to weigh 237."

She glanced back at the picture of the nephew who brought pride to the little weatherbeaten house in this Birmingham suburb.

"I ain't seen Joe Louis since he was 11, when my sister's family moved to Detroit from Alabama. I'm not expecting him to send me any present. He's got seven brothers and sisters to help out."

"His mother wanted to make a violin player out of him. But she might have known he'd have to do sump'n stronger'n that—coming from this family!"

OLD TIME TEXAS RANGER ADDED TO LIST FOR TEXAS CENTENNIAL

DALLAS, Feb. 29.—(U.P.)—An old-time Texas ranger who helped fight the law and order to Greer county, formerly a part of Texas but now comprising about six counties in Oklahoma, has been added to the special events staff of the Texas Centennial Exposition to collect relics of early-day members of the state's famous and colorful law enforcement body. Relics taken from Indians and the desperadoes of early Texas crime will also be included in the collection.

He is Major George B. Black of Comanche, Texas, rancher who served as a Texas Ranger from 1890-92 and is now president of the Texas Ex-Rangers' association.

Tall, gray-eyed and gray-haired, Major Black is typical in appearance of the popular conception of the old-time Texas Ranger.

He announced last week that he already had made arrangements for a number of Texas Ranger relics for the collection, which will be exhibited in the Texas Ranger building on the exposition grounds.

Major Black is now in Austin where he is to confer with Governor James V. Allred regarding the appointment of 15 or 20 old-time Texas Rangers to accompany which will be stationed for the duration of the exposition in the Ranger building.

Rangers Wanted "My acquaintance with nearly every living ex-ranger will enable me to select the finest men to be recommended for the exposition company," he said. "I want fine, tall men, typical of the ranger, and men who have had experience as Texas Rangers and those who know the rangers' history."

"Another idea I want to carry out in connection with the ranger exhibit is to have Texas' old Indian fighters—and there are a number of them left—appear at the exposition not more than three at a time, to spin the stories and yarns of their adventures and of early Texas."

Major Black was attached to a company of 15 rangers stationed at Comanche, Texas, although his operations, with three or four other rangers, were largely in the desperado-haunted "No Man's Land" famous as the hide-out of criminals which began at the Red River and extended over a large section of what is now proper Oklahoma farm land. Old Greer county and "No Man's Land" was adjointed by what was then Indian Territory and the little band of rangers were aided in their work of rounding up desperadoes by the Deputy United States Marshals of the territory, Major Black said.

Relics Trophies and relics of old-timers of the famous rangers will include guns and other records, and articles which the rangers seized with the slaying or capture of Indians or criminals.

Among the relics already obtained is a bow and arrow set, once the property of a Comanche chief. Its chief interest is its decorations—the hair of a scalped French woman—at the tips of the bow.

Another is a map drawn by Captain June Peak, famous Texas ranger who killed the notorious Sam Bass. Captain Peak's map shows the section from San Angelo to Colorado City and designates water holes and where fire wood could be obtained. It bore directions, also, for the traveler to carry wood or water with him over certain sections of the route, where these necessities were unobtainable.

Major Black will also obtain a collection of rifles showing the evolution of the rifle from Revolutionary War days to the present time. A wide collection of pistols will be included.

The special company of rangers will be guard of honor during the Centennial to visiting notables, Major Black said.

Alaska Calls For U. S. Wolf Hunters

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—(U.P.)—Marauding wolves are threatening extinction of herds of Alaska reindeer, the chief source of food for northern Alaska natives, Governor John W. Troy reported to Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes in a telegram asking for assistance.

Troy reported the heaviest infestation of wolves in years, ranging over the public domain in two regions, one covering a radius of 300 miles near Noyvik and the other at the northern tip of Alaska near Barrow and Wainwright.

The wolves, traveling in large packs, are killing as many as 60 deer a night and scattering the remainder of the herd, Troy said.

Special conservation is felt at this time, he said, because the reindeer fawning season begins in April, and a heavy killing toll would threaten next year's native food supply.

He said native hunters have been unable to cope with the situation this winter and that four trained hunters, each with a few assistants, could trail, trap and check the marauders.

WINE IN CANS PROBABLE

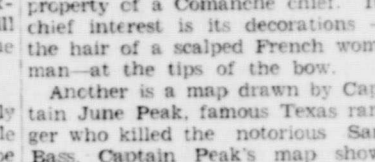

BERKELEY, Cal.—(U.P.)—Experiments to make feasible the sale of wine in cans are being made by the Bear Creek Winery Association, a co-operative with 2,000,000 gallons of wine ready to market.

FEAR CHEMISTRY

Examinations in mathematics, physics and chemistry are the ones that constitute the hardest assault on honor. Thirty-one University of California students either dismissed or warned for "cheating" were victims of these studies.

Today's Ford is an exceptionally Roomy Car

There's a double advantage in having a V-8 engine in your car. It helps to give you fine-car roominess, as well as fine-car performance.

The Ford V-8 engine takes up less space under the hood because of its compact design. And it is positioned forward in the chassis, in accordance with the most modern construction.

More of the car's length can thus be used for passengers—extra inches of leg room are provided in both the front and rear compartments.

Wide seats are another reason for the big-car roominess of the Ford. All seats in all body types (except the individual bucket-type front seats of the Tudor Sedans) hold three persons in comfort. The 1936 Fordor Sedans have 3 1/2 inches more elbow room in the rear seat because the rear-quarter trim is recessed above the arm rests.

We'd like to have you ride in the Ford V-8 for 1936. Actual measurements will confirm your own impression of big-car roominess and comfort.

AVIATION SEES 1936 PROGRESS ECLIPSING 1935

By LELAND CHESLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (U.P.)—American aviation entered 1936 with a bright outlook.
Recovered from the shock of losing airmail contracts in 1934, and stimulated by mechanical improvements and intense competition, the industry has made long strides during the past 12 months, a survey discloses.
"More passengers and express were carried by the four major lines in 1935 than ever before in history," W. A. Patterson, president of the United Airlines, said.
Nearly half a million travelers were carried by the four major transport companies during the year, the survey shows. Planes of the American Airways, Transcontinental-Western Air, United Airlines and Northwest Airways flew approximately 36,696,000 miles over domestic routes extending from coast to coast.
Meanwhile the Pan-American airlines blazed new trails across the Pacific.
China Clipper Writes History
One of the outstanding accomplishments in last year's commercial aviation history was the spectacular flight of the China Clipper inaugurating regular service from the United States to Honolulu, Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam and Manila.
An example of the progress in the domestic aviation field was the report of the United Airlines. Their planes flew an estimated 15,000,000 miles, or 30 per cent of all the passenger miles flown in the country during the year, as compared with 13,608,659 miles in 1934.
Revenue passengers totaled 185,000 as compared with 147,139 last year.
The company carried 6,600,000 pounds of air mail as compared with 3,245,742 last year. Last year, however, the company carried no mail from Feb. 19 to May 8 because of the cancellation of contracts by the Post Office Department.
Air express tonnage showed nearly a 100 per cent increase over a year ago. During 1935, 900 tons were carried as compared with 547 a year ago.
Lines Reduce Fares
During the year the company spent $1,500,000 for modernizing its equipment. United, along with other companies, reduced fares during the year.
During 1936 all major air lines enabling travelers to save from 15 to 30 per cent on fares.
American Airways reported an increase in passengers during 1935 as compared with 1934.
Planes of the company flew an approximate total of 11,600,000 miles, carrying 185,000 passengers.
During October the company carried 17,854 passengers, approximately 40 per cent above the record breaking 1934 October record.
Giant Planes Speedy
New transports are being built by the company to go into service soon. They are designed to carry 24 passengers as day planes and 18 passengers as sleepers. The new planes will have a top speed of 215 miles per hour and each will weigh 24,000 pounds.

Transcontinental-Western Air reported an increase of 108.18 per cent in the number of passengers carried in 1935 as compared with 1934.
Descamps wages his war against the working termites who forage and bring food to the queen, who is the mother of the whole community of the young and the soldiers, who cannot feed themselves. The workers swallow the food they forage and at the end of the expedition they carry it back to the queen and non-workers who disgorge the surplus. If deprived of the ministrations, the queen and non-workers die, and what is even more important, the workers quickly die if they are deprived of consumers for their superfluous food.
Descamps' method is to place a barrier between the non workers and their feeding grounds which consists of a layer of Poultice's poison. Every vertical wall of a house under treatment is saturated with a band of poison at the floor level.
Nearly Ground Sprayed
Holes are pierced at intervals through which the liquid is allowed to soak into the liner structure of the wall, and as an extra precaution the ground floors and the soil immediately below them are sprayed with the liquid, which is squirted with syringes through small holes pierced in the boards.
In bad cases, the floor boards are taken up and the space between them and the foundations is sprayed. The method has the advantages that the structure of the building under treatment is not greatly disturbed. The holes cause no appreciable damage. Finally the outside walls are treated by sinking shallow holes at half yard intervals close to them and filling them with liquid, water sinks into the soil. In this way the house is surrounded with a preventive belt which keeps the termites away.
Descamps' method is equally efficacious against the death watch beetle. Here the method is different, but it is still simpler, as well as more effective, than any used hitherto.

PRISON HOME OF NAPOLEON ESCAPES RUIN

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Feb. 29 (U.P.)—Napoleon's home on the island of St. Helena, which was threatened with destruction by the island's horde of termites, has been saved for posterity.
Maurice Descamps of Bordeaux, French engineer, who has perfected a method of destroying termites in buildings, has returned to France from St. Helena where he successfully rid Napoleon's last home on earth of the pests.
So successful were his operations that the keeper of the Longwood Museum issued a certificate to Descamps, which says that the termites have been destroyed after repeated failures of the past. The ravages of the termites are great, most of the old houses on the island are infested with them, and in many cases their woodwork is falling to pieces.
Liquid Killer Used
The substance used by the French engineer against the termites is a liquid, which while not corrosive, offensive in smell, inflammable, explosive or poisonous to human beings or animals, is fatal to the termites.
Descamps did not discover the liquid. It was first concocted by one of his engineer colleagues, Paul Poutays, who made so little of the discovery that he did not mention it to his friends. He used it locally on a small scale and when Descamps learned of it, he pointed out to Poutays, that if he could really exterminate termites, he was in possession of a most valuable discovery. It is with the expert help of Descamps that the discovery since has been exploited.
Pests' Habits Studied
To concoct a substance fatal to termites was not enough. It was necessary for Descamps to study minutely the habits of the termites, to perfect a successful weapon against them.
Descamps wages his war against the working termites who forage and bring food to the queen, who is the mother of the whole community of the young and the soldiers, who cannot feed themselves. The workers swallow the food they forage and at the end of the expedition they carry it back to the queen and non-workers who disgorge the surplus. If deprived of the ministrations, the queen and non-workers die, and what is even more important, the workers quickly die if they are deprived of consumers for their superfluous food.

Philatelists to Flock to Gonzales For First of Centennial Stamps on March 2

GONZALES, Feb. 29 (U.P.)—Many of the nation's stamp collectors are expected to gather here or send representatives to purchase the first of the special Texas Centennial commemorative stamps which will go on sale March 2.
Postmaster Fred Booth said that the Centennial stamps would not be released in other offices until March 3, thus giving Gonzales the honor of launching the first sale of the general public and philatelists.
Authorization of the advance sale was given by Postmaster General James A. Farley. Booth said the Gonzales postoffice was expected to have a record business on March 2.
Warren Taylor, local philatelist, said that more than $15,000 worth of Boulder Dam stamps were sold on the first day they were placed on sale, and that the first day's sale of commemorative stamps had never been less than 175,000.
Many local clubs and official Texas Centennial groups urged Postmaster General Farley to place the stamps on sale a day early in Gonzales. A petition was sent to Farley containing the following historic facts concerning the city's importance:
1. The first shot for the Independence of Texas was fired in the Battle of Gonzales, Oct. 2, 1835.
2. The first battle flag of the Texas Revolution was made and unfurled at Gonzales, Texas.
3. A new battle cry was given to the world when the Texans defied the Mexicans with the cry, "Come and take it."
4. Thirty-two men from Gonzales responded to the call of Travis and perished in the Alamo.
5. The first Texas army was organized at Gonzales with Stephen F. Austin in command.
6. The second Texas army of volunteers, the one which conquered Santa Anna at San Jacinto, was organized at Gonzales under General Sam Houston.
The new stamp will be the same size as the current special delivery stamp, arranged horizontally, printed in purple ink and enclosed in a double line border. Portraits of Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin within ovals at the left and right and a reproduction of the Alamo at the center will be the central designs.
TEXAS CRIPPLES, GIVEN SPECIAL INSTRUCTION, HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL
By RICHARD M. MOREHEAD
AUSTIN, Feb. 29 (U.P.)—State-trained men and women whose physical handicaps must be offset by special instruction have a record for success in the crafts that they practice.
Average age of cripples cared for by the department of education's vocational rehabilitation division is 36 years. From sums varying from a few dollars to several hundred, the state makes them self-supporting and self-respecting. In some cases, the cripples who were once a burden on their families are able to help support their families.
Every Texas cross roads has someone thus aided. Occasionally, the state has only to furnish an artificial limb to make a person self-supporting. In others, tedious operations are required before sending the student through four years in college.
J. J. Brown, director of the rehabilitation division, now has approximately 40 "cases" attending the University of Texas and others scattered about in schools of the state. For most of those in Austin he furnishes part time jobs—running elevators, typing, operating PBX boards—to help pay their expenses. Every department in the state government has at least one employe being aided by the rehabilitation service.
Random selection of cases from Brown's files list interesting stories.
Examples
At Abilene a man, 36, lost a leg in an automobile accident. He married. The state paid for an artificial limb, spent $373 training him in a shoe repair shop. Now he has a successful business of his own at Buffalo Gap. Another 20-year-old youth in Abilene lost his leg and the state trained him to repair shoes.
At Fort Worth—a grown man had crawled all his life as a result of infantile paralysis. An operation enabled him to walk with the aid of a cane. He was trained in a bicycle shop and now is a leading bicycle mechanic in that city. Cost of his rehabilitation was $298.
In the same city one physically incapacitated youth of 23 was trained in a sign painting shop. A young girl, described as "brilliant"

VILNA DISPUTE ROILS POLAND AND LITHUANIA

By WLADYSLAW BESTERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WARSAW, Feb. 29 (U.P.)—The Polish-Lithuanian animosity, created by the status of Vilna, shows no signs of abating as the controversy ends its 17th year.
No diplomatic or consular relations have existed between the two countries since 1920 when the Polish occupation of Vilna, the capital of the one-time Grand Duchy of Lithuania, caused the indignation against Poland which has smoldered in Lithuania ever since.
So strong is the feeling between the countries over this city that when their respective foreign ministers met in Geneva last year for the first time since the war, the mutual desire for friendly relations was reported to have been set naught because Joseph Beck could not promise the cession of Vilna and Stanis Lozeratjis could not surrender Lithuania's claim to it.
Once a Grand Duchy
From about 1390 until 1773, the year of the first division of Poland between Austria, Russia and Prussia, Lithuania and Poland had constituted one state known as the "Kingdom of Poland and Grand Duchy of Lithuania." Thereafter, they formed part of the Russian Empire until the Versailles Treaty provided for their reemergence as autonomous and independent states.
Since 1920 grass has covered the carefully guarded frontier of 507 kilometers between the two countries. No post or railway connections exist today. The former Russian railway line between Vilna and Kevenno has been cut two kilometers short of the border on both sides. No one may cross the frontier from one country to the other.
The cause of this unfortunate situation is the so-called Vilna question. When Poland retained possession of this city after 1920 despite the protest from Lithuania and the intervention of the League of Nations, the Lithuanians were forced to set up their capital in Kovno "provisionally," as they said, until they could regain possession of what they consider their rightful capital.
Peles Ignore Claims
The Peles pay no attention to Lithuania's claims. They feel that Vilna is as much Polish as the Lithuanians think it is Lithuanian. Besides, it is the birthplace of Marshal Pilsudski. And what is more important, at his own request his heart was buried there near the grave of his mother.
Poland never will give up Vilna or the heart of its national hero—this is the sentiment which prevails throughout Poland.
Lithuania never will recognize that Vilna is Polish—this is the feeling which dominates Lithuania today.

MAKE YOUR HOME COMFORTABLE
• WEATHER STRIP all windows and doors. This will keep out drafts of cold wind and will also keep out the dust when the spring winds begin. Most every house in Cisco has been subject to window frame and door frame shrinkage and as a consequence, cold air continually sweeps in and makes the fuel bill pile up when you try to stay comfortable. This weather stripping is easily put on and gets results. Our carpenters can put it on for you economically, or you can do it yourself. Weather stripping is economical and efficient, and will soon pay for itself. Call us for FREE information or demonstration.

"There were only two Indian raids that I remember, but those were in Stephens county by Indians who were traveling through steaming horses. No skirmishing occurred." No Tricks

The purchase of a used car can be compared somewhat to the purchase of a "Cat in a Bag".

The company from whom you buy a used car is most important to consider when the time comes for you to make a decision. The purchase of a used car involves not only the car, but the finance charge, the guarantee and the honest representations made to you by the seller.

Our success as new and used car merchants has not come about by accident. We have always held as sacred the character of honest representation. No "padding" of finance charges and a thorough appreciation of the used car guarantee after the car is sold. Really, we are more interested in creating a favorable impression after you own the car than prior to its purchase.

Come in and you will see an entirely different atmosphere at A. G. MOTOR COMPANY. Remember these prices are for thorough, dependable cars, ready to run, completely reconditioned, satisfactory tires, good paint and has the best possible appearance and performance commensurate with the age of the car.

CRUISE TO NOWHERE

Deck Morgan

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JANE WESTON feels her dreams have come true when she sets out on a three weeks' cruise which accepted in payment for the salary due her when the magazine for which she worked as a writer suspended publication.

On board the cruise, she meets handsome DIRK STROM, expert ski jumper, as penniless as Jane. The trip was a gift to him from the parents of a child whose life he saved.

Dirk introduces Jane to his friend, SNOWSHOES, a detective. Others on board are: NORA LANE, famous actress and owner of the Kokonor diamond; wealthy, socially famous DORIS; DUTCH LENZ and MANNIE JACKSON, blackmailers; TINO ROSSI, opera singer; KEN MARTIN and LINDA BAYES, door show entertainers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI
DIRK flushed, put his hand in his pocket and drew out a key. He handed it to the detective. "I forgot to turn it in," he said.

"Look here," the purser began, "this young man has a lot to explain. He had a fight with Mannie Jackson and he had a key to this suite."

Nora Lane said, "But that's ridiculous. He was with me all evening."

The room was silent. Suddenly Tino Rossi laughed and Jane turned to him.

"That's how much human testimony is worth," Tino said. "Miss Lane, you say Dirk was with you all evening, but I saw him on the promenade deck at 11 o'clock, just about the time of the murder. I was with Miss Weston and we were on our way back to the bar. I saw him standing against the rail and a second later he lit a cigaret. I could see his face plainly. I'm not saying this to make trouble, you understand. I'm Dirk's friend. As a matter of fact, anybody with a hairpin could have entered the stateroom. You don't expect a key to solve the murder. The purser has a pass key in his office. There are pass keys around all over the ship."

The detective said, "The man who came into this suite didn't need a key. The trunk was unlocked as easily as the door."

The doctor went away with Nora Lane to give her a sleeping powder. Dutch Lenz, after submitting to a search of his person, went to his room which had been gone over thoroughly. The jewel had not been found. Ken and Linda went back to the bar, leaving Dirk with Jane and Tino Rossi.

Snowshoes looked at the purser and said, "As a ship's officer, you'll have to question Dirk Strom. He's a friend of mine. I've known him a long time."

The purser looked at Dirk. "What time did you leave the ballroom?" he asked.

"I don't remember exactly. It was around 11 o'clock. My leg had gone to sleep and I came out to walk up and down the deck. I must have been there 20 minutes. It was the sun deck. I didn't come on Deck A."

The purser faced Tino Rossi. "You saw him on the sun deck?"

Tino smiled. "Yes."

"And after that?" the purser looked at Dirk again.

"I went back to the ballroom and joined Nora Lane," Dirk said finally.

The purser seemed satisfied with Dirk's account. Jane, who appeared to be disturbed, started for the door and Rossi followed her.

WHEN the three men were alone, Snowshoes turned to Dirk. "You're on a spot," he announced. "I'd advise you not to go ashore at Nassau in the morning. Let the others go, but you stay on board. Maybe you can help me."

The purser went through the form of searching Dirk for the jewel. Then he sat down and they discussed the crime from all its angles.

The purser said, "I hope something breaks. The one thing that is poison to a ship is a murder. I'll have to report to the Captain. We'll have the body ashore before daybreak."

Snowshoes didn't move. "I'm stumped," he said, "but I've got my own theory about the murder. The guilty party won't dare quit the ship at either Nassau or Bermuda. To desert ship would be admission of the crime and we'd trap him on an island. He couldn't very easily escape. So we're sure to have a corpse, a murderer and a stolen jewel with us until we reach New York."

Dirk said, "What's to keep him from disposing of the jewel ashore?"

"Every person going ashore will have to submit to a search," Snowshoes cracked his knuckles. He said, "Getting that diamond through the customs and police net at the pier in New York will be a first-class smuggling feat. Somehow I feel sure the jewel will turn up before the cruise ends."

He went out with Dirk and they walked once around the deck. "You're in a spot, son," the detective repeated, "but don't let it spoil your cruise."

Dirk said good night and went on alone.

HE was up in time to watch the passengers go ashore in the morning.

When he came on deck, gay parties were already in the dories. They didn't seem to mind the search of their persons in the purser's office; they regarded it as a kind of lark. The famed Kokonor diamond did not appear, however.

Only one person objected strenuously to the search and that was the old waiter, Madame Doremus.

She went ashore in the same boat with Jane and Tino Rossi, breathing loud deprecations against the ship's crew. "Manhandlers!" she raged.

Dirk watched Jane and the opera star until their heads, close together, passed out of sight.

"Thinking about Jane, enjoying herself on the famed coral beach with Tino Rossi, Dirk knew he was jealous. His imagination followed them, conjuring up romantic scenes with Jane laughing up into Tino's face, dancing with him.

When Snowshoes came up to Dirk, with a heavy slap on the shoulder, the young man felt actually ill. But he didn't want part or parcel of that girl now.

The detective had stayed on board to keep an eye on Nora Lane's new quarters. Close to a nervous breakdown, Miss Lane was to remain in strict seclusion for the rest of the cruise.

The fact that he couldn't see the actress made Dirk more forlorn than ever. He had reached for the stars on this cruise and got worse than nothing.

"Don't look so gloomy," Snowshoes said. "I wanted to go ashore, too; I've never set foot on an island. Come on and have coffee with me."

They went down to the dining saloon and stayed there for almost an hour. Occasionally Dirk let his eyes sweep the low-lying coral beach out there on the palm-fringed shore. The detective was immersed in his job. The purser came over and sat down with them.

"Dutch Lenz stayed on board," he announced. "He's in the bar, drinking and talking to the bartender. Better drop in some time and talk to him. Something might break while he's jittery."

"You don't know that yet," Snowshoes said tersely. "He'll squeal like a trapped rat if he gets hurt, but he won't talk. I'd like to find out what he knows about this. It looks as if the Kokonor diamond is still on board. It'll be with us, all right, until we reach New York. The murderer, too."

The purser looked down at the table. "The old man—the Captain—didn't like the looks of my report. He's wild! It's the first time he's ever had a murder on his ship. He's radioed details to New York and the company's lawyers and the police are on the job."

"So the old boy's riled?" Snowshoes said.

"Hopping mad. He's on shore now, burning up the cables. He's had reports on Mannie Jackson's past—a record of blackmail and extortion threats—and he has the dope on Dutch Lenz. Same count. The purser looked at Dirk. "I'm under orders to keep a watch on you. He wants you turned over to the police the minute we dock in New York."

"Don't bother about the watch," Dirk said. "I'll be there!"

SNOWSHOES found Dutch Lenz drinking at the bar. He walked up casually and took his elbow. "Good morning, Dutch!" he said.

The other man jumped as if a gun had been stuck in his ribs. The glass went clattering to the floor.

"Jitters this morning," Snowshoes said amiably.

Slowly Dutch's features composed themselves. "Any man would have the jitters," he said. "I didn't sleep a wink. When they lowered the corpse to a boat it swung past my porthole. Manny was my pal."

"Sure, he was your pal," Snowshoes said. "Why didn't you go ashore with the body? You might have stayed on that lovely beach all day—for your health."

Dutch was still shaken. "Give me another Scotch, Joe," he said. "I didn't go ashore because I didn't want to meet nobody there. They got dark alleys in Nassau, ain't they? There's goin' to be a night. With a murderer loose on this cruise, I ain't goin' ashore to give him a chance at me in the dark."

"You think the guilty party is ashore?"

"He might be and he might be right outside this bar. I'm not goin' to budge. Say, you're a private dick, ain't you? Want a job acting as my bodyguard? I'd trust that sanctimonious pan of yours anywhere."

"Sorry," Snowshoes said. "Miss Lane has already retained me." (To Be Continued)

KETCHIKAN, Alaska. — (UP)— Nearly five million pounds of troll-caught salmon, representing a value of about $450,000 to fishermen, were brought to Ketchikan during 1935. This is one of the largest catches in the history of the port, officials announced.

SPEEDY FIREMEN PAID

Former Governor's Hunch When Tire Blew Out Might Have Brought Millions in Oil

By HOYCE HOUSE
Author of "Were You in Ranger?"
A "hunch" that could have been worth millions of dollars was described recently by former Governor C. B. Colquitt of Texas.

It is a chapter, never before written, dealing with events leading up to the discovery of the great Ranger oil field.

In company with J. N. Graves of Oklahoma City, the former Governor went to Mineral Wells nearly 26 years ago, rented an old car from a preacher and spent a week in obtaining oil and gas leases in the South Bend area of Young and Stephens counties.

"While we were in Breckenridge, citizens offered to lease me any amount of land almost that I wanted around that town if I would agree to put down a well or offered me a lease on a cash basis of 25 cents an acre without a promise to drill," Colquitt said.

Graves, a son-in-law of C. U. Connelley (wealthy rancher and founder of the town of Eastland) suggested that they go to Eastland and spend the night with Connelley, then proceed to Mineral Wells the next day.

The following morning, they were driving along the dirt road that then joined Eastland and Ranger when, just after crossing Colony Creek, the left front tire blew out, Colquitt remarked:

"As a gamble, I'd just as soon put down a well here as any place I've seen, judging from the surface indications."

They drove into Ranger "on the rim" and, while Graves was having the tire repaired, Colquitt walked around shaking hands with friends who had supported him in his campaigns for office.

The young secretary of the Ranger Commercial club invited him to a conference with the directors. They spoke of having read in the papers that he had filed for a lease on the Brazos river-bed and asked him how they might get someone interested in the Ranger section.

Colquitt suggested that they get up a book of acreage and offer it to the Texas Pacific Coal company and, if that company was not interested, to try the Magnolia in Dallas, and then oil companies in Houston.

"They asked how big a block I would suggest and I mentioned 10,000 or 12,000 acres. They then offered, if I would agree to drill a test, to get up 15,000 or even 20,000 acres."

"I told them of our break-down on Colony Creek and of what I had said to Mr. Graves, and I expressed my belief in their faith that they had oil."

Colquitt stated to the directors that he had just completed an exclusive campaign for the United States Senate and was without sufficient resources to guarantee the drilling of a well. However, he said that he had collateral which he considered worth more than half of a guarantee of $25,000 and he would try to get a dozen friends to take a $1,000 interest each.

At the Bryant Hotel in Ranger, where Graves and Colquitt had dinner, they saw W. K. Gordon, superintendent of the Texas Pacific Coal company, whom Colquitt while governor, had appointed chairman of the board of mines and mineral development.

"I talked to him about the offer of the Commercial club and stated to him that if I succeeded in financing the undertaking, I was coming to see him to make a trade for the sinking of the test well," Colquitt said.

But friends in Dallas told him that their investments in oil had been failures, and trips to Houston and San Antonio were unsuccessful so he abandoned the undertaking.

Later, the Ranger citizens gave the Texas Pacific the block of acreage; the McClesky well was drilled and the field was discovered. Properties of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company (as it was re-named) were estimated at the height of the boom to be worth $300,000,000.

Colquitt ended his story with the statement: "And when the field was developed, they found the biggest wells on the Roper farm on Colony Creek, where the left front tire of our Ford blew out that day!"
